REPUBLIC OF KENYA

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

First Parliament—Seventh Session

(First Parliament established by the Kenya Independence Order in Council 1963)

Tuesday, 20th May 1969

POINT OF ORDER

STATE OPENING OF NEW SESSION

The National Assembly met at Nine o'clock at Parliament Buildings on Tuesday, 20th May 1969 it being the first day of the New (Seventh) Session

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT OF INDIA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, on Saturday the 3rd May 1969, India suffered a grievous loss by the death of her President, the late Dr. Zakir Husain. I have already written to the High Commissioner, expressing the sympathy of this House; but today, when we sit again for the first time after that date, we should record our sympathy in more solemn form.

Dr. Husain was a man of whom his country was justly proud, not only as her figurehead but also for his personal virtues and achievements. A very learned man, a great educationist, an outstanding spiritual leader, and a man of peace. The fact that he, a Muslim, was universally accepted and revered by a predominantly Hindu population, is the strongest possible evidence of those and other virtues; virtues which fitted him beyond question and which proved him by his achievement to be a great President of a great country.

We ask the Acting President, the Government, and the people of India, as represented by their High Commissioner here today, to accept our respectful congratulations on all that Dr. Zakir Husain accomplished while living as their President, and our deep sympathy with them in the loss which his death has now brought upon them.

Let us stand in silence to pay tribute to his memory.

(Hon Members stood for one minute in silence)

ORDER OF BUSINESS ON ORDER PAPER

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, according to the Order Paper, I find that there was to be an Administration of Oath. If it is the Sessional Committee which had drawn up the Order Paper, have we any power to change it since the new candidate appears to be late?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, this Order Paper was not actually prepared by the Sessional Committee because we have no Sessional Committee at present. It was prepared by the Clerk at the direction of the Speaker. The Speaker has at all times power to change the order of business for the convenience of Members and I think it will be for the convenience of the House if we change this Order to that extent and take the Administration of Oath now.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH

The Oath of Allegiance was administered to the following Member:—

Wasonga Sijeyo.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS

LIMITATION OF DEBATE ON THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motions:—

LIMITATION OF DEBATE ON PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

THAT, the debate on Private Members' Motions should be limited in the following manner:—

POINT OF ORDER

PROCLAMATION OF PARLIAMENT TO BE CONVENED

Mr. Kago: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to get your guidance on this point. I remember that some time ago this House was prorogued by the President of the Republic of Kenya. According to my understanding, before the House is then opened by the President it is in a suspended state, in which case it cannot perform any duty nor can it sit as a Parliament.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we seem to have done three jobs this morning, before the House could be legally, so to speak, opened by the President. What is going to be the position of these jobs that we have done? Are we going, then, to re-do them when the House is once again legally opened by the President?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, Mr. Kago is right, of course, that when the House has been prorogued it is, in effect, suspended until a new session is started by Proclamation of the President. If hon. Members, or Mr. Kago, had read the Kenya Gazette more carefully, he would have seen that the President's Proclamation on this occasion convened this House for a new session on "Tuesday, 20th May, at 9 a.m."

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, the House is now adjourned until 10.30 a.m. pending the arrival of His Excellency the President for the ceremonial opening of the new session.

(Proceedings were suspended from 9.15 a.m. to 10.35 a.m.)

ARRIVAL OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT

(His Excellency the President (Mr. Jomo Kenyatta) escorted by the Speaker and accompanied by the Mace of the National Assembly entered the Chamber at thirty-five minutes past ten o'clock)

His Excellency the President (Mr. Jomo Kenyatta) took the Chair

(The Mace of the National Assembly was placed on the Table)

WELCOME TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your Excellency, today, once again, and presumably for the last time in the life of this Parliament, we welcome you to open a new session.

On the 14th day of December 1964, when you first addressed this House as our President, you reminded us that you were addressing an institution of which you were also a part; and that the whole apparatus of the State becomes personified when you step down to join us. It is in such dual yet unifying capacity that we welcome you today.

I look back, Your Excellency, to some other things which you said on that memorable occasion, more than four years ago, when you described the duties lying before us as the first independent Parliament of Kenya.

You referred to the Kenya Parliament as "the supreme instrument of the State", which must contribute to the Republic something far more than just machinery to give the plans or requirements of the Government to this lawful status. It was to be our forum for discussion and proposal, for question, objection or advice. It was to serve as a bridge between Government and the people. It was to lay and maintain a foundation of dignity. It was to work for the creation of a new social conscience, so that the Republic be rooted in human respect.

Now, as the life of this Parliament nears its close, it is not for me to say how far we have yet achieved these high purposes which you then set before us. We stand to be judged by you and by the public, whom we are here to serve. Only I can say that we have never lost sight of those purposes, and shall never do so. If we have failed, it has not been altogether for want of effort; nor do I believe that any worthy effort can ever be altogether in vain.

If, however, we have achieved aught of what you required us to achieve, we owe that achievement largely to the confidence which has been placed in us, and to the respect and encouragement which this Parliament has received, from Your Excellency, from your Ministers, and from the people of Kenya.

I hope and pray that our National Assembly may continue to enjoy such confidence, respect and encouragement, not only during this new Session, but in all the years that lie ahead. The stability of a nation depends even more on the strength of its great institutions than on the strength of those who pass through them, but the strength of any institution depends ultimately on the confidence of those who it seeks to serve.

On behalf of all Hon. Members, I say that we shall strive yet again, heeding your words of 1964, to earn that confidence.

PRAYERS

*(Prayers were then said by the following:
Archbishop Beecher; Archbishop McCarthy;
The Rev. Sheikh-Abdalla-Sakhal-Farsy; and Senior Chief Lepyapui Yakaine)*

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

His Excellency the President (Mr. Kenyatta): Mr. Speaker, hon. Members of the National Assembly, a new session of the National Assembly gives me an opportunity—as Head of State—to say something about the dignity of Parliament, the function and responsibility of the hon. Members.

Within the framework of the business of this House, there must be and always will be scope for the full play of judgment and of conscience, constructive criticism, even of a robust nature, as a part of their contribution.

In a House now sufficiently experienced, there should be fewer parochial attitudes, far less automatic condemnation, or baseless and sometimes marathon attacks by hon. Members on the Government to which they are committed, by popular mandate, to support with loyalty and striving. There should be no wild allegations rooted in ignorance, or in failure to study the implications of some issue.

All these things are immature and contribute nothing to the parliamentary dignity and vigour that we should be proud and determined to maintain.

The Presidential and National Assembly Elections Bill has now been published, and will shortly be debated in this House. Any lawfully recognized political party will be able to select its candidates in accordance with procedure laid down in law, adapted and controlled by the party concerned. It is considered that this will give the people, through their local political institutions, more command over the emergence of candidates, who must then submit themselves to the full franchise in a popular election.

Since I addressed the House on this occasion last year, a consolidated Constitution has been laid before hon. Members. You will observe, therefore, that the Republic now has its own Constitution, approved by a Parliament of Kenya, as distinct from working under amended versions of an inherited document.

As the House will be aware, intensive work has been in progress preparatory to the launching of a revised Development Plan, covering the period 1969 to 1974. This new plan will place greater emphasis on economic projects and social services in the rural areas. Assisted by first results from some pilot schemes, all projects to be included, are now being finally examined by the Government. I have instructed my Ministers to accelerate this work, so that the full plan may be published as early as possible in the next financial year.

During the present year, many areas and individuals will increasingly benefit from the complex but necessary legislation on land matters that was recently passed.

The primary objective of these measures was to hasten and accomplish the consolidation and registration of land. My Government is most anxious to increase the number of landowners with proper titles, who will then be in a position to pledge security for development loans. This whole process can and must serve the vital cause of higher productivity in Kenya.

A full population census will be taken during August this year, and I expect everybody to assist administrative officers in what represents a considerable task. The census is expected to reveal a significant rise in Kenya's total population, with heavy emphasis on the younger age-groups. Exact details will be of great importance for further economic and social planning.

Over the whole field of agriculture, the most dramatic progress, in the immediate future, will be seen in the livestock industry. Having in mind an increasing domestic consumption of livestock products, as well as external markets, the stage has now been reached when a tremendous surge forward in agriculture will be possible.

A virtual revolution in beef management may now—with World Bank assistance—be extended to marginal and outlying areas. This comprehensive livestock improvement programme has taken some time to design and organize, but it will now become the foundation of economic progress and social betterment in many districts that for so long were neglected.

The idea of collective ownership of ranches under proper title, providing an incentive to modernize the production of beef for the market, has already won enthusiastic response from the people in such areas as Kajiado and Taita. Other studies, with similar objectives, have reached an advanced stage in Garissa and Wajir, bringing water development, stock routes and disease control into full account.

By adapting new knowledge and services, backed by available finance, what is called the total range resource, will be worked out and properly exploited in all parts of the Republic.

In the field of crop husbandry, the House should appreciate with satisfaction that the full or partial failure of the Long Rains can no longer threaten Kenya's basic food supplies. Throughout past decades, any kind of drought meant an inevitable famine, but the Government has now succeeded in the primary task of feeding the people.

The next step in this whole context, assisted by research, must be greater diversity of cash crop production. Farmers should constantly be seeking or adapting fresh ideas, to break away from rigid patterns of output, especially in cases where traditional crops are threatened by surplus or by synthetics.

There is great scope, for example, for production of fresh vegetables, fruit and flowers, for sale in the markets of Continental Europe. In building up this trade, and for other purposes, reliable airfreight must come to play a vital part in Kenya's agrarian future.

The various Africanization programmes initiated by my Government, over the whole arena of private commerce and industry, will continue to be executed.

The Government will intensify its supervision of training schemes, which must increasingly be regarded as a vital part of investment. It is fully appreciated that the private or overseas investor must feel assured of a proper economic climate in which to pursue some industrial undertaking.

The investor should correspondingly accept—as the vast majority of business people do accept—that his activity here must contribute in every sense to what we mean by national development.

It has always been made clear that the Republic will continue to recruit or to welcome special skills from outside. We do not yet have a sufficient supply of trained manpower in every field of highly technical or top executive operation. In such instances, therefore, investors wanting to bring in their own personnel must and will be given every facility, subject only to the longer term training requirement, on which my Government will rightly insist.

The greatest social problem confronting the Republic today is unemployment. Emphasis placed on unemployment—which has always been with us—and which is far worse in many other developing States, is in fact a sign of Kenya's growing social organization and awareness of a proper cause for grave concern.

We shall continue to seize every opportunity to provide more jobs. The issue can only be resolved in the longer term, by the joint effort of the Government and the people.

In economic and social development, the modernization of agriculture, for example, must in some degree call for technology to replace human labour. This leads to more intensive working of the land which creates fresh demands for both skilled and unskilled labour.

A new kind of economy, rooted in a transformed agriculture, then comes into being, supported by all the improved rural amenities that will have been provided, in such fields of human needs as roads, water supplies, electric power, schools, health services and better housing.

In Kenya today, more people are in paid employment or successful self-employment than ever before. The whole economy is on the move—agriculture, commerce and the service industries—each with a modern superstructure. An expanding economy is the only real answer to unemployment.

We have contrived as well to expand our opportunities for trade and vocational training for more young people.

Both at formal meetings between Heads of State and Government, and in practical fields of administration and trade, our relations with the Republic of Somalia have grown progressively more cordial. This has proved to be of mutual benefit.

In the North-Eastern Province, as well as in other districts once affected by shifta aggression, my Government has been able to make financial and manpower allocations, and prepare the ground for development undertakings. The improved water supplies and communications, as well as local processing industries, will open up new vocational opportunities.

My Government continues to be disturbed by instances of violent crime throughout the Republic. Legislation was recently passed to provide for punishment calculated to deter these bandits and thugs who are enemies of our society. I wish to give warning today that the situation is being kept under constant review. Unless there is a further significant decrease in the number of these crimes, very soon, the Government will have no hesitation in bringing far sterner measures into force.

All hands should be turned against this tiny group of inhuman and brutal gangsters, whose activities bring shame to the dignity and striving of our country. They should expect no mercy from the Government of Kenya.

I wish to say a word on this occasion about the stability of the Republic, from which remarkable development in every sphere has sprung, and about the need for national unity, which I have always defined as the key to progress throughout half a century in public life.

Under our Constitution and within our Parliamentary System, we have provided every facility for criticism and debate. My Government is increasingly concerned that the freedom we have entrenched, as part of our tradition and culture, are destroyed by a tiny minority into breeding-grounds for subversion.

There is no danger that these men can destroy or undermine all that our Kenya nationalism—made into a living force by the hard work of the people—has achieved. Their unacceptable endeavours and foreign ideology, aided by foreign money—will never change our way of life.

Kenya is non-aligned. We are determined to remain so, and to complete the task of nation-building with our own talents and resources, in our own way, as free members of the community of nations.

As we move towards the 1970's there are certain attitudes of mind that I wish to see adopted by Ministers of the Government, hon. Members of this House, Officers of the Public Service, Trade Union Leaders, and all who hold positions of influence or responsibility.

I want to witness and to feel harder work and more practical effort being made by all who carry the burden—and also the privilege—of public leadership. There must be more decisive and virile conduct of public business in many departments of national endeavour. We can in no sense afford to try and live on slogans or self-congratulation.

I wish national affairs to be set against the full perspective of Kenya's emergence on to the world stage. Our Republic is African in tradition and impulse, and we will remain dedicated to the interests and the brotherhood of Africa.

We have won a considerable reputation in world counsels, and must be prepared to make greater contributions to international affairs.

As we move towards ever-wider horizons, future achievements must depend increasingly on the creative contributions of the National Assembly. Decisive leadership and personal example here can further inspire the hard work and social dedication of all our countrymen. I have confidence that the people of Kenya will rise to every challenge, displaying the wisdom and the courageous spirit that alone can fulfil human destiny.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 23

VIOLATION OF WORK PERMIT RULES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House—

- (a) what the total number of the non-citizen employers and employees was who had been already prosecuted and convicted or fined on the offence of employing and working without valid workers' permits as required by the workers' permit regulations;
- (b) if the Government was satisfied with the maximum punishment imposed on these people.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) A total of 43 employees and 25 employers have already been convicted for being employed or for employing persons not holding entry (work) permits. Fines totalling Sh. 17,500 were imposed on employees and Sh. 24,500 on employers.

(b) The Government is satisfied that the maximum penalty which can be imposed under the law is sufficient and the courts are at liberty to exercise their discretion.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Assistant Minister to tell this House why Sh. 17,500 only have been collected from those concerned with employees and Sh. 24,500 from employers, and is he not aware that more than these 43 people who were employees and 25 who were employers have been involved in this kind of exercise? Is he not aware that it is high time his Ministry imposed stiffer penalties than the present ones?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member is criticizing the actual punishments awarded in the exercise of judicial discretion, I am afraid he cannot do that, because it can only be done by substantive Motion. If the hon. Member is inquiring whether Government is satisfied that all offenders have been brought to book, that is in order.

Mr. Matano: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just wanted to answer the hon. Member that these fines are imposed by the courts and there is nothing we can do about them. Whether the Government is satisfied that all the offenders have been brought to court, well this, Mr. Speaker, is very hard to tell but, as you know, as soon as we know that anybody is trying to contravene this law, he will be brought to justice and will be tried and punished for it.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me, just as we have done in the past where we have made a stand on sentences for robbery by violence—a Bill was brought here to give more powers—that it is time that he told the Attorney-General to bring a Bill whereby we can increase the powers of the courts whereby they can deal with these people more severely than at the moment?

Mr. Matano: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is entitled to initiate such a move and it is for this House to pass or reject it.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Minister not now encouraging this kind of exercise of these people being employed without having valid permits?

Mr. Matano: No, Sir.

Question No. 39

FORCES RECRUITMENT IN NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Abdillahi asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House why there had been no recruitment into the army and police force in the North-Eastern Province for more than five years now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should explain to hon. Members that the number of the question now, in the new session, is the first number you see there; the other number is the original number in the old session and is given for the purposes of reference only.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

As the hon. Member is aware, the security situation did not merit any recruitment for either the police force or the army from the North-Eastern Province during the last few years of the emergency in that area. However, in view of the improvement which has been made recently, it can be assumed that law-abiding citizens of any part of Kenya, with the necessary qualifications, will be given equal consideration when the time comes.

For security reasons I am, however, unable to confirm that either the police force or the army will, in future, be recruited from any specific areas.

Mr. Abdilahi: Arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, would he assure the House that now the situation has returned to normal and therefore the law-abiding Somalis in the province will be given their share in the army and the police force?

Mr. Matano: Well, I have already answered, Mr. Speaker. I did say that we are still watching the situation, but as the situation improves any Kenya citizen—whether Somali or anybody else—living in that area will have an equal opportunity.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister actually right in suggesting that the Government is watching the situation, whereas it has been said that the situation in that particular place has improved? The President has said this and this is being said all the time. Is the Assistant Minister actually contravening what the President said, and is he actually making the House doubtful about the situation in that particular place?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not, in any way, doubting the fact that the situation has improved. I think we all know, and we are grateful, that the situation has improved and is continuing to improve. What I am trying to say is that as soon as we are able to recruit from that area, we shall do so.

Mr. Ahmed: Arising out of the reply, Mr. Speaker, how long is the Government waiting? How long does the Government think it will take the situation to improve, how long?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, as long and until we feel the area is happy and quiet, and then we will be able to recruit from that area.

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the President has announced and all the Members are aware that the area is now quiet and calm and everything is now running in a normal manner. Will these people of the North-Eastern Province be given the first priority in recruitment for the army, the police and this and that?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not give high priority to anybody. They are all Kenyans and they will be recruited as Kenyans and we will not give any priority to anybody.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 40

SERVICE CHARGES TO TEA GROWERS

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister could obtain any reduction in the amount of 17 cts. per lb. which is now deducted out of 40 cts. per lb. supposed to be paid to a tea grower, to meet the running of the tea factory, transport of green tea to the factory and staff supervision.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The cess levied by the Kenya Tea Development Authority on growers is, strictly speaking, the contribution towards the development of the small-holder tea industry. The authority's operations up to date, and for some years to come, are virtually developmental undertakings in all areas.

The revenue from cess is intended to cover those parts of the development expenditure which is not financed by borrowed capital. In view of this, it will not be possible to reduce the cess because this will mean having to curtail the development programme authority, and the only other way we can reduce the cess is to borrow more money from abroad.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, and since these loans were fixed by men interested in investing money in this country, and they look very high, because what a farmer gets is almost equal to what the investor gets. How many times has the Minister sat down in his office to review this figure, because it is too high for the farmers?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to the Member, we understand the problems in this, but, as I have explained to him, if we are to reduce the cess we are going also to reduce the expansion and development of other areas which grow tea. Therefore, we feel that the present cess, if reduced, will make the Government be forced to borrow more money.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister give this House any other arrangements the Government is making to make sure that the African small farmer who has just begun producing this crop, tea, is affected? How is he going to benefit? I think that is what the Member wanted.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say here that, according to what we have seen now, the structure of the tea prices in the world market, I feel that my Ministry will not be in a position to reduce the cess today in view of the fact that there is a lot of money already borrowed by my Ministry—which was passed by this House the other day—and if we do so, we will have to cut down on other areas where people are developing tea, and we would like to expand tea in many areas of our Republic.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, has the Ministry thought of actually giving the running and the owning of these factories to these farmers themselves in order to experience what he is experiencing also?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what we are talking about here is the cess and not the transferring of the factories to other people. In actual fact, these factories belong to the owners, and they will be the growers' property in the long run. What I wanted to sound out on this one is that I have learnt in my last meeting in Rome that there are some developed countries which are not actually interested in seeing some of the small, developing countries expanding in tea. This is not the time for us to try and reduce the cess whereas we want to continue expanding before an international agreement is imposed on us.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the earlier reply that this cess is high because we have to repay the loans, when you work it out mathematically, 17 cts. is about 45 per cent. Would the Assistant Minister tell us how this compares with the interest on these loans.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we borrow money as a Government in order to lend to the farmers, we expect that in order for the Government to be able to repay the loans we have to ask for a little bit—maybe one or two per cent on top of that—in order for the Government to repay the money which it borrowed.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Member that the financial arrangements for tea factories are, in fact, quite separate—may I repeat, quite separate—and the running expenses thereof are met by internal revenues from the factories themselves.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the developed nations—particularly in Europe—are laughing at Kenya because we pay more money back in interest than the money we borrowed from them?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Will the hon. Member repeat the question, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Kebaso: I said that the British Government, in particular, which gives us loans for tea growing through the British Commonwealth Development Corporation, laughs at the Kenya people—the small farmers—because they pay more money back than the money the Kenya Government borrowed from them.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would like to say is that it is not all that true. What we know is that there are some cries here and there in some developed nations that the small producing countries are producing more tea and that there is a surplus in the world market. As such, they are not interested in financing the small tea producing countries because that is a threat to some other tea-growing nations of the world. That is why I am saying that, at the moment, we cannot afford to curtail our expansion; we have to expand quickly before any international agreement is reached.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in this question we are talking about 17 cts. We know, in Kenya, one cent is not legal tender, therefore, is it in order? Should it be 15 cts.? The two cents are not legal tender.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that makes a point of order. It might be a point for debate another day.

Next question.

Question No. 24

REINSTATING NYERI STRIKING NURSES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House how many of the trainee nurses at Nyeri Provincial Hospital who went on strike last year had been reinstated and on what grounds were the rest rejected.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Fifty-four of the trainee nurses at Nyeri Provincial Hospital have already been reinstated into various training hospitals throughout the country.

The balance of eight are being posted within next few days. None have been rejected.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell this House what was the actual cause of the strike in question? What specific reason does he have actually to back the Government for suspending the students in question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not in the Question. The question here is how many were reinstated, how many rejected, and the answer is none were rejected.

Next Question.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. What does a Member do when you order that that is not in order and he feels that he is in order because the students were suspended—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! If the Speaker says that a Member is out of order he has to accept it.

Next Question.

Question No. 56

RESULT OF POST-MORTEM ON MR. KAGWA

Mr. Wanjagi asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) what the finding of the post-mortem carried out on a Mr. Kagwa of Kanorero Village, Iyigo Location, Kangema, who was found dead on 6th June 1968, had been;

[Mr. Wanjagi]

(b) if the widow or relatives had been informed of these findings; and

(c) if anybody had been prosecuted or if there were any investigations being carried out.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Reports from the Provincial Medical Officer, Central Province, say that the body of a Mr. Kagwa of Kanorero Village, Iyigo Location, Kangema Division, Fort Hall, was never taken to Murang'a Hospital, but a post-mortem examination was done in Nairobi by the Police Pathologist.

The relatives were not informed of the findings by the Medical Officer of Health, Murang'a because Murang'a Police had informed him that the matter was still under investigation.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question was what were the findings of the post-mortem, irrespective of where it was carried out. Does the Minister intend to tell the House that if the post-mortem was carried out by the Police Pathologist the House has no right to know the results?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether, in view of the fact that the hon. Member had asked for the findings and so on, and since the matter has not been completed, I did not go further to explain. However, I can venture the information that it was found by the Pathologist that this man had died of a head injury, possibly from a blunt weapon. This is all I can say.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this matter has been going on for nearly a year, how soon does the Minister, or the Government, expect to inform the relatives of the dead man what the results were of the injuries, or when do they expect to find a reasonable result?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, I am not aware that this matter has taken as long as one year. My records show that this matter happened—nearly—in July last year, and the matter was taken up within three weeks.

The question of whether somebody should be brought to justice remains for the police and the medical part is finished.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since it is important that this country must have a highly qualified Police Pathologist to take up these cases, is it not true that it is because our present Police Pathologist has not got the right qualifications he cannot command the confidence of this country?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, I cannot speak for the police, but the only Police Pathologist who is available in Kenya is well qualified and he is the only man who does all the pathology cases. If he is in difficulty he can refer to our own Pathologist.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I would like your assistance, Mr. Speaker, on this question of the Nyeri nurses. You have ruled that the Minister has answered that none were rejected, but in his answer he said that some were posted to various hospitals. Now, my question is, is there any possibility, under Standing Order No. 1, where one can ask you, instead of moving a Motion on the Adjournment, to ask a Minister to explain why these others were posted to various hospitals and not Nyeri Hospital? Is there any possibility?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 15

SITTING ALLOWANCES—COUNTY COUNCILLORS

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House whether in view of the fact that civil servants had been banned from participating in county council elections, the Minister would consider raising the sitting allowances of councillors.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

I regret the question is not fully understood as I do not see the relevance between banning civil servants from participating in county council elections and raising the sitting allowances of councillors.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does not the Assistant Minister understand that whereas, previously, civil servants were allowed to be councillors; if you take the case of a school teacher being a county councillor, he received allowances from the county council in addition to his salary as a school master. Now there is this ban on civil servants; this means many of the councillors will now have to depend solely on their sitting allowances and thereby this justifies a case for reviewing the allowances.

An hon. Member: That is true, you are right.

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, it must be pointed out that sitting allowances are a consolidated allowance to compensate for the expenses incurred by councillors in attending council meetings as well as to include an element for loss of earnings and so it is not meant to be a salary. However, my Ministry is conducting a comprehensive review of members' allowances and local authorities are being consulted on this. It will be premature for me to say whether this will mean an increase or a decrease.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister understands—

An hon. Member: Declare your interest.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no interest to declare; I am not a councillor, neither a civil servant. Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister understands the question which implies that because civil servants are no longer participating in the county council elections, that sitting allowances for councillors have been dropped, do we understand, therefore, that he agrees that those civil servants influenced the dropping of sitting allowances?

Mr. Munoko: No, Sir. Any county councillor who is elected to any council to serve the public is supposed to be an honourable man who has other ways of earning his living, and so this is not meant to be a salary for such a person but merely an allowance for his out of pocket expenses.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from one of the replies of the Assistant Minister that he is carrying out an investigation to find out whether it will be necessary to reduce or increase the allowances, could he tell us how long it will take to complete the investigation?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been going on and, in fact, the Minister is now considering the suggestions put forward.

Question No. 16

UNSTABLE FINANCES OF COUNTY COUNCILS

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House why most county councils in the country were financially unstable and what the Ministry was contemplating in order to reverse this trend.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There are many reasons why most of our county councils are financially unstable today. I propose listing for you some of the major reasons from which you will see that county councils are not solely to blame as some of the reasons are due to the Central Government decisions.

(a) From 1st July 1967, local authorities have been compelled to meet substantial additional costs resulting from teachers' salaries awards approved by the Government. During 1969 £1½ million have been made available by the Treasury to meet this commitment, but delay in making available this money had caused considerable financial embarrassment to local authorities.

(b) Education expenditure comprises over 70 per cent of county councils' budgets, thus leaving very little percentage for all other services.

(c) As a result of Government support given to union representation, local authorities have been prevented from reducing teaching staff to correct budget deficiencies. Loans have been given to county councils already in financial difficulties to pay for these unwarranted staff.

(d) There have been no additional grants to local authorities to compensate them for the decision mentioned in (c) above, despite submission of supplementary estimates in April and September 1968.

(e) The Government's decision to increase teachers' salaries and general civil service salaries during the period under review, have made it impossible to withhold comparable salary and wage increases in the Local Government Service.

(f) The decision that most local authorities' medical services shall be provided free has had the twofold effect of reducing revenue and, at the same time, of substantially increasing the demand for services.

(g) The establishment of settlement schemes has required the provision of new schools and health centres in those areas. The Settlement Fund Trustees have applied for funds to pay rates due to local authorities on land in those areas but have been refused by the Treasury and the rates remain outstanding although the services have been provided.

(h) The development of agriculture and, in particular, tea and coffee has resulted in additional responsibilities for road maintenance facilities on local authorities.

(i) Local authorities are requested to maintain secondary roads, but the grants have not been re-assessed for the past 10 years. Recent calculations by the Ministry of Works show that the present level of maintenance grants is only about 50 per cent of the actual costs of maintenance.

(j) The inevitable growth of community development services has imposed additional financial burdens on local authorities not envisaged when their fiscal structure was established.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would I not be in order to request the Assistant Minister be told that the answer is too long to justify an oral reply in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! A point of order. Mr. Mwithaga has a good point to this extent, that it happens occasionally that, if a Minister finds that he has a long reply to a question for oral reply, it is better for him to convert it into a written reply; because of the difficulty of the House digesting it, and the number of supplementary questions to which it may give rise.

I am quite sure that the House welcomes the Minister taking the trouble to answer an important question of this kind so fully. But I agree it would have been better to have given a written reply in this case. This is in the discretion of the Minister, and now he is giving an oral reply we should hear him to the end.

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, (k) despite the heavy additional costs imposed on local authorities as set out in the preceding paragraph which I have already read and the accentuation of these burdens by the general fall in the value of money, the capacity of local authorities has been reduced substantially in rural areas by the lowering of the lowest rate of graduated personal tax.

(l) Inadequate supervision of local authorities by the Ministry due to staffing shortage, and particularly at the senior financial officer level.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as to the second part, as to what the Ministry is doing; I would like to say this:—

(a) I have been strenuously negotiating for supplementary estimates for £3 million to cover the additional grants for the period ending June 1969. Of this sum, the Treasury has made available only £1½ million. The remaining £1.5 million relates to balancing grants to county councils for 1968 and 1969.

(b) I am also making very strong representations for increases in general grants available under the grants formula as the grants provided have proved to be hopelessly inadequate if defined by Government policy, particularly with regard to education, if that is to be achieved. Representations are also being made for increases in the level of grants for the maintenance of secondary roads.

(c) The Ministry has recruited eight graduates and two more assistant secretaries so as to overcome the staffing shortage. Secondly, 38 trainees are being trained on financial matters and should come out any time now.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have two questions:—

(a) When the Government imposed additional responsibilities to the county councils, why did it not give a matching grant to the local authorities to cover the additional expenses?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I cannot answer that, because it is a matter for the Treasury to answer.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, do I understand that we have two separate Government Ministries here? One is Ministry of Finance, and another one is the Ministry of Local Government; and not just one consolidated Government responsible to the nation?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, the Government is run by His Excellency the President, who appoints different Ministries and different Ministers to look after the different Ministries.

Mr. Lenayiara: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, does the Assistant Minister then not agree that one of the reasons why county councils are in financial difficulties is because the Ministry of Local Government or the Government fails to pay the Government annual grants which is part of the country's estimates in time?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I have already said that.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister assure the House that as the President announced yesterday that our future policy will be orientated towards developing the rural areas, the first one of these developments will be the finances granted to county councils, by whatever means, and therefore, the Ministry of Local Government will have to make sure that the county councils have sufficient finances?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, that is a matter which will be debated fully during the Budget debate.

Question No. 36

CAR PARKS FOR NAIROBI AFRICAN ESTATES

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House, why the City Council of Nairobi followed the colonial policy of building estates expected to be occupied by Africans without providing individual car parks, as a result of which cars were left very far from the house and thieves were thus encouraged to remove the wheels unnoticed.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The City Council does not follow an "old colonial policy" when building housing estates. The estates which the council builds are not built to be occupied by any racial groups but are built to accommodate the residents of Nairobi. The Nairobi housing estates contain a mixture of both Africans, and other races residing there.

The council builds houses to cater for various income brackets. Rental values of the houses are dependent on the cost of construction. In the case of low-cost housing that is for low income groups, it is uneconomic to provide garages with such houses. The position at present is as follows:—

| Scheme | Remarks |
|-----------------------|------------------|
| Woodley/Kibera | Garages provided |
| Pumwani Redevelopment | No garages |
| Uhuru Estate | No garages |
| Pumwani Relief Scheme | No garages. |

It is not economically possible to provide garages for houses less than £2,500 in value, unless a disproportionate increase in rents is provided for.

The problem of garages mainly arises because people in the higher income brackets are forced to stay in low-cost houses. This situation can be resolved by providing more houses in the correct income groups and the City Council is trying to do its best within its limited finances.

However, the council, in an endeavour to overcome this problem, has provided funds in its Capital Programme for fences of street car parks in the low-cost housing schemes to provide security for cars in these estates. The council's Capital Programme is at present being examined by the Ministry.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, is the Minister denying that the council's policy of building the low-quality houses for Africans is not colonial? How many Europeans or Asians has he seen living in Pumwani, or Uhuru Estate, where they may require a car park? Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not relevant to the question.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I wanted to correct something before I ask that question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): But it is not really to the point. Ask your question.

Mr. Mbogoh: The Minister kept on talking about garages which I have not asked about in this question. I have asked for parking outside the houses; and in that case I do not think all that the Minister answered in that part was relevant to the question at all.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think so myself.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the previous reply that the City Council is not pursuing a colonial policy, is he aware that, this side of the city was kept for the Europeans and that side of the city was kept for the Africans—if he has ever toured the city at all. This policy is still being pursued. You do not get any Europeans, or the big men like himself on that side. Is that not colonial?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know to what extent. I know that in the past, during the colonial era, there were areas for Africans and Asians and so on, but we are in charge of this country, so do not worry about that now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As I said to Mr. Mbogoh, this question of segregation is not relevant to the question we are dealing with now. This question of colonial policy is with a reference to a policy as regards the building estates to be occupied by Africans. And that is all. No question as to who occupies anything else anywhere else.

We must keep relevant to the questions.

BUILDING LOANS' GUARANTEE—GUSII

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House why the Gusii County Council had failed to negotiate and stand as guarantors against loans for building houses from the Ministry of Housing on behalf of the people of Gusii.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In May 1968, Gusii County forwarded an application for loan sanctions for £250,000, to be raised from the National Housing Corporation for the purpose of re-lending to individuals for housing purposes.

As the application provided insufficient information to enable the Ministry of Local Government to give it proper consideration, it was, therefore, referred back to the council for processing through the Provincial Local Government Financial Officer. The council has, however, taken no further administrative action to date.

The Minister has now been informed verbally that the council will be renewing the application in the near future.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with the due respect of this application form to the Ministry of Housing through the Ministry of Local Government, which was taken here, last May and we are now in May, would the Minister tell the House, Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether such an application form is prescribed, and what is this information which the application lacked?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is worried about the housing because he wants the Gusii County Council to have houses, and I agree with him. But before we give any loan, the proposals must be brought to us; we must know what type of houses they want, and how they will do it.

The problem is not in my Ministry now. It is the grounds. Well, we were so good, my officers, one Kisii, I think it was today or yesterday, brought us proper details in connexion with the planning they want to start in Kisii. As soon as they are here, everybody will be interested to help them.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is it the policy of the Ministry to refer back the applications and keep quiet, without reminding the county council what is required on such application form?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a proposition, or when a proposal of a certain plan or maybe, say, building a hall is examined, and a fault is found in it, we return it to the particular local authority. In this case, I do not have the details now for the moment, to be able to speak in detail. I think there are faults, maybe they might have suggested two big houses in Kisii; for example if you want to build in Kisii, you must know who are working there? Are there people earning for example Sh. 2,000 per month, or Sh. 4,000 or Sh. 90?

All these factors matter. In fact if the hon. Member will help; I come from that area myself.

MAINTENANCE OF KAKAMEGA TEA ROADS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House whether he would advise the Tea Authority to maintain all tea roads in Kakamega until Government took them over in agreement with the recent resolution of this House.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the problem of the maintenance of secondary roads by county councils is now being studied by a firm of consultants who have been commissioned by the Government. The study includes specific projects as tea roads and it would be wise to wait for the consultants' report.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to point out that meanwhile there is an agreed arrangement by which tea roads are maintained both by county councils and the Kenya Tea Development Authority.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer by the Assistant Minister, will he assure this House that he is going to make representation to the consultants to see that the roads in tea areas, particularly in Kakamega, are well maintained.

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, indeed, it is the wish of the Government that these roads are well maintained and that is why we have asked these consulting firms to go into the problem and, as soon as the reports have been received by the Government, they will be considered. It is our intention that these roads must be properly maintained for the good of the nation.

TARMACKING BRODERICK FALLS-KAKAMEGA ROAD

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House how soon he expected to tarmac the Broderick Falls-Kakamega Road.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. If the hon. Member for Hamisi had been on this road recently, he would have noticed that reconstruction work has already started, and this road together with the Kapsabet-Eldoret Road are now under construction to bitumen standard by the same contractors.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House by what date he hopes that the work of tarmacking these roads will have been completed?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I anticipated that question and the answer, Sir, is that the Kapsabet and Broderick Falls roads would be completed in April 1970; and I also ask the hon. Member to travel quite extensively and note the work.

ENTRANTS TO WAJIR SECONDARY SCHOOL

Mr. Ahmed asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) how many boys of North-Eastern Province had been admitted into Wajir Secondary School this year and how many had been given a chance to enter other secondary schools outside the province;

(b) how many boys from other provinces had been admitted into Wajir Secondary School.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) Thirty-eight boys of North-Eastern Province were admitted to Wajir Secondary School in January 1969. Four boys of the same province were admitted to schools outside the North-Eastern Province.

[Mr. Khasakhala]

(b) Only one boy from outside North-Eastern Province was admitted to Wajir Secondary School.

Mr. Ahmed: Arising out of the reply Mr. Speaker, why is the Ministry not taking special care about education in North-Eastern Province and admitting more boys from the province to other provinces instead of four? Is the Ministry not aware that North-Eastern Province was left behind during the colonial régime?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member perhaps has got all the information concerning the total number of Standard VII leavers in his own province. We had 224 boys who sat for the Certificate of Primary Education examination and out of 224 if we admitted 42 to secondary schools that represents 18.7 per cent of the total candidates, while the percentage throughout the other areas of Kenya was only 12.5 per cent; he must see that, we considered them very carefully, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Ogle: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister investigate that in the North-Eastern Province there is only one student admitted into the Wajir Secondary School from other parts because this is not a true statement. I know there are a number of them, will he investigate and say what the number really is?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as I know, and as far as my Ministry is concerned, the reply I have given to the hon. Member and the House is correct, and if the hon. Member wants me to give him a breakdown of the 38 per district from the same province, I am prepared to do so, Mr. Speaker; but we have not admitted more than one boy from outside that area.

*Question No. 46*EXCHANGE CONTROL RULES AND RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS

Mr. Munyi asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House: Arising from the strong warning given by the Attorney-General against some religious leaders who had contravened the provisions of the Exchange Control Act, what further action was the Government going to take against such people.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. When I gave this warning last year, my warning was directed against a certain section of the Bohra

Community. Some members of this community have been prosecuted; others have been sent away and I am now satisfied that no religious organization is contravening the Act, but of course, the law remains and if any religious organization does contravene Exchange Control Regulations, these people will be dealt with severely.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, which has been given by the Attorney-General, will the Attorney-General tell this House as to whether the Head of the Bohra Community was expelled from this country or declared a prohibited immigrant in this country because he contravened this particular Act? And since, Mr. Speaker, the Head of the Bohra Community is one of the spiritual leaders is the Attorney-General aware that there might be other underground spiritual leaders who might even try to contravene the same Act, and that they are doing the same thing, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, there are no spiritual leaders in this country who are misusing the Exchange Control Regulations. The gentleman in question was declared a prohibited immigrant in Dar es Salaam, but all that happened is that he passed through Nairobi; he did not wish to stop in Nairobi but went back from whence he came. I am satisfied, Mr. Speaker, that other religious organizations—if one wants to be specific—for instance, the Aga Khan Community, all the money collected in that community is spent in this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question might be asked because some of the hon. Members here may be Catholics; others may be of the Presbyterian Church, where money is collected on Sundays, but then that money is used for the benefit of the church and the work that it is doing and is a commendable thing and we should all be thankful for the work the church and other religious organizations are doing in this country.

TRADE IN IMPORTED WIGS

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services if he would tell the House—

- (a) if it was not true that most of the head wigs which were on sale were from the heads of dead people, wild animals and from different types of lints;
- (b) what the Ministry was doing to stop the sale of these imported wigs which did not suit Kenya's traditions and customs.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Generally, wigs are made of human hair and synthetic materials such as nylon. It is difficult to ascertain whether the human hair is from the heads of living or dead people.

However, monkey hair is unsuitable for making wigs. I expect leaders such as the hon. Members and all the citizens of this country to help in educating our women as well all people who are concerned, in mobilizing public opinion, to discourage the use of wigs. I have no intention of banning the sale of imported wigs.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer which has been given by the Minister, is he going to tell this House how we are going to discourage our beautiful girls from buying all these foreign, imported wigs? How are we going to discourage them, Mr. Speaker, because when you go to the shops you find that they are encouraged and the commercial shops encourage—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! You cannot make a speech, Mr. Munyi. You have asked him how he is going to discourage it.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the traditional African hair is beautiful. The only way to discourage wigs is just not to appreciate them. This should start with the hon. Members.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in that case, could the Minister for Social Services allow us to work with him as his youth-wingers and discourage the women from putting on coloured wigs, in any way we think best?

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, everything in this country must be done to allow women to exercise the freedom allowed by the Constitution and its provisions. If the hon. Members can be allowed to keep their beards, then the women should—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, here we are referring to wigs. Is it in order for the Minister to refer to beards which are natural, like Mr. Kamau's beard which is natural?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I see the question refers to head wigs and the chin is part of one's head.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I was referring to the constitutional freedom which should be enjoyed by the women just as much as it is enjoyed by the men in the House here where they wear beaded hats, monkey skins and such things. This privilege must be allowed to the women as well, the women in this country. They must be free.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's answer that the idea of wearing wigs should be discouraged, who is actually going to take the lead in discouraging this through the Press and also in meeting the organization of the women known as Maendeleo ya Wanawake, to seek their opinion as to whether they actually enjoy wearing these head wigs or not?

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, I think I would like to say that when we come to wigs, I have already stated that we should discourage the use of wigs and make the women learn to appreciate the use of their natural hair. We should make them not take public opinion but realize that their natural hair has a beauty which is traditional and natural. They should use their natural hair as much as possible.

However, in cases where people would like to exploit and use the provisions of the Constitution, then in such cases people should not be discriminated against, just because they are women when we have men here who are allowed to have a free choice according to the provisions of the Constitution.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member would like to talk to the women, the opportunities are open to him.

Question No. 3

TARMACKING ROADS IN TRANS NZOIA

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House if the Minister would consider tarmacking the Turbo-Hoey's Bridge, Elgon Club-Eldoret, Shamakhokho-Hamisi-Maseno roads.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) Turbo-Hoey's Bridge Road is within the settlement scheme and is one of the roads suggested in the settlement roads report for eventual upgrading to a higher gravel standard. Settlement roads priorities and phasing for reconstruction is still under review.

(b) Mr. Speaker, Elgon Club (Kimini)-Eldoret Road. It is presumed that the road referred to by the hon. Member as Elgon Club-Eldoret is the same road as Kimini-Eldoret Road which appears in the proposed upgrading to a higher gravel standard of the settlement roads.

(c) Shamakhokho-Hamisi-Maseno Road. There is no proposal to reconstruct the road from Shamakhokho to Majengo via Hamisi as it does not appear in the list of road priorities from Western Province. The balance of this road from Majengo to Maseno has been included in the preliminary proposed improvement of the trunk and secondary roads 1972/76 period.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, these are all, in fact, procedural Motions. I will finish this one now and then come on to Order No. 9. This will help me to clear them all.

In short, Sir, I think Members should not complain because, considering the size of the House, each Member should make use of the ten minutes he is given so that he can speak on important matters in brief. Thus as many Members as possible will get an opportunity to speak.

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seem not to understand. With due respect to His Excellency the Vice-President in wishing to continue to outline Order No. 10, is he in order to do that without the leave of the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes. I said that since he had by mistake started on Order No. 10 instead of Order No. 9, we should regard the order of business as changed accordingly, which the Speaker has power to do for the convenience of the House.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you.

So, Mr. Speaker, without wasting time I will leave the House to endorse this point of view so as to enable Members, when Private Members' Motions are moved, to be able to express what their feelings are within ten minutes' time.

Sir, I do not have much to say because this is a procedural Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to support this and I also wish to warn the Members that my experience during the last session shows that many Members did not make use of their time in this House to debate the matters proposed to this House. Consequently, the House appeared dull and, naturally, the public realized that the Members are getting more and more reluctant to actively debate in this House.

I would like to support this Motion because I feel that the number of days proposed is reasonable. I also feel that Members must make use of these days, because many Members seem concerned that probably Government does not want—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngala-Abok, I think you are on the wrong Motion, because this does not refer to days. This refers only to limitation of debate to one-and-a-half hours.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Order No. 10. Thank you very much, Sir. Mr. Speaker, I was moving in the same direction.

It is reasonable that these minutes should be given to Members, Movers and Official Responders. Equally, I would like to emphasize what I started to say. Let Members prepare themselves, sit in this House, debate effectively and keep Government on its toes. It is no use us being told that this House is where we must have a chance to criticize critically, and a chance to criticize sensibly if necessary when, in fact, many of us do not want to do so. In fact, Sir, we should use our time of ten minutes as ordinary Members to make sure that Government is kept on its toes and that the Government answers questions in this House to the satisfaction of the House. Many Members would like us to believe that this House is tired and that people are tired with the Members here. It is obvious that the Members themselves are showing this tiredness. So long as Members are asking for things and the public sees that they are actively debating according to the minutes allowed them, I am sure that the public would realize that the present Members are doing something for them. I do not think the Members should take much more time but should use the time allowed to them by this House and make proper use of them.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I wish to support the Motion.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I support this Motion there is one observation I would like to make. The 20 minutes, Sir, are quite enough except that there are some cases where these 20 minutes are extremely few. That is the time when we have unnecessary points of order and unnecessary interjections. If these 20 minutes were excluded from unnecessary points of order and unnecessary interjections, then an hon. Member could put his case before the House properly. However, we do see sometimes that some Members are not interested in the matters being spoken by other Members, in moving, and as a result there are unnecessary points of order and unnecessary interjections.

I would like this to be known by everyone so that all these unnecessary points of order and interjections are not included within the 20 minutes.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, will the Minister, therefore, consider giving priority to the roads in the settlement schemes because settlers in settlement schemes also would like to make use of tarmac roads?

Secondly, the road from Shamakhokho-Hamisi-Maseno, can this be considered by the Minister so that he takes the views of the people, that they would like this road tarmacked so that they can make use of it?

Mr. Bomett: In regard to (b), Mr. Speaker, settlement roads, as I have said previously in this House, are under consideration and the Government has approached the World Bank to get money for improvement of all the settlement roads in the country.

As regards Shamakhokho, I say, certainly, I would like to see this road and the others joining it upgraded. However, the decision to do that, or otherwise, rests with the people of the area. If they push this matter to the Government, through the normal channels, as a request, it will be considered along with other roads in other parts of the country.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wish to get this point clear. The hon. Attorney-General made a statement here that in this country we have Catholics, Protestants, Ismailis and that these people are spending all their money here in this country. The Catholics have an African bishop like Morris Otunga, and many others. The Protestants have Obadiah Karioki, Thiongo and many others. In this way we are assured that their money is spent here.

Can the Attorney-General substantiate that in the absence of an African leader of the Ismailia people how does he know that the Ismailis are spending their money in Kenya? We do not have an African leader for the Ismailis.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That sounds to me a very argumentative point of order, Mr. Lubembe.

All the hon. Member said, as far as I remember, was that he was satisfied that this community was spending their money in this country. If other hon. Members have reason to believe otherwise, I think he invited them to come and bring it to the notice of the House.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to be frivolous, but this appears to be the second point of order we have had from the hon. Member apparently trying to catch up with what has gone on already. Is this not really a misuse of raising a point of order? The hon. Member could have asked a supplementary question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is inclined at times to get near abusing a point of order.

A point of order can be raised at any time, but it is better really to do so at the moment that gives rise to it rather than waiting for ten minutes or a quarter of an hour. In fact, this was not a very good point of order.

Hon. Members, we must go on now. In fact, we are late in commencing business.

I would warn those hon. Members who might have other engagements, that that clock is not quite reliable. It is, in fact, about eight minutes slow.

MOTION

LIMITATION OF DEBATE: PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTIONS

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, the debate on Private Members' Motions should be limited in the following manner:—

A maximum of one-and-a-half hours with not more than 20 minutes for the Mover, 20 minutes for the Government Official Responder and 10 minutes for each other Member speaking, and that 10 minutes before the time for expiry the Mover be called upon to reply.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is just a formal Motion to facilitate the debate on Private Members'—

Mr. Mwamzandi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the Vice-President is in order in speaking on Order No. 10 when we have not yet taken Order No. 9?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is quite correct. Mr. arap Moi has actually slipped on to the wrong Order. Now that he has started on Order No. 10 we will change the order of business and accordingly carry on with Order No. 10.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should answer what Mr. Mwamzandi has said because it is important. As you will have observed, when a Member is limited in the time of his speech and he is interrupted by unnecessary interjections and invalid points of order, I do, usually, allow him an extension of his time accordingly.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would say that I know this applies to Private Members' Motions, but does this also include the group motions from every party?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A group motion is a form of Private Member's Motion; it would apply to them too. Do you want to speak, Mr. Odinga?

Mr. Odinga: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as this is a formal Motion every session when we meet, is it not time for us to call upon the Mover to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should just allow the Leader of the Opposition to make a few comments and then we shall see what the House says.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, in that particular respect, then I have no comments to make and, therefore, I will allow this.

(Question, that the Mover be now called upon to reply, put and agreed to)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a good beginning. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not have much to say other than to support what the hon. Members have stated earlier on, but would like further to appeal to the Members that they should make use of the time allotted to them and make very useful and constructive contributions.

I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

MOTION

LIMITATION OF DEBATE ON PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, the debate on the Presidential Address be limited to a maximum of four days and that the speeches be limited in the following manner:—

- (a) Twenty minutes for the Mover while moving and 20 minutes for the reply; and
- (b) ten minutes for each other Member speaking.

Mr. Speaker, this, of course, is a very important address and I hope that although the time set will definitely enable Members to get out of His Excellency's Address the important points they would like to put forward I do not see any difficulty, Mr. Speaker, in this respect because this is a policy and if the Members would like to point out matters of importance, they should also touch on those matters in principle rather than go into them in a detailed manner.

Mr. Speaker, I take this bearing in mind the fact that the Budget is coming soon and, therefore, Members will be able to debate those matters in detail which, naturally, affect them as far as their constituencies are concerned.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I hope that the four days will be sufficient for us to speak on the main policy and we will wait for the Budget debate which will follow this one. I feel that 20 minutes for the Mover and ten minutes for the Members generally will be sufficient to enable them to say what they want to say in that period. I do feel that that time is quite enough so that they will not exhaust themselves in actual fact.

Mr. Speaker, without labouring too much on this, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti) seconded.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, here is where I have got my doubts because, having been here for some time, I remember that at one time the debate on such a policy statement was never limited. One had to stand and actually speak as much as one thought one should actually express oneself. Later on, it was limited to 30 minutes and 30 minutes we stayed with for quite a long time. Now, lately it has been reduced to 20 minutes for the Mover and 20 minutes for the reply, and only ten minutes for the Members. This ten minutes is unfair when now we have two sides of the House; where we have also the Opposition which would like to express its views. Certainly, when the President, who is the Head of State, expresses himself, he really needs to hear also the points of view from the other side. On ten minutes alone you cannot really express yourself fully on the very important questions which you want to talk about.

Therefore, I think it would have been fairer to allocate to the major speakers from the Government Benches—which should be not more than five—and also have major speakers from the Opposition Benches, who may also not be more than five, let them express themselves in 30 minutes. If there is still some time remaining, we should also let the others express themselves in ten minutes in order to make up to the time. I think that we should be able to give each side time really to be effective; to put across what they feel they should put across.

This is also belittling—we are also trying to water down—the policy statement by actually treating it very lightly. We are treating it lightly by immediately the President has spoken we are only giving everybody ten minutes to touch here and there. We are treating this policy statement very lightly; we are not actually giving it the due importance which it needs to get in this House.

As such, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would beseech the House to agree with me that the time that there should be allocated should be 30 minutes for a number of speakers. I have not been very strict to say how many there should be of these, but I have suggested that there should be five from the Government Benches and five from the Opposition Benches and then later on, if there is any time left, other people should also be allowed to speak. We should not take it that on a major policy statement, each and every one of us should go on speaking as sometimes we just repeat ourselves. In our group meetings we can actually make out the points which we want to be mentioned. Therefore, in those group meetings, if we have mentioned the points, our group speakers—even if there are only five—will be enough to represent our views in this House. I do not think it is good that on each and every subject and each and every Motion everybody should go on speaking. In this way we will be following a procedure which may not keep up the dignity of this House.

As such, Mr. Speaker, I beg to say that I would like, first of all, with this question that I have put, if it is supported by several Members, then I reserve my time even to make an amendment later on this particular thing.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Motion as drafted and as put to the Members of the House by the Leader of Government Business.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, all of us were here yesterday when His Excellency, the President, addressed the National Assembly and the country as a whole and, of course, we took that time to hear what the President was saying. If I could note what the President was saying and if I could note all the Members listening to the President, everyone was interested in what the President was saying.

The speech, Mr. Speaker, also came to our pigeon-holes today and we have taken the time to study it, and I believe that most of the Members, if not all, found that the statement by His Excellency the President was an excellent speech. Therefore, if the speech by His Excellency the President was an excellent speech, a beneficial speech like that one, we should no longer waste the time of the House by allowing each Member to speak for 30 minutes. If we allow each Member to speak for 30 minutes we are doing nothing except to tire the House. If a Member like the Leader of the Opposition is as constructive as he used to be, five minutes is even enough for him to contribute to the House, and if he is given ten minutes, it is double as much.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Is the hon. Member speaking in order when he says that the Members who will be speaking for 30 minutes will be wasting time? Is that really in order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think he is entitled to suggest that there is a danger of their doing so; he certainly cannot know whether they would be doing so, and he would not be allowed to say so even if it was so.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you for your ruling. I did not say that the Members would be wasting their time, but I think that 30 minutes is a very long period for a Member to speak in this House on a Presidential Address which we all support.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the question that we have two sides of the House, we all know that we have two sides of the House: the Opposition and the Government, which is the ruling party. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, nobody has ever denied the other side of the House—the Opposition—to speak. If the hon. Leader of the Opposition could speak for the Opposition as a whole I think it is admirable.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if another two Members, out of ten or nine, were given the chance—and the Speaker usually does give them the chance—then they could also express their views. Therefore, there is no point in the Leader of the Opposition saying that we now have two sides of the House. We have always been having these two sides of the House, and the Speaker of the National Assembly has always been putting his eyes very sharply to the Opposition and he gives them their time just as equally as he does to the Members of the Government.

There is plenty of time, Mr. Speaker, for all the Members of the Opposition to air their views and I think if the Leader of the Opposition could only say how many are in favour or against the policy, this is enough. The President, I know, would like to hear what the Opposition has to say, and if the Leader of the Opposition and three other Members could speak, that is enough. We cannot even compare 160 Members of the ruling party with the Members of the Opposition. How many are there?

An hon. Member: Seven.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Oh, goodness. This is what I forgot, Mr. Speaker. Therefore, for the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Speaker, to suggest that five Members from the Government and five Members from the Opposition, there is a big question-mark there.

I think the Speaker has noted this point and I think he has been treating the Opposition well, and I am sure that he will give them a chance to speak.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, a policy statement is a big statement we all realize. However, we are not belittling this. If we could accelerate the real policy statement by taking up the good points, then I think it is good. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I think before we tire the House the Members should support this because it has been the usual practice in the past and so there should be no difference from the previous time. This is not the first time that His Excellency the President has spoken to the National Assembly.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I support the Motion as it is.

Mr. Munyasia: There is no need for the Assistant Minister to lecture us; we have got the message. We are 15 times the number of the Opposition. Therefore, for his case we must have equal numbers and that is material. Mr. Speaker, Sir, when moving to the main topic of the debate, not many Members will have a chance of speaking. Why? If the Vice-President did take the time to work out mathematically how many Members are going to speak on the Presidential Address, he would find that in a day if we are going to have ten-minute speeches for two and a half hours for four days this would mean that only 60 Members would be able to speak out of 171. If we were to work on one and a half hours in a day, then only between 36 and 40 Members would be able to speak. This would be a very small number of the Members of this House.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would suggest that seven days would be better instead of four so that more Members will be given the time to speak.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have any argument with the other part of the Motion. Let the Mover of the Motion be given 20 minutes and also 20 minutes for the reply, and each Member be given ten minutes. The number of days must be increased from four to seven.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Seroney: Mr. Speaker, I think we are getting into a dangerous position where not only the Government is telling the Members how they should speak and how long for, but of our accepting that particular ruling without protest. Mr. Speaker, this is our House and we are now being asked to consider our own procedure, and, therefore, we must determine what we want and not what the Government prefers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have virtually remained out in the country for almost half a year now, with the exception of only three weeks at the beginning of the year. Mr. Speaker, there is a lot which the Members would like to say with regard to the Government policy, and not merely endorsing what the President said. I believe, Mr. Speaker, that any Member who wishes to speak should speak without limitation. For convenience, we could agree to limit ourselves to half an hour, but instead of limiting the debate to four days I think Members should speak for 30 minutes for so long as there are Members to speak.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to propose that all the words after "Presidential Address" be deleted, and that the words "20 minutes" and "ten minutes" be replaced by "30 minutes" in all cases.

I beg to move.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, he has said that four days is to be deleted but he has not said how many days.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member's proposal would be that it would be an unlimited period for the debate, in fact, he said himself that as long as there are Members willing to speak for 30 minutes then the debate should go on.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I second could you read exactly what the Motion would be, because I do not follow it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think it is desirable that the hon. Member should know what he is seconding.

The actual proposal that you are invited to second—not by me but by the hon. Member—is that in the first two lines of the Motion, after the words "President's Address", the words "be limited to a maximum of four days and that the speeches" be deleted, so that you would then have "That, the debate on the Presidential Address be limited in the following manner." Then, in both paragraphs (a) and (b) Mr. Seroney suggests 30 minutes throughout. It would, in fact, be 30 minutes for the Mover and for the reply, and 30 minutes for every other Member speaking, without any limit to the number of days.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in a matter where it is apparent that the amendment is highly unreasonable and highly objectionable, could a Member propose an amendment immediately because there is nobody seconding?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There can be no question of amending an amendment unless the amendment itself has been proposed as a question, which it cannot be unless it is seconded. If this is not seconded then it will be open to any other Member to move a fresh amendment providing he gives it to me in writing before he moves it.

Mr. Mwamzandi, you say you want to second it?

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to second the amendment proposed by the hon. Seroney for the following reasons.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are some very, very important points in this amendment. In the first place the Presidential Address is a very important speech in the House. A Member, Mr. Speaker, should be able to express himself and should have ample time to discuss what the President said in his Address. You will see here, Mr. Speaker, that the ten minutes proposed by His Excellency the Vice-President are very little, Mr. Speaker. I cannot express myself or comment on whatever His Excellency the President said in this House in ten minutes.

I have calculated, Mr. Speaker, that if every Member here were to speak for ten minutes in four days then only a few Members would be speaking. We would like to have as many Members as possible expressing themselves on whatever His Excellency the President has said. Mr. Speaker, not only are we going to discuss the Presidential Address within the Chamber but whatever points His Excellency the President has made outside at a public rally, then we call that a Presidential Address, and we should have ample time, Mr. Speaker, to discuss those points.

Mr. Speaker, you will see that some hon. Members are worried about speaking for 30 minutes. Here, Mr. Speaker, it is not always the case that all hon. Members are going to stand and speak in this House. At this moment, Mr. Speaker, we have some Members who have never stood in this Chamber and spoken a word.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member speaking has alleged that there are some Members who have never said anything in this House, can he substantiate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is true from my own recollection.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

What I said was that some Members have never stood up and spoken in this Chamber. In the Presidential Address, Mr. Speaker, most—

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to challenge your ruling, but I am doubtful over your ruling on the allegation made by the hon. Member speaking that some Members have never said anything, is it not true, Mr. Speaker, that every Member has been sworn in here and by so doing he has said a word?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member was referring to business of the House. You carry on, Mr. Mwamzandi.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, my point is that it is not even possible that every Member here is going to speak on the Presidential Address, there are specific Members who have points to talk about in this House. As a result of that, Mr. Speaker, we might have about 30 or 40 Members who are going to speak in this House. It is not a waste, Mr. Speaker, using as much time as possible on the Presidential Address. This is a very important address. Apart from this, another important address would be the Financial Statement, Mr. Speaker, which is as important as the Presidential Address.

We should not, Mr. Speaker, take the Presidential Address as unimportant. It is very important. It is an address given by the Head of State within the House, Mr. Speaker, at least once every year. We should have the opportunity, Mr. Speaker, to discuss fully what the President has said.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I could not possibly give all my points within ten minutes as specified by this Motion. Mr. Speaker, perhaps I would not use the whole 30 minutes but perhaps 15 minutes, 20 minutes or 25 minutes. Mr. Speaker, the time of ten minutes is very little.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks I support the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is one thing I should say to hon. Members, I think. It is not at all for the Chair to influence the debate on a question of this kind, but it is the responsibility of the Speaker to put the facts before the House. The fact is, whether or not desirable, we have, as Mr. Seroney said, already passed through five months of this year. We have left in the year according to my calculation only 32 weeks, and we have a tremendous amount of business to get through in the course of those 32 weeks, including no less than 30 days to be spent on the Budget alone. Hon. Members must bear that in mind.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish, with all due respect to my colleague the lawyer of this House, disagree with him on this amendment. It does not make any sense, Mr. Speaker. It does not make sense because if each Member here is to speak for half an hour and the debate drags on indefinitely, then mathematically speaking, Mr. Speaker, and I will leave him to work that out, we will find that we might as well end up the whole year still debating with half an hour each person, and we might not even have any material to talk about. It is my experience, Mr. Speaker, for the last six years while I have been here that people run out of words or of ideas, of points within a very short time, even the hon. Member who was seconding the Motion I do not think he can stand for half an hour without repeating himself. That is why I feel it is impossible, physically speaking, to have somebody standing on his feet for 30 minutes and for an unknown number of days. I think we should be a little reasonable in our imagination here, and see what is reasonable for the House.

I have no quarrel with the Motion as it stands, Mr. Speaker, I support it entirely except that I do not agree with the suggestion that we should only have four days. Four days working it out mathematically, you find there will be about 60 to 68 Members able to speak, that is out of a House of 170 Members. It is not even half the House, to get the cross section of the ideas here. That is why I feel that four days is very limited and I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, without wasting much time, that this should be amended so that instead of having the figure "4" in place thereof we should have the figure "7", so that we can have almost 130 Members who could possibly speak. This is the normal thing, which we have done in the past and I do not see why it has been reduced to four days.

Mr. Speaker, we could have it for seven days because that would allow over 100 Members to speak, instead of 60. I feel that seven days would be a very reasonable period and the Minister when he was moving did not give us any reasonable reason why he had reduced it from the normal days to four days this time. We have had over ten days sometimes for debating the President's Speech in the past, and I do not see why it should be brought down to four. What is the hurry for? I do not see the need for any hurry. We are not fighting for our independence any more. We are here to debate and give constructive criticism. We are told to be constructive, Mr. Speaker, and we cannot be constructive when we are in such a hurry, you have to say a lot in four days and you might not have had time to think before saying them.

Let us have seven days, and let the Members prepare themselves, and then come with constructive criticism and place it before the Government and get things moving, instead of having four days.

Mr. Speaker, in view of the few words I have said I believe the hon. Members would not find it very difficult to support the amendment, namely in place of four days we have seven days.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It would be premature for that amendment to be moved until we have disposed of Mr. Seroney's amendment. I do not think it can be treated as an amendment of the amendment. Moreover, it has to be given to me in writing.

Mr. Ngala-Abok has given me notice of proposed amendment in a similar form, so those who support Mr. Ngala-Abok and Mr. Shikuku should oppose Mr. Seroney's amendment. If they are successful then Mr. Ngala-Abok will move his.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may the question of the amendment be put now?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do not think there is a lot to be said, whatever views the hon. Members have, because the position is very clear.

(Question that the question of the amendment be now put, put and agreed to)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Member for Butere has explained the object of this amendment for seven days, and I think I will move it straightaway, that in place of "4 days" we insert "7 days", and the rest remains the same, in other words the Mover 20 minutes and 20 minutes for the reply, and the ordinary Members ten minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I think we ought to give the Government time to see what the Members have to say. After all, we are coming to the point where we want to expose our ideas and we want to see what policy has served this country the best, and what else we can add to what the President said yesterday. Normally, Mr. Speaker, you find that a Presidential Address, as I have observed it, merely shows the way the Government is watching or aiming at implementing certain policies, but does not give specific details as to what this Ministry is going to do in specific terms. Ministers are here, Mr. Speaker, to reply to Members when they try to criticize certain policy matters, and to explain if something is really coming.

Mr. Speaker, what I have also noticed is that Ministers and Assistant Ministers tend to catch your eye and want to speak at the wrong time. If we want to give the official Government responder time to reply collectively on behalf of the Government we should try to give more time to Members, Back-benchers especially, to say as much as possible so that we have few Front-benchers speaking. We have found in the past that there was a tendency for Ministers and Assistant Ministers to stand and dominate a speech like this and make many Members refrain from speaking.

Another point I have observed, Mr. Speaker, and the reason why we want seven days, is that when we only have a few days some Members will stand up for a short time and then go out, and when they find they are not catching the Speaker's eye, they say that time is nearly over and they decide not to speak and then they go out and we are left without a quorum. But if Members have seven days and have ten minutes to speak, they will speak on certain specific points. For example, Mr. Speaker, to avoid repetition, one should elaborate his own ideas on education and so leave commerce to another Member, so that Members should know that so and so has spoken, Mr. Speaker, Sir, so I should speak on agriculture. Why jump from this to that; jump from this Ministry to that Ministry and so on? I think this has been causing confusion and points of order on which Members and the Speaker have always been ruling that this is repetition.

I think it is better to specify our policy statement on education, on commerce, on agriculture, on water resources, on tourism and then sit down.

With those few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to support seven days.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who seconds this amendment?

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to second the amendment which has been moved by the hon. Member there, to the effect that we replace four days with seven days. I would have wished to say eight sitting days, that is two weeks, but since there is not much difference between seven and eight, I would like to support this amendment.

Sir, I think it is important for the House to note that the speech of the President is very, very important and the Members should take it very seriously and they must be given time to discuss it fully. We have only two occasions in a year to discuss general matters concerning the problems of this country; social and economic progress and so on. That is during the Presidential Speech and also the Budget Speech during the Budget debate. On other occasions, Sir, we are confined to certain Bills, this Bill and that Bill and we never get an opportunity during the year to discuss general matters unless a motion has been moved; but on the Presidential debate, (the debate on the Presidential Address) we get an opportunity, Sir, to speak about the problems of this country, and those problems are very many.

Kenya is a big country, with over ten million people with so many problems and we cannot be told that we can discuss those problems in four days. So, since this is an occasion for us to speak our mind on various matters and so it is necessary that we be given sufficient time. I hope that the Vice-President will not find it difficult for the Government to accept this proposal which is very reasonable and very fair. You have seen, Sir, that we are very reasonable people in this House because we have rejected an amendment by our friend hon. Seroney which looked to be very unreasonable. We have rejected that, but, when we want to propose something reasonable, I think the Government and the Leader of the Government Business should accept our proposal. This is very reasonable, Sir, and I do not wish to take more time on it. I only wish that the Vice-President will accept this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will put the question of the amendment. The question is that the figure 4 be left out of the second line of the Question and that is with a view to inserting the figure 7. Hon. Members will appreciate that the procedure we adopt in such cases, allows those who want to change the figure but would have different views as to what figure should be inserted—to have their different views. The question now is that you leave out the figure 4, which will leave it still open for Members to argue later on that it should be the figure 6 or the figure 8. The actual question I propose at the moment is that the figure 4 be left out. If that is agreed to, I shall then propose the second part, which is that the figure 7 be inserted.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this House being democratic and also being logical, there is also the fact that we cannot talk in this House until doomsday, as the hon. Mr. Seroney was suggesting. I am quite happy to accept the very reasonable suggestion of the hon. Members which they have made, and therefore, I have no more to add.

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted proposed)

Mr. Mbogoh: In supporting this figure, I feel that this will give everybody a chance to contribute to the debate, and therefore, without very much debate I just support the idea that the figure 7 to be inserted.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, while sympathizing with the amendment that has just been accepted by the Leader of the Government Business, I would like to point out something I feel I should point out and this is, that assuming that the two other Motions that are on the Order Paper are going to pass through today it will leave us with one day in this week, and that is tomorrow. This also leaves us with three days next week which takes us to 29th of this month, and other three days in the following week which takes us to the 5th of June.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, leaves us with only a week to debate other Bills that might come up before we start debate on the Budget. What I would like to say, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that, I hope that the speeches which will be delivered in this House appreciating the Presidential Speech from the Chair, will be in such a way that consideration will be so that when the Budget debate begins which gives us ample opportunity to debate matters of policy; or the Government policy in the country—we will put in mind that we are not bored after having debated the Presidential Speech. At that time the House is used to listening to speeches on Government policy when debating the Budget. I say this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because this has been quite an unfortunate situation because the President opened the Parliament in May, while, the opening of Parliament is normally done earlier, before May, so that there is a long period between his speech and that of the Minister for Finance. But these being very close together, I feel I should sound a warning that this House should not be plunged into listening to repeated speeches to those who will debate the Presidential Speech and those speeches which are made when the House is debating the Budget. This, I think, will be boring to the House and many of us will probably, as the hon. Chief Whip said, leave the Chamber and leave very few, those that are normally in this Chamber to listen to repeated speeches from the Members of Parliament. I want to point this out, because unlike other years we have been in this House, the Presidential Speech, or rather the House was convened much earlier—you know, in the month of—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Is it in order for the hon. Minister to anticipate that the hon. Members will be making repeated speeches. Is it in order?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He is not anticipating anything he is only saying that when we have the debate on the Budget hon. Members will also be allowed once again to speak as well on every subject relevant to policies of Kenya.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, let me leave by those words that what the hon. Member for Starehe has raised will show itself in a few weeks' time. I beg to support.

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I appreciate the gesture of the Leader of Government Business to agree to increase the days from four to seven.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am glad the hon. Minister for Information and Broadcasting spoke at this stage. Now this just shows the limitations of this Government of not having opened this House earlier than the 20th of May.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are now well used to the fact that we take a long time to debate many matters of national interest. He has himself emphasized the fact that there was so much business outstanding. I warned this House when we adjourned, that it was premature to adjourn at that time. I did say that, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and I am saying again what I said then. I am not afraid of what the hon. Minister has said, Mr. Deputy Speaker and then three months had to elapse because the Government in its wisdom thought that now is about time to call the hon. Members back to this House.

I am warning this Government, Mr. Deputy Speaker that the hon. Members must be allowed enough time. We appreciate the time limitations but Members must have time to express their views on important national matters. I am glad the Minister has said "Oh!" We have so much work to do, there is so much legislation and if hon. Members want to debate the President's Speech, what are we going to do? When are we going to pass this legislation? When are we going to pass the Budget, which must be passed—or at least the interim Vote must pass—before the end of June.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, although this is the last session and, next year we shall probably have a new set of Ministers and everything else, still quite a lot of Members I can see some of them not coming back here again.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. After being generous this time, I should not be so generous next time.

I should like to draw the attention of the hon. Members that the right to convene the next session rests with His Excellency the President, and I suppose that the hon. Member is not criticizing the Head of State for delaying or doing any other thing?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think an hon. Member is entitled to draw the attention of hon. Members to the fact that he considers there is a lot of business and Parliament should have been recalled earlier. Also that some of the business is urgent, but I don't think this applies to His Excellency the President; it applies only to the Government.

Mr. Pandya: The Vice-President, the Leader of Government Business and the hon. Members of this House, agree there is no question of criticizing the person of the President.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am quite aware of my responsibility so he can have my assurance. I don't want to say any more, Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I have acknowledged earlier that we are very appreciative, but I only said that I hope he will take these things into account and there is no question of any offence against any person but a Member is entitled to emphasize the shortcomings of the Government.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If somebody wants to move the closure, I will be quite willing but he will move after Mr. Mathenge has spoken.

Mr. Mathenge: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think some of the arguments now are going a little bit away from the question of the amendment, and they will have plenty of time when we pass the seven days. I beg to move that the question of the amendment be put.

(Question that the question of the amendment be now put, put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, put and agreed to)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): As there is no hon. Member who wishes to speak, I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like again to say, though I agree on behalf of the Government that we should have seven days, you know that most hon. Members should be able to express their views. I also studied the figures and found that within this period possibly 126 Members will be able to speak but I doubt whether this number will be covered within that period.

Secondly, the hon. Member is complaining, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Tanzania spends 52 days in the whole of a session deciding what they want. We sat last year for 131 days, almost three times more than Tanzania. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope that though we may be able to give more time, the House will not complain about Government delaying this or that, I think they should also be appreciative about Government generosity to allow time for Members to express their views. I think they should also try to limit their speeches or shorten what they want to say to the simplest words and in the shortest sentences as possible to enable other business to proceed without wasting time. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I thank the hon. Members who have spoken and I think this is a healthy sign of democracy.

I beg to move.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved Accordingly:

THAT, the debate on Presidential Address be limited to a maximum of seven days and that the speeches be limited in following manner:—

- (a) Twenty minutes for the Mover while moving and 20 minutes for the reply; and
- (b) ten minutes for each other Member speaking.

MOTION

MEMBERSHIP OF STANDING AND SELECT COMMITTEES

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, this House directs that all the membership of Standing and Select Committees of the House existing before prorogation of the National Assembly remain unaltered and that those committees continue to serve the House until otherwise ordered.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, to facilitate business, I feel very strongly that the previous committees should remain until this House or the Sessional Committee decides whether the composition of these committees will be altered. I think this is not really a controversial Motion and hope the Members will agree to this suggestion without really stressing too much on this one.

I beg to move.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, my hon. friend is pulling me down but now I would like very strongly to support this Motion about these committees, but, before doing so, I would like to say that they are in two groups.

There are Select Committees of this House which we know have done very good work. They have produced their reports. These reports have been published and some of them were partly debated but were not completed. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is only fair that they should be allowed to continue so that the work they have done is not wasted.

I have in mind the committees of which hon. Shikuku was Chairman and another one of which hon. Pandya was Chairman which were important and another one of which hon. G. G. Kariuki was Chairman. These three particularly, Mr. Speaker, are committees which have done a lot of good work, and that we would like to complete the work of these committees. Therefore

I don't think there will be much argument here. We all support they should continue as they are until the work is completed. However, Mr. Deputy Speaker, on the question of the other Standing Committees such as Sessional Committee, and the Catering Committee, some of us here do not know what they have done. Up to now, no report has been produced. I am not intending to amend this Motion, but I am just reminding the Leader of Government Business, it might be necessary later on to request the reshuffle of some of these other Standing Committees, especially, the Sessional Committee. It appears to have been dormant and not to do the work given to it, and the only way we can keep them on their toes is to throw out those who are useless and put in others who can do good work.

So, Mr. Speaker, with these words I would like to give my blessing to the Motion and ask the Leader of Government Business to ask for reports of some of these Standing Committees, to see what they have done.

If those committees have done nothing, we must inject new blood. Some of Members here have not had the chance of serving on these committees and I am sure they can be very useful, and experienced and would well serve on these committees.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, I wish to support this, but I wish to point out a few things here I would like in future, the Leader of Government Business, to bring forward.

First, we would like to know what Select and Standing Committees he is referring to as remaining unaltered. In fact, we would like to see the names of the Committee Members listed here on a paper to see what kind of Committee Members they are, so as to examine whether they should remain unaltered. To follow what the Member who has just sat down has said is wrong, because some Members of these committees when we see them and we see their names, we may have suggestions, and we may say, "All right, So-and-so was appointed to this committee; and he has only attended so many meetings over the year, and therefore, he is not serving the committee well".

I do not accept this system of people remaining on committees for ages and ages and even their names are not appearing here. But I would like to say one thing again which the Member who has sat down has not realized.

Some of these committees are supposed to undertake actions which must be produced before this House. For example, the Committee of Privileges. We have seen that committee working here, when one Member interfered with another. There was a big report. At least twice, this committee has done some work then, and so on and so forth.

I think the committee that we need to really look into, is the Sessional Committee. The Sessional Committee has allowed this Government to postpone and adjourn Parliament for half a year. When now we are coming here to be told that we must finish this business within four days, with only ten minutes debate for each Member; and yet we have asked all this time for the House to meet are we now going to be told that we are going back in two weeks time, but when you come back we shall pass—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Point of order, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Is it in order for the Member to mislead the House that Sessional Committee just does everything by itself, when the adjournment of the House and whatever is done, is both done and approved by the House, is he in order to mislead the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Shikuku is quite right; and what is more, as the Vice-President said earlier, that all the House did was to adjourn sine die. It is then up to His Excellency the President and the Government, to summon the new session of Parliament. So you cannot blame the Sessional Committee really, it has nothing to do with the Sessional Committee, when the new session is summoned. Certainly if you referred to that you are out of order. If you are referring to the other adjournment, well, you may be in order, but I think you are referring to the long adjournment which has just taken place. And I think you will stand correctly.

The Assistant Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Moss): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not also misleading for the hon. Member to suggest that, this House has been adjourned for more than half a year?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think you are quite right Mr. Moss, that was certainly an exaggeration.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is it not also misleading in such a straightforward procedural Motion here, to say Yes, or No, and not to go into the merit of whether the committee has done this or that, and therefore waste the time of the House.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think I have got your point Mr. Makone, but when hon. Members are asked, to reappoint Standing Committees and Sessional Committees, they are certainly entitled to discuss and state whether they think that the Members of those particular committees who the Government seeks to reappoint, have in fact acted efficiently in the past or not. And they are certainly entitled to say that in their opinion, as some hon. Member pointed out that perhaps some Members have never attended the Sessional Committee very often or ask for a roll-call, or something of that sort. This is perfectly in order. They are perfectly relevant. They cannot be expected merely to come and say Yes, or No; they are entitled to express their views.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although, the Members of the Sessional Committee who have been very quick to get on their feet to confuse my statement which was very constructive, and although Mr. Speaker, they lie under this cover of the adjournment of the House sine die, I must now sound a warning, that those Members who are in that Sessional Committee must make sure that justice is done, Mr. Speaker.

With those few remarks I wish to say that Sessional Committee Members, will have to be scrutinized very carefully in future.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have taken two hours to be recognized probably I will sit in front like my friends who have spoken twice now. Well, when you are stopped to speak, you are given opportunity to raise points of orders.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Point of Order, Mr. Mbogoh.

Mr. Mbogoh: Is the Member for Starehe in order to speak directly to me when he is on his feet?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not what I wanted to say, but I did want to draw attention to Mr. Lubembe's statement that if you are not allowed to speak, you can raise points of order. Remember that is not correct. In fact, that merely confirmed the suspicion that I think, Mr. Speaker, had earlier on, that you have a tendency to raise fraudulent points of order. You are not allowed to stand on a point of order just because you think you did not have a chance to speak. This is quite wrong. If you did it in this kind of motive, you were quite wrong, and please do not repeat it.

Mr. Lubembe: That was not my motive. I was simply, saying that it is part of encouragement.

[Mr. Lubembe]

Now, Mr. Speaker, this question of getting the committees to remain as they are, is a very important thing to the Members here. In the beginning, I remember when the hon. Member, Mr. Pandya was speaking in the previous session, he said one important point that the Members should be given opportunity to serve on as many committees as they can so that every Member understands the work and function of every committee. This is not a paid job. It is something voluntary because you are paid when you come here, and that is the same time you meet and serve on these committees.

I will say Mr. Speaker, that my feeling is not biased towards those who have done well or those who have done badly; but it is that, I do not mind myself remaining out, because, I seem to read more about what Members do. It is fair that many hon. Members who have come in should be given opportunity, to serve on these committees. Some of us, who have served on many committees when we were Senators, we know what they do; but it is unfair to take a group of Members and say that they should remain there permanently.

I am not trying to allege that this is the intention of the Leader of the Government Business, because, he has said in his Motion, in the last line that, "to serve the House until otherwise ordered". That means, that he admits that if the House orders that they should not remain there permanently, he will accept what the House wants. But this is a procedural Motion, it might have been difficult for the Government to come and say, "So-and-so is good, or So-and-so is absent", like in school. That would have been difficult. I feel that the committees as mentioned, by the hon. Mr. Wariithi, should remain there because they have had some work which requires more experienced scrutiny, as some people in this particular institution, like land settlement, Africanization and so on.

A committee like the Sessional Committee and others that require permanent work to be done in this particular House, I think this should be dissolved or since, they have been dissolved they should be left out of this Motion so that the question of Standing and Select Committees, we can leave out the question of the Standing Committees and let us remain with the words "Select Committees". This will be the committees that will have already been mentioned.

I will also say, Mr. Speaker, that, if we want to do effective work, and if we want to know, although I have said I do not base my merits to what people do, it also reminds us of the Members who are members of these committees those and who are not members. So that when selecting, you know which Member have been there, and which Members have not been there. Since there is no Sessional Committee now, that particular membership is gone because it should be reappointed with the new session. What I may want to ask the Leader of Government Business to explain, is whether, it is provided for in Standing Orders, that certain Members can remain as long as the House wants, or the House can decide whether, they should continue or not. If they have to remain, then I think, since the House was prorogued, they no longer exist. If we want to reappoint them, then we must have them put down on a list so that they are appointed, their appointment is adopted. However, if we only talk of adopting the committee, then it means adopting the Members of the committee as they are.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, without going further, I want to amend the wording of the Motion. I want to remove the words "Standing and" from the Motion and leave it to read, "THAT, this House directs that all the Membership of Select Committees . . .". We can have other committees appointed, I say that I want to amend this Motion in this manner.

I am sure the hon. Members have already agreed that the hon. Shikuku has done a wonderful job. I have not read the report about land settlement but I do know that many people are still complaining about this. I read about these complaints in the papers and learnt that these things are still happening. I hope that more will be done than what has been done already.

Probably the Leader of Government Business will not mind if the Motion is amended in the way I have suggested. I am sure he will be as good as he was towards the previous Motion. I am sure he will accept this amendment.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, although I have not yet given notice to the Chair, I do not know if I can be allowed to give notice now. It is only a question of deleting the two small words, "Standing and" from the Motion. Can I do that now?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, not now. I think you should have given notice in writing. I do not think I will allow you now. Perhaps some other Member will move it for you.

Mr. Lubembe: I am sure—

[Mr. Lubembe]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are some Assistant Ministers who really do not understand the procedure of this House although the President has honoured them by making them Assistant Ministers.

Is the hon. Assistant Minister in order to order me to sit down?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I had asked you to sit down when I stood to speak.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to name me and point at me while I said nothing? He was shouted down from the other side of the House.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We will accept that correction.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I feel that this Motion, as it is, lacks something. Like my colleagues, I find it very difficult to agree with the wording of the Motion, that—“. . . the Membership of Standing and Select Committees of the House existing before prorogation of the National Assembly remains unaltered and that those committees continue to serve the House until otherwise ordered”. Now, Sir, the words I am against are, “until otherwise ordered”. By whom?

Mr. Shikuku: By the House.

Mr. Mbogoh: Who will order them to get out of office?

Mr. Shikuku: The House.

Mr. Mbogoh: Well, if it is by the House, then we should fix a certain time and say, “until such-and-such a day, when the House will order their removal”. Like any other independent Government of Africa, this House has the right to order the removal of Members from these committees, but as usual I find that they want to remain in office forever. It is also possible sometimes, that somebody wants them to remain in office forever. In many cases we have seen that in African governments, once people get into power, nobody wants to get out of office; they want to remain there forever.

Sir, as I said when we were selecting these Members, I find it very unwise to keep one bunch of Members on a particular committee for longer than necessary. Although we do not expect that they will be paid when they are sitting on these committees, it is the right of every Member of this House to serve on a committee and discover what talents he has within himself. There are many Members in this House who have never served on the Sessional Committee; and there are Members, on the other hand, who have repeatedly been returned to the Sessional Committee as though they have been born with the wisdom of Moses or Solomon. That is out of the question. Each and every Member here has a right to serve on these committees, unless somebody has something to make him feel that these particular Members who have never been chosen cannot serve them properly. I do not fear that any Members of this House can serve this House and find difficulty in doing so.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I agree with the hon. Members who suggested that the Select Committees should continue functioning as they are until they report back to this House because, naturally, you cannot expect me to be appointed chairman of one of the committees—say the one investigating Mr. Theuri's case—and succeed when I was not there during the initial stage. You cannot expect me to try and follow those people who have more than one plot when I have not been there to follow what was said right at the beginning.

The standing committees should be either disbanded immediately or the Members who have been there longest should be removed and replaced with some new blood.

I would also like this question of “otherwise orders” clarified immediately because I cannot see how it will be ordered. Shall I stand in the House and start ordering that these committees stop functioning, what orders will they receive?

Although I have no intention of moving any amendment to this Motion, I would like to mention one thing in favour of it. I feel, for example, that the Sessional Committee will soon be meeting to decide what business we are going to do during the coming week, to plan the business of the week. It will be very difficult to do any business without the present Members of the Sessional Committee. I will not oppose their being present for this meeting; but during the next week, after they have decided what business is to be done during next week, they should be removed from office and another lot of Members should be selected as soon as possible in order to give as many Members as possible a wider knowledge of the workings of this House. This should be done as soon as possible since we know that sooner or later some of these Members will be Ministers, while on the other hand some will get out of this House.

Since this is everybody's right, I hope that the Vice-President will consider giving us as much experience on the workings of this House instead of allowing only a few individuals to continue sitting on these committees as though they are fixed there.

I wish to support this Motion temporarily, until that happens.

Mr. Seroney: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think this Motion is very dangerous because it seeks to circumvent at least the spirit of our Standing Orders.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Our Standing Orders provide, Mr. Speaker, that the prorogation of Parliament has certain effects. One of them is that all motions and committees, and everything, comes to an end. I think this is very important, Sir, because it then gives the House, at the beginning of a new session, an opportunity to think afresh and to apply its mind to the question of fresh, new standing committees. It may be true, Mr. Speaker, that perhaps Members of the previous standing committees did very well, in which case, Sir, there is nothing to stop their names being proposed again afresh. However, I think it is dangerous to bring a blanket Motion saying that everybody who was there last session should automatically be regarded as having been reappointed.

I think the correct procedure would be for the fresh membership, even though it may mean re-appointment of the old ones. But there should be a fresh reappointment of all the committees and the Leader of Government Business should not seek to avoid this by simply bringing a blanket Motion covering each and every committee.

I can understand, Mr. Speaker, the purpose or usefulness of reviving a Select Committee which had not finished its work at the time of the prorogation. It has been mentioned, Mr. Speaker, that at least three committees, although they had finished their work, had not had their reports considered by this House. In that particular case I have no objection to their being revived and kept in existence until their work is finished because, after all, when this House has decided what to make of their reports, then their existence would automatically come to an end. So I have no objection to having this particular committee being resurrected.

However, with regard to the other Standing Committees, particularly the Sessional Committee, I think the Leader of Government Business should prepare a fresh list of those he proposes for the consideration of this House.

Mr. Speaker, I, therefore, propose that the words "of Standing and" appearing in the first and second line of the Motion be left out of the question. The effect of this, Sir, would be to revive only those Select Committees which existed at the last session and which would automatically come to an end when their work is finished.

Sir, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who seconds the amendment? Mr. Lubembe. You have spoken, I think.

Mr. Lubembe: I have spoken, but this is question of an amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then you cannot second an amendment, I am afraid.

Is there no other hon. Member who wishes to second the amendment? There is no Seconder. So debate continues on the main Motion.

I think, hon. Members, I should clear up what might be a slight misunderstanding, because the real purpose of this Motion is to provide the House with some machinery to carry on with until the normal procedure of presenting to the House a new Sessional Committee for appointment can take effect.

I have to acknowledge that it was actually at my suggestion that this particular Motion has been put before you. As has been pointed out, all Select Committees, including Standing Committees, die with prorogation; but if the House needs these committees to carry on the business of the House. For instance, tomorrow a Sessional Committee will have to meet to decide on the business of next week. The Catering Committee is constantly in action. I know the intention of this Motion is simply to provide committees to work until the Leader of Government Business has time to present to the House a list of a Sessional Committee for this session, following which that Sessional Committee will, as usual, appoint the various other Standing Committees of this House.

I was going to ask the Leader of Government Business whether he would like to give an assurance to the House that he will, in the course of next week, present a Motion for appointment of the Sessional Committee which, in its turn, as I said, will deal with the appointment of Standing Committees; so as to get clear the scope of this debate.

Mr. arap Moi, would you like to say a word on this?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, precisely. The hon. Member did state, when referring to my Motion in the last sentence, that until otherwise altered. I meant that the normal procedure, the normal machinery, should be followed in order to enable Members to be appointed or be reappointed. I did mention that we want each Member to serve on these committees; and it is still my wish that all Members get a chance of serving on these committees. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I entirely endorse what you say, that we want the Sessional Committee, and these other committees, to meet to propose names. In these suggestions, names of some of the Members who have not served can be put in and then this will be debated in this House. Those from the Government side should be put in. There should be no difficulty. I have said more than once that there is no reason why we should have suspicions; we should be frank and say what we aim at in this or that.

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can I move that the Mover be called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Perhaps I might, in addition, remind hon. Members that the House did pass a precisely similar Motion at the beginning of the last session and was not disappointed in the action taken subsequently by the Leader of Government Business.

(Question that the Mover be now called upon to reply put and agreed to)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I listened with great interest to the expressions made by Members as to the weaknesses of some of the committees and the effectiveness of some of the committees, the Sessional Committee or the other committees. This is, in fact, the method through which the House can rectify things; there is no other way through which we can rectify this. However, I would like to thank those who have served on these committees. It is easy to criticize and say that they were not effective and so on, but at least they were able to produce some of the things which this House debated and went through with no difficulty. I would like to emphasize that we will be as generous as we were at that time, even to Members of the Opposition, although Standing Orders would not allow this. We want each Member of this House to participate in the committees, and express views and agree as Members of this House as to how things go in this House.

I would like, once again, to assure Members that as soon as we meet we will propose so that next week you will endorse the Members whom you wish to serve on these committees.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, as regards this Motion, there is something which is not very clear to me. You have stated that Standing Orders require that all Members of the Standing Committees be appointed by Sessional Committee Members. Who proposes the names of the Sessional Committee Members when we debate their names here?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That duty is for the Leader of Government Business, to present a Motion naming the Members of the Sessional Committee for the coming session. I think he does sometimes take the views of the outgoing Sessional Committee, but he is under no obligation to do so. He may not think their views are worth taking and start again altogether.

MOTION

LIMITATION OF DEBATE: MOTIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT INTO RECESS

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, the debate on any Motion for the adjournment of the House to a day other than the next normal Sitting Day shall be limited to a maximum of two hours with not more than five minutes for each Member speaking:

Provided that, when the period of recess proposed by any such Motion does not exceed nine days, the debate shall be limited to a maximum of 30 minutes, and shall be strictly confined to the question of adjournment.

Mr. Speaker, I think this is again a procedure that has been in existence and its purpose has been to facilitate Members who wish to raise matters on any topic based on this Motion. I do not think there is any difficulty in this one, nor do I expect any Member to speak against it. In fact, it is helpful to the hon. Members.

Therefore, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo) seconded.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Minister said, this Motion does not invite much opposition. I am not going to oppose it but only to make a few remarks with regard to the last part of it. In other words, where you have a period less than nine days. It seems to me that there is something wrong with the rhythm of the House at the moment, especially since we had a very unprecedented long recess of three months last time, and I do not know whether it is the intention of the Government again to have this little break of meeting here for one week and thus make us go home for one week—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is irrelevant to this question, which is the time limit on debate.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope that this will not become necessary. We should adjourn at the right time and this period which makes it necessary for us to approve these few hours or few minutes—30 minutes—for adjournment, should not be necessary at all, especially in the view of the position that there is so much work to be done and so on.

With these views, I beg to support.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the last hon. speaker, who has been here for the last six years, should have been able to benefit from the small holiday that he had out of this Chamber. He should be able to know that what we are talking about is not about these recesses and so forth. The recesses are arranged, Mr. Speaker, by the Sessional Committee and they are brought to this House and approved as a Motion on the Adjournment. Here we are talking about the normal routine, namely that we are to adjourn the House sometimes for a given period, which is stated, and the Motion is usually approved by the Assembly itself; and that is what we are talking about.

As far as 30 minutes are concerned, this is covering the usual routine for a Member who wants to raise a matter on adjournment and that is usually 30 minutes. As we are now starting a new session, we have got to cater for it now in this Motion, and that is why the 30 minutes are there so that if a Member is not satisfied by a reply given by a certain Minister and he raises the matter on adjournment, and he is given this half an hour to puff up his stuff and feels fine after that. This is usual and has been so for all the years that I have been here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, I think you are getting on to another point. You see, we are talking in this Motion only of adjournment to another day other than the next day, that is adjournment into a recess. The Motion for Adjournment at the end of a day's business, on which a Member has half an hour, is provided for by Standing Orders, and is not covered by this question at all.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, I overstated it, but the point here is—I am quite confused, Mr. Speaker, at what the Member is suggesting—that I know what I am talking about, namely the 30 minutes which we usually have here. I would not go to the extent of mentioning the Standing Order No. 20 which is also provided for by the Standing Orders here. What I am talking about is this adjournment of the Motion or of the House, and we have to have this Motion, and this is not a new thing. It is something we always have at the beginning of a new session and it is nothing new, Mr. Speaker. As far as the adjournment of the House for more than nine days is concerned, this is done by a formal Motion brought by the Leader of Government Business. So I do not see any problem here and would rather move on and get to the serious business on Order No. 13, so that we can start puffing up some stuff right from today and we keep on going for seven days. Today should not be counted, Mr. Speaker, because it will help some Members to puff up their air so that the next time we may have many Members ready to speak.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kase): Mr. Speaker, may the Mover be called upon to reply.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, I thank the hon. Members. I think this is the normal thing that if the Government proposes a Motion that the House should adjourn for three days, or four days, this should be the procedure which will help the House to go about it.

I thank the Members for supporting this Motion and I hope we will continue to work together for the good of the House and the country generally.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

MOTION

THANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

(First Day)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, and hon. Members of this House, it is my pleasant duty this day to record a vote of thanks from this House to His Excellency the President for his exposition of public policy contained in his speech from the Chair yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, once again in his Presidential Address His Excellency stressed the need for unity. Unity reflected not only in the deliberations of our National Assembly in their approach to our national problems and achievements of our goals, but also translated in—

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance, I thought that it was procedural in a Motion of this kind that the hon. Mover should read what is on the Order Paper? I am seeking your guidance, Mr. Speaker, as to whether it is necessary to read these words before continuing?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have ruled on this point before, that an hon. Member moving a Motion must always state the terms of the Motion at some stage, but it is up to him to decide whether to state them in the beginning, at the end or in the middle of his speech.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member ought to know—he should be mature enough to know—that when we speak on matters of such importance we always have notes. He has his own notes and must therefore allow me to read mine.

I did say, Mr. Speaker, that unity which was stressed in His Excellency's speech, must be translated in real and practical terms to all our wananchi. As Leader of Government Business I would like to assure His Excellency that, as in the past, we will continue to give him the fullest support, and to the best of our ability, in the great task of nation building, and the maximum consolidation of our single and various efforts directed towards nothing short of the collective good for our country.

We will endeavour, as a House, to maintain our national integrity which His Excellency the President referred to in his speech, and safeguard at all times that the very principles and foundations upon which this nation has been built will be preserved. To do this effectively we will require to approach the future with great dedication uninfluenced by selfish or personal interests.

His Excellency, Mr. Speaker, pointed out, quite rightly, that today we have a Constitution which is of our own making, and I think the Leader of the Opposition will agree with us that the old one had some making of the British Government at that time. Since the Constitution came into being it has been amended from time to time by this House. It will be our duty at all times to abide by the Constitution, and continue with added vigour to approach our laws in a manner which will reflect the wishes of our people. When we have a problem which affects the entire community, and we would like it to be solved in the way they want, we bring it to this House to rectify or legislate it. We shall continue to do this. His Excellency also spoke of various development projects that are going on in this country today and stated that there will be emphasis on rural development projects.

In this connexion, Sir, I would like to pay special tribute to hon. Members who, because of their co-operation in the field, co-operating with the arm of the Government, the executive arm of the Government, enabled most of these projects to proceed smoothly. I would like to thank them and request them to continue to support the Government's effort in this field because this same spirit should continue to prevail in the countryside so that we know that they are helping our people.

On the question of thieves and bandits, to which His Excellency referred during his speech, I can only say, as the Minister responsible for law and order, that the police force will work day and night to see that these evil-doers are cleared from the streets of our towns.

The Immigration Act and the Trade Licensing Act—both of which were passed through this Parliament last year—have helped, as it had been expected, to increase the participation of our people in the economic life of the nation. We are forging ahead with assistance of these two Acts to provide more and more employment opportunities to our people, both in the public and in the private sectors. The Government continues to attach great importance to the development of manpower and to the training opportunities to be given to the citizens in all spheres of commerce and industry. This is a difficult task which no Government can hope to accomplish, Mr. Speaker, overnight. However, with our determined policy of Africanization, we are confident that the task will be carried out smoothly and orderly without disrupting the economy. I know there have been some complaints here and there and I would like to ask and seek co-operation of the hon. Members here, because many people have misunderstood the Government's policy on these two points: the Immigration Act and the Trade Licensing Act. When I was away overseas, I did explain that our policy is not to discriminate against citizens of this country. What we are doing is to implement our policy, not with malice, Mr. Speaker, but with the spirit in which the Government intended to implement this policy. I would like to add here that overseas papers have recently misinterpreted the Government policy: for instance, instead of saying British Asian citizens, they say Kenya Asians. To say Kenya Asians, lumping those who are British citizens and those who are Kenya citizens means that we are discriminating against Kenya citizens who are, according to the newspapers, Kenya citizens. I would like to say here clearly that Kenya Asian citizens or Kenya European citizens are treated like anybody else; but those who are British-Asian citizens are not our responsibility. As a nation, we are responsible to our nationals irrespective of colour, breed or whatever you wish.

I wish to make this point clear because of the misunderstanding which has been in existence overseas. I hope this has been rectified and that the local Press and representatives of certain overseas papers will interpret what we mean from what we do.

I would like to say again that there have been some criticisms with regard to issuing of work permits. I would like to inform the House that no one is employed freely. Any employer who wants somebody to be retained for some time—say, for four or six months, or even one year—must pay Sh. 500. From this source, the Government collected £300,000 last year. As we move along, these permits cease to be renewed and our people are employed, particularly the boys who have completed their School Certificate and others who are seeking employment.

Through His Excellency's leadership and wise guidance, Kenya has obtained an excellent image throughout the world. This Parliament will try to maintain and enhance this image by steering, as we have done in the past, on our own non-aligned policy in international politics and without being drawn to the power struggles that so much characterize world politics today. We shall continue to co-operate with all countries and to welcome assistance from any corner of the world. As the President pointed out in his speech, we shall continue to welcome foreign investment, but must at the same time insist on the training of local personnel. This is a must, both in the Public Service and in the private sectors. There can be no doubt that the rapid progress which Kenya has attained since independence is mainly due to the stability and unity that His Excellency's leadership has created in this country. We must all accept this, even the Members of the Opposition. I think this is essential.

Our relations with the neighbouring countries continue to strengthen in the spirit of African brotherhood. On behalf of this House I would like to express a deep gratitude to His Excellency for the unique contribution which he has personally made in furthering this course. We all pray that God may grant him many years to serve all our people in this country, and in Africa as a whole.

I would like also, Mr. Speaker, to take this opportunity to thank you, Mr. Speaker, for the wisdom and tact with which you have conducted our debates during the past sessions. I have no doubt that your calm and sober judgment will continue to guide our deliberations to greater success during this current session.

To you, hon. Members, I need not say that you are a very useful part of this Parliament. Without you the Parliament would not have the lively debates which keep the spirit and humour of this House going. In the past this Parliament has been remarkable in the manner in which it has discussed even the most serious issues. In our approach to Parliamentary business I trust that you will all heed to His Excellency the President's words about maintaining the dignity of this House.

In the past we have also learnt to respect not only our Speaker's word but also the right of each one of us to express his opinions without being interfered with, however much we may disagree with these opinions. Freedom of thought and speech is the very essence of democracy and I am sure we shall continue to exert ourselves to preserve it.

Of course, when I address all the hon. Members of this House, this includes my hon. friend the Leader of the Opposition who is always full of humour.

With these mixed feelings the House will forge ahead with no rancour, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo) seconded.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must thank the Leader of Government Business for the nice words which he has expressed both to you and to this House, in regard to the conduct of business of this House.

Before I actually make some comments which I have on the speech of the President, which is now before us, I would like to thank the hon. Members of this House for the sense of humour which has been the characteristic of this House for quite a long time and which I hope will continue. This is something the Vice-President also referred to.

Now, Mr. Speaker, although as usual, you know, I have deep respect for the President of this country, on this particular occasion when he made this speech which is considered to be a policy statement for Kenya, here I cannot excuse him. I say this because I did not see any policy statement, any policy speech that was made. In a policy statement which comes from the Head of State you cannot get it mixed up with things like bandits, thugs, thieves and so forth. These are not things which cover the duties of the Head of State. These should not appear in the text when he is making a policy speech.

Again, Sir, in his speech, in the second paragraph, the President began by giving a note of warning to the Back-benchers of this House who have been very outspoken in many of their criticisms of Government policy, and so on. Here they are being warned not to go on making long deliberations, some which may be baseless, and some which should not be made because they are committed by popular mandate to support with loyalty. Yes, of course, they may be committed by loyalty. But when they are in this House they are supposed to be representatives of the wananchi, and as representatives of the wananchi they must express the popular opinion of the wananchi whom they represent. Here I would have liked both the Government and those who draft the policy statement for the President to know that they should know better. They should know better that this is not the place to mention these things. When they are drafting what they call an important policy statement, which goes into international fields, it is not where they should warn the Members of what they do not want the Members to do. If they want to warn the Back-benchers, they have the Back-benchers' group meetings where they can warn them and discuss things with them plainly. Therefore, I want to prove that it was unnecessary indeed to mention this question here in the policy statement.

Then the President came to talk about what he called legislation coming for the purpose of dealing with primaries before the election. This is in the fifth paragraph. Well, even these primaries, and so on, is this not due to the weakness of Kanu, of having failed to organize themselves? Now they want to back themselves by a legislation passed in this House. Can this actually be part of what we call the policy statement of a nation? Kanu is jumping from one fire to another. When they banned what they called independents, they thought that that was not going to be a problem to them. They landed themselves into a hot soup and now hope to get out of it by primaries.

Mr. Shikuku: Who made the soup?

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, are we in Kenya really capable, or do we have enough money to waste on two elections within one national election? Have we money enough to waste in that manner? This is a question which people must ask themselves. Otherwise, Sir, some people may just say, "Yes, Sir", and then they will find themselves in another soup.

Mr. Shikuku: Which soup?

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, I find also in the policy statement, in the 26th paragraph, that the President has again warned the Back-benchers. There he says something which seems to be particularly directed to the Opposition and all those other Members who are not actually on the Government Benches. He warns that the Constitution has provided—within the Parliamentary system—every facility for criticism and debate. Yes, we have! Do we actually allow criticism even outside this House when we do not allow public meetings to be held? Where do we allow criticism to be made? The President and the Government must be able to accept what is called fair criticism in order to know what is wrong with their policies and all that they stand for. Therefore, to be thick-skinned you must stand criticism; the criticism must be there and fair criticism must be accepted. This is what the Opposition has stood for, but instead of taking the Opposition in that manner, it is being considered to be subversive. I am very sorry if the President and the Government takes the Opposition to be subversive. It is very wrong indeed. At the same time they charge the Opposition by saying that they are using foreign money even to run their own affairs. What happened in the Gem election anybody could have known. How much money did the Government use in that election? How much money they used there, the people will judge and the people will know. Where did they get that money? Did they take it from the public purse? Where did they get it?

Now, to go on, it is those who live in glass houses who should not begin throwing stones, because when you begin throwing stones you might get yourself into dangerous corners.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I like it that we should be straight with one another and know what we are going to do. To talk of non-alignment—are we really non-aligned? Shall we say that we are really non-aligned in Kenya? This is what we have said. What we have said is that we are only stooges of the British system in this country, and nothing more, as we have not got out of it. Being stooges of a system which we got—I am very sorry, Mr. Speaker, I will not repeat that word.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to refer to this House as a stooge of the British system; should he not be asked to withdraw that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will withdraw, will you not, Mr. Odinga?

Mr. Odinga: I withdraw that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I should say that we are contenting ourselves with the status quo which we have, simply because we do not like trouble; we do not like to take the trouble to make changes, drastic changes. Therefore, we should not actually say that we are non-aligned; we are aligned and that should be understood.

Mr. Speaker, I should like to say something more before I sit because when the hon. Member was speaking I was listening very attentively. He should also be patient when I am dissecting him a little bit.

Mr. Speaker, I like to make a more or less generalized statement. The President said that we have laid the foundation. I do not think we have laid the foundation which is enough to cover the whole country. It is a very narrow foundation which does not actually accommodate the whole country.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, yesterday we had a very brief statement from our Government and I must agree that it was a very important document which has now gone right down to the population of Kenya. Yesterday we listened very carefully and I think today it is the turn of our Government to listen to the voice of the country as represented by all of us.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that for the last five months, with only the interruption of three weeks' sitting, this House has not been sitting. Since December 12th we were only interrupted in February for three weeks. This has caused a lot of speculation in the country. A number of people have asked if it was because His Excellency was thinking of dissolving the National Assembly and only changed his mind after seeing the trend of events in Gem, or whether it was lack of business that caused the House not to sit for so long. Here, Mr. Speaker, as a Government Back-bencher, I would like to ask our Government very clearly, if at all it was the question of a lack of business in this House. Who was responsible for the delay? In fact, this is a very sensitive year indeed, it being the year of Our Lord—the year before the General Election. This is a very sensitive year whereby we should never show any sign of being tired at all, because if you continue showing you are tired you might as well be given a permanent leave without pay by the population.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say also that because of the situation we have, our Government should be very careful as to how they handle the public from now on. The public must be handled with respect, and with tact and with intelligence. So far, as we recently saw in the Gem by-election, it was a big shock to us on the Government side. It was a show of lack of confidence in the Government by the people of Gem because, perhaps, a person from Nairobi—I think it was a Mr. Mungai—was asked to go and supervise the Kanu election. Who is Mungai anyway? Who is he? As far as we are concerned, in Kanu, he is a private person. You see that this has happened, and we have to warn our Government in time so that they do not make this mistake in future. With Quantas Airline, Mr. Speaker, they have got a very popular slogan where they say that if you are going to Australia and you do not know a possum from a kangaroo you had better ask the people who know. In that case you ask the people from the airline who go there 15 times a week. In this case, the people who should have been responsible for the election in Gem should have been the Members of this House who reside in that area, who speak the local language there and understand the problems of the rural people. Here, Mr. Speaker, I think the Government has let us down terribly. The only hope we have is that in the Primary Elections, maybe, we shall solve some of these problems.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that in the statement of yesterday there was no prominence given to agriculture which is the mainstay of the economy of Kenya. I expected, in the statement we had yesterday, that the economic development of Kenya would be gone into thoroughly. You cannot do so without touching agriculture which is the mainstay.

For instance, I now find that we have a downward trend of falling prices for our agricultural commodities, and the explanation we get is that our Government can do nothing to affect increasing the world prices on the world markets. So far so good. However, I think there are areas where our own Government can do something; face the facts and see if they cannot improve the trading prices for our commodities in Kenya.

Here I will give some examples. Only last year—in October it was—when it was stated that the price of maize shall be reduced by Sh. 3 per bag, and the reason was that our maize was fetching a very low price on the world market, I think somebody went as far as quoting that it was as little as Sh. 17 per bag on the world market. Today I find, for instance, that in Kenya we have been able to sell our maize not to Japan, as was expected, but also to London through Mitchell Cotts at about Sh. 39 a bag of maize. What justification is there today for our Government to continue to pay the low prices on the world market? There is not at all. The reason was that we were selling at a low price, and if that reason no longer exists, then we should like to see an immediate revision of the prices of agricultural commodities, including maize.

I think the other area to which our Government should give careful consideration is the question of internal marketing, as this is something they have not bothered to look into at all. If you go, today, into any hotel, a glass of milk is 50 cents or Sh. 1. Now if you work out how many glasses there are in one pint—there are three—and how many pints there are in one gallon—there are eight—and you get 24 glasses and at a price of 50 cents you get Sh. 12 a gallon. This is not on the world market, but in Kenya. You find that at the other end the farmer is producing the milk and keeping the cow for a full year and he is getting only Sh. 2/40 a gallon. You see you sell your gallon at Sh. 2/40 and then you take your milk to a hotel and they do not do a thing at all—they only pour it into little glasses—and they get Sh. 12 for your gallon. Surely, do we have a body here today, charged with the responsibility of controlling prices in Kenya? And if there is one, does it look at these points?

I am challenging the Government—being the year we all know as we have to fight for our survival—I only came here a few years ago and I do not want to go out as I would like to stay in Parliament here—that they should do these things; they should examine and see that our agricultural economy is well catered for, because if they do not do that they will be in trouble. They should bear in mind that we do not have mines like the rich Katanga mines and the copper mines such as other countries have. In Kenya we do not have these things.

Mr. Speaker, I notice that our coffee industry is also going into the doldrums. Only yesterday we were reading a very shocking report—What is our Government doing in preparation to combat such a situation? I leave that as that, hoping that this year they will do something.

My last point, Mr. Speaker, is that of the spirit of Harambee. During the battle for this Republic, Harambee was also born. I have a feeling that the Government and the local authorities are exploiting this feeling of Harambee, and so much so that the taxes that people are paying the country are not giving any services at all. Today if you want a hospital you have to donate, if you want a road you have to donate, if you want a secondary school you have to donate. What about the taxes we are paying to the Government and the local authorities; what part are they playing? Even recently it was shocking to read of His Excellency giving Sh. 300,000 donation—a Government donation—to a hospital in Chogoria. It should not be a donation, it should be a Government take-over for the taxes we pay in Kenya.

I have seen this going on and, unless we are careful, we are drifting towards a situation where everything we are doing is by donation, until one day we will ask if everything is being done by donation. Why should we pay the taxes?

Mr. Speaker, with those few remarks, I would like to support; but also to warn the Government that this is the time for them to shake out of their slumber and do some business.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the Leader of Government Business for the way he moved his Motion because I think he touched on very important points that should be stressed in this House, and also some of the points that should be given a different opinion as cases are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Leader of the Opposition has, I think, in a passing manner—because I do not think that he considered his opinions clearly—said that Kanu is dying and is in hot soup and is jumping from one soup to another. Mr. Speaker, I think my hon. friend should remember, when he speaks about Primary Elections and then tries to criticize them, that he is completely in darkness, because as we read from the papers—and not only from the papers because we also hear it from the public—this kind of system is completely supported.

Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member is suffering from one problem, and I think the problem is that he does not understand what we mean by primaries. Primaries, to us, means giving the entire public of Kenya the chance to decide on who should come to be their representative in this House. We are not leaving the responsibility to a handful of picked members, maybe of an executive committee or maybe of a delegate. This is a supreme House and this is the only place where we can decide on our national policy; and that being the case, the public must be represented here by people of their choice. There is no other way, to my knowledge, to show the wish of the entire public, other than going right out during the early stages of the election and showing the people their choice.

Kanu, Mr. Speaker, was defeated in Gem because they did not let the people there nominate their own person. A person had to be imposed on them—a person who was imported from Nairobi to go there. In several other places, even during our last election, we had the same kind of thing.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, can the hon. Member substantiate that the Kanu member was imposed from Nairobi and say who actually imposed him on the people of Gem, because this is a serious allegation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He was expressing an opinion.

Mr. Kago: My friend and colleague is from the same Church as I come from, and so we do not fight on such things; but I think today he has not seen the right end of the stick.

Mr. Speaker, without wasting time on what my friend said, I would say this: people must be allowed to have their choice and they cannot show it in any other way except by taking part in the nominations. That is what we mean by a primary election, which I am sure the hon. Leader of the Opposition is very pleased about. I do not think he understood what was meant by this.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to mention something else that was said by the Leader of Government Business. I was very pleased to hear him say that he is the person who is responsible for law and order in this country. Along with that I would like to congratulate the last speaker for saying—I would like to correct him, however, and tell him that it is not only this year but all the time, Government officers should learn to handle the public in a very proper manner, without any frustration and without any trouble of any sort. It is now the common statement around the countryside that the Government officials, the Government big bosses, and especially—for that matter—the police, are harassing the public in a very unwarrantable manner.

Mr. Speaker, last night I was having a piece of meat at Bahati—we go there sometimes in the evening and roast meat and eat it there. The people there told me about very vivid cases of our friends the police, who go there and find people eating their piece of meat peacefully in their car, and having a bottle of beer—and what do these friends of ours, the police do? They find out where the beer was bought and then charge the person who sold the beer—

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is alleging a very, very serious matter against the police, and I wonder if it is in order for me to ask for substantiation of this matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is substantiating, in that he is describing where he heard this, and I think that it is enough substantiation for him to say that he was in a certain place and the people there were saying this. How serious it is remains to be seen. It sounds at the moment as if the police were only doing their duty; but there may be something worse than that.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, I think this is where the Government goes wrong. Whenever they hear something mentioned, a criticism, they jump up and do not wait to hear what happened. If this is a government of the people, and if it is intended to serve the people, then it must bear the criticism of the people. Why should the police, simply because they find a man drinking beer in his car, and after finding out that the beer was bought from such-and-such a shop, say the man who sold the beer had an off-licence and sold the beer to be consumed, whereas the beer was not consumed on the premises. We know the laws. The law can only be broken if the beer is consumed on the premises. If it was bought and not opened there, but was opened say 50 yards from the premises, that man is drinking the beer in his private place—

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): On a point of order again, Mr. Speaker, is the House not entitled to know the name of the man who was harassed by the police, and when this happened? Mr. Speaker, it is too much; he is still working on it and yet he has not told us when this happened, which policeman did it, and who suffered. I think the public is entitled to know these things, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There are, of course, different degrees of substantiation, and the more chapter and verse an hon. Member can give of the kind you describe, the more his account is worth having. It is substantiation of a kind for an hon. Member to say that in a certain place on a certain day which he describes, yesterday I think, at this particular eating place, he has heard the people who live there complaining that this sort of thing is happening. That is a degree of substantiation, though not so valuable as you would like; if he can give any more, then I am sure the House will be very grateful.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, if my hon. friend, a teacher like myself, requires these facts then I can give them to him.

On the 29th April I was at Bahati; on the following day I went to the law courts and I found people being charged for the same thing. It only happened that I was there and I saw the people being charged who had been in a certain car where they had been drinking their beer and far from the premises where they had bought it, and these people had to pay fines ranging from Sh. 300 to Sh. 1,000.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to say is for heaven's sake if there is any crime, let us not generalize; at least we do not have what is called collective punishment. Let us give punishment where it is warranted, but where it is not I would think we are going outside of what is justice. Instead of doing justice in some cases I think we are doing injustices.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Khaoya mentioned something about farming. I think here the small farmers, even though the Government speaks from time to time saying it is going to help the farmers, I think the help they are giving is very limited. In particular, what the small farmers grow does not have a market; and if it does, it is one of the worst markets because the money they receive is very little. Money advanced to them is, in many cases, difficult to repay. The Government should really look into this.

Mr. Speaker, I see my time is up. I had other things to say—but because the Assistant Minister decided to disturb me, I beg to support.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

I must first of all congratulate the President for having given us the outline of what he thinks this country should be. I will start, Mr. Speaker, on the first page of his speech where he mentioned the responsibility of the Members of the National Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, I feel I should disagree with my hon. friend, Mr. Rapondi—Mr. Oginga Odinga—when he talked about this not being a policy. A country cannot be governed by hooligans and undisciplined human beings in the name of the National Assembly. I think they must be responsible, and be people with brains; people who can think, and so forth. If hon. Oginga Odinga says that that is not a policy, then he should tell us what he calls it in Luo language.

Now, Sir, having said that I feel this remark by the President of the Republic is very welcome, I would like to go on. We, here, are the custodians of the public interest in this House and we must be such until that day when some of us may be outvoted or returned again to this House to continue the good job we have been doing in this House. I think it is a very important part of the policy and I disagree entirely with my friend Jaramogi.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that I must thank the hon. Members—and indeed the Chair of this House—for the work they have done during the time they have been in this House right from 1963. I agree with the President when he said that we are now more mature and there should be less automatic condemnation, baseless sometimes, in this House. I agree with this. We have improved a great deal and our standard of debate is one of the most polished in Africa. I have met many friends who have attended debates in this House and they speak very highly of our National Assembly, and indeed of the Chair here. If I may blow our trumpet, Mr. Speaker, we are almost second to none in East and Central Africa. Therefore, we are really carrying out the job we are brought here to do. The Members should have the credit, and the Chair also.

Now, Sir, the other thing I would like to say is in connexion with paragraph three, and I quote:—

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, having accepted that, I think it is time the Ministers accepted that we are elected representatives of the people and what we utter in this House, particularly some of us who do our homework, should not all the time be brushed aside as lies, or untrue and so on. At the moment, every time when one makes a statement here a Minister is on his feet to defend the civil servants even if the civil servant is wrong. This is a wrong policy as far as the Front Bench is concerned, it is the wrong policy for them to jump to their feet when they are not prepared to do their homework, and are depending on the civil servants and are prepared to come and tell us untruths sometimes just in defence of the civil servants. In substantiation to that effect, Mr. Speaker, when we raise matters here, they say they are untrue and that they never happened and so on, and when we have Select Committees the Government then agrees it was true. Is this not proof that they are only out to defend the civil servants even when they are wrong. It is very, very unfortunate—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, I do not think it is proof that there have ever been any deliberate untruths on the part of Government. In fact, it would be wrong to allege deliberate untruths on the part of any Member. What has been established in certain cases, indeed, is that the Government has been misled, but that is rather a different thing.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, that is a diplomatic way of putting it, that the Government has been misled.

Before they reply to any question they should be informed. As a matter of fact where the Government is being misled in that when an officer makes a mistake, a Minister does not take any time but only rings, and the person who made the mistake is the very one again who writes an explanation in his own defence. When we institute an investigation through a Select Committee, we find the truth. This is not the point at which the Ministers should all the time jump up and say that whatever we have said is not true. This should be discouraged and they should know that we are responsible people and we have been proved to be responsible people.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker—I would like to go fast because the time is quite short; I am now actually coming to page two of the speech—is about agriculture in this country. Mr. Speaker, a lot was said about agriculture but nothing has been done. We have complained. This is the backbone of our economy, but the Government does not appear to be doing much about it. It is not enough to talk about agriculture. We must look at the way we should develop our country. Maize, for example, Mr. Speaker, if I may quote because I am a maize grower and I come from a maize growing area, how is it that so much maize is rotting whereas if you go to Machakos you will find that a bag of maize which is costing Sh. 71 in the Western Province is being sold at about Sh. 21. In Kano Plains a bag of maize it is being sold for Sh. 45, yet it is only about 29 miles from Kakamega. This shows clearly that the Ministry of Agriculture is not organized and is not doing anything to find out what is happening. They say the price must go down because there is too much maize, yet in a small distance of 29 miles it is Sh. 45 and in Butere it is only about Sh. 19. In Kano it is Sh. 45, in Machakos it is Sh. 71. This is very interesting, Mr. Speaker.

There is a failure in the organization of markets for our crops and there is a failure also in imagination, and I do not know who is planning, but that person should find by-products from our maize. There are so many by-products which you can get from maize, starch, you can have breakfast foods and all sorts of things. Nobody is taking the trouble to look into the diversification of this crop at all. The Government says that the price has gone down. If some of us in Government are very tired then they should retire and we will take over.

Mr. Speaker, this will not be for very long; it is just next year and some of them will never see this House again and we will have to help this country.

Mr. Speaker, I am now coming to the question of Africanization. This, Mr. Speaker, I agree with what the President said, but I am of the opinion that the civil servants, in particular are a stumbling block in Africanization itself. There are some of them who are in high positions who do not like to see any Africans near them, but are very happy when they have the expatriates around them because they are inefficient. I hope the Select Committee, when we talk about this, the Members will be informed and I will give them more material, and I have done my homework for six months and I will really give them a good go, but we are not happy so far as Africanization is concerned. Even the Ministers themselves, their secretaries are still expatriates, and we will have to look into that.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is about unemployment in this country. I think a policy must be laid down by this Government on how they are going to combat unemployment. This is a thing we would like to be told, To talk about unemployment alone and not lay down a policy as to how we are going to combat unemployment is not enough. There are too many hungry mouths around us and I think this is very dangerous. At the same time, the fact that an enormous amount of wealth is being amassed by a few people in this country, makes the situation more serious.

Mr. Speaker, those who think they can amass wealth in this country, and think they will be happy and can send their children to the former European schools, and that they can get a fleet of buses, or a fleet of taxis, buy big buildings left and right, big Mercedes, this is a dangerous situation. So long as there are so many hungry mouths in this country, and there are only a few people, be they in the Opposition or the Government, who are amassing wealth, they will live to forego all, and probably, it has happened elsewhere, where there has been a war between the haves and the have-nots, and many of the big men had their bellies torn open.

I say this, Mr. Speaker—not threatening anybody—because I am a Kenya citizen and would like to have Kenya as a happy place to live in. You can never have a happy place to live in so long as the few people amass almost all the wealth in this country when there are some people who do not even see ten cents in a month. This is a dangerous situation and we must believe in the policy of live and let live. We must believe in the real African Socialism and not in theory and in newspapers, but where we are prepared to sacrifice some of our income to get the small man up. The small man must not sit there with his mouth open and expect things to be dropped in but he must work. If he does not work, then I think the policy must be changed whereby the lazy who have learned to do something are sitting back just waiting for something from hon. Matano to drink or eat. These people must be caned and made to work so that they do not cane us in the long run. If we do not cane them they will cane us.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, this clock is slow and it is, in fact, time for interruption of business; so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 22nd May, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

Thursday, 22nd May 1969

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 57

OUTCOME OF INQUIRY INTO BUS SHOOTING INCIDENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Wanjagi not here? We will leave his Question.

Next Question.

MEMORIAL STATUE TO THE LATE C. M. G. ARGWINGS-KODHEK

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister of State, President's Office if he could tell the House what plans there were to build a statue in memory of the late great Kenya son, the hon. Argwings-Kodhek; and were there any roads going to be named after him in Kenya's main towns.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There are no plans at this moment, but this does not rule out the possibility in the future.

As to the second question: the naming of roads and streets in any town is the sole responsibility of the respective local authorities, and the Government has no objection if any local authorities have such an idea in mind.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that good answer, and arising from the fact that the Government has no objection, if, for instance, today a county council, either in Embu, Kisumu or any other district, agrees to name a certain road in honour of the late Argwings-Kodhek, then will the Government assist such county council in various fields, especially in the field of finance?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of naming the streets already in existence does not necessarily imply that money would be involved, and any such county should approach its respective Member and particularly the Minister for Local Government, and then if there is any difficulty he will inform the Government.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that at times there are questions which are very embarrassing in view of the fact that it is wrong to speak ill of the dead and that they need replies in confidence rather than bringing them to the House?

Mr. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I could not get his point.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member was suggesting that questions of this kind are rather embarrassing for the House and they are better dealt with outside, and he is asking you to agree with him.

Mr. M. Koinange: Well, yes.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 18

GRADE CATTLE DEATHS, BUNGOMA

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what the Ministry was planning, in view of the large number of grade cattle which had been given to farmers by way of loan and which had died in the Bungoma District, to combat this discouraging situation.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The chief cause of death in grade cattle has been tick-borne diseases, the principle one being East Coast Fever. The disease has no curative treatment and can only be controlled by applying a prophylactic to livestock through dipping or spraying.

The Ministry has no funds with which to construct Government dips; the funds which are available for aid in self-help dips are channelled through the Ministry of Co-operatives and Social Services.

It must be pointed out that those funds have to be divided to aid not only self-help dips in Bungoma, but other self-help projects in other parts of the country. The Ministry, nonetheless, will be happy to give, and it does give, advice to individual plot-holders on proper methods of dip control and spray. It is needless to say that where this advice has been heeded losses have been minimized to a considerable extent. It is hoped that the farmers will take technical advice more seriously to save the lives of the grade cattle.

The A.D.C. Cattle Cleansing By-laws of Elgon Nyanza 1961, have lapsed and unless re-enacted are defunct, although 25 spray crushes and five dips are owned by the county council they are often not supplied with enough spraying materials.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply from the Assistant Minister and in view of the fact that in some cases a farmer who got a loan of up to, say, Sh. 22,000 worth of animals has had all his stock wiped out by this disease, surely can the Ministry not arrange that in future, before actually giving a loan to a farmer for the purposes of buying grade cattle, they insist that spraying facilities are there before the loans are given? Otherwise how are we going to repay these loans?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with the hon. Member that we should not be giving these loans unless we are satisfied that the actual spraying and all facilities are ready.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now since grade cattle diseases are really spreading in Bungoma and we do not have these dips and the people are now having their own self-help schemes and are digging their own dips so that the Government will help them, and we have about 12 dips now on this self-help scheme, what is the Government doing to help these people in Bungoma so that they do not lose their grade cattle any more?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as self-help dips are concerned, as I have said, all the assistant aid which is available at the moment—just a small bit—can only be given to a few; we cannot give aid to all the self-help dips. All the money is channelled through the Ministry of Co-operatives and Social Services and I am sure the Ministry has been doing its best to try and spread this money throughout the country and not just to one district.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that any Government money stolen is always written off, and since the cattle sold to farmers are Government property, why is it not possible—if these cattle cannot be replaced by Government—for these loans, being loans to the farmers, to be written off?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question and it is, in fact, the subject of a question which Mr. Kebaso has put in and will be answered in a few days' time no doubt.

Next Question.

Question No. 38

DONATION OF CUPS AND TROPHIES FOR FARMERS

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister would establish National and District Farming Trophies to be awarded to the best farmers of the year at the Agricultural Society of Kenya shows in recognition of His Excellency the President's call of going back to the land; and would he call the National Trophy "Kenyatta Cup" and allow other distinguished leaders in districts to donate cups in their names.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question is very long, and we have sent this question in a written form.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well. Next question.

FINANCIAL ADVISER FOR BUNGOMA COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Local Government if, in view of the financial difficulties the Bungoma County Council has undergone recently, the Minister would consider seconding a financial adviser there for a period of two years.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not possible, due to the shortage of senior financial officers, for my Ministry, at present, to second a financial adviser solely to Bungoma County Council.

However, Mr. Speaker, there is a Provincial Local Government Financial Officer for the Western Province and he is stationed at Kakamega. His advice is available to Bungoma County Council just as is the case to the rest of the county councils in the province.

In addition I have already seconded two officers with effect from the 12th of this month to this council in order to assist it in its accounts and budgetary control.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, in thanking the Assistant Minister for that, may I know the calibre of the officers he has sent since it appears that they are not financial advisers, and whether he can allow them to stay there for two years so that we can clear the financial mess which has been prevalent there for some years.

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, as I have already told the hon. Member, my Ministry cannot afford to have financial advisers there, but we have two already just to assist in accounts and budgetary control. It may take a couple of months, we do not know how long it will take them to be able to do it, but they will not be there permanently.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House how long these two officers are going to stay in Bungoma to assist in averting the financial difficulties of the county council?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I told the hon. Member that as soon as they finish the accounts and the budgetary control; as soon as they finish they will leave there. I do not know how soon.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 42

COUNTY COUNCILS' BOUNDARIES

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House when a commission to revise areas and boundaries of county councils was likely to start that exercise.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I propose appointing a review commission to inquire into local government areas, their constitutional boundaries and so on, within the terms of the Sessional Paper No. 12 of 1967 on Local Government, next year.

Mr. Nyaberi: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, and in view of the fact that some of these constituencies are nearly unproportional, will the Assistant Minister now tell the House how soon next year, what month of the year, because next year might not come?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, as soon as the population census figures are available.

EXTENSION OF ELECTRICITY SUPPLIES TO LURAMBI SOUTH

Mr. Tsalwa asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House whether he would consider extending electric supplies to Shikoti Boys' and Girls' Primary Schools, the Catholic Mission Centre, Ingotse Market, Ingotse Secondary School, and Navakhola Chief's Camp and Health Centre in Lurambi South.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I would like to inform the hon. Member that Kakamega Township is near some of the places which have been mentioned in the question and, as he is aware, Kakamega has already been supplied with electricity. I would, therefore request the hon. Member to advise the people around Kakamega, including those institutions mentioned in the question, to apply in the normal way to the East African Power and Lighting Company and they will be advised as to the terms and conditions of supplying electricity to these schools, and to other people who may be interested as consumers.

I have only one observation to make and that is in relation to Navakhola; a place which I am informed is over seven miles from Kakamega. There will be some difficulty in extending the supply line to Navakhola unless there is a good number of consumers to justify the installation of the line.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, whilst appreciating the answer the hon. Minister has given to my question, I would like to know whether all the places are included. In my question as regards the supply of electricity to these places, Navakhola remains out at a distance of one and half miles from Chevuyusi Secondary School which is included in my question.

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in that case the matter becomes much simpler in the sense that if the supply transmission line is going to be built through a number of institutions to Navakhola, then all these institutions may share the cost of installing the transmission line. That is why, perhaps if the hon. Member is anxious to help this area, a formula could be worked out to supply electricity to the area he has referred to.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the earlier—

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): On a point of correction, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I heard the questioner talk about Chevuyusi School. I do not think Chevuyusi School is in the question and therefore the answer given by the Minister does not apply to this question because Chevuyusi and Navakhola are 20 miles away from Kakamega. I would like to get clarification. These places are 20 miles away from Kakamega, not seven.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you have really a point of order Mr. Otiende. I think we must go on with this question.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker Sir, the Minister talks of asking the Member to advise the people to apply for the electricity supply but is he not aware that the more formal way of making the application is through this kind of questions rather than people making an individual application, and therefore the question of whether the people should apply, or not, does not arise because the Member has asked the Minister to look into the possibility?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree that one of the ways the Ministry can assess the demand for the supply of electricity is through a Parliamentary question. This stage has already been done and is now over. It was done when the Government supplied or decided to supply

[Mr. Nyamweya] electricity from the nearest centre, but the Ministry cannot really go down to make applications for all the consumers just as I cannot, or my Ministry cannot, apply for electricity to be installed in the house of the hon. Member, in Nairobi.

Question No. 43

ABOLITION OF DISTRICT COMMITTEE FOR SOTIK SETTLEMENT SCHEME

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House—

(a) why he had dissolved the district committee which had hitherto been approving applications for allocating some land plots in the Sotik Settlement Schemes; and

(b) why the officers in the new committee, which the Minister had appointed were forcing the Kisii members of that very committee to approve applications from non-Kisii people.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply. As far as I am aware, the district selection committee which was formed in 1965 has not been dissolved. It is still carrying out its functions of allocating plots.

I, as the Minister, do not influence the district selection committee in any way. The committee selects applicants in accordance with the policy and the criteria laid down in a circular circulated to provincial commissioners and district commissioners by my Ministry in September 1965.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Minister aware that early this year the District Commissioner of Kisii suspended this selection committee and appointed his own committee which, in fact, made allocation of plots in the Sotik Settlement Scheme in Kisii? This committee was constituted of Government officers and the committee which the Minister is now telling the House about was completely suspended by the district commissioner. Is the Minister aware of that?

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister is not aware of that. I am the only person to appoint selection committees and not the district commissioner because the district commissioner was appointed by me as the chairman of the selection committee.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that last reply from the hon. Minister that he is the only one who appoints the selection committees and since there has been an allocation of land by a committee which is illegal according to him, will he make a suspension of this allocation and invite the former committee which he appointed to do proper allocation of this land?

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know how true the allegation is but I know that in my selection committees, the district commissioner is the chairman, the agricultural officer is a member of the committee, the veterinary officer is another member of the committee as is the senior settlement officer, with one man appointed by the provincial advisory committee, and two people appointed by the public.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, am I right, if you gave me permission to give some information to the House about this question of plots?

An hon. Member: Are you a Member of that place?

Mr. Kebaso: I am the Member for Borabu where this matter happened. If you can allow me, Mr. Speaker, I can give proper information to the House about this allegation made by the Member. May I have your permission to give information to the House about the allegation made against the Minister and the Government. Can a Member—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Order! Hon. Members cannot give information in the course of question time, other than the Minister answering the question.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I understood you correctly, could the Minister answer the question from the hon. Omweri? The Minister said that it is solely his duty to appoint the committee and the question from the hon. Member was: "Will you go and find out whether it is true that this committee—will you go and nullify their resolutions if the land has been allocated by the wrong committee—"

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Kamau, the fact that you do not think the Minister understood the question or answered it properly does not give you a point of order, I am afraid.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Minister is doubting the truth about this other committee calling it an allegation, would he give an assurance to this House that he is going to ask his officers and find out the truth as to why some people had to be picked from Kisii Town, and one from my constituency to go and do this allocation on this particular day and not the people who had the confidence of the public, as he said there should be some representatives of the public on the committee.

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what the district commissioners do is when they doubt an applicant, they usually call people from that particular clan to come and make sure that the applicant is a genuine landless person or not. He has no right whatsoever to select or to vote in the committee meeting and that is how we come to know the genuine landless people because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is my experience that many people go to the selection committee and deceive them, saying that they own no land anywhere in Kenya. Sooner or later, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we discover that Mr. X, Y and Z have land elsewhere and that is the purpose of calling some Wazees from that particular clan to clarify to the committee that this man is really a genuine landless person.

I think that is what the hon. Member is talking about.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, it will be in order for you to ask a question as to whether the Minister is aware of certain facts. That will be different from interrupting.

Mr. Kebaso: Well, the question I should like to ask is that the Minister should be aware of this matter, that the district commissioner did suspend the previous committee because they allocated land to the wrong persons. The directions from Government in Nairobi was that 28 squatters should have plots and more plots should have been given to squatters who used to live in Sotik. The committee which was existing denied all those squatters land and allocated that land to themselves. The district commissioner having known this later, had to ask the provincial commissioner to nullify the whole allocation and then appoint a new committee, and this was done from Nairobi through the provincial commissioner. The Minister should not therefore be accused.

Hon. Members: Is he aware? Are you aware?

Mr. Angaine: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister is not aware of that, and this has not been brought to my notice at all but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am going to find out how true the allegation is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NUMBER OF DIVORCE SUITS IN 1967/68

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House—

- (a) how many suits for divorces or separations were filed in the courts of the Republic of Kenya during 1967/68; and
- (b) who were the majority of applicants by races and what were the main reasons put forward as the cause of divorces or separations.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Some of the information wanted by the hon. Member is not very easy to obtain, because divorce and separation cases are dealt with by courts all over the country and it will involve looking into all the divorces and separations registered in the whole country. I honestly see no point in getting this information. It is not as if this is a new problem about divorce and separation; it is something that has been happening since man was born. Mr. Speaker, Sir, for those who are married, this is something they must face up to. It is bound to come when you have two human beings, living together, I am told.

I can give a rough figure for 1967/68 and say that there were roughly 130 divorce cases dealt with by the courts in the country, and roughly again, about 57 applications for separation.

Now the other point I am required to say is what the reasons for these cases are. Well, the old, old reasons that are known are: (i) adultery, (ii) desertion, and (iii) cruelty. If you consult the lawyers in this building, they will tell you that these are the well-known grounds for divorce. As for cruelty, this can be either by a husband or by a wife.

Mr. Karungaru: Thanking the Attorney-General for his answer and noting that he has not answered (b) accordingly, because I had asked as to who among the two, either woman or man, does apply for a separation or divorce and I thought the Attorney-General would be in a position to tell this House who are the applicants for the divorce and separation mainly.

Mr. C. Njonjo: No, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is a free country and the people who bring divorce suits can either be men or women because, let us not forget, that a woman is as much entitled to bring a divorce suit as a man.

Hon. Members: No! No! No! No!—

Mr. C. Njonjo: Of course, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am going to say it again: A woman is as much entitled to bring a divorce suit as a man.

Hon. Members: No! No! No! No—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have a Constitution in this country, and a woman has as much right as a man.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from an early reply from the Attorney-General, will he tell the House, from among the three courses that he mentioned, which was more prevalent among, let us say, Africans, and which was more prevalent among Europeans, non-Africans in general—of the three reasons that you mentioned.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, these grounds know no race, and for the information of this House, the main grounds for divorce in this country is adultery by men—not by women but men.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Oduya.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that Kenya has an ideology called African Socialism and the Attorney-General being aware that we Africans pay for our wives, we buy them, and this is legal because if you do not pay you are taken to court and you have to contribute something to the family of the girl, is he aware, then, trying to tell us that the women who are not actually paying for the men have any right to go to court? Under what system of tradition is this done? Is it the British system or the African system of tradition?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my answer is based not upon this barbaric custom that some hon. Member would like to refer to in this House. Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Omweri: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the word “barbaric” parliamentary?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, do I understand the Attorney-General to mean that the paying of dowry is barbaric?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that is a point of order, but I would say it was fairly clear.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, what I was referring to as barbaric, and I am going to repeat it and I want hon. Members to wait and listen to me, is the custom that the hon. my friend, Mr. Oduya has referred to, of buying women as if they are chattels. I say, Mr. Speaker, that that notion is barbaric and inhuman, and the only point that I was making, Sir, is that the answer is based on the human and reasonable legislation which has been passed by this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we will go on to the next Question now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 25:
DIVORCE SUITS IN 1967/68

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the effect of what the Attorney-General has told the nation today may be very serious, as far as African Socialism and custom is concerned, could I be allowed to raise this matter on adjournment to clear the head of the Attorney-General?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Karungaru?

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no objection whatsoever.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well. We come to your next Question then.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 26

CASES OF CORRUPTION IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General how many cases of corruption by members of the public service took place in the Republic for the first half of 1968 and how many of those involved had been convicted.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

In the first half of 1968, 21 cases of corruption were reported to the police and in ten of these cases convictions were obtained.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, and in view of the fact that there were 26 cases of this nature reported to the police and only ten out of 26 had been found guilty and convicted, is the Attorney-General satisfied that corruption and malpractices are not increasing rather than decreasing?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will guess the answer and say that I am satisfied that cases of corruption are not on the increase because of the severity of the sentences which are now being meted out by the courts. We have a number of corruption cases, but as I say, the courts are giving deterrent sentences which are reducing the number of these cases.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, would the Attorney-General not agree with me that one of the reasons for corruption is the low salary paid to the civil servants? Would he not consider increasing the salary to be in comparison with the job so that there are no cases of corruption?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree with the suggestion by the hon. Member. There are quite a number of people who are sometimes involved in corruption cases who are very well placed, very highly paid. Corruption, in fact, is brought about by greed and wanting to cheat.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General aware that why civil servants are encouraged to carry out these evils of corruption is because they see some leaders of this Government paying more than they earn, more than what they get by way of salary?

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would the hon. Member who has asked that question substantiate beyond any doubt that such a practice as the one he has referred to does exist? Can he substantiate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kariuki, I did not hear what your allegation was. Would you repeat what you were suggesting?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I am asking the Attorney-General if he agrees that because civil servants are encouraged to carry on these evils is because some leaders are paying more money to self-help groups, more than what they can afford from their salaries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is rather too vague a matter to have to be substantiated.

PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION FOR WOMEN

Mr. Munyi asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House, since more than 50 per cent of the people who had a vote in Kenya were women, what Constitutional action the Government would take in future to give fair representation to women in Kenya's Parliament.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. This is a very sensible question which recognizes the position of our womenfolk in this country and which is also something which is written into our Constitution.

Sir, if women think that they are not fairly represented by their hon. Members, I hope that they will take a more active part in the selection of candidates at the next general election to ensure that they are fairly represented. If they do this, it will not be necessary for the Government to take any constitutional action. In fact, I hope that some of our womenfolk will stand, for example, in my friend, hon. Mr. Lubembe's constituency.

Mr. Lubembe: Arising from the Attorney-General's answer, Mr. Speaker, and the unnecessary remark—because I am not sure that he has a wife there—will he agree with me that in order to get these women he is defending to participate in selecting the people to come to Parliament (and, if possible, a woman) is to allow full primary selection to every woman?

Mr. C. Njonjo: If the hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, will approve the legislation for full primaries then, of course, the women will take advantage of those provisions. It is not for me—and let me make this quite clear as I know there is a whispering campaign going on—the Attorney-General who is going to pass the legislation, it is for this House. I can draft, but drafting does not mean that the legislation is passed in this House. I hope this will kill this whispering campaign which is going on, and if the hon. Member wants to come and help in the drafting, he is most welcome.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Attorney-General tell the House what are the special interests of women which he would like a woman to come to this House and represent the women, which are not represented by the present Members of Parliament?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am quite sure that the hon. Member is not suggesting that he has got all the qualities and all the paraphernalia that a woman has.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 5

NON-CITIZENS TRADING IN AFRICAN TRADING AREAS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House how many non-citizens have been given permits to continue trading in African trading areas.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Non-citizens licensed to trade in non-general business areas in 1968: 3,762; non-citizens served with quit notices from trading in non-general business areas: 1,082; those who are supposed to have been licensed in 1969: 2,670.

It should be noted that appeals are continually being heard. The results will definitely affect the position when favourable decisions will be made.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the satisfactory reply by the Assistant Minister, can he tell the House who constitutes an appeal court to which he referred to in the last part of his answer to the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who constitutes the appeal court?

Mr. ole Oloitipitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have at the moment the names of those people who are the members of the appeal court, but what I know is that the Minister has appointed the members of the committee and I can give the hon. Member the names of the members and the number any time from now.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers, is the Assistant Minister aware that most of the non-citizen traders who have been given permits to trade in African trading areas are trading in items which were prohibited, and it is high time the Ministry took action to evict them from those areas?

Mr. ole Oloittipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware of that, but the hon. Member is also aware that the Ministry is taking drastic action to check on these Asians, or non-citizens, who are trading in those items that are not allowed. For the information of the House, it is not once, but several times, that these people have appeared in the courts for doing this.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that those who have been given quit notices who are non-citizens have been trading very useless things, and the real people to be given quit notices have never been given them, and they are continuing to trade?

Mr. ole Oloittipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that and if the hon. Member is aware of that, that the notices that we have given to people are useless and have not gone to the right people, let him tell us of cases and we will take action.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the earlier reply that the Minister is taking action against those who are trading in the scheduled goods, can the Assistant Minister give an assurance to this House that if we give him the names he will take action, because I have pointed out one case to the Ministry and so far no action has been taken?

Mr. ole Oloittipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already said that we are taking action against those people who break the law of this country in trading with goods that they are not permitted to trade with, and if the hon. Member could give me the names of these people and he is sure that they are trading with these goods, we will take action straightaway.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

1969, SALARIES AND EQUIPMENT ESTIMATES

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with your permission, I beg to withdraw Question No. 6.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well. Next question.

Question No. 32

STUDENTS BENEFITING FROM KENYATTA FOUNDATION FUND

Mr. Tsalwa asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House the provincial breakdown of students who had benefited from the Kenyatta Foundation Fund.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The 1968 scholarships from the Jomo Kenyatta Foundation were allocated as follows:—

| | | |
|------------------------|-------|----|
| Central Province | | 17 |
| Coast Province | | 9 |
| Eastern Province | | 14 |
| Nairobi | | 10 |
| Nyanza Province | | 13 |
| Rift Valley Province | | 16 |
| Western Province | | 13 |
| North-Eastern Province | | 4 |

That will make a total of 96. There were four other scholarships that were given on a national basis and were given to the best qualified students, irrespective of the province from which they came.

With regard to 1969, Sir, I am happy and grateful to the Jomo Kenyatta Foundation that we are getting an additional 125 and we are still processing those.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister for Education tell the House on what proportion was this divided?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, of course one of the most important things to keep in mind is the number of high school students in each of these provinces; of course, some provinces have far less school pupils than other provinces. Additionally, we look into the academic achievements of the people concerned and the ability or otherwise of the parents to meet the expenses of secondary schools.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that these scholarships are not given immediately, could the Minister give an assurance to the House that he will instruct the headmasters or mistresses of schools where the students who get scholarships are that they should not send these pupils away because they are assured of getting these scholarships?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not too sure I understood what the hon. Member was saying. However, if we are processing and we have not come to the final list, it is difficult to tell the headmaster which pupil will get a scholarship and which pupil will not get a scholarship.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go back now to Mr. Wanjagi's question.

Question No. 57

OUTCOME OF INQUIRY INTO BUS SHOOTING INCIDENT

Mr. Wanjagi asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if, further to his Question No. 267 of 2nd March 1967, on a bus shooting incident on 19th December 1966, the Minister would tell the House the outcome of the inquiry.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The case involving a bus shooting incident on the 19th December 1966, has now been closed. Although the constable who opened fire to stop the bus honestly believed that his action was correct, on inquiry it was found that he should not have resorted to the use of a firearm at all. Disciplinary action was taken against him and the owner of the bus was paid an agreed compensation and the matter closed.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House how much was the bus owner compensated and who did it and when?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the owner claimed Sh. 4,950/35 but then after negotiation and talking to the man, in the end he agreed to accept Sh. 2,778/35, which was paid as full and final payment.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Government admits that the shooting was the mistake of the askari who did the shooting and he fired at the bus when it was coming towards him because the engine was shot and not the rear of the bus, what assurance would the Ministry give us that in future this kind of thing will not happen?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already said that disciplinary action was taken against this man and, of course, we have very strict orders on firearms and everybody who is carrying a firearm—whether he is a policeman or an administrative police—has strict instructions as to when and how to use that firearm, and they know the consequences if they misuse it.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

CAUSES OF INCIDENT AT NYABOGI, FAZA DIVISION

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask a Question by Private Notice of the Minister of State, President's Office.

What were the causes of the—

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Member to ask a question in my area?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is in order.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the hon. Member I used to be a member of the district.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Just ask the question.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask this Question by Private Notice.

What were the causes of the incident at Nyabogi in Faza Division on Saturday, the 17th May 1969, when one resident was killed and one administrative policeman was injured?

Why was it necessary for the administrative police to use firearms?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my colleague, the Minister of State, I beg to reply. This is a serious and unfortunate incident. It occurred on the 17th May, just about five days ago, and the Government is, at the moment, investigating the causes of this incident. I think it would be premature at this stage to say anything while the investigations are going on, as whatever may be said will prejudice the investigation.

The Government, as well as the hon. Member from the area, will carry out the investigations necessary and eventually report to the House as to what were the causes and any action taken.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank the hon. Minister for his reply. The information I have, Sir, is that it was a land dispute. However, if he cannot answer the first part of the question, may I appeal to him to answer the second part.

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, I do not see how the second part can be separated from the first part. The incident was an incident involving the officer mentioned in the second part of the question and this is what is under investigation.

Mr. Obok: Arising from the hon. Minister's reply, Sir, could the Minister tell the House when this question reached his office because he is, at this stage, not in a position to give us the information we want? When did the question reach your office?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with due respect to the hon. Member from Alego, the time when the parliamentary question reached the Office of the President is not as important as the reply to the question itself.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think what the hon. Member means, is that although Standing Orders require a Question by Private Notice to be on the Order Paper within two days for reply, the actual reply may not be available by that date, and if this is so it is in order for the Minister to say so.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell this House how long will this investigation take so that we have the reply in this House?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appreciate the interest which the hon. Member is showing in this matter, but I would like also to inform him that a high-ranking police officer with the Member from the area, the hon. Abubakar-Madhubuti, are going to this place this evening in order to have an on-the-spot investigation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. We will go on with the next business now.

MOTION

THANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 21st May 1969) (Second Day)

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the Order Paper, Order No. 8, I see that it says "(Presidential Address 2nd Day)". If I understand the Standing Orders correctly, yesterday was not a full day on the Presidential Address and today is the first day. I would like to seek your guidance, Mr. Speaker, on that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a fair point, but when a resolution is passed by the House for the limitation of a period of debate for a certain number of days, a "day" is not specifically defined for that purpose, though it is specifically defined for Supply days and for certain other purposes. However, on this particular occasion there is no particular definition of "day" and so I fear—for those who would like longer—that any part of a day, counts as a day for the purposes of this resolution.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you very much for giving me this chance to air my views on this very important document and on this very important speech His Excellency, the President of the Republic, gave.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, everything written in this document, in the speech of His Excellency the President, I agree with fully. The speech is a wonderful speech: I call it wonderful, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because it contains the whole proof of the day-to-day functions of our own Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that a lot has been said on this, and I am only going to be very brief because I would like to air my views today.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming to page 2 while I am agreeing with the whole paper, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that it has been mentioned by the President that in August this year, we are going to have a full population census. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very good indeed. It is very good because it is time for our people will come forward to be counted so that we know for sure how many people we have in the country. So that we know what is our population in the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to touch on this point because I understand before the census is done in the country, we are not going to be able to allocate seats of the National Assembly.

I would appeal to all members of the public to come forward to be counted so that those people who will be sitting to consider the allocation of seats in the country, Mr. Speaker, will be able to calculate according to the population of the country. I appeal especially to my own people, the Masai, because it used to be the practice in the past, Mr. Speaker, that when our people were told they were being counted, they thought that it was a bad thing for them and that is why last time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, our numbers were slightly less. This time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think they will realize the importance of coming forward to be counted so that the allocation of seats will be given fairly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it applies to most of the nomadic tribes in the country, like the Samburu, Turkana, the Masai and the Baringo people; also the Elgeyo-Marakwet. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appeal to these Hamite tribes of mine that it is high time that when the census is carried out, they come forward in full force to be counted.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, after this, I would also ask those gentlemen on the committee of allocation of Parliamentary Seats to consider this time and I appeal to the Attorney-General especially, to consider very favourably the cases of allocation of seats this time. Mr. Speaker, Sir, for example, I, at the beginning, used to be a Member for Kajiado District as a whole; and you know the size of the area is 10,000 square miles, surely, no one can cover or can come forward and say I can represent an entire population covering 10,000 square miles and pretend to be a good representative. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point in touching this, is so that when people are counted, the size of the district is also taken into account.

[Mr. ole Oloitipitip]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday, His Excellency the President congratulated us, the people of Kajiado District, for coming forward and contributing a lot of cattle to the country. We are sending a lot of cattle to the Kenya Meat Commission to help to feed the entire population of Kenya. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also suggest that it is not only the human population that is to be taken into account, also the cattle population is very necessary. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appeal to the committee which will be sitting to consider the allocation of Parliamentary Seats this time to consider the cattle of the district; the cattle population, and also the human population. Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must get the Constitution altered before the cattle can be taken into account.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming to the other point on page 2, I should congratulate the Government and the Ministry of Agriculture for their ability in getting in touch with the World Bank. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand that they have already brought £4.6 million into the country, and this is a lot of money. This is meant especially to develop livestock and also to develop ranches in the country; to buy the stock, fatten, and sell them to Kenya Meat Commission. This money, £4.6 million, it is also meant for water projects. This, Mr. Speaker, is a very good step and they have approached the International Development Authority for assistance. I hope that this money will not be concentrated only in one particular district, but it will go to all needy districts in the country, so that those who have cattle can develop their cattle; those who are thirsty, who have no water, can also get water; and those ranchers like myself, who would like to purchase more stock and to fatten them for the benefit of the country can do so, Mr. Speaker. Therefore, I feel that I must congratulate the Minister for Agriculture and the Government as a whole for this ability in obtaining all this money.

Thirdly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is only one appeal that I would make to the Ministry of Agriculture. Today, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you find that in most areas of the Republic there is a lot of Foot-and-Mouth disease and this hinders us from selling our cattle. We have tried all we can to see that we inoculate our cattle against this dangerous disease—Foot-and-Mouth disease. The inoculation they have, the vaccine they have, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the Veterinary Department, is very expensive. One has to pay a lot of money—formerly it used to be Sh. 7 per bottle,

Mr. Speaker—but now I am told that it has been reduced to Sh. 3/50. Mr. Speaker, Sir, for an ordinary man who does not have all that cash, I think this is a considerable amount. I would appeal to the Government to try and see that we reduce the price of this Foot-and-Mouth vaccine. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am told that it is very expensive, but I am also surprised as to why it is so expensive because this vaccine is manufactured here in Kenya. It does not come from abroad; it is manufactured in Kabete here; the cattle they are using to get the vaccine from are here; all the apparatus is here, but still, we find it is still very expensive. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government must subsidize this, so that the ordinary farmer, can inoculate his cattle against Foot-and-Mouth disease, because I can see that we have really tried to eradicate most of the cattle diseases, for example, Anthrax, Black Quarter, Rinderpest. All these diseases are done away with, or nearly all of them are gone. But this Foot-and-Mouth disease, type A and type O, is still in the country. Mr. Speaker, I think that most of the outlying districts cannot supply their cattle to the Kenya Meat Commission, because all districts in Kenya or nearly all, are under quarantine restrictions. As soon as we can get the price lowered for the Foot-and-Mouth disease vaccines, then the ordinary farmer will be able to buy it, just as he buys Black Quarter or Anthrax vaccine.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would therefore like to appeal to the Government to do this. The other important point Mr. Speaker, although my time is running out—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): And it has run out without any question.

An hon. Member: Look at the light!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

An hon. Member: Five minutes has gone.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You did not see the amber light come on five minutes ago. You have had ten.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Thank you very much Mr. Speaker. First of all I would like to begin by saying that, yesterday, when some Members were speaking, and touched on something to do with the Gem election, I did not agree with them when saying that the candidate who was actually a Kanu candidate was the wrong one, because, when Kanu carried out their election, the whole thing went off very well. The Chairman and the Vice-President of Kanu were there, and during the election, which, the hon. Member, Mr. Sagini, the hon. Member for Kitutu West, a very capable Minister, attended, the Ministers were sent there. What I would agree with the hon. Member was that the elections were carried out democratically and there was no rigging. This I could agree with very well. This is where I could call upon them to congratulate the Government for having carried out this election so well that there was no rigging. Everything went on very well. The Kanu candidate was very nicely defeated, and lost his deposit. There is no question about that.

Hon. Members: How much?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: This was a nice defeat, because there was no rigging. Always when votes are rigged for the Kanu members, they come out to us saying that they have been voted in. This was not the case. Here, there was a clear case.

Anyway, what I wanted to tell these Members was that this was the best candidate that Kanu could get and this is the best candidate they put forward, to challenge our candidate. There is no question actually of crying over spilt milk. Now, if the candidate is defeated, he is defeated. There is no question of saying that the people there should enjoy their little corner. These are nothing but funny words, which the President said. What his allegations were implying was that some Members in this House make very wild allegations, which are baseless. I think Members who are making such baseless allegations, as the one I heard yesterday, should follow what the President told them on Tuesday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that by saying that the Kanu candidate was imposed, is actually implying that somebody put him in. This is because, if these Members are loyal to their party, and to the President of the party, then they should believe in what was done.

The other thing I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that in the Presidential Address, there was no mention about education, which is very serious. For a country to progress well and for the people to be enlightened, since most of our people are illiterate, this particular item should have been mentioned. It is surprising to see some Members praising the Presidential Address saying that it was very good and some people advocating that they be accepted as the representative of cattle and so forth. This is funny, but in the Kanu Manifesto, in 1963, they had promised that there would be free education before their time of office expires. Now, perhaps, it might be that the fear of not mentioning this is because there is nothing that has been implemented. Therefore, in order to let it pass unnoticed, the President decided not to touch anything to do with education. We should, nevertheless, have a clear policy. Today, one hears that the people of Murang'a want primary education up to Form II level. Then, in other parts of the country, people are very confused. The President should, therefore, have said something about education, as to when free primary education is going to be implemented. But if the Kanu Government remains in power, I do not think there is any hope of having free primary education. They have been defeated, and this must be accepted. However, that was the reason why the President never mentioned anything about it. However, this is very important because, very recently, a delegation from the Kenya National Union of Teachers went to the President and urged him that there is a great need for free education in this country. Mr. Speaker, it would have been very nice if the President has said something about this.

Now, as regards what the Kanu Government has done, roads are terribly poor in the countryside. If you go to the rural areas, you will find that from the time that the House passed a Motion that secondary roads should be maintained by Central Government, all of them are still very much neglected. Nobody cares for them. For the country to pursue civilization, communication must be cared for very carefully. In here, you will find that our roads are so poor, they are much neglected and nobody cares for them. People are tied with ropes because they fail to pay their graduated personal tax. Yet, there are no services done for them. This is a failure which must be accepted. This is one of the things which should be attributed to Kanu's failure in the Gem by-election where they were defeated very badly indeed. We hope to defeat you next year with an overwhelming majority, if you do not implement these things which you promised. What we shall do is only to open a chapter, say, for example, in the Kanu Manifesto, Chapter I, verse 3, where they said they would do this and this. Where is it? In Chapter 3, verse 4, they said this. Where is it? I am bound to believe that you will have nothing to say. Unless, you Members cross and come to us—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order. Address the Chair.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I am actually addressing the Chair and I am very careful.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then, you must not speak to an hon. Member in the second person.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: The other thing is about unemployment. I was reading a book or a booklet which was written by Mr. Clement Lubembe who actually made himself an ordinary man and went to the labour office just to see how job-seekers were behaving. He had a conversation with these people throughout the day. From there he learned that most of these crimes which are being carried out violently mainly stem from the fact that people are hungry and have nothing to do. They are therefore tempted to resort to robbery with violence. Mr. Speaker, this question of unemployment is so important that just to say that the President also knows about it and that the Government knows about it also, but ultimately, nothing is done about it, leaves people to question themselves thus: If there is no employment what can we do?

Now, the other thing I would like to say is this. If the country is really a practical, democratic country, then the primary elections which Members seem to be supporting very much, should be explained very clearly. This is because, so far, how this system will be conducted is not known. For example, if the Kanu symbol is a jogoo and the Kenya People's Union has a bull, will these be the symbols to be used at the primary elections? Or what symbols will be used? For example, if there are ten Kenya People's Union candidates to contest the primary seats, which symbols will they use? Therefore, according to what the President said here, he warned the Members and said that sometimes they just make wild allegations in ignorance. This is in the same way as they are now supporting the primary elections ignorantly. Mr. Speaker, I feel that before we agree on something—Here I do not want to imply that I do not like primary elections. I have faced so many elections and some of the hon. Members who are talking here only came here in 1963, and they are so much afraid of them. I know that if the President tomorrow says that the life of Parliament be extended once again, they will support him because they fear going to the people.

I am sure, Sir, that soon there will be a Motion here which will be urging the Government to dissolve this House so that fresh elections can be carried out. I wait to see how many Members will support this Motion, this move, if they are actually genuine in saying that they enjoy the mandate of the people.

With these few words, Sir, I beg to comment.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I come to the main topic of what I would like to say, may I correct my personal friend, Mr. Chillo, where he says that we fear Kanu elections and that we agreed on things in ignorance. Some of us did face elections twice as he knows. Why is he fearing? What we want is for every person to be given an opportunity, the public to be given the chance to elect the person of their choice. Why fear when there is nothing to it?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member not misquoting me by saying that I fear primary elections, whereas I said that I want a clear definition. I did not say I feared them. Is he not actually misquoting me?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right, Mr. Chillo.

You must not misrepresent what the hon. Member said, Mr. Munyasia.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, I am not misrepresenting him. He went so far as to try and discredit some Members of Parliament saying that they were elected in 1963, and have not gone back to the people. I will now leave that aside.

I will pass the question of primaries to my friend, hon. Muliro, who will hit the nail on the head when he gets the chance to speak.

I want to touch on what the President said here about wisdom in regard to the debates in this Parliament. Although we talked about how to go about primary elections, or the selection of candidates, I think this was a matter for the party, and we did agree on Monday, unanimously, that primaries would be carried out. Full stop. Now, Sir, today and yesterday there is a petition which, I understand, is in circulation. I fail to understand how this same party Kanu, which agreed on Monday to primaries, today—even at this hour—is circulating a paper on this issue. Mr. Speaker, I want the House to know that the party, Kanu—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member speaking—Mr. Speaker, Sir, to clarify the position, will the Member speaking substantiate that the paper now going round is refuting the agreement based on the Parliamentary Group meeting held on Monday, on the question of primary elections? Can he substantiate and lay that paper on the Table?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! If an hon. Member wishes to refer to a paper, he should produce it and lay it on the Table. Then there is no question of substantiating what it contains, since hon. Members can see that for themselves.

Can you produce this paper, Mr. Munyasia?

Mr. Munyasia: With your permission, Mr. Speaker, if you allow me up to four o'clock, I will get the paper from Mr. G. G. Kariuki, and other Members I know. This is on the primary elections about which we spoke at the Parliamentary Group meeting last Monday.

Now, Sir, trying to underrate what was the decision of the entire Parliamentary Group—

Mr. Jahazi: That is a wrong accusation and you know it.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since I believe the hon. Member has said he is going to produce this paper, but has not said when, can he stop debating on that issue until the paper has been produced and laid on the Table?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is an essential rule that if an hon. Member wishes to refer to a document he must produce it and lay it on the Table. We cannot have you discussing this any more until the paper is produced, Mr. Munyasia.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, as I said in the first instance, if you allow me up to four o'clock I will get the document from the Members concerned and lay it on the Table.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is one of the confusions within the party, the Kanu Party.

I will leave that aside and come to Gem Location and tell the House exactly what happened there, although I am not a Luo. Sir, the allegation which the hon. Mr. Chillo made stated that Kanu put in the right candidate. That is not true. There was a confusion in the party. This is what I am trying to clear. Before the elections—because we have been reading the papers—there was someone known as Isaac Omolo and there was this fellow known as Rading Omolo. I see that Rading Omolo was not the party candidate because if he was the party candidate, and if the members of the entire Luo Community had no faith in this election, what was the reason for this? Why was this so? Here is a big question mark. I know that we have one party, Kanu, but I say also that we do not agree. I do belong to Kanu and I say that we are entitled to make criticisms. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say this man was imposed. If the entire Luo Community were given the chance to choose their own man, then I think the KPU would have had no chance. I am sure they admit this.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, to make the matter worse about Gem. I understand that the father of one of the Clerks of the National Assembly, Mr. Opundo, whose name is Zakayo Opundo, was dismissed when Mr. Rading Omolo began campaigning. He was the Senior Chief. How, then do we run this country and yet we say we are all together? Why should we complicate things? I want to say that Zakayo Opundo, the father of the Clerk of the National Assembly went to the meeting where Mr. Rading Omolo was present. Therefore, Sir, I say that we must speak our mind and say, "This is wrong".

Mr. Speaker, during the time when the Leader of the Opposition was Vice-President most of the younger chiefs were dismissed, and yet today the Opposition talks of dismissing other chiefs. At that time, some chiefs whom I know, were dismissed, at the time when the Leader of the Opposition was the Vice-President. Is this the way to run a country? The public are not blind to these things.

If the hon. Members remember their history about the British Parliament, what happened in the early 19th century. The contract for the life of the Parliament was five years. The Members of this Parliament have come here and increased their time to seven years, the life of this Parliament is now seven years. What is the outcome? I would like to tell this House that we increased the life of this Parliament to seven years, and now do we think we will go on forever and ever? If we are not very careful, you know what will be the outcome. This must be watched. Sir, we are speaking for the nation. I am not a party to any individual's opinion. I do not belong to Mr. A or Mr. X. If anybody says I am against this Government, which government does he mean? A government is a government of the people and for the people.

Therefore, the Kanu party must reorganize itself, otherwise it will face a difficult time. Mr. Speaker, you being a wise leader, a leader of us Members when we are in this Chamber. you know— We have a saying in Kikamba that you do not store the eyes of a foreigner but you store the goods. You cannot take the eyes of a foreigner and put them away somewhere and expect him to see.

Mr. Speaker, we can see what is happening. We are members of one party. The members of KPU although they are few, they are organized. We are not. Therefore, if you want this Government to stand, we must be organized. Let us organize ourselves. There are these big fishes who are seeking power and these are the people who spoil things. They are the Ministers, the entire Cabinet of this country. Do these Cabinet Ministers have the welfare of this country at heart? Do they really want the security of this country? That is why I say that Kanu as a party, as the ruling party, must get itself organized. I am astonished to see some of the Cabinet Ministers, the ones at the top becoming youth-wingers for organizing something which has been passed. This is something which is happening, even right now and yet they say, "Oh!", when they are told about this. A Cabinet Minister who is the leader of this Government is doing this.

..... (Inaudible.)
Mr. Speaker, I did not see him yesterday. He is perfectly all right, but there are others who are outside this House now, who are trying to organize things about the meeting that took place on Monday last.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I think that the Kanu Government, the Kanu party should get itself organized so that we rule this country peacefully.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kase): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I thought some time ago you drew the attention of hon. Members to the fact that this is not really the right place to discuss party affairs. I wonder, therefore, whether it is in order for the hon. Members to continue doing so?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I could not quite hear you, I am afraid, Mr. Kase.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kase): Mr. Speaker, I remember once you sent round a circular to hon. Members, if my memory serves me right, to say that this House is not really the best place to discuss party matters and party problems. I wonder if it is in order that hon. Members, from now on, stop talking about these things so that we can continue on something different?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kase is making an important point which has been running through my mind. I confirm what I have said on previous occasions, that, in the ordinary way, internal matters of a party are not really the concern of this House, which is concerned with national and not party affairs.

However, on this occasion, it is difficult to disassociate problems of parties from this very important issue of primary elections which has been brought forward, very rightly, by the President in his speech. We know that the necessity of primary elections, or otherwise, must be related to the desire of the Members of a party to be associated in the elections of their candidates. So, I think, it is in order in this debate for hon. Members to refer to party difficulties. However, I do suggest that they keep them as impersonal as they possibly can.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to make a few observations on the important speech of the President. It is a very welcome idea by every voter, every citizen in this country, that today, because of the confusion and lack of direction in the political party, that the people who want to elect representatives to this House should have a say in deciding who should go forward in the primary election in a given constituency for a given party. This, Sir, should not be tied at all to political party membership but to political party supporters because, Sir, today there is great apathy towards parties, very great apathy in various areas towards Kanu, although the people generally support the Government and the Kanu party.

Therefore, Sir, the idea of registered political party members should be quashed from the Bill when the Bill comes to this House. I am not trying to predict the contents of the Bill, Sir, but to all intents and purposes from what I know, they want to tie it down to political party membership. That, Sir, has already been rejected by the public outside.

My second point, Sir, is on the question of economic development. The development of this country today, Sir, is being directed to certain centres and other centres have no development at all. This, Sir, is the reason for the apathy which has been created towards Kanu and the Kanu Government. For instance, when you go to the Western Province, there is no major economic development taking place there, or any project of any magnitude there.

Sir, in a speech some four years ago in this House, the Minister for Economic Development made it very clear that by 1970 the paper and pulp factory at Broderick Falls would be in operation. Today, Sir, even the site has not been chosen. Therefore, Sir, the paper project which is still lying in the Ministries and in the minds of the Ministers, and in the mind of the Government, is not the sort of thing which this country wants.

When my colleagues and I from the Western Province go to fight on the Kanu ticket we will find that it is going to be a very tough fight. I can say this. We are going to have a battle because the Government has neglected the Western Province. I say this with all freedom, and hakuna kitu Busia sawasawa.

Another point, Sir, which I would like to mention is about the question of unemployment. Today, Sir, millions and millions of school leavers are walking the streets. The children you see in the gallery here, the children who were hanging around yesterday when the President was opening the Inter-Continental Hotel, they are the unemployed in Nairobi. Today, when these children come to Nairobi to look for work—and Nairobi is the only centre of major employment in the country—they are arrested and put into jail, or sent back as vagrants.

An hon. Member: You passed a law here.

Mr. Muliro: I opposed the law but I was in the minority. The Law of Vagrants as it affects unemployment, many people feel this should be looked into. We were assured in this House that this law if it became very stringent, we would see how to re-apply it, but the way in which it is now being applied Sir—it is being applied indiscriminately. I find this is something which should be looked into. The question of educated masses being unemployed is a very big threat to the stability and the economy of this country. One finds university graduates—when we want educated manpower—loitering on the streets of Nairobi, and we are told that we do not have the manpower to run Kenya. We have the manpower and unless these people are given the chance, and the opportunity of learning the job they are not going to get anywhere. I do not think there is any need for the peace corps here. The peace corps take employment from our local people. Our local people who have their Higher School Certificate do not have any work and yet the peace corps who do not even have the knowledge to teach are in our high schools, and the results in our high schools today are not very commendable. Mr. Speaker, this is something which the Government should examine.

Sometimes the technical experts become technical misadvisors. Sir, what we want in this country and what we do not want in this country is known by our youngsters from our own universities. I have known of university graduates in various Ministries, being denied jobs for old, old Europeans who do not contribute anything, and they are called technical experts. This, Sir, is not the right way to go about things. Today, we have organizations like my own organization—the Maize and Produce Board—where we have no advisors but we are doing a very good job. We have plenty of maize to feed the country. Even when some people get hectic about lack of rain, we have sufficient maize in storage. We are not doing this through technical experts, with old brains and rusty minds.

Mr. Speaker, I feel our Government should use our local manpower. If we have, in any given Ministry, some of these experts let them be told that we are giving them so many months to train somebody to do their job and then they will go. If the technical expert does not improve, then he is given his pay and then they will always come and say that man is not yet up to the standard. But if he is given the task of training that man in six months and he has not done so then he should go back. We receive technical aid and the technical aid today is given with a lot of strings. For instance, there is the Nordic aid, we have German aid, they bring Germans here to consume money and it is as if you say you have a ngombe and I want you to give me a ngombe so that my child can have milk, and then the one who gives you a ngombe says that he will give you this ngombe for you to look after it provided my child can come and drink the milk. That logic, Mr. Speaker, is a very good and very interesting logic. If we borrow money from outside to invest in this country it must be in order to create employment for our own children and not to create unemployment and employ more people from outside. This, Mr. Speaker, is one of the failings of our Government. The sooner we have the general election and some of them are removed, then the better it will be for this country.

With these remarks I beg to support.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I intend to join my colleagues in congratulating the President for taking time to address Parliament this year.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, during my absence Mr. Muniyasia made some allegations, but he is going to lay on the Table a paper which he says opposes primary elections. Can he lay it on the Table now because it is 4 o'clock?

Hon. Members: What is it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you have it, Mr. Kariuki, I would be very glad for Mr. Muniyasia to lay it on the Table. Do you have the paper there? What happened was, Mr. Kariuki, that I told him that he could not refer to this paper unless he was prepared to lay it on the Table. As he had not got it with him, I did not allow him to talk about it anymore. I think the best thing to do is to forget about it, unless some other Member wishes to talk about it and then he can lay it on the Table.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will you give me a few minutes because of the interruption by the Member?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, you can start from now.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, I have said that I am thankful to the President for his Presidential Address and that he took the time to give it to the nation. I would also thank him for having been a symbol for stability, progress and peace in this country.

Mr. Speaker, the President spoke of rural development. He said that our planning system will be directed towards making sure that our rural areas are developed. We have now been in this Government for six years and we should have seen a sign of that particular development. I know that attempts are being made to develop rural areas, but what we see there is donations from place to place, and these donations, in the majority of cases, are not enough. In the majority of cases self-help schemes have started and then, because the people do not have enough money, they stagnate in the end.

The most important thing I would like to say about rural development here is the question of primary schools which have been started through self-help. In this country today we find that many of these schools are being closed because there is no money to pay the teachers; because there are no books to be supplied to these schools; because the children cannot pay the fees because the community donated all they had. Some people have donated their ngombes and so on and now they just cannot afford to pay the fees. The people who run these self-help schemes continue collecting ngombes and cows from people around there to keep the teacher and to make sure that these schools are running. If there is this sort of confusion and Government is still saying that they are going to develop rural areas, then who are they going to use for developing it? I think it is the local people that should develop the areas themselves; Government can only guide them through advice and through financial assistance. However, this is far from being seen.

To give you an example, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have launched in this country rural dairy development and we have created a lot of collection centres where milk from African farms is collected and then ghee is made and this ghee is collected by the Kenya Co-operative Creameries. Recently, in the Dairy Board, we advised the executive committee to inquire into this to reduce finances for this development, to remove staff and to dismantle, if necessary, all this machinery for getting the African milk to Nairobi and to join the Kenya Co-operative Creameries and so on. If this is the trend, then how are we going to develop our rural areas? Just because the U.N.I.C.E.F. money has ended, we have no other sources from which to get the money so that we can develop the rural areas milk and we now have to stop everything and even to dismiss staff.

This means that before we talk about what we want to do we should at least look back to what we have done in the past two or three or four years and see where we have made progress and where we are failing, so that we can say in specific terms what definite projects we are going to improve.

Mr. Speaker, this question of loans which the President spoke about for improving commercial business. This is all well and good, but what happens if a person has three wives, then he says that one wife is silly, the other one is foolish and the last one who he chooses to be the best as she is clean, he provides her with clothes and everything? The other two will leave him and will run away. Mr. Speaker, this is to say that if you come to Nairobi here you will see the kind of African who are now developing and the business which is booming, and all the rest are left out. All these people who are left out are not being given any opportunity or encouragement and I think they will dismiss themselves from Kenya and will go to Uganda and Tanzania. We should try to improve everybody; we should try to balance these loans for business; we should make sure that all the communities are treated properly. These loans must be given to all the communities that form Kenya; all the tribes want to benefit. I would not like to walk from bar to bar, from shop to shop, from market to market and only find one tribe and you never see the faces of all the other tribes, as if they are not going to vote in the General Election. We will have to make sure that the distribution of benefits—whether it is a loan, whether it is a house that is to be purchased, whether it is employment—is equal. Without this there is no hope for by-elections or primaries. You can talk about primaries but they will not help; primaries will only allow more corruption.

Mr. Speaker, if we say that we will appoint somebody to come as a Kanu candidate, what about in Kanu A and B? Somebody with money will give five candidates money to fight a single member he does not want. How will you avoid this money? How will you stop this money from being used? Whatever machinery you use, if somebody does not want you and he is a financial giant, he will use it against you, whatever primary you may bring. Moreover, these primaries are going to vote in people who are not Kanu and who are not KPU, because you will have to tell them why they are not given loans, why their maize is not sold for proper prices, why cotton is not making its proper price. You will have to explain before you have these people to vote for you in the primaries. This will mean that no Government will be formed by any party; this will be a party-less candidate.

An hon. Member: Are you opposing the primaries.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I am not opposing the primaries, but I am saying we must clean our house. Before we pretend that we have done something good, let us watch what we are trying to do.

On this question of primaries, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we need an inquiry or a referendum to make sure the procedure of primaries. If we are going to dump the primaries on the people we are going to elect the people we do not know, the people whose loyalty is not definite.

An hon. Member: Producing your party card is not necessary.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: As an hon. Member has just said, Mr. Speaker, the producing of your party card is not necessary. If you do not produce a party card, then which party do you belong to? Before you vote for your candidate, you want to make sure that he is the person you want.

There are many, many things that we need to do. We want to leave it to the people, but we do not want to kill it. We must tell them these things when we are still leading and make sure that what we are producing will be something that will save the country. You cannot leave everything for your child to learn, you must direct him. You cannot say that you leave everything for the children. You have to make sure that you produce a blueprint of a concrete and tangible nature which somebody will use to benefit you as the man who wants it to be done.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, another point I want to make is this question of rural development again. There is something which I had just forgotten. The co-operatives that are going to direct our products from agriculture, have also got to be organized. What is now preventing us from getting proper markets for our crops, is the failure of the co-operatives. The co-operative officers there, and the money which they make, is not seen by the members of these co-operatives. This is the basis of our development in rural areas because we cannot compete with a single large-scale European farmer, even if it is an entire district, because in some of these districts there are five European large-scale farmers who will get so much milk and if you want to compete with him you must organize the people in the co-operatives. Therefore, we must make sure that these co-operatives are better organized so that they can compete. However, if they are not better organized we are just running out of time and we are not going to help the situation any more.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is understandable that our Government should do something about school-leavers, particularly school-leavers with School Certificates. It is very shameful to see someone who has just passed the School Certificate and he tells you that he has been in a certain street for the last six months as he has nowhere to go and he has no job and so he is going to go back home to the rural area. This is very shameful indeed. We people who lead this country should make sure that we provide something for them. When I moved a Motion on this one, I said that apart from teaching the academic subjects which we would like our children to know, we should teach technical and vocational subjects so that when a person has completed School Certificate he can go to an office and say that he has done such things as typing and carpentry and he is interested in them. This person can then be considered if he appears in an office and asks for work because he is asked what he has done and he is asked if he passed his examination and what job he wants and he can answer, "Any job", and this is a person who has had 12 years of education. This is very shameful indeed. We must get our education system well sorted out so that we do not find ourselves in trouble.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, still to emphasize this question of crops, I have here the case of a person who comes from a place where they do not have a cash crop of a permanent nature, a crop like maize, potatoes, groundnuts, cotton or vegetables. When are we to get better prices for these crops so that we can develop them extensively and encourage our people to benefit from them? In places like the Coast, Nyanza, North-Eastern Province and some other places, you do not get cash crops which can benefit the Kisii, the Central Province chaps and other chaps from different parts of the country. Now, those places which can only produce potatoes, maize, groundnuts and cotton, as well as vegetables, where can we get markets for these crops to benefit the people?

With those few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I wish to support.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am thankful to you for having given me this wonderful opportunity so that I can join my friends in congratulating His Excellency the President in his Presidential Speech.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to confine myself on the social side only of the life of our people. Sir, if you were to visit the home of any one of us here, you would be able to see who carries something when he goes to his home. You will see that immediately he arrives at home, his wife jumps up, his children go to meet him, the dogs, the cats, the kukus and everybody go to greet this gentleman. They do this because he has something with which to feed the family. But Sir, when you get to a certain home and you see that the mother and children are running away from the father, then you will immediately understand that the father in this family does not take anything with him to his home. That would be the reason why everybody runs away from him.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is true that any hungry family is never happy or peaceful. Perhaps this might have been the reason why the Attorney-General did not wish to reveal the number of cases where people have applied for divorces. This is because the number is too big. One reason being that there is poverty in the home, the husband has nothing to feed the wife on, and therefore, the wife does not stay at home. She either goes to her brother, or her father, or to any of her relatives. She stays there for some time, and when she comes back, the husband asks her: "Where have you been?" "Well, you know there is nothing to eat in the home, and there is no reason why I should stay here to die", she replies. A quarrel develops as a result.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have had assurance from the Government time and time again that all Government's attention will be drawn towards the rural areas. This has lifted the hopes of people in some areas, but we have nothing in others. So the people living in such areas are in a famine situation and live below the subsistence level. When they try to go to the towns to seek employment, they meet the police who arrest and charge them with vagrancy, and so they go back to the land. But the land is unproductive. The drought in the country just now is an example of unproductivity.

Sir, if the Government were to develop that big irrigation scheme they talked about in the Tana River area, for example, which could accommodate about 75,000 families, much of the unemployment problem that is now facing the country would have been solved, but this work is not forthcoming and it is not known when it might start.

An hon. Member: Is it a Pokomo problem?

Mr. Komora: Not necessarily, Sir. I was surprised, the other day when I read some minutes of the Coast Provincial Agricultural Board, to find that it was stated in the minutes that the Wapokomo do not want that irrigation scheme to go on. This is very false, Sir, because in the last cotton-growing season, there were 175 names of people on the waiting list, wanting plots in the scheme. They were Pokomo names on the list, but they could not be accommodated in the scheme. This year there are 410 names on the waiting list and I am surprised to hear that the Wapokomo or the Tana River people do not want that scheme to go on; that it is going on because it was there. It might be that the Government wants to send that scheme elsewhere. Let them do so because there is nobody who can stop the Government from doing so. But if we as a Government have to develop the rural areas, I should think that Tana River should receive first priority.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am a nationalist and I am speaking as a national Member. I have only mentioned Tana River as an example, but I know the problems or some of the problems which are being faced by the Tana River people just now, might be the same people of Teso or those of Murang'a or elsewhere. Therefore, I should not be accused of not being a national Member. I am speaking as a national Member. I am speaking in a national institution and there is no room here for tribalism and individualism.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, my friend the hon. Mbogoh tells me that I am a nominated Member.

Hon. Members: Yes. You are.

Mr. Komora: So what? Am I a second class Member of Parliament in the Chamber?

Hon. Members: Yes! Yes!

Mr. Komora: Don't I enjoy the same rights that they do enjoy?

An hon. Member: No!

Mr. Komora: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, perhaps I may wish to have a clarification of this point, because if I am not entitled to enjoy the facilities that the elected Members are entitled to, then there is no point of my being here. I might as well stay at home and rot like my friends.

Hon. Members: We said that a long time ago.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Mengo: On a point of order Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. I think the hon. Member who is trying to oppose us here is abusing the House and not individual Members.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Sorry, I did not understand your point of order but I don't think it will matter.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Deputy Speaker, just now our county councils cannot be able to employ persons because it was revealed yesterday by the Assistant Minister for Local Government that the county councils are about to be bankrupt and the reasons were said yesterday.

I understand that the Teachers' Service Commission, for instance, is the employer of teachers, but the county councils provide salaries to teachers, and again, Sir, as a result of the Salaries Review Commission there was additional money needed to meet salary increases, and this has become a burden to the county councils. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Government should take immediate action to release the £1½ million to the county councils so that we can at least get relief on the aspect of finance, especially in the educational field.

With these few observations, Sir, I wish to shut up.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! You can say that to yourself but you should not say that in Parliament.

Mr. Lawi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I rise to associate myself with the other hon. Members who have thanked His Excellency the President for his speech outlining the Government's policy towards the development that will take place in the year to come. In his speech he talked of rural areas' development. We know that there are some rural areas in this country which are already developed and that there are others which are as they used to be during the colonial régime. I know this is not the fault of our Government but is the fault of the Colonial Government.

The idle time is gone—the time when the Colonial Government did not think of the people of this country. I am convinced that it is high time the rural areas, like the districts of the former Northern Province, the districts of Turkana and West Pokot have a plan which in itself thinks of these areas, what these people specifically require. I know in some districts people have to travel over 50 miles to get water, 60 and even 100 miles. Development has to cover such things. Is it that we should have water for the animals first or hospitals? So, Sir, when the question of development enters the rural areas, it has to consider each district, basing the consideration on immediate needs because this is what was lacking before. This is what should be considered.

I find there is one issue, which is a burning one, in this country. This is the method of assessing graduated personal tax. Graduated personal tax assessment for salary earners is very simple—it is just a laid-down formula—but assessing graduated personal tax for people who own a number of trees, or produce bananas, is not easy. You find that a person, for the simple reason that he owns three trees, he has a few bananas, is assessed at a figure which does not correspond to his income. No one cares to find out how many banana trees he has and how many bananas he sells in that year, to find out what goes into his pocket. This is lacking. For those who earn salaries, it is simple because you can easily say Sh. 4 or Sh. 6 or even Sh. 10 per month. So the Government must try to employ a better method which will not leave people with a feeling of frustration. We must work this out with the councils, we must work and reason out things together.

Now, Sir, there is another question here. You find that people travelling in buses are often taken off the buses and asked to produce their tax receipts. It is always good to take the taxes within a location but not on the main roads of the country. Some people are busy coming to Nairobi to do their jobs, there are those who are coming to Nairobi to look for employment, others who are called for interviews here, and these people do not have the time to explain to the collectors where they come from. I do not object to tax being collected or tax receipts being checked within a location, but it is not a good thing to do this along the main roads of the Republic. Along these main roads people must be free to move. It is a very difficult thing to identify yourself to a person who does not know you. We must point out the problems of the people. We are not agitating, we are merely saying what is happening. I think this is a right thing to do provided you do it in the right way.

I want to come now to the question of the Harambee secondary schools. The public of this country must be thanked for initiating and agreeing to contribute to the building of Harambee secondary schools; but sometimes there are adverse results in this field. After a Harambee secondary school has been built, the fees go up to Sh. 800 or Sh. 900. What should be done to alleviate the situation is this. Once a Harambee secondary school has been built, then the Government should take it over immediately because the poor people cannot afford to pay Sh. 900, which is the fee required before they can send their children to school. I know that in Government schools the highest fee is Sh. 300. Those who go to national schools get bursaries, but those who go to Harambee secondary schools have to get their parents to pay the fees. That is why I say these Harambee secondary schools must be aided in a big way so that we can get [Mr. Lawi] many people deriving benefit from them. If we leave them as they are, to have the parents paying for the salaries of the teachers, the maintenance of the schools, the fees, then the result will not be good in the end.

Although other Members have talked about employment in this country, Sir, I would also like to give my views. Employment in this country is a very burning issue. Employment is for two categories of people: those who have left school and those who did not go to school but can work very well in building, in construction. In Nairobi there is a lot of building construction going on. People who come from other districts find it difficult to get jobs in Nairobi. I do not know what the Minister for Labour is doing to get them jobs. I know of a person who was telling me that he could always see, everywhere, boards saying, "No vacancy" and yet the next day he hears that many people are being employed in such places. What is happening? What machinery is being used? You see, Sir, we must be frank with our people and we must help them. Those who are ready to work and those who are willing must have these chances.

Another point, the last one, is about animal diseases. Animal diseases in this country are considerable. We have heard that the grade cattle which our people had have died. The hon. Members have been asking the Minister to consider writing-off the loans for such animals which have died. Now, if the animals on the farms are dying, what about the animals on the open ranches? What chance do they have? So, the Minister for Agriculture, with all his experts, should work very hard to find a way to eradicate these diseases. We like animals, we do not want to be without them in this country. So it is high time the Minister worked hard to see that something is done. If this did not happen before, why does it happen now? Are we getting foreign animals from some place where they are diseased? Why should this happen?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as a representative, and all of us are representatives of our people, we come here and say what is going wrong here and there. It is up to the Government to see that things are rectified quickly. Government knows which things they are being reminded about every now and then. I know that the Government has done something but our appeal is for the Government to do more because more is required. Once a family increases, Sir, you must get more spoons, you have to buy more bedding and everything else that is required in a house.

After the census the Government will see that our number has increased. So more development is required now.

Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this year's Presidential Address is most welcome, just as we always welcome such speeches every year.

The President, in delivering his address, referred to agricultural developments. I must warn that the present agricultural development is actually moving very slowly because of the complications which are now a big headache to the Ministry of Agriculture, the Agricultural Development Corporation and the Agriculture Finance Corporation. The other day, here, we passed the Agriculture Finance Corporation Act. This had one main aim, to provide finances to the would-be farmers to enable them to develop agriculture. But when the farmers are trying to go out for large-scale farms, they find that the Agricultural Development Corporation speaks as the landlord. Now, farmers taking land from the Agricultural Development Corporation cannot get loans from the Agriculture Finance Corporation. Sir, that is one of the ways of hampering Africans from carrying on with agricultural development. This is a fact and all the material facts can be brought to this House to the great shame of the Minister for Agriculture.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I feel that when we pass an Act of Parliament it must be implemented, and implemented without bias or favour. Therefore, if we have to organize an agricultural revolution, we must be able to support those who are trying to go into farming and those who are already in farming, and utilize the Government's resources of finance to be able to develop African farming.

The other thing is this. The President touched on the vagrants, he touched on the robbers and robbery with violence. I wholly support the sentiments in the President's speech about robbers and robbery with violence and such other crimes and criminals. Honestly we want a clear conscience; but, at the same time, who commits the greater crime: a man who robs with violence or the man who deliberately defrauds or tries to misuse or even steal public or State funds? Sir, both are dangerous elements to our society and, therefore, if we have to cut off or curb crime, then corruption is the worst crime in a given society. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, those people found corruptible and committing such crimes in a public service or in other services must be treated as people who are robbing with violence because they are denying the society of the finances to develop social welfare, economic welfare and other welfares of the people. Therefore, I appeal to the President and the public to treat those people without mercy, with ruthlessness.

The President, also, touched on the welfare of the people, the social welfare. It must be understood—despite the fact that Ministers do not worry about it because there is only one year to go before the next election and some of them have been in this House for seven years—that unemployment is on the increase. Last year 17,000 youngsters sat for the school certificate, and only 5,000 of these have been found places, given training or jobs. Sir, where are the remaining 12,000? Those who sat for the Kenya Junior Secondary Examination—None of the Members here can tell me that 5,000 of them are settled anywhere. Those who sat the Kenya Preliminary Examination, the so-called Certificate of Primary Education, are also out now. It seems as if in two years' time we will be having a population of school leavers of about 100,000 who are jobless. This is going to be a terrible menace to society and not one person here can tell me that he has any idea of handling crime and other evils that will be committed by those youngsters because of lack of settlement. Sir, we sit in this House using the slogan over there, "For the welfare of society and the just government of men." Yet, at the same time, we are conscious of the handicaps these youngsters are now facing, and are going to continue facing and suffering. There might be 20,000 sitting for school certificate. University places are scarce. The other day I was trying to speak to the bank managers, the Pyrethrum Board in my area, and other institutions to try to find employment for students who passed with Division II, but all was in vain. This was Division II. If Division II just cannot have jobs, if they cannot get training facilities, what do you imagine Division III and such others will do? Those are the people we are going to treat tomorrow as part of an outcast society of this nation. Sir, every year I have said in this House that we must look for crash programmes, even if it means regimentation, so that we mobilize the young people and the unemployed into regimented organizations. I suggested here three years ago that we form the nation-builders brigade. When I said it some Members started shouting, "Communistic". Mr. Deputy Speaker, HANSARD will prove me right. It is easy to call a thing communistic, socialistic or capitalist but when a situation erupts, then there is no question of referring to slogans any more. Therefore, if we are here for the welfare of society, let us look for a system that will be able to help us to solve the problem. I hope that the Ministers will even try to ask Members for ways and means and utilize them on councils and committees which can plan such institutions. There is a lot to be done, Sir, but brains are being wasted.

The President touched on African Socialism. To be able to realize African brotherhood we must be conscious of the activities of the enemies of African brotherhood. Radio Johannesburg has been broadcasting daily that they have now advanced to political infiltration in the African independent states and they have named some nations, and they say, "Others we cannot reveal at this time, we cannot disclose them." Let them be named and known, because they are able to infiltrate into various nations. I wonder if ours is one?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Minister appears to be worried about it—in any case he is the Minister for Information.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, South Africa today is organizing a campaign to destroy the image of free Africa. The guerilla war which is going on in colonial countries today, Angola, Mozambique and Rhodesia, is being blocked by South Africa. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are an independent nation and we may laugh at those who are down there where coups are going on, Nigeria, Ghana and everywhere; but, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this Government must be able to be resolute to be able to curb all evidence of infiltration from South Africa in this nation, be they in the Government or outside the Government. Agents, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, have various faces and we must be conscious of this if we are true politicians, nationalists and defenders of our Constitution.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want to dwell on politics because the Ministers appear to be more versed; but one day, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, they will find all their degrees, which they received from colleges, useless because they cannot talk to the country. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I know very well that we have been trying to advance our international outlook and to try and create an image which is useful for Kenya. The other day, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, some Ministers started running out of Kenya and going to the United States and so on, and they go and provoke the Afro-Americans, the Negroes, warning them not to try and think of coming back to Africa. Who sent them?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when any of our Ministers speaks in another country he implies collective responsibility. If that is not so, let the Minister for Information tell me now that this is not so. Mr. Deputy Speaker, they go out and try to represent this country on things which are not necessary instead of talking economics.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, my time has run out and I beg to support the President's Speech.

Mr. Lubembe: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for giving me this opportunity.

I see only one Minister is here, the Minister for "Misinformation," who is misleading the House. The other day he misinformed us about Gem, and now he is shouting all the time.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Member for Starehe in order in what he is insinuating against me?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Lubembe, I know you like to be funny, but I do not think this is the way to do it. Every hon. Member has the right to be addressed politely according to his proper title, and the title of the Minister is the Minister for Information and Broadcasting, so please do not do it again. This time we will let it go but please do not do it again.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was not being funny. I was not happy when the Minister told us people had resigned from KPU in Gem and then we lost the seat. This was broadcast on many occasions. Was that not misinforming the country?

Now Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to say a few words. The country now is waiting to see what we are going to do. I would say that the most serious problem is about Africanization. It is not only in employment, but even in farming, even in business and in everything and I think we have to work hard, and our Government must be firm on this. If we are to develop the rural areas as we say, and we want Africans to farm, then we want our farmers to be very devoted to their jobs. Also, as a Government, we must encourage Africans who have gone into business. For example, the Africans are now coming into farming and we have only people who are not Africans distributing machinery for farming, with the exception of one company in Kenya which is owned by Africans. The Ministry of Agriculture should encourage this African company which distributes the machinery; in fact, it should buy from this company so that it distributes money and makes these people financially strong so that those who have more cannot finish them.

Africanization is not a small thing. This question of taking advisors for everything is difficult. Those advisors are not experts on our problems.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

They are only experts on their own problems, and when they come and say they want to advise us, Mr. Speaker, they are advising us on what they want us to do. If we push very hard they will not be happy. If we tell these advisors that we do not want them to stay long they will not be happy. It is like one story I know where somebody went and borrowed a suit from a friend of his and went to a dance. When he arrived at the dance he found the friend who had lent him the suit was also there. This man came with a nice suit and a nice girl to dance with and so on, and the other man felt very jealous, and when he started dancing the owner of the suit went up to him and asked him not to dance very hard and spoil the suit. This is what is going to happen if we import people to advise us about our administration. If we push very hard they will tell us we are spoiling their suits. We must be very careful on this, Mr. Speaker, and it must not just be something we play with.

Another point which I would like to raise is the question of distribution of buildings or houses in Kenya, especially in the big towns. We have left this in the hands of the land estate agents who are powerful and also in the hands of foreigners. It is my feeling, Mr. Speaker, that many Members here find great difficulty in obtaining a flat to live in. Flats are advertised but when you go you will find it difficult to get that flat given to you. If you scrutinize the conditions you find them to be discriminatory. So, Mr. Speaker, I think the Ministry of Housing should try to take over the question of housing and give it to a sort of Statutory Board as we have done with other things in the country, where we have distribution being done by Government machinery. If we leave people who want to obtain these houses to be given to those who feel will be good to them, it will be very hard to have this properly done.

Mr. Speaker, I would say that I am glad the city council is helping most of the hon. Members here, as some of them have council houses despite their coming from outside Nairobi. These Members are being given help by the city council. I would also appeal to the city council to see that rents for old houses—even if they are not allocated to hon. Members—are assessed so that rents are not the same as they were at the time the houses were built. For example, Ziواني, Shauri Moyo, Kaloleni and so on, where the houses have paid for themselves and the city council does not owe anybody any money on these houses. It is my suggestion that the rent in Shauri Moyo, Ziواني and Kaloleni should be reduced because the houses have been paid for. Some people have been living there for 15 years or 18 years and they have been paying rent regularly. They should be given some sort of recognition for having paid a lot of money to the city council which has enabled the city council to build more and more houses, although we still need more money to build more houses. I feel that the city council should reduce the rent on these particular estates so that the people who have been staying there should pay a reasonable rent.

I would also like to mention something, Mr. Speaker, about corruption which is always being talked about. We have read of cases being withdrawn in court on the question of corruption. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that if we want to stamp out corruption, once a case is taken to court I think the Attorney-General must not allow such cases to be withdrawn. Let the man himself prove that he was not guilty. When we withdraw them, some people start suspecting that the Government does not want to fight corruption. If we let the person win the case nobody will—we should leave the whole question to the magistrates and the judges and let them decide. But knowing now serious the question of corruption is, I feel it is not a very sensible idea. I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, in order to end this question of allegations of corruption against our Government, our Government should appoint a commission of inquiry like the one which was appointed when it was alleged that a certain Minister had stolen maize and so on. We should have an independent inquiry into this corruption and these things should be brought out so that the people will know exactly what is happening.

We have spoken about rural development, Mr. Speaker. It is my belief that rural development should be encouraged more. Where we have markets and so on we should have loans for them. The people should be encouraged to have some development in the villages. Let them have shops in the villages, properly built and they should be given loans so that people will be encouraged to take more interest in co-operatives in rural areas. You find that it is very far from where the people live to the markets.

I would also suggest, Mr. Speaker, that the system of income tax should be revised. We know we have some people who are earning more and some who are earning less. It is my feeling that the people who pay surtax later should be removed. The people who are known to be earning more should be taxed properly, and pay then and there instead of saying they will be taxed later.

Coming to the question of employment, Mr. Speaker. I think the trouble over employment and many other matters is because in the Ministry of Labour we have a problem in that at the moment we do not have somebody who really understands the problem of labour. The Minister does not understand this properly. The Permanent Secretary does not know anything about it, and he is at the same time the Labour Commissioner. A long time ago we had a Labour Commissioner and now the Permanent Secretary has taken upon himself the post of Labour Commissioner. This is why we have problems. Even in settling disputes there is delay, delay and still more delay, and we have trouble between the employers and the workers. It is my sincere and genuine suggestion that in view of the fact that the Permanent Secretary who is there is not a labour man, we should have a Labour Commissioner to take over this matter so that we do not have these problems.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Onsando: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to associate myself with those who have paid tribute to the Speech of His Excellency.

I would like to say from the offset that I was very grateful to hear that we are going to have a revised Development Plan. I would like to suggest to the Government that if this is still with the printers they should realize that they should include all areas and all fields. What we have had in the past is a Development Plan for only selected areas and in certain fields. We should have development not only of roads, or hospitals or schools in certain areas, but we should initiate development projects covering all fields. We feel that the urban areas have had enough development and those of us who come from the rural areas would like to see this Plan cover the areas we represent.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one other thing which was touched on, and I feel I should like to ask the Government to elaborate on it, is the question of land settlement. We know we have plenty of land in Kenya, but we appear to have come to a standstill as there are very few settlement schemes that are being started now. I come from a very thickly populated area, the Kisii are sitting on top of each other, and we are not being settled. We have been told time and again that there will be Harambee settlement schemes, but these have not come about. For the last one year there have been no Kisii being settled. The portion of the land purchased in the Kisii District has all been settled. It is my sincere request to the Government that they should look not only at the Kisii, because I know of some tribes in Kenya whose areas are also thickly populated. We should be able to settle our people anywhere in Kenya and the Government should buy more land to settle the landless.

One thing I would like to remind that particular Ministry about, Mr. Speaker, is that we find there are genuine landless people, and there are squatters. We do appreciate the fact that there are squatters and they should be given priority on the farms which have been purchased. There is also a second group of people who are landless, and those are the people who have voluntarily given their land for common purposes. In my area such people have not been considered for settlement schemes. I see there is only one Minister here and I hope he will convey this to his colleague, that these people who have given their land for schools, health centres, on Harambee basis should be given priority in settlement schemes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the next point I would like to make is concerning water. We know in Kenya there are arid areas where water is very scarce, and there are also areas like the Kisii District and others which have plenty of water but, the land is very hilly and the water is not close enough. If you go to the water development section you find that emphasis for water development is only laid on a certain section of the country; and worse still, Mr. Speaker, you find that the Government has recruited advisors or engineers, but these people are not in the field but are sitting at their desk doing administrative work and I feel this is very shameful and a waste of manpower that people who are recruited to do engineering work and field work and advise on water projects are made to sit in the office and keep on approving leave and such like things. This is a waste of money and also, I think, a waste of manpower.

Another thing which I would like to say here, Mr. Speaker, is that His Excellency mentioned something about registration of land. I have noticed that in the field we have two teams.

First of all you have the land adjudication officers who come and do all the work, the aerial photography and everything, and then comes the Survey of Kenya—these people come from the same Ministry, Mr. Speaker. I feel this is duplication of work and one group can complete this. It is now seven years since this was promised, that the land registration would be completed very soon. In the Kisii District, up to now we have not had title deeds for our land and yet we are told the Government is doing its best to see that every piece of land is registered. I would request the Ministry concerned to see that this is speeded up and people receive their title deeds. We are delaying development. Our traders, our farmers, have no security to offer to the commercial banks in order to receive money on loan.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, His Excellency also mentioned something about the diversification of crops. It is good to talk of this, but the Ministry of Agriculture, I think, has failed to come out with a policy on cash crops. I will take coffee for an example. Coffee has a lot of taxation and now people have lost interest in growing coffee because the Government takes an export tax, the societies take a commission, the unions take a commission, and to spray the coffee farms is very expensive. What the farmer actually receives is very little. As a result many coffee growers have neglected their farms and the farms have turned to bush. I think the Government should come out and help such coffee growers in a way and subsidize even spraying. The poor farmer has to pay for spraying and so on. The production costs are so high that people have lost interest in growing coffee. I would request the Government to see that these people are helped. We now talk of over-production of wheat, but if we are over-produced in wheat it will mean that the wheat-growers will not be interested in growing wheat. I think the Government should find a market for our agricultural crops.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I would like to say—which has been said by one hon. Member here—is the question of education. His Excellency did not mention a lot on education and I feel the Government should be serious about education. I fail to understand, at this stage of our development, why we should keep on talking of high-cost schools. We are all Kenyans and I do not see why we should have two types of schools, one for the rich and one for the poor. This is a very shameful act on the part of the Government and I think they should abolish these high-cost schools. We should all get education and it should all be equal to all. It means that the children from poor homes cannot go to Nairobi School, as this is taken to be a high-cost school. If our brothers or sons pass well in their Certificate of Primary Education Examinations they should go to any school in Kenya. Let us not have these two types of schools.

There is something else connected with education, and that is the lack of highly qualified teachers. We also have high school classes in some secondary schools where science subjects are taught, yet there are no science teachers and classes have been remaining without teachers and the Government says that such classes are running in such schools. I think the Government should be ashamed of this; that they can open a school and not staff it. The Teachers' Service Commission is also too slow in staffing the schools. Many of our secondary schools have run for the first term without teachers. This is a challenge to the Government to see that the schools are staffed in time.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say is that His Excellency the President announced the reduction of graduated personal tax from Sh. 48 to Sh. 24 for those earning less than Sh. 80 a month. This is not being carried out. You find that the district commissioners are telling the chiefs and sub-chiefs that everybody must pay Sh. 48. I think this is a wrong policy on the part of the Government; once directives are given people should be assessed and there should be assessment registers so that in each sub-location we know exactly who and who is paying Sh. 24 and who and who is paying Sh. 48. This happens in many districts where you find the administrative police, instead of keeping law and order, merely engaging themselves in collecting graduated personal tax. People travelling by bus have been so much inconvenienced by these askaris, and I think it is a shame on the Government that this has not been rectified.

The other point I would like to make, Mr. Speaker, is the question of health. The Ministry of Health has very poor planning because you find a small hospital which has about eight patients a day with three doctors, but at the big hospitals, like Kisii, with 350 patients a day, there are only two doctors. I think this is a shame on the part of the Government and it means that the Minister is not taking the trouble to know what the country needs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with those few remarks I beg to support.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, I am also supporting my colleagues who have congratulated His Excellency on his speech.

I want to start with the problem of unemployment in this country, Mr. Speaker. Although many Members have already spoken on this subject, I also feel that I should contribute, because even His Excellency himself stated in his statement that: "the greatest social problem confronting the Republic today is unemployment."

Here it appears that the President and the Cabinet are aware of this great social problem confronting the Republic, and many Members have spoken about it as one of the menaces to this country. None, however, have given suggestions as to how this problem can be solved, and I am here now to give some suggestions as to how this problem of unemployment can be solved.

The first proposal that I have, Mr. Speaker, is that I feel that this House should enact legislation to the effect that every person in this country who earns over Sh. 1,000 per month should employ a house servant or a shamba boy or an ayah. That, in itself, would reduce the amount of unemployment in this country.

We remember, Mr. Speaker, during the colonial days those people who were earning big salaries—mainly Europeans or Asians—whether they were bachelors or married people, they used to employ a shamba boy, a cook, a garden boy and an ayah; and that, in itself, was one way of solving the unemployment problem. However, soon after Uhuru we people who came into those positions of earning over Sh. 1,000, whether we were bachelors or married, did not do the same thing as those Europeans and Asians who were earning such salaries. It is my strong feeling that one way of solving unemployment in this country is introducing legislation to the effect that everyone who earns over Sh. 1,000 should employ a garden boy, a house servant or an ayah.

An hon. Member: Have you got one?

Mr. Omar: I have three for your information. I am doing this not because, Mr. Speaker, I have enough money with the small salary that I am getting, and with a lot of commitments, but I felt I should employ these three servants so that I reduce the unemployment.

I think that we, as leaders of this country, Mr. Speaker, and as legislators, and as people who are earning over Sh. 2,000 per month—and the Ministers Sh. 5,000 per month—should be the first people to employ at least two people each. I am sure that that would reduce unemployment.

We found that some Members even drive themselves from Nairobi to Mombasa and from Nairobi to Kisumu and they do not want even to employ a driver, and yet they are earning Sh. 2,000 a month and in addition to that they are getting attendance allowances, night allowances and so on. If we are really realistic in wanting to solve the unemployment problems we, ourselves, should be an example to others and enact legislation that all people who earn over Sh. 1,000 in Government or in the private sector, should be forced to employ other people. This is a proposal that I am giving to the Government if they want to be really realistic in solving the unemployment problem in the country.

The second thing, Mr. Speaker, is that I feel that the Government should establish State farms to grow cash crops so that on these farms those unemployed people could be employed and become productive. The crops that would be grown on these State farms could be sold and thereby we could get some money.

Another proposal I have, Mr. Speaker, is that I feel that some workers in different industries are overworking in that they work over eight or ten hours a day. In other industries they work even over 12 hours a day. My suggestion here is that we should introduce legislation here that people who work over 12 hours a day should be reduced to six hours a day so that more shifts could be created and by so doing more vacancies could be created and those unemployed people could be absorbed into industry.

Therefore, I have given three proposals to the Government for combating the unemployment problem in this country.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is about the development. In his speech, His Excellency stated that there was a project to develop the rural areas, but it is not only the rural areas which need development; even the urban areas—especially Mombasa Municipal Council—are also in need of development. The fact that 50 per cent of graduated personal tax from the Mombasa Municipal Council and the Nairobi City Council has been taken by the Central Government to be spent on development on rural areas, has affected these two local authorities in Mombasa and Nairobi. I have a feeling that the Minister for Local Government should review this Act because the Mombasa Municipal Council is already suffering from a lack of funds to make developments in some parts of the Mombasa Municipal Council. You find places like Likoni, Changamwe and Kisauni—in Kisauni there is not even a water supply and this is because the Municipal Council of Mombasa has not got sufficient funds. If this 50 per cent of the graduated personal tax was not sent to the Central Government here the money would remain there for the social developments needed in those areas. I hope the Minister for Local Government will take this matter very seriously and consider returning back the money taken from the Mombasa Municipal Council.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is about the loans given to the farmers and the traders in the Coast Province as a whole. Our people in the Coast Province have been complaining time and again that they are not getting loans from the Ministry of Agriculture and from the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. This is true, Mr. Speaker, simply because most of the coastal people have not got enough security to surrender to the Agricultural Finance Corporation and to the Ministry of Commerce through the Kenya National Trading Corporation. They have not got enough security simply because they have not got title-deeds for their land. Therefore, I would suggest that the land registration be imposed on the coast people because if it is left to the people themselves to decide that registration of land should go there, I am afraid they would not accept it. It should be imposed as it was done in the Taita District and some other parts of this country so that the people could get title-deeds which would enable them to get loans from the Agricultural Finance Corporation and from the Ministry of Commerce.

Mr. Speaker, this must be done as quickly as possible so that the coastal people can also feel that they are treated equally with other people from up-country here. At the moment there is a cry that these coast people are not treated the same as other people.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like it to be in the record that I join my colleagues in congratulating His Excellency the President on the speech he made at the State Opening of Parliament on the 20th of this month. I would say that this was one of the liveliest speeches His Excellency has ever delivered in this House.

If, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you allow me to quote, I would say:—

“In a House now sufficiently experienced, there should be fewer parochial attitudes, far less automatic condemnation, or baseless and sometimes marathon attacks by honourable Members—”

QUORUM

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I observe that there is not a Quorum in the House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are quite right. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Kamau.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying: "... attacks by honourable Members on the Government to which they are committed, by popular mandate, to support with loyalty and striving. There should be no wild allegations rooted in ignorance, or in failure to study the implications of some issue."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, at this moment I have only a few points I would like to give to the Government.

First of all, I have to congratulate all the departments which have played a very great part in the present development of our country. Nobody has any doubt that what has been done within the six years since our independence is greater than what was done by the colonial régime during the 70 years they ruled this country. This has been achieved by our Government through the good and able leadership of our Excellency, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. I think, and I very sincerely hope, it is the wish of all the hon. Members to give them credit for the achievements that our Government has made. That being so, I would now like to point out one of the most important points.

The first is the situation of the Central Province people; most of them are still living—and I am repeating this because it is important—in the former emergency villages. It is a high time the Government should give these people land in proper places and build them houses or lend them money to build decent houses because up to now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the people who were affected by the emergency are still living in horrible conditions, and I hope that the Ministry concerned will take this point in view.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point I would draw the attention of this Government to, is roads. The roads in the rural areas throughout this country are still in a very poor condition and the Government should devote some of its money to the rural areas, where it could be used to improve road conditions so as to help people who are now devoted to farming and thus enable them to transport their produce to the towns. His Excellency has appealed to the nation to go back to the land. To go back to the land means to go back and farm, and be able to transport one's produce to the towns. It is impossible to transport this food to the towns without good roads, and I think the Government will go into this and see that they improve the condition of roads, Mr. Speaker.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I would like to dwell upon is to give congratulations to the teachers who are teaching today. Teachers have done a great deal to our country by reviving most of our traditional songs. I have observed, when I have visited places like Mombasa that the people going to visit His Excellency the President, sing national songs. Also, when pupils visit the President's home at Gatundu, they sing songs that remind the nation that our tradition is most important.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point I will dwell upon is about self-help in the whole country. People should realize that without self-help, we cannot do anything and this spirit should be assisted and supported.

I would also, Mr. Speaker, appeal very sincerely to all our churches at the moment. We know that the slogan of Harambee means togetherness. I would even ask the Government to approach the churches with good faith and see that the spirit of Harambee is carried out in these churches and wherever prayers are said the Harambee spirit should always be encouraged. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that time is very limited and I have more material to say about this, but I do not want to go beyond the limit of time.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support His Excellency's speech.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to join the other Members who have spoken earlier on this particular speech.

First of all I want to congratulate His Excellency, the President, on the able manner in which he made his speech. Mr. Speaker, Sir, whereas we are thanking His Excellency the President on the able manner in which he made his speech, we still feel that we have an obligatory duty which we have been charged with by the people of this nation as representatives, which we are here, in this House, to discharge.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, starting with the price of meat, I have this to say. It has been very positively shown in this country that some unscrupulous traders are increasing prices of meat to ensure they make more money, and they do not care about the people of this country. In other words, they are people who are working only for money, and they do not care about the welfare of our people in this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this increase in the price of meat is coming as a result of the Ministry of Agriculture having increased the price of livestock, I would also say this: the Ministry of Agriculture have no doubt offended this nation because they should at least know how many people, who are of middle class, can afford the increase in the prices of meat. Mr. Speaker,

[Mr. Karungaru]

Sir, if you went to places like Eastlands, Kibera and Kariokor and other places where African butchers are trading, you can see that the meat being sold there has no grade, and the price is one. The price is one and the meat has no grade. No first grade meat and no one cares about inspecting meat. No one cares about going and seeing what prices are charged to our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the people of this country owe this Government a lot, and the Government should know that it also owes the people of this country a lot. In other words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the people of this country are depending on the Government, Government should equally give the same respect to the people. I do not see the reason why we should work for money and see that the welfare of our people is abused. That is one point.

The other point Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that I hear the Assistant Minister saying “kelele, kelele”. I know how ignorant he is on this particular point because he is living in a mansion where these kinds of things are not being practised, and that is why he is ignorant. However, Mr. Speaker, I do not need to dwell on this ignorance which he is displaying.

Mr. Speaker, now I would also like to say something about the Vagrancy Act which was passed in this House recently. Mr. Speaker, I would tell the Government that this Vagrancy Act is not being applied properly in that, Mr. Speaker, it is practising discrimination, and you find that most of those who are affected are Africans, whereas members of other communities are not affected. For instance, Mr. Speaker, at one time I remember in that Act a clause saying that police will be authorized to enter people's houses as they are doing nowadays. We want this to be stopped henceforth. We do not want this inhuman practice to continue and we should at least know that if we treat them wrongly they will be bound to retaliate, Mr. Speaker. I hope that the police will realize this fact now that I have said that.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the price of our produce. The price of anything we produce in this country is very poor and discouraging. Our people have been told to go back to the land, and this is the encouragement we have. We encourage our people to go back to the land, but we also want that when they go back to the land, whatever they till there, whatever they take from their land, is sold at a good price. This point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has been overlooked for so long and we would like the Minister for Agriculture to know this. This is an agricultural country and if we are not going to get anything from agriculture; then we are not going to have anything that can help the growth of the economy of this country in any way.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Agriculture and I know he has been a Minister since 1952 ought to have known better what has been happening since then. He was a Minister even in the colonial days, and there is no dispute about it, and he is still a Minister. I fail to understand why he does not understand the problem of the marketing and so forth.

Mr. Speaker, since I have said that, I do not want to dwell on it any further. Now we still have something here in this nation, Mr. Speaker, and we have to tell the nation what is happening. We are here to represent the views of the people; that is why we are known as representatives of this House. Now we have been told that we have good transmission on our radio and the rest, Mr. Speaker, Sir. But if you tune in to Radio Tanzania in Kenya, you can hear better, more clearly than the Voice of Kenya here, and the Kenya Government spent a lot of money building another station at Ngong which does not provide the services we need. It has provided nothing, and the money of this country has been wasted. We have never been told how much money was spent on building that transmitting station. However, we are still waiting to be told what happened to that money, as we are not getting anything out of that newly-built station. Mr. Speaker, we want to be provided with the facilities—

An hon. Member: What do you want?

Mr. Karungaru: —of radio. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can see some people displaying their ignorance, but I am not interested.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming up to the question of juveniles now, who are acting as traffic officers in the city here, Mr. Speaker, we thought that the Vagrancy Bill was going to take care of those children, which is not the case. These children are still misbehaving in this city and nothing is happening to them. You can see that these children have nobody taking care of them. I want the Government—and I want to appeal once again—to see that these children are made better citizens of this nation. I do not see the reason why we should have children wandering about here in the city. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we were even told that the beggars were going to be taken care of by the Bill that we passed in this House, which is not happening. There are many now in the streets of the city and I do not see how this Act is taking care of them.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that we are allocating money for the Maendeleo ya Wana-wake. We do not see the benefits of this money and it is the high time—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Member that his time is finished.

Mr. Karungaru: You are interfering. I must finish up that point.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I allow hon. Members to finish their sentences.

Mr. Karungaru: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not see the activities of Maendeleo ya Wanawake and, instead of channelling this money to these women whose activities have not been seen, and are not on the ground to be seen, we should ensure that it is not channelled to them but is channelled to Child Welfare Society, Doctor Barnado's Home, Starehe Boys' Centre, and other organizations whose activities are well known.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am supporting the President's Speech.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I am supporting the Motion, I have a few comments on the Presidential Address.

In the Presidential Address, there have been or there are some, Mr. Speaker, very important points. One is that I never knew that land registration was really being done in Kenya, until the 17th of this month, when I was at my place in two locations of (Inaudible.) and (Inaudible.) where we have now established land registration. This, Mr. Speaker, is a very important move which the President has started because now we shall have at least security whenever we want a loan from either the Government or the banks. So, Mr. Speaker, I really appreciate the Policy Statement on this fact that I saw these things in action at my own place. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said yesterday, I need a lot of time to discuss these things, but as I am only given ten minutes, I will try and speak as quickly as possible.

Mr. Speaker, here I feel very ashamed whenever I see the Presidential Speech, either outside or inside this Parliament, not being taken seriously. We, Mr. Speaker, were told at a public rally last year by His Excellency the President that some of the public who cannot afford to pay graduated personal tax of Sh. 48 would be paying Sh. 24. Mr. Speaker, although this was a promise from the Government, it was never effected until we made a fuss in a Kanu Parliamentary Group. I wonder, Mr. Speaker, why the Presidential Address, or any promises, are taken so lightly.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is about another public rally where the President stated that anybody, who found a man in bed with his wife, should kill that person. Mr. Speaker, we expect such things spoken by the Leader of the Republic of Kenya to be taken seriously and implemented immediately. It was the duty of this Government, Mr. Speaker, to introduce immediately, a Bill to this House that anybody who killed somebody who was committing adultery with his wife should not be convicted of murder. We have never heard of it. Another thing, Mr. Speaker—it has been repeated again and again by His Excellency the President—is that the thugs in this country are bringing irritability in this country. It is true, Mr. Speaker. Furthermore the President says that these thugs should be—when they are convicted of theft with violence—sentenced to death. We expect, or the public would like to see this in action, Mr. Speaker, as this was uttered by a leader of the Republic of Kenya. We find now, Mr. Speaker, that instead of seeing a Bill here to sentence these people to death when they have tried to steal with violence, with guns and ammunition, and here the President says, Mr. Speaker, we shall take action unless there is a further significant decrease in the number of these crimes, the Government will very soon have no hesitation in bringing sterner measures into force. He had already, Mr. Speaker, Sir, promised this. So we expect the Office of the Attorney-General to introduce a Bill immediately so that we see whatever was uttered by His Excellency the President is taken into account, and very seriously. It is very shameful, Mr. Speaker, when we hear a speech by the leader of the country and then another man says that it is just propaganda. We should not have any propaganda from the leader of the State; we want to see it in action. Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which has been mentioned here, is about the Trade Licensing Act. This, Mr. Speaker, is becoming useless now—I can say that. It is not as we hoped it was meant to be, Mr. Speaker, and I have seen some Asians who were served with notices to close up their shops, still trading. It is true that their licences were not renewed immediately but we saw later on that the wives of these Asians were left to reopen the shops. The Act plays very little part there. The aim of the Government was to make room available for the local Africans in the country to do business. If the wife of the Asian businessman who was served with a notice to close down is given a licence and allowed to continue running the shop—for the husband whom we thought should have gone to his motherland—then we realize that the Trade Licensing Act is being abused completely. Mr. Speaker, anybody served with such notices should not be allowed to continue in business, these notices should be respected and no licences should be given again on some unimportant grounds.

[Mr. Mwamzandi]

Mr. Speaker, on the last point I wish to emphasize the question of Africanization. It is true that Africanization is being effected, but now we have another kind of Africanization. We have Africanization of the African people. This is happening, Mr. Speaker. We have seen Africans taking over posts already occupied by Africans. This is particularly happening with people from up-country.

At the moment we are very busy with our Mombasa struggle, and so we can see very little of what is going on. We are busy quarrelling. At the same time we are quarrelling that our friends from up-country are taking over businesses, important posts occupied by our people; they are making use of our quarrelling to uplift their own people from up-country.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Then stop quarrelling.

Mr. Mwamzandi: I was told here that the Minister for Agriculture was going to reorganize certain things. We already had a local provincial agricultural officer there, a man by the name Eno Kamravi. The Government wanted to put a provincial director of agriculture here. This man is fit to do this job and that is why he is a provincial agricultural officer, and he has been in the service since 1965. He had gone overseas with somebody and then they returned together. These were two people with the same qualification, one was already there as a provincial agricultural officer, that is Kamravi and the other was a provincial agricultural officer somewhere up-country. This man from up-country was taken to the Coast to be our provincial director of agriculture, to be over the same person who has the very same qualification. That is why we say that Africans from up-country are enjoying progress because of our quarrel at the Coast. If we had not been quarrelling, we would have seen these small things happening. We would not like to have this kind of Africanization, sending one African to take over a post where there is already an African. We would like to see Africanization in the sector where there is no African. I do not think this should affect a class of people who are jinga jinga or who are, perhaps, quarrelling so that other Africans can enjoy or benefit because of this quarrelling. This should not happen.

Mr. Speaker, this problem is created by people who would like to have these privileges. We would not quarrel among ourselves if these things were not initiated, were not encouraged by some people who would like to take over business at the Coast, take over some important jobs while we are spending this time quarrelling amongst ourselves. We shall soon change our ways and unite, and then we will see that the Coast is no longer taken to be jinga jinga.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of your time, Mr. Mwamzandi.

Mr. Mwamzandi: With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, I hope I will have 20 minutes because I can see that no other Member is interested to speak.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Only ten minutes.

Mr. arap Biy: I have only a few points to raise on this speech of His Excellency the President of the Republic of Kenya. I would like to welcome the Africanization which has taken place in this country, which His Excellency the President also appreciates and talks of very highly. But, Sir, this Africanization should be looked into carefully because we would not like to see all the important posts being Africanized, and that is the end of it. We would also like to see efficiency because if it is only Africanization for the sake of Africanization, and the quality of work which has been carried out, or is being carried out by those who have been there for some time has gone down, then the citizens of this country will not be happy at all.

Furthermore, Sir, this Africanization should not be the privilege of one particular community. This Kenya is for all; it is for all Kenyans because we speak of one nation and we cannot speak of one nation when we still see some tribalism being practised. Many warnings have been given in this House because this House is the place where the representatives of the people can speak on behalf of their electors. Usually they speak on concrete examples, things which are going on.

Mr. Speaker, I was happy when I heard of the Africanization of the entire army and defence; but I was rather surprised to hear of one particular community taking the whole umbrella of the army. In saying this I mean it starts from the No. 5 person to the No. 1 person. This is rather unfair. We are all Kenyans and we would like to see a stable Kenya. I do not think that those who were promoted are the only people who have served for many years in the army. There are some other good soldiers who have also served for many years, for over 20 years. For the information of the Members, I know of a good number of Kalenjin soldiers who have really been doing very well in the army, they have been on an equal footing with the soldiers of the Kamba tribe. However, none of them were considered at the time of promotion. It is very disappointing to see this. I would say that every Kalenjin in this country and outside Kenya is very disappointed. This applies not only to the Kalenjin but also we have brothers like the Kisii, the Meru and the Masai who have also been serving in the army for quite a good number of years but not one of them was considered for promotion. It was obvious that our brothers the Kikuyu just went in and had everything about five years ago and now we know of somebody who is holding a very high position in the army. This is ridiculous, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, let us Africanize, and in doing this let us have Kenya at heart. We cannot encourage tribalism and then say that we are building one united Kenya. How united will Kenya be when we ignore the services of some tribes of this country? This is very serious indeed. Of course, Mr. Speaker, I do not doubt the efficiency and integrity of those officers who have been appointed and promoted, but I am sounding a note of warning that next time when any promotion is due to be given, let the other tribes who have not been considered so far be considered.

I would like now to discuss these ambassadorial positions. There was a Kalenjin Ambassador in Peking some time ago, up to last year, and when there was this domestic quarrel in Peking he was recalled home for what the Kenya Government termed as consultations. Up to now consultations are going on and the gentleman in question is still sitting at his home. I do not know whether he is still employed, whether he is getting even a penny from this Government. The Government should tell us why such a man who has been given the title of His Excellency can just be removed overnight and left just like that. That is a big shame. We would like to know whether this man made a mess when he was holding this position. Let the Government come out in its true colours and tell us that So-and-so did this and that, he was corruptible. If this man was corruptible, why was he not taken before a court of law and charged? Mr. Speaker, I think this should be looked into. This is a challenge to the Government. I would not like to see— I am sorry to be mentioning tribal problems here. When this gentleman who was in New York asked for the termination of his services, he was replaced by— I think you know who it was.

Hon. Members: Who? Who was it?

Mr. arap Biy: He was replaced by Mwangi and Kinyanjui. This is terrible.

Mr. Speaker, let us distribute these posts. If you want to take all the Ministries in Kenya, then at least give us the ambassadorial posts. This would make things better. I would like to warn my friends who will be Ministers tomorrow, like the hon. Wariithi, that he should not think only of his own brothers and sisters. Let us have Kenya for all Kenyans, let all the positions be for all the Kenyans.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, His Excellency the President talked about unemployment. This unemployment situation in the country is very irritating and we would like to see something done, and done right now. Otherwise, when this Parliament is dissolved and we go out to face the public they will ask us—as Kanu supporters, as Members of the Kanu Government which has been in power for the last seven years—what we have done for them, what employment facilities we have really arranged for our own people, for our own youngsters. I think the Ministry of Labour and the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, and other Ministries concerned, should sit down and formulate a policy whereby unemployment could be combated as soon as possible. When we come to the distribution of loans, I would like to protect those Africans who have taken over property and other business in the city. They came forward—I am a member of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, I am one of the directors—and sent us their applications and we considered them accordingly and we gave them loans. Some of them received Sh. 100,000, and some Sh. 300,000 because they came forward.

How many Kisii applied for a loan in the city here? How many Luo? How many other tribes? Let us not blame the Kikuyu alone that they are taking everything. The other tribes never apply. It is the fault of other tribes also. I am honest and I do not want to blame the Kikuyu because they are taking up everything, but the other tribes should come up and apply for loans. We have never rejected any application because it comes from a Kalenjin or a Masai.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, I would like to join my colleagues in thanking His Excellency the President for the speech he gave in this House and which to my mind contained a summary of what has been done and what the Government intends to do.

I would like to start on a note which the last Member has spoken on at length. I think he defeated his own argument towards the end. He recognizes that in certain cases if people of a particular tribe take the initiative to come forward, and take the trouble, they should not be ignored simply because they come from that tribe. By this I mean even in other posts you have to take, to be realistic, and accept whether you like it or not—I am not a tribalist myself—we must face the realities. In this country, for many years the Kikuyu had an advantage over other tribes. In the field of education, in development, even in business, and that is why if you take the average you find they are in the majority in some of these cases. I would like to say that even if you go to the hospital, or to the prisons, or to the mental asylum, they are there in plenty and, therefore, you would expect on the law of probability that in any given field they are likely to predominate, not because they are favoured, there could be a few cases of favouritism which I abhor. If they happen to be able, merit it, have experience then I do not think they should be left out simply because they are Kikuyu.

Mr. Speaker, this is a subject I do not like talking about but sometimes somebody provokes you and you say certain things which they may not like. Like my friend here, his people did not come forward for loans. Nobody stopped them; so if the Kikuyu come forward and get them, why should a grudge be held against them?

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say this. During the last six years in this House we have passed many pieces of legislation. Some of them are very good laws, but others we will live to regret. Two of them come to mind. There was the law we passed where we said that if you change your party you have to resign from the House and go and seek re-election. To my mind that was a very sad piece of legislation and it showed there was a fear of some kind, and I hope one day that some sense will prevail with Members of this House, or the Government, and we will repeal that law.

The other one is the one which we passed recently in which we said we would not allow any candidate who is not sponsored by a party to stand. This, to my mind, was a very bad piece of legislation which has caused this country a lot of trouble. The reason why some of us are against that piece of legislation is because of what we saw in the local authority elections. The reason why some candidates were not allowed to stand en masse because they could not fill in the forms, was simply because of that legislation. One party knew that if you disqualified all the KPU candidates because you say they cannot fill in the forms, and you cannot stand as an independent, all the Kanu candidates would go in unopposed. To my mind that was a very bad piece of law, which was misused and which has caused a lot of trouble in this country.

What has been said about these primary elections is giving everyone a headache, and this is simply because of this law we passed. Had we allowed parties to have their own candidates, and anyone who wanted to stand to stand, there would be no need for these primary elections. Now we are in a kind of dilemma, and we are fighting over it; how are we going to do it, and who is going to take part? This is all simply because of the law we passed and which has caused a lot of confusion and trouble in this country. In my mind, I would recommend very strongly that the Government should consider to go back to where we were in 1963 and allow free elections, allow people to stand if they want to stand. Let Kanu put up their own candidates, and the KPU their own candidates, and those who are not satisfied and feel they have support then let them stand. What is wrong with that? As I say this law, as it is now, brings in the necessity of primary elections. It is known that some people want it and others are opposed to it. We should allow freedom of elections, and allow the people to select the people they want, let them exercise their vote; but what we are doing is to control and direct the citizens of this country as to how they are going to exercise that vote. I believe fundamentally it is wrong, and, in fact, is against the spirit of the Constitution where we allow a person freedom of association, of thought, and of the stand he would like to take.

Having said that, Mr. Speaker, I think these comments will be considered later by the Government.

The other point is on roads. I have said this before, that we are defeating the purpose of development. We tell our people to go back to the land, to grow more crops, to cultivate their shambas, but we fail to provide means of transporting what they grow to the markets, I represent a constituency which is very badly served by roads. No bridges and no roads to the main market centres. Whatever they grow rots in the fields and they cannot sell it, and the spirit of working hard is killed. I would say that instead of saying the county councils should be responsible for the roads, the Government should step in; and in all cases where the roads or the bridges join two districts, or join a major road to the market, these should be taken over by the Government. We have passed a Motion here saying that all secondary roads should be taken over by the Central Government, but up to now I do not know what has been done. I know this is a problem all over the country. In the settlement schemes the people are working very hard but they cannot sell whatever they are producing.

The Vagrancy Act, Mr. Speaker, is a thing which I was opposed to, and am still opposed to, particularly on that portion which deals with unemployment, and with people who cannot provide sufficient means of livelihood. I say it is wrong because our Government has failed to provide employment to able people. People who have left school, School Certificate people, remain here in Nairobi for a year and they cannot obtain employment. It does not stand to reason when the Government tells somebody that he has not got a job and he should go back to the reserve. This person will not work because the Government cannot give him a job. When you send him to the reserve, what is he going to do? Even if it is the question of the prostitutes who are supposed to be vagrants, when you send them to the reserves, it is a fact that they come back the following day by car. If they are sent back to Nyeri, the following day they are here.

Apart from that, what is more serious is that by sending prostitutes to the reserves without any medical attention you are spreading prostitution all over the country. I would have liked them to stay in the towns where they can be treated; but when you send them to the reserves where they come from, this does not stop them from continuing with whatever trade they carry out. I believe this is a big mistake which the Government should consider. The Vagrant Act, if it is used with beggars and people whose behaviour is not up to date, that I have no quarrel with. But with the section who cannot find jobs and the Government cannot provide jobs, you could even say prostitutes which the Government cannot employ, I do not think it is proper at this stage when there is so much unemployment, when there are people who have left school, who have wasted all their money and they cannot be employed.

Coming to my last point under the Trade Licensing Act. I would like to support the Government in their moves on this Act, but it has certain difficulties, and one of the major ones is that you find a trader who is not a citizen is asked to stop trading in a given area. Take Nairobi for instance. You say he cannot trade in River Road but he can trade in Government Road. To my mind this does not make sense. If he was in River Road and he is not given a licence there, and then he can come to trade in Government Road—that means you defeat the purpose of the Act. When he moves to Government Road he will move with his customers and the new African businessman who has taken over will not be able to do good business. I think the policy should be that if you find it fit to declare that a person should not be given a licence because he is not a citizen then he should not be given a licence anywhere else on a similar basis. It will not be effective if he can go on changing from one line to another; and if he goes to another line, then that is probably going to displace somebody. I would recommend that the Act should be amended. If it is found that a person should not trade in any part of Nairobi, and he should not be allowed to move from River Road to Government Road.

The other thing which is also becoming a big drawback to African traders is the question of rent. I know I am the Chairman of the Rent Tribunal, but this does not deal with what I am going to say. It happens that if a tenant is served with a notice not to continue trading then he vacates the shop for the new tenant who is coming and invariably the landlord takes the chance of increasing the rent, and in many cases they are demanding three or four times the rent which was being paid previously. This is a thing which is very disturbing. In fact it has been reported in the Press, Mr. Speaker, that many traders in Nairobi, in Thika and all over the place are complaining that when a tenant goes out, the landlord who, in many cases, may be a non-citizen, will insist that the incoming tenant should pay a higher rent and this makes it very difficult for the new Africans who are going into business.

With this I support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I think it will be for your convenience if we adjourn now. The House is therefore adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 23rd May, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at twenty-six minutes past Six o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 38

NATIONAL AND DISTRICT FARMING TROPHIES

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Agriculture:—

- (a) Whether the Minister would establish national and district farming trophies to be awarded to the best farmers of the year in the Agricultural Society of Kenya Shows in recognition of His Excellency the President's call to go back to the land.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

(b) Would he be prepared to call the national trophy "The Kenyatta Cup" and would he allow other distinguished leaders from the districts to donate cups in their names.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. McKenzie):

The following are the trophies available for farm competitions held under the auspices of the A.S.K. I am sure that the hon. Member will agree that what he has asked in this question is therefore being done.

1. DISTRICT SHIELD COMPETITION

This competition is held annually in the following districts of Kenya:—

|-----------------|----------------|
| Nyeri | Kwale |
| Kirinyaga | Tana River |

The winner of each District Shield competes in this competition for the Provincial Cup award.

The Provincial Cup winner receives the silver cup itself, a miniature which he can keep, prize money from the Commonwealth Development Corporation amounting to Sh. 200, and one year's free membership of the A.S. of Kenya.

The runner-up in the Provincial Cup Competition receives a silver cup and prize money amounting to Sh. 200 from the Commonwealth Development Corporation and the Maize and Produce Board.

The presentation of the Provincial Cup awards takes place at the Nairobi Show, the winners and runners-up receiving complimentary tickets to attend the Show.

No entry fee is charged.

3. GOLD MEDAL COMPETITION

The farmer must have owned his farm of not less than 100 acres for not less than two and not more than five years, and an entry fee of Sh. 50 is charged.

Prizes awarded are as follows:—

|------------|-----|
| Winner: | £50 |
| 3rd: | £10 |

Prizes in kind are awarded by:—

The Kenya Seed Company Limited
Standard Bank
Twiga Chemicals Ltd.

5. LONG SERVICE AWARDS

Certificates and life membership badges are awarded to agricultural employees, subject to certain conditions.

6. NATIONAL PLOUGHING CONTEST

The Kenya National Ploughing Contest is now held annually in November, the winners of the District Heats going forward to the Finals.

A trophy was presented to A.S. of Kenya for award to the Champion Ploughman of Kenya.

Farm competitions are run in nearly every district of every province, and the winners in every district receive their shields and medals at each of the Society's district shows, and the winners and runners-up in every province are presented with their awards on Members' Day at A.S. of Kenya Annual Nairobi Show.

There would, therefore, appear to be no need for any further awards of this nature, but should the hon. Member consider the idea sound, then I suggest that perhaps he and other hon. Members within their respective districts might be prepared to endow certain of the district trophies annually.

The House met at Nine o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

MONDAY SITTINGS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, it has come to my notice that hon. Members, and even some members of the staff of the National Assembly, are under the mistaken impression that this House will not be sitting next Monday, the 26th May. This I understand, is due to a recent resolution of the Kanu Parliamentary Group that we should not, in future, sit on Mondays, though no such resolution has yet been brought officially to my notice.

There are some matters which cannot be decided merely by resolution of a parliamentary group, however strong; and this is one of them, because it is a matter which is covered by Standing Orders.

Standing Order 17 provides, among other things, that the House shall meet on Mondays, unless, for the convenience of the House, Mr. Speaker otherwise directs. For reasons that I shall give you, I am far from satisfied at present that it is really for the convenience of the House that we cease to sit on Mondays during the remaining weeks of this year. We shall, therefore, continue to sit on Mondays unless and until Standing Order 17 is altered by resolution of this House.

Moreover, the Speaker has a claim to be consulted before any Motion for such alteration of sitting days is presented to the House. That is not merely a matter of courtesy. It is also his duty to ensure, so far as he can, that the House sits on sufficient number of days in each year to complete all that it has to do, without undue inconvenience either to hon. Members or to the staff of the National Assembly.

If this proposition that we cease to sit on Mondays had been made and accepted at the beginning of the current year, it might have been possible to arrange a convenient programme of parliamentary business for the year accordingly. Now, however, that 20 weeks have passed with only three weeks of sitting, it will be practically impossible for the House to deal with the normal volume of Government business in the 32 weeks that remain, unless we sit on Mondays or for longer hours on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Experience of the past two years, since the National Assembly first met as one House, has shown that the average number of days required for Government business in each year is 96 days. During this year, so far, we have only had 12 Government days; which leaves 84 Government days—including 30 days spent on the Budget—to be covered in the remaining 32 weeks.

If then, we do not sit on Mondays, we have only three Government days in each week; and so we shall have to sit for 28 weeks. That leaves only four weeks for recess during the remainder of this year. Allowing for the normal three weeks of recess between Jamhuri Day and New Year, that would leave only one week for recess during the rest of the year.

Even if we continue to sit on Mondays, we shall be quite hard pressed, with only eight weeks for recess between now and Jamhuri Day.

The only alternatives are to curtail Government business, which may not be possible; or to curtail unduly the normal discussion of Government business, which I am not prepared to entertain; or sitting for longer hours, which does not, I think, appeal either to hon. Members or to the staff.

These are my reasons for not directing that we do not sit next Monday, and for urging hon. Members to think very carefully before resolving to make any such alteration in Standing Order 17 for the remainder of this year.

We shall, in any case, continue to sit on Mondays unless and until that Standing Order is amended by resolution of this House.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while thanking you for all these notes you have made and the information you have given us about Standing Order 17, would it be in order in future, instead of this House being dictated to by the Sessional Committee without being referred to, you give a ruling that all proceedings of the Sessional Committee be confirmed to this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, you are referring to the activities of the Sessional Committee, I think. The duty of the Sessional Committee is to order the programme of business of the House according to the normal sitting days, which someone must do, and also to make recommendations to the House for any variation of ordinary procedure. Now, it is quite in order for the Sessional Committee, which is representative of the whole House, to discuss and decide, in its wisdom, that some sort of change is necessary for the convenience of Members. If it does so decide, no action is taken until a Motion is brought to the House to give effect to that decision of the Sessional Committee. Therefore, you need have no fear of the powers of the Sessional Committee; it is there to do what it is appointed to do as representative of the whole House, or to bring propositions to the House which it believes to be in the interests of the whole House.

[The Speaker]

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would I be in order to correct this impression that the Parliamentary Group discussed that we should not meet on Mondays? In fact, we never did so as I was there. The Chief Whip alleged that the Sessional Committee had already passed that we should not be meeting on Mondays and the matter stopped there. Therefore, the Parliamentary Group never discussed that issue.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, may I ask that silence is not consent?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we need pursue it any further now. There may be some doubt as to what the Parliamentary Group decided—of course, I was not there to know—but whatever was decided, the position now is as I have described to the House.

NOTICE OF MOTION

DISSOLUTION OF PARLIAMENT

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the existing political confusion in the country and in view of the fact that the Kanu Government extended the life of Parliament contrary to the wishes of the public, this House urges the President of the Republic to dissolve Parliament and to declare a general election this year.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Why are you not supporting today? Why are you quiet?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is a group Motion, Mr. Sijeyo?

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Yes, Mr. Speaker.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 28

POLICE AIRWING DAKOTA CRASH

Mr. Karungaru asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House:—

(a) What had been the cause of the accident and crash of the Kenya Police Airwing D.C. 3 Dakota plane, in the suburban area of the city on the 19th December 1968, which had resulted in the deaths of all its three occupants.

(b) What had been the value of the said plane and whether it had been insured. If it had been, how much money had been recovered against the loss.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The cause of the crash is at present the subject of an inquiry by the Aircraft Accident Investigation Board. Originally, the aircraft was provided as a gift by the American Government. It was due for a life overhaul at a cost of approximately K£11,000 and its market value would therefore have been small.

As in all Government vehicles, the aircraft was not insured, but the officers were fully covered. The Kenya National Assurance Company has already been notified about this matter.

Mr. Karungaru: In view of the fact that the Minister had earlier told the House that an inquiry will be made; that means that investigations on this matter will be made, how soon will this be reported to us, because it is very important? We would like to know the cause and so forth.

Mr. Matano: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry is very well aware of the anxiety which the Members have and how keen they are to know the results of this inquiry, and we shall certainly give the details as soon as we are able to do so.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister confound the rumour going around town that, this plane crashed because it was badly overloaded?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that the plane was carrying goods for the North-Eastern Province servicemen, but the fact that it was overloaded, has not yet been established.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from one of the replies, that the Assistant Minister has given to this House this morning, is he not aware that, by Government refusal to take insurances on all the Government vehicles, the Government is losing its money and public money; and it should now start to insure all the vehicles and all the planes that are the property of the Government?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it sounds as if it is a different question. However, all the Government vehicles are covered. They may not be insured in the same way as my car or your car is insured, but they are covered somehow.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not true that our Government, some years ago, did establish a National Insurance Company, which should have insured this particular aeroplane or any other property which is owned by the Government?

[Mr. Munyi]

Therefore, on the part of the Government, it was a question of negligence. Action should be taken in future to see to it that something is done for the interest of our Government and for the interest of our people.

Question No. 49

COMPANIES REFUSING TO AFRICANIZE

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry, if he would tell the House—

(a) what action did the Government take against those companies and other private firms, who had deliberately refused to comply with the Government's directive that their staff should be Africanized;

(b) how many cases of this nature had been reported.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

As to the first part of the question, Mr. Speaker, we are aware of a number of firms which have adopted various manoeuvres in an effort to delay the programme of Africanization of their staff.

Mr. Speaker, where any such manoeuvres have been discovered, the Government has ensured that its programme is obeyed and followed. The hon. Member may be aware that from about three months ago Government started calling up for work permits for each industry separately so that each category of industry is being scrutinized very carefully and individually.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is impossible to reply to part (b) of the Question, in view of the fact that we really have no category of people or firms whom we classify as deliberately refusing to comply with the Government policy but we have, as it were, a number of complaints regarding different companies.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers, is the Minister aware that the question of merit does not arise, because at present we have got so many school leavers, with Cambridge School Certificate and many with degrees, who can be recruited to take over all these responsibilities in companies; but the companies deliberately refuse our people the responsibilities in most of the posts.

There are many people who are roaming about; both School Certificates and degree holders, therefore it is high time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the Ministry did something to force the companies to take our people. This is one of the ways by which—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is enough by the way of question.

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while we are very impressed with this long speech, we must not, as I have always said, deliberately create a false impression or false hopes amongst the people. We have got to distinguish between two factors. First, that there are difficulties of unemployment, no one is hiding that factor. It is so obvious to all of us, particularly those who live in town.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a separate problem of replacement of expatriates by local people. This programme is being pursued very vigorously. In fact, in the report published by the Ministry of Home Affairs, will show the numbers that were denied work permits last year.

It will also show, Mr. Speaker, that any new company establishing itself here, is only allowed to bring the people who are in a category that is not available locally. It will also show that these categories of jobs that can be taken by school leavers without any training, are quickly being filled up.

The problem which the hon. Member is posing in his long speech arises because, in this year, 1969, these category of jobs that can be filled with people without training, are dwindling. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, only the general expansion in the economy, is going to assist in absorbing these people.

Mr. Munyi: But when?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member thinks that he can sit there and generate development by talking, he is cheating the people. He should get down to work.

Mr. Mwalwa: Arising from one of the Minister's reply, can the Minister give us a specific answer (Inaudible.)

Mr. Tsalwa: We could not hear him at all because he was standing away from the mike.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Repeat your question. Mr. Mwalwa.

Mr. Mwalwa: Arising from one of the answers from the Minister, can the Minister give us a specific answer about some of these dwindling jobs that he feels that are being filled?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware and I do not understand the English of the hon. Member. Could he be specific?

Mr. Mwalwa: I am prepared to clarify my question. Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has told us that the jobs which are taken by the people who are not trained are dwindling. May we know whether the same problems the African school-leavers face in this country also affect citizens of other communities, like Indians and Europeans, because we do not see those school-leavers loitering here? What is his answer?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the regulations about employment as applied by Government, apply to all citizens equally.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure the hon. Member is saying that he is waiting for the day when he will see a lot of citizens of other races of non-African origin loitering on the streets as well. I mean, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we shall wait together.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply which shows clearly that the Minister himself is a stumbling block to Africanization, will the Minister tell us that from among the school-leavers who are citizens of this country, namely the black man, the white man and the brown man, this dwindling of jobs given to the Africans is also dwindling for the white and the brown man in this country? That is the specific question. How is it that they are not going without jobs? Is it only the black man?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must not get confused by the hon. Member who is the Chief Whip. I said that the categories of jobs in which we are replacing non-citizens by citizens are those categories which can be taken by people who are not specifically trained, were dwindling. This is quite distinct Sir, from saying that the availability of job opportunities in the economy as a whole is dwindling. That will be false. The availability of the jobs in the economy is not dwindling because the economy itself is expanding. I did say Sir, since there was only a specific number of non-citizens occupying certain jobs that could be filled without training those particular opportunities would dwindle as we replace the non-citizens. It is common arithmetical sense that these opportunities will dwindle because the non-citizens are being replaced one by one. The moment we employ through the Kenyanization Bureau, 100 people, then there will be those 100 opportunities less for non-trained people. This is all I said Sir, I never implied that the opportunity for jobs in the whole economy was dwindling. It will be false to imply so. It is not dwindling, on the contrary, it is expanding at a rate of well over 60 per cent per annum.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 49: AFRICANIZATION IN COMMERCIAL SECTOR

Mr. Karungaru: In view of the fact that this question has been answered in a very queer way, and that the House has been left in a shadow of doubt—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order, you want to raise it on adjournment?

Mr. Karungaru: It could be in order to raise it on a Motion of Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Munyi, have you agreed?

Mr. Munyi: I give it more than a hundred per cent support, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 7

DRUNKENNESS OF HOSPITAL EMPLOYEES

Mr. Godia: asked the Minister for Health if he would consider discouraging drunkenness among the staff working in the hospitals by inducing the sober workers by easy terms of promotion.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): On behalf of the Minister for Health, I beg to reply. The Minister is not aware of any drunkenness by the staff on duty working in hospitals.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the unsatisfactory reply by the Minister, I personally do not wish to embarrass any staff of the Ministry of Health. Will the Minister, therefore, warn his staff through this House, that he empowers the police, the administration, and the public to arrest and convict any of the staff found drunk while on duty?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if one might speak on behalf of his very hard-working people in hospitals who have to work long hours because of the shortage of staff we have, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must reject the insinuation by the Questioner that there is general drunkenness among the members of hospital staff on duty. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a staff regulation which regulates how the people employed by this department should work. If any particular staff member is found contravening these regulations, such as coming on duty drunk, disciplinary action is taken in regard of that particular member of the hospital staff.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is entirely false and in fact, in very bad taste for a Member of this House to insist that all the members of the hospital staff, who are very hard-working, and work longer hours than anybody else go on duty drunk, and that he wants us to go to the extent of stationing police officers at the hospital. Mr. Speaker, Sir, he also wants the Minister to go further and direct that some specific people be convicted and punished. There are courts of law for any specific offence.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should really thank those who are promoting development, not only by talking but by doing certain obvious jobs. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are very proud of our hospital staff.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while the Minister is content with the answer he is giving to the House, and while he is trying to meander around with the issue, would the Minister come to the question and answer the question, which is whether it would be possible to consider the sober fellows for promotion who put more effort into the duties because of their good merits as compared to those who happen to be drunkards? The question does not allege that all the staff are drunkards. That is a wrong interpretation of the question. The question is actually comparing—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Point of order! It is too long, Mr. Omweri.

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, there are normal rules in the process of promotion of any officer in any department, not only in hospitals but in all the departments. The question of whether that particular member of the staff comes on duty regularly, is sober, is hard-working, or shows a good attitude towards the public, all these are considerations taken into account in considering whether a member of the staff is to be promoted or not. If the chap is regularly and habitually drunk, it is quite clear that it is going to be marked against him. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question could arise in the mind of any sober-thinking Member of this House. It is very important that we too keep sober.

Question No. 19

PRICES OF FERTILIZERS

Mr. Khaoya: asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House, in view of Government's announcement of a ten shillings subsidy per ton of fertilizers, what would be the price of one cwt. bag of phosphate single and double, and what for 2 cwt. bag of ammonium sulphate.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The following are the prices for one cwt. of phosphate.

|-------------------------|---------------------|
| Single Super-phosphate | 14.65 per cwt. bag. |
| Double Super-phosphate | 30.00 per cwt. bag. |
| Sulphate of Ammonia 21% | 86.00 per cwt. bag. |

All the above prices are applicable in Kisumu and surrounding districts. There are also net prices after deduction of the Government subsidy at the rate of Sh. 5 per unit of PO₂₅ and Sh. 2 per unit of nitrogen water soluble phosphate.

The hon. Member should know that it is incorrect to say that the Government subsidy is Sh. 10 per ton of fertilizers because it depends on what fertilizer and what mixture you have. It is much better to stick to the rate per unit of phosphate nitrogen which I have stated above.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while thanking the Assistant Minister for his reply, could he agree with me that whereas this subsidy has been given on fertilizers from overseas, people say from Bungoma or Kakamega buy their fertilizer from Tororo in Uganda and this subsidy does not apply to the locally made fertilizers. The Government therefore is trying to encourage importation of fertilizers unless it can take the necessary action of lowering our local prices also.

Mr. Murgor: I do not agree with the hon. Member and if at all there is such a thing, then we will investigate.

Question No. 20

PRICES OF HYBRID MAIZE SEED

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House, in view of the need for reducing the cost of agricultural production the Government would consider causing the lowering of price of hybrid maize seed to enable a farmer to realize a margin of profit.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The total cost of producing one acre of maize is estimated over Sh. 250. Compared to this cost, hybrid maize seed costs Sh. 18 per bag of 20 lb. and, therefore, it is a very negligible factor in maize production costs.

My Ministry will not, therefore, achieve anything by reducing the cost of hybrid maize seed. However, what is required is for the farmers to work hard and improve their efficiency so that they can cut down on the cost of land preparation and other factors which are at present too high. In particular, if a farmer wants to achieve higher yields, he must plant in good time following the advice of my extension officers, space his plants properly, use good seed, prepare a good seed bed and apply the appropriate fertilizers, and exercise control on diseases and pests.

As regards the use of fertilizers, the House is aware that the Government has increased the subsidy of fertilizers from Sh. 3 to Sh. 5 per unit of water soluble phosphates or PO₂₅, thereby assisting the farmer to lower his costs.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while listening to that bad answer, could the Assistant Minister be very simple and short, in that why should one bag of maize—my maize which is produced with that fertilizer and the hybrid maize seed—cost Sh. 20 when only 20 lb. of the maize seed should also cost almost Sh. 20? Why should this happen? Both of them are maize.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the price of hybrid maize seed is, in fact, low compared to the price paid for maize seed in other parts of the world.

An hon. Member: We are in Kenya!

Mr. Murgor: The production of seed is a very strict operation and is risky compared with the production of commercial maize. We have a contract between the Ministry and the Kenya Seed Company and, through this contract, we ensure that farmers are not being charged excessive prices for their seed.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the people responsible for propagating hybrid maize for seed are actually making a profit and they are doing so for their own good and not for the good of the farmers?

Mr. Murgor: Both, the people who are processing the seed and the farmers are getting equally good profit.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on, I am afraid. We are getting late. Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF QUESTION NO. 20:
PRICE OF HYBRID MAIZE SEED

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with the permission of the Questioner may I be allowed to raise this question on the adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Khaoya, have you no objection to Mr. Godia raising this?

Mr. Khaoya: No objection, Sir.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 33

REPEATING OF CERTIFICATE OF PRIMARY EDUCATION

Mr. Tsalwa asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what plans he had to assist the Certificate of Primary Education failures of last year so that they did not repeat in Standard VII to impede the progress of fresh students.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry is not against Standard VII pupils repeating this year or any other year providing that there is a vacancy in the school and that no child from Standard VI will be excluded from Standard VII as a result of accommodating the repeaters.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all over the country there are ex-Certificate of Primary Education boys and girls and, at the same time, we find that new pupils are not allowed to enter Standard VII because of the repeaters. Now, will the Assistant Minister tell the House that these places are not filled by the repeaters so that the new pupils can be admitted?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I have already answered that question. I said very clearly that we do not allow someone to step down for a repeater. If there is a vacancy, then a boy or a girl can repeat Standard VII in a school where there is a vacancy, but this cannot be done by stopping someone from Standard VI to go to Standard VII to allow a repeater to take that place.

If the hon. Member could be specific in his statement, and tell me of any school, A, B, C, D that have allowed repeaters and as a result we have not had entries in Standard VII, my Ministry will deal with this case very definitely.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that most headmasters of these primary schools encourage Standard VII pupils to repeat so that they get better results at the Certificate of Primary Education examination?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that. In fact, before a headmaster is allowed to give a chance to a Standard VII failure to repeat, he has to get the consent of the county education officer, and without the consent of the county education officer he cannot do so.

MONEY SMUGGLERS, 1967/68

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House—

(a) what the total number of money-smugglers who had been prosecuted and convicted by the courts of Kenya during 1967/68 had been;

(b) what the maximum sentence given to any of them had been.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There were 15 persons who appeared before the courts for contravening the Exchange Control Act during the period 1967/68. The maximum sentence awarded was three years' imprisonment and, in this particular case, this man is also to be deported when he has served the three years' imprisonment.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Attorney-General tell this House further whether this kind of practice of money-smugglers has improved now that he has answered me in respect of 1967/68? Has this situation improved during this year of 1969?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have had two cases this year and in both cases the accused persons were fined Sh. 2,000, and the dollar travellers' cheques which amounted to about Sh. 2,900 were forfeited.

Mr. Speaker, these offences are not increasing I am happy to say, and I am satisfied that if more publicity is given to the sentences awarded in court to these people, the offence will decrease.

I am also happy to say that the courts are giving severe sentences and, in one case, a man was sentenced to one year's imprisonment by a magistrate and the High Court increased that sentence to three years. This shows that the courts are taking a very serious attitude towards this type of offence.

MOTION

FARMING LOANS: KIUNGA AND WITU DIVISIONS

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, this House urges the Government to give loans to farmers of Kiunga Division and Witu Division so that they can escape the exploitation from the richer people in Lamu District.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Lamu District was one of the many districts in Kenya which suffered from the shifta menace. These farmers left their farms for a period of four years and the farmers went and settled on the islands of the Lamu District, and now their farms are completely destroyed by the wild animals. These people, Sir, do not know any other kind of job besides farming. When they went to settle on these islands there were some rich people who gave them a few shillings to farm on those islands. However, the farming on these islands is so poor that you cannot harvest anything and at the end of the year, after harvest, these people suffer a lot, besides the shifta menace.

I appeal to this Government, Mr. Speaker, very strongly to consider this case seriously by giving them some loans so that they can start new farms or revive their old farms which they abandoned on the mainland. Everybody is aware in Kenya today that the shifta menace has improved a lot since the agreement which was signed in Arusha between our Head of State and the Somalia Prime Minister.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you find a number of these people from the mainland who have moved to come and settle in these islands, but they are slowly moving back to the mainland, but when they return, they find that they do not even have a house to stay in and they have to build small bandas along the seashore with their own hands. However, these very rich people have given them some loans to farm with about 75 per cent profit which they are making out of these poor farmers; these poor victims from the shifta menace.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very straightforward Motion on which I hope the Minister for Agriculture will support me in my views. These rich people, Sir, have also moved to Kiunga Division and Witu Division and they have established shops there and also small-scale businesses whereby they want to exploit again the very small people.

An hon. Member: Who are these rich people?

Mr. Somo: They are Arabs. You know them very well; they are your friends.

An hon. Member: Address the Chair.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): The rich people are the Bajuns.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, I do not deny what the Attorney-General has said that the rich people were the Bajuns. However, during these four years in which we have suffered from the shifta menace, the richness in the Bajuns no longer exists. Therefore, the Arabs from the town of Lamu who did not suffer either on the farming side or by losing their businesses because of the shifta, this is why I have this point of bringing this Motion; to appeal to this Government seriously to consider these two divisions, Kiunga and Witu, that they be given some loans for the poor farmers so that they escape exploitation from the richer people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Lamu is one of those backward districts, particularly in farming. Four years is a long period. Even, Mr. Speaker, a friend of mine, the hon. Mr. Kamau, was detained on one of these islands, and after his detention he was restricted in Lamu town for a number of months. Therefore, he knows a lot about the exploitation of Lamu District.

[Mr. Somo]

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, today, as I have said already, this exploitation still exists and is continuing with strength. As I have said, these richer people are moving to the mainland.

With these very few words, Mr. Speaker, as I am not trying to put out a long story about it, I beg to move the Motion.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to second this Motion. As the Mover of the Motion said before, this is a straightforward Motion and the Government has, in fact, started working on this. When we read the President's Speech, we found that he stated that he has sent Government officers and he has released money to assist those people who were affected by the shifta activities. Now, Lamu District, being one of the shifta affected districts, the local inhabitants were to move from the unstable mainland—their former homes—to safer places in the islands. In these new homes that they are trying to establish, these rich men have come and have given some money to the shifta victims and they are not benefiting from this money at all. I was thinking in terms of the Government giving loans to those farmers.

The Government, Mr. Speaker, puts particular emphasis on cotton growing because the land is sufficiently fertile and cotton can do very well. I have seen in some places Government has sent tractor units to open new lands and cotton is being grown. If Government is to maintain its emphasis on cotton growing, I think the Lamu people will do very well because the soil is suitable for cotton growing.

Mr. Speaker, I happen to be a member of the Cotton Board and I fully agree with the Government that if they increase the emphasis on cotton growing, this will serve us better. Cotton is wanted and needed and used right from the date a child is born; the mother needs some cottonwool when she is in maternity, and as the child goes on growing the child uses clothes which are made of cotton; at his school age he uses cotton, during his fully grown-up age—as myself—he uses cotton; until the date he dies because when a person dies you use cotton to say goodbye.

I think, Mr. Speaker, if our Government has the intention of giving loans to the people and farmers of the Kiunga and Witu Divisions we could go a long way towards developing cotton in that area, which is also Government policy, to see to it that by 1970 we hit our target of 95,000 bales.

Mr. Speaker, I think this Motion is self-explanatory, and we need not dwell very much on this one. I, therefore, beg to second the Motion.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in moving this Motion the hon. Mover was very interesting to listen to. He was interesting because he did not tell us whether the people mentioned—the farmers from these divisions—ever applied for loans and they were refused; he did not tell us why it is necessary for them to go and get loans from these rich people he is talking about who exploit them; he did not tell the House what type of crops these people of Kiunga and Witu Divisions are likely to plant; and it was very, very interesting for us from this Bench to listen to him.

However, Sir, I do not intend to be very long in replying to what I have just heard this morning. I understand they are supposed to plant cotton and, indeed, the hon. Member should know that there are short-term loans being given by the Cotton Board to farmers who grow cotton. He does not inform us whether these farmers have ever tried, through him, as the Member who represents them, to ask for these loans from the right person. I think here it is ignorance on the part of these people as to where they should go, and ignorance on the part of the hon. Member as to how to direct them.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to amend this Motion to read as follows: I would like to leave out the following words, "... the Government to give loans to . . ." and insert the following words after the words, "Witu Division", ". . . to apply for farming loans . . .".

Mr. Speaker, the Motion would, therefore, read as follows:—

THAT, this House urges farmers of Kiunga Division and Witu Division to apply for farming loans so that they can escape the exploitation from the richer people in Lamu District.

Mr. Speaker, let us take this as the first step so that the hon. Member's Motion makes sense. Let these gentlemen apply for loans and let us be told that they have applied for loans and they have not been given.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the amendment.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful for the amendment which my friend has moved.

Mr. Speaker, in this case, Sir, our problem with the people of Lamu District is that they do not apply for loans. We have a list of people who have applied for loans from Lamu District and not the divisions, because we do not keep lists of the people from divisions. All we know is that these applications came from Lamu, and not from a certain division or a certain location or from a certain clan; our records only show how many applications have come from Lamu and how many have been approved.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, here I have got the list of the applications approved from 1960 to the present day for the information of the hon. Member. From 1960 to 1964 there were 20 applications and the loans given were Sh. 30,000; in 1965 there were 17 applications and Sh. 19,600 was approved; in 1966 there were 2 applications for Sh. 4,000; in 1967 there were 2 applications and Sh. 3,000 was given. It appears, Sir, that up to 1965 there were more applications, but since then they have dropped. I think it is good for the hon. Member to go and tell the people in his constituency to go and apply for the loans. We have created the machinery whereby people can get loans—apply and get loans—and there is no reason why people from Lamu should not get more loans. Why the number of loans is going down I do not know.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Debate on that amendment can be combined with the debate on the main question and in so far as it introduces new matter the Mover or the Seconder are entitled to speak on the amendment.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, the Motion here is a very straightforward Motion as it stands and I agree. It says, Sir:—

THAT, this House urges the Government to give loans to farmers of Kiunga Division and Witu Division so that they can escape the exploitation from the richer people in Lamu District.

Mr. Speaker, this is referring to Kiunga and Witu Divisions which are divisions in Lamu District. Whereas I agree with the amendment that they should be asked to apply for loans, but the amendment they are not stating which part. The hon. Member's intention here is for Witu and Kiunga, which he represents, and he did not talk of Lamu District. This is the question—

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): We do not talk of Lamu District either.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I hear the Minister for Information saying, "We do not talk of Lamu either", but that Member is not the Member for Lamu District; he has to speak of his constituency, just as the Minister himself. Unfortunately Ministers do not speak for their constituencies, but they do things for their constituencies. He cannot talk of Busia, but he can talk of Bunyala which is one location and the smallest constituency ever in this House. It is easy for a Member of a small constituency like that to play about with things here but he should understand that some of us represent very big constituencies, not just locations or sub-locations.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member right in saying that certain words which you read out have been taken out when, in fact, they are still part of the amendment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I thought the hon. Member was under a misunderstanding in respect of the amendment. The amendment still leaves specific reference to these two divisions in the Motion.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, then, Mr. Speaker. I thought we were referring to Lamu District and that is why I was challenging it. If that is the case, Sir, here the Member is specifically talking of specific areas and if that is so then there is no problem.

Mr. Speaker, I stand to speak on this Motion for one reason and this is that in this country—this is the sense here and the danger—there are people who are rich and who are becoming even richer every minute. If this situation is not checked and the poor man also given some loans to defend himself against this terrible disease of amassing wealth at the moment, I am sure, in the long run, these rich people in these divisions will be the landlords and they will take every piece of land there with the aid of the Government so that they exploit the poor man in the area. The Ministers may not take this seriously, and I do not expect them to take this seriously anyway because they are the very people who are amassing wealth. Therefore, I do not expect any sympathy from them. There will come a day when we will take all the wealth from them. This is a fact. We did so with Europeans who took our land, but they had a place to go to, but the Ministers will go to their graves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am of the opinion that if the people have a passport to go out, they will be gone for good and we will take the land anyway, but if they remain here, we will take them to their graves. Now, Sir, having said that, I am of the opinion as the Government says, and I agree with Government's amendment to request the people—the poor people in Lamu District—particularly in Kiunga and Witu to apply for loans. The question still remains: will they get the loans? It is easy for Ministers to say here that let them apply for loans, and God knows what that is, but when it comes to the point of putting in an application, they will never get them. Let us be assured that when this Motion goes through, particularly now it has been amended by the Government—and for this I am very grateful—the Witu and Kiunga people shall be given the loans without any hindrance.

There is a lot of nonsense going on, Mr. Speaker, what we passed in this House is different. For example, the other day we passed a law here, restricting certain trade to citizens. Do you know what is happening, Mr. Speaker in practice? The ordinary African is not given facilities and, as a matter of fact, the richer non-citizen Asians are still getting their permits extended. They are only giving quit notices to the poor non-citizen Asians, who are earning nothing. The poor fellows are the only ones to quit, but the rich ones, because they have the money and they can dance around to some of the officers, they stay on here.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I was trying to elaborate on the applications because, just passing it here is one thing, but applying it is a different thing.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us not discuss all other things that have been passed, but have not been applied.

Mr. Shikuku: Now, Sir, this is my doubt and I would not be surprised, Mr. Speaker, at a later time, when the Member from the area will bring a question in this House that—in view of the Motion passed in the House on such and such date, will the Government tell the House how many loans, they have given because so far there is none. This is the thing, I hope I will be here next time and if I am not going to be here next time, somebody—another Butere man—will have to ask this question which will be referring to the Government having done nothing. This is not the first time, Mr. Speaker, that we have passed Motions in this House which have been accepted and amended by the Government, and nothing so far has ever been done to implement these resolutions of the House.

Mr. Speaker, if the Government is prepared to make amendments to the Motions as the one they have done—very encouraging amendments as this one—and then they do not apply it, they are making us a laughing-stock. We shall have many problems, particularly when we come to the general election, to explain to the people, because people in this country are not asleep and also read Motions like this which have been accepted.

When we go home they ask, “Where are the Motions that have been accepted and what has happened?” As a matter of fact some of the civil servants say that we make a lot of noise in this House, pass resolutions and nothing is implemented. They say we are the noise makers and even they are encouraged at beer parties, to talk like that because we pass resolutions, but the Ministers who are supposed to execute these because they are the Cabinet, sit on them and grow fat. One of these days they will be very thin. They will be running around, and they might lose their deposits as well.

Now Sir, signs of this were seen in Gem because they made a lot of maneno there and nobody listened. Probably because of the Motions we pass here and they never implement them. There were eight of them and they managed to get only 1,500 votes. So every Minister had less than 200 votes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, let us have our Motions debated seriously by these hon. Members who are paid by tax-payers and let us hope, Sir, that the Government will implement what we pass. If the Motion does not call for anything more, I support the poor man's point of view that he must be given more loans so that he is not exploited.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): They must apply for them.

Mr. Shikuku: They must apply, and Mr. Speaker, I and the hon. Member and the hon. Seconder, will appeal to the people to apply and they should have a system, Mr. Speaker—I suggest this one very seriously to the hon. Members—that every copy of the applications sent to the Government must be noted. The hon. Members should also have a copy of the application and one day they should lay the copies on this Table and if we find those copies have not been given loans, we will take the Ministers to task. If possible, we will pass a vote of no confidence in the Ministers.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, let me hope, and let me hope against hope that the Government will do something.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I move that the Question be now put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I must at least allow the Seconder to comment on this amendment. Mr. Komora.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I put one point clear to the Government. Farmers from Kiunga and Witu Divisions, and indeed from other divisions and districts in the Coast Province, have been applying for farming loans but the problems they have is—as perhaps the Government knows—that the former Coastal Strip was completely owned by the rich people—Arabs, Asians and Europeans. The poor men whom we have in mind in the Motion, were left in the hinterland where the land is not fertile. They are now literally just squatters. If Government would think in terms of giving them loans, they could then move to fertile places where the land is not just now being made use of.

They have been applying but they do not get the loans because they do not hold title-deeds for the land, and this has been the main factor. We apply to the Agricultural Finance Corporation, but we are told—

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Is it not a fact that the hon. Member himself has had a loan, but he has no title-deed? Is it proper for him to mislead the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not a point of order, I think.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I shall be very happy, if I had a loan, because I have applied every year since I came to this Parliament but I have had none so far. There is one condition that you must have—a title-deed for the land you want to develop with that money. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are being told today, “apply”, but that condition still remains—

An hon. Member: A point of information.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of information, Sir. I am glad the hon. Member has given me this chance to give him the information. It was the other day when the Assistant Minister for Agriculture in this House moved an amendment to the present Bill to provide for anybody to get a loan even without a title-deed, provided that there is proof that that land is his and so there is no problem as far as that is concerned now.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on those terms, I fully agree with the amendment, and hoping, as hon. Shikuku said, that when our farmers submit their applications for loans, the loans will be issued to them.

With these few remarks, Sir, I think I shall support the amendment.

Mr. Makone: I also wish to support the amendment, but, Sir, I was not going to speak, but I was struck by the reply given by the Assistant Minister, which has made me say a few words and make some observations on what he said. Mr. Speaker, I think the normal practice of the Government, when a Motion like this is to be moved by a Minister or on his behalf by an Assistant Minister, should be first to study the nature of the Motion and look at it carefully before it is brought here, so that when it is brought here, he has a convincing reply, rather than generalize facts of the Motion. Now, Mr. Speaker, the Motion here is specifically, as you say, Sir, dealing with people of Witu and Kiunga Divisions, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, very different from Kisii, from Central Province, from, say, Kitutu East.

Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister said, “Why are these people not given preference”; and, Mr. Speaker, I say, why are they not given preference, being a very unique sort of treatment for people who are kept off the land, and now they are moving back on to the land—poor people, Mr. Speaker? Therefore, he should see that this is a different case to be brought to the Government; a case where those financial giants must be kept away from these poor people.

Mr. Speaker, this is a kind of punishment, for the Government to reply without considering all aspects of the Motion. It is very discouraging and shows how they generalize and even handle their affairs in the Ministries. Mr. Speaker, when a Motion is brought into this House, like this one by an hon. Member, we need to do some deeper study, and top officers of the Government should advise the Minister on it, rather than the Minister just coming into the office in the morning to look what is coming in. Mr. Speaker, I only stood to say that Government, to generalize a case like this one before the Parliament, is not very encouraging. I wish to say that the Motion, as amended by the Minister for Information and Broadcasting, is acceptable, and I support it. I wish too and hope that the Government will go down and make this an acceptable case, and not treat it as they have done now. I beg to support, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: This is a funny amendment, as it is. It appears to me to change the substance of the Motion—as it was, “this House urges the people of Witu Division to apply”. This is a very funny amendment, and I do not know whether the Mover really sees what it needs, because I do not think there is anybody in this country who does not know how to apply for a loan. I believe that people in this Division have been applying for loans. How is that it is only this House which is going to urge these people to apply for loans? In fact, the Mover should really reject this amendment, because this is a very cunning way of tackling things. I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, that these people have just been sleeping from 1963 when we achieved our independence; that not even one of them has applied for a loan, and that it is only today in this House we are going to urge them to apply for loans. This is a funny amendment. In fact, it is, according to me, changing the whole substance of what the Mover wanted, because the Mover, according to him, saw the danger of the richer farmers exploiting the poor farmers in this area. For that reason, he had it in mind these people had been applying for loans, but the Government has not been giving them anything. What he wanted the House to pass is that priority will be given to these people, so that when they apply for loans they should be given. But what the amendment here is implying is that the hon. Member who brought this Motion has not even urged these people to apply for loans, and therefore, it is actually educating the Member. This is why, I am trying actually to enlighten the Member to see that what is being amended is not really what he wanted.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have been to Lamu and saw the farmers.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I have been to Lamu more than twice. I was in Lamu this year. Now it is very dry and if these people are not helped as the Mover has asked, I do not see any point in amending the Motion as it is. What I would have liked is the Motion to be carried as it is, because these people have been applying for loans. If investigations are carried out, it will be found out that they have been applying, but their applications have been ignored, and somebody has been sitting on them in the office. This is what is happening. If you go to the Kalenjii areas, are the people there getting any loan? They are not, and I believe they are not, and they are bitter about it. Mr. Speaker, I know, because I pass through Kalenjii areas when I am coming to Nairobi, and I know they are not getting loans. I believe that the Member who is challenging this today will tomorrow come with this question, "how many Kalenjins have been given loans, and why has the Government ignored Kalenjii?" Yesterday, when the Member for Kitale, the hon. Muliro, was speaking he said that the Government has ignored the Western Province. Now the—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ondiek-Chillo, we are talking about these two divisions in Lamu.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I was just trying, to give some reference, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): But it must be relevant to the question.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Anyway, I feel, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister for Information and Broadcasting although he is trying to make the amendment, is aware of the fact that it only the richer farmers who have been getting loans, but the poor ones have been getting nothing. I do not actually support the amendment, but I support the original Motion to be left as it is because urging some people to apply for loans, is what should not be passed in this House, because this is known. I do not think that the people of Lamu are so sleepy that they have not been asking for loans. Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should comment on what Mr. Ondiek-Chillo has said, because if I had really thought this amendment altered the whole substance of the Motion, I should have rejected it, but since it is so clear that in urging people to apply for loans, this House also is expecting the Government to take their applications very seriously; the substance is still there, and it is on that understanding that I have allowed the amendment.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it should be called a great day to have a Member from Lamu District presenting a chain of farming in that district because as the hon. Member referred to during the time he was moving the Motion, that I was one of the people who had lived, detained, in his area at that particular time. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like the House to know that I never expected, perhaps, after 20 years, to have a Member of Parliament from that particular area, because the conditions of people at the Coast at that time was very deplorable. I am grateful to the hon. Member who has now come here, because during the time I was there he was a schoolboy and now he is an equal Member of Parliament as I am. That is a great effort, and he should be supported in every possible way.

Coming to the actual point, Mr. Speaker, I would like before I comment on anything, to educate hon. Members from the Opposition that when the Government amended this Motion it knew very clearly that it has sympathy for its people and it has a reason to amend the Motion so as to comply exactly, and to come to the exact point the people of Kirinyaga and Witu Divisions want within Lamu District. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no point in saying that the amendment does not hold water. This is a very important amendment the Government has made, because as we understand this Motion, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know very well that in Lamu District most of the land is owned by the foreigners. I think what the hon. Member wanted to say, although he did not do so frankly, is that the whole question is that land in the Coastal Strip has been taken over by the Arabs. It is high time, therefore, that our Government sees to it that the potential of land in the Lamu District is enjoyed by the people of the area who are the Africans. What the hon. Member wanted the Government to know is that his people, whom he is representing today, having realized that they had no representative in this House during the colonial régime, and having suffered because of this since no one could put the case of the Africans to the former Government, we now have the Member who has brought this Motion here. So I am grateful to the Minister who has seen fit to appeal, through this hon. Member for Lamu District, that the people should apply to the Government for help. This is the only remedy by which these people from Kiunga and Witu Divisions in Lamu District will be helped.

Mr. Speaker, I would very much like to associate myself with the last speakers who have asked the Government not to take the Motions we pass here as Back-benchers in an easy way. We have noted that the Government is not taking us seriously with regard to our Motions. What happens is that these Motions we have passed are on record, they remain on the record, and one day we will come back in force and see that all the Motions passed in this House are implemented whether the Government wants to do so or not. Whatever goes on record, is the decision of this hon. House. We do not like it when a Minister amends a Motion which goes through and then the Government takes no action when the Motion is agreed to by the House. I would like to say that when I came to this House I brought a Motion telling the House that during our struggle for independence most of our land was misappropriated, the land was given to the wrong people, and so on. This Motion was passed but to date nothing has been done. I am sure this is still on the record. Other Motions have also been passed by hon. Members here and many of these have not been implemented by the Government. I hope that this Motion which my hon. friend, Mr. Somo, from Lamu District, has brought to this House will be acted upon by the Government, that the Government will take very drastic measures to see that it is implemented because as far as agriculture is concerned, I know these people are dealing mainly with cotton, mikoko and the plants which the coastal strip people grow. For these things they need a lot of money in order to develop the area. I hope that as soon as we pass this Motion Government will see to it that these people are provided with loans.

I know that this Motion is self-explanatory, Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to dwell on it at length and, therefore, I support the sentiments of the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Perhaps I might put the question of the amendment now and continue with the debate afterwards? Would that suit you, Mr. Godia?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): I was just rising to move that the question of the amendment be now put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The House can certainly consider that.

(Question, that the question of the amendment be now put, put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have proposed this second part of the amendment because I know that Mr. arap Biy has some comment to make here.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to support the amendment. I would also like to congratulate the Mover of this Motion and I hope that after this Motion has been passed the people of Kiunga and Witu Divisions will see the benefits thereof.

I would like to appeal to the Government to see that the farmers in these particular Divisions are assisted in the terms of this Motion in that the applicants who apply for loans are assisted in this current year. Those who are assisted during this current year should not be less than 500 farmers. We do not want the figure to be less. It would not please this House if only 10, 20 or 30 Africans were considered. We would like at least 500 small-scale farmers in this particular area to earn the benefits of this Motion so that they can be happy and realize that they are not being exploited by the rich people in that part of the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the danger here lies with the officers, the officers who receive the applications. Some of the officers who receive the applications do not pay very much attention to these things. Sometimes, in some cases, they do acknowledge receipt of the applications. We would like to see that the officers who receive the applications acknowledge receipt of each application received, and inform each farmer who has applied what action is being taken with regard to the application. Thus the farmers are put in the picture as to what is taking place regarding their applications.

Sir, there is one danger with regard to most of the farmers and that is they do not have title-deeds to their farms. Many farmers in the country have not had their land surveyed and so they do not have the title-deeds. We do not want to have the Government insisting, with each farmer asking for a loan, that such farmers produce the title-deeds because that could not be done in many cases. I am expressing this opinion because I do know that many officers do not understand what is the policy in relation to these matters. We would like a farmer, who has made an application for a loan, to be given the loan, irrespective of whether he has title-deeds or not. The farm he has could be taken into account in this case. We would like the farmers to be assisted.

Mr. Speaker, we would like these farmers to use their loans properly and in this way they should be assisted by the field officers. In this way they will see some benefit from the loans.

The Government should understand that the position, as it applies to Kiunga and Witu Divisions, applies also to other parts of the country. The Government should not expect every constituency, every division to have their Members bring Motions in this House to get something done for the areas in question. We hope the Government will take this Motion as an example of something that applies to the whole country. Farmers in Busia, in Hamisi, Nyandarua or Butere who have applied and are applying for loans should be considered in line with the other farmers from Kiunga and Witu Divisions. We do not want the Ministry to think that because this House has passed a Motion in relation to Kiunga and Witu Divisions' farmers that theirs are the only cases to be considered. Government must realize that every farmer, in every part of this country, is looking for assistance from the Ministry of Agriculture and the Government as a whole.

So, Sir, I hope that the Government will take this to be an example of the need of the people of this country and will consider, seriously, the farmers in these two particular Divisions and, at least—I repeat, at least—500 farmers must be assisted within this current year. Mr. Speaker, Sir, farmers must see the benefit of the loans from the Ministry of Agriculture.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that the Ministry of Agriculture and the officers working in the field will do their best to assist the farmers in Kiunga Division and Witu Division, and all over the country to benefit from the loans, from agriculture. With these few words, Sir, I support the Motion.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in support of this Motion as amended I would like to say a few words. We know that in many cases farmers in this country have been applying for loans, but the conditions attached to these loans are very, very tight indeed. I know that in respect of the small-scale farmers, they are required to have, say, 15 acres of land. For example, if they want to plant maize, then they have to have 15 acres planted in the given year. Now, for these 15 acres, supposing some person has only 7 acres—that is as much as he has—how will he be able to get a loan? It means that he is denied the right, denied the facility of getting this loan.

Hon. Members: No. No.

Mr. arap Biy: Some of these fellows are saying “No” but I would say that this is very true.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to refer to hon. Members as “some of these fellows”?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, no. You will correct that, will you not, Mr. arap Biy?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, I apologize to my hon. colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, I am asking the Minister to advise his officers in the field to educate the farmers to apply for these loans because the farmers do not even know how to fill in the forms, they cannot do this on their own.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): What is the job of a Member of Parliament for the area then?

Mr. arap Biy: A Member of Parliament has to be a legislator, he legislates here in the Chamber, he cannot educate his people all the time.

I do not wish to entertain these childish interruptions from the Assistant Minister, because I am just making a point which the Minister for Agriculture should take into account.

We would like to see the officials of the Ministry of Agriculture assist the farmer, educate the farmer on how to apply for the loans. Then, when the farmer gets the loans, he should be told how to utilize the loan.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, further to the amendment which has been moved and is supported, I would like to propose a very simple amendment which in fact, will strengthen the amendment moved by the Assistant Minister for Agriculture. After the word “loans” I would like to suggest that we add the words “and Government to entertain such applications”. We would like to strengthen this Motion. We do not want to pass a Motion which, in the long run, does not have everything clear and appealing in its intention. So if these words are added to this Motion, I feel that it will really make a lot of sense. We want the Government to entertain the application for these loans. When loans are applied for, Government should give some sort of assurance that these people of Witu and Kiunga Divisions will be assisted. We would like to know that these people will definitely be assisted, otherwise we find that we only have weak promises and once this Motion has been accepted nothing will come of it.

Hon. Tsalwa, as a good farmer, as my good friend, I appeal to him to second this amendment because when he brings here a Motion, one which deals with his area, I will second him and support him wholeheartedly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope that with the few words I have expressed, the hon. Members of this House will see fit to support this further amendment which, in the real sense, is only strengthening the skeleton of the whole Motion.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the amendment to the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is proposing an amendment to the amendment. The amendment already before the House is for the insertion of the words, “apply for farming loans”. What Mr. arap Biy suggests is the addition to those words of the words, “and Government to entertain such applications”. I have to see if any hon. Member seconds that amendment to the amendment. It is open to any hon. Member to do so, whether he has spoken or not, because it is new matter.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in seconding this amendment to the amendment I would like to say this. Time and again, we pass Motions here appealing to the Government to do something for a certain part of the country. But what shocks us is to see later on that nothing is done. These Motions are shelved and forgotten and, maybe, nobody at any time, considers that he should do anything in accordance with the request. Maybe, Mr. Speaker, the reason is that sometimes we are not well directed in our Motions. Therefore, I feel, with the insertion of these few words in the Motion, the Government will see that it has been given a directive and in many cases, if the Government wants to save its face—especially at this time when its face is not as bright as it should be—then as a good omen the Government will take this directive and act on it right away.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not, in any way, trying to suggest that the Government does not entertain applications of this kind. However, along with entertainment it takes a very long time for these applications to be processed. Sometimes they are not even processed for reasons only known to these institutions that lend this kind of money. It is high time that all parts of the country should, at least, benefit from the activities of our popularly elected Government. Unless a thing like this—which is so needed in this part of Kenya—is done to the residents of the area, I cannot see how these residents will entertain and appreciate the activities of Government.

Mr. Speaker, we do not only want to hear that in such areas like Lamu the only thing that the people see there is shooting of members of the public on some occasions—as we heard yesterday—but we want also, along with shooting—if shooting is really necessary—to see that they get some better things to help the development of the area.

Therefore, Sir, I should think that since Government accepts and knows that this House is supreme, and since Government also knows that it is meant to be the executive wing of Parliament, it should take this as a serious matter and act on it right away. I know that when these farmers at Lamu get this good news that they have been urged by the House to apply for these loans, I am sure they are going to apply right away and I am sure, in many cases, these applications are going to be in such a big number that even the Government will be unable to cope. However, that, in itself, should not be taken as a kind of hindrance to the Government acting on whichever genuine applications they receive. Government must act because this House—the supreme body, the controller of the country—has seen fit that it should direct the Government to do this.

Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Members, as I know them, will also accept this further amendment because, as the Mover said, it gives a clear and decisive kind of direction which I think Government wants to have so that it does not have to say that it was given a vague kind of request so it does not know where to start and where to end. Since this is very clear and vividly put, I am sure the Government will also accept the amendment and the House will accept it and wait and see what Government will do. I hope that they will carry out this instruction in good faith, at least to save its face today.

I beg to second.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir. I thank the House for agreeing with the main amendment, and the Government has no objection to the new amendment. What I actually want to make clear, Sir, is that the Government will only entertain these applications on the understanding that the applicants will meet the requirements of the loans. The requirements are those requirements which other applicants are supposed to meet. The loans are given on the understanding that the loans will be repaid, that is the first one. A loan will be given to an applicant who is known to be able to pay back the loan. Those are the requirements; there will be no other requirements, but they will have to meet the requirements like other people in the whole country.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

(Question of the amendment to the second part of the amendment, that the words to be added, be added, put and agreed to)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak I will call upon the Mover to reply.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to take this opportunity to thank all the Members who have spoken on this Motion, and also to thank the Minister for Information for his first amendment which encourages these farmers to apply for the loans. Let us hope that when these applications are made for loans, they will be approved.

One thing that I am not particularly happy with the Minister for Information is that he said I did not state clearly what kinds of crops these people grow in this area. As he is the Minister for Information, he should be fully informed of what is going on in this country. There is no sense, whatsoever, in his coming into this House to ask me—or any other Member of this Parliament—what crops are grown in this or that area. I, personally, am a Member of Parliament and I went to school and I know every part of Kenya and what types of crop are grown.

Therefore, this Motion, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is simply asking the Government to give loans to these farmers. Whatever he has said, I thank him once again for moving the amendment.

With these very few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move the Motion.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

THAT, this House urges farmers of Kiunga Division and Witu Division to apply for farming loans and Government to entertain such applications so that they can escape the exploitation from the richer people in Lamu District.

MOTION

SUSPENSION OF LOAN REPAYMENTS FOR SETTLEMENT SCHEME FARMERS

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move the Motion as amended with the permission of the Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member is saying that he is moving the Motion as amended, and we, in the Government have not been informed of the amendment, so is it in order for him to do that at this stage?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If there are amendments which do not, in fact, effect the substance of the Motion he can ask Mr. Speaker for leave to amend the Motion before he proposes it. He has, in fact, given notice that he would like to add after the word "Sotik" the following words: "and in some other settlement schemes", which, of course, is perfectly in order and does not, in any way, change the meaning or substance of the Motion. If, in fact, Mr. Kebaso makes that very clear, I am sure there will be no problem.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): I am sorry to stand up on this one, Mr. Deputy Speaker, but I think it was the duty of the Chair to tell the Government that this Motion had been changed because when you add "and other settlement schemes" it will not mean that all cattle have died in other settlement areas, which the Motion is going to say.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The Speaker normally informs the Government, but this suggestion for an amendment from Mr. Kebaso was given only a few minutes ago. I do not think what you say applies, Mr. Osogo; what it does mean is that settlers in Isoge Settlement Scheme and in some other settlement schemes. In other words, in other settlement schemes like Isoge where there are no cash crops because of bad soil, and cattle have died, then he is asking for certain allowances by the Government. This is perfectly in order I think. It has been allowed and we will now go on with the debate.

[The Deputy Speaker]

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move the Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that settlers at Isoge Settlement Scheme in Sotik and in some other settlement schemes grow no cash crop owing to bad soil; and since all cattle they bought through Government loans have died because of unknown reasons, this House requests the Government to suspend repayment of loans until experts from the Ministry of Agriculture find out the alternative cash crops which can assist the farmers concerned to repay the loans.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to know if these other settlement schemes are going to be specified in the course of the speeches, because this will force the Government to go and find out what is the actual soil structure in these other settlement schemes? Do we take it that they are not going to be specified in the course of the speeches?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, Mr. Osogo, what it does mean is this, that in Isoge Settlement Scheme in Sotik and in other settlement schemes of a similar nature, where if cash crops are not available or cannot be grown because the soil is bad, and if cattle have died, then he would ask the Government for certain allowances. In other words, as a Government, to suspend the repayment of the loans. He is trying to lump together all settlement schemes which have the same problem. He is not confining himself merely to Isoge, but any settlement scheme that has problems like the Isoge Settlement Scheme in the country should be given certain sympathetic consideration by the Government. This is what he is asking. I think it is perfectly all right as the problem would be the same, assuming that the Government accepts that in the Isoge Settlement Scheme cattle have died and cash crops are not allowed. I think it would be perfectly in order for some other Member to say that if Isoge Settlement Scheme is getting these particular facilities why not give them in other areas where the same problem arises, if it does arise.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have to get ourselves very clear on this one. Why I said that we hope, as a Government, that no other specific settlement schemes will come up is because we have the soil analysis of the particular one mentioned in the Motion. We will have to go and get the soil analysis of other settlement schemes if they specifically come up in the debate, and this will take time.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I see your point, Mr. Osogo, as I did not realize that the Government was, in fact, challenging that perhaps cash crops could not be grown in Isoge. If this is so, I think I see your point very well, and I must say that if perhaps Mr. Speaker had also known that he might have had second thoughts about allowing the amendment. I think we will have to go on the assumption that if Mr. Kebaso's contention is correct then you can do that, but if you challenge his contention and say it is wrong, then I think you can oppose the Motion as it is from the beginning.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Deputy Speaker, since we have had similar amendments, particularly on a Motion about tea, moved by the hon. Munyi, which was amended to cover the entire Republic so that it gave other Members from areas other than Embu a chance to speak, is it not in order for the Speaker to advise the Government, that is actually to allow other Members to participate fully? If they doubt the soil analysis they should bring the soil analyst here to advise them as they could just telephone him and he would be around.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The purpose is not to try to stop other Members arguing, in fact, the purpose of allowing the amendment, I think, in my view, was to make it more general; make the problem applicable throughout the country so that it could be debated rather than one particular settlement scheme. Mr. Osogo's point is—and I think it is a very valid one—that he is challenging the contention that cash crops cannot be grown in the Isoge Settlement Scheme, and as the Government came prepared for only this one particular scheme, it would be difficult to challenge the soil analysis, as it were, or challenge the possibility of growing crops in other schemes of which they are not aware because they have not had notice to examine the soil, or to make further inquiries. He has a very valid point, but I am afraid it is now too late as the amendment has been allowed, but Mr. Osogo and, no doubt, Mr. Malinda, will make the points when they come to contribute to the debate.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, why I wanted to make this amendment cover the whole country—I am sorry that the Minister is running away—is that I am not a one-sided person like the Minister for Information who goes to the Western Province and nowhere else. I am a member of the Sifting Committee which is concerned with all schemes and I do go around whenever the Government gives the team time to go around.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Isoge Scheme was occupied by plottolders in 1966 and the number is 146. These settlers, when they were moved in, were given money by the Government to buy cattle; some bought nice cattle; some bought barren or impotent cattle and those which did not die are still there and have produced nothing since 1966. Those that died from tsetse flies have not been replaced by the Government. The settlers who are still living in Isoge produce no cash crops and so they can only go to their original homes and sell whatever property they have to repay their loans.

It is a very bad idea that people are given bad land and when they complain they are not heard, and even when they produce nothing they are forced every time to repay their money, and when they have no money it means that in a very short time the settlers are forced to sell their children and wives in order to repay the loans.

It is obvious that all these people have been complaining to the Government from time to time and nobody has paid any attention. Mr. Angaine, the Minister for Lands, came to Isoge Scheme the other day and he promised them that wherever the farmers cannot get enough cash crops from the soil the Government would send experts from the Ministry of Agriculture to go and assess the soil, and if it is found that the land is bad they would be given alternative plots somewhere else. The Ministry, however, has kept silent and nobody has taken steps to rectify the position. Mr. Deputy Speaker, you will recall that some few weeks back, when the hon. Minister for Economic Planning and Development was replying to a report in the Nation, he agreed that the Kenya farmers in particular, are paying more money to the British Government than the money they borrow. We borrow Sh. 10 and we pay Sh. 50. This means that when we say we have an independent Government we are only independent on one side, in the sense that we have our Ministers and everything—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Kebaso. I do not want to interrupt what you are saying, but you must try to be relevant. We are referring here to cash crops not being available or those which cannot be grown on a particular soil, and that we want a moratorium on repayments. I do not know why you want to go on with the question of British Government. I cannot quite understand how it is relevant; perhaps you can explain.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the question here is dependent on the money we pay through the Kenya Government to the British Government. What I intended to say was that the settlers, or anybody who bought land in settlement schemes, is going to be a slave for 30 years to come. He has no money to repay the loan advanced to him; he is forced to repay this loan and has no source of getting money. He is only given a small development loan in the form of barbed-wire, a few posts and some nails. They do not pay cash. It is terrible that these people will have to continue like this.

When a settler dies, he leaves his wife and children slaves of these loans. Mr. Deputy Speaker, some settlers lost their cattle, as I said in this House the other day. If the Government money can be stolen, for example the money stolen from the banks and Post Office, and the Government writes it off, I do not see why the Government cannot write-off the loans issued to buy some barren cattle. Some of these cattle die immediately they are given to the settlers. Why can these loans not be written-off at the same time? If they cannot be written-off, why are the cattle not replaced? Why are the African farmers given barren cattle which produce no calves. Some people in Isoge who bought cattle in 1966, or Litago Scheme for instance, have been given artificial insemination but their cattle have not brought forth a single calf since that year. The Government still insists that they should pay for those barren cattle that were given to them.

When they ask the Minister concerned to replace these cattle, the Minister says "No". The former European settlers who sold land to us valued the land themselves. We paid for this barren land the same amount of money as we would have paid for any fertile land. Why was this the case? You cannot value your own thing if you want to sell it to me and expect me to call that a just valuation. However, these settlers valued their land and left for the United Kingdom with the money, leaving us and our children to pay for nothing but rocks in most cases.

Some settlers are living on the hills. They are told that here they can only have ranching schemes. As regards ranching, cattle die every week because there is nobody who cares to kill the tsetse flies.

The settlers who took away our money are happy in England when they receive cheques from the British Government every month, but we people from whom the land which was taken a long time ago, for instance, this settlement scheme where houses were pulled down when I was in Nairobi here. They are asked to pay for something they never saw.

The time has come when the Kenya Government should think about this question of repayment of loans to the United Kingdom. How are we expected to get money with this barren land.

Another burning question, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that while the settlers are waiting to pay for this barren land we get another team called American Peace Corps. They are posted to settlement schemes. Do you know what happens? When these people come, they are issued with Local Purchase Orders for buying petrol.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You must be relevant, Mr. Kebaso. I cannot understand what that has to do with this, I am afraid. We have to confine ourselves to the main issue. If you want to discuss about Peace Corps, you should have included it in the Motion. I personally cannot see what Peace Corps people do here has any relevance to this Motion. If you can make it relevant, yes, but not otherwise.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think I am speaking about these loans, and also bringing in these American Peace Corps, because the loan is made to swell since the mileage made by the American Peace Corps volunteers are also included in these loans. So, instead of the settlers paying for land only, they also pay for the mileage and expenses incurred by these Peace Corps volunteers, whereas this is not the farmers concern.

If the Government gets volunteers from overseas, let those governments also volunteer to pay for the services and the mileage. Why should our African settlement officers be tied up. They cannot go round in their Land-Rovers, while the Peace Corps are given freedom to move about, for instance, from Sotik to Kisumu, Kakamega, Nairobi and return. All these mileage charges are paid for by our poor settlers.

You warned me, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that I should not go out of the scope of the Motion. I said this because if we mean that we are independent, we should also be economically independent. We have no independence because so far our people are so tied up that they are not able to get money for themselves. They might be evacuated from the land after working on it for five years, because they cannot get money.

Mr. Kebaso: Everything they had is gone. It is unfortunate that we cannot sell human beings; otherwise some farmers could sell their wives, or surplus wives, in order to repay the loans to the British Government.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I should suggest that in order to help our farmers—I hope some of our hon. Members here will move a Motion one day asking the Government to nationalize these farms or to stop paying any further money to the British Government. If Tanzania could nationalize the former European firms, why can we not do likewise? Why should we remain under slavery. We say that we are Africans and that the land is ours, but we are being forced to pay for our own land.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this trouble of land concerns me and my Kisii voters. When we were going for a visit, sometime back, in settlement schemes with other 50 committee members, we passed through Nyandarua which is only 50 miles from here. This is the constituency of the hon. Kago. People grow nothing there. They go to Nyeri weekly to collect money from their brothers. They come to Nairobi where their brothers are working in Government Ministries to ask for financial help. Those people of Nyandarua, Mr. Deputy Speaker; if I could ask you and Mr. Malinda, to come along with me in my car this afternoon, you will find that nothing is grown in Nyandarua. Yet these people are asked to repay their loans every time. To pay for what? They grow nothing. Even cattle are not bred there.

If you go to settlement schemes in Bungoma, like Naitiri and Ndani, you will get nothing. Yet these people are asked to pay money every time. Why? We cannot continue being lenient over and over again and talking when the Government does nothing. We should say “No”, and the time will come when we will say “No”. We will say no—and stop praising them—and say so to everybody. If I am still alive, I will continue to bang this table and say we cannot continue to pay for something we never saw.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, these farmers are only given loans. These loans, only when they give a warrant of assent they say, “We give you Sh. 2,000 for development loan.” Do you know what they are given? They are given papers to go to the Kenya Farmers Association’s shop to collect barbed-wire. Some are told to go and collect wheelbarrows, others to go and collect fertilizers. and that is all. Who takes this money? Money goes back to the Kenya Farmers Association, and that money is flown back to England. What do we remain with? Nothing! We remain only with papers given to us to pay for something we never possessed. We are left bankrupt and we remain borrowing money from other sources in order to pay and please the Government. If hon. Mboya could agree with newspaper reporters that we pay more money than what we borrowed, in order to please the British Government, would it not be wise for the Minister for Information, instead of interrupting me here, to go to the Cabinet and put an agenda and say no more repayments would be made merely for pleasing the British Government. You cannot come here and shout to me and say that hon. Kebaso is trying to say "that and that"; otherwise we will ask the people of your constituency not to bring you here in the next election.

Some people, Mr. Speaker, enjoy here, and we do enjoy here, we selected Members; but we do not forget that we were elected to see the people who are suffering at home. We may have a very little time, and every Member's time is counted by God. If God says that you will not be here throughout the life of this Parliament, or next time you will not turn up, then the voters at home will start asking what we are doing. So, forget about this money. What is money? You may have thousands. Voters will be told "If you are given money by hon. Kebaso or hon. Osogo, buy anything you like to buy, even educating your children; but when you go to vote, because he is the wrong type of Member, vote for somebody else". How many people have been deceived in that way and their money is lost? People only need money, and forget those who are suffering. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, you know in this country of Kenya, a lovely country, there are some women and men who have never tasted sugar in their lives. Yes, we come here, and say that repayment to be effected repeatedly. No, we are going to see that those who are suffering, are looked after well. If I continue disregarding the poor people, probably when I am dead, my children will be disregarded by the public. So, we must be careful when we are in this House, and remember that there are hundreds of people who are suffering. These hundreds of people who do not have money, must not be given a heavy burden of paying for something they never saw; and you people, in particular, never saw. Time has come when we must not merely pay for something in order to please the Government. If it means death, let us die.

With these few remarks, I beg to move, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Omweri: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, and hon. Kebaso for agreeing that I should second this Motion, because I happened to be a settler in the Isoge Scheme and I will show the sufferings as a sufferer.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the calculation of subsistence economy on this scheme was originally calculated on the basis of four cattle per plot, but unfortunately, to start with, no settler in the Isoge Settlement Scheme has had two or more than two head of cattle, because the board happened not to have enough cattle. So, the few they got, those who managed to get two, and those who happened to get one, unfortunately, most of them died. So, you can now see that when we are already short of the actual figure that is estimated to be enough to sustain a settler in a scheme like Isoge, and when the few he got died, the person is left in complete confusion as to what he should do. This is what the settlement scheme or the Ministry tells us. This problem, where the cattle have died, we know that there is no actual subsistence going to come from the plot to help the farmer to continue getting the income to sustain himself and at the same time be able to pay for the loan.

The other point included in the calculation was about maize. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the maize price at that time, was Sh. 28 per bag; but the price now, as the hon. Members know, has been reduced and very soon it will be less than half of that figure. This has not been taken into account. These fellows whose loan repayments were based on a higher income is no longer able to meet the repayment. So something must be done to find out what is the matching balance. What should be done to match these shortcomings, because you cannot calculate a high figure—you do not give the settler enough cattle—you do not give the price for maize, but you still maintain that you are getting milk from cattle, you are getting income from maize, which he is not actually getting. So, the Motion, Mr. Speaker, is very fair; it does not ask for the stoppage of repayments, it asks that there should be a suspension of repayments for the time being, because these fellows are in complete poverty at the moment.

The second point, is an invitation which is asking the Government initiative, if it is interested in the citizens of this country. The Government should investigate and send in experts to do a proper job in the economic survey in order to see what would be a good figure for these farmers to sustain themselves and be able to repay these loans. Where will the income come from? Is it from the cash crop or is it from the dairy cattle, or where is it from? Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is why we have this Motion, because the Government is urging the people to pay money when it has not given adequate facilities to enable farmers to get income that will enable them to meet these repayments.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one other point which makes me support this Motion is the question of the officers. It is the point that the hon. Mover wanted us to touch on and was asked whether it was relevant. I want to make it relevant here. The reason why most of these farmers fail in this particular scheme, and maybe in other schemes, such as Nyandarua and others, is that we get officers whose homes have no settlement schemes. They have never heard of settlement schemes, and these people are the ones who come from New York. One of them was given work in Isoge Co-operative Society, in what they call "Economic Appropriation". Was it necessary? How will they get their team organized? How will they get their crop brought to an organized market and what other income there should be? And these people say that I do not just know. We feel that we do not get the proper people to advise the Government as to what the farmers are suffering from. We just put people there and we get contented that the Peace Corps are very learned; they are wizards and, therefore, they know all our problems. They do not know, and it is high time, Mr. Speaker—and this is my main point or suggestion—the Government removed these people from our settlement scheme in Sotik. Even if they do not remove them from other places, they should be removed from Sotik because they are a danger to our development. They are retarding our progress, and they are misadvising the Government which they should help to understand the economic appreciation of the people they are settling, the people the Government aims to help.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, whereas I do not want to show the hon. Minister for Information that soil testing has been done in this area, and has proved successful in various crops, I would like to suggest to the Government that there is no need for soil analysis in this area. This was initiated by the wrong type of people, whose interests were different from those of African settlers who came to these new plots.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Omweri: If they want to send in proper people, our chaps who understand what this means, then we are prepared to hear that; otherwise the settlers themselves, including myself, have done this soil testing practically. We do not need test-tube tests. We need practical tests on the soil, and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to assure this House that the Isoge Scheme, it is quite possible to grow high grade tea, first class tea, because we have done this practically.

In one plot, one of our settlers managed to buy his own tea and planted it, and that tea is doing pretty well. You need no testing. You can just visit there and see that tea can grow.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, pyrethrum—the other day we were told to plough it down because we had no quota. When we asked why, we were not told—the officers who tried to explain this to the farmers said, "You have been instructed that you should not grow pyrethrum in this area," and the main reason is that the subsistence calculation did not include pyrethrum. You are given cows and maize. That is the reason. At that moment, one man rose up and ruled out that people should not get the crops which were not included in the original calculation. This is very awkward reasoning, because we cannot be tied to, shall we say, the status of 1962, when this survey was done. This is wrong; we have to see how things change. This is a world of changes, and everything has its own progress, and in this case, Mr. Speaker, pyrethrum must be allowed to grow. All that we support the Government in is that it must be of high grade so that it can compete with the trade of synthetics. To give us the reason that it was not included in the original calculation is very bad, and nobody would understand that. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the Government will one day have to answer, when these things will be imposed on them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think one point I should suggest to my friend, the Assistant Minister, who is listening very keenly to my speech is this. In conjunction with the Minister for Agriculture, they should send to Isoge—I do not mean this Isoge Settlement Scheme now, but the adjacent area—a team that cleared the swamps at Yala, to clear this place as well. It is inhabited by tsetse flies. Most of the cattle which died at Isoge Scheme, and the Kinini Ranching Scheme, died because of diseases brought by tsetse flies. So, Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that this clearing team be sent there to clear the forest and allow us to plant pyrethrum and tea. I also support the Motion very strongly, the suspension of repayment be made at the moment, awaiting the experts' report.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have chosen to speak now, so that I can put some corrections in the question as proposed and brought forth by the hon. Mover of the Motion.

Before I do that, Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that the Government is not in a position to reply, or to give any indication, as to what other settlement schemes are in this question because we were not given an indication that the Question which has just been proposed would bring in such things. When we talk about other settlement schemes, Mr. Speaker, this gives us a colossal area covered by these settlement schemes. Nearly all settlement schemes are not identical. They do not have the same problems, and for that reason, Mr. Speaker, I am not going to touch any other settlement scheme except Isoge.

Now, the other point is that the question of this Motion, of Isoge Scheme, has been looming over our Ministry for a good six months. Last March, I personally made a trip to Isoge Scheme, and in fact I visited a lot of settlement schemes in Kisii and Kericho Districts. The hon. Mover of the Motion was informed in good time that I was going to visit this particular settlement scheme, and he was asked to come and indicate to me what he was concerned with when he gave notice of this Motion.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member did not turn up. I met some other Members from Kisii, and some from Kericho District, but this particular Member did not come. He left a message that he was going to Nairobi; but in the same evening, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member was following my road.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, does the Motion concern me personally, or does it concern the Isoge Settlement Scheme? Why should the Assistant Minister query my travelling. The Motion is talking about Isoge Settlement Scheme, not Mr. Kebaso.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is entitled to question your conduct with regard to this matter which you have raised, if as he alleges, you had an opportunity to examine with him on the spot the troubles which you complain about. That is, therefore, relevant and in order.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I was saying, the hon. Member went along the road I had travelled earlier, and we met at Kericho Tea Hotel in the evening, and then he started saying, "Oh, look, you know, I could not come along with you."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think—and this is my reason for bringing up this matter—he knew that there was no substance in his Motion, because what his Motion alleges is untrue. He knew that his allegations were untrue, and therefore, he tried to escape examining the truth on the spot with me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, Mr. Malinda, you are now going too far. You are, in fact, imputing improper motives in the form of insincerity to the hon. Member. You must not do that. It is all right to criticize his failure to examine the situation with you, but it is not all right to say that he is deliberately moving an untrue case.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, I am sorry about that.

Taking the contention of the Motion in the first part he says that there are no cash crops owing to bad soil. Now, Sir, Isoge Scheme does not have bad soil. There are some places where there are stones, there are some places where there are pieces of land which are waterlogged, but the Seconder of the Motion, I am sure, will bear me out, and he has even indicated in his speech that the Isoge Settlement Scheme has very good soil and he, himself, contends that Isoge can be planted with tea. Now, I cannot see how the two can justify their bad-soil contention.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order Mr. Speaker, the question of tea being planted at Isoge was touched by another Member, not me. You ought to be a bit careful when you are speaking.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Therefore, Mr. Speaker, this goes to show, clearly, that Isoge Scheme is not altogether composed of bad soil.

Again, to indicate that the area is not entirely composed of bad soil, I would say that there are 107 plots. To start with, Sir, the whole Scheme is composed of 4,490 acres. Now, out of these 4,490 acres, 107 plots are "B" plots; in other words, they are the plots which are situated in places where the soil is good and, therefore, the sizes of the plots are not big. These "B" plots can be planted with anything if the permission to do so is obtained.

Now, the other 36 are "C" plots which are slightly larger, and this is because, as I said earlier, you find some parts of the land waterlogged and some parts of the land are full of stones and cannot be cultivated. For that reason the "C" plots are slightly larger. So you can see, Mr. Speaker, that it is less than even 40 per cent of the whole scheme which is considered by our experts to be of slightly less potential. In any case, Sir, plots of a larger size are given in order to compensate for the inadequacy that is experienced in these 36 plots.

When this scheme was initiated, settlers were given loans to develop the plots. They received Sh. 4,000, each settler, that is, for the purpose of buying the plots. Each of them was also given Sh. 2,000. This applies to all the plots, irrespective of whether they were "B" or "C" plots. Now, the Sh. 2,000 was earmarked for them to buy milch cattle; and for the hon. Member to say that there is no income coming from these plots, I cannot understand. In fact, Sir, I will come to the question of revenue later on.

Now, I want to go further and state that the hon. Member says that the cattle which were bought through Government loans have all died. In other words, he says that all the cattle they bought with Government loans have died because of unknown reasons. This, again, here, is not correct. I am sorry to say it is rather misleading, (a) for one to say that all the cattle have died, and (b) to say that they have died of causes which are unknown.

Sir, by the end of March last—this is as a result of my visit to Isoge Scheme—I asked the livestock officer who is resident in the settlement scheme to give me an accurate and up-to-date list of all the cattle that have died within that scheme and what reasons had caused these deaths. Now, Sir, out of 834 cattle, only 11 had died up to the 31st of March. Notice of this Motion was given, I think, about six months ago. Up to the 31st March, 11 head of cattle have died. These are the deaths which have been reported to the livestock officer. If there are any other deaths which have not been reported, Mr. Speaker, how am I expected to know? How is my livestock officer expected to know? If a settler goes and slaughters a head of cattle for his friends, or for a marriage ceremony, that is entirely outside the scope of my officer's work. Out of these 11 head of cattle, the reasons for their death have been as follows. One died as a result of red water; three died as a result of East Coast fever; four died from anaplasmosis; only one died of trypanosomiasis which is caused by the tsetse fly; and there are two deaths for which the post-mortem could not be carried out because of the reports having been made too late. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it will be seen that all these deaths, except this one which died as a result of the tsetse fly disease, trypanosomiasis, could have been easily prevented if only the settlers dipped their cattle and used strong enough fluids to prevent ticks from infesting the cattle. The animal which died of trypanosomiasis could have been given an injection and could have been cured. We battle with this in other places in this country. There are other places where trypanosomiasis is much more prevalent than in this area.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, for the hon. Member to say that all the cattle which had been bought have died is very erroneous and, I think, also very misleading to the House.

He says that the cattle which were bought were barren. In other words, they could not produce. Mr. Speaker, could I tell him that the population of the cattle in that settlement scheme, now, is 357 mature cows. This is as at 31st March. More may have come in, the number may have increased. As at that date, there were 329 young calves, of which 136 were heifers of over one year, and 193 calves of under one year. There were 11 beef calves and 137 work oxen. Of course, these do not produce, but it will be seen that far from the cattle being barren, they have, in fact, increased quite tremendously. So for the hon. Member to say that they have not been increasing, again, is very wrong.

Now, Sir, the hon. Seconder of the Motion stated that the Peace Corps people who work there—I think it was Mover of the Motion who said that the Peace Corps officers who are working in Isoge Scheme, or in those schemes in Kisii, travel in vehicles, with Local Purchase Orders in their pockets, everywhere they go they purchase petrol, and the petrol price is added to the settler's loan which is to be repaid. Mr. Speaker, I am categorically denying this because these people do not work as though they were employees of the settlers. These are employees of Government, they are paid by Government, and the petrol which they use is paid for from Government funds. In fact, Sir, this cannot happen because when the settler gets into his land he signs a contract, an agreement with the Settlement Fund Trustees that he will be paying so much per six months. It has not been brought to this House that instead of the Isoge settlers paying Sh. 580—which they ought to be paying every six months according to the agreement—that they have been asked to pay Sh. 700 or Sh. 600 due to the fact that the Peace Corps people have been increasing the amount of loan to be repaid. This, again, cannot be accepted and we do not agree with this. This is not true.

Mr. Speaker, I want to tell the House what we have been doing and what we have been able to achieve in this particular settlement scheme. Last year, although the budget for the scheme was that 242 acres should have been planted with maize, in fact, 500 acres had been planted with maize. This shows that this area is quite capable of producing, in fact, nearly everything, every crop that these people would like to plant. I would like to urge the hon. Member to tell his people in Isoge Scheme that they can also go on and experiment with other cash crops, such as passion fruit. There is a factory in Sotik. If they planted passion fruit, they would get some money for it.

Mr. Speaker, I am also glad to announce that this year the Pyrethrum Board of Kenya has agreed with my Ministry that they will give Isoge Scheme a quota of 10,000 pounds of pyrethrum to be produced by these farmers. Here, again, there is an indication that the Government is doing something for these people. The only thing which is actually needed is for them to work hard and to be more industrious.

On the other side, Sir, because the budget for these plots included the production of milk, I am also glad to say that as a result of an arrangement between the Kenya Co-operative Creameries and the settlement schemes in Sotik, a lot of milk is being produced from Isoge and has been received by the Kenya Co-operative Creameries. It might interest the House to know that in January, just over 1,000 gallons of milk were delivered to the Kenya Co-operative Creameries at Nakuru from this particular scheme. In February it went down to 784 gallons. In March I do not know if the figure would have been higher if the hon. Member for that area had accompanied me, but it went up to 1,102 gallons. Again, in April, some transport difficulties arose and the deliveries dropped to 223. I believe that this has now been rectified and more milk is being transported. This, Sir, is something which the people of that area should be very proud of and should consider themselves to be very fortunate to have obtained plots in this area which is, as I said, capable of producing every feasible crop.

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks, I cannot accept the Motion. I oppose the Motion.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will only make a few observations on this. First of all I am rather perturbed to hear the Assistant Minister give us very conflicting figures on the cattle. He told us that there were 834 cattle and 11 died. Then he went on to tell us that there were now 325 mature cattle, and he gave us another figure of 329. These two figures are very conflicting and I think that when the Assistant Minister visited the area he should have told us, actually, how many cattle were bought with Government loans.

I know settlers in that scheme who have bought cattle with their own money and I feel that the Assistant Minister has included them as if they had been bought with Government loans.

Now, Sir, when we look at the scheme, I think we have a case why the Government should suspend the repayment of loans. He has said that in relation to milk they have been delivering over 1,000 gallons, Mr. Speaker. The Assistant Minister has not told the House how much money was paid to the settlers from the sale of that milk. We know that in this scheme settlers get about 70 cts. per gallon, and I wonder whether that is economical, whether that can enable a settler to repay his loan.

I think there is something wrong here. If three years ago the scheme was considered to be unsuitable for pyrethrum, how is it that now it has been found to be suitable for pyrethrum and settlers have been allowed to grow pyrethrum? If it has been accepted that the settlers can now grow pyrethrum, then we have a case to say that the economical appreciation of this scheme was wrongly calculated and settlers should not be asked to repay the loans.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we who are the former settlers of this area know the area very well and you find that these people kept only cattle. There were ranches, but these people were not growing any crops. I cannot understand, therefore, how the Ministry could advise settlers to grow maize and other crops in an area that was considered suitable for growing pyrethrum. This is why we say there was something wrong in the Ministry and the Minister now has to correct this by waiving the repayment of the loans.

The Assistant Minister has not taken one point into consideration when talking of cattle. Many of the cattle are sterile because the artificial insemination method has failed. It is no use counting the head of cattle when you are not getting milk from the cattle. I think this is an important factor that the Ministry should look into, instead of saying that there are a thousand and so many cattle, which are actually not bringing in any income to the farmer. They should advise that they should be sold and something else should be worked out. If a settler was given Sh. 2,000 to buy cattle—at the present price of cattle that is only three head, at Sh. 700 each. Perhaps only two. I cannot understand how two head of cattle can be economical to a settler for him to earn his living and repay the loans out of that at 80 cents or 70 cents per gallon of milk. I think there was something wrong here, and the Mover of this Motion has suggested that repayment of these loans should be waived or suspended completely and the people should be given time to develop their plots so that they can build something to enable them to repay their loans.

I do not want to say anything more about the nature of the soil because this has been covered by my colleagues. I would only add one small thing and that is that when His Excellency the President announced the two-year period of grace, these people had already been asked to repay their loans and they did not benefit out of this statement, which means they were being asked to repay their loans, as it was previously, after six months. After six months it is sure that none of the cattle had delivered and so they had no income, and so I feel they have been unfairly treated. I would ask the Ministry to review this and suspend the loan repayments completely for the people of Isoge, and I support the Motion very emphatically.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like very strongly, of course, despite the fact that the Government has opposed this Motion, to support it because this Motion is not asking Government to do something which they cannot do. We are not asking the Government to stop the payments or to withdraw the repayment of these loans from the farmers; all we are asking the Government to do is suspend the payments for a time.

Mr. Speaker, as one hon. Member said, I think this House would be interested to know how settlement schemes have been reached, because some of our hon. Members have only heard of settlement schemes but have never been fortunate enough to live on these settlement schemes. As it appears to me, the whole set-up went wrong right from the beginning. You can remember, Mr. Speaker, that it was arranged that loans should be repaid; the first billing and the first payment should have been made by farmers after they had finished six months on their plots: I think this is asking really too much because when one is asked to settle on a plot one does not need only six months to settle down there. One also needs this time—and even more—to start cultivating, to start getting these animals and, of course, the other supplies one needs. By the time six months are finished, this settler has not done anything at all. Comparing this type of settlement with the former settlement that we had, I think it can be seen that this was very wrong. The other farmers that were settled by the same Government which initiated this thing were not asked to repay their loans after six months, but they were given sometimes five years or two years—or something like that—and thereafter they paid yearly what they owed to the institutions that had given them loans. However, our settlers are asked to repay these loans after only six months. This is a very wrong arrangement which cannot be coped with and I think it is high time that the whole thing was reorganized.

Mr. Speaker, another thing that was very wrong, and which has caused this problem, is the budgeting of the schemes. You will find, in many schemes, people are told to grow only one crop or, to keep only one type of animal which, in fact, in many cases, do not go along with the soil.

Mr. Speaker, I come from a wholly settled area and I have this problem of settlers and settlement schemes very vividly in my mind. The hon. Members who have spoken have mentioned mainly the settlement schemes around Sotik or in what we call the northern area. We have other plots and settlement schemes which have the same problems, and I should think, even though Government has rejected this Motion, they should go into the whole problem and I also see to it that something is done about these problems affecting these other schemes, especially in Nyandarua. We have schemes like Malewa, and here the former settlers who were there did nothing but grow wheat. But when the African settlers were brought there, nothing like wheat was even mentioned; they were only told that they could keep some cattle, which the former settlers were not keeping well. They were told they could grow pyrethrum, which the former settlers were not growing and which, in fact, cannot grow well; but this was imposed on them.

I can also mention other schemes like Mawingó, Kahuru, especially where I live, Muruwaki, Karati, and several others. The problem, Mr. Speaker, is the planning. It should be changed because the circumstances that existed then and not only that but because the planners that did that—I can say this—might have had some pecuniary interest in the whole set-up, because I think it was very wrong. Let us face it, most of the planners who did this were mainly the farmers who had been living on these farms and they were aggrieved because they had been told to leave their farms and be bought out and so I am sure the advice they gave was not correct. This, as it has been said, has been proved by other Members who have spoken earlier.

Mr. Speaker, problems have come up, crops which had been suggested by the planners have proved a failure; synthetics and other destroyers of such proposals have come up; prices and what not have come up. Why can the Government not, along with trying to cope with this, try also to look into the other side of the affair and not let farmers remain in the positions in which they are meant to remain, because circumstances have changed; they should be put in another set-up. This is why we say that another kind of research should be gone into. The hon. Members have mentioned such other crops like tea, but also we heard a mention of other crops like Macadamia. These, I understand, can grow very well in some parts of Kenya, especially in the Nyandarua settlement schemes. Why has this not been gone into? Why has the Government not tried to encourage new research in these areas? I think the Government is failing in this and I feel that if they are only going to insist on repayments, one day they will find that no repayments will be forthcoming because the people will not have anything.

Mr. Speaker, we who are in—what the hon. Kebaso said—the Sifting Committee have visited several schemes and it is true that these are the problems that affect these farmers, and they are known to us and we have also brought them to the Government. There is a lot to be done; there is re-arrangement that must be done. We must not just leave it to the farmers to struggle by thinking what they can plant which, in many cases, does not fetch a market. I think Government should step in and not leave the farmers alone.

Further, Mr. Speaker, when farmers have found something that can help them out, Government should not then come and tell them they should not do this. We have had this problem where some farmers have thought, for example, about wheat and some of them, from small plots, had to fight very hard with the Settlement Ministry to allow them to plant wheat. When they are facing starvation of some sort, why should the Government come and say “No, because wheat was not mentioned in your budget, you cannot be allowed to plant it, and if you do you can only be allowed after a hard struggle.” Farmers should be left free to experiment and if they get something new Government should accept it and help to get the markets, but not leave the farmers on their own.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion very strongly.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is a very straightforward Motion and I want to make one remark and I would like the Government to note this: I am not happy and I am not satisfied to see that such a Motion is going to be answered in this House by the Assistant Minister. The Minister for Agriculture should have been in this House because we have seen the tendencies of this Ministry; it is a crucial Ministry. However, it is always the Assistant Ministers who are the ones who are responsible for answering all the questions relating to this Ministry. I think we should have the Minister himself here because we feel—and I must say this—the present Minister (and I am not talking of him as a white man)—is the man who has been the backbone of the agricultural movement in this country and he should be here to hear our views. We know that the economy of this country lies through this Ministry.

I would like to get the guidance of the Speaker if I go outside the Motion; but I think I am in order to say that the Minister for Agriculture has been in the Ministry of Agriculture for a long time, even during the colonial days. Most of the criticism of our agriculture has come on his side.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we now come to the planning of these settlers who were sent to the settlements, we find, if we read all the reports—Land Trustees and the rest of them—controversial statements in these reports, which contain our complaint that we are not satisfied with the way the Ministry of Agriculture is run, especially when we come to these settlement schemes. You find that our people have been planted in these areas. As the hon. Mover of this Motion has said, Isoge is one of the examples, the whole of Nyandarua is another. We have visited these places several times and we have seen how our people are suffering. You find that where the former settlers used to grow wheat, when the Africans take over this land he is refused from growing wheat and told to keep animals. Some of these settlers—an African taken from somewhere else—have no knowledge on keeping cattle. Why did these people not keep cattle there formerly? This is simply because there is an arrangement to exploit the ignorance of these people by consuming the money lent from Britain and this money should have been used wisely by putting these settlers in areas where they would be advised by the agricultural experts. They should be advised from the beginning what should be the correct crop to be grown in that case. To put settlers in a place and give them a loan of Sh. 2,000 or Sh. 4,000 to help them in keeping cattle, and then after six months you ask him to repay, this is ridiculous, Mr. Speaker, Sir. If we have any knowledge, we know that it takes nine months for a heifer to produce a calf and I do not know what logic made them ask for the repayment of the loan after six months. Where would the settlers get the money? I would not like to repeat what all the other hon. Members have said, because it is well known that when a person only has cattle with which to repay his loan, the cattle will not be in production by that time.

This is a very, very serious thing, Mr. Speaker, and I think the planning should be very much revised for the settlement schemes as a whole in the country. This is going to put our Government in a very ridiculous situation. Consequently, we are looking to see whether those people will be moved from the places where they have been put.

I entirely disagree with the Assistant Minister when he tried to calculate the population of cattle, the quantity of the milk and everything that has been produced in this particular scheme. The Motion here states categorically that all the cattle bought with the loan money have died. The Assistant Minister is trying to calculate that the milk comes from the same cattle, those that are alleged to have died. As I understand it from the Seconder of the Motion, the settlers, because they fear that they might lose their land, have bought cattle with their own money. The question here is to suspend the repayments of these loans until the experts come in and advise why these cattle died.

I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it would be wrong—and I must repeat what I have said several times here—because this is an African Government and we cannot come here as Africans to oppose other Africans. I wish the hon. Assistant Minister was a white man so that I could face him. I now regret to see what the country will say when they see Africans opposing each other. On what grounds? This is why I am saying I would have liked the Minister himself to have been here as I have a word to tell him.

An hon. Member: He is an African.

Mr. Kamau: No, he is not an African. I want to tell the Minister for Information that the Minister who is in Agriculture is not an African, if he wants to know the truth. This matter of settlement has so many complications.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kamau, this Motion is actually being answered by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when it comes to the issue of cattle, I do not think the Ministry of Lands and Settlement deals with cattle, it is dealt with by the Ministry of Agriculture. However, I agree with the Speaker that it is going to the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would say that if I said anything perhaps to challenge the Minister for Agriculture, I withdraw.

I remember the hon. Assistant Minister who is answering now used to be in the Ministry of Agriculture and he was causing all these difficulties that he has now brought again to the Ministry of Lands and Settlement. I would say that this is the wrong time for an African to oppose another African, and if you were not in the Ministry when all these things were done we thank you in this House to—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would the hon. Member speaking substantiate that when the Assistant Minister was in the Ministry of Agriculture he was causing the problems which are now before us? Can he substantiate by naming a specific one?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think it matters, so let us carry on.

Mr. Kamau: Thank you very much; he might have misunderstood me. What I would say in brief is that the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement should join the Members here in supporting this Motion, so that we can go into this particular issue and see that these settlers' case is raised and that these loans are suspended until the experts can come and report back as to why these animals are dying.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think the wording of this Motion is very unfortunate because the preamble of the main theme of the Motion does not make any substance. That is why the Government finds it very difficult to support this Motion.

The fact that an amendment was made to cover other schemes which were not specified, still makes it difficult for the Government to support the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just stood up to make a bit of analysis of the language as it is in the Motion. Mr. Speaker, the Motion reads, "that in view of the fact that some settlers at Isoge Settlement Scheme in Sotik and some other settlement schemes grow no cash crops at all,..." simply because the soil is infertile. Later on, in the theme of the Motion, we are told alternate cash crops can be grown on this soil. We are not told in the Motion, Mr. Speaker, that we should improve this soil. The Motion says that no cash crops can be grown on this soil because it is infertile. Later on, it says that alternate cash crops can be grown

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] on this very infertile soil! Sir, that does not make any sense to me, nor to the Government, because, Mr. Speaker, the Motion does not ask us to improve the soil. The Motion asks us to look for alternate cash crops which can be grown in these areas of bad soil.

Sir, this is not new land as far as we in the Government know. It is old land, and it has been farmed by other people before. We know what cash crops can grow there. We have been told by the Assistant Minister, and of course by the Seconder of the Motion, that the soil in this place is not infertile at all. Still, the Mover insists that the soil is infertile, although his Seconder does not agree with him. Now Sir, who are we to believe, the Seconder of the Motion, who says that the soil is fertile or the Mover who says that the soil is infertile? This, Mr. Speaker, is a big contradiction between the Mover and the Seconder.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is that we are told further in the Motion that all cattle, mark the word "all", that were bought through Government loans have died from unknown causes. Sir, I actually disagree with the amendment because it implies that all cattle in other schemes have died, which is not true. So, Mr. Speaker, this House is going to pass something that is not true, since all cattle have not died in any scheme. Now, Sir, if we want to ridicule this House by passing what does not make sense, and which will be read later on by people who may challenge it, we, as the Government, are not going to be a party to it.

Mr. Speaker, we are told by the Seconder of this Motion, who is also a settler in that area, just as the Mover is, that he knows the diseases from which these cattle died. The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement has specified the causes here. He has given the names of the diseases. Now why should we be put in this difficult position of admitting ignorance, that we do not know why the cattle died? We must be told by somebody who it is that does not know why the cattle died. It is not the Government because we know the reasons, Mr. Speaker. So, we cannot be a party to that, and cannot accept this Motion. We do not want to admit ignorance of something we already know.

Mr. Speaker, it is just the wording of the Motion that is unfortunate. I followed the speech of the Mover keenly, and I think he wanted to move a Motion here, to ask the Government to write-off all loans given to settlement schemes. Let it be worded that way, and the Government will deal with it. During the course of the debate, Mr. Speaker, and if the hon. Member for Embakasi was here, the Mover of the Motion based his argument on loans from Britain, saying that they should be written-off and that they should not be paid. Let the Motion be worded that way, and then the Government will have an opportunity to deal with it that way.

This House will give the Government power, since it is supreme, not to pay these loans and write them off. We will do that; but we cannot accept a Motion which is wrongly worded. If I were to amend this Motion, the Mover would have to accept that I would be teaching him English, but I do not want to amend it because I do not want to become a teacher in this Chamber to the hon. Mover who is a teacher and, maybe, he is better educated than I am.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to amend this Motion. It is upon the Mover of this Motion to find an appropriate and suitable language to word this Motion. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, we find it very difficult to support this very badly-worded Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Godia, you have just three minutes before the Mover replies.

Mr. Godia: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it is very unfortunate, that the Government stands to oppose the Motion, which is as a result of the complaints brought about by our own people in the settlement schemes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the Mover of this Motion has been speaking for the settlers in the area from which he comes. Although the Motion has already been amended precisely, to cover problems in other settlement schemes, this problem exists there. The settlers in this particular area bought cattle and these cattle died from causes best known to the Ministry of Agriculture. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we should not recommend that these settlers be made to pay for these cattle. This would be very unfair, Mr. Speaker. We should be very reasonable in this particular case and should help the settlers.

It should be the aim of the Government to help the settlers live peacefully. If we do not take in views of the settlers, then we are of no use to them. I appeal to the Minister for Agriculture to be sympathetic to these African settlers, because they are suffering hardships. We should pay heed to their complaints and try to help them where necessary.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Minister for Information in opposing this Motion because the language in which it is drafted is wrong, is also doing wrong because it is up to him to re-draft the Motion in the manner he thinks it will be meaningful because his people are also in a settlement scheme and are suffering in the same way. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wholeheartedly support this Motion and I will congratulate the Mover for bringing about this Motion to this House, so that we may find means of helping the settlers. Now in suspending the payment of loans from these particular settlers, it would be an opportunity for the Government to find ways and means of helping the settlers so that they do not suffer much. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to add that in the loan repayment it should be possible for the Ministry of Lands and Settlement to re-organize things so that settlers are only allowed to pay once, since they harvest once in a year, instead of paying twice. In the case of animals, repayments should be different.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I mean to indicate that it is good to support the Mover of this Motion, although the Minister and Assistant Minister are opposing it. They should understand that we are the Government, they are not a government by themselves.

The Speaker (Mr. Malinda): Order! It is time for the mover to reply.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful for the support I have had from my colleagues. I must say, Mr. Speaker, that you, as an old man who has been in Kenya for some time, you have never come across an aeroplane engineer going to repair, or becoming the mechanical engineer for a motor-car. So, Mr. Osogo, who has spoken, appears to know nothing about agriculture. He should have left that to be handled by people who deal with the soil.

If the Assistant Minister can say that that area is suitable for cash crops, then was it not possible for the former settlers in Isoge to plant coffee or tea? You find that not a single cash crop was ever planted in Isoge. The soil was assessed by officers of the Ministry of Agriculture and it was found to be completely unsuitable. If the Assistant Minister can tell me that there were cash crops there in the same way that we found them in Manga, Nasionga and so on, then I could agree with him. But nothing has been planted in that area since 16 or 17 years ago.

I think, Sir, the Assistant Minister could have done a good service to the settlers if he could say here today that they are going to send tractors to make furrows so that the water could flow and kill all the tsetse flies. Thus the settlers would be in a position to plant crops. That would have been very good; but arguing with a Motion blindly does not help Government, nor me.

In addition to this, for the Minister for Information to continue saying every two minutes, "We Government", if he says, "We Government" or "He Government", what does he mean? What are we? We are all Kanu Members, we are the Government. What Government does he have? Are we KPU? Are we not the Government? We are Government machinery. Therefore, he should not say that the things in my Motion are untrue.

Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister agreed that there are plenty of stones in some places in Isoge, and I am grateful that he has accepted this fact. You cannot grow cash crops on stones. If he has accepted that there are rocky, stony places in that area, then what else does he want me to complain about? He has, in fact, then, accepted my Motion.

He also said that some people were given Sh. 4,000 and others were given Sh. 2,000. I say that the settlers are treated equally. If the figure is Sh. 2,000, then it is Sh. 2,000; and if it is the question of Sh. 4,000, then it is Sh. 4,000. We should not be given two different figures.

He said 11 cattle died. He did not say how many were stolen. This place is on the boundary with the Kipsigis. He did not say anything about this. He only spoke of those cattle that had died, he did not say how many were taken to Chepalungu, how many were taken to other areas. He forgot to say all these things because he was hurrying up to tell me untruthful things.

On the question of the Assistant Minister denying about the Local Purchase Orders, I advise him to go back and check all the Local Purchase Orders. You go back and check.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): I did not deny that.

Mr. Kebaso: You did not deny that? Then why should this money have to be paid by the settlers?

On the question of the 1,000 gallons, I think the Assistant Minister counted Nansiongo, Getiogo, Esima, all these coming together to make 1,000 gallons. This does not relate to Isoge.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if 146 settlers could be given two head of cattle each, that would make 292. If they could be given three head of cattle each, that would make it 438. He spoke of 800. Where did they get these cattle from? The cattle have died, the people were given two each, there have been no more cattle, and yet he says 800.

[Mr. Kebaso]

I want the Assistant Minister to make a note of this point, one which I have mentioned to the House several times. We harvest our maize once a year. The cattle produce one calf every nine months in the same way that a woman produces one child in nine months. So how do these people bill the settlers every six months before even they can produce a grain of maize? This is very wrong indeed.

I also think it was wrong on the part of the Government that two Ministers were charged with the task of settlement—Mr. McKenzie holding the head as Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Angaine holding the tail as Minister for Lands and Settlement. Why do we want two Ministers, one holding the head and the other the tail, pulling each other? Why can we not leave the whole question of settlement under Mr. McKenzie or under Mr. Angaine? The whole thing is confused because two Ministers are working on one thing.

Mr. Speaker, where the Minister argued about cash crops, I would like to say that where tea is grown you can never grow coffee. The same applies in the areas where coffee is grown; you just cannot grow tea there. So he should not mislead the House that things are all right in Isoge. I want to tell him that he should go back and tell the people what to do at Isoge.

I do not think the Assistant Minister knows what he is doing because, the other day, in February this year, I asked him to tell this House who pocketed the money the former settlers paid for the land? He said he did not know. You should not work on something you do not know. What are you talking about?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, no, Mr. Kebaso, keep calm and address the Chair.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, all I am asking Government to do is to send some planning officers to the area so that they can advise the people at Isoge Settlement Scheme. Let the Government send us tractors to help us to make furrows. Let the Government also send some experts to kill the tsetse fly so that my voters in Stotik will benefit from the fruits of independence.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS*Question No. 51WOMEN IN THE ADMINISTRATION

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House—

- (a) How many women were at present working as district officers or provincial officers in Kenya's Public Service;
- (b) what ranks of administrative posts they held;
- (c) what action the Government was taking to appoint more women in these posts.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister of State to the President's Office, I beg to reply.

I will give the answers seriatim, as the questions appear in the Question.

- (a) None.
- (b) It follows that this does not arise.
- (c) The reason is that owing to biological factors, it is not possible to employ women in the Administration.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers, that owing to biological factors that women cannot be employed in the Administration, and arising from the fact that more than half of Kenya's population is women, is the Attorney-General aware that this itself is discrimination as far as women are concerned and—

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since this House is a very busy House and by the Member bringing such a Question in this House asking for women to be employed as district officers and provincial officers, knowing that we do not have such people, can you not, as Speaker, disqualify him from asking such a Question in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! On the contrary, Mr. Kebaso, I am afraid I have to squash you for a bad point of order.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. The other hon. Member who rose on a point of order, Mr. Speaker, has been ruled out of order by you and he should remain out forever.

All what I want to ask is this. Since, Mr. Speaker, there are a good number of women who have put forward their applications to the Public Service Commission for them either to be appointed as district officers or provincial officers, and since the Government has not responded to many applications which have been put forward by them, is this not discrimination as far as women are concerned? Is it not high time that the Government should take—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You have asked your question, wait for the answer.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the House to consider this matter very seriously—and it is not an aspersion on our womenfolk—but the fact that women are not employed in the Administration is entirely due to themselves. One of the main prerequisites of men being employed in the Administration is permanency. If the hon. Member can produce a woman who will undertake to be in her post for five years, at least, without being involved with being pregnant, then that woman will be employed.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply by the Attorney-General, which embodies a very serious remark about the women, would he not agree with me that what Kenya wants is not a question of biological requisites, but that of personnel whom we require, and if we can get it, even from the womenfolk, we should go ahead and get it?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, any person who is involved with the Administration, is quite well aware of the wastage that Government is suffering today because of the women who are employed. You employ a woman today and in six months she tells you that she is going to get married, another three months afterwards she is applying for maternity leave; how can you run a Government like that?

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Attorney-General has been very unfair to the womenfolk, because being pregnant is not a sin. This is also the same as men—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must ask a question you know, Mr. Odinga.

Mr. Odinga: Yes, Mr. Speaker, does he not actually consider that these absences which women have are also equally the same with men; men also get sick and then they do not work for a good number of days within the year? With the women, in a year or two they only produce once. I want to make this very clear, Mr. Speaker, because it is a very important thing.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not the occasion for a speech; you have asked quite a long question. Order! Order! Let us hear the answer.

Mr. Odinga: Can I finish it, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You asked the Attorney-General to agree with quite a long proposition and you must wait for the answer now.

Mr. Odinga: All right.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, first of all I do not agree with my hon. friend, Mr. Odinga, on this and I ask the House seriously to consider this matter, although not emotionally. I have nothing against women, but if a woman wants to be employed in Government Service, then she must undertake to work for Government for at least five years. If she wants to get married then, by all means, get married, but she must not apply for work in the public service. I am sure the hon. Member knows this, that the absence that he has mentioned of being sick, happens, say, only once. I have not taken one day sick-leave since I became Attorney-General in 1963. The hon. Member, when he was Minister for Home Affairs, was not one day out of his office during the two years he was Minister. I know a number of his own secretaries in the Ministry of Home Affairs who were on maternity leave about twice that year.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 65

SEARCH FOR WITCHDOCTORS BY KAJIWE

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister of State, President's Office if any permit had been given to Tsuma Washe, alias "Kajiwe" to search witchdoctors during the month of October 1968 onwards.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): No, Sir.

Mr. Mwatsama: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Attorney-General aware that on the 7th September last year, the Member for Kilifi South, the hon. Ngala, at a meeting in Rurema location, told the people that the

[Mr. Mwatsama]

Attorney-General was going to issue a licence to "Kajiwe" and this is why he was getting a legal hospital?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to inform the hon. Member that the Member he has referred to has not been to see me about "Kajiwe" and I have had no conversations with him about "Kajiwe".

Secondly, the importance of this man who is called "Kajiwe"—witchdoctor—is because he is being supported by hon. Members from the Coast. On one occasion, he was supported by a particular individual to be his witchdoctor to get more votes and then they fall out and "Kajiwe" is taken by another person for the same purpose. As this House knows, I have had "Kajiwe" prosecuted and sent to prison and I am going to do it again if he engages in witchcraft, or if any other person engages in witchcraft.

Mr. arap Bly: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the hon. Attorney-General's reply that one of the Members of Parliament made use of "Kajiwe" to campaign, and probably succeeded to come to this House, would he substantiate by giving us the name of that Member of Parliament?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the Attorney-General was accepting the statement made by the hon. Member, which he is entitled to do.

Next question.

Mr. Ekitella: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, since the hon. Attorney-General has explained, and I do not know what we have been told, could we be told who "Kajiwe" is; whether he lives in the sea, whether he is in the heavens? Could we be told by the hon. Attorney-General?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Be informed of what? I do not understand.

Mr. Ekitella: Who "Kajiwe" is, we want to understand.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You cannot ask that as a point of order.

Next question.

Question No. 8

ARMY TRAINING IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Defence if the Minister would extend army training to secondary schools in Western Province like Nyang'ori, Senende, Chavakali, Kakamega, Kamusinga and Bungoma.

The Assistant Minister for Defence (Mr. Njeru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I will certainly give consideration to extending cadet forces to secondary schools in all provinces, and not just the Western Province, as soon as two conditions can be fulfilled.

The first condition is that the money must be made available, which it is not at the moment.

The second is that instructors must be available. The present pilot scheme has been started in schools near units of the Army, Kenya Air Force and Kenya Navy. Either the cadets are brought in to the unit for their training, or the unit sends an instructor to the school. In areas remote from units of the armed forces, neither of these courses is possible. I believe it will be necessary for ex-N.C.O.'s, to be taken on to the strength of the staff of such schools, to train the cadets in one or more schools. This will cost still more money, and there would probably have to be additional supervisory staff to go on tours of inspection.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply, will the Assistant Minister consider including an item in the next financial estimates for his Ministry which would meet the required cost of army training in the schools requested?

Mr. Njeru: Mr. Speaker, it is not possible, at the moment because, as I have said, we have not got enough staff and the money is not available.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the early reply that the schools near the army units have enjoyed this privilege, could the Assistant Minister tell the House which these schools are?

Mr. Njeru: The schools are, Mr. Speaker, Alliance High School, Pumwani Secondary School, Nanyuki Secondary School, Nakuru Secondary School and Shimo-la-Tewa Secondary School.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 9

MILITARY COMMANDS IN SWAHILI

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Defence if the Minister would consider the possibility of now teaching the army officers simple commands in Swahili.

The Assistant Minister for Defence (Mr. Njeru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, not at the present. I will, however, consider it when Swahili becomes the official language for this National Assembly and you, Gentlemen, in this House as the leaders of Kenya, should show the way. If you feel it should be used in the army commands, introduce it to this House first, then for the courts of justice and then for all other purposes. I cannot see that Kenya's prestige or the efficiency of our armed forces will be promoted by using the Swahili translation of "Present Arms", for example.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply by the Assistant Minister, is he not aware that this House has recommended that Swahili should be the official national language of this country? That being the case, is it not time that something was done to introduce simple Swahili commands in the army?

Mr. Njeru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not my Ministry's responsibility to start Swahili in the armed forces. We have said here, in this House, that Swahili should be the national language. If that is so, we should start Swahili here first, as leaders.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, has the Assistant Minister really listened to the army commanders speaking English and commanding and does he know how horrible that language is, especially spoken by illiterate constables in the army?

Mr. Njeru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that was a very serious insult from the very hon. Gentleman from Embu East. Our soldiers are very well trained and they give the commands properly. I am sure the hon. Gentleman has never been in the army, and even if he went there today he could not even understand the language.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister really in order to insinuate that I have never been in the army, when I know I have been there and, secondly, he thinks I cannot understand that horrible language that they speak?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 64POST-MORTEM TREATMENT OF DECEASED CHILD PATIENT

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House why the body of Miss Mwanashabani Said Mwakamole, a seven years old girl who died from cancer at Kenyatta National Hospital, Nairobi, on Wednesday the 20th November 1968, was not properly stitched up after the post-mortem.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It was unfortunate that the body of the late Miss Mwanashabani Said Mwakamole who died at Kenyatta National Hospital on the 20th November 1968, was not properly stitched up after the post-mortem.

However, disciplinary action was taken against the attendant who stitched the body and it is our sincere hope that that mistake will not be repeated.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 21COMPLETION OF ELDORET-TORORO ROAD

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House when it was estimated the Eldoret-Tororo tarmac would be completed.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

If things go well, some time this year.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, which is at variance with the written reply that I have here, would he tell this House why, for the last five or six months, any work beyond Broderick Falls has come to a complete halt on this great north road?

Mr. Godana: Mr. Speaker, delay to work can be because of so many things involved. This work was given out on contract to a firm and when you give contracts to people you must sign agreements, you must endorse them and see things are done properly, so there is no question of delay. I hope that the hon. Member will appreciate that this year we are going to complete the road.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, referring also to the other reply which is unsatisfactory, is the Assistant Minister aware of information that the contracting firm—an Italian firm by the name of Ingreza—has been insolvent for the past few months and, as a result, no work is being done on that road, and is he prepared to look into that question?

Mr. Godana: Mr. Speaker, if no work has been started it is our duty to look into it and, yes, we agree we will look into it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think you have ruled out that no Member should come here with a bush jacket. Should the hon. Member here wear a bush jacket without a tie? I want to know this and I am seeking your ruling.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, it is quite all right, Mr. Ekitella, but I have ruled on this two or three times before. I have told hon. Members that there is no rule, at present, regulating the dress that hon. Members wear in the Chamber. It rests on the communal feeling of Members and I think so far that has been very effective.

[The Speaker]

On two or three occasions the matter of the dress of a Member has been raised in the House—obviously some Member thinking it was improper in some way—and he has not appeared in that dress again. That is the way we have to deal with these things.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Speaker, I think my dress—he is referring to me—is smarter than his.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will not discuss it any more because it is not a point of order. Order!

Next Question.

Question No. 54

SHORTAGE OF SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House if it was true that some of our schools were even lacking chalk, exercise books and other necessary school equipment, and if the answer was in the affirmative, how soon would the Ministry remedy this situation.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Yes, Sir. Before 1969, the system of distributing books and equipment for primary schools was that the local authorities issued tenders to local suppliers who then delivered the books as directed. Unfortunately, the Central Government later discovered that a lot of irregularities and possibly bribery and corruption had taken place in the handling of these tenders. It was, therefore, decided rather late in 1968 that the distribution of these books and equipment should be handled by the Central Government. Because of the fact that this decision was taken close to the end of the year, and that entirely new machinery for the handling, purchasing and distribution of these books and equipment had to be set up in the Ministry of Works, it was not possible to deliver the books and equipment to all schools on time. My Ministry is grateful to the Ministry of Defence and the Ministry of Local Government for the tremendous work they have put in to facilitate the supply and delivery of these items as rapidly as possible.

(b) I can assure the hon. Member that this matter is now being handled as a most urgent problem, and all schools will have received books and equipment before the end of next week. I may add that since the machinery for this work is now fully established, the distribution from now onward will be quite smooth and will be taking place on time. I apologize to the pupils, parents and teachers who have shown great concern about this matter.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers from the Minister, is the Minister aware that it was only a few weeks ago when His Excellency the President, in his capacity as Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, directed that books were to be despatched to both Kitui and Bungoma schools by armed forces vehicles. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in future it should be the responsibility of the Minister for Education to see to it that something is done in advance, so that our pupils can get in good time books which they are supposed to study.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very much aware that the Ministry of Defence, under the direction of His Excellency the President, has given us great help in delivering these books and that is why I have included them in the thanks I gave to various Ministries. I would like to inform the hon. Member that, as the machinery is now being handled properly in the Ministry of Works, he should not worry about next year.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies that the Minister had given earlier on, is he not aware that this question of supplying books to the schools started early this year, and since he has already told us that there are some schools which have not yet received books and that they are to receive them within the next few weeks, I think they will be more frustrated than they are now because even the next few weeks is not specific. Would he now tell this House the specific date when he is likely to supply some of these schools with books?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of the hon. Member my Ministry does not handle the question of tenders, but since I am the Minister for Education, I am just as concerned as he is that these schools do receive books and the equipment and I hope that the Ministry's drivers will get to the schools as soon as possible.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister agree with me that the Central Government has failed to supply books to all schools in Kenya. He should therefore start branches for such supplies in each district so that the books could be readily available.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a suggestion that I shall put to the Ministry of Works who are actually handling this. What the hon. Member has said is that instead of delivering everything from Nairobi he suggests that storage be established—

Mr. Wanjagi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister replying said that he was as concerned as the hon. Questioner. Does that not amount to the same as saying that he is not the person who should reply to the question. He said that he is as concerned as the Questioner which means that he is not the right person to answer the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would have thought a Minister or anyone else could be concerned if it was a matter which was his own responsibility. You were answering, Dr. Kiano?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was referring to the question by the hon. Member and I did say that the suggestion he made is a useful suggestion. If the hon. Member for Kangema actually wants to know the facts, the delay has been because the handling of the tenders in itself is in a different Ministry. However this is not the reason why I should not reply to the question because, as you said Sir, any Minister can speak for the Government if so authorized.

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in the beginning of the next question, may I be allowed to raise this as a Motion for the Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Any objection, Mr. Karungaru?

Mr. Karungaru: I have no objection because the Minister has failed to tell us which Ministry is dealing with books. I would like to know which is which.

Dr. Kiano: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I told the hon. Member in very clear language that the handling of tenders for any item in our Government is handled by the Ministry of Works. What I was trying to avoid was just to come and blame another Ministry, but for the hon. Member's information, the handling of tenders of any item of the Government is done by the Ministry of Works.

Question No. 70

C.P.E. CANDIDATES AND FORM I PLACES

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) how many pupils had sat for the Certificate of Primary Education Examination in the whole country in 1968; and
- (b) what percentage had been admitted to Form I places.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The number of pupils who sat for the Certificate of Primary Education Examination at the end of 1968 was 159,644. In round figures, we usually say about 160,000, but that is the exact figure.

(b) About 40,000 pupils, in round figures, were admitted to Form I in all Government maintained and assisted schools, private and Harambee schools in 1969, compared with 35,624 who were admitted at the beginning of 1968. The Form I intake in 1969 represents 25.1 per cent of the 1968 Certificate of Primary Education candidates. It should be noted that at independence 1,283 pupils were admitted to Form I in January 1964 in the Government schools and assisted schools; therefore the 1969 figure of admission to Form I in Government maintained and assisted schools of 18,325 and this is 18 times the 1964 figure.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could we hear from the Minister as to how many of the 40,000 pupils admitted to Government maintained or assisted schools are in Harambee secondary schools because these schools are now nearly collapsing. Could we know how many are in Harambee secondary schools?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that it is fair to blame all the Harambee secondary schools because a few may be collapsing of which the hon. Member knows. However since the speaker did not indicate the need for the break-down, if he wishes to have such a break-down, I will get it for him.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Could we, therefore, hear from the Minister, as to the whereabouts of the 75 per cent of those who did not actually get a place in secondary schools because he is the Minister responsible for education in the country?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member asked me how many pupils were taken into Form I. He did not ask me the fate of those who were not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should say that in any event as I will be informing the House later, that this particular question of school-leavers is going to be raised by Mr. Mbogoh on the Adjournment tomorrow, and you will have the opportunity of discussing it then. We come back to your first question, Mr. Chillo.

We now come back to Mr. Chillo's question.

Question No. 69

DAMAGE TO PROPERTY ON YALA SWAMP PROJECT

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House whether any arrangements had been made for compensation of those people whose property had been damaged in the Yala Swamp Project, especially those people from Yimbo Location in Siaya District.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister of State, President's Office, I beg to reply. Yes, Sir.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo What is "Yes Sir"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is saying "Yes" to your question.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Attorney-General's "Yes Sir", could he tell the House how many were compensated in Yimbo Location particularly.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Why I say "Yes" to this question is because if the hon. Member comes from this area, he would have known that compensation has in fact been paid to quite a number of people in this area. In other words, those who put in claims that they sustained loss, compensation has already been paid.

An hon. Member: To how many people?

Mr. C. Njonjo: I am being asked to how many, but I am afraid, I cannot give the figure, Mr. Speaker, because that was not what was wanted, but I can say this to the House: signatures of all property-owners were taken at the time they received compensation, and Mr. Speaker, Sir, this can be checked at the district commissioner's office if the hon. Member wishes.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the time I put this question, the compensation had not been paid to these people and for that reason this question is now being asked again in 1969. Is the Attorney-General sure, in saying "Yes Sir" that the people have been compensated? Could he tell us how many Luos were compensated? I want only the number, not their names, because in the question is about people as you can see.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Njonjo, you have been asked to give the number, could you do so?

Mr. C. Njonjo: I think in fairness to the other Members of the House, who do not come from this particular area, I am prepared to give further information and say this; I want the hon. Member to check and see whether I am right or he is wrong, because he is suggesting I am giving incorrect information.

On the 12th of November, last year, compensation was given to people from Yimbo Location where the majority of the recipients came from. Now, if the hon. Member comes from this area, and it is as I have said, and my friend Mr. Oginga Odinga agrees with me, then I do not see why the hon. Member has undertaken this vital responsibility.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for the Attorney-General to put words into my mouth that I agree with him, when he knows that I fully support the questioner?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Njonjo, I think you mistook a shake of the head for a nod of the head.

Could we now move to Mr. Omweri's question? Mr. Omweri not here?

Next question. Mr. Onsando.

Question No. 53

SEWAGE DISPOSAL, KISII TOWN

Mr. Onsando, on behalf of Mr. Nyaberi, asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House what plans the Minister had for providing Kisii Town with sewage and mosquito control for the health and welfare of the people of Gusii as this town looked filthy and had no plans for any improvement.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Gusii County Council has already asked the Water Development Department—rather than employing a private consultant—to act as their consultant in planning for sewage disposal, and the Water Development Department have agreed to work as such. It is understood that the issue is under consideration. The work will be carried out on an agency basis for the council and the normal fees will be charged.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that his Ministry, the Ministry of Local Government, has approved a loan for this undertaking and the suggestion to approach Water Development was a decision of the Ministry of Local Government and this Ministry is delaying the whole issue.

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry is ready to advance suggestions to these county councils, and now instead of the county engaging its own consultant, the Water Development Department decided to agree with the normal charges as a charge on item basis.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Karungaru.

Question No. 30

WITHDRAWAL OF QUIT NOTICES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House why some of the trading licence quit notices served on some of the non-citizens had been withdrawn.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry, I beg to reply. Personally, I should say "Yes". Some trading licences had been withdrawn, and the reasons are many. In a number of cases it was discovered that appeals were pending and in law you cannot take somebody's licence away until the matter has been decided by the Appeal Tribunal. That is number one.

Secondly, some of these notices were issued by mistake to citizens and these too, had to be cancelled because the notice in any event was illegal.

Thirdly, in some of these businesses, it was found that in some cases there was a genuine partnership between the citizens and the non-citizens and to carry on with the notice would have meant hardship to the citizens and, in most cases, they were Africans.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, would the Attorney-General go further, on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry and convince this House beyond any doubt, that the need which made the Ministry change its mind and start the withdrawal of the trading licences quit notices, will not continue, because the Ministry has already discovered the loophole. Would he assure the House that the Ministry would not continue to issue the notices only to find errors and later on withdraw the notice?

Mr. C. Njonjo: All I can say to that Mr. Speaker, Sir, to err is human, and everybody can make a mistake, and there is nothing wrong in correcting that mistake. If indeed the trade officer discovered that he issued a notice to the wrong person, there is no harm in having the notice withdrawn. However, I should have added another factor, Mr. Speaker, that there are certain areas where there are no citizens who can operate this business. Let us face it. Let us be honest and face it. Even the Members from those areas have said "Let these men continue trading until we have our own Africans".

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I consider the allegation by the Attorney-General very serious indeed. Could he be specific in substantiation and tell us which Members have told the Government that their people are not ready to have their areas Africanized?

An hon. Member: Yes! Yes!

Mr. C. Njonjo: It is no use shouting and saying "Yes yes" because the hon. Member does know that there was a delegation from Kitale which said that some of the notices were served on non-citizens, because there were no citizens ready to operate those grocery shops, and in fact if some of the hon. Members from those areas want to tell the truth, there are certain areas where we have no citizens at the moment, with the necessary capital and with the know-how to operate these shops. It is no use the hon.—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The point on which Mr. Shikuku was pressing for was whether representation from Kakamega was actually made by any Member of this House. If so, who?

Mr. C. Njonjo: I am not going to say who.

Mr. Speaker, I did not suggest in my answer that the suggestion was made by hon. Members. I said that there are some Members in question, and I did mention Kitale.

Mr. Oduya: I have a point of order. It is not a question.

I am still on that point which the Attorney-General seems to have generalized about some hon. Members of Kakamega District. I am glad he has said that it has cost him much to go to the province, but can he go further and tell us because there is a matter of policy and people should know if hon. Members made representation to the Ministry, why cannot the Attorney-General tell the House in the interest of the people of Western Province, including Kakamega and the country, that So-and-so said that there were no citizens in that area who can run the businesses?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Attorney-General here said that he has noticed that there was a delegation that made this representation to the Ministry. I think that is enough. He is not alleging that there were any hon. Members of the House who were a party to it.

You have a supplementary question, Mr. Oduya, have you?

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a matter of policy, could the Attorney-General help this House on the question of the Minister going to address a meeting of non-citizens such as this Lions Club, where he promised that the extension of these licences will be made soon, before he reports to the Members of Parliament about the failure and success of this Bill? Could we know whether that one is going to continue or the Minister has dropped the idea of extending the licences to foreigners?

This was said in the Press, and although the Attorney-General is probably not aware the Minister for Commerce and Industry himself went to address a meeting and spoke on the failure of the Trade Licensing Act and then promised the members of the Lions Club that he was going to extend the period to three years instead of two years. May we know what necessitated that and why that was necessary, before it was brought to this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Njonjo, do you get the question?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if he knows what the question is because I am sure the question is as clear as mud.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was hoping that you did hear his question. Mr. Oduya, you have not been heard clearly. It may be that the microphone is rather badly placed for you.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other day it was reported in the local papers that the Minister for Commerce and Industry himself had addressed a meeting of the Lions Club on the Trade Licensing Act.

He expressed his wish that he was considering extending the period from two years to three. That was after realizing that there were certain loopholes in the Act. The loopholes concerned the notices to non-citizens. May we know whether this is the policy of the Ministry and, if so, why did not the Minister bring the matter to the hon. Members of this House who passed the Act instead of going to announce it to an interested organization?

This is what the Attorney-General should tell us.

Mr. C. Njonjo: I am sure the Minister would be interested in covering all the loopholes in the legislation if there are any. But I can assure the House that there has been no change in the policy.

I read the statement, Mr. Speaker, and I do not think the statement was at variance with the Government policy and what was passed in this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is outside the present question, anyhow. We could go on now.

Question No. 34

PAYMENT OF PRIMARY SCHOOL TEACHERS' SALARIES

Mr. Tsalwa asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether the Central Government of Kenya was considering paying the salaries of all the primary school teachers direct from public funds.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

I am not quite sure what the hon. Member means, because all teachers in the primary schools under the local authorities are paid from public funds; the local authorities acting as agents of the Teachers' Service Commission.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very surprising that the Minister could not understand such a simple question.

The theme of the question here, Mr. Speaker, is that all the teachers in the Republic of Kenya should be paid by the Central Government because it is a very big responsibility to be left to the county councils which are already becoming bankrupt.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to exchange one blame for another, but the latter point is clearer than his first one. Here, the hon. Member simply referred only to public funds and I would like to inform the hon. Member that funds in the local authorities are also public funds. Therefore, his question is not clear enough.

Mr. arap Biy: While strengthening the question by the hon. Member that teachers in primary schools should be paid by the Central Government, and this is understood by the Minister, would he consider that suggestion very seriously to pay the teachers in the same central way as the distribution of equipment in the primary schools? Centralize all.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of distribution of portfolios is an exclusive right of His Excellency, the President.

Mr. Kebaso: The Minister is trying to evade the question. The questioner wants to know whether the Government is prepared to consider the possibility of paying teachers directly from the Central Government, instead of them being paid by the county councils such as Kakamega, which become bankrupt sometimes from January to December. Would the Government consider paying them directly from the Central Government or of transferring money from the county councils to the Central Government, instead of keeping teachers unpaid and children being put out of school for several months?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is still a point relevant to that question.

In the first place, the teachers themselves negotiate with the Government under one employer who is the Kenya Teachers' Service Commission. The Teachers' Service Commission, however, has used the local authorities as agents because not all the money necessary was available at the Teachers' Service Commission, and furthermore, the local authorities do now collect fees from the pupils in rural areas.

However, where difficulties arise we shall consider this matter with great sympathy.

Question No. 35

ABOLITION OF C.P.E.

Mr. Tsalwa asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether, as the number of Standard 7 pupils had increased greatly since independence, he would consider abolishing the Certificate of Primary Education Examination, so that pupils sat for a National Examination at Form II level in 1969.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Government is aware of the alarming problem that is raised by the hon. Member regarding primary school leavers. But it is not possible to predict the date as to when C.P.E. could be abolished.

Some of the major obstacles to be overcome before C.P.E. could be abolished, would be the question of finding teachers for additional Forms I and II and for all pupils who complete Standard 7. The second problem would be the question of paying these teachers. The third one of course, would be the question of capital expenditure necessary to build the additional classrooms.

I must add that the Government is extremely concerned about what to do with these Standard 7 school leavers and it is my sincere hope that one day it will be possible to abolish this examination when the circumstances allow.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the time goes by. Is the Minister aware that the number of school leavers in Standard 7 is increasing daily, and is he aware also of the fact that in the long run the Government will have to pay more money than it would if the Government could put up more secondary schools in which these pupils could be absorbed at the moment?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very much aware of that but I should also add that by merely adding one additional Form I and Form II we would not be solving the problem, we would be postponing the problem because the question is what to do in terms of employment when they leave school. Already we do have pupils who have completed the full secondary school course still looking for jobs. So the question would not be solved but we would be merely postponing it for two more years.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we will leave this question now to be pursued on the adjournment tomorrow.

UNIFORM MARKING OF C.P.E. PAPERS

Mr. Onsando, on behalf of Mr. Nyaberi, asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House, in view of the confusion which had arisen from results of examinations, particularly the Certificate of Primary Education

Examination, being quoted sometimes as points obtained by a particular candidate and sometimes as total marks out of an aggregate marks, the Minister would specifically lay down just one of the systems to be quoted in all cases.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The three methods mentioned by the hon. Member refer to the three aspects of the same score in the examination and serve adequately for the various purposes for which these results are used. The three aspects of the results and their purposes are as follows:—

(a) Grades only: A to E—these are used to show the grade achieved by the primary school pupil and the final assessment per subject.

(b) Then we indicate the figures written as aggregate marks. These indicate the actual points scored within one grade. For example, if somebody has received A and 5 points or 6 points, or whatever it is, then the aggregate marks give more details. This is very helpful indeed for the purpose of selecting pupils for secondary schools.

(c) This one is not a very important one, the one that is used to replace the old language of pass or fail. Therefore the third one, Mr. Speaker, is not a very important one.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell the House which system is actually used to determine who goes to Form I, is it the marks or the grade?

Dr. Kiano: I thought I had explained, Sir, that the actual marks which are indicated in the aggregate total are the ones.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

DISSOLUTION OF MASABA FARMERS' CO-OPERATIVE UNION

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to ask the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services the following Question by Private Notice:—

Owing to the recent announcement by the Commissioner for Co-operatives to the effect that he had dissolved the Masaba Farmers' Co-operatives Limited and had appointed a commission of two members to handle its affairs, will the Minister inform the House whether those involved in malpractices, including the transporters, have been charged and how many; and, if so, had the amount involved already been recovered and how much had been the total loss to members (pyrethrum growers)?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, on behalf of my colleague, the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services, I beg to reply.

The clerk who was responsible for issuing permits to transporters has already been arrested and is due to appear in court next Tuesday. Therefore, since the matter is sub judice it is not possible to determine the number of people who were involved in malpractices in the Masaba Farmers' Co-operatives Limited until the court's action is made known.

As regards the second part of the question, the original amount involved was KSh. 119,366/25, out of which KSh. 36,230/65 has been recovered, leaving the outstanding loss of KSh. 83,135/60.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

EMPLOYMENT FOR SCHOOL LEAVERS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now. I have to inform hon. Members that Mr. Mbogoh, having renewed a previous notice, wishes to pursue on the adjournment his question in the previous Session, No. 445, concerning problems of school leavers' employment, and I have appointed the end of business tomorrow, Tuesday, 27th May, for him to raise that matter.

DISSOLUTION OF LAND SELECTION COMMITTEE BY DISTRICT COMMISSIONER, KISII

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On Wednesday, 28th May, on the adjournment, Mr. Onsando will follow up his Question No. 43, concerning the dissolution of Settlement Committee by the District Commissioner, Kisii.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, as a point of information, I would like to know which Ministry is to reply to the question tomorrow, on the adjournment, I or the Minister for Labour?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I see it is marked for the Minister for Labour. I think, probably, it is more his concern.

MOTION

THANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi) on 21st May 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 22nd May 1969) (Third Day)

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a few things about the Presidential Address which we heard here last week. Looking at this speech, Sir, for the occasion that it was intended, one has to come to the conclusion, after reading the speech, that it was most inadequate for the occasion because this was an important occasion. Mr. Speaker, also, if one looks at the speech very carefully, some of the aspects of this speech are not quite clear and cannot be understood. Also, some of the aspects of the speech that make promises seems to be very presumptuous, in that one cannot see how these promises can be made.

On that day, a very important day for this country, the Presidential Address was a speech which was being made six years after our independence. What one expected to hear on that day was, what the Government had achieved during the past six years that it has been in power. In addition to this, what one would have liked to hear is what the Government had in mind, or the hopes of the Government with regard to the future of the nation as a whole. Yet, Mr. Speaker, when one reads the speech you do not really get the answers to these questions as to what contributions the Government has made within the last six years. It is very soon that the Government mandate is coming to an end and one would expect that the Government would have told this House clearly, or told the nation, what it has done for the nation so far.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we talk of achievements of the Government, we do not only refer to material achievements which are important in themselves, the economic achievements and so on, but we also refer to other things, and we would have liked the Government to tell this country what has been achieved in regard to inculcating into our people the correct sentiments and attitude for the development of Kenya as a nation. Also, Sir, we would have liked to hear, as far as the Government is concerned, what direction the Government had given to the people of Kenya so far as ideological direction is concerned. Was it socialism or capitalism? All these questions are left unanswered in the speech of the President, and after you have read the speech you are at a loss with regard to what exactly Kenya—or the Kenya Government that is soon going out of power—has done for the country, and what kind of base it has built in the country.

The speech talks of a certain expansion of the economy, and so on. Well, all this expansion of the economy, or even Africanization which the Government is so fond of saying is one of the things it has done, does not really help very much with regard to stability of the country because it would be important for us to know just what type of development the Government had in mind, what type of social development, or what type of economic social system the Government had in mind and have established for Kenya, and how had this been applied. This is completely missing, Sir. In the empty words of Africanization which has been criticized several times, that this comes merely to window-dressing of putting in Africans as directors of companies that belong to foreigners, this has not been improved upon. Therefore, we are completely at a loss. Sir, independence was to bring to the common man of Kenya justice, economic opportunity. This speech does not tell us how the ordinary man in the reserve, or the ordinary worker in Nairobi is going to find justice or how he is going to get his economic opportunity. As a matter of fact what is left to us to see, tends merely to enrich the already rich, while those who are poor are likely to be getting poorer and poorer.

In relation to the constitutional and political development of this country, the speech leaves us in doubt because while we all believe in parliamentary democracy, the speech has a passage in it which, I think, has already been pointed to by the Leader of the Opposition, of creating fears, that there was a small minority in this country that was subversive and was using this aspect of freedom in our constitution. Now, this in itself, makes it most difficult to understand; it creates doubt with regard to what the Government has in mind. So, in other words, everything is not quite clear. The Government has not stated categorically what kind of economic social system it has been trying to establish in Kenya, and the Government has not stated categorically what type of democracy it is going to have in Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been left in the air as far as this is concerned.

There has been something said in relation to a Bill that is coming here which is to deal with the National Assembly elections and so forth. Even that particular passage which refers to this Bill, in view of the recent official announcement that the country would be going to primaries and so forth, leaves one quite confused because the passage talks of giving responsibility of electing the candidates to the political parties, while the announcement with regard to primaries is intended for the opposite. So, when reading this speech, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not get the problems of the country, and what the Government had in mind to solve them.

The six years that the Government has been in power has not brought any improvement at all to the vast majority of Kenya's people. This, of course, can be seen. When the Government is talking of the plans for 1969-1974, and saying that this is the particular time when it will pay more attention to the rural areas, this is an admission of failure. This Government has had five years in which to show the people of Kenya what it could do. Now, somehow or other they managed to get two more years through rather doubtful means, and this time is coming to an end in 1970. So one cannot understand why this same Government should be speaking of plans for 1969-1974. This is completely beside the question because the Government ought to have told this country what they have done from 1963 to date, not what they intend to do when they are not going to be in power, when somebody else is going to decide on things. This is definitely an admission of failure. They had the mandate of the people and they failed to fulfil the mandate and now they are trying to talk of the future which is rather presumptuous because no one has said that they are going to direct things in 1974, or up to 1974.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Constitution that is being talked of, we do not see where that Constitution is. We are told that there is now a consolidated Constitution. Where is that Constitution? All we hear is talk of the primaries, talk of the Ol Kalou Declaration, that sort of thing. Are these constitutional matters or are they things in the air? Where is that Constitution in any case?

So, Sir, this speech we had from the Chair did not benefit us at all, it did not tell us what the Government has done; it merely talks of some things which the Government has done which, when you look for them, you cannot find them. There is talk of a Constitution but you cannot find it; they talk of a Development Plan, but that plan is not even there. Instead they plan for the time when they are not supposed to be in power. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, this speech was completely out of the place that it was supposed to have dealt with.

The assumptions of development of agriculture here are also quite alarming. They talk of what they have achieved, they talk of the position of food as being enough for Kenya needs now, that they are going into growing vegetables, flowers for foreign markets. If you go to Turkana, Isiolo, Baringo, you find that people cannot get any vegetables or fruit to eat. Despite this, they are thinking of flowers to send to their friends abroad while the people of Kenya are going hungry. That kind of planning is wrong and that kind of planning cannot be accepted by the people of this country.

I would say that some of the achievements that the Government claims to have done really do not amount to anything.

[Mr. Okelo-Odongo]

Now, Sir, they say they have laid the foundation. I am sorry to say this, but I would like to mention that the foundation is not there, the foundation, if anything, is a weak one and the Government has left the country in the air.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am prompted to stand at this juncture, because I have become terribly heated by my friend who has been speaking. He spoke as if this Government has done absolutely nothing since it came into power in 1963. Mr. Speaker, this is over-playing what little he had to contribute to the House. Even the blindest man could point to some things which this Government has achieved. The Government, I say, has made tremendous achievements and we, the supporters of this Government, who participate in it, who are with this Government as a matter of life and death, would like to show to the country, with pride, that there has never been a better Government which could run this country from 1963 to date. We are confident that from now on until 1974 we shall be in power. That is why we are talking of 1974. That is not all: we are about to start talking of 1980, because we do not see any hope from our few friends, who are now eight in number, to take over.

Having assured the Opposition of the present position, I would like to say something about the Speech of the President. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we who are on this side fully understood and appreciated the Speech of the President. It contained so much for those who have eyes and ears to see and hear. For those who cannot understand anything from that document, we would like to say the fault is not ours. If my friend, hon. Okelo-Odongo would like to have some briefing, some clarification and some education about the speech I would like him to come to me and we can talk it over later on.

Mr. Speaker, the speech is worthwhile and I congratulate the President for having delivered it in the manner, style and content that he did.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many people who have spoken here have tried to speak about unemployment and if unemployment is only found in Kenya and it cannot be found anywhere else and is not known anywhere except here. This is a very stupid way of approaching the problem; blaming and blaming. A country like the United States, and all the developed countries of the world, has this problem. I want to tell those who are in school—including my own children—that going to school and finishing somewhere without any training will not guarantee—and it will not be a guarantee in the future—an automatic job. This is the argument advanced for school-leavers.

Unless there are people who are now in jobs ready to quit their jobs and give them to school-leavers and say, "All right, here is my contribution to the country, I have been working for five years and so I am now giving my employment to a school-leaver", this will go on. This is a problem which is international and nobody should start blaming the Government, as if the Government can start creating employment. They cannot take away somebody's property—including the hon. Members' property—and give it to the unemployed. Even if they do so, the amount of property we have in the country is not enough to feed all the unemployed.

We cannot talk about the unemployed as if we are living in the sky; these unemployed are our brothers, our sisters, our mothers, and we do not live away from them as they live with us. Everyone who is employed supports how many unemployed? This is why you do not find them on the streets of Nairobi at night because, in fact, they are the fellows who drink most of the beer, because when you offer them anything else they like expensive cigarettes and all that. These are the people who are suffering because they are maintaining them. Therefore, the problem is not of the unemployed only; it is also the problem of those who are employed and are getting very small salaries and are supporting everybody. We cannot look at it from one side and then blame and blame. Let us come here and suggest means of finding jobs for all of them; those who are, at the moment, unemployed and who will be unemployed next year, everybody. The problem cannot be solved in one day because it is increasing every day. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, we cannot play with fire. No Government will come today in this country and solve unemployment tomorrow. This is a continuous process and we will have to solve it every day as it keeps arising. Therefore, I would like those who are employed and those who are unemployed to work hard and everybody to see that we make suggestions to reduce this problem, because it will never be solved in the present set-up.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, everybody is working hard on the farms. I sympathize with the Government because they tell us to grow more coffee and then the world market falls because there is no market for coffee; then they say grow sugar and then the world market for sugar drops. These are things over which we have no control. We do not control the world markets and we cannot sell our products by force to these countries. They lower the prices and then make the prices for their machinery high, which spoils our efforts because, on the one hand, we want to mechanize our farms and, on the other hand, the products we produce do not find a place on the world markets. Can the Government force Germany, the United States of America or the U.S.S.R. to buy our products which are the things they want to sell to us? Their scientists are working day and night to sabotage us by producing synthetic this and that and then we have a break-through and produce all these products only to find that there is synthetic meat, there is synthetic sisal and so what can we do? All this makes the Members speak here unrealistically and they blame Government. Government cannot stop these things.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words on the primary elections. This idea is good but it is being spoilt. Here you find that people have their own ideas which they want to push forward. No one opposes the primary elections; this is the best present that we can give our people so that they elect the people they want to elect. Nobody should come and try to make a formal declaration here that this is a defeat of some group and the victory of some group. The idea of primaries is not new and with all respect—or disrespect—for Ol Kalou, Ol Kalou did not start this. I am surprised today to hear that there is no Ol Kalou Declaration and that Ol Kalou was just a meeting, but this has been supported all the time. When we had the Parliamentary Group meeting we heard that Ol Kalou had defeated whatever it is, but today I hear there is no Ol Kalou. This is a thing by which we are confusing our people and the punishment will be delivered to us all. I am confused by these people who are trying to confuse us. I thought there was Ol Kalou, but today I hear that there is no Ol Kalou, but the people have been supporting it in the newspapers, everywhere, but it was just a meeting. In that case there is Mombasa now.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that this ganging up against the primaries is meaningless and anybody who is ganging up on the primaries to save his neck is wasting his time. During the days of the primaries every Member will face his people and they will deliver judgment and anybody who is ganging up with him here will not be seen, and therefore I would advise the Members to go back and work and try and convince the people as they have been here long enough to have been judged already. Those who have done good things are known and those who have done bad things, no amount of ganging up with anybody will save their necks. Therefore, I do not like to hear people laying too much importance on this. I would suggest that the primary elections' day should be one so that everybody will be electing these people everywhere so that nobody can be saved by somebody else, because people think that if they gang up with a certain group they will be saved on that day. Anybody who is to die will die because there is no saving.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to speak awhile on nation building. I think that some newspapers are confusing the public; some newspapers have involved themselves and have taken sides with certain people to support them and they are trying to dampen others. We hope that the newspapers are impartial.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, there are several newspapers in this country and the hon. Member has said that certain of these have taken the line of siding with certain people; can the hon. Member substantiate that and tell us which newspaper that is and which—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! No, I think that is too general an allegation to require substantiation. Newspapers do tend to take sides on one thing or another. Will you continue, Mr. Jahazi.

Mr. Jahazi: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, I am so careful and I know how to talk and I know what am talking about.

Mr. Speaker, this is the truth: they have taken a line to dampen some and support other people. This is very unfortunate and it is just starting. We want newspapers to be impartial and quote facts and facts alone, and not to involve themselves. When they hear that there is an Ol Kalou they jump on that as if they know more and have cooked it in their own offices.

Mr. Speaker, I would not like to say much and I am going to deal with the facts and figures later on, but on this specific speech of the President, I would like to say that I congratulate the speech and I support it wholeheartedly.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is usually very interesting to hear other hon. Members speak on this speech, but I would like to stress the fact that this Presidential Speech was quite an ordinary speech which is usually the President's style of making a speech, and we support it fully.

What I would like to note there, Mr. Speaker, is the fact that the words contained in that speech are words which are used daily by the hon. Members in their own constituencies, and they usually say the same thing that the President said. Why we put such emphasis on this speech is because in these days it is not what is said that matters, but it is who says it which matters. In this case, this speech, being delivered by the President of this Republic, is much more important than if delivered by the hon. Jahazi, or any other Member of the public as usual.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

Mr. Speaker, the President spoke on the Development Plan which is a planning guide to the development of this country, and if the Development Plan was followed as the President advocated, we would find that there would be no complaints from different quarters. At present, the Development Plan is taken politically. To start with, if there is an industry to be set up in one of the districts in Kenya, what happens is that a certain individual, or certain circumstances, influences the setting up of this industry. I have seen a few times when we have gone to this Minister or the other and have asked why there is no industry in such-and-such a place. The answer usually is that the investors have the right to choose whether they would like to invest. However, Mr. Speaker, I have never believed that they just choose independently and with no influence. If an investor comes around, first of all he meets the big shots right at the top and it is possible that as soon as he reports that he wants to have some investment some place, what happens is that everybody starts speculating, and once they start speculating they influence the judgment of the investor, and in that case it does not go to where it is needed, it goes to where others want it to go. There are many of us who have no influence on these people because when they come they do not report to everybody; they go to certain circles. I would urge the planners to follow this Development Plan very honestly and look after every part of the country without discrimination. We have always said that in Kenya we are going to develop those areas that the Colonial Government did not develop. However, what do we see today? Those places are still left behind because industries are concentrated in certain places, usually around the towns. In that case, Mr. Speaker, it is now the right time that they obeyed the President's call to decentralize these industries and instead of putting them in the towns put them outside the towns somewhere and let every district have a share of the development.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, this would reduce the present threat of school-leavers who are coming to the towns in big numbers because those are the only places where they can get jobs. Who can blame them because they will not get jobs outside the towns? If they go to the district headquarters, they have enough clerks and they have enough sweepers there, and so the next place left is the towns. This is mainly a question of the City of Nairobi and you find all of them coming very long distances. This is not very efficient because what happens in this thing is that when these school-leavers come to the headquarters of the Ministries concerned they are listed down and when they are listed down they are told to go and wait. For how long can a school-leaver wait after doing his School Certificate at Division II. He hears that those who passed in Division III or failed their School Certificate have got jobs, but those who passed in Division II have no jobs anywhere. This is very unfair and if the students have tried to work very hard to pass their examinations, they should be given priority over those who fail their examinations; the priority should be given to those who merit it and not to those people who did not try as hard as possible.

Mr. Speaker, another point which I thought was taken care of very carefully, was the question of the self-help projects in this country. The President knows as well as anybody else knows that before he uttered the word Harambee, it existed in this country, but because it was being used by people who were not in prominent positions, it was not a very important word. However, we can now see how important this word Harambee is in this country; it has pushed mountains: it has built bridges; it has built schools; it has built roads and nearly everything is built by Harambee these days. This is because this word came under the proper influence. As I said before, it does not matter what words are said, what matters is who says these words. This word, having come from the President of this Republic, has worked wonders. Now is the right time for the self-help projects to be planned in such a way that instead of a small self-help group starting a small primary school somewhere, or trying to build a secondary school on the Harambee basis, let them finish what they have. They should start utilizing the facilities of the schools they have and run them efficiently before they start another self-help group. At present, Mr. Speaker, you find our people keep on contributing until they are broke. This does not help very much because they start building a health centre and before that one is finished, there is a church starting just next door, and before that goes half-way there is a primary school going on within the next few yards. The same people will continue contributing for all these things and finally we will have these buildings standing there for another 20 years without being used at all.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I feel that this is now the right time for our Development Plan to be co-ordinated, and if this can be co-ordinated, if a village wants to start something, they must complete one thing first before they are allowed to put up another one. In this way the citizens will be happy. At the moment, this spirit is losing ground because of this unplanned development.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

During the time when people are trying to build something you find that the Administration has also got its own self-help project and they do not even consider the fact that those people in the villages have already planned others. The district commissioners just stand up and say that they are going to build such-and-such a thing. What happens is that he sends a district officer and the district officer sends a chief and the chief sends a sub-chief and they go and force the people to give these funds; they do not collect these funds voluntarily. If somebody in the village does not have the money they pinch his goat and they sell it. This is not self-help; this is forced labour which is against our Constitution. I feel the departments should co-ordinate their efforts and co-ordinate the efforts of the people and with the people and then, after that, we will have a very efficient self-help system—Harambee system—which will take care of all the plans which we are trying to get going at present.

Mr. Speaker, if it is a question of the politicians building by self-help, let them do it and let them tell the people and announce to them what they want. If it is the politicians against the civil servants, then it will not work and it will be very difficult for this Government to control the whole thing because the politicians want to develop the country and the administrators want to develop the country, but they must meet somewhere.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support that speech.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am most grateful for this opportunity and I would like to say a few things on the Presidential Speech. The President spoke of the responsibilities and functions of the hon. Members of this House and the dignity of Parliament. The President underlined this and also he spoke on constructive criticism. The President also said that he thought we had been long enough here and he hoped that we would not just be people with parochial attitudes, or people—if I can quote—“... far less automatic condemnation, or baseless and sometimes marathon attacks by hon. Members on the Government to which they are committed, by popular mandate, to support with loyalty and striving.” This is well and good. He also said that he hoped there would be “... no wild allegations rooted in ignorance. . . .”

These are quite good and I support the President fully. However, Sir, what do we see here? He talked about various Africanization programmes, but there are quite different categories in these Africanization programmes. First of all, we have the Africanization of business; secondly, we have Africanization of the Civil Service and the private sector, and so on and so forth. We Members of this House, Sir, as far as I am concerned, so long as there is imbalance in the business sector, so long as corruption is being practised there, we will continue to speak our minds and very clearly too. We would like the President to notice that we are not just here to attack the Government for the purposes of attack, but there are certain things which we have been seeking in this House for the last six years; I should think we are now doing our sixth year. The Government should have been in a position to see if what the Members say here is true, if our functions and responsibilities are recognized. If our functions and responsibilities are not recognized, then it means the warning here does not hold very much water. If it is going to hold water, then our warning here should carry weight with the executives authority.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this country we introduced a Bill some time back about Africanizing businesses. Business which will include buying existing property. For example, our people were told that when the Trade Licensing Act came into operation then the Africans would be assisted to buy existing businesses. I have been following the whole of Government Road from the railway station to the University side and I have not seen anything African there and that is a big street in this country. I have been following the whole of Kenyatta Avenue right up to State House but there is nothing called African there. I only followed the remote side of Bazaar Street and I saw probably four African business shops which they have bought recently. These also belong to one tribe of this country, and we must mention this because these are the sort of things which are going to bring trouble. It is no use I, as a Member for Teso, coming here to say that everything is all right and Africans are gaining and yet there is not a single Teso who is gaining.

Now, Sir, when I go round River Road I find that all those who have bought shops there, the few Africans who have bought shops there are all from the one area, and—

Hon. Members: From where?

Mr. Oduya: I think hon. Members will use their own common sense to know which area I mean.

Unless this is corrected then it is going to create a very big problem within the country. Let us not pretend that we are doing very well when we are not actually doing very well. We are actually creating a big disease which is going to create a major problem between our people.

Now, Sir, it is good that we are replacing the foreigners in business, but it is good that we should look at Kenya as widely as possible so that we accommodate all our people in what we are going to do. When you come to the buying of houses you find that people in executive positions like permanent secretaries, are buying houses for cash. I think this is corruption because the man is spending more than Sh. 300,000 to buy property yet his salary for the last five years, Sir, is only Sh. 280,000. From where did he obtain the extra money?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Member has just alleged that probably some of our permanent secretaries are buying houses for Sh. 300,000 cash, can he substantiate that this allegation is true?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you substantiate, Mr. Oduya?

Mr. Oduya: Yes, Sir.

With your permission, Sir, I would like to give one or two examples. The first one is a very specific case. There is one Permanent Secretary—I will come to his name later—who in 1967 bought a house, the land registration number is L.R. 7258/31/Nairobi, value Sh. 62,000. In 1968, he bought a house registration number L.R. 2327/99/Kiambu, value Sh. 62,000 cash. The same person then bought another house in 1969, land registration number L.R. 3734/326/Nairobi, on which he built a house for cash amounting to Sh. 180,000. The total being well over Sh. 300,000. The salary of this man as I have calculated is only, for the last five years when he has worked as a Permanent Secretary, is Sh. 280,000, besides taxation, expenses and besides anything. This property he has bought is besides all other property he has. The man concerned is Andrew Omanga, the the Permanent Secretary for Home Affairs. This is an example to show there is corruption. How is it that an individual like this has bought property worth this amount and yet his salary is below what he has spent on housing alone? What about other things because I hear he has large farms also? This means there is something wrong within the framework of the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Members would like me to go ahead I will give another example.

Hon. Members: Go ahead.

Mr. Oduya: There is another one who bought a house in 1966, L.R. No.— I did not get the number because I was in a hurry, but he bought a house for Sh. 70,000 in 1966. In 1968 again he bought another house worth Sh. 130,000, these are all cash. In 1969, this year, he bought through an organization called National Property Company, of which he himself is the chairman. You can see there is corruption there. The chairman himself taking Sh. 200,000 to buy property, amounting to well over Sh. 400,000.

Now, Sir, we are told that people must compete. This man is called J. G. Kibe, Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Commerce and Industry. I do not want to go to the politicians because they are also politicians a few of them here.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of correction, I would like to inform my hon. friend that the Chairman of the Kenya National Property Company is Mr. Charles Rubia and not Mr. Kibe. This was only for correction.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Kibe is the Permanent Secretary and this organization is under him. Therefore, it makes no difference. This is the corruption which the Members have been complaining of in this House, and this means it is definitely there. For this purpose, I will spare the politicians on one side because I am contemplating bringing a Motion on corruption in this House and this would bring the whole thing out.

Now, Sir, although the President laid great emphasis on Africanization, but if this should mean the kind of Africanization where one individual within a matter of a few hours has accumulated all that much and yet other people still walk naked, and without anything, this just goes to show there is corruption in this Government and as such I would call upon the President to institute a commission of inquiry in order to bring this out and clean the whole Government name and put the country in peace.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support the President's Speech with these reservations.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I must comment on the facts which Mr. Oduya has brought to the notice of the House. An hon. Member is only doing his duty when he brings such facts to the notice of the House, but we have to be careful what deductions we make from those facts, and I think the hon. Member went a little too far in saying they inevitably point to corruption. What hon. Members should do if they think these facts are sinister, is to ask what explanation there is—there may be a perfectly satisfactory explanation—before leaping to the conclusion that they point to corruption. If there is not a satisfactory explanation, then is the time to start making your deductions.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, generally when somebody substantiates such facts, we have the usual way of following up when we demand that we know the source of information and also have them laid on the Table, would it be reasonable for me to ask for the source of the information and have the documents which might be the source of the information laid on the Table?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member, I think, was substantiating from notes of his own and not from any documents which was evidence which he obtained from elsewhere. You do not lay your own notes on the Table.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to join my colleagues who have supported the President on his document of 20th May 1969. This document, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is supposed to be a document which put forward the State policy. All the time when we have Presidential speeches we normally expect some very, very important information given to us, and also to the nation. This paper, Sir, I am sorry to say there is very little in it.

It could be important as the Assistant Minister is saying because it is his duty to praise something which is probably not existing just to keep his breath going.

Mr. Speaker, the President ought to have elaborated further on the question of our agricultural industry. Mr. Speaker, here we know very well that our agriculture is an industry which is dying, because there has been no improvement there. We do not know what to tell the public because whatever they produce on their farms is not marketable. Take for example, Mr. Speaker, coffee, which used to fetch a lot of money on the external market, but now you see that coffee is running down although it is still keeping its level of production which rose by 12.8 per cent in 1968. If you follow the speeches of the leaders in coffee like my friend, the hon. Member for Embu who is the vice-chairman of the Coffee Board, you find that now they are concentrating on telling people to please grow a good quality of coffee. The song now is for good quality in certain things which are running down.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

If you turn to sisal, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you find that in 1963 sisal used to fetch £7.5 million but now is only £1.8 million, that sort of thing is a dead institution.

Tea, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is trying very hard—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, may I correct the hon. Member's statement that coffee used to fetch £14.5 million and now it is fetching £1.4 million for the sake of the correction. Coffee is much more than that. I think he must have been talking about sisal.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member ought to have listened carefully to what another hon. Member was talking about. In front of me here, and I have done my homework, and I know what I am talking about. I said that coffee has not done very badly, but is only remaining with 1 per cent, and it is going to go down. In 1963 it used to be 11.0 and now it is 12.8 per cent. I said that coffee had not done very badly but is still going to die and the growers are now being told to concentrate on good quality. They will sing of good quality but I do not know if we will have an answer.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, in the Presidential Speech something was mentioned about the meat industry which the President said was going to give us some good returns. This is obvious, but, Mr. Deputy Speaker, he should also have told the nation how far we have failed in our agricultural policy and how much we are intending to achieve in this area.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, you find the unemployment problem alone, whilst we agree that the solution to unemployment is an expanding economy we must enforce Africanization. By doing this, we are making sure that the law which is there is not being played about with by the foreigners who control the industry in this country. I believe in this country we have enough people, although we do not have quite enough, but at least we are proud to say that we have some people whose brains have not been properly exploited. The question of saying that we do not have enough people is completely irrelevant.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the best thing to make our policy to be a successful policy in Africanizing everything in our industries, then we want to make sure that whatever we say in this House, whatever is passed in this House, is taken seriously by the investors.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you see that in the country we have introduced land settlement schemes. Although I support land settlement because it is giving people employment, and also giving people some property by giving them either 7-acre plots or 30-acre plots, I think the problem of the landless will never end. What is collective farming? Collective farming, Mr. Deputy Speaker, will come about only when we have co-operative societies being given first priority in our development.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, my friend over there has just complained about corruption. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want to say that I have proof of corruption in this country, but if a referendum is put forward to the public to see if this Government has gone beyond its check-point by way of corruption, then the referendum should be carried out. You find at a political level a politician who can afford to pay Sh. 10,000 every week to the so-called self-help schemes. From where does he get this money? Do we ever take any time to check on these things. If you can see a permanent secretary building houses one after the other and within three years he has three houses, from where does this money come from? If we only look at the KPU and say they are receiving foreign money, even in our own party we have to be very careful because we can smell there is foreign money coming in. Probably some people are being used by foreign powers to try to pour money into self-help schemes and also these self-help schemes unless checked are a source of corruption in this country. If I do not agree with Patel, then Patel, Mr. Deputy Speaker, will pay something to a self-help scheme which I am supporting, and that is psychological corruption because he is trying to put you in a position where you cannot say he is corrupting you. It is all right because a lot of buildings have been put up, a lot of things have been put up because of self-help schemes. Mr. Deputy Speaker, let us make sure that this is not abused.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Member speaking now implying that the question of introducing the self-help schemes leads to corruption, and if so is he now blaming the policy of the Government which he is supporting, or what is he saying?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I cannot see where a point of order is involved.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think I have been a long time in this Chamber, and the hon. Member for somewhere, for Embakasi, is quite unpopular here and it is easy to forget his name, and also forget his constituency.

Now, I think this is a good way. I am not in any way trying to suggest that the Government has not used these good ways of providing the nation with capital improvement. through self-help projects, but there is a reason for stating this. In many of the self-help projects you will find some common cases. One way occasionally witness a case in which a very old woman pays the only shilling she has! She is, however, very sincere in what she does. On the other hand, you will find occasionally, some politicians pouring money into the same undertaking. One is therefore bound to ask the question—are these people earning more money than others? A Member of Parliament does not earn more money than a Permanent Secretary.

An hon. Member: No.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: The Minister does not earn more than a general manager of a statutory board. However, those managers cannot afford to pay. Where are they then, getting the money from?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, because I have noted that my ten minutes are over, I reserve my comment and will therefore speak again during the Budget Speech.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I stand to support the Presidential Address, which, according to my opinion, was second to none. In addition to this, I would like to state that the Government has introduced another cash crop by the name of macadamia nuts. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the seedlings of this important cash crop are grown by one farmer whose farm is on the Thika Road. What arouses surprise is the fact that one tree seedling costs five or six shillings. This is very expensive. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the Government should assist co-operative societies in this country to import seeds of this crop. This should be done with the purpose of establishing nurseries and would, therefore, follow the line which was taken for coffee. This would assist planters to grow this crop faster than they are doing at present. The prices as I have stated are exorbitant. Many of our small-scale farmers are not able to buy these seedlings and the commencement of nurseries would eliminate the monopoly exercised by one farmer, whom I have already mentioned.

I have another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. When coffee was introduced in this country by the colonialists, Africans were told that they would not be able to grow the crop efficiently, but today they are the best coffee growers in this country.

When I raised a question of macadamia nut cultivation in this House, I was told by the Minister for Agriculture that the undertaking of growing macadamia nuts is a very specialized job

[Mr. Kathanga]

This implied, therefore, that the Africans will not be able to do it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like seedlings to be given to our farmers, or for that matter, to our co-operative societies and see how they will fare.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this country is independent. If we are able to do other things, it is unrealistic to suggest that we cannot grow macadamia seedlings.

There is another point, Sir, the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union which is a country-wide organization, owned and controlled by small- and large-scale coffee growers has applied for an agency to deal with all phases of the macadamia nut crop. It has nevertheless aroused surprise to note that up to now the Ministry of Agriculture has not given its assent, and I am unable to understand why the Ministry of Agriculture should show such reluctance. For the information of the hon. Members, I would like to state that the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union is a very large organization.

An hon. Member: So what?

Mr. Kathanga: If there is anybody to be given an agency, for processing and marketing, the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union, which undoubtedly is the best, should be given first priority.

An hon. Member: No!

Mr. Kathanga: I have a reason for saying this because if the agency is given to a foreign company, this would obviously be wrong. This is quite logical. Many of the growers are small-scale farmers and will not be able to make or change the policy of a foreign company.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I understand that there is a certain company by the name of Del Monte. This company is the owner of the Thika Cannery and is at present busy with the negotiation of obtaining the rights of the agency. I would like to inform the hon. Members of this House that that is a foreign company. If it is a foreign company, it would be wrong therefore, to give it the agency. I am quite sure the hon. Members in this House are supporting me in this.

An hon. Member: What interest has he?

Mr. Kathanga: I have no interest. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, my only interest is to see my fellow Africans benefit.

I would like to add one thing more. As long as the Ministry of Agriculture is still under a white man, small African farmers will never benefit. The time has come when a replacement should be made. I would like to request the President of this country, if only he can hear me, to substitute an African for that white man. We are independent and it is the high time now that we should not have a white man in our Cabinet.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, my next point is about the Coffee Authority. It is only a period of six months which has elapsed since I moved a Motion in this House. This Motion was supported and carried by the hon. Members of this House to the effect that the Coffee Authority should be banned. Up to the present day, no implementation of that resolution has been carried out by the Government. I am wondering why the Government has failed in this. According to my personal opinion, the person who is probably behind all this is the Minister for Agriculture. Now, I understand that instead of implementing the Motion fully, the Government intends to absorb the Coffee Authority into a new amalgamation of the Coffee Marketing Board. This in itself cannot be said to be a step towards the banning of the Authority. It is trying instead to hide it somewhere else instead of eradicating it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, our interest is not to do away with the name Coffee Authority, but to eliminate every single expense, and if this is not going to be implemented, everybody will be bound to consider this House as virtually bure. This will ultimately mean that, when something is passed here, there is another powerful person or body to change it. If that is the case, I will quite rightly be led to believe there is no point in being a Member of a Parliament which passes a Motion to benefit our people and which is not implemented by the Government.

An hon. Member: You had better resign.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to draw the attention of this House to a conference held in Nairobi recently and attended by leaders of the co-operatives, where, it was stated that the implementation of that Motion should be carried out as soon as possible. For your information, hon. Members, this Authority is continuing to consume Sh. 3,600,000 of the coffee growers' money in the country.

An hon. Member: Every year?

Mr. Kathanga: You can well recall what I told you when I was moving the Motion. I stated that it was started illegally; that it had no mandate of this House. Neither had it the mandate of the President, if that was really needed.

Another important thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is about the coffee export tax. I think Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, since prices of coffee are very poor these days, there is no reason why this coffee export tax should not be stopped or dropped I understand that when the Minister for Agriculture was the Minister for Finance, he addressed a coffee conference in Nairobi some time last year and he promised that if prices of coffee, or to be more specific, if the price of one ton of coffee dropped from £320 per ton to a less figure, he would be able to drop the export tax. I want to tell him now that the price of one ton of coffee is only £300 and it is time he dropped import tax, so that our coffee growers can benefit.

Mr. Areman: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, last time here, we were told by the Speaker that hon. Members should not come in the Chamber with a bush shirt, without a coat on. Is the Member who is now speaking here in order since he is dressed in that kind of thing?

An hon. Member: It is a shame.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): A point of order. We have in fact not decided yet on a dress for this House and I actually do not find the hon. Member improperly dressed. I think he is dressed all right.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the same question was raised here before you came by the hon. Member. When I heard this point of order I think I told the hon. Member who had raised the question that I was smartly dressed.

An hon. Member: You come from the same area; you should not complain.

Mr. Kathanga: Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, no, your time is up, Mr. Kathanga.

Mr. Kathanga: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, for giving me this opportunity to speak.

The Presidential Speech, Mr. Deputy Speaker, was given in the same way the President always speaks. We all welcomed his address, but in welcoming his address, Sir, I personally have one or two observations to make. Sir, just before independence, every person in the country and every part of the country and every part of the community, fought very seriously for independence. We all united together and won our independence. Sir, that was one step forward and there now remains at least two more steps in the course of developing the nation, which will be the Africanization of both the Civil Service and the private sector. Indeed, the President referred to Africanization of the private sector and the Civil Service.

This is not new to the Members of this House or the public either. Sir, the Africanization of the Civil Service and the private sector has inclined to one section of the community. Sir, we are not afraid of talking about this because we have seen what is happening.

There has been a big imbalance in the Africanization and Members of this House have spoken time and again about this situation. Sir, this now has come into the open and we know what is happening. Look at the provincial commissioners, the district commissioners, and the district officers. 99 per cent of these people belong to one section of the community. Sir, the problem here is this: the provincial commissioner is a young man, the district commissioner is young and the district officer is also young, and these people who are coming up with the nation, will never get to the top because the people in these jobs are still young and cannot be retired. So, the section which has missed the opportunity of getting these posts has now missed it completely. They are going to stay for years and years and only if the Government is defeated, will they get a chance. I do not wait or wish for this. Sir, that is quite wrong.

The other step which we are now waiting for, is the Africanization of trade. When this House passed the Trade Licensing Act, we expected that this Act was going to benefit almost every person of the community. Has it done so? No, and with a capital "NO" and Government knows it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, what is happening in the country today is this, that there are so many foreign traders who have been given notices to quit their businesses and they are doing it, but what is the criteria for replacing them? Sir, in order to replace all those people you have to supply the money. You must have a large capital sum of money available, and where do you get the money from? You get the money from the commercial banks in Kenya or you get the money from the Industrial and Development Corporation. Now what is taking place is this: in some districts like Masaku and Kitui where I come from, land consolidation has not taken place, and therefore, people have no title-deeds for their properties, not only for their land, but also for their buildings. Therefore, if I wanted to get money from the commercial banks in Nairobi today, I would be asked to produce a title-deed, either for my land or for my property which I do not have. This applies not only to myself, but to many others. All the people, nearly everybody in Ukambani, that is Kitui and Machakos, have not got their title-deeds for their properties. Therefore, if they are to participate in taking over businesses in the country, how are they going to [Mr. Mwalwa] get money? Where are they going to get the money from? They have to wait for title-deeds for their own properties, but they have not got them, and therefore, the banks are not prepared to lend the money unless you have security, and those title-deeds are the security required.

Sir, are we therefore, carrying out this Africanization of the businesses fairly? Is this benefiting every section of the community? No. Will the Government therefore move on this one because if this is not being corrected, then the section which remains now without taking part in this Africanization will remain without it for ever. We have remained without taking a big share in the Africanization of the Civil Service. We are afraid, it appears as if the sections which have received big posts in the Civil Service are going to have participation in the African trade in the business economy. Sir, a Member who spoke this afternoon said that probably Kanu may lose in the next General Election, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is not a joke, Members have to be very serious on this one because there is talk all over the country that Kanu is not doing well, in that a few people are benefiting, those who are in Kanu and others are not benefiting. Those who are not benefiting are dissatisfied and therefore, if this is not going to be corrected, then Kanu is going to split even more. Once the gap becomes bigger and bigger, how is Kanu going to win the next election? How is it going to win when people in the country are so bitter because of these imbalances in trade, the imbalance in the Civil Service and the imbalance in almost everything in the country?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we should not take it very lightly when we hear that there is something wrong in our own organization; we should take it very seriously so that we win the next General Election.

Sir, I have another very interesting point about the same business of trade. Sir, if you want to borrow money from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, you will again be asked for the security which you do not have. There is another serious thing, the chairman of this organization is a Kikuyu. If another person from another tribe goes to look for a loan—

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to correct my hon. friend because he has said that the Chairman of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation is a Kikuyu, I would like to inform him that he is not a Kikuyu; he is a Kisii. He is Mr. Johnson Karaguri.

Mr. Mwalwa: I apologize. I was going to say the executive officer is a Kikuyu. Now, what is happening is this, if a member of another tribe goes to the organization for a loan, he is told to come back after a few days because the loan is being considered. Then he goes round to other members and tells them, "look, there is business somewhere, somebody was here who managed that business, go round and see if you can talk to the businessman and come for money". I have experienced this kind of development and I speak knowing what happens about business.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, these things must be corrected if we want to unite the country and if we want to build a nation. There is no need telling lies about things we see. We are Members of this House representing the public and we know about those things which we see from experience and because of that, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Government must wake up and correct such things before it is too late. Sir, we know that it is better to prevent than to cure a disease so this is the time for the Government to put right its business so that we do not have regrets afterwards. I do not want to have any regrets when we lose in the next General Election. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few very sad words, I beg to support the speech.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I thank you for this opportunity which enables me to say a few things about the Presidential Address. On the whole, I support the address and I think it was a very well planned address which reflects the general policy of our Government. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have a few points which were mentioned in the Presidential Address that I would like to emphasize. One of them is about the primary elections. It seems as if our country has been thinking—of late—of a queer way to elect representatives. It is a pity that during the local government elections, only a few people in every constituency participated in electing the leaders. This was wrong and it is something we must try to prevent now so that when the next General Election comes, every registered voter in the country will be given the opportunity of voting for the candidate of his own choice.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the experience our country has had from 1963 is that at the General Election every registered voter is allowed to vote for the person of his own choice. We had several parties at that time, but every party member was free to exercise his right of voting for his leader. Sir, as a result of this, today, we are proud that our people did not make a mistake. They chose the right leaders, people who have led this country to prosperity up to now.

[Mr. Lenayiarra]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in most cases, they are right although, as is human, they may make mistakes and sometimes this is noted but generally, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think I am right in saying that the leaders who were elected in 1963, plus those who have lead this country for the last five years this being the sixth year now—were the right leaders. It is only right if we want to continue seeing prosperity and peace in this country that we continue to give the general public the freedom to vote for leaders of their own choice. If a few people or a number of Members of this House fail to be re-elected during the next General Election, that does not matter because what we want is the prosperity of Kenya and to see that the people who lead the country are those who have the mandate of the people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if only a few people were allowed to choose leaders, who would come to this House? How many people would come here and claim to be real representatives of their constituencies? How can a person claim to be a real representative of his constituency if he was only elected by two thousand people or one thousand out of a population of fifty thousand or more people? That will be very unfair and a great mistake on our part.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that our beloved President, the father of this nation, is a lover of democracy and I want to say that there are people, millions of them, who support him because of his leadership. He should not therefore hesitate if a small group of people come together and oppose this system of election whereby the general public is given the opportunity to exercise its right in choosing its leaders. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say this with a full mandate of the people whom I represent. My people, the Samburu, want the Government to allow each and every registered voter to exercise the right of electing his leader. I know that this is a change in Kenya and many Members have spoken about it, but a good number of them will support me. I only want to compliment those gentlemen who were courageous enough to stand here or in the Parliamentary Group meeting and say the truth about something which they think will lead our country to prosperity and peace.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to mention about the Presidential Address is the development of the backward areas. The President said that the backward areas will be helped and the areas which are affected by the shifta menace will be helped too. He mentioned a few projects which are now going on in a few districts like Wajir, Mandera, Kajiado and Taita. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to say that it is common knowledge to the people of this country that some districts are backward; and this is true. Some people were very fortunate and made full use of the facilities which were offered by the Colonial Government and made some development. Others were fortunate because, during the shifta menace, they were not affected and therefore had full time to concentrate on development. On the other hand, Mr. Speaker, there were some districts which were unlucky because they were neglected during the colonial times, and again, during the time of the shifta they were affected by this menace, and nothing was done to improve their lot. My district, Samburu District, Sir, is one of these districts. I am sorry to say that so far I have not seen any major projects introduced by the Government to uplift the standards of the Samburu people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we still lack educational facilities, we have very few schools. This year is the first year when we had the first secondary school. There are very few primary schools. Districts like Samburu, Turkana and other backward districts obviously need more help, more assistance than those districts which have had assistance for some years now. In many districts there are a good many people who are enlightened. When a constituency Member goes to an area and wants to start a self-help scheme, there are many people who will agree with him and support him. At the same time I would say there are some places where it is a problem to convince a mzee that it is advantageous for him to send a child to school.

So the Government, in designing the Development Plans, should think more of these places. I remember there was a time when I requested the Government to introduce a separate development programme which was designed to help the backward districts. The answer was, yes the Government was going to look into this matter but it was not possible to have a separate development programme. I was told that the Government would always give priority to the backward districts and would help the people more. However, with regard to my district, and I know this applies to many other places, there is very little progress. All the money which the Government has for education, for industrial purposes, and for ranching and other things, is still going to places and districts which are greatly advanced and much more developed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is high time that something was done to help these people who have been left behind by the colonial régime, people who did not get a chance of helping themselves all these years.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the Presidential Address.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, everybody heard the President when he was talking here. It was a wonderful address, everybody has read it, and I support it very strongly.

I do not have very much to say; there are only a few points I would like to mention.

I would like to start with trade in the rural areas. I come from a rural area, one where we experience a lot of difficulty when we talk in terms of trade. The people in the rural areas are not the same as people living in the urban areas. People in the rural areas, whenever they are told something, they respond to it. They respond, in particular, to whatever Government tells them. People in the towns or the urban areas, on the other hand, do not respond. So, in relation to this, I feel that the people in the rural areas should be helped more than the people in the urban areas or in the towns.

I am glad to hear from the Government that they are going to concentrate more on the rural areas than on the urban areas. In that connexion I would like to warn the Government and say that since the people in the rural areas are going to respond to whatever they are told by the Government, then something must really be done for them. They must be told how to market their produce. People in the rural areas are told to grow vegetables or cereals, anything, and they respond to this call. Then they have the problem of marketing this produce. If they do all they are required to do, and then they cannot market their produce, Sir, what will they do? I know that some people in the rural areas have tried their best to do what they are told, to grow what they are told to grow, and then they find that after they do what they are told to do they do not have a market for their produce. Such things should be looked into so that the people in the rural areas will benefit from whatever they grow. You find some person planting half an acre of cabbages, then he has no market for these cabbages, so the following year he does not grow cabbages again. This is very discouraging to the people.

Mr. Speaker, for people around Nairobi, like my friend hon. Karungaru, when he brings, say, carrots, potatoes and so on to Nairobi to sell, the same day he goes back with money. However, those who are living in the rural areas find difficulties of markets. Therefore, Government should look into this matter.

The Government should also look into the question of loans. The people in the rural areas find difficulties in obtaining loans. They are told that the Government is prepared to give them loans. They go to the district officer and the district officer then sends them to the district commissioner's office. The district commissioner tells them to go to the trade officer's office. Here they are given forms to fill. When they fill in the forms, they are then told to go home and wait. They wait for about six months and nothing happens. What is this? Government should look into this question so that the people in the rural areas will know for certain whether they are to be given loans or not.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, there are some people called trade officers. I have not yet met a single one of them; that may be my fault or somebody else's. I understand there are these officers; but where are they stationed? Are they there for everybody or for people in certain towns? If they are there for particular towns, Mr. Speaker, then I do not see any reason why they are paid with money from the people of this country. If they are stationed in Nairobi, Nakuru, Mombasa, Kisumu, Eldoret or Kitale, then, Sir, surely that is very bad. They should help each and every district. This must be the position unless somebody can tell me in this House that these officers are not paid with Government money.

There is another point, Mr. Speaker, and this affects the rural areas. This is a serious problem—that of the Transport Licensing Board. People have submitted their applications to the Transport Licensing Board but they have been turned down several times and yet they do not know the reason why. This has become something which has become tribalistic, so the people say. It has become a real problem. I do not know who are the Members concerned in this, and I do not want to be challenged by any Member in this House to mention names. I am talking about those things which I have heard from members of the public, that this Board has become tribalistic. We want the members of this Board to be changed. Why give all licences to people in the urban areas and leave out the people in the rural areas? If I am not wrong, Mr. Speaker, there is somebody in Elgeyo-Marakwet—not my own area—who applied for a licence to run a vehicle from Eldoret to Mombasa and he was refused permission. No reason was given. Somebody else wanted to run a vehicle from Mombasa to Kampala and he, too, was refused. Some people in West Pokot wanted to run a bus service from a place called Mokatono to a place called Sigor and they were refused. So we feel there is something wrong going on in the Board; we feel there is tribalism there.

I come to the question of the Settlement Scheme Selection Committee. I feel there is something wrong with this selection committee. These committees are situated in the urban area, more or less, and they do not consider the fact that there are a number of people who are landless in the rural areas. They only think of those people who are within the towns, on the shambas formerly occupied by the Europeans. There are a number of people in the rural areas who are landless, but nobody has bothered to find out what can be done to help these people. I warn this House about one thing. Before we attained independence there were a number of commissions in Kenya. There were things called spheres of influence. For example, West Pokot—prior to the arrival of the Europeans in Kenya, the people of West Pokot were living in Trans Nzoia. If the people of West Pokot are not now going to be given even a piece of land in Trans Nzoia, then that is terrible. I am told that we now have the Settlement Schemes Selection Committees, which are not prepared to listen to any request of the Pokot people. So I feel that this is an abuse to the people of Pokot. Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge the Government to see to it that the members of the Settlement Schemes Selection Committee are drawn from all tribes, particularly the tribes around the areas in question which are being settled. It is not right to pick a person from Mombasa and make him a member of the Trans Nzoia Selection Committee. Why is it that there is not a single Pokot on this committee? Why is it that my fellow friend from Elgeyo-Marakwet is not there? Why is it that there is not a single Sabaot there? Whoever is dealing with this matter should check the list to see whether or not what I am saying is true. I repeat that the Government should look into this question of the Settlement Schemes Selection Committee for Trans Nzoia, Pokot and these areas.

Mr. Speaker, I come now to the question of coffee and tea. Some areas are very good for tea, others are good for coffee. I must say, however, that West Pokot is good for coffee as well as tea. We have planted coffee and it has done very well. I would say that West Pokot is now producing the best coffee we have in Kenya today. In fact,

I was told one day that the coffee of West Pokot was the best in the whole of Kenya.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of your time.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it can be rightly said that this is an empty speech as some Members have said. I think it is a very important speech because it covers the whole field of our nation. For this reason I think His Excellency the President should be congratulated.

However, Mr. Speaker, there is always a “but” when we talk about speeches like this one because although we cannot say the Government does exactly nothing, we know the Government could do more. For example, we know that the Government has laid the foundation for development but there are always the things we keep on repeating, where the development is not evenly distributed. I think the key to all this is what many other Members have mentioned, that is, corruption, tribalism, Africanization and Kenyanization which many people want and yet they do not want that here we should have Africans. They want Africanization, they want Kenyanization for themselves, not for the Kenyans, not for the Africans. What I mean, Mr. Speaker, is that in commerce—as many other Members have said—or other fields, if proper Africanization was done, if it was evenly distributed, then people would already have started seeing the benefits of things given to them by the Government.

After that comment I would like to move on to agricultural revolution. All the time we hear that our agriculture in Kenya is doing wonders, but I want to say that up to now, for the small farmer, for the peasant farmer—and when I say peasant I do not mean to abuse anybody's agricultural farm but mean, actually, the small farmer in the rural areas—is not benefiting at all.

Mr. Speaker, let me take, for example, maize. You find it is produced by the small farmer—and probably by the bigger farmer—but that small farmer is not allowed to sell that maize as he wants, or where he wants, whereas the big man who buys it and makes posho can sell anywhere, he can get good markets. I have in mind the restriction of movement of a crop like maize, where it is restricted in such a way where in one district if a farmer is pressed for money because he wants school fees for his child, or something else, and the Maize and Produce Marketing Board people have not come around to buy his maize, he is not allowed even to go and sell one bag across the location at another market where he can get a good price. Therefore—

An hon. Member: Are you sure?

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am very sure. I asked this question before, and later pursued it by a Motion on the Adjournment. The reply I got was that the restrictions were going to be eased, but they were never eased. Although the movement of one bag is allowed, it is only allowed on a public vehicle, such as a bus, but not in a lorry or a Land-Rover. Therefore, the movement is still restricted—

An hon. Member: Within the district.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Within the district, yes.

I think, Mr. Speaker, if we want to help the people in the rural areas, whatever they produce we must make it easy for them to sell, even locally. Such restrictions only make it very difficult for the people in the rural areas to benefit directly from the maize they produce. The price has been mentioned by other Members: a bag is sold for about Sh. 22, but when it has been turned into posho—that means ground into flour—the price is almost three times of what the farmer gets.

Mr. Speaker, I do not think this agricultural revolution is really helping the small man in the rural area. And because these are the majority of our people, we should start thinking in terms of how to help that small man directly, and not thinking of how to create wealth in the country which is not evenly distributed.

Mr. Speaker, there is another thing which has been mentioned, but I want to mention it in another way. In other words, some Members have spoken about this paragraph which mentioned land registration and consolidation. I think the African plot-owners in the rural areas should not have to wait for land consolidation to be completed before they are given title-deeds. I think they should be given title-deeds right away because these are small plots and they are known, and it is a matter of registering them straight away. This will help them to get loans because they can produce their title-deeds as security.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to mention something which has also got something to do with these people whom I was talking about—corruption and Africanization—and this has got to do with the Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau. I think, after quite a time of Members making suggestions here, this Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau was established to tackle the problem of school-leavers. I do not think it is tackling this problem in the right way. I do not know whether this is because the bureau has not got the right power, or whether corruption has entered there or whether tribalism has entered there. I think what should be done is that instead of being a small department under one fairly senior officer who is not senior enough, it should be made into a permanent commission where there should be members of the commission from various provinces and various places, so that the distribution of these jobs in the private sector can be even.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying this because I know that in my area we have students, Form IV school-leavers, who left school in 1967 and, although they registered with this Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau, up to now they are not employed. I doubt whether in other areas within the vicinity of Nairobi, or other districts which are near Nairobi, there are any Form IV school-leavers who left school in 1967, and registered with the Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau straightaway who have not been fixed with a job. I feel that if this commission was established, then it would solve not only the problem of school-leavers but it would be a commission to cover the whole field of unemployment. It should be given powers to advise the Government on how jobs could be created; it should be given powers to interview these job-seekers so that the responsibility is not given to one person who might be tempted to favour his or her brother, or some other relative, or somebody else who has got money. This should be a body which would be empowered to interview and give advice on employment. It should also be given powers to decide on who should be employed in the private sector. Some of the firms in the private sector say that the person they require from overseas has special qualifications, and such a body would be empowered to find out whether this is actually true and that the person required has special qualifications, or whether it was just another person who says he has special qualifications when we have our own people who could do the job with similar qualifications.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to go to another subject which was mentioned by another Member, but not quite in the same way: that is the local governments and education bill. Primary education, Mr. Speaker, is under the local governments and, as you know, this bill is rising at such [Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi] a high rate that within a few years the local governments might collapse unless the Government takes some actions.

Mr. Speaker, I see that my time is over and so I beg to support.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to take this opportunity to join my colleagues—

QUORUM

Mr. Karungaru: I am seeking your guidance, Mr. Speaker, as to whether we have a quorum in this House; we seem to be speaking to an empty House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I take it that you object to the lack of quorum?

Mr. Karungaru: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, we have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Kassa-Choon.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I was interrupted I was about to make the point that I do fully support what His Excellency the President said during the opening of this House last Tuesday. I know, Mr. Speaker, that a lot of points have been put forward and I do not want to repeat those except to mention one or two things.

The first one, Sir, is about the crime which the President mentioned. Here I would like to thank His Excellency the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs for the work the police and the General Service Unit are doing in the West Pokot district. During the months of February and March, Mr. Speaker, the situation there was not good at all; but during the month of April, the situation improved because of the work the police are doing to combat the stock-thefts.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say here that I do thank the police for the good work they are doing in that particular area, and I want also to ask the Minister to establish more police posts in West Pokot, particularly in areas like Sigor, Lonkenet and Chesegon, where we have tribal clashes now and again, so that we can get rid of the theft.

If I may come to another point, Mr. Speaker, and that is about rural development which was mentioned in this book. West Pokot, you will remember, is one of those districts which was forgotten during the colonial times. Today, Mr.

Speaker, we can see other areas developing, and when we compare them with West Pokot we see we are very far behind. I would like to ask our Government to work and assist in planning a lot of factories there, and also try and attract some investors from outside so that they can invest on something that can help to develop that district.

Mr. Speaker, you know the Development Plan of last year did not contain anything for West Pokot district. There was nothing at all for us in that Development Plan. I hope this time, Mr. Speaker, as the President said in his speech that these other areas will be covered, Pokot will be given priority in all spheres. Mr. Speaker, I would like to leave that and move to another point.

My third point, Mr. Speaker, is about the population census. The President said that this will be taken during August this year. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make just a very small point here. You will remember that during the amalgamation of the two Houses, the Senate and the Lower House, we were promised that the area which is known as Kara Pokot, which is now being administered by the Uganda Government on our behalf, would be transferred to Kenya as it is the wish of the wananchi who are living in that area. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to ask our Government, again to negotiate with the Uganda Government and see that they come to a conclusion—that is to transfer this area to Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, I fail to understand why this area is being administered by Uganda on our behalf. Here we have a lot of unemployed people. For instance, if you go to Kapenguria you will see the district commissioner there, and his three or four district officers, doing nothing because the work is very little—yet we have this area just across the River Suam. I think if this area is transferred to Kenya, then one of the district officers there would be stationed at Amudat and several Tribal Police and police posts will be established there.

Mr. Speaker, I think this would create another position for our people who are now unemployed. That is why, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask our Government to extend the population census to that area so that we take these people into our area and also open a voters roll, Mr. Speaker, because the last time they were not able to register there. We do not know now where they are standing. According to the Constitution, that area is regarded as part of Kenya. It comes under Constituency No. 86—that is Pokot West. We cannot go to this area and talk to our people there because it is still under the Uganda Government.

[Mr. Kassa-Choon]

Mr. Speaker, it is very difficult for us to go there, and even the Member representing this area cannot go and address his constituents. We do not know where these people stand. Let the Government now make it very clear whether these people will remain in Uganda, so that we forget about it completely, rather than confuse these people by telling them that the Government is doing something and that they will be transferred to Kenya and we will then work together as one team. As you know, the people living there have the same background as the Pokot in Kenya. It is their wish to come together and be administered from Kapenguria.

So, Mr. Speaker, the Government should take this point and see that during the August census, these people are given the opportunity of joining us.

Mr. Speaker, if I may, I will come to another point. My point number four, is about the livestock industry. This also was mentioned in this booklet and several areas have been improved; say, Taita and Kajiado and many other places. I want to say here, Mr. Speaker, that West Pokot District is one of those areas with a great potential for the livestock industry. Here I wish to make it very clear that the problem we have there present certain obstacles. One of them is the so-called grazing schemes, which were established during colonial days. These grazing schemes, Mr. Speaker, were established against the wishes of the people. This kind of method cannot work because the idea is that people should move from one place to another. The people are only allowed to keep one or two cows. This makes people rather poor. So, Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask our Government to go into this matter and try to encourage the people there to form ranching groups, rather than following this kind of method which is contrary to their wishes.

Mr. Speaker, if this kind of thing is done away with, the Pokot people will come forward, and they will work with the Government officers who are in the field and everything will be quite in order.

Mr. Speaker, I want to come to another point, which is about the settlement schemes. I think my colleagues have also touched on this problem. In West Pokot we have a lot of landless people at this time. Mr. Speaker, I think the farms which are being demarcated, which are adjacent to West Pokot District, in Trans Nzoia—I trust that the Government will consider applicants from West Pokot. I want to ask the Government today, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to see that during the interview time the Board comes to Kapenguria, and interviews people from there, rather than going to Kitale which is 30 miles away and is in another district.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the area along Kapkai was ours before and we were driven away by European settlers. So we demand today that we get priority when it is divided up for settlement of people. People from our district should be settled there so that we can also benefit from the fruits of independence.

Mr. Speaker, that is the point I wanted to mention; and as I see my time is over, Mr. Speaker, I fully support the Presidential Speech.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also wish to associate myself with the sentiments of the hon. Members and the good things they have said about the Presidential Speech.

Mr. Speaker, before I proceed with my speech, I must say it is very disappointing to see that all of the 22 Ministers, and about 26 Assistant Ministers are not here when we are making important speeches on the Presidential Address. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is important—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I can see one Assistant Minister concealing himself in the back row.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, I am supposed to sit in a Back-bencher's seat, and if the Assistant Minister is here he should be on his Ministerial seat so that we can see him and even the people will see him. Mr. Speaker, if somebody wants to consult with or speak with his friend here or there, that is not the seating arrangement of this House. Mr. Speaker, 46 people should be here. They get tired too quickly. We have been here for only five days, and it is very discouraging indeed to see that they are all outside—which shows that they merely come to say, "Look, what are you doing? You are spoiling this and that". This is not good, Mr. Speaker. They should appreciate these few days that we are here with them. They kept us out for three months, and now we will tell them they should be here.

One thing I would like to say is that on the 24th of last month, Mr. Speaker—and this is in connexion with the freedom of the Press—I saw in the Nation, on the front page, that somebody in America is being sued by his wife. That, Mr. Speaker, was put on the front page. Mr. Speaker, to my understanding, this is just a mockery of the papers of this country. When you are in a hurry, you just look at the headlines quickly, so as to see the important things on the front page, there were some important things like the Presidential Address at Jamhuri Park, which is an important thing and has cost the country a lot of money. This ought to have come on the front page. Mr.

[Mr. Makone]

Speaker, there was also an important piece of information for the country to see concerning the opening of Njoro Taifa Hall by the Minister for Agriculture. His picture should have come on the front page. Because of shortage of time, we only look at the front page so as to see what is important. To give wide publicity to somebody divorcing a wife in court, to my understanding, Mr. Speaker, is wrong, and this is an abuse of the freedom of Press of this country.

Mr. Speaker, if I were the Minister for Information—I think I had better leave this one and go on with what I want to say.

Mr. Speaker, I have one important point to make—it has been raised by the Member for Buret and many other Members; in fact it has been made in this House many times. That is on the social set-up of employment in this country. Tribalism has been mentioned, and I do not want to dwell on it. But there is a small point I want to clear up, Mr. Speaker. Let it go on record that in this country, if tribalism has to be fought, it has to be fought by another tactic of tribalism, Mr. Speaker. This country has many tribes. If I take Kisii, as an example, the people who work in that district—if I do not say this here, Mr. Speaker, then there is no other place where I can say it. I would like to see, Mr. Speaker, if a district commissioner is a Kikuyu, I would like to see a Samburu district officer under him. I would like to see a Kalenjin district officer I. Mr. Speaker, I would like to see a Kisii police superintendent; I would like to see a Meru trade officer; I would like to see a mixture of the whole lot. Mr. Speaker, this is the pattern I would like to see. But I would not like, for the sake of partiality and of justice, to see people from one tribe holding the posts of district commissioner, district officer I, trade officer, agricultural officer, police superintendent, and what not. Mr. Speaker, this, my people see as a wrong set-up of the Public Service.

There is nothing wrong in this, but the way things are put, one after the other, is wrong. This means, therefore, Sir, that other tribes are not in the Public Service. If Kisii is the place where some officers have been taken from— If, for example, the district commissioner has made a mistake, I am bound to differ with him; and what guarantee do I have that I will not be taken to the police station? We want to see the different tribes of Kenya being given places, we do not want to see all the departmental heads, say, in Kiambu, being of the same tribe. We want, say, one Jalu, one Kisii, one Turkana, one Samburu, one Kalenjin. That point should be noted—that it is a wrong set-up and we want to state in no uncertain terms that we do not like things to be that way.

Mr. Speaker, in connexion with self-help, this is what I should like to say. When the Kenya National Fund was set up— Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether you are a member or the chairman of that body; I think you are a member. This is my impression. Any person who comes to this country does not know Makone, he knows the Head of State. If he gives any donation to the Head of State, it is given to the State and even my people from Kitutu East should get a small share of this. My understanding is that any money given to the Head of State, small or big, should be put in a national fund so that it can be distributed to various districts. In that way self-help schemes will benefit all our people. I do not agree that all such donations should go to one institution. I do not know how much money that institution has collected by this time. We have had a lot of money given to the Gatundu self-help scheme. There is nothing wrong with that, of course; but I feel that this money should be distributed to various districts. That is the only way things should be done. If a Head of State like Banda or Kaunda comes here and gives the President something, say Sh. 20,000, that money should go to the Kenya National Fund so that my people will get a share from there. If it all goes, Mr. Speaker, to your self-help scheme, then I cannot get any of it. It must be distributed. These are true facts, Mr. Speaker. I disagree with what is being done and—

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since Gatundu Hospital is being built under a self-help project initiated by the Member for Gatundu, is the Member speaking in order to criticize the way in which the public are donating to that self-help project, when people are contributing voluntarily?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, the hon. Member is in order in expressing an opinion. That is all he is doing.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, I would like to give my friend there the correct impression. I did not say people from Kisii. I have quoted them as an example and then spoken of various districts. I am not implying what is being done is wrong. I am only saying that if a Head of State, Haile Selassie for example, comes here and gives Sh. 20,000 to our Head of State as a gift, that money should be put in the national fund by our Head of State.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make one more point before—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of your time, but I will give you one more minute because of the point of order.

Mr. Makone: Thank you, Sir.

One more point I would like to make is to ask the Government to take over some of the major responsibilities of the county councils in the country. In the end the failure of the county councils in the country will be charged as a failure of the Government. That is why I say responsibility, or the greater part of it, should be taken over by the Central Government in order to ensure the efficiency of the State.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to support the Motion as tabled by the Vice-President. In supporting this Motion, I would like to make a few comments.

Within the Presidential Speech there was something about foreign ideologies. Well, the President rightly condemned any foreign ideology being introduced into the country. However, Sir, we know that when foreign ideologies are being introduced into the country, they are being introduced together with foreign money. Sir, since 1963 it has been alleged from time to time—the Government has even admitted—that foreign money does come into the country. We would like to know how much money has been stopped from coming into the country because it was coming to an individual instead of coming to the Government. Sir, it may be easy to say that it is only KPU which is receiving foreign money; that is very easy to say. However, looking round the country, looking at the way some of the money is being spent, free drink in some places, you will realize that this foreign money is not only confined to KPU. This money is a little bit more widespread. So we would like to know why the Government is not doing something to stop this. Is it because some of the Ministers might be involved? This is something that should be checked, and in checking this, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the question: how independent is the police force in this country? If the police force is likely to be influenced politically, by an individual here or there, then it will be impossible for the police force to check any foreign money entering the country. Whether this money comes to an individual, a Back-bencher like myself, a Minister of the Government or a Member of the Opposition, this money should be checked—this foreign money. The name of the person bringing this money into the country should be disclosed. We have said several times that the trade unionists must not be influenced by forces outside; but can we say for certain that the Ministers are not influenced by foreign money somewhere? This, Mr. Speaker, should be checked.

I would like to pass over that point and come to the primary elections. I know that primary elections are being supported throughout the country. Although a few fellows may secretly dislike the idea of having primary elections, they dare not go out into the countryside and tell their voters, or the people, "We do not want primary elections", because immediately they utter these words they know that the people will be opposed to such statements. However, Sir, I would like to say that if the primary elections are to succeed, then there is something else necessary in organizing them. That is the party. In this case I will talk of my party, Kanu. Today if we go round the country, we will see that there are so many branches which are being run illegally and unconstitutionally. The Kanu constitution provides that every year there will be branch elections in every district. However, if you look round, I will give an example of Central Province. In all the districts of Central Province, the last time they had these elections was in 1967. We are now in 1969. So, can we dare say that there is any legal branch operating in Central Province? They are all illegal. Mr. Speaker, if this is how we are going to run the primary elections, then there is bound to be some trouble. We hear of one branch being registered, other officials claiming this branch was not registered properly. We know that within the Kanu organization there is an organization called the sub-branch, there is the local branch and the national headquarters. In the national headquarters we have the National Executive Committee, a committee that should be running the party. Instead what do we find? We find an individual saying this, another individual saying that. Although we know that almost all people in this country are Kanu, we want our party to be organized properly. I would like to know from these national officials of Kanu whether they can tell us, today, how often they have met during the last year. How many times have they met during the last three or four years? Have there been any executive committee meetings? How can we claim that we are running a party when the machinery of the party has been broken; no executive committee, no national governing council, no conference, nothing. There are only individuals who, after getting together, start saying that they are Kanu officials, they are Kanu members, giving directives. It is not too late for the party officials at the national level to come out and try to organize Kanu as a mass movement as it is in the Kanu constitution and objects, instead of running Kanu as if it were a personal property.

[Mr. Kibuga]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having said this, I hope they will take it up, especially as we are having a Kanu Parliamentary Group meeting tomorrow. I am sure that Mr. Wasonga Sijeyo is laughing because he defeated Kanu, but we know it is the national officials of Kanu who are to blame for being—I do not know what they are. They do not know what they are doing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we come to the educational policy of this country, I have something to say. We are now in 1969, about six years since we achieved independence; but if we look around at our educational policy in this country, it is still very colonial. We said when the British colonial power was here that we did not want discrimination in the country; we want integration. Instead, what do we find today? Although the colonial power has moved out and we are now independent, you find African children being discriminated against, one against the other. Some children go to the Harambee schools and pay a colossal amount of money and their parents are poor; others go to very good schools with very cheap fees and their fathers can afford to pay. We know it is not possible to get education for everybody in the country, and even if we try to be fair there will still be some children who will not manage to get a proper education. When we find some schools are enjoying paradise facilities, whereas other schools in the country are forgotten, then we feel there is something wrong here. It is up to the African Government to see to it that we did not get rid of the colonial power so as to come to our own power which would discriminate.

I know when the President was making his Presidential Speech he said he welcomed constructive criticism, but he also said it is true that he would not like to see baseless criticism levelled against some people, and that is right. If we are to say that most of us were elected on Kanu tickets—the Ministers were elected on Kanu tickets, the Back-benchers were elected on Kanu tickets—then if the Ministers are wrong they should be criticized and they should be put right in what they are doing.

An hon. Member: Where are they?

Mr. Kibuga: They are not here. I think they have already handed over before 1970 has even come. I think they accept this one.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that my time is running very fast, but I would like to say something about the Speaker of the National Assembly. I think we should be very proud that within the period we have been here we have managed to get a Speaker who can guide this House and give it dignity. We are also happy that the Government has come, at last, to appreciate that the Speaker is the spokesman of the National Assembly. Previously, I think the Government thought that because So-and-so was the Leader of Government Business or was a senior Minister, he thought he could control the business of this House in any way he liked. I am especially happy with the last Communication from the Chair in which he objected to the last Kanu Parliamentary Group's decision on the business of this House.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also stand to welcome the speech of the President, which I think was a very good policy statement, and I wonder why some Members whom we have heard speaking in this House say that he did not say what the Government has accomplished in the last six years. That, in my opinion, is displaying their ignorance of what a policy statement should be. It is not for the President to come here one morning and explain what every doctor in the country has done when he has injected somebody; it is not for him to say that such-and-such an agricultural officer has done this; such-and-such a department has done this, because it would take us forever more to enumerate all the achievements that the Kanu Government has made in the last six years.

Mr. Speaker, I remember at a similar time last year I stood up in this House and I castigated the Provincial Commissioner Eastern Province for a statement that I had seen in the Press stating that the Meru people drink too much, which I did not think was the case. I felt that he was not doing justice to the Meru people as the Provincial Commissioner in charge of those people. Mr. Speaker, today I stand to congratulate the same man, the Provincial Commissioner for Eastern Province, for what he has done for the same people. It is only two months ago, Mr. Speaker, when you must have read in the Press that under his leadership the people of Meru town, with the assistance of people of Eastern Province and the rest of Meru, collected over Sh. 1 million to build Chogoria Hospital. I thought that was a very fine act on the part of the Provincial Commissioner, and I thank him very much indeed. I also wish to thank the Government in general for co-operating in this project which I think is a very important one in an area which we have always thought has been neglected in development as compared with other areas. You will remember, Mr. Speaker, that the President donated, to Chogoria Hospital, Sh. 300,000. This was an unprecedented gesture.

and I would like to thank him too. I would also like to take this opportunity of thanking the other benefactors of this project and particularly the churches in Germany and the people of this place. I hope that this kind of spirit will continue between the people, the Administration and us the politicians.

Mr. Speaker, in connexion with this I would like, just briefly, to mention that the Chogoria area of Meru is situated in a very bad place communications-wise. I have stated in this House on more than one occasion that I cannot go home when it rains and that is because there are no roads going to that place—there is no way of getting there—and there are no telephones. Considering that this area has produced a very large percentage of the agricultural produce of this country, this is a shame, and I hope that with this new project the Government will see its way to building an all-weather road, that is the Embu-Meru road.

Mr. Speaker, I go on to another point which I have noticed for quite a while which has not attracted the same attention from Government as it has attracted from me. I refer to the health services of this country. I think somebody has said in the past that you cannot have a healthy mind without a healthy body. I think sometimes we tend to lay emphasis in our Government on the wrong things. I happen to think that the two most important things in any people are, firstly, to have an adequate amount of food to eat—and for that I am glad that the Government gives enough emphasis to agriculture—and, secondly, to have proper health services. Most people want, first of all, to be healthy and to have a full stomach and then they think of other things. I think we spend too much in this country, for example, on education; educating people whom we cannot feed and for whom we cannot find jobs—people with whom we cannot do anything. We should lay our emphasis on providing food and proper health services. In this connexion, Mr. Speaker, I would say—and many hon. Members would agree with me—that many self-help projects in this country have included health centres. Health centres are built on a self-help basis and the medicine is supposed to be provided by the local authorities or the county councils. Most county councils do not have enough money either to staff these health centres or to buy enough medicine. Therefore, all this effort and money is wasted. I think it is just a question of wrong planning at the top; we do not give the proper priority to our health services. One only needs to go to the district hospitals to see how many people queue up there. It is true that we do not have enough doctors; but surely, if we really wanted to give the proper health to our people, that would not be an excuse because doctors can be recruited from overseas; it is just a question of not caring whether some people whom we do not see with our eyes are healthy. I feel, Mr. Speaker, in the next budget, the Government should bring a bigger appropriation for the Ministry of Health even, if necessary, curtailing the expenditure of other Ministries.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to mention briefly something about commercial schools. It has been brought to my attention that some schools in Nairobi—and in the outlying areas—people have started commercial schools; some are secondary schools, some typing schools, etc. I understand that in many of these the students who go there, and who pay exorbitant amounts of money, are not provided with the necessary equipment or education. In many cases, good students who leave these schools are not able to be employed or be useful citizens. I feel this is the responsibility of the Minister for Education and he should come up and inspect these places and not grant licences to anybody unless the Ministry is satisfied that these people provide the right kind of course and they have got the right kind of equipment.

Mr. Speaker, the other point I have is concerning the Harambee secondary schools. I have noticed lately, and I am a victim of this, that we continue to build and finance more and more Harambee secondary schools. People are spending a lot of money and effort to build schools, and when they are completed they cannot get proper teachers and the students cannot get the necessary money and, as a result, the students who come out of these places do not do at all well in the schools. As a result these people cannot get employment. What is happening now, as we start getting the first people out of these Harambee secondary schools who have not done so well, is that the fathers who had the spirit at the beginning are now losing interest in the Harambee schools. It would be a very great shame, Mr. Speaker, for something that started with such a good spirit to come to an end after so much effort. My feeling is that we should at this juncture stop registering any new schools and try to encourage people to consolidate the ones they have.

Mr. Speaker, I also mention something here which is in connexion with a Motion I moved here last year, that is about the division of Meru District. I still feel that there are still districts in this country—provinces—which are unwieldy, and it is not good for our Government to be afraid of doing something when they know it is right. If we feel that a district is too big or too small, or a province is too big or too small, it is for our Government to take courage and take the necessary action so that the people who want to work and live together can stay together.

Mr. Speaker, I remember I was answered in this Motion by the Minister for Local Government and he said that a commission would be appointed to review the boundaries of both districts and provinces, but so far I have not heard anything. I would like to urge the Government to do this as soon as possible for I can say, at least in Meru, we are waiting very anxiously as we want two districts there.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all I wish to join my friends in congratulating the President for delivering his speech here during the State Opening of Parliament and on the contents, development-wise, which were included in this speech.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, development-wise one big point we would like to show to the Government is that it should not—as the hon. Muliro said—concentrate on a few areas, and these few areas are the urban areas where you find that every place is catered for. However, in the rural areas they are left uncatered for and, therefore, this creates a swarm of people coming around to look for jobs. This planning should be done properly so that each area has a few places to cater for the employment. Mr. Speaker, industrially, if we are to develop our agricultural industries, we should create these processing industries up-country and not in Nairobi. For example, there is no need to have a flour mill in Nairobi when we know very well that maize is produced up-country; we should have these flour mills up there so that we can have the processing industries offering jobs to job-seekers right up in the areas from where they come.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the same with other products as well, which find their major plants in the bigger towns, whereas the production is actually done in the rural areas and should be catered for by the producing industry in those places.

One thing about this development, Sir, is the question of efficiency. In this particular case, Mr. Speaker, I want to draw the attention of the Government to the fact that in industries—particularly in those industries in which there is Government participation—we would like to see some efficiency. An example we have is the Chemelil Sugar Factory—nobody wants to buy sugar from there because it is poorly processed; it is brown sugar yet it is meant to be white sugar. This is because of a lack of efficiency and we would like the Government to make sure that where Government is interested proper service is rendered and therefore more efficiency is there and profit is made. If we make a poor job of producing our requirements, nobody will like to buy them even though we mount a “Buy-Kenya Campaign” because we will not succeed. The thing to do is produce proper, serviceable goods so that they can sell themselves rather than by a big campaign.

Mr. Speaker, I feel this is a thing to which the Government has not paid much attention, and I would like to ask the Government to make sure that proper efficiency is encouraged where we establish our own industries.

The President, Mr. Speaker, referred to technological advancement in the country, which is most welcome; and I agree with him that Kenya is moving in the right direction. There is one point to which I totally object as far as this technological advancement is concerned, and that is where this development is creating unemployment, like the computerization of services. This I totally reject and I would ask our Government to make sure that computers are not introduced at the expense of our own labour force. Mr. Speaker, we have, in the country, some services which have been introduced—like in the banks—where they have accounting computers, which have enabled the banking firms to more or less do away with the School Certificate holders, while two or three years ago they used to enrol most of them. It is a wrong technological advancement, when we have the labour force to do the services, to replace them by machines. Here again, one disadvantage is that these machines are not made here and, therefore, there is a loss of foreign exchange. We would like to use our money in other ways rather than on things which are creating more problems. This is our suggestion so that we can at least create more jobs rather than create unemployment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on education many Members have spoken; they have spoken on the policy but I would like to comment on the practical part of it. I think in certain cases the policy is not at fault. What is at fault is the way our educational policy is being executed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, take the Certificate of Primary Education for example. This House has experienced a lot of nasty feelings from hon. Members over the way in which the Certificate of Primary Education was handled last year. This is not because of a wrong policy but is because the people who have been put there, are doing a poor job, and it is high time that the Government looked at these officers to see if they are the right people or not. I feel the educational problems are being increased by the people in the Ministry rather than by the policy itself, and I would like to call on the Government to see that this year's Certificate of Primary Education results are not as confusing as they were the previous year. I would even suggest further that if it is possible the Government should not use the machine, which produced very misleading results, to mark the examination this year. Instead, we should revert to the old system where human force is used to do the marking, rather than set the machines up and all we see is the wrong results.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the results of the School Certificate are the same, and I think one hon. Member referred to this. When we invited headmasters of senior secondary schools to come and select Form V students, they found there was nobody to tell them where the results were, or where the list of the students to be selected was. This indicates there is inefficiency somewhere. Nobody is interested in correcting this. The Government must be told that the people responsible should be warned so that they can plan ahead and when the next lot of headmasters incur public money to come and stay in Nairobi for three or four days instead of a few hours to finalize what they want, these people must be made to realize that this is costing the public more money than we can afford. This money could be utilized in other ways.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one other point which I feel is connected with education is the University here. Earlier this year the country heard a lot of complaints and there was a halt to learning because the Ministry and the Administration of the University could not come to terms and we feel that the Government should find the reason why this happened. Claims of freedom of learning which means Government does come down and restrict the learning and other information or policies, is not what this House wants. What we would like to see is that an institution like the University should have enough freedom so that the students can make a choice of what Kenya is going to be. They are the people who are going to be the leaders of tomorrow. Mr. Speaker, we feel that the problem we have now is being created by ourselves rather than by the people in the countryside.

Mr. Speaker, one point which I would like to ask the Government is about the banning of foreign papers or publications. Mr. Speaker, recently there have been a lot of prosecutions of our people, and I think it is high time this House called upon the Government to review this position and see if it is right to continue prosecuting people for handling these papers whereas the Government knew very well when these publications were coming into the country. There is no point in allowing the papers to come here and then start prosecuting the people having them. It is better to ban the importation of the papers, or make an amnesty whereby those people who had these papers before they were banned would surrender them to some Government officers, rather than their being prosecuted indiscriminately.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Onsando: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am wondering if the House has a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you actually object to the lack of quorum, Mr. Onsando, because I only have to take action if a Member objects? I should explain to hon. Members that usually, when a Member draws attention to the lack of quorum, I assume he is objecting to continuing without it. Under the Constitution the Speaker is only required to take action if a Member actually objects, I just wanted to make sure you did.

Mr. Onsando: I will withdraw.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we can continue then.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am standing also to join my colleagues, the Members of this House, in welcoming the President's Speech which he made during the State Opening of Parliament. I would like to make quite a few points very clear.

Mr. Speaker, this is a country which is known as an agricultural country and there are many things confronting the people of this country which they would have liked to hear mentioned by the President during the opening of Parliament.

One point, Mr. Speaker, which I would like to elaborate on is about Agricultural Development Corporation farms in this country. These farms, Mr. Speaker, are bought by the Agricultural Development Corporation and then lease them out to Africans who start, of course, from scratch. Mr. Speaker, the period of the lease is very limited and after a while the Africans taking over some of these farms find that the leases elapse and they have no money to buy them, and then the Agricultural Development Corporation go in again and demand the land in order to hand it over to another person again. This, Mr.

[Mr. Kamuren]

Speaker, has caused a lot of embarrassment to some of our Africans. You find some of these Agricultural Development Corporation farms, Mr. Speaker, become so expensive that when one goes to an individual farmer and buys a farm on the basis of willing-seller and willing-buyer, they then face stiff difficulties. If the Government, Mr. Speaker, could go into this, and inform the people of this country in what direction they are being sent so far as these farms are concerned, then things would be easy. Some of our people have been concentrating, Mr. Speaker, on buying some of the big farms through the Agricultural Settlement Trustees. The Agricultural Settlement Trustees lease farms after half of the lease-money has been paid. The buyer is given forms to fill in, which he then sends to Agricultural Finance Corporation, and then he is allowed to buy whatever property is there on the farm. You find at the moment that this is going to cease to exist, this will be from the 30th June 1969. The Settlement Trustees are then going to hand over all responsibilities to Lands Limited. If this is correct, Mr. Speaker, then some of the big shots in Lands Limited—which is supported by the Agricultural Development Corporation—are only going to consider their own friends, especially during the interview, to take over the farms which are to be leased to our people.

I would like to ask the Government, Mr. Speaker, to do a fair distribution especially when farms are advertised in the former European settled areas.

I would now like to come to another point, Mr. Speaker, about the Teachers' Service Commission. Teachers thought that the Teachers' Service Commission—when it was formed—was going to be very efficient compared to the former organization. At the moment the inefficiency in this commission, Mr. Speaker, is in the posting of teachers. Teachers are posted by the Ministry or by the commission, and they do not reach the schools where they are supposed to be teaching in time. This should be done during the holidays so that by January, in time for the opening of the first term, they are in their own schools. You find that some schools do not receive their teachers until the second or third terms. This is because of inefficiency. Nobody checks this at the Ministry or the provincial level, and even some of the education officers with the county councils do not send in reports to the Ministry—nobody is efficient enough to find out what is happening.

With regard to school equipment, as has already been mentioned by some of my colleagues, you find that some of the equipment reaches the schools in the third term, while it is very important, Mr. Speaker, that the equipment reaches the schools in time. At the moment, it is very difficult to get employment for some of our Division II or Division III School Certificate boys in this country. Some of them would like to study hard but when they do not receive the books in time, they fail to pass in grades that can enable them to obtain good employment.

I would like to ask the Ministry of Education, or the Government, to see that the school equipment reaches the schools in time.

Coming now to the water projects in the rural areas, Mr. Speaker. You find that some Motions have been tabled in this House right from 1963 to 1967. Members have been urging the Government to concentrate on the lesser developed areas which were neglected by the Colonial Government. This, Mr. Speaker, has not been done. You find some of the developments are only done in some of the urban areas where already the Europeans had lived, putting in a lot of money and doing some good work for the people in those areas. We want to see that people from Turkana, some parts of the Eastern Province, Pokot and some parts of Samburu enjoy the benefits of Uhuru. If, Mr. Speaker, these people cannot enjoy these, how can we expect to get together for the development of our people in this country?

Mr. Speaker, I would like to see the Government going into this in an endeavour to see that some development is done in those areas.

With regard to promotions, Mr. Speaker, in this country where the word "tribalism" lies is just because of promotion. Normally when you hear that somebody has been promoted, you hear he comes from one section, and then another tribe keeps on waiting; then another person is promoted in the private sector and you hear he comes from one section. If this, Mr. Speaker, could be killed by this Government, then I am sure there would be no problem with Members here, and there would be no problem with the public, and I am sure the word "tribalism" would be killed and done away with very soon. If this still continues, Mr. Speaker, then you will find it very difficult. For example, Mr. Speaker, sometime in February this year, when some School Certificate boys were called to attend an interview at Lanet—these boys were supposed to join the Kenya Army as cadets if they passed the interview. To my surprise, there were 40 Kalenjin boys who had passed their School Certificate in either Division I, Division II or Division III. Mr. Speaker, not one of these boys passed the interview and were allowed to enter the Kenya Army. When I asked the boys about this, they said the interview was very queer, and that one stands and is told—this is after he has been checked—that everything is all right but his posture shows that one part of his shoulder is up a little and the other one lower. Mr. Speaker, no human being has been created where you have one shoulder up and one down. I wonder why not one of these Kalenjin boys qualified? I think the Member for Laikipia should give me time to speak.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very serious because people see and people learn. There is not one of us who expects to work without making mistakes. We are subject to errors as human beings; but when we make a mistake we must make sure that we correct that mistake in the eyes of the public as soon as possible. If the Government could find another place for some of these boys so that they are not left loitering in the countryside, I think this would possibly give us pleasure.

I come now to one point which has been raised in this House, and this, Mr. Speaker, is about Eldoret textiles. It was raised by the Member for Uasin Gishu North some time back, and the Minister for Commerce and Industry promised that a factory was going to be built by April.

Mr. Speaker, I remember I was interrupted at the beginning by an hon. Member. Could I be given some extra time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can have another minute.

Mr. Kamuren: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

This House was assured by the Minister for Commerce and Industry that it was assigned to be built by February 1969. What is happening is that there is a tug-of-war in the Ministry, caused by certain individuals who want this textile factory to go to another place. May I ask the Minister, Mr. Speaker, to stand on his feet—the Minister himself, because he enjoys the confidence of the people in this country. He should make sure that this textile factory is built in Eldoret as he promised.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the interruption of business, so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, the 27th May, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty-four minutes past Six o'clock.

Tuesday, 27th May 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

NOTICE OF MOTIONSLOCAL AUTHORITIES AND EDUCATION

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, while appreciating the most excellent efforts being undertaken by the Minister for Local Government to save the local authorities from collapsing financially, this House recommends that the Education Vote in all local authorities be kept under a separate vote in order to save education from becoming the victim of any local financial embarrassment.

CULTIVATION OF MACADAMIA NUT TREE SEEDLINGS

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Government has accepted the macadamia nut as another paying cash crop to be introduced into this country and again considering the fact that one farmer on the Thika road is holding the entire monopoly of growing the seedlings of this cash crop and also noting that he sells one seedling very expensively because of this monopoly, this House calls upon the Government to allow and encourage the co-operatives and any other farmers interested in growing these seedlings to do so, in order to eliminate the monopoly by this one farmer and to reduce the selling price by competition between these farmers.

SELECT COMMITTEE: OPERATION OF THE RENT CONTROL ACT

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the present discriminatory attitudes being practised by some landlords throughout the Republic against Africans either by denying them the opportunity of renting premises or by demanding exorbitant rents, this House resolves to appoint a select committee to inquire into these prevalent malpractices and to make recommendations to the House as to restricting the demand of exorbitant rents, and as to possible amendment of the existing Trade Licensing Act, the Rent Restriction Act, and any other relevant law.

FINANCIAL AND EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE FOR NORTH-EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the people of Northern Kenya have suffered great loss both at the hands of Government and those of shifta through the three years of the shifta menace, which made everybody in that area very poor, this House urges the Government—

- (a) to give the county council enough aid and grant, so that poor families could be remitted from tax paying; and
- (b) to give free education to primary scholars for a few years so as to decrease the families' burden.

REVIEW OF AGRICULTURAL PRICE STRUCTURE

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of changed circumstances, and in realization of the part played by agriculture in our economy, this House requests the Government to review the price structure for agricultural produce with a view to giving a fair return to the farmers.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 72

PROGRESS OF UYOMA WATER SUPPLY PROJECT

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what was the progress of the Uyoma water supply project.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government is looking for finance to implement the Uyoma water supply. I would like to inform the hon. Member that the amount of funds required to implement the Uyoma water supply is about £100,000. This, in fact, depends on the success of the negotiations which are going on at the moment between the Kenya Government and a foreign Government.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, could I know from the Assistant Minister as to why the negotiations he has actually mentioned, have been the cause of delay because the Uyoma people have been contributing towards this scheme from as far back as 1963? This was before independence. Why has Government not been very keen about this project?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: The Government is very keen on the project. The Government is looking into all projects in the Republic and not only the Uyoma water supply self-help project. However, I wish to assure the hon. Member that the negotiations have by now taken place and we are only waiting for an answer from the Swedish Government and then the agreement will be signed, after which, the Uyoma people will be informed.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, the Uyoma people are well informed because they came to my Ministry and I have explained to them the position and they are quite happy.

Question No. 77

RE-ELECTION OF MAYORS AND COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Mr. Lenayiarra asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House, if the Minister would consider amending the provision in the Local Government Act 1968, which prohibited mayors and chairmen from being eligible for re-election as mayors and chairmen.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, I will not consider amending the two-year term of service of mayors and chairmen which was introduced only last year by Parliament.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister not willing to agree that it is very undemocratic and very unfair to deny the mayors and chairmen the right of being re-elected by the people if they are so liked by the people?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we came here last year and at that time this Parliament passed that provision. The reason was because one person could be chairman of the county council for 10 or 15 years. We felt that other people should also have a chance.

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies by the Assistant Minister and since we all know that a Member of Parliament can be re-elected even five or six times to come to Parliament, and since to be a mayor or chairman of the county is the same as being a Member of Parliament, in that both of them have to be elected by the people, will the Assistant Minister not agree with me that the Ministry should bring an amendment to give the mayor and chairman the chance to be re-elected if the people so want?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think hon. Members should know that a Member of Parliament is elected by the masses but the chairman of each county council is elected by the council itself. There is a big difference.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that, really, there is a need for amending this part of the Local Government Regulations because, as it is known, this was only brought in to fight the mayor of this city, and since that man is no longer there, there is no need for that—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member speaking says that the law which relates to restricting the person holding the post of mayor to two years was only passed by this House to fight the Mayor of Nairobi City. Can he substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sure he cannot. He is expressing a rather doubtful opinion, I think.

Would you continue, Mr. Kago.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, I said that according to my opinion and findings this law was only suggested to forbid the then Mayor of the City of Nairobi from being re-elected again because he had already been re-elected several times. Now that he is not on the list for this kind of job, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that now there is no need for the clause?

Mr. Njiiri: No, Mr. Speaker. When my Ministry is there it has to care for every county council and township.

Question No. 78

ANNUAL GRANTS FOR LOCAL AUTHORITIES

Mr. Lenayiarra asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House if the Minister was aware that some local authorities had not yet received all or part of their 1968 annual grants from the Government.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

All but 14 local authorities have been paid the 1968 Government grants in full, and the remaining 14 have had some payments on account.

Due to a shortfall of funds available to this Ministry, it has been necessary to ration the grants and to restrict payments to those local authorities experiencing an actual cash shortage.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister not aware that some county councils are now experiencing financial difficulties and are in fact, unable to support the many services which they are supposed to supply because, in their estimates, they were informed, in advance, by the Ministry that they were going to be given so much, and so they promised to give more services, and now they cannot carry on with this because they are not getting the money?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already, in my previous answer, said that the grants payable to the local authorities have not been paid in full to 14 local authorities. This is due to the fact that no funds have been made available to my Ministry in order to meet all the grants in full.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, how long does this grant remain without being approved by his Ministry? Some time they delay and thus stop the whole work of the county councils. How long do the grants remain without the Ministry's approval?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I am not quite sure what the hon. Member wants to know. Therefore, I am unable to give him a reply.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister assure this House that those county councils which did not get their grants in full will be given priority in the coming year so that they will be able to complete the projects that they were not able to complete last year?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, as soon as we have funds made available by the Treasury, we will be able to meet the grants as the Member suggested.

TARMACKING OF MAZERAS-KALOLENI ROAD

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House, since Rabai was a historical place and since there were over 5,000 tourists who had visited the place, what the Minister was doing to see that the road between Mazeras and Kaloleni was tarmacked.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

It is not clear from the hon. Member's statement, over what period the 5,000 tourists have visited Rabai. In fact, I am wondering whether it was from the time the first Arabs arrived!

My Ministry has not been informed by the Ministry responsible for tourism that the Mazeras-Kaloleni Road should be included in the tourist road priorities. However, I have in the past (June 1968) informed the Member for Kilifi North, in reply to his National Assembly Question No. 621, and the Member for Mombasa West, in reply to his National Assembly Question No. 638, that the Mazeras-Kaloleni Road has been included in the draft road development programme 1968/73 priorities for the Coast Province.

This is still the case, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, since this figure is on the record of the Visitor's Book in the St. John's Church, Rabai, of 5,000 tourists, could the Assistant Minister now consider giving money to tarmac this road as soon as possible?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that this road is in the Development Plan for 1968/73. This has not been influenced by the number of tourists. In fact, it is a road needed by the people for other purposes.

Question No. 71

NEGLECT OF KUSA-NYABONDO ROAD

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House why the Kusa-Nyabondo-Sondu Road was being maintained half-way from Sondu to the end of Nyabondo plateau, but the rest of that road was neglected.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Presumably the hon. Member is referring to the two roads, from Kusa to Nyabondo and from Nyabondo to Sondu which are minor roads C.4017 and C.441 respectively.

Both these roads are minor roads which are supposed to be maintained by the Kisumu County Council from that county council's own financial resources, and all I can say is that I have written to the county council concerned to maintain the full length of the road from Kusa to Sondu, and I hope that they will take the necessary action.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell me what happened about the recommendation of the Kisumu Commission which recommended that this road should be taken over by the Central Government to be maintained as a secondary road? What was the outcome of that recommendation?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is, at present, reviewing the secondary roads in the country, but we do not touch the minor roads at all which are the responsibility of the county councils.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 11

ELECTRICITY SUPPLIES FOR HAMISI

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Power and Communications if the Minister was doing anything to effect a network of electricity in Hamisi.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Sir, I think the Minister did not actually get what I asked, could I seek your guidance as to what I can do because I asked what had been the outcome of the commission's report, not about the secondary roads in general.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That happens sometimes Mr. Chillo, but we have gone on now.

Would you ask your question again, Mr. Godia?

Question No. 11

ELECTRICITY SUPPLIES FOR HAMISI

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Power and Communications if the Minister was doing anything to effect a network of electricity in Hamisi.

The Assistant Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The cost of tapping the high voltage line which passes some four miles from Hamisi would be in the order of £1,000 while a branch line would cost another £3,000. Local distribution network would cost a further £1,000, and so the total capital expenditure would be to the order of £5,000.

If the prospective consumers are prepared to guarantee a certain level of consumption per annum to justify this high capital cost, they should apply to the East African Power and Lighting Company for connexion. Details of the terms of connexion would have to be agreed between the two parties involved.

As pointed out in replies to Question Numbers 556 of 1967 and 250 of 1968, by the hon. Member who has asked this same question again, the potential consumers should submit their applications to the Power Company for consideration and an assessment of the demand.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply by the Assistant Minister, is he not aware that applications from my constituents have already been submitted to his Ministry through his engineer in Kisumu, who has sent in a person to fix the wiring of some local houses and shops, and since that has taken place no further work has been carried out and the people do not have electricity?

Mr. Moss: I will investigate that.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply from the Assistant Minister that the people residing in the Hamisi Constituency should have their names put down to facilitate the area to have electricity, is the Minister aware that one day the hon. Waira Kamau asked the same Ministry to install electricity at Githunguri and this was done without demands from the population who would use the electricity?

Mr. Moss: That is a sweeping allegation, Mr. Speaker, which the hon. Member cannot substantiate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you substantiate that, Mr. Tsalwa?

Mr. Tsalwa: Yes, I can. Would the Minister deny the fact that there is electricity at Githunguri which was installed by the same department of the Ministry?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That does not prove that it was at the particular request of a particular Member.

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, there is electricity. I will defy him—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Tsalwa, you are being asked to substantiate that the electricity is there because one hon. Member, namely Mr. Kamau, demanded that it should be there. How do you know this?

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that Mr. Waira Kamau demanded this and it was installed at that place, Githunguri, the former teachers' college, which was run by Mzee Jomo Kenyatta before he was arrested, and that is why he has earned his good name in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Tsalwa, we must not lose very much time on this. When you are asked to substantiate I think you know that you are being asked to give your evidence. What is your evidence of this; how do you know this?

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, I would like the hon. Waira Kamau to deny this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You cannot substantiate in that way. If you cannot prove or give any evidence of what you are alleging, you have to withdraw and not waste the time of the House.

Mr. Tsalwa: I can substantiate that, Mr. Speaker, in a different way. Can I do that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, I tabled a question here that electricity should be installed in various places from Sigalagala, Bukura, Mwiwila Hospital and Butere, and this is being done without demands by the population; the people who are going to use it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Tsalwa, if you cannot produce any substantiation you must withdraw what you have alleged and apologize for wasting the time of the House.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not actually intend to come into conflict with anyone in this House, but this is true, this is as it was.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Tsalwa, if you will not substantiate in spite of successive demands, you will have to leave this Chamber. You will do so for the rest of today's sitting.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will leave the Chamber.

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, I am going to say something.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will leave the Chamber and say nothing. Serjeant-at-Arms.

(The hon. Member left the Chamber escorted by the Serjeant-at-Arms)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 58

HOUSING AND DISMISSALS OF E.A.A. STEWARDESSES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House—

(a) why were the stewardesses working with the East African Airways Corporation not provided with houses or house allowances; and

(b) why was it that when flying stewardesses were pregnant, they got dismissed from the Corporation instead of being transferred to the ground stewardesses' duties.

The Assistant Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Moss): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The stewardesses, and indeed all single female employees of the Corporation, receive a house allowance to enable them to make their own housing arrangements.

It is not true that stewardesses are dismissed from the Corporation. However, a stewardess who becomes pregnant has to be removed from flying duties in the interests of her health. There is no reason why she should not be considered for a ground job, except that ground duties are different from that of stewardessing and would require additional training before she could become useful.

A ground hostess's job involves much standing and walking around for long hours on shift duties and this, according to doctor's advice, is not fair on the mother or the baby either.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell this House how much, in figures, is being given to the stewardesses, and (b) what other type of work is alternatively provided for the stewardesses instead of ground stewardessing?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have different scales according to different jobs and, therefore, house allowances are paid according to the different scales. I am not, therefore, able to say how much any particular stewardess gets.

As regard (b): when a woman becomes pregnant—or a girl becomes pregnant—all that we do is give her leave and when she delivers she resumes her duties.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it true that air hostesses are supposed to be spinsters and not married women and, therefore, the question of their becoming pregnant does, in fact, break their contract with East African Airways?

Mr. Moss: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is precisely why we relinquish them from their duties when they become pregnant because they are employed on the understanding that while flying they do not become pregnant.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, how would the Assistant Minister marry the two answers now, because just a few minutes ago he said that when these stewardesses become pregnant they are given leave, but he has now just said that they are not meant to be pregnant when they are doing these things and so they relinquish them of their jobs, in other words, they terminate their employment? How can he marry up the two?

Mr. Moss: I married the second!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 55

INDUSTRIAL UNREST OF THIKA

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Labour what immediate measures was the Ministry undertaking to prevent further strikes in the Thika factories as a result of the go-slow strike operated by Thika Municipal Council employees on the wages demand which subsequently resulted in suspension of 102 council employees including union officials.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Oselu-Nyalick): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

This question has been overtaken by events but it must be realized that there were no strikes in Thika factories at the time of the go-slow by the Thika Municipality employees. However, the trade dispute between the Thika Municipal Council employees and the Thika Municipal Council was settled by conciliation which included the question of the suspension of 102 council employees.

The issue was resolved by agreement between the union and the Thika Municipal Council when it was agreed that the employees were to be re-employed in phases.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, arising from that one, I am pleased to know that these employees have been re-employed in phases. Why was it not possible for these employees to be given their proper jobs that they were trained for before, because I just do not see any sense in re-employing them in phases?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just said that this was a settlement arrived at by the union officials and the municipal council, that these people were first of all suspended arising from the go-slow that they had, but, after discussions with the union officials, it was found necessary that the way to bring them back into employment would be by phases; that is a certain number should be employed at a time until the employment was full. I see no reason why the hon. Member is still panicking about this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 59

MISUSE OF COTU FUNDS

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with your permission, I want to say something about this one. I meant, Mr. Speaker, the former Cotu officials because this Question was to be asked before the former Cotu officials were ousted. I would like to go back to the former Cotu officials.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Munyi, you must have given notice of your desire to renew this Question or it would not be on the Order Paper, but you can withdraw it now if you like.

Mr. Munyi: I am not going to withdraw, Mr. Speaker, but I will ask a supplementary.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have to ask the Question.

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Labour what action the Minister was taking to investigate complaints by trade union organizations affiliated to Cotu that Cotu funds had been misused.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. My Ministry is not aware of any complaints about Cotu funds being misused. As and when necessary, Cotu has been advised to exercise economies as far as possible so as to make ends meet. Accounts of Cotu are checked by the Registrar of Trade Unions who would advise the Government of any misuse of Cotu funds at any time such misuse came about. If anyone has any specific cases of misuses of Cotu funds in mind, he is welcome to notify my Ministry or the Registrar of Trade Unions to facilitate further investigations and the rectifying of any abuse which may arise.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer; and arising from the fact that a few months ago there were some trade union organizations which complained that Cotu money was being misused; and arising from the fact that this complaint had already been reported in newspapers, is the Assistant Minister ready to accept newspaper cuttings of some of the complaints—I can lay them on the Table—arising from the complaints which were given by various trade union organizations before the new leaders of Cotu were elected? That is a fact, Mr. Speaker, and the Assistant Minister is aware of that.

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, probably this was during the old reign which, until very recently, was in existence, and has now been replaced by popularly elected leaders. All we are trying to follow, is that if there is any new complaint, the Government will look into it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 10

DEVELOPMENT OF TOURISM IN KAKAMEGA

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Tourism and Wildlife if he would tell the House, since Kakamega had a lot of tourist attractions in the Kakamega Forest, had the Minister done anything to encourage the development of tourism in the district.

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. Jan Mohamed): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. While I know about the birdlife and wonderful people in the Kakamega area, I do not know of all the other tourist attractions there.

However, tourists choose where to go and what to see in the countries which they visit. It is our responsibility, as a Government, assisted by the private sector, to publicize all the attractions that Kenya offers and subsequently to allow the visitors to choose where they would like to go. In this sense, Government has done something to advertise the attractions of the Kakamega area, not as a specific district, but as part of Western Kenya. The hon. Member will recall that last year the Government declared part of Mt. Elgon a national park, and with this extra, but very significant attraction, we hope to be able to attract more people to Western Kenya.

Our tourism has very largely been based upon wildlife attractions and with most visitors entering Kenya through Nairobi and Mombasa, Western and Northern areas of Kenya have not had as many visitors as in other areas. It is with a view to attracting more visitors to Western Kenya, that we opened the national park in Mt. Elgon. This extra attraction would also help us retain, in the area, visitors entering Kenya from Uganda.

When sufficient tourist traffic is generated, hotel and lodge development will no doubt take place. The development plan for the period 1969/74 is in its final stages of preparation, and it is our hope that during this period Western Kenya should have over 200 new beds. It is hoped that Kakamega would benefit in the process of this new development.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister has dwelt mostly on Western Kenya, and also on the Elgon National Park, is he satisfied that he has now replied to my Question?

Mr. Jan Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am quite satisfied that I have replied to the Question, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member should know that Kakamega, on its own, cannot provide a tourist attraction. Kakamega falls, of course, within a tourist circuit, and as I have said, when this western part of our country becomes more popular and there are more attractions to which the Mt. Elgon Park is going to contribute very much, that will be the time when some development can be carried out.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell the House what evidence he has to satisfy us that there is nothing in the Kakamega Forest that can attract tourists?

Mr. Jan Mohamed: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not for me, nor for the hon. Members, to say what is there in Kakamega Forest which can attract the tourists. It is for the tourists themselves; and, as I have said, I entirely agree that there is some good birdlife in that area, which would be very attractive. But just birdlife on its own will not provide sufficient tourist attraction, and that alone will not attract development.

Question No. 52

SENIOR WOMEN IN MINISTRY OF CO-OPERATIVES AND SOCIAL SERVICES

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services if he would tell the House whether there were any women holding responsible posts in that Ministry, and if there were, what posts they held.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operative and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yes there are women holding responsible posts in my Ministry as follows:—

One Senior Community Development Officer; one Senior Social Welfare Officer; eight Community Development Officers; one Social Welfare Officer; three Assistant Social Welfare Officers; and 12 Acting Community Development Officers.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, will the Assistant Minister agree with me that the Ministry of Social Services should give an example to other Ministries, so that they can also take that as an example in giving more responsible posts to women.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are only concerned with Mr. Maisori's Ministry, and so is he.

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree with the hon. Member that the women in this country have a responsibility to play a very important role in building our nation.

The Speaker (Mr. Speaker): Next question, Mr. arap Soi. Order! Mr. arap Soi.

Question No. 75

BOMET ADMINISTRATION LAND OWNERSHIP

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi asked the Minister of State to the President's Office if he would tell the House whether he was aware that the land at present occupied by the Administration at Bomet had not been paid for and that the owner, Mr. Kiplangat arap Chepkwony, was complaining of the delay.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister of State to the President's Office, I beg to reply.

I am not aware.

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister is not aware, what steps is the Ministry taking to see that this is checked?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no necessity for the Ministry to take any steps, because the facts of the place are well known, and they are to the effect that Mr. Kiplangat never owned the piece of land the hon. Member is claiming that he used to own.

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Assistant Minister, alleges that he is not aware that the land now occupied by the Administration belongs to Mr. Kiplangat arap Chepkwony, where did the administration get this land, and has the administration paid money for this land to anyone at any time?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this land on which Bomet Township is built was acquired by the then Government around 1939; and the records show that the necessary—

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister in order to refer to the land I mean in this question as a township, when the administration has occupied a different piece of land from that of the township?

Hon. Members: He does not know.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the land referred to by Mr. arap Soi has nothing to do with the land occupied by the township, then the answer which the Minister has given is clearly irrelevant. Perhaps there are some misunderstandings.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I say that the land now occupied by the administration within Bomet area; the one to which the hon. Member is referring to was acquired by Government around 1939. The records show that all the necessary consultations with the local community took place and they consented to the acquisition of that land by the Government. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Member that all of that land which was then acquired for Government use was not immediately utilized. When Mr. Kiplangat arap Chepkwony moved away from where he originally came from, a place called Chongong around 1937, he settled in this area. When the Government wanted to use his remaining piece of land, they moved Mr. Kiplangat away, I understand now he has a plot in the settlement schemes like all other landless people.

VEHICLES FOR BOMET/KERICHO AGRICULTURE OFFICER

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House why the Ministry had not provided a vehicle for the Divisional Agriculture Officer—Bomet/Kericho Districts.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Ministry's allocation of vans or replacement of vehicles is far from adequate for providing every divisional officer with a vehicle. In areas where roads are reasonable, we thought of providing the officers with travelling allowances, so that they can use their motor-cars while on duty. That is the same with Bomet Division. When the roads are impassable, he can obtain a four-wheel drive Land-Rover from the District Assistant Officer, Kericho.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I take this opportunity to request the hon. Members and the House as a whole to vote for my Ministry's vote when it comes next time. It is not very far off, it is round the corner.

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that Bomet Division is in Kericho District which has the poorest road system, and that in the past the divisional officer had a Land-Rover, which was taken away from him in 1968? Could the Assistant Minister explain why this happened? As a result of this, many officers have been sitting in their offices instead of going out to help the people.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree that this Land-Rover was taken away in 1968; but this was because the vehicle could not give any further service, as it was more or less unserviceable.

Now I am requesting the hon. Members and I appeal to them to vote for my Ministry's vote, so that we can get a replacement vehicle.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: The question here is about Bomet Division, not Bomet town. Bomet Division covers more than 800 square miles but has no roads. How do you expect your officers to work out there, and this time I understand you have come here for formalities to pass your Vote?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have not sufficient funds at the moment to be able to replace the vehicles, but we have put this in the main estimates in the Budget which is coming. I am requesting hon. Members to support me in my Vote, so that it is passed, and then we will be able to supply a replacement vehicle.

Question No. 66

CONDITIONS AT KOMBENI HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) why Kombeni Health Centre had been without water for the past three months;
 (b) whether the Minister was aware that there was no public latrine up to the present time.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Kombeni Health Centre was visited on 20th February 1969, to get first-hand information regarding the question of the water supply and toilet facilities at the centre.

This health centre is situated only a quarter of a mile from the Kombeni River. This is a permanent river. An engine pump was fixed by the river to pump water to two high-level tanks and from them, the water travels to the health centre by gravity.

The water is not treated and effective treatment is not feasible under these conditions. However, a slight sedimentation process takes place in one of the tanks. This water is most unsafe to drink without boiling, as the children who bath and swim in the river and villages along the river banks have no latrines. Hookworm and roundworm infections are endemic among the people in the area. When boiled, the water is relatively safe for drinking and the risk of helminthic infection is negligible after storage for 12 hours.

(b) There is no latrine built especially for the use of members of the public who come to the health centre for treatment. There are however, four latrines in one block for both male and female members of the staff. The public have access to these latrines.

The staff members would resent the use of their latrines by outpatients who might spoil them.

Mr. Mwatsama: Arising from one of the answers, and since the Assistant Minister agrees that the water from the Kombeni River is not safe for people to drink, is the Assistant Minister not aware that the Mazeras/Kilifi pipeline passes through Kombeni Health Centre and if so, what effort is he doing to tap water from this pipeline.

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, mainly it is the duty of the Kilifi County Council to deal with the water facilities in this particular health centre and, in addition to that I have said, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Provincial Medical Officer has said that the Kilifi County Council has written to the Ministry of Works requesting them to allow Kombeni Health Centre to have access to the water from Mzima Springs which passes through there and it is hoped that their request will be met favourably.

KITUI HOSPITAL MATERNITY WARD

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) whether he was aware that in Kitui District Hospital Maternity Ward, babies shared beds, and that mothers used their ordinary clothes to cover them;
 (b) if the answer was in the affirmative, why were they being charged K.Sh. 40.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Except when a mother has twins, babies do not usually share beds in Kitui District Hospital Maternity Ward. The Ministry of Health is fully aware that that would be unhealthy.

It is not true mothers use their ordinary clothes to cover themselves when they are admitted into the maternity ward in Kitui District Hospital because the Ministry is satisfied that they are supplied with enough linen.

It is, however, the custom of that part of the country that mothers would always like to cover themselves with a kanga and so when they come to the hospital, they do not want to hand over their kangas for safe custody.

(b) In view of the above (b) does not arise.

Mr. Munyasia: Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I am a member of the Hospital Visiting Committee appointed by the same Ministry, and it was on 14th April 1969, that we sat and I witnessed these scenes with my own eyes, how can the Minister deny that if they have appointed me to visit and see all these things?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the information I have here is that there has been no complaint by the public whatsoever, known to the Ministry on point (a) to discuss about. It is also understood that the Visiting Committee of the Hospital has met regularly and the members of that committee were satisfied with the facilities available, and services provided in this ward.

It is also understood that the hon. Munyasia is a member of this committee and has met regularly the committee members and there has been no complaint ever sent to the Ministry.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I agree fully that I am one of the members of the Hospital Visiting Committee as the Minister indicated, and that since the Minister has said that the public has not complained, and that I being a representative of the people, and that is why I was appointed, who does the Assistant Minister expect complaints from, the servants or the persons elected by the public?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when going through the minutes of a number of committee meetings held in Kitui Hospital, we did not come across any complaints of any sort. As the hon. Member has asked, and if we can get in writing from the committee which the hon. Member has mentioned, any complaints they have had then action will be taken.

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister prepared to go to Kitui to look at the facilities in the hospital as soon as possible, in order that he may find out whether the hon. Member is speaking the truth or not?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are programmes arranged to visit Kitui District Hospital just like any other district hospital in Kenya, and I would like to inform the hon. Member that we have a Provincial Commissioner, Provincial Medical Officer of Health and a District Medical Officer of Health who supply us with enough information on the facilities afforded. This does not mean that we do not visit the place and we do have plans for visiting the hospital.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the Assistant Minister's replies, how does he reconcile the fact that a member of the Visiting Committee is giving him information regarding the complaints and, at the same time, he says that unless he hears from Visiting Committee members, he will not take action and yet he has now just heard from one of the committee members. How does he reconcile that?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to inform the hon. Member that each hospital has a file, and I have gone through these files and there is nothing there about these complaints; so if this matter has been discussed by the committee, nothing has been written in the minutes.

So if it is the feeling of the hon. Member from Kitui that this hospital should be visited, we will arrange for a visit and we will investigate these complaints.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now. I would remind hon. Members that on the Adjournment today, Mr. Mbogoh is to raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

MOTIONTHANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 26th May 1969) (Fourth Day)

Mr. Munyi: Thank you, very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for giving me the chance to say something concerning the Presidential Address. In fact, after having gone through the speech which was delivered by His Excellency the President of the Republic of Kenya, I came to the conclusion that the speech itself was timely. The speech was one which we have been waiting for a long time.

I come now to the contents of the speech which was delivered by the President and here I would like to make a few observations. The first one which I am going to make is to give a three-point plan on ways and means of trying to relieve our country from the menace of unemployment. With your permission, Sir, I would like to quote what is in our Kanu Manifesto. It is on page 22 where it says that immediately after our party comes into power, some actions are to be taken to see to it that responsibilities were to be given to the local people in the field of the industrial sector. However, for a very long time we have been speaking in this House and outside about the policy which is being pursued at present on industrial development, on industrial freedom. However, as far as the industries are concerned in our country, Sir, most of the industrial establishments are deliberately refusing to give responsible posts to the local people. All they do is just to say that such-and-such post has been Africanized, such-and-such post has been taken over by the local people. In reality, however, when you come to a number of companies you see an underground movement which is being conducted by some of the companies in this country. Thus you will come to the conclusion that they are only cheating our Government, they are not really fulfilling the Act which was passed in this House. It was agreed that before the expatriates or, let us say, most of the people working in foreign companies, before they are given licences, before they are given permits to work in this country, the companies must see to it that most of such posts do not have local people who can fill them or take over. I can give an example of one company, a company like Colgate. There is at present one man who is acting as general manager of that company. In reality that man was expelled from Tanzania. He was expelled from Tanzania as an undesirable immigrant. He then came to this country, and when he came here he was first employed as a storekeeper. At present, you will find that this man is working as acting general manager of that company.

We have people of high merit in this country; there are a good number of people who have already sat for the Cambridge School Certificate Examination, in the First or Second Division, but they are roaming about the streets. There are people who have degrees— It does not matter where they were trained because these people have the economic know-how of taking over the responsibilities of most of the posts which today are being occupied by expatriates. Mr. Speaker, saying that So-and-so was trained in the Eastern countries, or So-and-so was trained in the Western countries, this is a mistake. If a person was trained in an Eastern country and he has proved to be quite capable why not give him responsibilities? He is an African, a man who can take over the responsibility in our companies. So we do not see the reason why if you are trained in an Eastern country, or you are trained in America and then when you come back to your own country you should not follow the principle or policy of your own country. You should not be discriminated against because you were trained either in Yugoslavia, Russia, Germany or in the United States of America. This should not be the case because our country follows a non-aligned policy. People should not, therefore, be discriminated against but discrimination is apparent in the private sector. Sir, if you go to the University College you will be asked if you were trained in Germany or in such-and-such country. We have doctors who were trained in Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and they are doing very well. These people have proved to be quite capable and they should not be discriminated against. They should not be allowed to roam the streets without being given employment. Our policy is one of non-alignment. I can even quote what is in the Kanu Manifesto. In one of the pages of this manifesto it says that our country will follow a non-aligned policy. This is what we want Kenya to do; this is what we want our companies to practise, in action, in deed, and not only to shout and say that they are going to do this and that.

To come to another point, Sir, with the permission of the House, I would like to give an example of what is going on in Kenya. I know of candidates from Embu who applied for certain jobs, they wanted to be cadets in the Kenya Air Force; they wanted to be cadets in the Kenya Army; they wanted to be cadets in the Kenya Navy, but nothing came of it. These candidates have high educational qualifications but not one of them was selected. This must be stopped because those who are trying to practise brotherization, those who are trying to practise tribalism are against what our President has been telling us, that we must eliminate tribalism, nepotism, in practical deeds. It is not a question merely of saying, "There is no tribalism. There is no brotherization. There is no discrimination" when, in deed, Mr. Speaker, there certainly is. Why should you discriminate against somebody because he comes from Embu? Why should you discriminate against somebody because he comes from Lamu? Why discriminate against somebody because he comes from Baringo? Why favour only the people from a few districts? This is extremely bad and we should condemn it strongly. It was only a month ago when the Attorney-General warned the officials of our country not to practise corruption. But there are people who say that this is not being followed; they act contrary to what they have been asked by our Government to do. This is not permissible.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to everyone in this country, to all Ministers, to do something in accordance with the policy of our country so that the good name which our country has won, the prestige which our country has won abroad will continue to influence everyone abroad.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

Mr. Munyi: Thank you, Sir, but the time was too short.

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have come now to the Seventh Session of our First Parliament. This is the First Parliament and next year we will come to the Second Parliament. The policy which His Excellency the President read out in his speech, to sum up what has been done in the last 12 months, I regret to say did not cover everything as each and every one of us thinks.

I thank the President because he stated that he has instructed his Ministers to implement all the promises which have been made on the economic side so that the whole country can benefit, right up to the sub-locations. If there are such promises within the Development Plan of today, not the one for 1974, then let us see something. We do not want to talk of things that were there in 1963. Mr. Speaker, I want the Ministers to do something and tell the people in the countryside what will happen, what will be delayed and why the promises made could not be carried out for so long.

In my area, the Uasin Gishu District, in the western part of Kenya, there is a terrible settlement scheme where people were allocated some plots. This was in the national farms which once belongs to a farmer called Mr. Kuthla. I hear that the house on this farm will be occupied by the Assistant Minister for Agriculture. The people who were promised that when the Committee came there to cut up the plots on that farm they would be allocated land on the farm; these people have now been told, "Sorry, the Government now has second thoughts and intend to make this area an afforestation area." I would like the Government to state clearly what is its policy, what kind of policy will be carried out in the country. If the Government states its policy and when we come here to argue they tell us we cannot raise such matters, then I am sorry to know this. Let our Government implement the promises made to the people and let Government speed up this question of implementation. We do not want to come here and lower the dignity of the House by mentioning that the Government has decided to have second thoughts.

When we come to certain things on the question of commerce and industry, we would like to know whether the names of the applicants on the files in the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation which had been rejected should now be referred to. Those whose applications were approved were so few number in the towns, within the municipalities.

Even if you come to the question of the Agricultural Finance Corporation, if a farmer wants to buy a tractor, and his application has been approved he should be given the tractor straightaway so that he can go back immediately to the field, adopt the "Go back to the land" policy. He must do this within a short time. He must then work and repay the money according to the instructions he receives. Mr. Speaker, this farmer should not have to wait, and wait, and wait, and wait.

I am very worried about this question of security. We have people in Uasin Gishu District who have bought farms. Then if they want Sh. 2,000 or Sh. 10,000 to carry on with business they are asked for security. How can somebody without a ng'ombe or some such thing provide a security? If it is Ng'ang'a or Kamau he is safe, he does not have to offer any security. That is why our people say, "When you go to Parliament you are being bought and made to keep quiet." Why can we not get anything out of all this? There are about £3 million in the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, yet Mr. Wanjiki just sits there without delivering the goods. He has the money and does not deliver the goods. When we ask for the goods we are told we are becoming tribalistic. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like these goods to be delivered to the people, whatever the goods, whatever the price, anything that they may be, provided it is money. If money is the root of all evil, then why not leave the devil to us? We would like to say this: if money is the root of all evil, then let us have this evil, we will suffer with it and ask Jesus to save us. We will pay back the evil. When we need the money and ask for it we are told we are being tribalistic, we are the leaders of tribal groups, we are making factions in the political arena. We are not doing this, Sir. We will never do that. We want something within the arena.

Mr. Speaker, why should there not be a trade officer within every district so that he can assist us to get £1 million for our districts? Then all the invoices can come to the headquarters for checking and auditing. Why should everything be in Nairobi? All the time you are told, "See Mr. Mutiso", "See Mr. arap Nei", "See Mr. So-and-so". You are made to go round for about three weeks or so and then you get one big 'R', rejected. After paying Sh. 100 or Sh. 300, or even Sh. 400, then have another form to fill in and then that, too, gets rejected.

I know of one person in particular who has been troubling us. This man is more powerful than a kinyozi gentleman who has been given something just because he attends to our hair and cuts it. He is given Sh. 3,000, and he is asked for security because of the cutting machine. We are not given anything.

So, Mr. Speaker, let our Government not do things which later on the ordinary people in the streets will complain about. They will one day cry when the guillotine is already being used. We are one with the Government and we must always tell the Government what the public opinion is. If there are Special Branches, the Criminal Investigation Department and so forth, that is another thing. After all, Sir, we have the mandate of the people. Even when some person is in the grave you hear others say, "So-and-so was good."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our present Government is well stabilized. I am not going to say that our Government is not strong but I am going to ask the Ministers to heed the call and the instructions given by His Excellency the President, to implement the promises, to deliver the goods, whether evil or bad; bring them to us, do not have second thoughts. If we cannot accept the little good that comes from the Government, how much are we going to say our Government is good if we are still waiting with expectation for the miracles which will be brought later. No. Now, we are being told that later on in this year there will be a census. This must be done properly, but not in a test tube because later on there will be something behind it.

Again, Mr. Speaker, when it comes to a General Election—next year there is supposed to be a General Election—there must not be second thoughts again so that it is said according to our development, thoughts there must be second thoughts until 1974. I do not think this should come into being. We are now mature enough. You can see that even though we are small shop-owners—whatever sector we are—already we are mature in our minds. Even if we are not returned next year, we are still going to be the Members of Parliament at home, the ambassadors of this Parliament, and we will have to come to this House because of the virtue of the way the people are mature in their minds and they want maturity in this House.

Therefore, when the budget comes the police should be eased. If the police are given instructions by their own officers to go and arrest somebody, they just go and beat them and the whole business. We do not want this. They should go under the instructions by virtue of the fact that they have been sent there.

Whenever the Ministers come to our constituencies we must sit down and consult plans as to how they go, instead of being directed from the Ministries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank our Government for delivering these goods to our people at home.

Mr. Obok: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I also feel that I would be failing in my duties as Member for Alego if I did not also comment briefly on what the President of the Republic told us on the 20th May.

Mr. Speaker, the occasion did not look very important at all, although in this Chamber, both in the Public Gallery and inside here, we had distinguished guests, bishops and judges and so forth. What happened was that when the High Bench, the judges of high courts, led by the Chief Justice, Mr. Kitili Mwendwa, arrived in the Chamber, some hon. Members must have noticed that the Attorney-General was just laughing. Mr. Speaker, this made the whole occasion look very cheap indeed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to compare the two State Openings by His Excellency the President: that is the main address by His Excellency at the State Opening of Parliament last year on the 26th February 1968 and looking at the State Opening of Parliament on the 20th May this year. Mr. Speaker, one of 20th May 1969, this clearly shows that the Government of the day has reached the point of no return. There is too much repetition. Hon. Members are talking of tribalism dominating the Civil Service and commerce and industry, but the President never condemned tribalism at all. When you look at his security men, his bodyguards who came around here this morning, you see that they are all Kikuyus. How then are we going to stop it?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, looking at the way we associate ourselves with certain reactionary countries; when we invite people like General Ankrah to this country, people who were found to have been corrupted—this means that we are not very far away from corruption ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Gatundu self-help hospital: there is talk of corruption. This self-help project has received fat donations and it continues to receive them up to now. What is all that?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, is it in order to call donations corruption, or is it just a question of interpretation? Are we to take that as being in order, namely that donations to the Gatundu self-help project are corruption?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Obok is referring to something which General Ankrah confessed to, I think.

Mr. Shikuku: He is referring to the nation as a whole and Gatundu as corruption.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think so. I think you misunderstood him.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, I do not know why the Member for Butere likes to behave like a baby sometimes. I am coming to the point. I cannot go to Gatundu today, or anybody for that matter who would like to go and see the President, because every evening somebody goes to Gatundu and gives money. What do you think that is? Is that not an inducement? I asked why should so much money go to only one place—we are spoiling our leaders by giving them money.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like your ruling on this particular one because the hon. Member said that when guests go to Gatundu to give their donations to the hospital, it is an inducement. Previously he mentioned the word “corruption”; can he be specific about this one and tell us whether he means that the donations given are an inducement to corruption?

[The Minister for Housing]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you make yourself clear, Mr. Obok?

Mr. Obok: I just do not know why the Minister—for what—for Housing—cannot let me finish and make my point. The point here is that I am trying to say that we hon. Members of this House are against corruption, but corruption may mean, in fact, people going to see the President at his home are making the country what-have-you; if you do not have any money you cannot go to visit the President. I would like to go and see the President, but I would not like to go there if I am not going to leave a cheque there. You know that a lot of people have given cheques there, don't you?

Mr. Speaker, in his speech, the President's major subject was theft.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Member to allege that if you want to go and see the President you must have money to go there? This is what he was telling us, that because he has no money he cannot go and see the President. Can he substantiate that everybody who goes to see the President at Gatundu must carry money with him?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Obok, I find it awfully hard to understand what you are getting at. It does seem that you are suggesting in some way or another that visits to Gatundu are somehow connected with corruption. You must make it clear that you do do mean this, and then get on to another subject.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the President, in his main speech, the major subject was theft. I wonder whether the Government has ever cared to investigate and find out what tribes are deeply involved in this increased theft with violence, robberies, shopbreaking and so forth. We should be told this. I see the Minister is coming up but I do not want him to interrupt me at all. This is one thing I would like to say, that I do not think the—

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, we would like to get this very clear. The Member says that if you want to go to Gatundu you must have a cheque to see the President; he would like to see the President but without a cheque. This is what we understand: that you cannot see the President. Can he confirm this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have asked the hon. Member to make it quite clear that he does not associate visits to Gatundu with corruption and then come to another subject, so would you make that quite clear, Mr. Obok.

Mr. Obok: I have already made it very clear.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have not. If you would just confirm now, then we can leave the subject.

Mr. Obok: In fact, Mr. Speaker, I am not linking it with what the hon. Minister is just trying to pin on me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am asking you to make yourself clear. You have been very unclear and rather sinister so far. Will you make it quite clear that there is no association between visits to Gatundu and corruption?

Mr. Obok: Not at all, Sir, I am not doing that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the country's police force is, today, the largest police force in Africa, but it is a police force without a deputy. Why? Is this because the top officers who should have taken this position are Luo, or is it because there is no Kikuyu from Kiambu who could take up this post of Deputy Commissioner of Police? Have we not got a Kalenjin with so many years' experience and training so that he can hold the position of the Deputy Commissioner of the police force? This is all tribalism.

There was recently a crash promotion of army officers, but I wonder who are the officers underneath here. Some officers have been promoted and Brigadier Ndolo has been put at the top, and Colonel Mulinge has moved up too; but I wonder who were promoted underneath them to do the donkey work. This shows that Mulinge and Ndolo are going to have absolutely no contact with the askaris. These are the sort of things we do not like, and you should not think that people are blind. This is the sort of thing that brought about the situation in Nigeria. It was because of tribalism and it was because certain people thought they could dominate others by putting members of their tribes to hold key positions in the armed forces. In Kenya here this should be stopped and we are not going to allow it at all.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Hear, hear. Remember the Machakos incident.

Mr. Obok: Remember the Machakos incident when you were knocked down by Mr. Malu.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, is it not time the hon. Member addressed the Chair instead of addressing Mr. Ngei?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think he is addressing the Chair.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know, in fact, that Africanization is taking place in commerce now, but we must be given a tribal breakdown because we would like to see how many Wakambas and how many Luos there are in River Road, and how many Kipsigis have taken key positions and have been given an opportunity to play bigger roles in commerce. It should not be only for people from Kiambu who take over from expatriates. This is absolutely wrong and nobody is going to accept it. I am telling you, Mr. Speaker, that we are all men—we who are ruining the country.

Also, this country allows far too many South Africans here. In fact, we are seen to be associating ourselves with certain leaders who are sympathizing with South Africa.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much for giving me this opportunity to join my hon. colleagues in congratulating the President on his speech. I welcome the speech very much and I think it was a very good one and we all welcome it in this House, although my hon. friend, Mr. Luke Obok, is trying to correct the speech one way or the other, but personally I do support it.

My view, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to speak about my district, is that I know how backward we are educationally, agriculturally and even in fisheries. In my speech, I mainly want to speak about fisheries. In Lamu District as a whole you find that most of the people along the mainland of the coast and even those who are on the islands are all fishermen. However, I agree that the Government has formed a company which is called the Kenya Inshore Fisheries, which is buying all our catches. However, there are a number of Members of this House who have spoken about tribalism in Kenya, and I agree in one way or the other about tribalism. You find that most of the fishermen—almost 100 per cent—of Lamu District are Bajuns. You find that Luos are not interested in fishing in the Indian Ocean; they are only interested in the lakes. However, you find that this company has a General Manager who is a Kikuyu, but I do not quarrel with that because this entirely depends upon the qualifications and the capabilities of doing office work and so on. Mr. Njeru is a Kikuyu and he comes from Kiambu, for your information. We welcome Mr. Njeru in this company to be the General Manager. When you come to the skilled job of fishing, you find that 100 per cent of the fishermen come from Lamu District. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the dhows or the steamers or the small steamships which come to buy these lobsters—they sail all the way from Mombasa down to Lamu to buy our catches—also have the captains and the seamen as Bajuns, which is very good. However, you find also the clerks who are weighing the fish—so many pounds fetch so many shillings—are also Bajuns.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, surprisingly enough, about nine months ago all the Bajuns, besides the captains, those who used to be clerks on board, and even those who were seamen, were discharged and Kikuyus were imported from up-country here to Lamu to do the jobs. This is a very shameful thing. It could be anything, whether imported or exported; it should be imported, as a matter of fact, because the General Manager is a Kikuyu. This is very serious, Mr. Speaker, because you find that everything is done by the Bajuns. If I go tomorrow and tell a Bajun that as of tomorrow he will not have any of his men on board his ship and that he will have to stop fishing or I will force him to stop fishing, this is of great harm to the country. Of course I can tell them, because as Kikuyus they do not know how to fish.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the other hand my people depend on the second job they are doing which is farming. Farming, as I said earlier, in Lamu District is different because this district is one of those districts which suffered from the shifta menace, and you find that farming has been forgotten for four years because of the shifta activities. I appeal to this Government to put all its efforts into seeing that all the farmers in Lamu District, either on the islands or on the mainland, are given help.

Mr. Speaker, there is also another danger in those islands which I want to make very clear. In a place like in Ndau, and another one called Gitini, and the third one called Fazi, where Fazi is the administrative headquarters of the division, these islands are so small but there are a number of people living on these islands, ranging from 3,000 onwards on every island. You find, on these islands there is no sea-wall to prevent the water rising, and every year you find that a piece of land has been washed away by the water. I think in ten years' time, if the Government is not going to build a sea-wall to prevent the sea-water from covering these islands, the people are going to have no place to build or have anything to do on those islands. In this case, I appeal to the Government very strongly to build a sea-wall on these three islands in order to prevent the water coming over these islands in ten years' time.

Also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you find that on these islands there is no fresh water at all. Therefore, I appeal to the Government again to build tanks so that the rain-water can be caught and then the [Mr. Somoj] people will be able to enjoy this fresh water instead of drinking salt water every now and then.

Also, Mr. Speaker, I was in Lamu last week and I was there at the time of this shooting at Fazi Division, by the police, which is another serious incident which I attended. As we are all aware, most of our land is tribal and these Tribal Police shot at somebody at Fazi, Sir, and the person died instantly. The Government up to now, besides doing this investigation, have not done anything, either to detain the person who shot Mr. Saidi—and he died instantly—and this policeman is still at Fazi and is doing his normal job, and the Government, up to now, has done nothing to detain this policeman. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if these Tribal Police are going to shoot people at Nyambogi or Fazi, then, Mr. Speaker, we are like pigs to go on being shot and nothing being done. In this case, it was a very bad incident and there were also two other people who were wounded by bullets. I appeal to this Government to try and do its level best to do something about bringing these Tribal Police who did the shooting of the people at Nyambogi or Fazi to a court of law so that justice can be done.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if Lamu is taken very lightly where a policeman can go around and harass the people or shoot them, then, Mr. Speaker, in view of this incident I strongly appeal to this very hon. Government to make sure that something is done with regard to the shooting at Fazi. Otherwise if the Government leaves things as they are without doing anything, then, Mr. Speaker, I think it is high time for the Lamu people to do something about it rather than keep quiet. This is not something to keep quiet about. At the moment, the people are keeping quiet because they want to see what the reaction from the Government is going to be. If no action is taken by the Government, then the Government should not blame the people of Lamu at all for any action they take.

With these few remarks I beg to support.

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to congratulate the President of the Republic of Kenya for the constructive speech he made at the State Opening of Parliament on the 20th May 1969.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a few observations to make but because of the limited time I will have to be as brief as possible.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, in his speech, the President mentioned something about the Development Plan which is on the way for 1969/1974. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this plan I would like to suggest a few things to the Government for them to do to hasten development in the rural areas especially. A lot has been done in these areas, especially in Kajiado where I come from, and there is still a lot to be done. I would like to stress very much to the Minister for Economic Planning and to the Minister for Commerce and Industry that they should work together to create projects to help the local people by way of giving loans, of planning new industries. There are hides and skins there, and also a local industry which is mainly carried out by women, and that is beadwork which no Minister has ever encouraged our women to produce more of. If you go around Nairobi and visit some of the curio shops you will see quite a lot of beautiful, locally made beadwork, walking-sticks, and also some circular ornaments, ear-rings, and quite a lot of other things. It would create a very good industry in these areas if the Minister concerned could visit these places and encourage the women to do more and probably help them financially.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are quite a number of shops all over the place and all the people are very, very poor indeed. The stock they have is very little, probably worth about Sh. 1,000, and some have stock worth less than that. It is the duty of the Minister for Commerce and Industry to help these people, give them loans and show them how to trade. We do not have in Kajiado a trade officer at all. The man who is in charge of Kajiado is stationed in Nairobi, and he spends most of his time doing his own business. I know him personally and he does not have the time to go out in the field and visit places like Magadi, Loitokitok, Ngong here, Kajiado and other places to help these people.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with due respect to the hon. Member speaking, would he substantiate that the trade officer who is in charge of Kajiado and stationed in Nairobi, is doing his own business instead of doing work for the welfare of the people of Kajiado and Nairobi, and that he is concentrating on his own affairs.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you substantiate this, Mr. ole Kipury?

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Speaker, I know the gentleman very well. He has two shops in Kariokor, one is a butcher's shop and the other sells cigarettes. Most of the time when I go there I find him there. He is a friend of mine. Whether he is a friend of mine or not does not make any difference, because he does not have the time to go out in the field and serve the people. It is high time, Mr. Speaker, that we are given a separate trade officer.

Mr. J. M. Koinange: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could the hon. Member inform this House whether this gentleman, who is his friend, is receiving a salary from the Government for his work at Kajiado, Narok and the other places?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is he being paid as a trade licensing officer?

Mr. ole Kipury: Yes, he is a trade licensing officer, Mr. Speaker, and I did not refer to Narok at all. I do not know him by name but I know his face. I have met him several times and we have been discussing things. I invited him one day to visit Kajiado or Magadi to see the people but he has never had the time. He is being paid, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as this has been a very serious allegation against a Government officer which has been substantiated quite sufficiently, would I be in order if, through you, I asked the Government to make a statement about such an allegation which has been proved by the hon. Member speaking?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not as a point of order.

Mr. ole Kipury: I wonder, Mr. Speaker, if you could give me more time because a lot of time has been wasted. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Another point I would like to raise is concerned with the present registration of land in the Kajiado District. For the last three months a lot has been done to this effect. I would like to suggest a few things concerning this.

The people in Kajiado are formed in sections and clans and there have been quarrels between the sections and the clans concerning land. Because of these quarrels the Government has come forward to try and quench these quarrels and make these people live together peacefully. When these officers came there was a committee formed composed of representatives from various sections. These representatives, including chiefs, Government officers; the chairman is the district commissioner and, Mr. Speaker, I regret there has been a lot of unfairness in the division of this land. You find one section is surrounded by four sections. When the committee proposes that from this point to the other, along the river, over the hill and that this section should not cross this river and so on, one section might not be satisfied in all four corners. In my experience, because I know quite a lot about this and I have been present at many of the committee meetings—although I am not a member I attended as an observer—and I saw there has been a lot of injustice.

Mr. Speaker, I suggested to the Government by writing to them that a neutral committee be formed to be chaired by a neutral person from outside who may not be biased. You may find that a district commissioner is probably backing

So-and-so because he is his friend. If the Government would see to it that things are done properly and justly and somebody from outside should come and chair this committee. If these things are not done properly then we will find they will not last long and the quarrels will start again.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Wario: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the President for his wise speech, which has really echoed through the nation, showing what the present Government has done for the people of this country and what it is going to do for the people in future.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a democratic country like this one, Kenya, the Government will never be out of power if everything is shared among the people of the country fairly. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this very honourable House has enacted many laws to be followed by the country. Most of them are for the benefit of the people of this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it happens that what has been legislated to benefit the entire country is only benefiting one section of the people, or a privileged class.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, an example being the giving out of loans. It is very good that loans are being given and this shows it is the Government's intention to help the Africans to take over the businesses. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are all these things called securities and so on, and since many of the areas in Kenya have not been issued with title-deeds for their plots, whose duty will it be to give out these title-deeds? Those who have not been given the title-deeds will not be given loans, and if they are not given loans then they will complain. It happened that the people in the Central Province and a few other areas were given title-deeds, and they are the only privileged ones to be given these loans. What is going to happen to the rest of the people in the Republic? The ones who do not have title-deeds? There are complaints all over the country that the Government is not doing much for the people.

The Government should look into this and should not attach these things as securities for the loans because it will not benefit many of the tribes in this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the Governments of Somalia and Kenya who took part in bringing peace to this country. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to the Government to fulfil some of the promises it made to the Head of the Somalia Government when he came here. An example being the releasing of detainees from the Northern Province, the political detainees. The Kenya Government promised a few months ago to release the detainees from that area. This is the sixth year these people have been detained. Peace has been restored, so why should not these people be released? We should honour our promises. If we have made a promise to the head of another state, then it is up to us to honour that promise.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also thank the Government for the ranching schemes which it is introducing in the area in the north, and I hope these will be very helpful to the people of that particular area. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry of Agriculture is not doing much for the Africans in this country, especially where animal husbandry is concerned. Where the nomadic tribes are concerned we get everything from our animals, be it the Masai, the Boran or the Somali. What is happening in this particular Ministry with the livestock marketing division, which acts as an agent to buy the animals, it is keeping our people away. We have the animals but they are not coming to buy them. Every year the animals from the north are ignored. Even today, we have no stock sales, nor for the last three years. The same thing happens to the animals from the Kalenjin, and also from the Turkana. These animals are not going to be bought. They only buy the animals from the farms around here. Is this really benefiting the entire country? I would ask the Minister and the Ministry concerned to do away with the Livestock Marketing Division which is headed by a European at Kabete. This is what is going to cause a lot of trouble to our people, to the whole of the Northern Province, to the whole of the Eastern Province, to Turkana and Masai. If you check up on what the Kenya Meat Commission is buying, you find it is only the animals from the European farms which cost a lot. That is why today the price of meat is increasing day by day. Every day, there is an increase in the price of meat. If our animals were bought—and they are cheap enough—then the price of meat would not be as high as it is now. Because the Ministry has failed to buy the animals from the people and has engaged itself in buying from the European farms around here, it cannot give the people of Kenya, especially the cities like Nairobi, enough meat, thereby increasing the price all the time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say something about our educational policy. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we say we are non-aligned and that is exactly what we are doing. But the time will come when we will no longer be non-aligned because we are sending our students all over the world. The students who go out having been given scholarships, some of them, are straight from the villages and they have not even gone to their own local towns and have not even had the chance of coming to the city. The only time he saw the city was when he was passing through on his way out. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these particular students who are going out have not learned anything at all about this country. A student might be flown to America, China, Russia or anywhere, a man who does not know anything about his own country is being sent out. He will think that the people of America are wonderful. They are his masters, and when he comes back here he thinks that everything should be done in the American style. Another one comes back from Russia and thinks that everything in Kenya should be the same as in Russia. The one who went to China comes back and thinks everything here should be the same as in China.

The time will come—if we continue with the policy of sending boys direct from school to these countries—the time will come when they will not agree with our politics. We have to change this, because there will be ideological complexes in our country. I suggest that someone should first of all know about his own country before he is sent away. If he goes out and even when he comes back, he feels that he is a Kenyan, and is proud of being a Kenyan. But he should not be sent away when he knows nothing about Kenya, the Kenya Government and its people. When he comes back, he will be familiar with his own kind of thinking, and not be thinking in the way the Africans in Kenya think.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Parliament, as I have said before, we have enacted laws, Motions have been passed in this House, and Bills have also gone through, but some of these have not been implemented. I do not know what we are waiting for Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we implement something in this House, we expect the Government to take action straightaway; not halfway, not cowardly, because it is with the mandate of the public that we are here.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have given the Government power through the Trade Licensing Act. Still we are told that “Oh, these traders cannot go because the people of that area have no qualified man to take over that particular business.” What is the Government doing? It has been said now and again especially in the Daily Nation, that we, the Government have to help the people to take over trading from these Indians and the rest of them. Why have they failed in some particular areas to see to it that an African takes over?

[Mr. Wario]

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to congratulate the President on his speech, when he opened the last session. I would like to speak on very few points. First I would like to speak on something about the police.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the situation arising in the districts at present, especially over the boundaries which divide the districts, or which divide the tribes, makes me feel that the security is deteriorating, Mr. Speaker, Sir; and now, I would like to ask Government to do something about this very particular issue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the present time what happens is this; if cattle are stolen from one district to another district, the police stations and the police officers are very far from these borders and what happens is that it takes time for the people to go and call the police. In addition, Mr. Speaker, I think Government should reintroduce the former communal system. By this I mean that, where the people follow the tracks and they get lost, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a communal fine should be imposed so that next time this might remedy the situation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know very well that this method once existed. But Mr. Speaker, Sir, recently it was scrubbed and, as a result, there are a lot of tribal clashes when the people decide to fight. Therefore, there is nothing wrong in bringing back these communal fines as they will probably rectify the situation.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, especially in the area where I come from, the police stations are very far apart and do not seem to serve their purpose, and I would like Government to see that they site the police stations in the right places to deal with the situation accordingly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to say something on the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation.

The Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, at the present time—I do know whether I can say some people have made applications for loans—they made them three or four years ago.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

They sent them to the Industrial and Commercial Development offices and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these have never been processed. Applications from other districts might be processed, and loans might be granted. What happens with applications from my district is that the applications, Mr. Speaker, Sir, are merely filed—in fact they are kept in closed files. If somebody applies he never gets a reply. The Industrial and Commercial Corporation officers never write to these applicants and the files are closed. This is a very bad affair, Mr. Speaker, Sir. When the people are told to apply for loans, they fill in the application forms and pay service charges and many other things. They then send them to the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation's Headquarters. The people there simply put them away somewhere; they do not even write and acknowledge them. One or three years go by with no reply, while other districts, in fact, get replies and this is very annoying to the whole country.

I would like to ask the Minister for Commerce and Industry, to intervene and see to it that these people get replies. If they have not been given loans, they should be informed that "Your application was unsuccessful" as usual; because this is what they do to those to whom they perhaps do not want to give loans. I am asking the Minister for Commerce and Industry to intervene and see that the people who have applied for loans have been given information whether their applications were successful or not. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to touch on the Ministry of Co-operatives and Social Services.

If I recall correctly, ten years ago, we used to have co-operative inspectors. These people would go out to every individual co-operative society, and check their books of accounts to see whether there was any misappropriation of funds and put things right. What has happened is that at the present time, we have no co-operative inspectors going to individual societies. As a result the committee men—who are a small government in the society—have taken the law into their hands and there is a lot of misappropriation of funds. In this case Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are many forgeries, especially from the area from which I come. There is nobody to go to individual co-operative societies, check their books of accounts, put things right and report to the Government if there is any theft. What has happened is that the Ministry of Social Services sits back, and just trusts the committee men and these people do what they like. This is because they drink with the managers of the co-operative societies and squander a lot of money which comes from the farmers.

[Mr. Nyambergi]

I would like to see the Minister for Co-operative Societies introduce the system of co-operative inspectors who will go to co-operative societies to check their books of accounts periodically, so that this will help to alleviate the problem of stealing the money of the societies.

A lot of money has been stolen, especially in Kisii. Kisii co-operative societies are suffering very badly from this deficiency. No effective action has been taken by the Ministry for Co-operatives to bring these people to justice. I think this is a very serious matter and the Minister for Co-operatives should take this matter up quickly and rectify things for the co-operative societies.

Another thing which I would like to touch on is on the registration of Harambee schools. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it takes quite a long time for an application for registration for a Harambee secondary school to be approved. This is because regulations have been laid down that the county councils and the county education officer must endorse these application forms. After this is done, the form goes to the provincial education officer for him to endorse. Finally, these forms are sent to the Headquarters of the Ministry of Education, in Nairobi. That is what happens in some provinces, especially in Nyanza Province. I am speaking of a case from my own area where an application for the registration of a Harambee school has taken over two years. These people, the county councils and the education officer complete their part and then the application forms are submitted to the provincial education officer to pass to Nairobi. What happens at this time is, the provincial education officer, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—but I do not say it was him, because he has many officers in his office—had some cases in which several application forms were lost whilst in his hands. What I was told to do was to fill in fresh application forms and bring them forward. I did this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, several times and I thought if things continued in this way, the Minister for Education should intervene and do something. He should advise these officers in the field to send in the application forms at the right time and through the proper channels.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Godia: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for allowing me to say a few words on this Motion. First, of all, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to thank His Excellency the President for his nice policy speech which he gave to the House. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the speech was excellent. I would also like to congratulate His Excellency the Vice-President for the way in which he moved this Motion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would agree with His Excellency the Vice-President that Members of Parliament must work in unity to achieve, particularly the best things for this country. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to urge my fellow hon. Members to concentrate very much in helping and advising their constituents because it is most important that people in each constituency should understand Government's policy. Of course, if one is KPU it is a different matter, but those of us who are Kanu Members, it should be our duty to educate our people on the policy of the Government. We should be able to tell our people what we have achieved within the past six years. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the present Government has done a lot under the wise leadership of our President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, and he must be congratulated. It is not possible for me to go into details of what this Government has achieved, and I think each hon. Member in this Chamber knows exactly what our Government has achieved. Therefore, it should be the duty of every Member to educate the people in his constituency on what Government has achieved.

I strongly oppose the criticisms made by the Leader of the Opposition, the hon. Odinga, against His Excellency's Speech in this House. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think, at one time, the Leader of the Opposition was reported to have respect for His Excellency and on another occasion it was reported that he regarded him as second to God. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is therefore, a great shame that the Leader of the Opposition left the company of Mzee. If he was of any use, Mr. Deputy Speaker, he should have been patient and remained with the Government together with Mzee. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, his criticisms against Mzee's policy are unfounded and also very unreasonable.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is wise for His Excellency, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, to condemn thieves, thugs and bandits as he did, because I understand as a result of his words, a number of thieves have come forward and surrendered to the Government. It is reported that not less than ten have already come forward, because of Mzee's call to them to leave that sort of bad life, and become decent people. Had he not done that—

QUORUM

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is there a quorum in the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I said that I was congratulating His Excellency the President because of the warning he gave to thieves and bandits, because not less than ten of them have come forward and surrendered to the Government and have repented and vowed that they will never engage again in that very bad type of crime. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, those from the Opposition who have been criticizing His Excellency's Speech have done so, without knowledge and information. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, what he says of His Excellency the President, and criticizing him for the advice he gave to the Back-benchers was without any foundation. He should have been more conversant with facts.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it should be noted that even the primary elections were mentioned in the President's Speech. When this becomes law, it will apply both to the Opposition and to Kanu and therefore, they are not out of it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like also to mention something about the Development Plan for 1969-74. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, one Opposition Member criticized saying that this plan should not be there, but I would like to give thanks to Government for bringing forward the plan which shows that this Government is progressive. It will definitely be that under this Government, Kanu will form another Government. This is definite because no other party in this House can form the Government although someone is applying for the registration of another party.

An hon. Member: Which is that?

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, someone is applying for registration of a party known as the Socialism Party, but in fact, Sir, I do not think it will work as Kanu. That party will die away just like Kadu and APP. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to advise the Minister for Economic Planning to see that within the next planning period for 1969-74, all the existing registered Harambee projects are taken over by Government between this time and 1974, so that, after 1974, there will be no more Harambee projects which are still being run by the people. This should include Harambee clinics, Harambee nurseries, Harambee schools, and other Harambee projects.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to say something about the population census. This will reveal to this country and the world the population of Kenya. I would like to appeal to the Attorney-General to consider revision of the registration of voters, because since we had the register completed, we have had a number of people who are either living in one particular constituency, or who were too young to be registered then, but who are now grown up, and of age. I think the Attorney-General should consider giving a week or so to those interested in being registered so that they can take part in the next general election.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like also to ask each Member of this Parliament to assist in the population census in the constituencies. Each Member should help the Registrar of Census in his constituency as much as possible so that the work is made easier.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on the question of vegetables, I would like to appeal again to the Minister for Agriculture (to whom I have appealed several times) to consider helping the farmers in Hamisi, who grow plenty of vegetables, so that their vegetables are processed, tinned and exported overseas.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few points, I support the Motion.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I rise to record my appreciation for the Presidential Speech during the opening of this session. In dealing with this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to comment on five points that His Excellency the President made to the House in his policy statement.

At the beginning of this session, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Government policy was pronounced publicly by the President. During the last opening speech by the President, a number of useful points were made, and as I said, I want to highlight five of these points.

The first important one, is that greater emphasis is going to be laid on rural development, because for the coming five years in 1969-1974, as he said, in his speech, this will be done. He put forward two points in particular; one on the economic projects and the other one on social services.

An hon. Member: Too rich.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I hear somebody saying "too rich", but actually, I am speaking on the Development Plan 1969-1974. Is it too soon to speak of 1974? Therefore, I am still within the time, Mr. Deputy Speaker. On the form of economic projects, I am sure the Government will lay greater emphasis on commerce and industry, particularly on the smaller scale in areas far remote from Nairobi, and I do hope this was what the President meant when he said greater emphasis would be paid to the rural development areas in the field of economic projects and so on.

On the plans for social development, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which were also mentioned by the President, in rural areas, I am sure besides education and health, water development will figure very high, and communications will also figure very highly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because no development can take place without proper and effective communications—road communications, air communications, and even Posts and Telecommunications. Mr. Deputy Speaker, today there are places where you will spend days, if not weeks in getting a message from one end of the country to the other, and this is one of the essential social services that the rural areas require. I am sure before 1969-1974 period is over, this will be realized.

The second point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which was raised by His Excellency the President, was on land consolidation and registration. I know my friend the Minister for Lands and Settlement is doing his best and I pray that he will do even better and more effective work in this field. Not the whole of Kenya has been registered or consolidated and with the experience of the past we ought to hasten the development in this area of registration of lands. I say this, and this is not the first time I have said it because I have said it for the last eight years or so. Sir, there are certain parts in my part of the world which need to be hurried in this respect. Land consolidation is not useful unless it has a follow-up for development money and also for marketing. You can consolidate an area very far from the internal market of Nairobi or the internal markets of the world but unless marketing facilities are made available, and facilities for marketing, internally and externally, are made, this development will not be very useful.

Mr. Speaker, the President also mentions a revolution. This was a revolution in the beef industry. Some areas are not destined for coffee-growing, or tea-growing or pyrethrum-growing, or for some of these crops that you find in the well-watered areas. Beef is a production that is found in marginal areas. I would implore the Minister for Agriculture to make sure that this is done as quickly as possible so that those areas which are marginal can have something to grow as a cash crop. The system was started, as we are told by the President, in Taita and in Kajiado, of collective ranches, or ownership of ranches, which is a very useful one, and I hope it will be encouraged in many places where there is marginal land, like the lower parts of Embu, Kitui and such other places. I am told, Baringo, too.

Another point that was raised, Mr. Speaker, is of great importance, and this will confound all the critics of the Government. Nothing is said about the Government, the Government is accused of not being able to see the problems of the country. However, the Government plans for the census, like the one that is coming in August, with a greater emphasis again, as he says, on the younger age groups. Also when the President talked of unemployment being there, and the effort of the Government to try and combat this; what more do the people want? There is a realization that Government is doing its best to combat unemployment, the Government is going to make sure that during the census the younger age groups will be particularly noted so that improvements on employment can be looked into. Education facilities will be looked into. What more, then, do people want to see done by the Government other than this?

Finally, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was very interested to see the President remind us of the greater responsibility that falls on us in the next period. If I may quote from his last page, where he says, as we have laid in this past period of our independence, “Kenya must progress now. I want to witness and to feel harder work and more practical efforts being made by all who carry the burden—and also the privilege—of public leadership. There must be more decisive and virile conduct of public business in many departments of national endeavour. We can in no sense afford to try and live on slogans or self-congratulation.

These are the key words by His Excellency the President to us all who are privileged to lead this country as we enter the new development era.

With these remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I also want to join the other Members to congratulate His Excellency the President for his Speech.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[Mr. Kebaso]

Nobody has said that our Speaker needs appreciation from us. He has been with us since 1964 when we attained full independence. The Speaker has been sitting in that Chair all the time without murmuring, without questioning, and we must thank him because of his patience.

Mr. Speaker, if anybody in the country is going to dream that we are going to have another Government in this country while Mzee Jomo Kenyatta is alive, that is just a dream. Everyone is very happy in Kenya because this old man is alive. If anything, for instance, happens to prevent Mzee being alive, then you will find everybody running away to the bush, or to the forest, those who came from overseas running to the planes so that they can catch the first plane and go home. We cannot expect there to be so peaceful a country, so peaceful a government by any other person when Mzee is not present. So, all I can say is that most of us who are privileged to come to this House, and those who are at home must pray, must love one another, work together, the Members and those who are not Members for the good of everybody in each constituency.

Mr. Speaker, everybody outside is envious of Kenya's progress. Everybody loves this country. You find people here from America, from Russia, from various places—they all bring their money here for investment. Why is that? It is because Kenya is such a nice country agriculturally; and with the stable security that we have, together with the confidence that we also have in our army and police, we cannot help noticing that everybody is coming here.

I must say something about the party. In order to make our party strong—I have already said there is no question that we are going to have another Government at present. If we want to avoid all these wrangles, we must stop squabbling between Members, between Ministers, between Assistant Ministers and so on. At present I think our House is a dirty House and we should get somebody to clean it.

Mr. Speaker, everyone knows full well that he was created by God. One day he will be called by God. He was given his position, say, as a Minister. God knows for how long he is going to hold that position. Those who were elected to come to this House do not know how long they will be here, they may go during the next General Election. At that time most of them may not come back to this House. Why is this? It is because this has been decided by Almighty God, that So-and-so is to stay here for such-and-such time, that for such-and-such time he will be in Parliament, that for such-and-such time he will be a Minister, that at such-and-such time he may crash in an accident and die, and so on. We must not become confused, we must not refuse to co-operate with one another. The more we get divided the more we show the electors, the voters, that we are not suitable to remain in this House, and we are not suitable to lead the country. Leaders who confuse the voters make themselves ugly Members and during the next General Election they may not be returned to this House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about the primary elections. During these primary elections, let all the voters stand behind the people seeking election. Let the voters form a queue behind each candidate. Let them queue behind the candidate, even if the queue is 20 miles long. Then anybody with the majority supporters, after the people behind each candidate are counted, will be given a ticket by Kanu to come to this House. I say, and I think many Members will join me in saying this, that we are opposed to the idea of 18 people, and we are also opposed to the question of Sh. 2. If we want to achieve this we must avoid all ways that can cause friction.

Mr. Speaker, when I was in Japan I saw many new hotels which were built on the hillsides. I do not see why these big hotels have been built in the city here. Let some of the new hotels be built on the hillsides, on the mountains like the Aberdares, Mt. Kenya, Ngong Hills, so that the tourists are not only pouring money in to Nairobi, one side of the country.

We have a problem here, Sir. We have hundreds of school leavers in each year, the children who sit for the Kenya Preliminary Examination or the Certificate of Primary Education Examination. Only one-third of these go to high school and two-thirds remain at home. We are faced with a very serious situation and will be faced with a worse situation if the Ministry and the Government are not going to build some technical schools where the girls and boys can be trained. If we do not do this, we are facing a very critical future. Let alone all these things where people are shooting each other in the streets. We will find people here hacking others with pangas, and this will actually be because of hunger. What are all the people we see here in the Galleries doing here in Nairobi? They are seeking for jobs. There are no jobs, they cannot go for further education; so, what are they going to do? They will be a danger to this country.

When the Government gave plots in settlement schemes, they used tractors to make roads. Since that time, before 1963, to date the roads have become full of bushes, they are impassable; and yet the farmers have to repay their loans and also pay graduated personal tax to the county councils even though they cannot make use of their land. Something must be done in order to enable those farmers to have means of communication, especially those who have produce to sell.

When the British devalued their pound, they brought the same system to Kenya. It is because of this that the tea growers are losing 60 cents in each pound of green leaf. I do not think the devaluation of the British pound had anything to do with Kenya. If the British have trouble with their pound, then it is their business, not ours. I must ask the Kenya Government, especially the Ministry of Agriculture, to review this situation and refund the money which the farmers have been robbed of by someone.

Mr. Speaker, the present punishment for stock-theft is not adequate. We would like Government to consider what the Member for West Mugirango asked, that the former way of communal punishment be imposed once again. Thieves are not afraid of being sent to jail for one or two years. But if collective, communal punishment can be applied all over the country, I am sure that the thieves will be afraid of stealing.

Now, Sir, with regard to the coffee prices, we want the Ministry to consider increasing them. When this price fails most of the coffee growers leave their coffee farms to turn into thick bushes. They refuse even to manure the plants because they do not receive any money from their coffee. If there is any little money received by the society, it is misappropriated by the officials of the society.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I hope the Members will join me in praying for the President.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You were not wanting to speak, were you, Mr. Mwendwa?

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): No Mr. Speaker, I was just moving.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, although I hope I did not steal the Minister's time.

Mr. Speaker, I would start off by criticizing this system which is, of course, Parliamentary, that the President's Speech is so short, while, in fact, it is so wide at the same time. Members would have liked to have talked more of what relates to the lives of their constituents. The problem here is that because of this Parliamentary system, whereby we only have ten minutes, I have to try and rush my points through and try to be as brief as possible and as clear as possible.

I would start, Mr. Speaker, Sir, by congratulating the President for the first, second and third paragraphs of his speech, especially when he mentions something about the maturity of this Parliament. It is true that this Parliament is quite mature now to discuss things of national importance at any time. However, on the other hand, I do not know how very mature this House is or how mature the Government is—if the House is mature. I hope that the Government is mature enough to have looked at some of these pitfalls that we have been talking about since 1963, whether we were mature or not. It seems as if the House is becoming more mature every now and then but the Government is slow in moving towards maturity.

The speech by the President was quite plain, but I would say the paper as written down was without consideration. I would not say that the President actually had time, himself, to write down this speech; I think somebody somewhere wrote this paper for him. At the time when he came here to read this paper, he thought of everything which is supposed to be said during the time of the State Opening of Parliament and which should have been incorporated in that paper. This paper actually tells us nothing except fake hopes and promises. I would have liked the people in the country to see something in figures; something that cannot, in fact, be changed by the stroke of a pen. For example, when one mentions about our revolution in agriculture, especially in the beef industry: how many tons of meat are we going to have within the 1969/74 period; how many tons of meat are we going to have for consumption here; what type of propaganda is going to be used so that those who, at the moment, use different types of meat eat beef; how many tons are going to be sent out for the export market; how many tons, for that matter, are going to be used for other purposes like fertilizers and other things? These are the things that we want to see in a paper like the one the President brought to this House. I am sorry I must say that somebody somewhere wrote this paper and perhaps did not give it to the President so that he could have a look at it before he came here.

Mr. Speaker, I come to the second point, which has been mentioned by many Members of this House and which is, in fact, the most important thing in the country today, and this is party reorganization. I think we are trying to beat around the bush by saying every now and then here that we are Kanu, Kanu the ruling party. Unless and until this party is reorganized properly, this is wrong. Today in some areas you find some chairman imposed, maybe by the Vice-President or by some few bogus groups, and they are chairmen of the branches. When you ask them to come round and sit for a proper election, nobody turns up. In the long run someone turns round and says, "Let us have the governing council to sit and discuss it." Who is supposed to be in the governing council? The chairman of those particular groups who are imposed on the people? This is stupidity of the highest order.

Mr. Speaker, I come to my third point, because I think my time is running very fast, and this is economical development of the country and development as such. When we talk of economical development, we touch on almost everything. I want to mention in this House that the Ministry of Economic Development is, perhaps, the best one for the development of this country. In other words, if there is no co-operation between the other Ministries and this Ministry of Planning and Economic Development, then the other Ministries can do nothing, or anything they do will not work. In this Ministry we expect to get the best planners for the economy of the country. If there is no co-ordination and you have half-and-half people in other Ministries who believe that they are good planners to plan for the country—For example, the Ministry of Agriculture—I saw the Minister, where has he gone to?—and water development: we have areas which are completely dry. I can tell you one thing, Mr. Speaker; that there are places where the Ministry of Agriculture has gone as far as implementing water development projects in areas where they did not have money to put into these projects and, at the same time, the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development have nothing to do with them and they never knew about this. The Ministries came to a head-on collision and now the whole damn thing has come to a stop. Is this development? Is this what we expect from the Ministry?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, my fourth point is about farming in Kenya today, which is the backbone of the whole economy, the whole development, the whole everything in this country. This is the life-blood of this country. The Agricultural Finance Corporation and the Agricultural Development Corporation and the Land Bank are already becoming political. When Africans now go into farming, buying land from the Land Bank, the next week the Agricultural Finance Corporation comes around and says, "You have got our Sh. 120,000 and you will have to pay this in two or three weeks' time or this farm is going to be sold on auction." Now, a man might have put down Sh. 100,000 on a farm as development because he has not been able to get a development loan from the Agricultural Finance Corporation because the land does not belong to him, it belongs to the Land Bank. Therefore, by the time he gets a development loan from the Agricultural Finance Corporation, he has had to plough in some money from his own pocket to the land. Before he gets something out of his land, the Agricultural Finance Corporation comes around and says, "You have got our land and all this money, and unless you pay this money we are going to take your farm." Once they have taken his farm, he has to go out into the streets. Leave alone Sh. 100,000, but Sh. 50,000; if I put that amount into a farm it is my life's savings. I put it down on a farm and then the Agricultural Finance Corporation comes along and takes the farm with my Sh. 50,000. Where do I go? Is that not really creating more unemployment and putting someone down from the top to the bottom? How bitter this man is going to be, I do not know. How bitter this man is going to be like anybody else on the ground I do not know, because he is like everybody else and has lost all his savings as the Government has come around and taken his farm and savings and handed them to another person. In the long run I do not know who is going to buy the farms; it could be that the sixth person may be the only person lucky enough to buy the farm. In other words we are waiting for another policy to be formulated so that these farms can be bought by these Africans.

My fifth point, Mr. Speaker, is about education. I feel very strongly that the Harambee secondary schools are becoming too many and we are going to produce too many unemployables in the country. One thing, of course, is that the standard of employment is too high at the moment; you have to pass mathematics, you have to pass science, you have to pass English language and all these other things.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! End of time.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: I beg to support, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Gikunju: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much for giving me this time to say something about the Presidential Address.

Mr. Speaker, the exposition of Government policy, as it appears in the Presidential Address, is very encouraging, but its success depends not on what His Excellency's Address said, but it depends on how the Ministers and the civil servants will put it into practice.

Mr. Speaker, when His Excellency the President mentioned about the maturity of the Parliamentary, we felt that he has respect for the Parliament and, therefore, he has respect for the Parliamentarians. He showed an example to the Ministers, to all of us, to the civil servants, that a Parliamentarian should be respected, because if a Parliamentarian is not respected, one who does not respect a Parliamentarian does not respect the persons that Parliamentarian represents. If you go to some of the Government offices, Mr. Speaker, and say that you are a Parliamentarian and you want to see a certain official, you may be turned down by the person at the gate saying that you cannot see the officer you wanted to see before you queue with the others who are there. I think that is disrespect towards the Members of Parliament and if such a civil servant cannot respect a Member of Parliament, it automatically shows that he cannot respect the members of the public.

[Mr. Gikunju]

Again, Mr. Speaker, I have seen examples where a member of the public is not attended to by a civil servant. A member of the public could knock on the door of an office while a civil servant is reading a paper in the office and he cannot even have the courtesy to tell that member of the public to please wait for a while because he is going to attend to him. He just keeps quiet and he does not mind who is waiting. Thereafter you hear Members saying that it is better to have the colonial rule that we had rather than having these people of ours for whom we fought. That is spoiling the Government and that does not give credit to the Government; and I think it is high time the Government found a way of disciplining such people; giving them seminars and educating them. We expect that the policy of the Government is mostly shown in the way in which the civil servants attend to the public.

I have seen, Mr. Speaker, where a ruling by a Minister was not followed by a civil servant, a provincial commissioner—imagine, a ruling by a Minister! If a permanent secretary cannot follow the ruling of the Minister, then what does this show, Mr. Speaker? It means he does not have any respect for Parliament, Mr. Speaker, which is very bad. I thought a Minister was at the top of a particular Ministry and if he gives a ruling then that ruling must be followed, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, what I am trying to say is that we must be shown courtesy by the civil servants. Civil servants should not be wasting time by reading papers in the office, or making personal calls during working hours, Mr. Speaker. You can see a civil servant talking to a friend arranging where to meet in the afternoon. Should this be done in the office, Mr. Speaker? No.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has just made an allegation that you find civil servants making calls to friends and wasting time; could he substantiate his allegation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If he said he had seen it himself he need only say where he has seen it.

Mr. Gikunju: Mr. Speaker, I did not say where. Although I did not say the time or who did it, if substantiation is required, then I should be given time—say a week or two—and I will check and substantiate when I find such a case—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Gikunju, when you are asked to substantiate then you must substantiate or withdraw. There is no harm in withdrawing if you find you really cannot give chapter and verse.

Mr. Gikunju: Mr. Speaker, I will withdraw.

Mr. Speaker, the other point I would like to mention is this. The Trade Licensing Act has done very well and has expelled some of the big traders who were an obstacle to our traders who are now doing business. There is something which should be corrected and that is about who is to refuse or deny a licence to a non-citizen. Mr. Speaker, in the rural areas the person who does this is the district commissioner, and he does this all alone, Mr. Speaker. I have seen a case in Kirinyaga where a non-citizen who co-operates with the African traders was denied a trade licence, and another non-citizen who is not co-operative at all with the African traders was given a licence. I think, Mr. Speaker, if we had somebody to refuse a licence, it should be a non-citizen who is not co-operative with the African traders who should be refused. It should not be the co-operative non-citizens who are refused and then keep the ones who are unco-operative, Mr. Speaker. I would therefore suggest that instead of one person being given this responsibility of deciding whom to refuse a licence to and whom to give one to, it would be better if the Ministry could find a way of having a committee formed consisting of the district commissioner, and a trade officer of the area who would be responsible for deciding who is to be given a licence, Mr. Speaker, and who is not to be given one. If it is only one person who is to make such decisions, Mr. Speaker, it possible he could make a mistake.

I have also seen cases in some places where business licences are denied to citizens and given to non-citizens in a certain business, and that is contrary to the Government's policy. Any civil servant who does this shows that he does not respect the policy of the Government, and I think the committee which I have suggested would help to avoid some of these things which are going on.

[Mr. Gikunju]

Another point I would like to mention, Mr. Speaker, is about the buying of farms. There are many complaints about the buying of farms, Mr. Speaker, where you find that rich individuals have more chances of buying farms than societies. I think this should be corrected because if it is not then there will be a lot of serious complaints from the citizens, and this is no good, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, if you were to allow somebody to buy land, then you would start with a society. If a society applied to buy that land, then you would give priority to the society but not to the individual, Mr. Speaker. This is being done through the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, and also through the Ministry of Agriculture. I think it is high time that priority in buying farms should be given to societies. In a society you have a number of the members of the public. But when an individual buys a farm of 1,000 acres, and a society of, say, 50 members is denied the chance to buy it, then this system is going to create a very, very bad impression. I think it is high time the two Ministries concerned discontinued this practice, Mr. Speaker.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Presidential Address.

Mr. Mate: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

As I come from the rural areas, Mr. Speaker, there are a few points that I would like to draw the attention of the House to, and one of them is the Presbyterian Church of East Africa Hospital at Chogoria which, very fortunately, after many years in existence, has been lucky enough to obtain some money for development from the people of Germany and their churches, and also from the Kenya Government and from our own people in order to improve the hospital.

Mr. Speaker, for the sake of record I am told that this hospital is going to be enlarged to a capacity of about 200 patients, and that it is going to be one of the largest hospitals in the country. I must thank all the parties concerned, the Presbyterian Church of East Africa, the German people and the Kenya Government—and everyone else concerned—because it is going to fill a very important gap so far as medical facilities in Meru, parts of Embu, parts of Kitui and other parts of the country are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, I feel this very lucky coincidence needs the appreciation and assistance of the people of Kenya because I think it is exceptional. This is so because, as I have said in this House before, Meru has only one district hospital which is in Meru town. The other three hospitals, one is at Maua and is owned by the Methodist Church; the other one is at Nkubu and is owned by the Catholic Church; and the third one is at Chegoria and is owned by the Presbyterian Church. The next nearest big hospital is at Kyeni, in Embu, and this again is owned by the Catholic Church.

Mr. Speaker, people in that part of the country do suffer very much due to lack of adequate medical services, especially the so-called free medical services. I feel this new opportunity of having a bigger and better hospital is going to mean better services for the people of that particular area.

My next point is about the Meru District Hospital. My friend here, the Member for Nyambene South, did raise a Motion on Adjournment some time ago, and the Ministry undertook to give the hospital better staff, and also more beds. Even today, the Government's own hospital in Meru is still understaffed and there is a shortage of beds—you find patients sleeping on the floor. I wonder what the Ministry of Health is doing about this because it is the only Government-maintained hospital in the whole district. The others are either mission or private hospitals. I hope the Ministry of Health is going to take up this particular issue and do as much as they can to improve conditions in the only big hospital we have in Meru. I do hope the Ministry concerned will take a note of this. It is very annoying as far as the patients are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, my next point is with regard to tea growing in Meru District. I have said in this House before that one division has been discriminated against by the Ministry of Agriculture, and that is Nithi Division in Meru—this is between Embu and Igoji. These people have been denied the opportunity to grow tea, like the other divisions, by the Ministry of Agriculture. The soil is as good there as it is in other parts and I cannot understand why they have been discriminated against. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Minister for Agriculture will take up this particular issue and let the people of Nithi Division in the southern part of Meru grow tea. The climate is good and it is really very, very annoying to deprive them of a chance to benefit from tea-growing.

That brings me to the next point which is on Chuka bulge. I wish the Minister for Natural Resources was here. The Chuka people have repeatedly put it to the Government that the forest comes too far down compared to Embu District and the rest of Meru, and they should be given a little bit of forest for the cultivation of high-zone crops like tea, grade cattle and so on. I do not know what the Ministry is waiting for because they complain that the forest acreage in Kenya is far too small and if they interfere with even a little bit of forest there will be a water shortage. This is a pure fabrication because if the Chuka people were given a little bit of forest there it would not affect the water system or even the bulk of the forest in Kenya. It is not real forest, it is just wood. So I would appeal to the Ministry and the Government to impress upon the Ministry and the Agriculture people that the Chuka people need that little bit of forest for their tea-growing.

Mr. Speaker, let me mention one good thing: the Kaare Scheme is coming on very well and I thank the Ministry of Lands and Settlement for having pioneered this scheme in the lower parts of Mwembe Location in the Nithi Division. I think they need to be thanked.

I also want to remind the House and the Government about this. The old Meru-Embu Road, via Chuka and Igoji, is the road which is always used by the East African Safari competitors. This road is now a terrible shame for the people of that part of the country. It is such a big road, an important road to our people, to traders and even Government vehicles, for everybody who passes along the road all the time. It is in a very, very bad condition. I am glad the Minister for Works once did say that something was going to be done. But we want to know the date, Mr. Speaker, when this will be done. They have done the survey—when are they going to start the actual construction? When are they going to bring tractors? The wananchi do not want to hear of surveys, of aeroplanes coming to survey; what they want to see are tractors being used in constructing the road, Mr. Speaker. Between Meru and Embu there are so many schools—I can count 19 secondary schools—served by that particular road. I can count I do not know how many markets, how many Government stations, like the Embu Division in Embu, the Chuka Division in Meru, the Nkubu Division in Meru and the North Imenti Division which are served by this particular road. There are so many farmers who are also served by this particular road. This road was made back in 1913, manually by the people themselves. Why should the Government be so slow in improving this road. I would demand a date, from the Ministry of Works, when the Government is going to start construction of this particular road. I feel, Sir, that they have made the Meru people wait for a very long time for nothing. I hope that since the survey has been done that the construction work will be put in hand very quickly. I hope that this will mean bringing in tractors because we are not interested in seeing surveyors. We want to see tractors.

The next and last point, Mr. Speaker, is with regard to the Harambee projects, like schools, health centres and so on. It is time the Ministries concerned initiated a survey in the whole country with the aim of finding out how many Harambee secondary schools and health centres have been opened, so that when they come to the planning they will include these particular schools and health centres in their plan. We cannot hope that the people are going to run these schools forever. This was a call for the people to show initiative. They have shown initiative. In my own constituency we have five Harambee secondary schools, six health centres, and we are having to run them ourselves. We do not have enough money to carry on with this, and the same applies to other parts of Kenya. I think the Ministries concerned should take over what belongs to them after a survey has been made. I think the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development should survey all these projects, bring them into their own general planning, incorporate them instead of starting their own general, extra Government schemes and letting the wananchi go without Government help. Thus in the future we can have all these projects, and the money and labour wasted incorporated.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you very much indeed for giving me this chance to congratulate the President for his very excellent speech given on the 20th of this month.

I do not have much to say, Sir, because so many things have already been said by my hon. colleagues. So many things have been said about tribalism, nepotism, brotherization and the rest of it. There is always one answer which we always get from the Government when we say these things. If a Member brings a question to this House asking why in a certain Ministry all the vacancies from office messenger to the top man have been filled by people from the same tribe, the answer we get is that the matter will be looked into. This question of “being looked into”, Mr. Speaker, makes us very tired. We see these things happening in every Ministry of this Government. In English they say that prevention is better than cure. I believe, Sir, curing will be a difficult thing; so it is better for the Government to stop it completely before the trouble becomes worse.

We all believe what His Excellency tells us—Even this morning he was telling us the same thing in the Kanu Parliamentary Group Meeting, that we should kill tribalism. I agree with him: but this must be done by implementing what we always bring to the House. We do not want to be quarrelling in this House all the time because of tribalism. We all know that certain posts are being filled by people from a certain community. For example, one of the Members spoke here last week and said something on the five promotions in the army. There are so many capable people from the other tribes of Kenya. This is the feeling in the country and that is why I must mention this matter here again. There were five high ranks in the army and these were given as follows. One post was vacated by a European and was filled by a Mkamba; the second post was also filled by a Mkamba, then a Kikuyu, and so on. Why was there no Kalenjin promoted? I am sure there are many Kalenjin in the army who have served for a long time. I agree, for this reason, with what the Member who raised this question said. I am not tribalistic, but I must say what I feel. This thing must be stopped. Mr. Speaker, when I say this I must make it clear that I have no bad motives here at all. This is, however, a strong warning which must be heeded in future. These things must not be repeated again.

I do not want to dwell on this, Mr. Speaker, because my friends have also spoken on it and I am sure the President is going to take a very serious view of this.

I would like now to mention something about the proposed Kerio Valley Water Scheme. This has been mentioned several times. Mr. Speaker, this scheme covers two districts: it covers Baringo and Elgeyo-Marakwet districts. On the side of constituencies, it covers the whole of Kerio North, Baringo North, Baringo East, Baringo Central, Kerio Central and Kerio South. Here I want to appeal to the Government to send the experts to show our people what to do. Although they have sent a few experts, we would like them to send more because these are not enough. We want the experts to survey the scheme and show us where we can get water. We also want to know more on the question of communication. The first thing the Government must attend to is the question of communication in that part of the world. If somebody is killed in Kinyash for instance, which is at the end of Baringo District, the report will reach the police at Kabarnet, the district headquarters, which is at a distance of about 50 miles, after a week. This is because of lack of communication.

So, I feel that survey must be carried out first. I am not speaking for Elgeyo-Marakwet here, I am speaking for the Kerio as a whole. What is needed very much is the surveying of roads. I am sure the army people who are already there have come to see how they can build good bridges and roads. I am therefore, asking the Government, once again, Mr. Speaker, to send more surveyors to survey where the roads will pass through. Roads must be constructed in such a way that when experts come to survey for agricultural purposes, there will be good roads throughout on which to travel.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is about the question of Baringo Farmers' Training Centre at Sabatia. This was suggested a long time ago and many questions have been asked in this House about it; but the usual answer is that the Government is negotiating with foreign governments. I do not know how long it will take the Government to get this money. There is great need for a training centre for farmers, because, at the moment, if farmers from Baringo want training, they must go to Chebororwa, which is very far from the district. I would like to urge the Ministry of Agriculture to take immediate steps to see that the project is started as soon as possible.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is on the question of roads. I am appealing to the Ministry of Works to see that they look into the three proposed roads in Baringo District: one from Mogotio through Marigat, Kampi-ya-Samaki, Nginyang and through the other way in Kerio Valley. Another one is proposed to start from Eldama Ravine through Tenges, Kabarnet, Kabartonjo and joins the other one at Kinyach.

These roads are very useful administratively and agriculturally.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to touch on the question of unemployment relief. I believe that one way of getting rid of unemployment is by establishing more factories, not only in towns like the City of Nairobi, or any other big towns like Eldoret, Nakuru and the others. These factories should also be established—for example, the industry dealing with hides and skins—in such places as Baringo where we have a lot of sheep and cattle. This can be witnessed by the abattoir which was at Marigat during the colonial time. What we want for that part of the world is to start a factory like the one we now have at Kampi-ya-Samaki. We would like to have more factories. We have a lot of timber in Baringo from Lembus Forest, Katimok Forest and other forests. As I have already said, Mr. Speaker, we have a lot of sheep and cattle. It is therefore worthwhile starting an industry there.

Equally important is the question of land consolidation. In my own constituency this is taking place now; but the thing which I hate is that after six or nine months, you find the officers concerned telling people that there is no money for loans. I would appeal to the Minister for Lands and Settlement—I do not know where he has gone to, but I know he was here this afternoon—to discontinue this practice because as soon as our land is consolidated and registered we will be anxious to catch up with other people who are now able to get loans because they have land title-deeds.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have much to say on this speech apart from supporting it very strongly. I associate myself with those people who supported the speech given by His Excellency the President. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am grateful to the hon. Members for giving me this fine reception, but I wonder if they will be as enthusiastic as they are now, at the end of my speech.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the opening of Parliament is always the occasion for reviewing what has been achieved in the past, and I think it is important to review what the Government policy will be in the year that is ahead of us. That is why I find it rather difficult to understand some of the ill-informed criticism that has come out of this “opening” Speech of Parliament. You cannot expect a speech of this nature to include all aspects of development in this country. His Excellency the President can only highlight some of the salient features, which I believe he has done. It is surprising that now, in the seventh year of our Parliament, we should still have hon. Members who, because of lack of other material, tend to keep on speaking on the same questions.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, His Excellency the President has provided the vital and necessary leadership, not only for this country, but indeed for other countries of this continent. It is not only the people in this country who say so, but we have to look at the records of past years to note that leaders of other countries have paid tribute, in no uncertain terms, to the concept of African brotherhood which was so well emphasized by His Excellency the President. I think it is a matter of pride for this country that we have a leader of such eminence amongst us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, His Excellency the Vice-President made what I believe was an excellent commentary on the speech and, indeed, during that period, he made some very significant points. I want to refer, as most of the hon. Members have done, and I may have different views on this policy of Africanization which is making tremendous progress, contrary to the criticisms of some of the hon. Members who seem to live in a different world.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me make one point very clear so that there is no misunderstanding. I have always advocated and supported this policy of Africanization because I feel that our people must be given the opportunity of increasing participation in the economic, commercial and other sectors of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is also important, and it is my bounden duty also to suggest certain measures so that the law should be made more effective and, indeed, more workable. Mr. Speaker, it has been acknowledged by people who are knowledgeable that we have suffered a decrease in trade during the last year, and I agree, that this can be attributed to various factors like the delays in delivery of orders, selling of stocks and so on. But it is important to know, and I remember, Mr. Speaker—it was actually reported in newspapers—that at a meeting of the Kenya National Chamber of Commerce and Industry, it was recognized that the Trade Licensing Act has had an adverse effect on trade and that there will be a continuous falling in trade activities during this year.

Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the hon. Members have so far not disagreed with me because they know that I always speak of facts only. It is better to take a realistic view on this matter than to live in a fool's paradise. Mr. Speaker, Sir, many hon. Members have criticized the Government that Africanization has been very slow and that there are still very many non-citizens engaged in commerce, particularly in areas like Nairobi, Mombasa and probably in some of the rural areas. I believe that the Government is doing its best under the difficult circumstances, to implement this Act. I would like the hon. Members to note the number of shops that have been vacated following the enforcement of the Act and how many of these shops are still remaining empty.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what are we doing to ensure that these shops which have rightly been vacated will be filled up by competent and able people who have the necessary background and the know-how and experience of commerce. It is no use coming to the House to criticize the Government without suggesting positive measures for putting our own people into these vacant business premises.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

I want to warn the hon. Members that the speed of Africanization will depend on the capacity and the ability of our people and their speed to take over these businesses successfully. Let us not have these empty speeches here, particularly in this last year of this Parliament.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Government must be clear in its policy. I am so glad the Vice-President in his speech, said that there is no discrimination as between citizens of different origin. This is an excellent policy. I am sorry to say that this very Government, which has enunciated this policy here, has made several mistakes. These have been pointed out to the appropriate Ministers and I do hope, with all sincerity, that they will act in the best interests of all the people in this country. Let us stand by our principles. I do not wish for there to be any discrimination as between citizens and, what is more important, the image that this country has created amongst the other countries of the world, should not be tarnished just because some people have got a very limited outlook.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to touch very briefly on the Immigration Act to which also His Excellency the Vice-President referred. We must admit that there are certain anomalies which are remaining. It is time the Government clarified these matters beyond any doubt whatsoever. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I know that I am well known in this House for bringing this matter over and over again, and this is one opportunity where I want to say that despite what the Government has said, not all the applications for citizenship made within the prescribed period have been processed. The worst result of this is that while these applications are still pending, people's work permits have been terminated and there have been difficulties over extension of these work permits while they wait for the applications to be processed. This is a very serious difficulty. I have often seen that the Government, when winding up a debate, does not reply and does not respect the views of Members, and does not even answer some of the points which we make in this House. I see some improvement at least today; yesterday the Front Bench was empty, but it is so nice to see that there are at least half a dozen Assistant Ministers and Ministers here, and I think we can probably see some more tomorrow. We are making tremendous progress.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the other thing I would like to refer to here is the question of the returning students. I agree that they are probably foreign citizens, but their parents are here and they are in tremendous difficulty when they want to come back during their holidays, particularly when they have got return tickets. I hope that the Government will take some of these problems into consideration and try to smooth out these difficulties that have been agitating the minds of most of these people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, another example of how the Government does not respond with respect to the points that we make here: I think it was about some six months ago that I raised the question of Uganda Members of Parliament—this is in your interest, the Member for Nairobi, or whatever area you are—eligible for exemption under the Income Tax Act. Although the Minister of State at that time, the hon. Koinange, assured us that he would look into this matter, to this day not one of the hon. Members are aware of what is our position. I have suggested that the Government should look into this, and if they want I can refer them to the East African Income Tax (Uganda Members of Parliament) (Exemption) Order 1968, which has been in force in that country since January last year. It was Legal Notice No. 4 of 1968 in the Official Gazette of the East African Community. I am sure the hon. Deputy Leader of Government Business has now made a proper note of that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, can the Government now tell us the implications of this and state whether this sort of exemption order cannot be extended to Members of this hon. House?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I wanted to give one or two other examples, but I will have to leave them for lack of time. I would like to say that His Excellency rightly emphasized the role of this National Assembly, and how much we can contribute to decisive leadership by personal example. This is the true essence of the upholding of our democratic institutions. Therefore, let us rise to this challenge without displaying in public that we are divided and thereby decaying the party that is in power. Let us demonstrate that we are determined to resolve our differences, which are human, and that we will work in the interests of this country and the nation as a whole.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I share in the tributes that have been paid to Mr. Speaker, as he has played a valuable and vital part in upholding the dignity and traditions of this Parliament, and he has firmly founded the democratic ideals on which people will work in the future. History, I am sure, will record our contributions to the achievement of national aspirations for the benefit of the peoples. Therefore, let us, in all humility give our share to the success of our belief in democratic ideals.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I also rise to associate myself with the hon. Members who have supported this speech.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to draw the attention of Government to the fact that a healthy society is a progressive society. Of late, the dioceses overseas have split the African dioceses to be independent, and a number of missionary hospitals—about 12 in Kenya—have run into financial difficulties because of this. I must point out that I very much appreciate the efforts of the Ministry of Health to keep those hospitals running, but unfortunately I must point out that the Ministry of Finance has not been very useful in this particular case. I would like to call upon the Minister for Finance to ensure that these hospitals are kept open for many years to come, because some of them are placed in such strategic areas that the services that they are rendering to the people of those areas are very important because of the lack of proper facilities provided by Government. I believe that the maintenance of such hospitals will help the people of these areas to progress and forge ahead with the economic programmes that we have already planned.

I would like, however, Mr. Deputy Speaker, with regard to a point raised by the hon. Pandya, to point out that the time has come when our Government should introduce a revolutionary and deliberate policy to transfer the commerce and industry of this country from the hands of those who might have been privileged in the past to the hands of the wenye-nchi, not the wananchi. This is the most important word and it should be noted. We have, of course, wananchi as well in this country, but they have been in a much more privileged position, even in the past. During the colonial times we had the bwana mkubwa at the top, the muhindi in the middle and the wenye-nchi right behind. When Mzee gave the order for about-turn, the person in the middle still maintained the middle position, and he still feels that he should hold that privileged position for many years to come. This we cannot allow to go on; we cannot allow that position to be maintained. It should be that the person who is ahead should remain ahead and must be in the limelight of whatever happens in this country.

I appreciate much of what has been done through the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, the Kenya National Trading Corporation, etc., but I think we still need a much more deliberate policy to revolutionize our economic development in this country, not only as far as land is concerned, but also as far as commerce and industry is concerned.

Lately, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was speaking to a friend of mine who had acquired some business somewhere. He found out, when he went to the premises where the business was being carried out, that the rent for that same premises had been doubled. He had nowhere to go and appeal because the Rent Tribunal cannot deal with such an affair because it is outside the scope of the activities of the Rent Tribunal. Therefore, this gentleman had either to accept the rent which had been fixed by the landlord or give up the business. These things, Mr. Deputy Speaker, cannot be accepted anymore and I would like to appeal to the Government to introduce a much more deliberate policy which will help us to get into business. If this is not done, we will only be wasting our time speaking here about Africanizing the commerce and industry of this country.

Secondly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in his speech, His Excellency the President referred to Africanization of employment. I do appreciate what has been done by Government in this field; but I think there is much more that the Government should do as far as the private sectors are concerned. Much has been said in this House—questions have been asked, Motions have been moved—but not very much is being done. This House has even set up a committee to look into the Africanizing of the private sectors. I do not know what has happened to the report, and I do not know whether it is going to be brought up for debate in this House; but I think these things should not be overlooked because we are now moving towards a crucial moment, because perhaps within 12 months, or sooner than that, we might be facing a general election. Unless some of these things are carefully looked into they might be a weapon against our party. I want the Government to take very serious heed of this.

In his speech, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the President mentioned something about social services' development, and particularly self-help projects; he mentioned something about pilot schemes. It is true that United States Agency for International Development introduced some pilot schemes in three locations of this country: one was Samia and the others were Kabondo and Bomet. A report of the survey of the results of the pilot projects has been produced and it is a very, very interesting report. It has proved beyond reasonable doubt that those pilot schemes, in those locations where they were introduced, did quite a great deal to help those people in those locations to improve their social status, to do a lot in agricultural development as well as other development. I would like to appeal to our Government because the United States Agency for International Development is quite prepared to introduce more such projects in other locations and even to continue operating the three locations. I would like to appeal to the Government to consider seriously this offer and introduce, if possible, various other pilot schemes into other areas of this country, because it will help very much to teach our people how to help themselves so that they can help themselves in other development fields.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, on the side of agriculture. I have time and again appealed to the Minister for Agriculture to try and do a bit more work in this country rather than flying outside the country. We have Ministers in charge of various sections and some of the work that he flies out of this country to do could be done by other Ministers. However, if it is a question that he is the only capable Minister who can do those jobs, let him be given those Ministries and let someone else take this vital Ministry of this country. In this way he can go round with us to see for himself what is required. We now talk of revolutionizing our agricultural development—mechanizing. However, this person should be able to see for himself and realize the difficulties that people are facing, and then he will be in a position to plan what is required for X area, and what is required for Y area. We have time and again—I in person—appealed that there is a need to examine and, if possible, zone some cash crops. We have some well-privileged areas which can grow coffee, tea, pyrethrum, wheat, etc., and yet at the same time they are allowed to grow crops such as maize which can be grown in other areas where these crops do not grow. We should have someone to survey and examine what the producer reports. Perhaps zoning would help the economic development of rural areas which have not been privileged to be able to grow certain crops. For example, cotton: cotton can be grown around Lake Victoria; we cannot grow better coffee there and we cannot grow better tea, and we cannot even grow pyrethrum. However, you find that although we can grow cotton and maize, more cotton is being introduced elsewhere, rather than trying to give us more materials and more knowledge to enlarge on our cotton growing.

If these things are going to be concentrated in given areas only, and also industries concentrated in the same areas, then we should not be talking about development in the rural areas, because we are trying to cheat the people in those areas that they are going to get some development, when there is going to be no development at all in the areas.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is communications and power. These are two very vital items as far as economic development is concerned. For example, we have all the hydro-electric schemes centered right in the middle of Kenya. It will take many years—despite the fact that we are going to have a £50 million project within the next 25 years—to get this away from the Central Province. Why do we not, while we have this friendship—and I believe this friendship will continue—with countries like Uganda, who are near the western part of Kenya, extend their electricity line into the western part of Kenya so that we can help the people in that area to establish small cottage industries for development purposes?

If you look at the same area you will see that the roads themselves are in a shocking condition. It is not that we should blame the Government because we have to find the money to develop this area. However, whatever little that is made available to other areas, should also be made available to areas in the remote corners of Kenya. We should not only concentrate in the tea areas, the coffee areas, the pyrethrum areas, but let us look around and see whether we can balance our economic development projects throughout Kenya so that no area is left to complain about what is happening and what they expect to get out of our independence.

Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. ole Tipsi): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I just want to say a few words on this very important debate.

Firstly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think we are creating a situation that, I am afraid, if we are not careful, will prove to be difficult if allowed to continue without being put a stop to.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there has been a lot of talk in this House about tribalism. This is a very dangerous disease and I believe that those who speak most about tribalism are the real architects of tribalism. I believe that if we take stock and take stock very, very seriously, I, for one, have not come across one politician of any standing rising on a political platform to encourage his audience on purely tribalistic lines. Once we come to this House there is a tendency to talk too much about tribalism. We are all out and dedicated to kill tribalism and create a one, united Kenya nation. We should really be concentrating on the best ways and objectives of achieving our goal immediately.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there has also been a lot of talk about some tribes being left out in promotions and so forth. However, I think that instead of trying to generalize things, those Members who feel very, very bitter about this particular issue should really come out clean and disclose whoever they have in mind who, in their own view and assessment, is more qualified and has been left out. We cannot really keep on talking about favouritism in promotions in the various ranks of our Civil Service; we must be specific. I believe that this is exactly what is lacking. Of course, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we must also be prepared to call a spade a spade. We cannot all be equal and this is a fact; it is not our fault, nor is it nature's fault. However, some people are more industrious than others and we must give the credit where it is due.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think that the best solution is for us to examine ourselves very, very deeply. It is no good uttering words here and paying lip service, whereas we mean things differently in the bottom of our hearts. If there is any favouritism, we all claim to be members of the Government; we all claim to be leaders of our people; and there is machinery and the proper channels to be followed to check whoever the culprit is in this exercise of favouritism or "brotherization". I think this would be the best solution to this most difficult problem.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, having said this, I now come to the second point which I would like to mention—which is that we should all be very, very thankful to His Excellency the President. We should thank him wholeheartedly for his great wisdom in appealing to all the thugs, all the thieves, to surrender genuinely and honestly and come back into the fold to play a useful part in the development of the country rather than continuing in this evil job of stealing with violence and breaking into peoples' houses and stealing their property and the rest of it. I think this applies to the members of the public as well, as we should help our forces to maintain law and order and help them whenever any information is passed to us as to the whereabouts of those criminals.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would also like to say something about another very important point with regard to development. The development of this country needs to be properly zoned out and to be well spread out to cover every part of this country. As it is, Sir, it is common knowledge that some areas which have a high potential take, for instance, in beef or dairy produce, and these have been left out and some very marginal areas for beef production have been given preference. This should not happen. If things were properly planned, then, of course, those areas of high potential would be given the highest priority possible, and maybe by provision of water supplies in some of the dry areas then we could compete with the Argentine very well on the world market so far as beef is concerned.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the other point which I was really surprised to hear being talked about was that the Trade Licensing Act has some adverse effects; and the old, old colonial saying that these people are not ready and that they do not have the know-how or the experience, being repeated again in this House. One cannot help asking whoever mentioned this word if those who possess the know-how have had the chance for the last 50 or 60 years, but what trouble have they taken, if any, to try to encourage the indigenous people of this country to participate fully and effectively in the economic life of this country. Now, despite the appeals by our Government to them, they have managed to do the best they could. The time has come and it is true that we have a few of our people who are not experienced; but I am very sure that, given the necessary training and every encouragement by our Government, they will learn the hard way and, as a result, they will make the best they can out of it.

My last point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, without being parochial on this issue, is about admission into our secondary schools. In this issue, Mr. Deputy Speaker, some areas have been more fortunate and have advanced more than others. Of course, the President has repeatedly mentioned in all his speeches that those areas which were left behind during the time of the colonial rule must be helped in order to catch up with the rest of Kenya. When it comes to the question of admission into secondary schools, Sir, it is true that secondary schools are under the jurisdiction of the Central Government so to speak, they are free to admit children from all corners of Kenya. In this particular area I would appeal to the Ministry of Education to be more sympathetic to those backward areas, so that those who pass the Certificate of Primary Education with good marks from given areas are given preference for admittance rather than drop them out and admit students from outside without an outlet for children from those areas.

Thank you.

Mr. Areman: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I rise to thank the President for his speech. I do not want to labour very much on this, but would like to make a few points, one by one, which maybe the President forgot to mention when he addressed the Chamber.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[Mr. Areman]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the first thing I would like to point out is that in the Turkana District communications are very bad, and appear to have been forgotten completely. I was a little astonished when the President did not say anything about communications in the Turkana District. The hon. Deputy Leader of Government Business has been there and knows what the conditions there are like. I think he was there for about nine years, and even the Mzee himself knows what conditions there are like. I waited to speak until the Deputy Leader of Government Business was here.

Mr. Speaker, when an askari sends a Sh. 10 postal order to his mother by post, then she has to travel from Lodwar to Kitale, and it costs her about Sh. 10 to travel—yet she will only be paid either Sh. 10 or Sh. 20. She has to incur further expenses since she has to go back to Lodwar. This is what I wanted to point out and it is what I think Mzee forgot to mention.

Mr. Speaker, the police in Turkana District are forgotten. They are making Turkana District to be their home and in order to be given some orders that their place is still in Kenya and not outside Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, another thing which I would like to point out is about roads—

An hon. Member: Roads are communications.

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, we have asked questions here about the roads in Turkana and yet nothing has been done. I once asked why we had been brought here and I was answered that we were brought here to bring Motions here so that we can discuss them and then the Government can agree to what we resolve and do exactly what the Members want.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

EMPLOYMENT OF SCHOOL-LEAVERS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I must interrupt you now, Mr. Areman, because it is time for the interruption of business. You will have another five minutes when we resume the debate tomorrow.

Would a Minister please move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since I gave notice of this Motion on Adjournment nearly one year has elapsed, but it does not mean that since nearly one year has elapsed the question is out of date because this matter is now much more pressing and urgent than it was at that time.

Mr. Speaker, in this question, which was answered by the Assistant Minister for Labour, he stated that 3,554 Cambridge School Certificate leavers had applied for jobs through the so-called Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau and the Directorate of Personnel. Mr. Speaker, that was around June 1968, but now being nearly June 1969, we have had many more who left school during the year 1968 and who are still on the streets. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pity that I raise this question because at that time one hon. Member said that these school-leavers have been ignored many times, and that they go to the registration offices and the officers in the registration offices do not seem to like the way in which these school-leavers conduct themselves, and so they were very intolerant of the whole situation.

Mr. Speaker, it happened that two weeks ago—I have been trying to follow this up—I found that when I went to a certain personnel officer he would tell me there were no jobs but after a day or two you would find that some people have been employed in those offices.

Mr. Speaker, I happened the other day to go to one of them with a letter from the so-called Director of Personnel; and when the person who was holding the letter went to the office, she was turned away at the gate by the secretary and told that there was definitely no vacancy there. The personnel officer was not courteous enough to speak to this girl, simply because he felt it is useless to speak to her. Mr. Speaker, when the Minister was answering this question, he purported that they were still registering these school-leavers—but to a school-leaver registration means nothing. Even those who were registered last year are still on the registers and nothing has happened.

Mr. Speaker, it is true that if you go around my area you find school-leavers who left in 1968, after attaining School Certificate standard and passing in Division III, have not yet got jobs while those people who failed have found employment. What sort of registration is that, Mr. Speaker? This is very unfair.

Mr. Speaker, while the Assistant Minister was answering that question, he said the Government was conducting a survey with the co-operation of some industrialists of this country, to find out how they can alleviate this problem. Mr. Speaker, after that we never heard anything about it, we did not hear which industrialists co-operated, we did not hear who did what—they just kept quiet and said this is the school-leavers problem. Mr. Speaker, it is very interesting to see that the Government has not come out with any solution at all. What happens, Mr. Speaker, is that Africanization in the private sector is at a complete standstill, and is not taking place at all. Mr. Speaker, I say this with confidence because employers are not willing to Africanize at this stage. The Government has been saying that what they want is to introduce a voucher system which will give the local people a chance to get into business; but, Mr. Speaker, the employers are becoming very dishonest so that they term somebody who is just a typist as a technician. This technician, Mr. Speaker, is just a typist. When the Government officer goes around to look at it, since he is not himself a technician, he agrees that this man should be given a work permit because the employer says he is a technician.

Mr. Speaker, it is now the right time that our Government stopped accepting the non-citizen employers; and if it is a question of believing them, then they should believe them after checking and finding out the truth about these people. If it is a question about a technician, then he should undergo a test so as to prove what kind of a technician he is. Mr. Speaker, this leaves the public with a lot of suspicion. The public suspects that there is corruption taking place, and that there is brotherization taking place, although sometimes you may find it difficult to prove this. Mr. Speaker, the public feels there is corruption somewhere, and they do not believe these people are being given these vouchers fairly. Therefore, this is now the right time for our Government to stop dishing out these permits like ugali to non-citizens and concentrate on giving employment to the school-leavers who want the jobs.

Mr. Speaker, it is a very difficult time for these school-leavers, especially when you find that a school-leaver who has a Division I usually goes to University or for Higher School Certificate, and then you are left with the Division II and Division III and another Division called the East African Certificate of Education. If you go to any employer, Mr. Speaker, he does not want to hear anything about the East African Certificate of Education. He will turn anybody out who claims to have an East African Certificate of Education, because he thinks this is inferior, being a local qualification. They want Cambridge School Certificate, or they want it to be termed matriculation or things like that. These complicated terminologies, Mr. Speaker, are still with the employers and even within the mentality of our own people. I think it is time that our Government took action to decolonize the mentality of our own people so that we can do something sensible. At this time, Mr. Speaker, when we are speaking of the school-leavers it is true that there are career advisers in the secondary schools. Sir, these career advisers tell the pupils, "You are good for this", and they get them to fill forms. I tell you, Sir, this is very absurd because once they do the examination and they pass, then the forms which they filled at school are not followed up by the Government Department responsible. They are stacked away in a cupboard and forgotten.

In Nairobi we have the Directorate of Personnel and the so-called Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau. There are thousands of children going there every day. When I went there the other day to check, the officer there told me that he had just enrolled about 1,000 people from last year's results of the Certificate. He also told me that among this number there were so many Division III people, so many Division II people. Funnily enough the people of Division III get jobs before the Division II people. This is really a queer thing.

The public feels that if somebody is qualified, he should be given a chance to take what he is qualified for, and to follow the career set out on the form he filled when he was at school on the advice of the career adviser.

I beg to move.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, if hon. Members remember, time and again I have been speaking on this very important and delicate matter. The question of unemployment as far as school-leavers are concerned, Mr. Speaker, is a very delicate question indeed, and we should not take it lightly. Even Father Christmas and any other person knows this.

The solution for this is, first, the abolishment of the so-called Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau because it has completely failed in its duties; it has completely let down our Government. Today if you go to the Kenyanization Bureau you are told, "go there"; from there you are told to go to another place, then to the Directorate of Personnel. When you go to the Directorate of Personnel you are told a different story altogether. Therefore, Sir, you just do not know where you are.

Sir, our Government is following a democratic policy, our Government is a Government which does not want people to be deceived. How many times have Members gone to the Directorate of Personnel? How many times have Members gone to the Kenyanization Bureau and when they go to these places they are told that such-and-such a candidate's forms have been sent to the Directorate of Personnel. Then from there they were forwarded to the Kenyanization Bureau. Mr. Speaker, Sir, you fail to understand this. When you go to the headmasters they say, "Yes, So-and-so did fill the form and gave the air force as his first priority." When you go to the Kenyanization Bureau you do not find these forms there. Therefore, Sir, people wonder whether these forms have been taken to hell or to another planet. This is the time when we should be told things in the right way; we should not be deceived.

Another thing which we should be told is why there are so many people who have been given permission to work in the private sector or even in the Government Departments while they do not have work permits. I know very many such people. If today the Government is going to take action to see to it that people with no work permits are going to be expelled, we will create places for more than 5,000 school-leavers. These are the figures from the statistics. I would like one of the Members here to challenge me, even the Minister for Labour, and I will bring a very long list to prove what I say. I know that in very many companies people are working in a different capacity where once they worked as storekeepers. When you go there you are told this man is a manager. But this man was expelled from Tanzania, from South Africa, and yet he is working here. When you go into the details you find there has been some intrigue, some manoeuvring. It is high time this should be stopped. This kind of diabolical practice should be brought to an end. The Minister for Labour is in this House. How many times have we gone to him and reported to his Ministry that there are many people working without work permits. How many people are working contrary to the Act of Parliament which was unanimously passed in this House. Why does the Minister not take action? We must care for our own people.

Mr. Speaker, how many Indian school-leavers have you seen roaming about the streets? How many European school-leavers have you seen roaming about the streets? Today, Africans with degrees are found roaming in the streets of Kariokor, in Kimathi Street. When you ask them what they are doing they say, "My friend, I received this degree, I went to that company but was told to appear for an interview, to do another examination. I have all these certificates and yet I am asked to do an examination, to appear for an interview." Mr. Speaker, this is not something which should be taken lightly. Government should set up a commission of inquiry to go into the activities of some of the companies which are deliberately discriminating against our people, discriminating against the majority of the people in this country. They are discriminating against the Africans, Sir. If a commission of inquiry is not going to be set up, then I am telling you that we are sitting on something which is similar to a time-bomb. You do not know when a time-bomb is likely to explode but it will explode. This is an explosive situation.

Mr. Speaker, I have in mind two candidates. They were asked to appear for an interview in the Kenya Air Force, they were asked to appear for an interview before the Kenya Army, to go to Lanet. When they went there they were told to do this examination and another. The candidates who came from Embu then found that those with lower qualifications were taken and those with higher qualifications, from Embu and Kakamega, were not taken. Why is this happening?

Recently the Assistant Minister for Agriculture, hon. Kariuki, came to Embu. He came to an agricultural institute there. We told him that our people from the Eastern Province are being discriminated against and something should be done. We gave him a list to show that we have qualified people in the Eastern Province. This Assistant Minister said that this must be corrected. Later I went to the principal of that institute and took the list that we had prepared for the Directorate of Personnel and the Kenyanization Bureau. We told him that these people had been given letters of acknowledgement telling them that they would be called for interviews. To surprise you, Sir, I will tell you that from that time until today those candidates were never called for the interviews. At the institute you will find there is no place, it is filled with people who do not have a General Certificate of Education or a First Division School Certificate pass. The same thing happens at the Kenyatta Hospital. Some young people applied because they wanted to become pharmacists. They were told to wait. Some time ago I was told that an interview was carried out secretly. When you go there you are told that all the posts are filled, all the places are filled, the candidates have already been chosen. You are then told that your names are on the waiting list. We are not fools, Sir, we are the people with good brains. Mr. Speaker, the efforts of the people in this House should not be ignored. We have the brains and knowledge, Mr. Speaker, we the people who have been referred to as monkeys. We are human beings and every day we notice what is going on. Mr. Speaker, I know of companies, East African Airways, Gailey and Roberts, and Colgate-Palmolive, which, when you apply, you are told, "We are waiting for something from the Kenyanization Bureau." What is this Kenyanization Bureau? An organization which has no plan and is completely bottomless. Mr. Speaker, we cannot tolerate such things.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I will try to give, is this. It was very unfortunate that one of the hon. Members tried to say that our people do not have the technical know-how and they cannot trade. How many Kenya people are running businesses in New Delhi and Bombay today? The answer is none. I asked the Vice-President about it, Mr. Speaker, and he told me that there are no Kenya citizens in India. Therefore why should we allow these people to become citizens? Why should we allow them to trade whenever they have small businesses, which are sometimes transacted through the backdoor and which might affect our people? They do it secretly with small industries, there is one employment for these people and no other employment for Indians or for Europeans.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appeal to the Minister to take drastic action—and the sooner the better because it is becoming an explosive situation.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. This is an issue which actually should be discussed without any emotion at all. I agree with Members, and I am with them regarding their expressions of sentiment and I entirely agree. Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am in a situation where I am required to answer some of the things done by other Ministries. Mr. Speaker, work permits are issued by the Ministry of Home Affairs with the advice of the Kenyanization Bureau. This I admit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are three very serious allegations here which must be taken up very quickly. This must be taken up because there is a challenge directed by the hon. Member who has just sat down who states that he knows that there are people working in Kenya without work permits. Mr. Speaker, the Vice-President the other day said that more than 300,000 shillings have been received as fines from companies who are employing people without work permits. This shows the Members that the Government is taking the necessary steps. I would like the hon. Member to come to my office tomorrow and, as he has said that he knows some of the people working in Kenya without permits, sit down with me and then we can put down the names of these people who are working without permits. I promise this House that steps will be taken immediately by the Government.

The other charge which I would like to see proved is what the hon. Member said that he knows some school-leavers who are in Division III who have been employed in the Directorate of Personnel and that some Division II school-leavers have been left out. This is also another charge, Mr. Speaker, because if the Directorate of Personnel employs people purely on the basis of education, then there is no reason why there should be consideration of who is in which division. If a chap in Division III is taken, and another one in Division II left out, Mr. Speaker, there must be a reason why he is left. This could be because of tribalism, and this is what we want to find out. Therefore, I promise if Mr. Mbogoh will come with me then I will put him in the hands of the Ministry concerned together with the Directorate of Personnel to check this allegation. Employment of young people is not left to one Ministry at all.

Mr. Speaker, I have said in this House—and let me repeat it all again—that my Ministry is purely in-charge of people who seek employment which has already been created either in other Ministries or in the private sector. This is our job. If we are doing it wrongly—that is if there are jobs existing and I as the Minister of Labour I have failed to put people into these jobs, I will be blamed. But creating jobs is none of my business. I do not create jobs at all. The Kenyanization Bureau is only there to put the work-seekers in places where jobs exist. If jobs do not exist, Mr. Speaker, there is nothing my Ministry can do, and if the hon. Members of this Parliament think that the Kenyanization Bureau is not doing its work properly, then, as this is in my Ministry, I want the hon. Members to come to my office and tell me where it is failing. The only thing I have been told is the report from a committee on employment, which, Mr. Speaker, I have a lot to say on. I am a Mkamba, Mr. Speaker, and the Director of Personnel at the Kenyanization Bureau is a Kikuyu, not a Mkamba.

There are two very important things I want the Members of this Parliament to realize. Whether we shout in this Parliament or not, unless there are extra jobs, say by building hotels—we have a good example, Mr. Speaker, here; the coming of that Inter-Continental Hotel, has placed in jobs 500 people. The Nairobi Hilton, I understand, is going to put in jobs about 500 more people. These two hotels alone will employ about 1,000 new people. We have asked the managers of these hotels not to take people who are already employed but to take completely new people, who they will not take from individuals because I have asked them not to accept any letter from anybody. A few fellows come to ask me for letters, Mr. Speaker, but I have already told the chaps to ignore any letter whether it is from me or anybody else. I believe hon. Members of this Parliament are approached in the same manner by the school-leavers in order to give them letters to help to get employment. This has been stopped and I have said that there are now only two channels for getting employment. One is through Labour Exchange for those who are without a School Certificate, and the other one is through the Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau for those who have School Certificate and who are above School Certificate standards. These are the only two places for employment in the private sector. When we come to the Government, Mr. Speaker, it is the Directorate of Personnel, of which I am not in charge. However, I am not telling the hon. Members that I cannot look into any unfairness which has been shown in any Ministry like the Ministry of Labour. I am prepared to ask the Minister concerned to check this grievance if I can be provided, Mr. Speaker, with the facts.

The last warning, Mr. Speaker, is this. I think the time has come when we should tell our school-leavers to change their approach to life and employment. Some seem to think that the only place they can get a job is where there is a white collar employment. This is a very wrong approach to life and work. They must be told right from the beginning when they are in Standard 6 or Form VI that they are being educated to go home and help their parents either in running shops or farms, or in doing any private work because this is what life is all about. If we make a noise here and tell them that the only place they can have a good life is by employment in a white collar job, Mr. Speaker, it will get worse year after year. Next year we are going to have more people unemployed and this will happen each and every year.

The situation is not going to be changed by talking in this Parliament but by seeing that more jobs are created and also the approach to life by students is changed. They must be prepared to work in gardens, in workshops, in factories, and in the fields.

In other countries, Mr. Speaker, whilst we are talking like this, there are students with degrees who are working on farms so that they can earn their livelihood.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the end of our time. This House is therefore adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, the 28th of May, at 2.30 p.m.

PRAYERS

INDISPOSITION OF THE SPEAKER

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Hon. Members, I am sure you will be sorry to hear that Mr. Speaker is indisposed today with a slight touch of influenza, and I am sure you will join with me in wishing him a very speedy recovery.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 81

DIVISION OF KITUI AND MACHAKOS DISTRICTS

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House whether, in view of the fact that Kitui and Machakos were large districts, he would consider dividing Kitui into two districts, and Machakos into three districts so that the entire inhabitants would have better administration and more rapid development.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The subject of changing boundaries in the whole country has been suspended by His Excellency the President, with a view to setting up a commission to submit recommendations on all affected areas. Consequently, Mr. Speaker, I suggest that the Machakos and Kitui people wait and put up their grievances when the exercise is effected.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while agreeing with the Minister, could the Minister tell us what were the reasons which led to the splitting of the following districts into two: Kirinyaga, Laikipia, Nyandarua and Kisumu and also how long are we going to wait?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that came much earlier than this question of suspension and the hon. Member knows about it.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while agreeing further with the Minister, may we know how long we are going to wait? There must be a specific date.

Mr. M. Koinange: Well, I cannot give a specific date because that lies with the President but when he appoints the commission, then this Parliament will be told.

DETERMINATION OF CHIEFS' SALARIES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House whether:—

- (a) The African Chiefs were paid salaries according to their seniority or according to the population of a location they were entrusted to rule;
- (b) if they were paid according to numbers they were ruling, was the Chief arap Chuma of Buret in the Kipsigis District paid more because of the size of his location; and
- (c) the Minister would consider assigning a G.K. Land-Rover to chiefs of big locations like the Chief of Buret to enable them to move about in such wide areas.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. With all due respect to the hon. Member may I say that the words "African Chiefs" are out of question because all chiefs are Africans. With that in view, Mr. Speaker, may I say this: that the salary scales of chiefs are based on capacity, suitability, seniority and promotion.

(b) No Sir; and

(c) the situation is already taken care of, and hence here is no need to assign Land-Rovers to chiefs.

Mr. Kebaso: Will the Minister clarify the meaning of the word "capacity"?

Mr. M. Koinange: Capacity is the ability of the chief to take the whole responsibility in his area.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating the reply by the Minister, will he tell this House that "capacity" meant the bigness of a location? Since a location like North-Mugirango or Buret is 30 miles long, will he say how a chief can look after a location properly which is 30 miles long by walking? What does the Government mean by "Close Administration"?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, any chief who encounters difficulties in his area, has the district commissioner and provincial commissioner who he can report the difficulties which can be taken care of.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I would like to thank the hon. Member for North-Mugirango who has asked this question on my behalf because I am the Member of the area in question. This is good co-operation.

[Mr. arap Biy]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister elaborate on the reply given in (c) that the situation has already been taken care of. We would like to know how far this has been taken care of, and what machinery is used to take care of this.

Hon. Members: We want to know.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when chiefs, like any other administrative officers, have no Government transport provided for them, they are allowed to use their own cars or bicycles and claim mileage allowances.

(b) There are sub-chiefs to help in the running of the location and therefore, the size of any given location is not a problem as far as administration is concerned; and

(c) There are Land-Rovers for the district officers. These may be used by chiefs if there is need for them.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell the House how chiefs may use the district officers' Land-Rovers, while we know that for the best part of the year, these Land-Rovers are immobile because of lack of fuel, and that the chiefs are not being paid their mileage allowances throughout the year?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Member if he used the word "immobile" or "mobile"?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Immobile.

Mr. M. Koinange: Sir, we have had no report, as far as we know, of where such immobile vehicles exist. We do not know of these unless they are reported to senior district commissioners and also to the provincial commissioners. If there are such vehicles, then we would like to know through the proper channels.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's earlier reply in connexion with the capacity, suitability, responsibility and so forth, will he tell the House how for a new chief these new responsibilities are processed in order that he gets a sound salary?

Mr. M. Koinange: The very words used by the Member, the new chief, means that that new chief is new to responsibility. He gets an opportunity to learn. It is not that he is a new chief at that very second and becomes loaded completely. He gets the responsibility to know his area.

Question No. 97

TRIBAL POLICE AND SUB-CHIEFS' SALARIES

Mr. Kago asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House, since subchiefs were in charge of the administrative policemen and since these administrative policemen drew more salaries than the subchiefs, for good discipline, dignity and morale, the Government would consider raising the salaries of the subchiefs higher than that of the administrative policemen.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The subchiefs' salary scales are elastic enough to provide for salaries which are equivalent or higher than the salaries of administration police. The subchiefs are expected to work with the constables and, normally, the subchiefs will be earning higher salaries. Due to the overlap in the salary scales, an administration policeman who has given longer service could be earning more money than the subchief who has given less service.

It is not necessary, therefore, to review the subchiefs' salary scales.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since it is known that the starting point of a sub-chief is £90 and the starting point of an administration policeman is £135, how can the Minister say that the scale is elastic enough to be able, so to speak, to fit a sub-chief so that he can earn more than a constable in the scale when we know that, in fact, they do not earn so much?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, one is actually not transferable.

However, it is true that the subchief begins with £90 per year and goes to £162 for Grade II; for Grade I it is from £171 to £240. The Member could work that out and know the reasons that I gave for this before.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, will the Minister undertake to investigate this, because what he tells the House is not true? I know in my own district that the subchiefs earn much less money than the administration police.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a person in charge of provincial administration throughout the country, I give these facts as they are, and yet the Members says that they are not true. I do not know in what capacity he says that the facts I have given are not true.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply giving us the scale for subchiefs, and view of the fact that we have at the moment some subchiefs who have gone to schools and are learned men, is this scale based on the newly employed learned subchiefs or is it the original scale made for the illiterate subchiefs in the country?

Mr. M. Koinange: Sir, on the question of appointment there is a reserve but, at the same time, the scale is adjusted accordingly.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, to enlighten this House and for the Minister's statement to be taken, that he is giving true concepts, can he give some examples of where some sub-chiefs have been given higher salaries than the point of commencement?

Mr. M. Koinange: That will depend on the number of educated or university-trained people who actually hold the post of chief. That is the point.

Graduates who have been given the list of illiterates. That is the point.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since subchiefs have a very important responsibility in looking after the people in their own areas, will the Minister, therefore, consider raising the point of commencement of the salaries, from £90 to £200?

Mr. M. Koinange: The question of raising the salaries does not arise as a parliamentary question, with all due respect to the Member. It rests with the commission which looks at the salaries of the whole civil service.

Question No. 98

RULES FOR VISITING GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS

Mr. Lorimo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House—

- (a) if it was true that there were regulations in each Ministry of the Republic of Kenya concerning entrance permits to see the following in their offices:—
- (i) the President of the Republic of Kenya;
 - (ii) Ministers and Assistant Ministers;
 - (iii) Permanent Secretaries;
- (b) what these regulations were;
- (c) who framed them.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

- (a) Yes, Sir.
- (b) These are security regulations.
- (c) They are framed by the Kenya Government.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer that these are for security reasons, do these security reasons apply to Members of Parliament, and if they do apply to Members of Parliament, does the Government doubt our loyalty in wanting to visit these people?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, the Government does not doubt the loyalty of the Members of Parliament. The regulations are not made for or against the Members of Parliament. These are merely regulations for all people.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would it be in order for the Minister to supply the Members with copies of the regulations he is referring to?

Mr. M. Koinange: This can be done, Sir.

Mr. Lorimo: Arising from that answer, that this is meant for other people, why is it that when we go to the Ministries, after we are told by the Ministers here that such-and-such matter can be settled in their offices, often a very junior Government servant tells us that we cannot see the Minister?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know to which Ministry the hon. Member is referring.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Do you want to elaborate, Mr. Lorimo?

Mr. Lorimo: Yes, I can explain, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, several times we have been told that instead of wasting the time of this House by asking unnecessary questions, we should see the Ministers, or Assistant Ministers before asking these questions. I have been to his own Ministry, Mr. Speaker, several times and I have been kept there for three hours waiting.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very surprised because that very Member comes to my office almost every time, and that he can stand and speak the truth in this House that he has been restricted is amazing. I can testify with all truth that that Member has been, more than any other Member, to my office to see me and it is most surprising that he should stand in this House and say that he has been ignored.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister agree with me that it is difficult to trace him in the office because I am always meeting him in my constituency selling eggs in Kariokor?

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to the hon. Member who has asked this question, I think we should really mean business here. I would like him to substantiate by giving us the time and the date when he met the hon. Minister selling eggs in Kariokor.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think we can ask him to substantiate that, but I do think the question was very unfair, because, after all, what we are discussing here is not the private business affairs of any individual, whoever he may be; we are discussing the question of regulations made by the Government to enable persons to see particular Ministers, Permanent Secretaries, etc. We are looking at the abstract question, and I think it is quite wrong to ask a question which is, in fact, a severe personal attack. I do not think it is in order. I am not going to rule it out because the damage, for what it is worth, has already been done.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, I am seeking your ruling here and your guidance. Is it in order for a Member of this House to defend a Minister when the Minister himself is here? I would have liked to see a Member of this Bench defending the Government and the Ministers when they are not here, but is it in order, when the Minister is here, for him to be defended by another Member?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is perfectly in order. I do not think Mr. arap Biy was trying to defend the Minister—in fact, I do not think he needed defence—but I am saying that we are not discussing the personal affairs of Mr. Koinange, we are discussing particular regulations. Therefore, that question was out of order definitely.

Next question.

*Question No. 99INFORMING M.P.S OF PUBLIC EVENTS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House, why, although at the time of independence there used to be a policy that Members of Parliament were informed of the programmes for any public events in their constituencies, this policy has now been dropped.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Public events are of different kinds, and may involve different groups of people. It is not correct to allege that all public events involve Members of Parliament in their respective constituencies.

However, Mr. Speaker, Members of Parliament are always informed by the parties concerned about public events which take place in their constituencies if it is deemed fit by the party so concerned that they be informed.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, could I know from the Minister as to how Members of Parliament, who are actually representatives of their constituents, are not concerned with some public events? With which public events are they not concerned. Could he give examples, please?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I know from the hon. Member to which events he is referring and in which he is interested?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, in fact when the Minister was answering this question he should have had some knowledge about what I was asking. Anyway, since he has asked me to elaborate on this: sometimes a Minister goes to one constituency—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Put it in the form of a question.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Is the Minister aware that there are some Ministers and administrative officers who visit constituencies of different Members and yet they do not inform them of their visits and the occasion or whatever they are going to do? Are you aware of that?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I am not aware because in some instances a Minister could go to, for example, a wedding party which is totally outside the scope of Parliament, or some other event arranged by the department, or arranged from the provincial level. The Member should tell us to which one he is referring.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House why just during this week the Provincial Commissioner of Nyanza visited Ugenya without informing me when I was there? He went to visit Ugenya constituency when I was there and I was not aware.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, every provincial commissioner is actually placed by His Excellency the President to represent him in that province, and the provincial commissioner has the right to visit every part of his district at his leisure without letting any person know. He has the right to do so.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next question.

*Question No. 12DEVELOPMENT OF GOIBEI WATER SCHEME

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister would consider giving Goibei Water Scheme priority in Western Kenya since Goibei School was a boarding school for girls who required pure drinking water.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. We fully agree with the hon. Member that the Goibei School should be provided with facilities for pure drinking water as soon as possible. Towards this end, we have instructed the Water Development Department to use all the efforts necessary to ensure that this scheme is given top priority locally, and for them to implement the scheme as soon as all the authorities concerned have agreed to the project.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the very satisfactory reply from the Assistant Minister, could he inform the House whether there is any co-operation which he requires the public to put into the effort, together with his Ministry, in order to get the work finished as quickly as possible?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my colleague, the other Assistant Minister in Agriculture, visited the area last month and was very impressed by what these people have done. Although this school was not given priority as far as water is concerned by the Western Provincial Committee, we will try and assist them.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next question.

Question No. 13

LOANS FOR HAMISI FARMERS WITHOUT TITLE-DEEDS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister would give instructions to local field agricultural officers that farmers in Hamisi who have good farms without title-deed should be considered for loans.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Agricultural Finance Corporation has always realized and accepted that farmers who have no title-deeds who can offer good security for loans should get these loans. The hon. Member, therefore, may rest assured that the farmers in his constituency, as well as other areas in the Republic where land has not been consolidated and where title-deeds are not available, will not, in fact, be denied Agricultural Finance Loans on these grounds.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the very satisfactory reply from the Assistant Minister, can he tell the House what that "little security" is, because he has mentioned that there must be some kind of security offered by the farmers, but my farmers do not have any security apart from the land itself?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the securities are that if your farm is properly kept you have got the land and then if you are farming properly there is some security which the Agricultural Finance Corporation can get hold of, and this is enough security.

Let me announce again here that from now on there will be no 50 per cent down with the Agricultural Finance Corporation; we have instructed them that they can now go ahead and give a 100 per cent loan if the farmer needs it.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next question.

Question No. 60

MAIZE FOR POPCORN

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister was aware that a certain variety of maize called popcorn can easily be grown in Kenya because the climate is quite favourable for it; and was the Minister aware that the imported popcorn was being sold at a very high price of Sh. 1/50 and Sh. 1/80 per pound; and what action was the Ministry taking to reduce this price.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as the question answered by the hon. Assistant Minister for Agriculture was very interesting, Members would have liked him to elaborate more how we can get 100 per cent loans. Would I be in order, Mr. Speaker, to ask the Assistant Minister to elaborate a bit more?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I sympathize with you, but I do not think this can be done now, I am afraid. Perhaps you would like to ask another question at another time and then it will be answered.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was going to answer that and elaborate on it, but as you have ruled it out I would like it to be asked at another time so that I could elaborate on this.

However, Sir, I would like to answer the other question asked by the Member for Embu East.

The answer to part (i) is, no, Sir.

The answer to part (ii) is, we think it is reasonable.

Answer number (iii) is none.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer that has been given by the Assistant Minister for Agriculture—who is a very dynamic Assistant Minister—is it in order for the Assistant Minister to give such an answer which does not correspond with what is happening, since we know very well that most of the people who are importing this type of maize for popcorn are non-citizens? What action is the Minister going to take to see to it that the importation of this type of popcorn is given to the African growers, and the people who are citizens? This is very important, Mr. Speaker, and he should support me.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Yes, Sir, I also support what he says but, at the same time, I would like to explain to my hon. friend that the Ministry is not aware that the variety of popcorn maize can easily be grown in Kenya. What we know is that our experience has shown that materials from a [Mr. J. M. Kariuki] country like the United States cannot actually grow well because they are not adapted to our soils and climate in this country; they are also subject to diseases and yields are, in fact, very low indeed. Therefore, even if we give this to our local people with these problems—the low yields—this will certainly remain uneconomic for our farmers.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister aware that although he was given a report that this type of maize cannot be grown in Kenya, we have got proof that this type of maize can do better in Kenya than it can in the United States of America. Therefore, the expert who told him so was completely mistaken. If I can take him to Embu, Mr. Speaker, I can give him a piece of land where he can grow this and it will prove that it can do better in Kenya than it can do in America.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Yes, Sir, I agree again, it is true that by breeding we can achieve a variety which will have the required popping ability—as the maize from abroad to make popcorn has to be a yellow or golden variety, and I would like to inform the hon. Member that if you do that and you plant this type of maize next to your other crop what will happen is that the other good maize around that area will definitely be spoiled by this other type of maize. We do not want to encourage this to happen in Kenya.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the popcorn type of maize is quite expensive here, would the Assistant Minister tell us where this variety of maize has been tested and found not to be suitable? Where is the place this maize has been tested?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to inform the hon. Member that in 1968 the Maize and Produce Board gave permits to import 830 bags of 100 lb. each, and since this is a guide to the market, the demand required by many people was too low indeed, and so we would not encourage it. This is actually sold to some of the cinema places and many people do not seem to like it and so expansion is not—

Mr. Muruli: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I asked the Assistant Minister to tell us where experiments have been done on the planting of this maize: I did not ask him where it was imported from.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just said that we have stations where we make these experiments and that is why I told the hon. Member that this could not be done because the experiments have shown that we cannot get good yields from this popcorn maize.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next Question.

Question No. 82

FIELD WORKERS IN KITUI

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House the breakdown of all the field workers in Kitui District, and their grades.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

On 20th February 1969, there was a total of 195 field staff working in Kitui District. Now the breakdown is as follows. Agricultural staff, a total of 139. We have agricultural officers and the Senior Agricultural Assistant, Mr. Mutysia. Then we have one assistant agricultural officer again, and there was one vacant post at that time because Mr. Mwakao went on an overseas training course. Now in the divisions, we have one assistant agricultural officer. In Eastern Kitui, we have one agricultural officer and in Southern Kitui, one agricultural officer. In the Better Living Institute near Machakos, we have one agricultural officer.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while congratulating the Assistant Minister for the breakdown of 195 field officers, and also knowing the designations assigned to different divisions now out of these 195, could the Assistant Minister, tell this House, why the field workers from Kitui District alone, who actually were appointed in early 1940, have not been appointed to agricultural officers from that time until now? The agricultural officers he has mentioned are outsiders, why?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Here again Sir, we are faced with another tribal point. What I would like to say is the reason why we sent these officers on training courses abroad, is to try and get them to shoulder responsibilities in the district because they know it well. I cannot say that the reason we have removed our agricultural officer in Eastern Division, is because we want the acting agricultural officer there, Mr. Mumo, to take over the responsibilities. The hon. Member should be satisfied, that the Ministry is trying to do all it can to see that the people who understand the area best, are given responsibility there.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very interesting. All the Assistant Minister has said is that the Ministry is trying to get Mr. Mumo into that position; now, what criteria, did the Ministry take in deciding to promote Mr. Mumo, who is below K.P.E. standard, whereas, there are two School Certificate chaps who have been working there since 1939, but they have not been considered.

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is well known that there are some people who passed their school examinations long ago and they may have better experience in the field than some people who have just come from school. It is understandable.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next question, Mr. Chillo.

Question No. 73

SHORTAGE OF DRUGS IN KUSA DISPENSARY

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) why Kusa Dispensary was always out of drugs, and
- (b) whether the Minister was satisfied that the drugs supplied there were being properly used.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

Since the running of Kusa Sub-health Centre is not the Ministry's responsibility, the Ministry was not aware of the shortage of drugs until the 22nd of February 1969. The Kisumu County Council, which at present is being run by the commission appointed by Government, is responsible for Kusa Sub-health Centre.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while being grateful for the Ministry's initiative which they have taken to see that the drugs are supplied, may I then put a simple question like this; would the Ministry therefore—from 22nd of February onwards see that the standards of that Sub-health Centre do not go down to its former position whereby the drugs supplied were never used correctly? I am glad that since I put this question things have improved.

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to inform the hon. Member that the report we got from Kisumu, was that communication with Kusa, is very poor. During wet weather the road becomes impassable to any vehicle and, as a result, the centre runs short of drugs. I think the hon. Member has something also to discuss with the local people and, especially with the commission or the former county council, so that the roads are improved, then the people who deal with drugs can easily transport them to the centre. On the other hand, I am glad that the hon. Member appreciated the investigation done by my Ministry.

Question No. 79

DISTRIBUTION OF MISCELLANEOUS G.P.T.

Mr. Lenayiarra asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

- (a) what criteria the Minister used in dividing the 50 per cent G.P.T. received from Nairobi City Council and Mombasa Municipality between the various councils in the country, and
- (b) whether the Minister would inform the House how much money was transmitted to the Samburu County Council in the way of graduated personal tax by the Nairobi City Council in 1967, and how that compared with the remittance made by the Ministry of Local Government in 1968.

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In accordance with the Sessional Paper No. 12 of 1967 on Local Government, 50 per cent of the graduated personal tax collections in Nairobi and Mombasa is transmitted to Government to assist in the provision of grants to county councils within the framework of the grant formula as set out under paragraph 69 of the Sessional Paper.

The actual transmissions made to Samburu County Council in 1967 by Nairobi City Council was £3,149 and by Mombasa, nil. In 1968, the Government transmitted to Samburu County Council, £2,909.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer, can the Minister clarify further and inform the House why some councils get more money from Government than others?

The Minister for Local Government (Mr. Sagini): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the answer to the question, in very clear English as to why they get more funds, is because local authorities in the Republic of Kenya differ. Some are very huge like Nairobi, and some are tiny.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it appears from the Minister's answer that at one time the Samburu County Council got nil, that means no tax was received from Mombasa. Does the Minister mean that there were no Samburu people living in Mombasa?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give that answer on the spur of the moment but that is the information I got.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House where he got the information that the Samburu people were not living in Mombasa?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you want to be philosophical about this question, maybe some Samburu people who were living in Mombasa, had not reached maturity to pay taxes.

Mr. Aremam: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has clearly stated to the House, that there are no Samburu people living in Mombasa who can pay graduated personal tax, can he substantiate that? Does it mean that the Samburu do not have people in the police, prisons or any other work who can pay graduated personal tax?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is only the Almighty God who could have those statistics now. I said maybe there are some Samburu people. What happens is this; supposing they fail to pay tax, they would still be Samburu people.

Mr. Lenayiara: Arising from that answer, and knowing very well that there are some Samburu people living in Mombasa, will the Minister inform the House why the Samburu County Council received more funds when the city council was handling the allocation of these funds than the amount received in 1968 when the responsibility was transferred to the Government?

Mr. Sagini: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the figure available to my Ministry for payment of compensation for lots of transmissions for graduated personal tax from Nairobi and Mombasa in 1968 was £640,000 in accordance with the sessional paper which was discussed in this House. The figure of £640,000 was an approximate figure based on the date available at the time of the preparation of the sessional paper. It was not until late 1968 that the final calculations of transmissions by Nairobi and Mombasa for 1967 were completed. The final figure was £692,783 and there is a difference, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

At present, I am negotiating with the Treasury about getting more funds in the nature of grants with which to help our local governments, not Samburu County Council alone, but all local authorities.

Question No. 74

NAIROBI MOTOR WORKERS' STRIKE

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House—

- (a) whether the Minister was aware that the strike which occurred on Monday, 3rd February 1969, by Nairobi motor workers was due to an incident involving a European supervisor and an African workman at D. T. Dobie & Co.; and
- (b) why the employer failed to carry out the recommendations made after an official investigation by the Ministry's Letter No. ML/IR/II/D of 24th December 1968.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Oselu-Nyalick): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) I am aware that the strike in question was as a result of the firm's management's refusal to treat with impartiality two workers, one of whom was a Kenyan and the other one an expatriate. The House will recall that a full account of the events leading to this strike of 3rd February 1969, was given by me on 11th February 1969, in reply to Question No. 1529 by another hon. Member of this House.

(b) Following my Ministry's recommendations of 24th December 1968, the management of D. T. Dobie & Co., Ltd., agreed and implemented part of my recommendations by re-instating the Kenya employee who was to be disciplined by dismissal. The question of full implementation of our recommendations is now sub judice as both parties to the dispute met on 4th February 1969, and voluntarily referred the matter to the Industrial Court of Kenya for adjudication.

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, do you not agree with me that there is so much noise that most of us cannot hear a word of the debate?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I agree with you and I have shouted, "Order! Order!" a few times but some hon. Members insist on holding conversations and laughing very loudly at the same time. I appeal to the hon. Members to respect the speaker speaking at the moment.

Question No. 89

STUDENTS' USE OF BURSARIES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether the Minister was satisfied that students at our colleges used their bursaries properly and did not spend them on luxuries in town.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am fully satisfied that the cash available for the students' pocket money does not make any allowance for luxuries. Each student receives only Sh. 310 a year as pocket money.

Mr. Kebaso: Is the Minister not aware of the fact that sometime back, a student from Nairobi University College wrote into a newspaper saying that all the money that the Government gives them as pocket money is used by some of them to pay for their brothers' or sisters' school fees?

Hon. Members: What is wrong with that? That is good.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Sh. 310 a year that we give to the students for their pocket money is for them, but if they are so prudent and careful in using the money and save a little for something else, that is perfectly all right.

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the hon. Member, Mr. Kebaso, produce that paper which the student wrote?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I know that in normal cases that is right but I think he is merely stating that such a case took place.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. Dr. Kiano had not replied fully when he was interrupted by another hon. Member.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Had you finished replying Dr. Kiano?

Dr. Kiano: Yes, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He had finished his reply. Carry on Mr. Kago.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, knowing that in some places and towns the cost of living is high, is the Minister satisfied that Sh. 310 a year is really enough for these students and if not, would he consider increasing it?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure that the hon. Member knows that this small sum of Sh. 310 is not to be used for buying food, paying for hostel fees, buying uniforms or paying any fees—all of which are provided and the Sh. 310 is for small things like cigarettes or other incidentals that are not basically essential. I am therefore satisfied that Sh. 310 could meet any emergencies.

Question No. 90

AMERICAN STUDENTS IN NAIROBI UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether it was necessary to admit American students into Nairobi University College when so many children of Kenya citizens could not get places in that college.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The University College—it looks as if today, people are suffering from the laughing fever—as part of the University of East Africa, has to maintain a certain amount of international character. Indeed, only a very small number of outsiders are admitted and we always make sure that no Kenyan, Ugandan or Tanzanian student is kept out to give room to a non-East African student.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want a direct reply from the Minister, I was asking that if we always have to donate money to send students to the United States of America, why are those students not admitted to the Nairobi University College and the Americans remain in their university instead of sending Americans here and sending our students abroad and wasting that money?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will you please make my voice audible by asking the hon. Members to whisper a bit lower than they are doing now? I can hardly hear the question myself. Could the hon. Member repeat his question because I could not hear it? There is a lot of activity on the Front Bench as you can see.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I have appealed to the Front Bench thrice and I hope they will now listen especially Mr. Maisori and Mr. Kariuki to start with, then perhaps, we can hear very well what the speaker is saying.

An hon. Member: Point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Point of order!

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is the second time you have done this, and what will happen if there is a third time? Is it not time that you suggested that they leave the Chamber?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That could happen but we hope it will not need to.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have noticed this afternoon that the Bench behind the Front Bench opposite me, most of the Members there are just laughing all the time and sometimes they even call some of the Members sitting on the Front Bench to join them. Mr. arap Biy is laughing all the time and sticking his teeth out. Other Members are also laughing.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I do not think we want to go into details of the individuals concerned. However, Mr. Obok is right that there has been much more noise than necessary and more laughter than necessary in that particular direction. I do not think we want to go into this as a discussion but I would appeal to these Members to remain silent.

Mr. Kebaso, please repeat your question.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, why should we spend money, or collect money at public meetings to send students to America instead of having them admitted to our own colleges here? If we need to send them abroad, why can we not send them here instead of getting the Americans to attend our universities here, especially when many of our people do not have any place at which they can study?

Dr. Kiano: Sir, I would like to clarify the position for the hon. Member. In the first place, it is the policy of the Government today that the students who qualify to enter our University of East Africa shall do so and will not go overseas for higher education until they have finished their studies here.

Now, if, however, a student has qualified to enter the University of East Africa but wants to take a course that is not available at the University of East Africa, then that student may seek permission to enter a university overseas.

The other category is the students who finish their courses here but want to specialize even further than what is available in Nairobi or Dar es Salaam or Kampala, and those also are assisted to go overseas.

Lastly, Sir, because of the differences in the admission level for different universities—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, whereas I do not like to interrupt the Minister for Education, I would like to say that there is a game of hide and seek going on. To whom should we pay attention, to the hon. Minister or to—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): To the Minister.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I really am having difficulties this afternoon because every time I try to be very philosophic in my reply, I find the spirit of philosophy does not obtain here.

I was giving the various categories of the students whom we encourage to go overseas, and I was just at the point of saying that because of the difference in levels of admission requirements there are some universities abroad which may accept a student who has passed School Certificate but may not have done Form V and Form VI, which is required by the University of East Africa. That category of students do collect money, as the hon. Member has said, to go overseas.

Sir, it should be realized that the presence of students from outside East Africa, that is, from other parts of Africa as well as from outside Africa, their presence in our university is a positive contribution to international understanding and the promotion of knowledge throughout the world.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House how these students who come from other countries are selected, because we do not want to see our universities perhaps filled up by foreign agents?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am perfectly satisfied that the hon. Member who asks this question is aware of how universities process the admission requests by foreign students. He, himself, applied as a foreign student to an American university and he was sufficiently screened to be found safe. We do the same here. We screen students to make sure that they come here for educational purposes, not for political purposes.

Question No. 61

CORRUPTION BY PUBLIC OFFICIALS

Mr. Munyi asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House—

- (a) arising from a warning given by the Attorney-General a few months ago, that stern measures would be taken against public officials who practised corruption, how many cases of corruption had since been dealt with;
- (b) by what percentage had such cases been reduced since this warning had been given.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Of course, this matter of corruption is very topical at the moment. Quite a lot of people are talking about corruption and I wish Members would restrain themselves in these matters.

Hon. Members: Why? Why?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I only say "restrain" because the proceedings in this House, I am sure the Members know very well, are privileged.

I am suggesting that some of the statements which are being made here are extravagant and some are not based on facts. I am defending nobody, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, on the—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, are we to believe that the Attorney-General is answering the question because whatever he is saying now is beside the point? Could he tell us how many have been convicted, and so forth, and not tell us anything about this matter, and give us a long list—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! He is probably prefacing his answer with a little preamble. In view of, I think he says, the topicality of this issue, I think we ought to give him a little latitude in this particular matter.

I am sure he will come to the answer very soon.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I do not know why the hon. Member is being sensitive. He is the one who is prone to using loose language. All I ask is that one should be restrained in the language that one uses.

Now, Sir—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Attorney-General has said that I am fond of using loose language, when he knows that I have substantiated on several occasions whatever I have said in this House. Is he not loose himself?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! It is not going to carry us very far if we go on attacking each other and saying that others are using loose language.

I think what the Attorney-General meant was that probably you were not being concise or precise on certain occasions. In any case, that is a matter of opinion and I do not think it arises now. We will go on to the main issue.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I say the hon. Member has been loose and I challenge him to repeat those statements, he has been making here, outside this House.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder if you can help us because it is becoming useless now.

The Attorney-General, in this House, should respect, also, hon. Members. He should not appear to be intimidating Members, that Members should repeat outside what they say in this House. Supposing they do say, what can you do?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order!

I do not think any threat was implied. I think what he was saying is that some Members might be taking advantage of the privilege or immunity of this House. In any case, I do not think this arises on this particular occasion.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): My answer to that, Sir, is that I will be the happiest man if these statements are repeated outside this House.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Let us carry on now.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I made this statement about corruption on the 12th December last year. I was speaking against corruption and I was warning members of the public service and also members of the public sector—

Since then there have been 14 cases of corruption brought to court, and I am satisfied that investigations are being carried out, and in those cases where we have sufficient evidence, people have been brought to court, they have been prosecuted and they have been sentenced to imprisonment.

I will wait for further questions, I am sure they will be coming.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer from the Attorney-General, and arising from the fact that the Attorney-General is the one who warned the civil servants that drastic action would be taken against them if it was found that they were guilty of corruption, is it not true that ever since the Attorney-General gave this warning on the 12th December 1968 there have been some senior civil servants who have already been charged with corruption, namely the Chairman of the Rent Tribunal Court, people like the Resident Magistrate in Kisumu, and very many other people? Therefore, this shows, in no uncertain terms, that there are many civil servants who have committed this most serious offence which should be stopped forthwith, and it is high time that the Government should set up a commission to investigate what is going on in all departments, because there is corruption definitely going on.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I agree with the hon. Member that quite a number of senior officials and people in high places—

The hon. Member has not been to court yet. If by "senior enough" the hon. Member means that we must prosecute a Member of Parliament, we are waiting for the hon. Member.

However, quite a number of senior people have been prosecuted—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the Attorney-General purports that they are waiting for me as a Member of Parliament, when a Member of Parliament is not a civil servant, and this question deals with senior civil servants who are practising corruption, in which case, it means that it is referring to senior civil servants like himself?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I think this practice in which one person, whenever asked a question, tries to blame somebody else who is interjecting, is quite dangerous. It does rebound as has just now happened. I think we should try and answer questions from an impersonal point of view, without referring to any particular individual either jokingly or otherwise because some people, particularly the outsiders, are likely to take it more literally and believe that, in fact, there is an insinuation that a particular person is being watched, or otherwise.

[The Deputy Speaker]

I would appeal to Members not to be too personal about these things but to treat them as general statements of policy involved.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, in fact, the matter will not rebound on me, it may rebound on the hon. Member because I said that senior Government—

What is the difference between a senior Government official or a senior civil servant? Or a public official, for that matter?

Now, Sir, I am myself satisfied that these matters have been dealt with carefully and I want to inform the House that even if a commission were to be appointed, you would get no more information than you are getting from— I do not think that a commission is the answer in this matter.

Hon. Members: It is.

Mr. C. Njonjo: In my view it is not. If the hon. Members think it is, then, of course, we are each entitled to his own opinion.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, arising from the first answer that 14 public officials have been prosecuted because of corruption, would the Attorney-General tell us whether these 14 are entirely public officers and, secondly, how many of the cases has he withdrawn from the court, and the reasons why?

Mr. C. Njonjo: The particulars are as follows of the cases I have mentioned. I cannot mention the names. I gave the number as 14. Since writing this reply, there have been three more.

Some have been police officers; one has been an auditor in local government, another has been a labour officer in the Eastern Province; one has been a chief; three have been members of the Kenya Police Force; one has been a Chairman of the Rent Tribunal; and this matter is sub judice. As far as I am concerned, no cases have been withdrawn where we have had sufficient evidence.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Attorney-General's earlier reply, that if such a statement was uttered outside he would take action, is the Attorney-General, at the same time aware, that a church leader, a reverend, made a statement publicly, and it was in the papers, that corruption has gone to a stage where it is now, and he was ready to substantiate in a court of law. What do you do with such a person?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I remember this person, it was the Reverend Aitken of the Presbyterian Church. He made a general allegation and said there was corruption as, indeed, hon. Members have made general allegations in this House.

What I was asking hon. Members to do, is if they know of a particular case, like the one my friend there made allegations about here the other day, if he has information and he supplies it to the police, then, of course, the police will follow up the lead. That is all I am asking for.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think we will now go on to the next Order. In fact, we have already had one hour and 15 minutes of Question Time, which is more than usual. I know there is great interest in this question but I think we will leave it for another day.

Next Order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20

STATEMENT BY GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN— ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking to adjourn the House today to discuss a certain statement made by the so-called Government spokesman today in the papers. This statement alleges so many things against this House. I term it an abuse of the privilege of this House.

Therefore, Sir, under Standing Order 20, I wish to move the adjournment of this House to discuss this issue.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order!

Hon. Members know that before any Member takes up the question of Standing Order 20 he is normally advised to see Mr. Speaker, in his Chambers, to discuss the matter so that he is fully versed as to exactly what is the point of principle that the Member wants to take up.

Now, I appreciate, and it is a great pity, that the Speaker is not well today and, therefore, could not come to the office. Very likely he will be available tomorrow.

I think this matter would stand another day and I feel the hon. Member would be well advised to meet the Speaker tomorrow and discuss the matter more fully with him. I am not ruling it out of order. All I am saying is that this can be discussed with Mr. Speaker tomorrow and he will give a ruling when he comes to the office. If he does not come, then I will discuss it with him and come to a decision tomorrow. Therefore, I am inviting hon. Members to leave this matter over till tomorrow when it is still in order.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, while agreeing with you on your ruling, is it not also true that you can allow us to raise this matter on this question that the hon. Munyi has asked as a Motion of national importance in order that we may be told how far, on the highest peak, the corruption is now in the country, so that we do not have to wait until the Speaker is well while the matter is going completely out of our hands?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I am afraid this just shows the difficulties that hon. Members have in understanding exactly what is the point at issue here. Mr. Karungaru referred, I think, to Mr. Munyi's question which really wants to know how many charges and convictions there have been in court since the statement by the Attorney-General. Mr. Mbogoh, unfortunately, has not had any opportunity to discuss it with me, privately or otherwise, and therefore I am not fully aware of what exactly he has in mind. I have a vague idea of what is involved, but I am not quite sure and I think the right approach to this is to have a discussion with him to understand exactly what the principle is that he intends to tackle in this House and then to decide on the merits, or otherwise, of that particular principle.

As I say, I am certainly not ruling it out of order, but I feel that it is a matter on which a decision should not be given off the cuff; it is a matter that could stand another day and I do not myself see that raising it tomorrow will, in any way, kill the subject and it will still be very hot—if that is the point of view—and I would request you, hon. Members, not to follow it up today. You have made your point quite clear as the applause of hon. Members showed that there is quite a degree of support for Mr. Mbogoh's appeal to raise it as a point of order under Standing Order 20, but I do ask you to leave it until tomorrow and if Mr. Speaker so directs I will raise it.

If I may speak off the cuff, speaking for myself, again off the cuff, but without full discussion with Mr. Mbogoh, I hope people will have sympathy with it but we would like to discuss it fully.

POINTS OF ORDER

AUTHENTICITY OR OTHERWISE OF NEWSPAPER REPORT

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, whereas we would have liked to pursue that matter further, I would actually agree with you, but I have a different point of order.

Yesterday morning, Mr. Speaker, when I went to buy a newspaper I came across a publication by the Nation Press which actually indicated that the hon. Member, Mr. Murumbi, was going to resign. Going through that paper there was nothing which was mentioned, apart from that publication which I have in my hand. Would I be in order, Mr. Speaker, to ask the office of the Speaker to clarify this decision; whether the publication was actually true or not? This is the publication I came across and if you will allow me, Mr. Speaker, I will lay it on the Table. Could the House get clarification as to what the situation is and whether the publication was false or not?

(The hon. Member laid the paper on the Table)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid I am not able to vouch for the authenticity or otherwise of this particular statement in this particular leaflet; it may be sheer conjecture for all I know. I do not think it particularly arises on a point of order, and if Mr. Murumbi has resigned or is about to resign, I do not know, because this is a question for Mr. Murumbi to decide and not for this House. If he decides to resign, then it is for him to decide and not for anybody else. I am certainly not aware of his resignation and if he does resign, then I am sure hon. Members will be told about it.

If, on the other hand, the Nation has been publishing a false statement like this—if it is false, I do not know—then I am sure Mr. Murumbi can take it up with the Nation directly.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I rise on clarification. As far as the Government sources are concerned, Mr. Murumbi is a Member of Parliament in this House and he has not resigned.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, I am referring to this poster that Mr. Murumbi is to resign from being a Member of Parliament: I wonder what action you think we should take against the Nation, because it appears that it has misled the country, not only people in Nairobi, that Murumbi has resigned or going to resign, and he has not resigned? Is that not slander which is misleading us?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I said earlier on that I do not think the House has to take any steps against any paper as to its conjecture of the conduct of a particular Member or his intentions which turns out to be wrong. If any action is to be taken, it is for Mr. Murumbi to decide what action he will take. It is not for us. Any Press might forecast tomorrow that somebody else is thinking of resigning, but it is not for the House to take any action in that particular matter, it is for the person to sue the newspaper if he feels like taking any action. I think we are getting too many points of order.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my colleagues, I beg to move that this House has got confidence in the East African Standard with the way it has handled the public issue, especially on the expressions of Members of this House on matters of corruption.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order, I am afraid.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, while it was not only the Nation which actually—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are not talking of the Nation any more.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: May I know if the office of the Speaker has got any letter to that effect? *

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Not as far as I am aware.

Mr. Kebaso, I think this will be the last point of order as we do not want any more, unless it is something very special.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, this House is a national House and if it is a national House we must discuss national issues. The question of Mr. Murumbi is entirely individual and has got nothing to do with this House.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the gravity of this matter of corruption which the Attorney-General has termed as being topical, will the Chair direct that during the Presidential Speech this topic can be discussed?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think any hon. Member that is speaking in the course of the next debate is entitled to speak on any subject which is involved and is relevant, and that includes corruption or anything else. There is no reason why I should direct any hon. Member not to speak of it; he is entitled to speak on whatever he wants. As far as tomorrow is concerned, we will decide tomorrow.

DISCUSSIONS UNDER S.O. 20 AND PRIOR CONSULTATION WITH THE SPEAKER

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because I know that you want to go on and I do not want to hold you back, but just for the sake of the record: generally before anybody raises a matter under Standing Order No. 20, he should discuss it with the Speaker before, but I thought that this was just a convention rather than one of the requirements of Standing Orders. In addition to that, Sir, you have appealed to the House that this matter be left until tomorrow. According to our Standing Orders you, as Acting Speaker, have the powers to decide for the House to discuss this matter, so is this appeal outside Standing Orders?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You are perfectly right, Mr. Okelo-Odongo, I could have given permission to discuss this just now but I have said—and I will repeat again—that it is normal practice, and in my opinion a very good practice, for any hon. Member who wishes to raise any matter under Standing Order 20 to see Mr. Speaker and explain to him exactly what is the matter he proposes to discuss. I have not, unfortunately, listened to the radio comment yesterday, but I still do not know exactly what Mr. Mbogoh has in mind and I cannot find out by asking him question and answer in front of everybody else here; it would be much better to discuss this so I know exactly and then limit the debate to the particular problem involved. It is not that I cannot take a decision; I do not want to take a decision at such short notice without acquainting myself very fully of the facts. I have said that as, unfortunately, Mr. Mbogoh could not leave it to Mr. Speaker as he is not here, then it is very likely that he can meet him tomorrow and come to a decision. It is a very important matter—and hon. Members are aware of that—and an important matter such as this should not be treated lightly and a decision made about it off the cuff if a decision can be postponed for one day, and perhaps a correct decision will be arrived at by tomorrow. Therefore, I felt, and I still do, that it is quite correct to leave it until tomorrow.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, my point of order is this, now that you have tried time and again—

Mr. Ngala-Obok: No more points of order.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, I believe that we have only one Speaker, and not Mr. Ngala-Obok. Mr. Speaker, now that you have ruled time and again that this matter be left until tomorrow and in your wisdom you know very well how it is when somebody hides in the Government and speaks for the Government as a spokesman—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We do not want to get involved in the pros and cons of it.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, let me say what I have in mind. Now, because the House can resolve to debate this matter, despite the fact that you wanted the hon. Member to come and discuss with you, and further because the matter is a national issue, can the House be asked to resolve to debate it and treat it as a matter of national importance?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid that there can be no challenge to my ruling. I have made a ruling: I have asked the Members to wait until tomorrow, and there is no question that the House can pass a Motion just now. We can certainly wait until tomorrow and this is what we are going to do. We will now proceed and there will be no more points of order.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, all right.

Mr. Shikuku: In view of your ruling on no more points of order, can we go to the next Order now?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Quite right, I have ruled that.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that Members would have liked to have discussed what you have already ruled out—I am not repeating that—Mr. Speaker, am I in order to move that—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No more points of order please.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Not on that.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, no. I do not want my ruling to be challenged, and I think your preamble is quite clear as to what your intention is. It does not matter and so please sit down.

Next Order. Mr. Areman, you have still got five minutes to continue.

MOTION

THANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs on 21st May 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 27th May 1969) (Fifth Day)

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir—

An hon. Member: On a point of order!

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, no points of order, let me go on.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday I was speaking about His Excellency the President's Speech which he made in this House last week. I touched on the police, I touched on communications, I touched on roads and I touched on trade.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, about trade in Turkana District: the Turkana people are not being given enough money for their own shops or anything at all.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will you call the House to order because there is too much noise and we cannot hear the hon. Member.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I will. Order!

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the district itself does not have a hospital, and in the health centre we have there, we do not have a doctor. The clinical assistant who is there cannot even treat the people who are there who are sick. When we have a sick person we have to take him to the Rift Valley.

Mr. Speaker, we have difficulties of water. Water is very essential; water, very essential. We ought to have some more boreholes in the district. Oduya, you keep quiet. Water is very essential and since Mzee and all the people who are leading our Government here now were there, they know the difficulties of Turkana. They ought to have the energy of giving the Turkana water. Now, Mr. Speaker, we have the lake in Turkana District, Lake Rudolph. Now, we wanted to have a factory whereby some of our people who are now in famine relief camps could be taken there. When they have the factory there these people should be given some jobs there and they can work and feed themselves.

Mr. Speaker, if we have this sort of thing the famine relief in Turkana may be lessened a bit. We now have about 10,000 people being fed by the Government in Turkana. Some are taken to the lake, some are taken to (Inaudible.) and some are taken to Fergusons' Gulf which is about five miles from Lodwar. When we get this factory these people should be given jobs and then this thing should be considered in the next time His Excellency the President gives his speech.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to join my colleagues and say a few words on this Presidential Address. I feel that this was one of the best Presidential Addresses and we should discuss it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am going, first of all, to start with development which, of course, His Excellency the President stressed. There is a revised Development Plan up to 1974. I am wondering whether the other development which was planned by the Government since 1963 has been, first of all, implemented. I should say that most of the developments which were planned since 1963, after independence, have not been implemented at all. It was a surprise to me to see that there is this revised development every now and then, although most of this has not been implemented.

Mr. Speaker, I would first of all like to know—and I would also like to challenge—from the Government why most of their development plans have not been implemented before the new, revised one came out. There were so many who were put into the rural areas, particularly on the Members' constituencies and there was a need for water development, agriculture, etc., etc. However, most of these things have been omitted and not done. We see this new, revised development every now and then. To me I feel that this is quite unfair and I do not think those who planned and those who advised the President—and also those who planned the speech for the President—should have done so. We would like to see that when a plan has been planned that it has been implemented. I would say that I can remember the time when water development was planned and was supposed to be implemented in some parts of Machakos District, and to my surprise nothing was done at all. I would like to say in this one if there is any development, as we have been told now in the Presidential Address, we would like to see this fulfilled. I think there is something wrong somewhere in the planning Ministry, and I think there is something wrong somewhere in our Government machinery. First of all, when these plans are done the Ministers, Assistant Ministers and civil servants and Members of Parliament are supposed to be involved and see that these plans are fulfilled. To my surprise, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is only a few Ministers who have been out to accelerate the developments which have been started since 1964/1965/1966. They mostly have been sitting idle in their offices, and I say that there are so many Ministers who have not visited most of the districts in Kenya since they have been in office. This is one reason why development has not been accelerated as it should have been done. The same thing applies to the Assistant Ministers.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have heard people talking about corruption. Tribalism and corruption is definitely present in Kenya, and no one should deny this. If he does then he should come with a complete statement of denial, but we do not only want to see a statement made by the Government spokesman. Who is the Government spokesman? Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, today in the paper, as you are aware, there was a matter which was an insult to the Members of this House, and I am sure this is by the civil servants, who act as Government spokesmen and try to challenge the privileges of this House. I would tell them that if there is anyone who would like to be privileged as we are then he should resign from his position and go to the people to be elected and then he will be privileged to speak as we are doing. This is our right and I do not see why anyone should challenge it. We have every right to speak and we are to speak about whatever we think is not correct. There is nobody else supposed to speak because we are the only representatives of the people.

Tribalism and corruption are definitely present in Kenya and I still maintain, and support, my colleagues who have spoken about tribalism and about corruption, a judicial commission should be appointed to look into it, otherwise we will not be satisfied. I am sure the Members will seek the opinion of their constituents as I do. We would like the Government to look into this and I think the only solution is to have a judicial commission to go into these things and report to the country. I still maintain that there is corruption in the Civil Service, and there is tribalism in the public offices.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I now come to another point. During the course of the President's Speech, he mentioned something about the Members being parochial. Mr. Deputy Speaker, whoever drafts the speech for the President should know that Members are not to be challenged. How are we being parochial? We have not been. When you speak on your constituency, it does not mean that you are being parochial. We have every right to speak on national affairs and we also have the right to speak on the affairs of our constituency, even of the villages in our constituency. I still say there is someone who was misleading the President, particularly whoever drafted his speech. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I repeat that those who draft the speeches for the President should be very, very careful and find out the most important things but not to try and challenge the Members of this House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I thank the President for the appeal he made to the criminals to come out and I am glad to see that ten of them have responded. What I would like to say on this is that the security forces should not rest at all. They should continue until they are sure there are no more criminals hiding anywhere. They must not slacken off because of the President's appeal because they might think that there is now no need for them to carry on, but they should continue until they have stamped out all these criminals.

[Mr. Kioko]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as we said, our security forces have done very well and I would like to ask them to continue doing well until they have stamped out these criminals.

Another point I would like to mention, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is about education. I come first of all to the Peace Corps. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have these people who come from outside our country and who are sent to us as Peace Corps to come and work particularly in our secondary schools. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have proved that these people are useless. What we need, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is to have foreign aid in money so that we can employ our people who are loitering on the streets without employment.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, with these remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to make a few comments on the Speech of the President when he was opening this House.

First of all, it is now becoming very unfortunate that whenever the President comes to open Parliament after the recess, the language used is English. I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that we here in Kenya are Africans and I think the time has come that whenever Parliament is opened, whenever we sit in Parliament we must speak an African language. It is very shameful when guests are invited here, most of them from Europe, America, or Asia, when they come here they think they are coming to see an African Parliament being opened, and when the President of the State begins to speak they hear him saying in English "Mr. Speaker, Sir". This is very shameful and means we do not have a language in this country. We must have an African language even if it means Kikuyu or Luo. Whenever something is African then it is something dignified. This is very shameful, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I think in future when Parliament is being opened an African language must be spoken in this Chamber.

An hon. Member: What African language?

Mr. Odero-Sar: It could be, Luo, Kikuyu or anything else. Whenever something is African it is very dignified. It is no use in our country it looks as if we do not have a language in this country. This is very bad indeed, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

An hon. Member: What language do you want?

Mr. Odero-Sar: We can speak Luo if they like because Luo is very easy to pick up.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, during the President's Speech, I thought he was going to say something about the political federation of East Africa. This is one of the pledges which Kanu used to get votes to come to power in this country. We have our people in Uganda, Tanzania, and these people are from Kenya and during this time, Mr. Deputy Speaker, these people are being subjected to discrimination because they do not get jobs there. Those who were employed during the colonial time are now being told to come back to Kenya, but the President who signed the manifesto, signed the Kanu pledges that after the independence of this country, Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania would bring about a federation of East Africa. When he was speaking here he never mentioned anything concerning that at all.

It is no use coming here thinking of one's own benefit, just about the affairs of Kenya, and we are all Africans and we want Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania to be united as one East African country. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have been waiting for and the President of this country has never tried at any time to persuade the other leaders of Uganda and Tanzania to bring about the federation of East Africa. This is very shameful on his side and we want this to be done now.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we know there are boundaries between Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania but these were put there by the Colonial Government and are just imaginary boundaries. In Kenya, we have the Teso; some of them are in Kenya and others in Uganda. When you come to the Masai, you find there are Masai in Tanzania and others in Kenya. When we come to the Samia, just near my home, some Samia are in Uganda and some are here in Kenya. These people would like, if the federation comes about, these boundaries to die by themselves. These are things which the British Government brought here to this country. It is no use using these lines which the British just imagined and brought here to divide the East African people. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the President did not say anything about Kenya people living in Uganda or Tanzania, and this is one of the things why he was brought to power, and when he has power in Kenya he just thinks of little things in this country, but he does not care about the people living in Uganda and Tanzania. We want to be one united East African people to work together as we like. It is no use dividing the tribes.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, another point is that all Members who have spoken here have been telling the Kenya Government about corruption and all this kind of thing, but I must tell this House that unless this Government—when they speak of national unity, they should know that national unity is not a question of talking of mountains, fields and so on, land without people, the people living in this country are the tribes. We have different tribes and different communities here, and different races. The Kenya Government has been told by a lot of Members, both Kanu and KPU, that when people are being promoted in the Civil Service, if a Masai is not there, something is wrong somewhere. We would like all tribes in this country to be promoted in the army. The army we have today is just composed of Wakamba and Wakikuyu. In Ugenya, in my constituency, there have been many captains and other officials in the army, very young intelligent people, who have been given notice and they have been asked to resign and they have been told that this is for public security. They have been told to go home and stay there and some of them have been given pensions even before they have reached the age when they should be given pensions. These people are Kenyans and if they are not then the Government should tell us why if someone is a Luo in the army he should go home and stay there, and the Kenya Government should tell us where these people should stay. If they are not Kenyans, then they can be told to go to Tanzania or Uganda. It is no use chasing people from their jobs and telling them to go home. At home, they have nothing to do because they are young and they do not have any business there. They are fit to serve this country. I have seen this and I can even substantiate this that there are people who have been chased away from their jobs and are doing nothing at home.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the President was talking of Kenya being a democratic country. Where is that democracy? I can speak here but I cannot speak in Ugenya in my constituency. I cannot speak and I am a Kenyan. I cannot speak to my people publicly. All the Ministers from Nairobi come to Ugenya and speak but I have to keep silent. In Nakuru, there are Members of Parliament from Kanu, and not from KPU, and they are not allowed to speak to their constituents, and when the President comes here he says there is democracy. We all know there is no democracy here. We must have freedom to speak. Today even civil servants, people like the provincial commissioners, the district commissioners and all the people under them, cannot say anything concerning this country because if they say something is wrong, then that is enough for them to leave the job. You are sacked because you have said something against the Kenya Government. Is this what the President was talking about here as democracy? We are told that he was one day learning in England, and Russia and so on, and is that the democracy he has brought here to Kenya? People are now afraid of saying anything, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, because the time is short, it is no use committing civil servants to involving themselves in politics.

Mr. ole Lemein: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

I thank the President for his speech on the 20th of this month and I would like to raise some points in connexion with the speech. When we were given the Presidential Address, it was supposed to cover the whole of Kenya, but there are some districts of Kenya which were neglected by the British colonial régime and these were not covered properly. It is six years since we achieved our independence and even now those areas which had not been developed are still backward.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, on the side of education, still those districts like Narok, Kajiado, Samburu, Marsabit and other pastoral areas need more education. Formerly, during the colonial régime, we had boarding schools, primary boarding schools, for the people who were living far from the schools. They could send their children to boarding schools to be educated there. Since we attained our independence, those boarding schools have been closed down and have now become day schools, and many of the children who should have gone to the primary boarding schools have missed their education. People who are living far from the boarding schools missed their education. So we would ask the Government, if it is possible, to have more boarding schools for those pastoral tribes, and those neglected areas so that their children can be educated in boarding schools. Even civil servants who used to be transferred from one place to another, they could send their children to boarding schools to be educated there.

We know that during that time we had some primary European schools, or Asian schools, and even now some primary schools are still reserved for Europeans and Asians, and other rich Africans. Although it is not officially written as being reserved for the Europeans, but because of the high school fees, Sh. 2,000 or Sh. 3,000 nobody can afford to pay that amount in those schools. Some Africans cannot afford to send their children there, so they are reserved for the rich people, even some Africans, so we do not like to see some schools reserved for rich people. We would like all the schools to be equal in Kenya. We know of some secondary schools, Nairobi School, Lenana School, Eldoret Primary School, we know in all those schools the students are paying a great deal of money, more than Sh. 3,000 per year which most of us cannot afford to pay. Those schools should be equal with other secondary schools in Kenya.

We thank our Government for giving Forms V and VI free education, and even some children are admitted to those schools where the fees are very high, and the Government used to help their parents to pay a quarter or half of the boarding fees which are charged by those schools. Mr Deputy Speaker, I think the time has come for our Government to take over every year some of the Harambee secondary schools or some of the primary schools which have been started by the people who want to educate our children who want places for admission in secondary schools. If the Government can arrange from every district, from every town to put up some of the schools which will be taken over by the Government this would help to educate our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the Presidential Address, the revised Development Plan 1969/74 shows that the Government has achieved a lot in some places, but we still need more to be done. We thank the Government for what it has done in Narok District, for giving us Government tractors for the cultivation of wheat and also in Mara, Kajiado and other districts in Kenya. But although we are given these tractors, some of the expatriate officers working there are not helping the people enough as we want them to. Sometimes they used to say that they had no money to cultivate certain locations, so we waited about three months, four months, until the rainy season had gone. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Government has offered these lands for the cultivation of wheat which we are very pleased about, and thank them for what they have done, then they should send good officers who know the difficulties of the people, or who are not coming there just to waste their time saying that we wait until we receive the money from the districts.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have also some people who have received money for wheat in those areas owned by their own races and want to get loans from the Agricultural Finance Corporation, because they have their own title-deeds. Sometimes they are told that they have no right to buy tractors because they have no title-deeds and the Government will not give them loans. We ask the Government not to ask for title-deeds, because if a person has wheat, it belongs to him, that area which he is going to cultivate does not belong to anyone else, it belongs to him, so there is no need to ask him to give his title-deed, and the Government should give him a tractor and deduct that money from the Kenya Farmers' Association for the loan that he took from the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point which I am going to mention is about demarcation and consolidation of land. We thank the Government because, for six years, we have been approaching it asking them to send officers for the consolidation and demarcation of land, especially to my district, Narok. Mr. Speaker, Sir, nobody has been given a loan because our people have no title-deeds for ranching schemes either individually or in groups. This time although we have some land consolidation officers, we want more of them, because one person cannot cover the whole district and cannot collect fees needed in that district. We thank the Government for what they have done for the people of Kajiado and Taita districts who have been given loans from the Agricultural Finance Corporation and that is also to be done in Narok and other districts. More land consolidation officers should be sent so that they can visit every district to help the people. This is because unless our people have title-deeds, they cannot obtain loans from the Government, and their applications are rejected all the time. Although, when they send their applications they enclose Sh. 250 and those applications were not approved, their money is not refunded. This matter should be looked into by the Government. If the applications of Mr. X and Mr. Y are not approved, the money should be sent back to them.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know also some missionaries have started their dispensaries in some districts in the remote areas and we thank them for what they have done and would encourage them to come to these remote areas and help the people. We know about the Flying Doctor Unit which operates in most areas where vehicles cannot pass, and we want the Government to help those missionaries and the Flying Doctor Unit so that they will feel encouraged to help the people more in those remote areas.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am pleased that I have an opportunity to speak on this debate which is very important. The President was able to give us a guidance on various problems that are facing our country and this is the time that we should elaborate on some of the points that we feel are very urgent and draw the attention of the Government to those points.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start with the question of primary elections. His Excellency the President in his speech mentioned, and as everybody knows, he had already made an announcement on the 12th of December last year on the question of primary elections. This is what the country has been waiting for, and I would like to congratulate His Excellency the President for taking this step. I would like to warn any pressure group that is trying to work against the primary election because this kind of pressure group will be working against democracy itself. So, I think we should be straightforward and honest, and we must allow our people the right to choose their own representatives, and in fact, those who will be elected should be proud, because they will be elected on the mandate of the people and will not be ashamed of calling themselves Parliamentarians. But if they are elected by a small group, they cannot claim to be representatives of the people. I have consulted my constituency on this question, and I want to say with the authority of my people, that they want primary elections.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other point that I want to dwell upon is rural development. This is also a very important aspect of our country's development. Now without rural development our society will remain stagnant, so we must do something about it. It is not enough to develop our towns. We see how Nairobi is expanding with big buildings and all sorts of things, but Nairobi is not Kenya, Kisumu is not Kenya, Nakuru is not Kenya nor is Mombasa Kenya. Kenya has rural areas and the President was right when he said that emphasis will be laid on rural development. It is not enough for the President to make statements; it is up to the Minister concerned to the various departments concerned to take action to see that rural development actually takes place. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my area for instance, and I think this also affects many parts of the country, a good water supply is very important for any development. I would ask the Ministry of Agriculture which is in charge of the water supply department to look into the question of supplying water to areas which are dry like Kalai, Ndeiya, Masai areas, North Eastern Province and other places. These areas must be given the priority, because they have no water and as you know without water, there is no development.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is about roads used by co-operative officers who go to co-operative societies to check accounts books periodically. These officers will have to meet the problem of persons stealing money from the co-operative societies. At present, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a lot of money has been stolen especially from the Kisii Co-operative Society. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kisii Co-operative Society is really suffering from this, and no action has been taken by the Minister for Co-operatives, to bring these people to check the account books. I thought that this was a very serious matter and the Minister for Co-operatives should take this matter up and rectify things with the co-operative society.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, before my time is up, is about roads. Roads are also very important for rural development; but if you look in many parts of the country, the roads are very poor. The result is that people cannot transport their goods easily, especially during the rainy season. I therefore would like to ask Government to take a serious view on road development in the rural areas.

At the moment, most of these roads in rural areas are left to county councils to develop and maintain. I think that our county councils are not in a position to develop these roads to the standard required by our people, because most of these county councils have no money; so they cannot do it. It is therefore, not good for a Minister to tell us that it is the responsibility of county councils to build roads, when he knows very well that county councils have no money. If Government wants the councils to build these roads, they should give bigger grants to the county councils in order to enable them to do that; or else the Ministry concerned should take the responsibility of some of these roads and develop them. That is one of the ways that our roads will be developed.

The other problem facing the people who live in rural areas is the question of hospitals and dispensaries. There are not enough of these in the country. The Minister for Health must look into this question. Even the existing hospitals and dispensaries do not have enough trained personnel and drugs. There was a Question here this afternoon about some dispensaries which have not enough drugs. This is not the only case. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know many cases of this nature in Kiambu, where dispensaries did not have sufficient drugs and when some sick people went there to be treated, they had to return without treatment, as there were no drugs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have to speak quickly because my time is short. The thing which I would like to draw the attention of Government to is the question of commercial banks. I have spoken about the matter before, but I would like to know whether the Ministry of Commerce has really examined the question of how these banks grant loans. Our people who invest money in these banks are not benefiting from these banks. When an African goes to a commercial bank for a loan so that he can develop some business or buy something, he is not handled as a human being. The facility of obtaining loans is not given to Africans. Only a few people here and there get them, but the majority of our people get no benefit from these commercial banks. I would like the Ministry of Commerce to look into this question, because in any country, commercial banks are very important; they help countries to develop. If they confine their facilities to only a few people like Asians and Europeans, when will the African develop? This is the time when the African needs their help.

I would also like to talk a little about hire purchase companies. The financial companies which give loans to people to buy cars and so on do not observe the Act which we passed in this House. This is so because I know of some cases where cars have been taken away from people by commercial firms on the grounds that the people have failed to pay a very small part of their instalment. For example, there was a man who had purchased a car worth Sh. 30,000. He paid Sh. 26,000 and the balance was only Sh. 4,000. However, because he failed to pay one instalment, one of these financial companies went to take away this car. This is not in accordance with the Bill that was passed in this House. When we pass a law, there should be somebody to see that it is implemented and to see that these companies are not being too harsh on our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would now like to talk about private educational institutions. There are a number of them in our country, but I do not think that the Ministry of Education has looked into them. These private educational institutions charge their students a great sum of money yet they do not always give the proper education that is required. Our people cannot afford to pay Sh. 1,700 a year.

An hon. Member: A term.

Mr. Gatuguta: Yes, some charge Sh. 1,700 a term. The Ministry of Education must go into this so that they may be told to lower the fees to the standard of our schools, or else the Government must subsidize them; otherwise they will deny the opportunity to our people to go to these schools. This system, I submit, is full of colonialism and it must go. This is a colonial type of arrangement which must be done away with from now onwards.

I do not want to conclude my speech Mr. Speaker, without referring to what is happening in Rhodesia. I think it right to appeal to hon. Members here, when they talk, to remember that some of our brothers are still under the colonial yoke. We are happy here in Kenya because we are free to talk in this House and discuss what we want. On the contrary, our brothers in Rhodesia are still subjected to criminal activities by the minority régime there, who have announced recently that Rhodesia is going to be a republic. We must be concerned because our President has said many times that Kenya will not feel completely free until all the other African people are also free. So I would like this House to condemn, in most honest terms, the attitude of the Smith régime of trying to suppress the African people there indefinitely without giving them their rights. I think all hon. Members will join me in this matter.

I would also like to appeal to all the African countries not only to go on talking and condemning, but the time has come when the African nations must take action against the Smith régime. Why should we allow a minority régime to remain in Africa dominating our own brothers and our own people? Something must be done about it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like hon. Members to express their deep feelings about this question because our brothers and sisters in the colonial territories are suffering and they must be shown that we are with them morally and physically in their struggle for justice and democracy.

Mr. Kanani: Thank you very much Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity so that I may also accord my thanks to the President for his Presidential Address.

Like my colleagues. I would also like to talk about some points which I have studied in that address. The President, Mr. Speaker, Sir, emphasized the 1969/74 economic projects. As I come from Busia District, I hope that in the new plans something will be done for that district and especially in my constituency, Samia, because from the time of independence we have not had any projects—no industries being started in the district. I hope that the definite economic planning projects will not leave out our people without building them some industries. I know that during the general elections in 1963, there were promises that in Samia or Busia District, there would be a textile industry, but we have not seen anything like that established up to now. There were rumours that we would have a cassava starch factory; it would have benefited our people. At present, we are trying to form co-operative societies for cotton and fish. We would like to have a fish industry or a factory to manufacture fishing nets. This would have probably been situated at Kisumu or Sio Port at Lake Victoria where there are fishermen. In this new economic plan, we hope that Government will try to prospect the iron ore in Samia Hills. We have a lot of it and this will be a very good investment if Government could prospect and find out how much iron ore exists in this land.

[Mr. Kanani]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I should also accord my thanks to the Ministry of Lands and Settlement for bringing in land consolidation and registration. Without having our land consolidated and obtaining title deeds for our plots, our people cannot benefit by borrowing money to develop our land. This is a very good thing the Ministry is doing.

Mr. Odero-Sar: A point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Member in order to talk directly to Members in his speech or what is he talking about?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is not in order, but I do not think he is doing so. He is looking at those Members, but I think he is directing his speech to the Chair.

Mr. Kanani: Thank you, Sir. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like the Minister for Lands and Settlement to step up this registration in Busia District. Our people are very pleased with the scheme of registering the land and they hope that the Government is going to be more serious. Our own people, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, may not be interested in owning shops in the River Road, but they would like some loans to be given them so that they may develop or improve their trade in the rural areas. This, they cannot do unless they can borrow money. They either borrow money from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation or from the banks if they have been given their land title-deeds.

I was interested in the President's Speech or Address when he made emphasis on ranching; when he said that they were going to step up ranching in Taita and Kajiado, and I hope this scheme could be referred or implemented in our area because there has been a lot of bush clearing in my constituency and in Bunyara, where the hon. Mr. Osogo comes from, vast lands have been cleared of bush, and a lot of tsetse flies been driven out. I think that if such a scheme is brought in it will be very welcome.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we in the Busia area have no hospital at all. We have only just began to build a hospital as we live very far away from the nearest hospital which is at Bungoma, 60 miles away. In my area, only a small mission hospital called Nangina is existing, and since the Government has decided to withdraw its aid, this hospital is going to have to close down shortly. I would appeal to the Ministry of Health to do something to contact the Ministry of Finance and aid this hospital, and also aid the project of the health centre and sub-clinic; which our people built by their own efforts, because the one which was opened about a year and a half ago by the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services, is still empty. There is no medicine and something must be done because our people have no other place where they can get treatment and medical help which is very necessary for our people. I, therefore, appeal to our Government, especially the Ministry of Health and Local Government, to do something so that these self-help projects already completed, are made use of, because by that they are encouraging people to work harder because they are being helped through their own efforts. If however they make a project complete like a health centre or a dispensary and there is no medicine, people do not like that happening and do not try to start any other self-help projects.

I also, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, would like to say something on primary education. Seven years' education I think is not very helpful to our people. This is why you find a lot of unemployment, because some girls and boys, after leaving school at the age of 12 and 13 years, are not able to do anything useful. I would ask, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Ministry of Education to consider this point and probably increase the period of primary education from seven years to nine years. So that when these youngsters leave school, they have grown up and probably can do something useful; and by doing two more years, probably they can learn a trade such as agriculture, carpentry, masonry, tailoring or domestic science if they are girls; something useful that could help them when they go to a high school or any other place.

With regard to education, you will see even the city is full of young men who have nothing to do although they have seven years' education. They are flocking to the city looking for jobs which they cannot get anywhere else. What do you think they are going to do? They will be tempted to steal; they will become a menace to society; they will have no shirts to wear; and the shoes which they brought from their homes will be worn out. They must look in the shops for new ones; where are they going to get them? Now, we are very much concerned with our young people, so something should be done to increase the period of primary education so that, when they leave school, they are mature and can do something useful. Agriculture, I suggest, should be included in their curriculum, because it is of no use going back to the land when you have no knowledge of what you are going to do on the land.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Presidential Address.

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. I also beg to comment on the Presidential Speech.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, first I want to say something about rural water which many other Members have spoken about here, but this is particularly concerning our area. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in the President's Speech, I never saw a paragraph concerning rural water development and it is a very important thing. We cannot expect people in the rural areas to buy very high grade cattle, or to invest any money they may have borrowed from the commercial banks, the Agricultural Finance Corporation or any other person when they cannot get water. Water is a part of civilization and it should be there. Water is part of civilization, and a very important one. I want the Government to bring in a very definite policy concerning this water scheme.

Another thing is about agricultural loans. We hear that the title-deeds have been issued in other places, such as Kiambu, Embu, and so on. In the districts like Kericho, where people consolidated their land a long time ago, in the 1940s, you find there are no officers registering this land. This is a discrepancy which the Ministry of Lands and Settlement should look into. We have very good land, we have enough land to offer as security to the banks when we apply for loans but no registration has been carried out. This is a neglect of that particular district by the Ministry of Lands and Settlement. I think this Ministry should send some officers to all corners of Kenya, not only to particular places in Kenya. They should send some officers to Kericho so that registration of land can be effected in this place.

There is another problem in the same district, and this is the question of stock thieves. I am told there are track police. It is their duty to follow the stock thieves. These track police are posted in the scheduled areas such as Naivasha, Gilgil, Nakuru, but none of them are posted to areas like Sotik, Narok and such other places where there are so many stock thieves who steal cattle and run away.

I do not see how this Government is helping the poor man—

QUORUM

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Sir, I do not think we have a quorum.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Kimunai arap Soi. But, first, I have a request to make.

Hon. Members, before Mr. arap Soi continues, I would like to say that I have asked Mr. Mbiti Mati if he would kindly take over the Chair for a little while as Acting Deputy Speaker. I would be grateful if this was agreed to, to enable me to leave the House for a little while to keep an appointment.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati) took the Chair]

Mr. Kimunai arap Soi: Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I was speaking of the track police on the borders. I said that more police, whose duty it is to follow cattle thieves, should be posted along the borders.

The public has suggested that communal punishment, when cattle are stolen, should be imposed. This is a genuine proposal by the people in the rural areas.

When I read the speech again I do not see a proper policy concerning education. We find that there are so many pupils leaving Standard VII in the country. They leave Standard VII and are unable to join secondary schools, not because they are not bright enough to do so but because there are no secondary schools to which they can go. I would have thought that the President would have announced that all Harambee secondary schools will be taken over by the Government. This would have helped our people, who are very highly taxed at the moment. The people fail to run the Harambee secondary schools simply because the taxes are high; these Harambee secondary schools are not paid for by the Government. In some cases you find that so many pupils pass their examinations and they are discriminated against—like the pupils of Kericho District. There are those pupils from Kericho District who pass in the Rift Valley Province and then the pass marks are raised because the children there are brighter than those of other districts so that they can then send in some pupils from other districts. This is a very serious offence which the Ministry of Education has committed. They have discriminated against our pupils and I think they should now take over many secondary schools in order to accommodate these pupils.

Another thing is about the Harambee collections. The Government Harambee collection is carried out by the chiefs, district commissioners and many other officials. This prevents people in the rural areas from collecting Harambee money for dispensaries, Harambee schools and so on. In some places district commissioners issue orders to the chiefs not to allow people to collect Harambee money because collection for the Army Memorial Hospital is going on. I think this is wrong. The collection for the Army Memorial Hospital should only be made in Nairobi and the rural areas should be left to collect money for their own projects. This is now taking too much money from the rural areas.

I come now to the question of the settlement evictions. In the settlement schemes so many people are being evicted. This is because of the failure of the Ministry in not seeing that the interest on the loans given to the farmers is not too high. An interest of 6½ per cent is very high for a small farmer to meet. Now, this interest accrues from year to year and thus the settler is prevented from repaying the loan. What the settlement people do is simply to rush in and evict the tenants. They evict families and treat them in any way they like. I think the Ministry should look into this, and should not be ready to evict but instead should listen to the problems of the farmers.

The President should also have given orders to private firms in Nairobi. There are so many people—as many as other Members have said—looking for jobs, for minor employment in Nairobi. If the manager of a firm is, say, a Kikuyu or a Luo, what he does is to employ people of his own tribe. If he is a Kalenjin, then he employs Kalenjin. This is a very serious thing which is happening, and it has been carried on for some time now in Nairobi. I feel the Government should look into this issue so that the people looking for jobs can be employed. The Ministry of Labour has left people at the mercy of these unscrupulous managers.

Then there is the issue of the Transport Licensing Board. So many districts are not given licences to operate lorries. For example, if you look at Kericho District, you find that people from Nairobi are given transport licences to trade in the rural areas. Other people from this particular area in question have bought lorries but none of them has been given a licence to come right up to Nairobi. To appeal in the courts costs a lot of money. These people have spent their money buying lorries and they do not have enough money to appeal. I think the Chairman of this board and the Minister should look into the case I have just mentioned.

Another thing is the discrimination in the Administration. Many people are dissatisfied. Those who are district officers have been holding these posts for more than ten years and they have had no further promotion, but people who have just been employed from schools have been given promotion. I think this discrimination is a clear thing and the Ministry should look into it.

With these few remarks, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I beg to reserve my support.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kase): Sir, I would like to be very brief. First of all I would like to thank many Members and Government officers who have assisted in trying to give information to our Ministry in our efforts to revise the 1969/74 Development Plan. Those who have taken part, I wish to assure them that their ideas are not wasted. We will try our best to accommodate whatever they have tried to put in.

However, what must not happen is that we should not expect that all that was said by each of us will be put into this booklet which will be published in the next financial year.

Something else which I would like to appeal to all hon. Members here and the public at large is this. It is in relation to the census to be carried out in August. I have received information that in certain parts of the country, when officers have gone to try and practise for the August census, some people have refused to give information. This will make the work of these officers more difficult when we come to the time of the actual census. Therefore, those who are approached in the mornings, evenings or even in the afternoons, should try to give all the necessary information required to be put on the papers we have. Thus when it comes to the month of August, the officers who will be dealing with this exercise will find it can be done with great ease.

Sir, these forms contain so much information, such as facts relating to educational qualification, marriage and so on. I am surprised to hear that when certain persons have been approached to tell the number of wives they have, if they have three or five, they decline to give the number of their wives. They tend to hide this information. I am trying to say that if I am approached by the census officer I will tell how many wives I have, be they two, three, four or five in number. I will not be ashamed to give this information. So I am asking the hon. Members, when they get to their constituencies, to tell the people there that they do give the necessary information so that our Ministry will be well informed in order that the August census will run smoothly.

I do not want to be carried away by the Member for Embakasi. I think he is a bit too noisy at times, perhaps because of the planes that land at Embakasi Airport.

[The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

The President touched on a very important matter. In any developing country, every person— The President has repeated time and again this question of unity. I think this is very important. Many of us who would like to assist the President must ensure that we ourselves, in our hearts, are truly thinking of the word “unity” in its true sense. Any general who would like to win a war must see to it that his lieutenants are solidly united behind him. If his lieutenants are divided, then the general is helpless and may not win the war.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, it is very important that when all of us want to defeat this disunity that all of us should work together and achieve that goal. I am not saying that we are not united, but sentiments within the countryside have shown that some of us are not really sincere in this exercise and it is high time that we really think of ourselves either as a party, or as a Government, or as Members of Parliament, Assistant Ministers or Ministers, or in the Civil Service. Unity does not come in isolation; it comes through people working together. It will be hopeless if I go to my own district, which has three Members of Parliament, and I begin to backbite one Member of Parliament and I, on the other hand, would like to assist someone else so that we co-operate. I think this is a useless exercise.

Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, when the President appeals to us for unity, we must really take it seriously or just keep quiet about it. When we appeal to our voters, to the public, that we should be united, are we, ourselves, trying to be truthful about it, or are we trying to cheat them in public?

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, unity is very important, and even if I want to get to the top I should not try in my own little place, wherever I will be, to use my own little capabilities to destroy others without following the normal course. This is the beginning of destroying that unity which the President has called for, and I think many of us who have heard of it, and who know what is happening, should try and think if we are helping our own country. I would appeal to my colleagues. I was very ashamed the other day when two Members from the Coast Province condemned the disunity in the Coast Province that is not bringing fast development. I would appeal to the Members in these particular areas—not only the Coast Province—because the trouble is everywhere, and I would appeal to them to come back to their senses and know that quarrels do not help anybody. If we want to be leaders in this House, the honourable people in the countryside know whom they are going to elect in the next election. Therefore, it does not matter if we try, today, to make ourselves good or bad; they have already decided. The masses cannot be fooled that because I am trying to quarrel with my friend Samuel Omari, then I am good; they know whom they want between us two and I do not think that our quarrelling will assist either of us to get where we want.

Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I would appeal earnestly to everybody and to all of us who would like to get ahead to try and find out what is the cause of all this and whether we cannot sit together and discuss it.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, finally, I would like to thank the Government—

An hon. Member: Why do you not talk about Americans?

Mr. Kase: Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I believe that one does not need my comment. If somebody accuses somebody of being pro-American or pro-British—what is he, himself? Let him answer that question himself because I do not need to answer it.

Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, all I say is that I would like to thank the Government for trying their best during the last flood which we had in the Tana River District; they have tried their best to cool it down and I must thank them further for having granted us a secondary school last year, and they are trying to grant us another one next year. I believe this is working in the line where the Government has said that it shall go for the rural development. I think we are all trying our best and we should also, as Members, try our best to help the Government where they think they need help.

With these few remarks, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Tuva: Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, to begin with I would like to thank the President for delivering his first-class speech on the State Opening of the Parliament. The speech was short in that the President forgot to mention the Malindi Secondary School which was opened a few days' ago by the Minister for Education. This was an achievement by the Government in fulfilling its promises to the people of Malindi.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to speak, at this juncture, on the land policy. The President, in his speech, mentioned about issuing title-deeds to African land owners. These title-deeds will help them, in turn, when they present them to the banks so as to get some loans. I would like to say that although the President said these good words, I very much wonder how the issue of title-deeds is going to help the people in the former coastal strip, because in that area all the land has already been claimed by Arab land owners. I feel that during his speech the President should have said how this Government is going to eliminate feudalism. It was only a few weeks' ago when we read in the Press that in Uganda feudalism has been wiped out. It was a few years' ago when we heard that this sort of way of life has been wiped out in Tanzania, and it is only in Kenya, in the coastal strip, where feudalism is still very, very strong. It is high time that the Government saw to it that this sort of way of life is got rid of.

Mr. Speaker, during the last speech by Mzee, at the opening of the last session, he mentioned about the opening of marine national parks in some parts of Malindi. The marine national parks are in operation at the moment; but they are not to the advantage of the fishermen, neither are these marine national parks an advantage to the local people. The marine national parks were started to help only the tourists who come to this area to see the coral gardens for which they pay some money to the national parks and this money is brought to the common bag in Nairobi, in the Treasury, and then the money is used somewhere else. There is no benefit at all that is derived from the national parks. In fact, most of the fishermen had to leave Malindi and go either to Mtwapa or Kilifi and most of them have gone back to Lamu. You will find that the fishing village of Watamu has only one fisherman left. This is also a big blow to the tourist industry because you find that tourists who used to walk about on the beach picking up shells and dried pieces of wood and some weeds cannot at the moment do that any more because of the rules imposed by the Board of Trustees of the National Parks; the tourists have no freedom any more on the beaches.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I should like to bring this to the notice of the Ministry of Tourism.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to point out to the Government that during this time that we have had Uhuru, Parliament has never been consulted before the Government committed this country to its foreign policy. I personally do not agree with the Government's foreign policy. So many times so many people disagree with the Government as far as its foreign policy is concerned. One example, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I would like to mention is the Government's attitude towards the African sufferers in the Southern Sudan. Africans in the Southern Sudan are being tortured by Arab people, but the Government is keeping quiet. There is only one African Government which has come out openly to condemn such bad deeds, and that is Malawi. I wish the Kenya Government issued a statement to condemn this malpractice by the Arabs against the southern Sudanese.

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to condemn a friendly country in this House?

The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati): No, it is not in order for Mr. Tuva to criticize a friendly government unless he does so by a substantive motion.

Mr. Tuva: Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I am sorry, I thought I was condemning the practice, not the country. I was not condemning Sudan as such, I was trying to condemn the malpractice which is going on there.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like Kenya to come out openly to say or to support the Biafran cause. Before the Government makes a decision, I feel that we Parliamentarians should be consulted. Since I was a teacher, I used to teach history to primary school children about the Republic of Biafra, and this is in books, and because of what is going on there at the moment, I have strong feelings that this should be brought to the House by the Government so that we make a decision as to whether to support this Biafran cause or not, instead of just a few people in the Cabinet making this decision.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, many civil servants have resigned because of frustration in the Civil Service. A lot has been said about tribalism and nepotism and I am not going to dwell on this, but I will point out a few examples. When a senior Government officer is given the opportunity of employing the lower salary strata people; normally, if this man is in Kisumu as provincial officer—even if he wants to employ a driver or an office boy—he sends for an office-boy or driver from his own province or tribe. This is going on and it has got to be stopped. A lot has been spoken about tribalism and therefore I am not going to dwell on that.

Many warnings have been issued by the Vice-President and the Attorney-General, and I agree with them entirely, about careless drivers. The Government, however, is doing very little. There is a Bill coming soon on traffic improvements, but I feel that that is not enough. There should be police patrols along these major roads, particularly at night, between Nairobi and Mombasa, Nairobi and Nakuru and Kisumu, Nairobi and Nyeri; you find that it is along these roads that accidents normally take place, particularly at night. This is because of carelessness or drunkenness and unless there are patrols along these roads at night it will be hard to detect accidents. You find that when these drivers reach mid-way between Nairobi and Mombasa—Mtito-Andei—there is a lot of this green stuff from Meru called Mairungi which is eaten; I do not know what for, but I believe it is to keep the drivers awake. You hear these drivers talking about how one tortured another one on the road by not dipping his lights or applying extra spot-lights. I have been a victim of this many times. Sometimes a lorry comes along without dipping its lights and sometimes flooding the windscreen with extra spot-lights, and this sometimes is the cause of somebody leaving the road, crashing on the side of the road, or running into the lorry. I have escaped this very many times myself.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, added to that, I should also suggest that lorries should not be parked on the roads at all. Roads have been badly constructed in that when it rains, these heavy lorries can never leave the tarmac because if they leave the tarmac they sink. Most of these drivers, particularly in the rainy season, do not want to leave the main roads. I suggest, in this case, these lorries should have special lights to show that they are petrol tankers and when parked they should have special lights so that the car drivers can tell whether the lorry parked has a trailer or not.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, yesterday over the radio and the television, and today in the Press, the Government came out openly to oppose speeches made by Members here who spoke on corruption and tribalism. I feel it is very unfair for the Government to do such a thing because they have their time here to speak, or to oppose what the Members say. If they use a Government—

Thank you very much, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker.

[The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to join my colleagues in thanking the President of the Republic of Kenya for his speech which he gave at the State Opening. The speech is the shortest of all the speeches he has given in this House. It has some facts which we must follow and try to expand on.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, some Members have spoken very clearly in this House condemning corruption in the Civil Service, tribalism and nepotism. These elements exist everywhere in this country. They are being promoted by certain elements which can be found in this country. Mr. Deputy Speaker, to give you an example, in my district of Kakamega, which is also the headquarters of the Western Province, you find the district commissioner is a Kikuyu. You find the district officer I is a Kikuyu. A provincial agricultural officer is a Kikuyu. A trade officer is a Kikuyu. A community development officer is a Kikuyu, and the superintendent of police is a Kikuyu. I think we assume these are enough—

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker,—

Mr. Tsalwa: What do you want?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think he wants to give way.

Mr. Tsalwa: No, I am not going to give way because I am well informed as a retired teacher, and a person who is never shaken. I will speak my mind. So keep quiet Mr. hon. Minister.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this gives a very bad impression to the people of the Republic, not only in accordance with the expressions made in this House by those hon. Members who condemned completely the existence of corruption, tribalism and nepotism in this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when we complain about the presence of one tribe in one place, this is what we want the Government to do. We would like to see a Jaluio here as a district commissioner, an Abaluhya as a district officer I, a Mkamba as a provincial agricultural officer and so forth. A Meru and even a person from the North-Eastern Province. We would then have a mixture of these people in order to have a smooth running of the Government of this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, in the countryside when you speak of the smooth running of the Government of this country, people say, and this is true, that this is a “Kikuyu Government”. What we are trying to do is to educate our friends and our Government that we should like to see a mixture of tribes. I am very glad to make this point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when the Minister for Foreign Affairs and the person responsible for the civil servants in this country is present. I think he will bring this to the notice of the Cabinet when it meets the next time.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the President of the Republic made it very clear in his speech that we, as Members of Parliament, should not attack the Government every now and then. But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was made known to us in this House that opposition within a party is necessary, and the Government is attacked and criticized when it failed to implement a pledge which it made probably during the last General Election and so forth. Many resolutions have been passed in this House and none of them have been implemented and yet, the Government pays for the amount of time we sit in this House discussing these things, the debates and Motions. I think it is a sheer waste of public money for us to be paid for things we discuss in this House and which are never implemented. This goes as far as weakening Kanu, the ruling party.

[Mr. Tsalwa]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to touch on another item. The President made it very clear in his speech that any lawful and recognized political party should be allowed to participate in the future primary and general elections. If it is a recognized political party it should be given the chance of organizing rallies where it can sell out its policy. This is why KPU has gained from us, because the public would like to choose and decide which party to follow. You know very well when you keep a box tied, and you tell your children not to open, they will be very anxious to open it; and as soon as you go out they will open it, and this is what is happening with wananchi.

I would like to see more than four political parties here, and these should be given chances to sell out their policies

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am seeking your guidance because several times hon. Mr. Tsalwa has always preferred to speak on the KPU bench. Following his speech, are we to understand that he is a sympathizer of the KPU?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Omar, you know that is not a point of order. Do not raise it the next time. A point of order is quite a serious business. This is not the type of thing to be raised as a point of order.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Deputy Speaker, these are some of the Members of this House who are afraid to go for a General Election because they fear they will not be returned. They do not have faith in themselves.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would now like to touch on another point which the President mentioned in his speech, and this is in connexion with the forthcoming census. You know we have Abaluhya in the Nyanza Province, and they are between 60,000 and 100,000 people. These people are always called Luo by the Luo clans and, therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am appealing to the popularly elected Government that during that period the Abaluhya would like to have people of their own tribe supervising together with Government officers to see they are registered as Abaluhya and not as Jaluo.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can the hon. Member speaking—although I have been his friend for some time he has spoilt his case now—substantiate that there are between 60 to 160,000 Baluhya living in Luo area? Is he not trying to insinuate something which is—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I do not know how it can be proposed that anybody can substantiate a thing like this. It is his own guess. You may agree or may disagree with him. I do not, however, think it is a matter of that much importance as to give rise to a point of order.

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, Sir, I would like to say one more thing.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, your time is up.

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, two minutes of my time have been wasted. I should be allowed this time.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No. It might have been about half a minute. But your time is up.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to join my colleagues—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is a tradition that no newspapers can be brought to this House unless a Member intends to refer to them in his speech. Is the Member who has just spoken allowed to display a newspaper here without having made reference to it in his speech?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He is not actually entitled to display it. I do not know what Mr. Tsalwa was up to when he did that. I think we will ignore it this time.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am on my feet to join my colleagues to thank the President for his speech which he delivered here on the 20th of this month.

I have three points to make. First, I would like to refer to his point on rural development. I think this is quite an important point because most of our people live in the rural areas. So, we would like to see a definite programme on rural development. In fact, during the call of Harambee many people living in the rural areas developed or established self-help projects. In fact, it is in the rural areas where most of the self-help projects were established. Unfortunately, however, most of these self-help projects have collapsed. Because they have collapsed, people are now unwilling to see the actual sense in the call of Harambee. These self-help projects have collapsed because people have realized that Government has no interest in what they have done. The people have never been helped in most cases, and they have given up hope of completing the projects which they started.

For example, Sir, in my own constituency we began a self-help project on a health centre. Two health centres were started and up to this time these health centres have been completed, in terms of buildings and so on. However, Sir, there is no medicine. People cannot provide the medicines, so they are quite unable to see what their efforts were all about. We feel that Government should put some efforts into these self-help projects so that the people develop a new spirit to establish more of these self-help projects.

In connexion with that, Sir, I would like to refer to one more incident where the Press reported that a certain Minister has given Sh. 100,000 towards a self-help project. This is the kind of thing that most people outside take to be corruption. This Minister had this money from a certain Trust in this country, and the Press, instead of reporting the true facts, reporting that this Minister had this money from a certain Trust, said that the Minister gave this money from his own pocket. So the people think that the Minister had Sh. 100,000 to give to a self-help project. This is how people misinterpret some of the things known as corruption. Of course, many people would ask themselves how this Minister could get Sh. 100,000 to give to a self-help project. Where did he get this money from? The whole thing was badly reported. So the Press must be very careful in reporting what the Ministers do. This money did not belong to the Minister; it belonged to a Trust.

Mr. Speaker, I say that if this money was given to self-help projects, then it should have been given to many self-help projects that exist in the country. For example, Sir, the Minister should have given Sh. 20,000 to one self-help project, Sh. 20,000 to another, in this way a number of self-help projects could be assisted. So, Sir, we have to press that when Ministers who are in responsible positions get money from different Trusts, they must distribute this money to different self-help projects that exist in the country.

To come to the second point, Sir, I want to talk about the Government's efforts to implement the resolutions of this House. The hon. Member who has just sat down has said that the Government is doing nothing to implement the resolutions of this House. I have to draw his attention to the fact that Government, at the moment, is making great efforts to implement the resolutions we pass in this House with regard to the construction of roads. If you look round the country you will see so many roads being constructed. You will see a road to Narok, another to the area that will serve farmers who grow wheat; if you go to Kakamega District you will see several roads now being constructed. The Mombasa Road has been completed. So, I think the Government has now taken the initiative to implement one of the resolutions of this House: road construction. I think we should give credit where credit is due.

One other point I have to speak on is about the transfers that have taken place in the Civil Service. We find that most of our civil servants, for example the district officers, the district commissioners and the provincial commissioners are now remaining for much longer time in one place in order that they can complete their timetable. This is a good thing. In the past we have had our district officers, district commissioners, and so on, transferred after one month, after two months, after one year, and this was not good. Now they stay in one place long enough to know the people and to see what is the need of the people in the areas where they live, and to realize what they can do for them. This is a very good thing and we appreciate what the Government is trying to do. Only, Sir, when we say that Government is doing something, it should do a little more.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Galgalo: I also would like to join hands with the Members who have spoken on the Motion and have, in the course of their speech, thanked the President. I would like, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to avail myself of this opportunity and express my thanks; at the same time, I would like to put forward some points in this House today.

In the first instance, I would like to comment on the Kanu Manifesto—the Kanu policy. It had laid down that the under-developed areas, for example the remote areas in the northern part of Kenya, would be developed. I am very convinced that our area was terribly affected by the shifta activities, but this is now all over. It is, therefore, high time that the Government considered a concrete programme for this area. Special consideration should be given to my area, Moyale, which is on the Ethiopian border, and very remote. This would call for a very urgent programme. For example, road construction of the Nairobi to Addis Ababa road was planned to pass through Moyale, but there is now some speculation whether this road will be shortened and therefore will not go through Moyale but will go across via Sololo, which is about 50 miles away. The people of Moyale town and those around are confused; they are bewildered and do not know what to do. Moyale is already a permanent town, and Government should make a clear-cut plan and see to it that this road passes through Moyale, in order to help development of that area.

I would like to put forward my second point. Our area is a livestock producing area. As such, the railway line should be extended to Isiolo in order to give more facilities to Samburu, Isiolo and Marsabit Districts to get their cattle away. There is no sign that the railway line will be extended to Isiolo. If the Government realized this and implemented it, it would be good for our economy. Moyale District, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is a remote district and therefore calls for special consideration. The roads are obviously very important and communications, in general, are very poor. There are, for example, no telephones and no railway lines; and to worsen the matter, the roads we have are quite impassable. Despite the fact that the great north road is under construction, we would have liked the present road to be properly maintained. This would in itself, make the movement of local traders easier and would, enable them to reach the remotest parts as quickly as possible. I am convinced beyond doubt that if our Government wanted to make this a speedy programme, it will be necessary for them to allocate adequate money for the maintenance of the present roads.

I would like also to make another point. The traders in our area—that is Marsabit District including Moyale Sub-district—are greatly perturbed. This is not without reason. The Government has said quite clearly that loans would be given to African traders in order to help them to take over the present foreign controlled businesses. I would like to say, with deep concern, that when the African businessmen applied for loans, only one man got a loan. This was for about Sh. 10,000 only, which was not enough. The rest are still waiting for their replies. We would like this Government to be realistic and follow the Kanu Manifesto in order to make speedy progress in the area. These Africans in question should be given loans if they are able to repay these loans.

I would like to point out another important thing. This is about water development. Water is hard to get and our people, especially the people of Moyale Township, are very anxious to know what the Government is doing. Many things about water development have been spoken in this House. I, for one, brought some questions, but the Government responded very lightly saying, "Well, water will be provided very shortly". Alternatively, the Government speaks of water being obtained from boreholes. The firms which are given the contract of prospecting for water go there and dig in only one or two areas and end by saying that there is no water, or simply that their machines are broken. As there are no Government officials to check up the truth of the outcome of these people who are hired, these people only go there to waste money and then come back? This is really very bad. I would like to appeal to the Government to check constantly the activities of these water prospectors.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to make another point. Range management in our area has not been started up to now and we would like this to be given the first priority because our area is an important stock producing area. The officers should be selected locally and should after training, go back to the people and show them what to do in respect to cattle breeding. Boran cattle are universally known. Everybody in this House no doubt supports me; they are in fact among the best. If cross-breeding with Boran can bring about other types of cattle, we have not had a programme to that effect. We would like to leave the whole matter to the range management people.

Mineral prospectors should start operating in this area. Government seems to have neglected this. However, our county council has allowed this, I understand—but in spite of this acceptance, the prospectors have done nothing and I cannot understand what they are waiting for. They just fly their helicopters here and then fly back again. I am fully convinced that if that area were properly prospected we could get petrol and an appreciable amount of gold. That area is the extension of the Ethiopian Highlands and in Ethiopia there are very rich mineral deposits.

I would also mention a further point. The Kenya Government should encourage the formation of companies. I can well recall a company which was formed by the name of the Marsabit Trading Company, Kenya Limited, The management took all the money which had been invested and as a result our people became disinterested in joining other companies. Our Government has never sat down to investigate the misappropriation of the funds and the cause of the company's failure. The company is now closed, because they are not able to get loans. The Government then goes on to deny the fact that the company in question had all this property when Sh. 72,000 was stolen by the founders. The people have now lost any interest as a result of this; and it is high time Government took action by investigating and trying to apprehend the misappropriations of this money.

With these few remarks, I would like to support this Motion.

Mr. Kiprotich: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to join my colleagues in thanking the President for the speech which he made.

I would like to start with the question of squatter farmers. Since 1963, when we achieved our independence, the squatter farmers have been lying by the road-side. If you try to argue contrarily, I can invite the Minister—The Minister for Lands and Settlement is here; I am happy to mention such a thing while he is here. In Lumbwa, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there are lot of people who worked for former European farmers and they are just there and they do not have anywhere to go; they were born there yet nobody has tried to help them by giving them plots in settlement schemes. Also in Kedowa, Londiani, and even in Kericho township itself, these people are there and when the President gave his speech I did not hear him say whether these people are being considered. Where are these people going to be taken to? They are just helpless people and still the Government is harrassing them asking them to pay their graduated personal tax. These people do not have any income at all and they have children. The Government thinks that these people are living peacefully but they are the people who are going to bring trouble in the future. I hope that the Minister will see what he can do about these people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not see any reason why we have the Commissioner for Squatters. Up to now he is holding this office and what he is doing nobody knows. He is just sitting idle in his office and does not know what is happening. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I leave that for the Minister to consider and decide what he can do for these people.

Once again, I would like to say something about the Civil Service which is being looked into by the Minister of State, President's Office. Today we have a statement which was issued by the "Government spokesman". I wish the Leader of Government Business, when he answers the speeches made by Members, will tell us who this Government spokesman is—a person cannot come out and say that he is speaking on the Government on the authority from the President or authority from somebody. These are people who are hiding in their offices—if they cannot come forward and say who they are, they must keep quiet and leave us to contribute what we know in this House.

When we spoke about corruption, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think everybody in this House, and outside this House, knows very well that our civil servants are corrupt. In order to make everything clear to the public, I call on the Government to appoint a commission of inquiry, and then everything will be in black and white. If civil servants want to become politicians, let them come forward, they must not hide themselves and issue statements. We have seen two of them who have tried to come out and fight elections. One who was a Provincial Commissioner in Nyanza, tried to compete with one of the politicians and was defeated and even lost his deposit. This month we had another one who just resigned his post and he failed and also let down Kanu Government; and he also lost his deposit.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if the civil servants want to work in the offices and do their work, there is no need for them to interfere in politics in this country. Let them keep quiet and sit in the offices. That is the trouble; whenever you go to any Ministry, from the top—that is from the President's Office, which is under the Minister of State, President's Office—and you are ringing the office, you never get anybody in his office, neither himself, his Permanent Secretary, nor their deputies. If such Ministers are tired of public office, they must resign and go back to selling eggs in River Road or Kariokor. They are there because of the public, and if they are there to leave their offices and go around the town, I do not see any reason why they should be there just because of their names.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, turning to the question of loans. The President has always been saying this at public meetings and there have been Press statements that the people should go back to the land. All right; if people who have been in the towns without work, and have not been earning a single cent, are really needed to go back to the land, then some money must be got from somewhere to loan to these people so that they can work the piece of land which they have got, or to set up businesses. If you say go back to the land it does not always work. Those people who are back on the land already, they have not even been given loans to run the small-holdings they have got. To get a loan it is a problem. You apply for a loan and it takes about six months to get it, or even a year or more than a year. If somebody is told that he will get a loan and he does not, it is not good, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. This is only sweet words with no actions. We need actions; actions are better than empty words which the Government, at the moment, is giving.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to say something about promotion in the Government and in the private sectors. This is very, very serious because we ourselves here were the people who said we should like to see all the posts in the private sector and the Government Africanized. When we said that there should be Africanization, we did not say that the posts should be Africanized through nepotism or on the basis of brotherhood. In the army, they say, officers do not have qualifications and so, why are they in the army, the police and the prisons? You do not need somebody with qualifications there. I remember when I was in the police, the men with the rifles did not have any education and yet you find that the illiterates know more than the literates. However, today you find that only those from one tribe—the royal tribe—are employed in these services, especially the army, the police and the prisons.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if the Government is not very careful on this employment— They must be very careful to know that this country belongs to us all and not to only one section and tribe in this country. There are 45 tribes in Kenya and they must all have a full share in this Government. We do not want only one tribe always to be proving themselves. As other Members have said, if you go to the Government offices, even the office boys are of one tribe. You find there is only one tribe in these offices. If these people are ruling by force, they must tell us frankly. There is no point in always having a Kikuyu district officer and then all the other officers under him being Kikuyus as well. This must change.

Also, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the time has come for the Government to nationalize all these banks in the country because at the moment the people who are there, especially the non-Africans, do not understand the problems of Africans. Therefore, what I want is that all these banks must be taken over by the Government so that they can put in their own people who understand the problems of our people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I reserve my support on this Motion.

Mr. J. M. Njonjo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to join my colleagues in congratulating the President for his speech at the opening of the present session. I appreciate that his speech contained quite a lot of useful things and a lot about what the Government has done. I am quite certain anybody with eyes can see the development in education, in self-help schemes, in the economic fields, that have taken place since our independence. It would be futile for anybody to suggest or pretend that they cannot see the difference which is very apparent to everybody in the country.

However, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to say a few words in connexion with what everybody has been talking about. That is that I think the Government should think seriously about this; if we expect to be the ruling party after the next General Election, we should try to get our house in order. If we do not do this, let us not boast about ourselves because it will be too late to do anything when the time comes for the election. Everybody has been talking about corruption; everybody has been talking here—and I have been listening—about brotherization; everybody has been talking about nepotism. Why has this been happening? There must be some good reason, otherwise the House would not be talking about this one subject. This question must be gone into so that we can clean the minds of the people who are going to elect Kanu Members into this House when the time comes.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would refer to a few instances which have been close to my area. I think that one of these things that I am going to mention here has played a great part in convincing the general public that these things do really exist. For instance there are a lot of people, hundreds of students who went overseas in the eastern countries and now they have started coming back since last year and the year before. You find that in the field of employment of these people—some of whom were sent abroad by our party, Kanu—there has been a lot of discrimination. A lot of them have been taken, I know, as district officers in Government offices, but others have been discriminated against and have been told that as they have been in communist countries they are not fit for Government employment. Why? I know of one particular instance where one person has been looking for a job for two years and yet he is qualified and passed his examination well. Another person who came just six months ago has been posted to Mombasa as a district officer, yet they were in the same class in the same university. Why is one called a communist while the other one is a good Kanu member? This is wrong and something must be done to see that these irregularities do not go on.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to say is that these things are not really important to a person who is always in an office in one of these big, big buildings. Those of us who go around the country know that they are the basic principles of judging the candidates to represent this House after the next election.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is this question of employment. Leave alone these people who come from overseas, we think that in many cases brotherization is there and must be stamped out. There are a number of people who are jobless and fit to work, but you will find that a person who is unqualified will be taken just because he is a brother of a Minister, or a brother-in-law of an Assistant Minister, or something of that sort, and his application is given preference over the application of a person who is more qualified than he is. These things are important, and if we have any hope of winning the next elections these things must stop immediately.

I will now refer, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to affairs closer to my own constituency. You will find that in the allocation of these settlement schemes there are a lot of irregularities. I will refer particularly to the settlement scheme at Makuyu, which is near Thika. Half of the persons who are there were not selected by the Commissioner for Squatters. The Commissioner for Squatters is supposed to have a register of landless people around Thika; but to tell the truth, 50 per cent of those people who are settled at Makuyu are not in the register of the Commissioner for Squatters. They have been settled there through devious ways, and I can substantiate this if somebody asks me. I know very well that the person who is in charge of allocations in this particular settlement scheme has got his five relatives in that settlement scheme.

An hon. Member: Who is that?

Mr. J. M. Njonjo: There is no use you asking me because the assistant commissioner at the provincial level knows this and I have given him the names and note has been taken. These things are well known everywhere in Thika. There are a lot of squatters because, as you know, this used to be a part of the White Highlands, and today there are a lot of squatters lying idle there as they have nowhere to cultivate and some are begging while others are being assisted by being dished out some posho from the Government. This happens while I know very well that some of the people who have been settled at Makuyu have land elsewhere.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, these are the things that are making the people around to say that the Government is rotten and corrupt. These are the things, and they should be got rid of.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, another instance is that during the recent elections of the local authorities there were some irregularities. These were, there is no doubt, very irregularly done. In fact, I will give you an example. In Thika, elections were not done in the Kanu office; they were done in a particular person's bar seven miles outside Thika. To make it worse, those people who made an appeal to the Vice-President and who were then reported in the paper as having had their appeal upheld, had no action taken to revise the elections. They are still out today inspite of the fact that the Vice-President upheld their appeals. What sort of Government can this be?

This sort of thing is well known and these are the reasons why most of the people in the country are complaining that there is corruption. Others went as far as to appeal to the district commissioner and to a magistrate as is laid down in the law. The magistrate found out that the final papers had already been signed by the President of the party before the time had elapsed for the appeal. Therefore, there was no point in their making an appeal because, in fact, the papers had already been finalized. I submit, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that these elections were illegal and they were illegally done; but those people are still there.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we should also consider the unemployment which, at present, is in the whole country. If we do not do this I think our strategy as a party and our psychological warfare with the other parties that might crop up will fail. For instance, today, in order to reduce the unemployment in Thika township, the council adopted by-laws to provide some kiosks to help the unemployed; about 100 of them. These have been helping more than 1,000 dependants in Thika. Today those illegally elected councillors are closing them down in spite of the fact that they know there is a lot of unemployment.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Your time is up. Finish your sentence.

Mr. J. M. Njonjo: They should be compared with what is happening in Nairobi with those cardboard houses. These were designed by the council and you find that today, after one year, these people are being told to demolish to increase unemployment—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Please finish your sentence.

Mr. J. M. Njonjo: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Seroney: Mr. Deputy Speaker, while thanking His Excellency for an excellent exposition of policy I cannot avoid criticizing the Government for having omitted this opportunity to let the country know what is the programme for what is probably the last session of the First Parliament of a free Kenya.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we all know that within the next 12 months we are going back to the country. Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in other countries which have adopted a parliamentary democracy like the one we have adopted, it is usually common practice to use the State Opening of Parliament to let the country know through the Head of State, or through the Speech from the Chair, what the Government's legislative programme is going to be for the session. Looking through His Excellency's Speech, I see no indication whatsoever as to what laws the Government will be bringing to us in this House for us to pass and make law. I think this is a very serious omission, Mr. Deputy Speaker. We are here, as representatives of the people, to make laws for the country. We are primarily a legislative assembly. We are not a county council which has executive powers and which spends a lot of time discussing executive actions. We have delegated those executive functions to the Government and our primary concern is the laws we pass. It is true that our secondary objective is to see that the Government to whom we have delegated certain responsibilities exercises those responsibilities in accordance with the interests of those people who have elected us.

So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is a pity that the Government failed to use this opportunity to tell us, through the President, what the legislative programme for this session is. It is a pity that in the past the Government used to simply think up certain Bills and rush them to this House and tell us "These are urgent Bills which you must pass", and ask us to suspend Standing Orders and publication period. I think this position, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is highly unsatisfactory. Again, the Government, through His Excellency complains about lack of support from Members of this Parliament.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not see that the Government has any reason to complain. We have voted all the money they have asked us to vote, and we have passed lots of the laws which they have asked us to pass. Yet, Mr. Deputy Speaker, before bringing laws to this House they have not taken the trouble to consult us or associated us with the making or framing of plans and politics underlying these laws. They expect us to simply come here and rubber-stamp what they have dreamed up in the Attorney-General's office or in State House, and they expect us to come here and say "Aye, aye, aye" only. Mr.

Deputy Speaker, there is no point in telling us that we, as Back-benchers, are there to participate in the making of the policy of the Government, when in actual fact the Government has ignored us totally. In fact, none of the Ministers use the Ministerial Committees to discuss policy and prepare Bills before they are brought to this House. In fact, the Parliamentary Group is not called unless there is some trouble and then they want the Mzee to come and sort it out.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think it is the fault of the Government. If the Government needs the support of the Members, they should associate the Members and consult the Members in policy-making and even in discussing Bills and framing development plans. The other day we read in the papers that Tanu Executive Committee was discussing the development plan in its draft form before it was published. What happens here in Kenya? The Government and the Minister for Economic Planning plan everything, draft everything and publish it in its final form and they are brought here and laid on the Table and we are expected to endorse everything. We have no opportunities to amend or to object as to why our particular areas have not been included and so forth. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think if the Government really wants our support they should consult us. Instead, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the civil servants have been blown up beyond all tolerable proportion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was surprised by this Government spokesman who seems to think he can issue a statement challenging us here in the House. There is even an implied threat, Mr. Deputy Speaker, about our parliamentary immunity. Why are they so worried about our parliamentary immunity? Is it sufficient merely to say that those statements are no good because they were made under parliamentary immunity? Why was there no attempt made to answer the specific allegations which were made? Is it enough to say that the Government is satisfied? Who is this particular Government? After all the Government has Ministers here in this House who can speak for the civil servants. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there has been a tendency on the part of civil servants, particularly in the administration, to interfere with the affairs of Kanu. There was interference in Mombasa. There has been interference in Nyeri. There has been interference in Nakuru. There is interference everywhere. Who has authorized the civil servants to interfere in matters of a private society like Kanu? This is what I would like to know. Kanu is a private society and which is to be managed by Members elected by members themselves and not by civil servants.

[Mr. Seroney]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think His Excellency should advise the civil servants to keep off Kanu affairs and let Kanu run their own affairs. Mr. Deputy Speaker, again these civil servants have been blown up beyond proportion because even now they allocate the right to themselves of stopping us, the elected representatives, from addressing our own constituencies by abusing the Public Order Act to deny us, without any reason whatsoever, of the right to address our constituents.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, very shortly some of us are going to bring forward a Motion to have a Select Committee of this House appointed to examine the working of this Public Order Act of stopping people from holding public meetings, and when we ask here we are told it is for security reasons and the reasons cannot be given to us. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think, in all fairness, we should as Members assert ourselves to maintain our positions because if we do not do that we will find the administrative officers will be sitting on top of us.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think that our original Constitution with which we entered Uhuru was slightly better so far as the civil servants are concerned. There the civil servants were put in their rightful place. In our anxiety to abolish Majimbo we have swung to the other extreme and blown up provincial commissioners to a position even more important than what used to be the case during the colonial régime. I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that the time has come to adopt a system probably similar to that which exists today in Zambia. I think our Cabinet, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is too large. I think it should be reduced by 50 per cent and some Ministers should be assigned, in addition to other duties, to specific provinces so that they will be answerable for the provinces instead of these unelected provincial commissioners who now behave as if they were bosses and as if they were more important than the Ministers in our own Government.

I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that these changes in our Constitution should be thought over, and I would appeal to His Excellency the President to seriously re-think over the position of civil servants, particularly the provincial commissioners, and replace them by assigning his Ministers to the particular provinces so that we can do away with the provincial commissioners, or reduce them to the position of civil secretaries, in which they were under the Majimbo Constitution.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

DISSOLUTION OF SETTLEMENT COMMITTEE BY D.C., KISII

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Will a Minister please move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Onsando: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

This is to give me time to find out from the Minister the causes which led to the dissolution of a legally constituted Select Committee in Kisii. I must make it clear from the very beginning that I have no quarrel with the Minister because he was very honest in his reply, and it appears that someone very junior has used his powers to undermine the Minister.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have looked at the circular to which the Minister referred in his reply and it states very clearly who should be a member of the Select Committee. This circular was followed and there was a Settlement Select Committee in Kisii which was formed in 1965. This committee has been discharging its duties very efficiently. It has recommended settlers to be settled by the Minister. Last year this committee sat and selected about 77 settlers who were truly landless people in Kisii, and recommended to the Minister that they should be settled in the Matutu Settlement Scheme.

The district commissioner, on learning that these people were all Kisii and he wanted certain people to be settled, got in touch with the provincial commissioner and they decided to dissolve that committee and appointed a committee of their own. The committee which was appointed by the district commissioner and the provincial commissioner was only composed of about four members; and this is what we challenged—how this committee was dissolved and how the new one was formed. The Minister gave a very honest reply saying that he was not aware of this, and all I am asking him to do is dissolve it. I am challenging the legality of the new committee which sat on the 3rd March and recommended about 60 names to the Minister that these people should be settled on the Matutu Scheme. The Minister approved these 60 names and the people moved on to their plots on the 27th March.

[Mr. Onsando]

This list, which was constituted by the new committee, was composed of very many strangers so far as Kisii is concerned. It was composed of people who were quite genuine squatters, and I have no quarrel with that. It was composed of some people who had just come to burn charcoal, because in that particular settlement scheme there were black wattle trees and some people who were traders had come to burn charcoal. These people were included in the list of squatters to be allocated plots. The Minister approved the list and immediately on having their photographs taken they sold the plots to the people in that area again.

An hon. Member: Which tribe?

Mr. Onsando: These were Kikuyu.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are not helping to settle the landless if this sort of approach is going to be adopted by the Government officers. Maybe this was done without the Minister's knowledge. I ask him now, because I know in his office he has minutes signed by the district commissioner of the previous committee which shows who are the members of that committee. In his office he has another list of the members who attended the meeting which was held on the 3rd March. The district commissioner was the chairman and I have no quarrel with that.

An hon. Member: Is the district commissioner a Kikuyu?

Mr. Onsando: Who else could it be. That goes without saying.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we, in Kisii, are perturbed and the public is also perturbed at the conduct of this administrative officer who dissolved the committee which was composed of Kisii elected members on that committee, a committee which the Minister recognized, and drew his own committee of four and sent cars to pick them up telling them they had been called to a meeting and they had been appointed as members of the Settlement Select Committee. These people up to this time have not even had the minutes of their meeting. They say the minutes were confidential, and even those four members who were summoned to attend the meeting on the 3rd March, have not received the minutes of the meeting they attended. They are not sure if the district commissioner sent in the right names they recommended to the Minister.

I ask the Minister to find out why such activities took place. One other thing I would ask the Minister to do is this. This committee, as he admits, was not dissolved, and the minutes of this new committee, which is illegal, should be nullified immediately and the old committee be given a chance to recommend to the Minister those landless cases so that they are settled in the settlement scheme.

It is a very short question, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and it is a question of legality. It is either—and the Minister himself admits—that he is the only one responsible for choosing the members of this committee, or the district commissioner is. He admits in his reply that he is the one who appointed the district commissioner as chairman, and should therefore tell this House if the district commissioner has power to dissolve the committee at any time and call up any members of his choice to be a member of the select committee. The Kisii people would like to have the 77 plots which were allocated by the committee which sat in December 1968 and not the committee which was summoned abruptly without the Minister's consent and which recommended names because the person called the Commissioner for Squatters complained the squatters had been left out. There were a very few squatters. We are all from Kisii, and we know which farms were bought in the Kisii area, and we know who is the labour force there— We are not complaining about the squatters. We object to the way in which the district commissioner conducted this committee and the way the strangers were allocated plots in that particular settlement scheme, who immediately sold them. If the Minister is interested he should investigate, then he will find out that so many plots have been sold in the Matutu Scheme, simply because this illegal committee made a mistake in giving people plots who were not squatters and owned land elsewhere.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is a straightforward matter and I only ask the Minister to clarify the position. Under what Act did the district commissioner form this committee? If he had no powers, then the Minister should reprimand him and sack him from the chairmanship and give it to me as I would be very fair. I will make sure that every squatter is settled; and of course I will obey the Minister's instructions.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not have much to say except to ask the Minister to tell us which is now the legal committee in Kisii, the one which was set-up in 1965 or the one which was set-up this year?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Who is seconding the Motion?

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not need to speak much in seconding this Motion because it is a very important issue. All I would like to say is that this Motion would not have been brought to the House had the Minister for Lands and Settlement answered the question I asked him: whether he had knowledge of the District Commissioner, Kisii, dissolving the existing committee and setting up a new one. He told the House that he had no knowledge of that and that is why we had to take this matter further and pursue it on the adjournment. This is very clear.

Sir, had the district commissioner not brushed aside the list of the names which were on the legal committee—which the Minister knows very well—and then recommended his own new list, we would not have any quarrel. However, the fact that the district commissioner, on the 3rd of March this year took the powers on himself and dissolved the old committee, set up his own committee forced us to pursue this matter. In fact, Sir, the composition of the new committee consists of the departmental heads, most of them from one tribe. Sir, we are tired of this question of “one tribe”. I do not hesitate to say, “one tribe” because this is very chronic. It is becoming chronic and we have to insist that this is done away with.

Hon. Members: Which tribe? Tell us.

Mr. Nyaberi: The one tribe is well known. It is obvious that— Anyway, for the interest of the House I will say that the district commissioner is a Kikuyu, and the departmental heads I have referred to are mostly Kikuyu. When I say this, Sir, I am able to tell you that the medical officer of health is a Kikuyu, the agricultural officer is a Kikuyu, and these are the people— I do not need to say much more than that. These are the people who are on the new committee, after the previous committee has been dissolved by the district commissioner, the legal committee.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this makes the people not know what is really happening. This is a case where the district commissioner is of one tribe, obviously a Kikuyu, and knows that from the top there is nothing coming to affect him.

Sir, I remember that once I and another Member of Parliament from Kisii went there and asked him, “Why have you dissolved the legal committee? Have you told the Minister?”, and he replied, “Now, look here, the Minister already has informed us; he has sent directives that the squatters will be given first priorities.” Do you know what happened to the squatters? If we had the list here today, of the squatters— He knew he had a game to play with that list. In that list of squatters there are some genuine squatters who have been given land; but, again, in the list there were some good friends of the district commissioner. I understand that the district commissioner had been working in Nakuru. Some people who were not squatters had their names on that list. This is why the district commissioner insisted on dissolving the legal committee so that he would have a chance to recommend his own friends.

Another thing which has happened there, Sir, is that—

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to ask my hon. friend to substantiate, give us names of “these good friends” of the district commissioner who were taken to Kisii to be settled.

Mr. Nyaberi: I am able, Sir, to substantiate.

The district commissioner said this land was purely for squatters. But, then, there is a gentleman, who is the Clerk to the Nakuru County Council, who is there. Can you call him a squatter? He is a Kisii man and I know him.

Sir, there are several such others in that list. The Minister is able to check this for himself. I am telling the truth here.

In short, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the only evil thing is that these people, who the Kisii people were told were squatters— As my colleague has just said, these people had come there to burn charcoal. These people were told, “Look, pretend that you are squatters”. The district commissioner had a book, which looked like some sort of master roll, from the Europeans who have been there, certifying that those people were squatters in that area. In fact, those people were charcoal burners. After being given plots, do you know what happened? Sir, I do not want to repeat. They said, “Now, look, this is just a fortune—is there anybody who wants land?” Many teachers, able people, people with money, rushed there. That is why I say the land was given to the wrong people, to the wrong squatters.

If the Minister is really working in co-operation with the Commissioner for Squatters, I would like him to find out who are the squatters who were given land and then sold the land they were given. This kind of thing surprises the people. I think it is a good thing that the Minister should investigate this whole affair.

Unless the Minister tells the House today that he has given the district commissioner power to do what he did, then the district commissioner did the wrong thing.

Here is a case where a civil servant undermines a Minister and takes on himself powers of allocating land. This is too much.

[Mr. Nyaberi]

So, Sir, I do not wish to waste the time of the House. I do not want to labour much on this point.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to second.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think if a Minister wants to reply he had better do so now because otherwise he may not get another chance.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to begin my reply by mentioning that the question before the House is about the committee and, as far as I understand it, it does not really concern who was allocated land, where and how and when. This is how I see the question before the House.

For that reason, Sir, I am not being narrow because the question was specific, as to why the District Selection Committee was dissolved. This is the point I am going to try and show to the House did not take place.

To start with, when the hon. Members complained that the district commissioner is a Kikuyu, another officer is a Kikuyu, and so on, these are facts. All right, we accept them, they are facts. They do not, as a matter of policy, affect the composition of the District Selection Committee because the District Selection Committee—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, when there is a clear point that either the Minister is trying to avoid the issue brought up, or trying to bring in points which were not necessary, what can we do as Members? I ask this because, maybe, whatever we ask for is information. It is very clear here, that the point raised is being avoided by the Minister? What can we do?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, I am afraid there is very little one can do here, except probably later on bring a substantive Motion asking the Government to dissolve a particular committee. That is all really.

To be fair to Mr. Onsando, Mr. Malinda, I would say this. What Mr. Onsando is complaining about is not only that a committee has been substituted by another committee but that the committee which has taken over is an illegal committee, and has done certain illegal activities which he wants to have corrected. Unless you can prove that the committee has not been substituted, and that it is, in fact, the same committee, the original committee, which is what I think the Minister said in his original reply a few days ago—unless you can prove that he is wrong in his very first assumption, then I do not think your answer is relevant.

Anyway, it is up to you to answer as you want, but I do see Mr. Lubembe's point of view.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I make it quite clear here that the committee, which is the District Selection Committee for Kisii, as it is now, is very legal. It has not done any illegal activity and, as far as the activities which the hon. Member has alleged, that it carried out, I think the hon. Kebaso, on that day when this Question was being answered by the Minister, clearly indicated to the hon. Members here why some of the Members—

Mr. Onsando: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir. The Assistant Minister has said that the committee as it is, is legal. Is this not a contradiction to what the Minister said? Is this the committee that sat on 3rd March this year or the committee that was there in 1968, because I see you are talking of two committees?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): This is, of course, one interpretation which can be drawn by the House, but the Minister did not say that. The Member should have heard it very clearly that the committee has not been changed. It is still the same committee that he had appointed last year. So I do not know why there seems to be some confusion one way or the other; I think Mr. Malinda will clear it up now.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): If the hon. Member would like to listen, I will clear it up now and I will also give him the name of the members of the present committee whom he knows very well. I am also going to indicate to him that their activities were supported by my Ministry. The appointment of any member of this committee is the responsibility of the Minister, and if any changes have to take place they do so with the consent and approval of the Minister. When, as the hon. Kebaso mentioned on the day this question was answered here, some Members composing that committee were found to have misused their powers or misused their positions in influencing some of these allocations, these facts were brought before the Minister; and, of course, the Minister, in consultation with the bodies which are represented on the committee, decided to replace some of the members. Now this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, shows that although the names of certain officers or certain members of this committee may not be the same as those who were sitting in this committee in 1968, the fact still remains that the people who are in that committee represent the interests which were represented in 1968. Therefore, as far as we are concerned, the committee has not been dissolved.

Mr. Onsando: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your ruling here Sir. Shall I be in order to ask the Minister not to indulge— Shall I ask the Minister to tell us what was the composition of the former committee because he does not mention this? He only says that this was illegal, but we do not know what the number was? Would the Minister read out the names of the members of the first committee and the second one also.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Malinda has obviously found some ambiguity in what the Minister stated that day and what you are saying now because the Minister stated that day that the committee was the same committee and he was implying thereby that the members had not been changed. We have heard you saying that the Members have been changed. I do not know exactly how this is getting framed, but perhaps the—

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Minister wants to give information he can, but what I was trying to say, is that, as far as we are concerned the committee, from the representation point of view, is the same because the committee should be and is composed of the following. The district commissioner who is the chairman, the district agricultural officer, the senior settlement officer and the district co-operative officer. Over and above that, there are four members recommended by the District Agricultural Committee to sit in these particular committees. The members who occupy those seats now, or the members who have been selected, or who have been sent there to represent the interests of the District Agricultural Committee of Kisii are—

An hon. Member: Why agricultural committee?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): The District Agricultural Committee because the circular which the Minister referred to specifically states that members will also come from the district body which recommends persons to sit in that committee. Once that has been done, the names are sent over to the Minister for his approval and, therefore, he approves everybody who sits in the committee and these officers are, by virtue of their office, members of the committee. Irrespective of whether there is a transfer of the district officer which is represented in this committee is a person who is supposed to take part in the deliberations of the committee. For that, Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Members want, I can tell them the names of the other members except officials. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Rayoli was the member who has been replaced by Mr. Livingstone Atebe who was again replaced by Mr. J. K. Keragori. Mr. Abacha and Mr. Stephen Michoma, who were the original members of the District Selection Committee representing the District Agricultural Committee were replaced by Mr. Stephen Maturi, who is a member of the District Agricultural Committee, and Mr. Japhet Ogamba.

These are now the members representing the Kisii interests in this committee, having their names submitted to the Minister through the District Agricultural Committee. Mr. Speaker, as far as when they were appointed is concerned, I would like to say that they are, legally, members of the Kisii District Selection Committee, and for that reason, Mr. Speaker, I would like to mention here that even though, whoever becomes the member of this district committee I want to—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a serious matter which can bring a lot of trouble. Is it not in order that the Assistant Minister should tell us when these people were appointed?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We will leave that to the Assistant Minister to answer if he wants to.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, I am not prepared to answer that now. If he likes I can—

Mr. Onsando: On a point of order, my point of order is, now that the Assistant Minister has agreed that this is a legal committee, which version shall the Kisii people have of the Government's versions, is it the Minister who has said that he is not aware of these changes or what the Assistant Minister is saying in front of the Minister. Is he not ashamed?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order, it is a bad language to be used.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): What the Government was not aware of last week or yesterday does not necessarily mean that it is not aware of that today. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I want to say is that the work of this committee is one of the very important factors, that of settling our people; and it is necessary that members comprising this committee should be people who discharge their duties for the benefit of the people whom they serve. It is, therefore, idle talking or idle thinking, for anybody to insist on a certain member or certain members of a certain committee to sit in a committee if their activities have been suspected not to be impartial. In the question of dealing with land; it is very important that impartiality must come first so that people being given the plots are the right people to have the plots.

With regard to the point that the hon. Member mentioned that plots which were given out on the 27th of last March have been sold, this Mr. Speaker, is news to us and I have no record of this. If the hon. Member would like to give more information on these plots which he alleges to have been sold, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I assure him action will be taken, because plots are given to the landless and not to anybody for his own speculation purposes or for him to go and make a profit. These plots are given for the people to make a living out of them, and if any of them has sold his plot, Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry will be only too glad to receive the particulars, whereupon we will take stern action. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

ADJOURNMENT

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is now time for interruption of business. This House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, the 29th May, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Thursday, 29th May 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERSCOMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR*ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE: GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN'S PRESS STATEMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, my attention has been directed to a statement by an unnamed Government spokesman through the Kenya News Agency, which was published in the Press yesterday, criticizing certain allegations which have been made by hon. Members in this House during the current debate on the President's Address, and the manner in which the Press has given publicity to those allegations.

I am not concerned with the substance of such criticism, though I sincerely hope that the Press will remain free to give full and fair publicity to all that is said in this House; but I am very much concerned that Government should resort to the Press for the purpose of answering anything that is said in this House.

Members of the public, including editors, are free to criticize in the Press anything that is said in Parliament, so long as such criticism does not amount to contempt of Parliament. But it is an unwritten rule of this and many other Parliaments that our own Members should not carry any of our debates outside the House.

Every Member of the Government from His Excellency the President down to the most junior Assistant Minister is a Member of this House. This, as our President has said, is our forum for discussion and proposal, for question, objection or advice; and it is here and nowhere else that members of the Government, whether individually or collectively, should answer what is said by other hon. Members in this House.

There are nearly 50 Ministers and Assistant Ministers who might have intervened in the current debate to answer the allegations of which the anonymous Government spokesman complains; but, to the best of my knowledge, though this debate has now continued for five days, not one of them has yet intervened for that purpose. Indeed, the majority of Ministers and Assistant Ministers have been conspicuous by their absence throughout the debate. There is still time for this to be corrected, and I do urge members of Government to use this forum and no other for the purpose of answering the speeches which have already been made by more than 60 Backbenchers, and such further speeches as may yet be made during the remainder of this debate.

Resort to the Press for that purpose, in the name of Government, if, indeed, authorized by any Minister, can only be regarded as contempt of this House, and I trust that it will not occur again.

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this was a very serious attack on the Members of this House. Will it, therefore, be in order if the Attorney-General of the Republic of Kenya made an official statement to denounce what was reported in the papers by a so-called Government spokesman?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand, hon. Members, that Mr. Mbogoh wishes to seek permission today to pursue this matter under Standing Order 20, that is, not the substance of the criticism—because I will not allow discussion of that, since that will only be aggravating the offence by allowing us to take cognizance of a debate outside this House—but the fact that there was this criticism in the Press and, possibly, the fact that there is some suggestion that the Press should not publish what happens in this House. Those are proper matters to be raised under Standing Order 20.

I think, Mr. Mbogoh, you were seeking to raise this. If you would like to raise it now, or, rather, seek to raise it, we will see if the House supports you. We will deal with it in that way.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20*GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN'S PRESS STATEMENT:
AN ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

Mr. Mbogoh: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Yesterday, I tried to raise this matter under Standing Order 20, but I found that the Deputy Speaker did not want it raised because there had not been prior consultation. So, having duly consulted you on this, Sir, I would be very glad if I could get the chance to raise the matter today under Standing Order 20.

Hon. Members: Now, now.

Mr. Mbogoh: I would like to raise this matter today, or now, if hon. Members so prefer me to say, concerning the statement made by the Government spokesman and announced on the Voice of Kenya and printed in all the newspapers of this country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand, Mr. Mbogoh, that it is only that aspect of Government having used the Press to comment on a debate in the House that you want to pursue and not the substance of the comment which, as I say, we cannot allow under this procedure. I do regard this as a definite urgent matter of national importance and if it is supported by 20 Members I shall allow you to raise it.

(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

Order! On such occasions it is for the Speaker to fix a time when the matter should be raised, and I will allow Mr. Mbogoh to raise it at 5.45 this evening.

Mr. Odero-Sar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think that there is something smelling in this Chamber. I do not know whether you also smell it; I do not know what is wrong.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not know if there is something dead in the Chamber—I hope it is not an hon. Member—but I do agree that there is something wrong. Would the Serjeant-at-Arms please get it put right somehow.

NOTICE OF MOTION

NAKURU MUNICIPALITY TO BE GIVEN CITY STATUS

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, since Kenya has only one town enjoying the status of city, and in view of the fact that the town of Nakuru has grown both in industry, population, and thus importance; and since further this town is the home and granary of the most important sector of our economy, namely agricultural industry, this House pleads and resolves that Nakuru Municipality be raised to the status of city.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

*Question No. 68*ACTION AGAINST LORRY DRIVER'S ACCIDENT IN RABAI

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House what action the Government had taken against the lorry driver (No. KAS 198) which knocked down Mr. Juma Kandi at Rabai on 22nd January 1969, and failed to report the accident to the police.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. At the time of the accident, no one managed to note the number of the vehicle. None of the available witnesses can identify the vehicle either. The accident is still under investigation although no one has so far been charged with the offence.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this is a private road and is only being used by this lorry, is the Minister prepared to take legal action if I can produce a witness?

Mr. arap Moi: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 100

POLICE AND ARMY RECRUITMENT IN NYANZA

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House why was it that for the last two years no recruitment for the police or for the army had taken place in Nyanza.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. For security reasons I am unable to answer this question.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, do I understand from the Vice-President that for security reasons, as he has stated, the Government has now adopted a policy of not employing the Luo people in Nyanza? Tell me this.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, I say with a big no, "No". On a number of occasions, we have stated that we cannot, as a Government, do these things on a tribal basis. If we are to adopt a national attitude, we must not expect such things. As we know also, those who are dealing with these matters are doing this independently and I do not want to go into the pros and cons of the bodies that are concerned with this, and the House is well aware of the bodies which deal with these matters without even my own advice or anybody else's.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may we know from the Vice-President that if the Nyanza people are recruited into the police force and the army this is a security risk for the Kenya Government?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, no. I want to assure the hon. Member that a large section of the Luo community are in the police, and why should he say that we are discriminating?

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENTMATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 100: POLICE AND ARMY RECRUITMENT IN NYANZA

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, arising from the reply from the Vice-President, and if I am allowed by the Questioner, I would like to raise this matter on the adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you agree, Mr. Chillo?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Yes, if the Vice-President allows this I will also allow this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well. Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 63

DESTRUCTION OF HISTORIC DOCUMENTS BY COLONIAL ADMINISTRATORS

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Natural Resources if he would tell the House if it was true that many useful and historic documents had been destroyed by the colonial administrators just before independence; and if so, what immediate action was the Government taking to replace these documents.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer to the first part of the question is, yes.

As regards the second part of the question which will answer the question, "Why?", the hon. Member will no doubt appreciate that the Government cannot restore documents which have already been destroyed. Every effort, however, is being made by our Chief Archivist to consolidate those documents which survived the bonfires and other methods of destruction.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer and arising from the report which is with the Government, will the Minister tell this House what reasons did the then rotten Colonial Government give for having burnt our important historical documents? What reasons did they give because they wanted things not known from the documents?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, the reasons are as well known to the hon. Member as to any of us here.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is it not true that some of these documents are now found in the United States in some of the universities there, whereas in our university here we do not have such facilities? It is high time that the Government got hold of those documents which are now in Great Britain and also the United States because we require them.

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, no doubt the hon. Member's rumours are rumours that the Government has also heard. To say that these documents are only to be found in the United States or Great Britain is an understatement; they are all over the world and every attempt is being made to see whether we can get them, but we cannot get them by force from these sovereign States.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not true that in 1963, I, in person, reported to the Government that the former District Commissioner in Nakuru, Mr. Brown, was burning the documents because he feared that if these documents were known to this Government they would be discriminated against because they tortured the Africans who fought for the true independence of this country?

Mr. Nyagah: The hon. Member may be speaking the truth, but it is not right to single out any one officer. It happened in many places where the government of the day, the Colonial Government, had offices.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, has the Minister or the Government made any endeavour to make a public appeal so as Members of Parliament and, for that matter, anyone else, to come forward and give some information?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government has made efforts to do that. There is a National Archives Board which does this and, as a matter of fact, our Speaker is on that Board. May I take this opportunity through you, Sir, to appeal to the members of the public to present to this very important national body—the National Archives—any documents of historical importance that they may come across or know of.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Minister perhaps, as you referred to my work in another capacity on this board, I can assure you and the House that the council actually has in hand at this very moment an operation to bring to the notice of the public the importance of this matter.

I think we should go on now.

Question No. 83

MORE SUBCHIEFS IN YATTA LOCATION

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if the Minister would consider employing two more subchiefs as it was in 1953 in Yatta Location, in view of the fact that Yatta Location was a vast area.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yatta B2 Location is mainly a ranching scheme currently administered by a chief and six administrative police. Although the area is vast—

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister in order to allege that Yatta is a ranching scheme whereas I am asking for Yatta? There are two Yattas, as the Minister is aware, which is my location and which I represent.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Munyasia, wait for the end of the answer and then you can put in a supplementary question, but you have not got a point of order at this stage.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, with your permission I will start again.

Yatta B2 Location is mainly a ranching—the word is “mainly”—scheme currently administered by a chief and six administrative police. Although the area is vast, the population is so scanty that it does not warrant the employment of more staff.

However, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is assured that should the necessity arise in the future the area will be considered together with other deserving areas.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that very confusing answer by the senior Minister who is in the President's Office, that he referred to Yatta B as a ranching scheme, and yet he knows that I referred to Yatta where there is a chief plus four subchiefs. Why does he confuse the issue? B2 Yatta is for ranching, but I am now referring to the people who have settled in Yatta A.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not confusing this and the ranching scheme is actually an asset to the country, to the nation; it is not a crime for an area to be suitable for ranching, and I am sorry to hear that the Member is retaliating.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could he tell us why he has only found fit to have four administrative police in B2 Yatta without having at least one subchief in the location?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, I have just said that it has been administered by a chief, who actually has six administrative policemen, and he is a chief like any other employed by Government in any other area, with all their powers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 83: MORE
SUBCHIEFS IN YATTA LOCATION

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would you allow me to pursue this question further, because this Yatta he is referring to is out of the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Mr. Munyasia: Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 116

CHIEFS PARTICIPATING IN KANU MEETING, UGUNJA MARKET

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House what legal steps he had taken to discipline those chiefs and subchiefs who practically involved themselves in a Kanu meeting on the 19th January 1969, at Ugunja Market, where resolutions using abusive and violent words were passed against the KPU Members of Parliament and the Leader of the Opposition, the hon. Oginga Odinga.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No legal steps could be taken because the allegation is unfounded.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is becoming the way of this Minister to try and defend something which has happened. Will he tell me and the House who had a meeting on the 19th January this year in this market and who was the chairman?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member should be in a better position to know. May I add to that question that the chief and the subchief of the area were at Ugunja Market during the meeting carrying out administrative duties; neither the chief nor the subchief spoke nor did anything that could be regarded as tactical involvement in any other matters political or Kanu, and as they never spoke a word at the meeting, this is actual fact.

Mr. Odero-Sar: In view of the fact that the Minister is telling the House an incorrect answer, is he not aware that the Kanu chairman in their district, Mr. Walter Odede, convened a Kanu meeting and the chief and the subchief attended, and this was not administrative work?

Mr. M. Koinange: That, Mr. Speaker, I am not aware of, and if Kanu actually called a meeting which was open to everybody, the attendance and speaking at the meeting—It was that they were involved, which I decline.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister trying to tell us in this House that there are some political meetings at which Government servants are allowed, and to some of them they are not allowed, since he has told us that the meeting involved was not purely political but was called for all members of the public? Would he explain that to the public here?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not trying to say that; what I am saying is this: the officials of the Government are actually required and have a right to be at any place as observers, not as participants; they are there for peaceful purposes but not for participation as at a political meeting, whether it is a Kanu meeting, or anything else.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, will the Minister agree with me that these chiefs and subchiefs were invited by letters from Kanu officials of the district to address the meeting?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is fair and proper for a Member of Parliament wishing to hold a meeting to inform the chief. What is wrong with that?

Question No. 14

VEGETABLE PROCESSING FACTORY, HAMISI

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what he was doing to install a vegetable processing factory in Hamisi so that most of the vegetables grown in Hamisi could be exported to other countries for consumption.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It may interest the hon. Member to know that my Ministry has commissioned a market study for Kenya's horticultural produce. This study includes a survey for local production, and inquiry into interim market channels, and a study of local and external market outlets. This study is the first phase of a large project to develop the horticultural industry. As a result of the study, the Minister for Agriculture intends to establish a research and extension programme at a later date to initiate the establishment of processing industries based upon horticultural produce. The preliminary study was started in October 1968, and it is expected to continue for at least a further six months. When the information from the study has been analysed, we shall be able to establish the research and extension priorities with a view to organizing marketing of the produce. We foresee that, with better controlled production and with accurate knowledge of production, the establishment of horticultural crops processing plants should be suitable in different parts of the country to handle what we expect to be an important group of crops. The establishment of such plants will depend upon the regular supply of high-quality produce and the availability of a ready market. The plants established would have to be extremely efficient to meet the challenge of the very strong competition that exists in the field of horticultural processing.

Mr. Godia: Arising from the Assistant Ministers' reply, will he tell the House, whether those concerned with the study and analysis of the process would visit Hamisi and whether they would consider placing our request, as number one.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this study group visits all parts of the country and we hope they will visit Hamisi too.

Question No. 91

AUDIT OF GUSII COUNTY COUNCIL ACCOUNTS

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

- (a) why Gusii County Council accounts had not been audited for the last four years;
- (b) whether it was also true that even estimates of revenue and expenditure had not been approved for the same period.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) The Gusii County Council Accounts have been audited for the years 1964 and 1965. In May 1968, the County Treasurer was removed from office for failure to prepare accounts. Accountants have had to be employed to prepare the 1966/67 accounts and hence the delay.

(b) The estimates of the county council for the year 1966 were not approved. In 1967 and 1968, draft estimates were not approved because of lack of supporting details and failure of council officers to reply to Ministry letters. The same problem exists with the approval of the 1969 estimates.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that an indication that the money in Gusii County Council, is being banked somewhere that nobody knows because nobody knows what is happening with this money? Where does the county council get money to pay its employees if no Revenue or Expenditure Estimates have been prepared?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the money is there. At present we have a Provincial Financial Adviser and he gets in touch with the officers concerned. This delay, I would like to inform the hon. Members is due to the Treasurer who did not speed the matter up as fast as the Ministry required.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the earlier reply that in 1964 and 1965 the books have been audited, why is it that there has been no publication of the inspection of these audit books in accordance with Local Government Regulations?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry is at all times approving the estimates accordingly. These books were audited and that is why my Ministry approved it in 1964 and 1965.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as sometimes the Ministry of Local Government does not get any information from the officers of the county councils, what happens in such cases, or do you leave them as they are?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember I visited Gusii County Council six times last year to ask the officers to submit the details to the Ministry. We always take the initiative, by sending our Provincial Adviser or sometimes we ourselves go in person. We always do that, we do not stay idle.

Question No. 92

SURCHARGE OF GUSII COUNCILLORS

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

- (a) how many Gusii county councillors were involved in surcharge of the council funds in the last two years and how many of them have refunded the money they had been paid unlawfully;
- (b) what time of grace was given by the Minister to repay the money back to the council funds.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Certificates of surcharge have been served against six councillors. All the six have appealed to the Minister and he is in the process of determining their appeals.

Three others have agreed to repay moneys due from them by instalments and, therefore, they are not being surcharged.

The period allowed by the inspector for repayments by the three councillors is up to 30th June 1969.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, why does the Government not prosecute those people who took the money of Gusii County Council without proper authority by sending them to the courts in the same way as it does to the thieves?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry is taking action according to the law of this country.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, arising from the earlier reply that six councillors were surcharged, would the Assistant Minister tell the House why it has taken so long to hear the appeal of only six people since they were surcharged early last year?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the period taken is not too long, because the matter had to be investigated and the Minister had to be satisfied before he took any action.

Question No. 62

NON-CITIZEN RESIDENT MAGISTRATES

Mr. Munyi asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House—

- (a) whether there were any non-citizens working as resident magistrates; and
- (b) if the answer was yes, when those posts would be Africanized.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The answer is yes, to part one. In fact I think I should give the number and say that there are 17 non-citizens employed as resident magistrates. The Government hopes this number of non-citizens will be replaced shortly with Kenya citizens with like qualifications, character and ability. Several posts of resident magistrates have recently been replaced, as the hon. Member may have seen in the Press advertisements. In the meantime, we are fortunate to have these foreign gentlemen who are doing very good by working for the Government. I would like to inform the House that over the last three years five Africans have joined the Judiciary as magistrates. Now, one by one these men left us to either go into private practices or join the Community or the local authorities because of reasons known only to themselves. At the moment, Mr. Speaker, there are two Africans who are in the service and I hope that they will stay and be interested in their work instead of being interested in money.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer from the Attorney-General and from the fact that ever since the first African was appointed Chief Justice he has proved by far better than the former Chief Justice, from the fact that there are a good number of State Counsels working in the Attorney-General's Chambers, and from the fact throughout the country there are some senior magistrates working, is it not possible that if these posts are Africanized and given to experienced African magistrates the work would run even more smoothly than it is running now?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I have just said that we have had five Africans in the Judiciary and three of these men have left us. Therefore, they cannot fill these posts because they are already employed somewhere else. There are only two Africans at the moment in the service.

Mr. Ngala-Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Attorney-General's acceptance of the fact that the salary paid to this type of staff in his Chambers is very low, is he going to look into this? Will the Attorney-General explain that he is going to consider raising salaries for these kind of staff in this country, so that we can have that particular part well staffed by Africans?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I wish I was the Minister for Finance and then say that magistrates will get more money. I think the House will agree that the Judiciary cannot be treated separately from the rest of the Government Service. If you increase the salary in the Judiciary, then other Ministries will also ask for more salary. Therefore, we must be careful, when we increase any salary. The Government is, at the moment, looking into the whole salary structure of the Civil Service and of course, the Judiciary is in the Civil Service.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Although the Attorney-General is saying that the Judiciary is part of the Civil Service, I think he knows very well that it is a different arm of the Government and magistrates are not ordinary civil servants. Would he not agree with me that unless these jobs are made more attractive in terms of payment, and as long as the position continues that a person who leaves the Judicial Department will earn five times more than he has been earning, we shall have no Africans working there and the Judiciary which is an important section of the Government will be run inefficiently?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I am the first person to agree that the salaries paid to magistrates, and also to the civil servants are not as high as the equivalent salaries in the private sectors. But I said, that if we look at one section of the Government and ignore the others, then you will be patching up this whole system. If, for instance, I left the service today, I would probably earn more than three times what I am earning, and, of course, there are people who have worked in Government Service, people who were State Counsels with me, who are now earning four times what I am earning. Who is to blame for that? It is either that our people decide to work for the Government instead of looking for the salaries.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 62:
NON-CITIZEN RESIDENT MAGISTRATES

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, due to the fact that this Question has not been answered according to the desire of the House, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Are you wanting to raise this on the adjournment?

Mr. Karungaru: Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Just ask leave. That is all.

Mr. Munyi: No objection, Mr. Speaker.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 84

KITUI/MACHAKOS ROAD RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House whether he would consider transferring the Kitui/Machakos Road from both county councils to Central Government so that the people of the two districts could have a better exchange of trade and communications.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The problem of the maintenance of all secondary roads in the country and the implication of transferring maintenance responsibilities of these to the Central Government is currently under review. The Kitui/Machakos road will be considered, along with the rest of the roads in the country.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when are we expecting this consideration along with others?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the process has in fact been put in motion.

Question No. 68A

IMPROVEMENT TO ROADS, KILIFI NORTH

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House since there had been a very big improvement of health centres, Harambee secondary schools, etc., in the area of Kilifi North, whether he would consider improving the roads between Mariakani and Kilifi-Ganze, instead of leaving them to be controlled by the Kilifi County Council.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the problem of maintenance of secondary roads throughout the country is currently under review and any decision will await the outcome of that study.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Northern Division of Kilifi District area has been totally neglected, and since this road is very useful because of the creameries at Mariakani, would the Assistant Minister tell us how long they will take to study and give us the decision?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is for this reason, this House passed the Motion last year recommending that the secondary roads should become the responsibility of Central Government and this is the reason, and also because we know roads are not very well looked after, why the Government has set up the machinery to look into the whole question and, as soon as it is completed, the Kilifi Road, along with the other roads in the country, will be considered.

Question No. 101

IRREGULARITIES IN MARKING CERTIFICATE OF PRIMARY EDUCATION EXAMINATION PAPERS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House with reference to a letter dated 10th February 1969 from the General Secretary of Kenya National Union of Teachers circulated to all M.Ps. alleging irregularities experienced by the computer marking the Certificate of Primary Education Papers, whether the Minister would deny such irregularities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before inviting Dr. Kiano to answer this question, I should point out that it refers to a letter which has not actually yet been laid on the Table. It was a letter which the Minister promised to lay on the Table during the last session and omitted to do so. It has since been circulated to hon. Members, but the position would be regularized if he would go through the motion now of laying that letter on the Table. An actual copy is not required, but if you would do that before you answer the question, Dr. Kiano— I think you could then proceed to answer the question.

(The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano) laid the letter on the Table)

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, while going through the formal motion, and I am sure the hon. Members have received copies of the letter in English for those who do not speak the Gusii language, I beg to reply to Question No. 101.

The Kenya National Union of Teachers sought constantly to blame the computer for some irregularities in the marking, but the facts are that some technicians were not trained well enough in the use of the computer and some irregularities occurred as a result. My officers worked day and night to correct these irregularities and I am all for the computer. The mistakes were not made by the computer, but by the personnel employed to handle the computer.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not true that the personnel could do the work better than the computer? Why should the use of a computer be maintained in our country where the question of unemployment is very serious? Why should that be so?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are now training these technicians to make sure that they are fully used to the computer. If the hon. Member insists on marking by hand, he should realize that we have 160,000 pupils taking three papers and if we were to do it by hand, the return to schools would have been seriously delayed.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since most teachers throughout Kenya and most Members of this House are opposed to the marking of papers by computer, would the Minister consider this year using our college personnel to mark the examination papers rather than using the computer.

Dr. Kiano: I am sure the hon. Member is referring to the teacher training colleges, but the facts are that we must not blame a machine for human failure.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one answer, is it not true that the last time papers were both marked by people and secondly by computer, because the first time when the results came out they were found to be incorrect? Therefore, the second marking was to be done by the people in the Ministry, and that is why there was a delay in giving the results of the Certificate of Primary Education and other examinations.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member has just said what I said in simpler English.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers from the Minister that these personnel were not experts, what evidence can he give the House that the persons now employed will do better?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the particular computer used last year had come in the same year and perhaps there was not enough time to train the technicians, and I say in full confidence that during the year 1969, I have trained these fellows far better than during the short time I had in 1968.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 101:
MARKING OF CERTIFICATE OF PRIMARY EDUCATION EXAMINATION PAPERS

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question has been embarrassing many people and is important to the country and, since the people would like the examination papers corrected properly this year, would I be in order to ask the Mover's permission to raise the question on the adjournment, so that I put the case properly to the Minister?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are asking permission to raise the question on the adjournment?

Mr. Godia: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are asking permission to raise this on Adjournment? Any objections?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Oh yes. Yes yanyayeala-guonyi.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, before we go on, I think I have made a mistake here with regard to this particular letter. I was confusing it with another one, concerning advice by the teachers' union to students not to take an examination again in Kisii. This letter was also circulated, I think, to hon. Members, but it has not been officially laid on the Table; so we are glad to have it on the Table for the purpose of this question even though I had the wrong one in mind. I apologize.

The other letter will be laid, I think, another time. Thank you. It was my mistake.

Question No. 117

NZOAIA TRADING CENTRE: ASIANS WITH TRADING LICENCES

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House why some Asian traders at Nzoia Trading Centre, had been licensed to continue with their business this year, 1969.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Early this year, eight non-citizens applied for trade licences to conduct their business as they had done before at Nzoia Trading Centre. Four applications were approved and the rest were turned down. Those Asian traders were granted trade licences in order to give adequate services and to allow time for a smooth take-over of the business by Africans in the area. I expect that in another year or so there will no longer be need to retain the four non-citizens as Africans will come up.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what are the adequate services, since the Asians are in petty trades, which the Africans in the area can do?

Mr. Kerich: Mr. Speaker, I think that is common sense. I would request the hon. Member to start grooming businessmen in his area, so that early in 1970, they will take over these businesses.

Question No. 121

VETERINARY SCOUTS—TANA RIVER

Mr. Wakole asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House whether, since the Ora people are scattered all over the Tana River District in search of grass and water for their cattle and in some places they do not see a veterinary scout for several months, he could consider increasing the veterinary scouts in this district.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer is no, Sir.

Mr. Wakole: Mr. Speaker, Sir, from the answer "No, Sir", could the Assistant Minister tell the House why, Sir?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Tana River District has one District Livestock Officer, three Animal Health Assistants, and four Junior Animal Health Assistants. This establishment is comparable to other similar districts, and we do not agree that the people who want the services of these officers have to go for miles before they can get hold of one.

The Ministry is giving emphasis to more coverage on range matters, in accordance with the Government policy, particularly in view of the proposed range management schemes, and ranching for this area. However, although we would like to increase the number of staff to cope with additional work, we are held up due to the lack of funds. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am proposing to tour the Tana River District next month, and I will discuss the matter with the Government officers in the field.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to the hon. Questioner, does the Assistant Minister agree with me that it is the duty of the hon. Questioner to advise his constituents to organize themselves into settlement ranching schemes?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not hear what he said.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Repeat your question, Mr. Komora.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with all due respect to the hon. Questioner, would the Assistant Minister not agree with me that the hon. Questioner should and must advise his people to stay together in ranching schemes, rather than scattering themselves all over the place?

Mr. Murgor: If the hon. Member is asking that the hon. Member should advise his people to stay in one place, rather than moving from one place to another, I would accept his theme.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

ILLEGAL COURTS BY SUBCHIEF, MULANGO
LOCATION

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister of State, President's Office, the following question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that on 26th February 1969, in Mulango Location—Thome 10 and 11—the Subchief Isika Kikulu formed an illegal court and fined a schoolboy namely Iieli, Sh. 70?
- (b) That on 29th February 1969, the same subchief held another illegal court and fined the same boy Sh. 40 plus three goats?
- (c) That on 26th April 1969, the same subchief held another illegal court and fined the following school pupils as follows:—

| | | |
|----------------------|------|----------|
| (i) Nguthu Mwanza | 10/- | 3 goats. |
| (ii) Kanuku Mutio | 10/- | 3 goats. |
| (iii) Mutia Muli | 10/- | 1 goat. |
| (iv) Mutinda Kalinde | 10/- | 3 goats. |
| (v) Kavuu Nguli | 10/- | 3 goats. |

What were the reasons for these fines?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Conversation quieter please!

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware of any illegal court having been held by Subchief Isika Kikulu on the respective dates mentioned by the hon. Member. However, I am aware of an attempt by local elders to settle a dispute between Mr. Mwembe and five boys who were involved in an assault on his daughter, in which the fines mentioned by the hon. Member were imposed.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that confusing reply by the Minister in which he is trying to cover up the truth, is the Minister aware that there were eight elders under the chairmanship of the said subchief on the 26th—

Hon. Members: Illegal courts?

Mr. Munyasia: That was an illegal court on 26th, and according to what I have here about that, the boys paid Sh. 10 each plus three goats and the other Sh. 70 were paid to the same subchief who is retaining it until now. Why is this?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some time this year five schoolboys assaulted Mr. Mwembe's daughter. When the matter was reported to the subchief by Mr. Mwembe, he was advised to let the matter be dealt with by the local elders according, Mr. Speaker, to Akamba Atui customary law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to mention here that it is the duty either of the chief, or subchiefs to assist people of the area to settle some of their disputes without unnecessarily going into the courts. This advice, Mr. Speaker, however, is given on the understanding that if the parties involved in the dispute do not agree to the settlement, they are free to take the matter to a court of law. In this case, Mr. Speaker, they did not agree, and the matter is still outstanding. The Members will be informed because the parties in question took the matter to the court.

Mr. Munyasia: Being disappointed by the answer, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask if the Minister is aware that the matter was reported to the District Officer, Central, and the District Officer, Central, did drive to the same sublocation, and found the chief had held an illegal court—and there is the record—and all the money was returned except the Sh. 70 which the subchief still has, and also Sh. 40 and three goats which were paid for by a teacher, who is not a woman but a man? Why?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I gave the information which I have received this afternoon, and I believe this to be quite correct.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENTMATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE: ILLEGAL COURTS IN MULANGO
LOCATION

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will you allow me to pursue this matter further so that I can shame the Minister by laying my evidence on the Table?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! We must go on now. Mr. arap Moi, you have a Ministerial Statement to make, I believe.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

ALLEGATIONS OF CORRUPTION IN SENIOR CIVIL SERVANTS

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make a Ministerial Statement on a matter which was referred to in this House in the course of the debate on the Presidential Address.

In the course of this Presidential Address, serious allegations were made against the integrity of certain civil servants. These allegations culminated to the pinpointing of two civil servants who are alleged to have acquired properties in a corrupt manner.

In a succinct and clear statement, the hon. G. F. Oduya, Member for Busia North, alleged that two Permanent Secretaries, namely Mr.

[The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs]

J. G. Kibe and Mr. A. J. Omanga, had acquired certain properties in Nairobi and elsewhere, and had paid cash for the properties. In his own words, he said, and I quote:—

“With your permission, Sir, I would like to give one or two examples. The first one is a very specific case. There is one Permanent Secretary—I will come to his name later—who, in 1967, bought a house, the land registration No. is L.R. 7258/31/Nairobi, value Sh. 62,000. In 1968, he bought a house registration No. L.R. 2327/99/Kiambu, value Sh. 62,000 cash. The same person then bought another house in 1969, land registration number L.R. No. 3734/326/Nairobi, on which he built a house for cash amounting to Sh. 180,000. The total being well over Sh. 300,000. The salary of this man, as I have calculated, is only for the last five years when he has worked as a Permanent Secretary, is Sh. 280,000, besides taxation, expenses and besides anything. This property he has bought is beside all other property he has. The man concerned is Andrew Omanga, the Permanent Secretary for Home Affairs. This is an example to show there is corruption. How is it that an individual like this has bought property worth this amount and yet his salary is below what he has spent on housing alone? What about other things because I hear he has large farms also? This means there is something wrong within the framework of the Government.”

The hon. Member, Mr. Oduya, also said, and I quote:—

“There is another one who bought a house in 1966, L.R. No. — I did not get the number because I was in a hurry, but he bought a house for Sh. 70,000 in 1966. In 1968, he again bought another house worth Sh. 130,000, these are all cash. In 1969, this year, he bought through an organization called National Property Company, of which he himself is the chairman. You can see there is corruption there. The chairman himself taking Sh. 200,000 to buy property amounting to well over Sh. 400,000.

Now, Sir, we are told that people must compete. This man is called J. G. Kibe, Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Commerce and Industry. I do not want to go to the politicians because they are also politicians, a few of them here.”

Due to the gravity of these allegations, the Government has carried out investigations to ascertain these facts. I would like to inform this House that the relevant documents show clearly how these gentlemen acquired these properties.

These documents have been verified and have been found to be in order. The documents show clearly that the money was obtained from financial institutions to buy properties. They also received credit facilities from commercial banks or deposited their life policies against such credits, and also used their personal savings. The properties in question are mortgaged, and instalments are being paid regularly. Credit facilities from these financial institutions are available to anyone provided that the requirements of the financial institutions are met.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the hon. Members will take this matter to be a serious one. They should listen very attentively.

Most serious of all, Sir, it is completely untrue that Mr. Kibe ever bought any property at all for Sh. 200,000 either through the National Property Company or otherwise.

In view of the fact that these allegations have now been proved wrong, Mr. Speaker, Government is now asking you, Sir, to require the hon. Mr. G. F. Oduya to withdraw them and apologize to this House.

Hon. Members: No. Why?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, I wish to lay the following documents on the Table which show clearly how these gentlemen have acquired their properties.

(The hon. the Vice-President laid the documents on the Table)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): I have concluded, Mr. Speaker, and I want to say that these Members, will one day, if they play about with the names of individuals without getting the true facts, find themselves caught.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

Hon. Members, Mr. arap Moi has given you a statement as a result of investigations by the Government into these two allegation, and he has laid certain papers on the Table in support of his findings. Those papers will, of course, be available for all hon. Members to see. I have seen them already, and I can inform hon. Members that they consist of full statements by the two officers concerned as to what properties they acquired and how, supported by documents proving that they were, in fact, acquired through normal financial assistance from commercial concerns, insurance companies and so on; also, in the case of the alleged purchase by Mr. Kibe of property for Sh. 200,000, that is completely denied.

[The Speaker]

Now, comparing the facts given here with what Mr. Oduya said to the House, I find, as regards the purchases by Mr. Omanga, Mr. Oduya was substantially correct in his facts as to what purchases had taken place. He was not completely correct, but he was substantially correct. The only difference was, an important difference, that although the properties had indeed been bought for cash, as he said, that cash had been found by finance from elsewhere in the ordinary way.

As regards Mr. Omanga, therefore, I cannot say that Mr. Oduya has anything to apologize for in the facts that he brought before the House; but I can assure the House—and I am sure the House will be satisfied when they see these papers—that there was a perfectly innocent explanation of these purchases. So Mr. Omanga is completely in the clear.

As regards Mr. Kibe, again, as regards two of the purchases, Mr. Oduya was substantially correct as to what purchases had taken place; but his dates were wrong. Again, it transpires that the money was by way of finance from ordinary sources.

However, as regards the alleged purchase of Sh. 200,000 through the National Property Company, there was a very serious allegation coupled with a direct charge of corruption which is completely unfounded. That was a very serious thing indeed.

So I must now require Mr. Oduya, in that case, where of course, Mr. Kibe is also cleared completely, to make a complete withdrawal and a very sincere apology to Mr. Kibe and to the House.

Mr. Oduya: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Since this is a hon. House and as you have rightly explained, I take the part of Sh. 200,000, as you said, seriously. Therefore, I do not want to argue there. I apologize to my friend, Mr. Kibe. I also withdraw the remarks made in relation to the Sh. 200,000 only.

Thank you, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is quite correct, except that I do not quite like that qualification at the very end, Mr. Oduya because you did ask the House to suspect these other purchases. Now, I have told you there is clear evidence which removes all suspicion. Without asking you to apologize, I hope that you will all accept that all suspicion is now removed. You did not mean to suggest, I hope, Mr. Oduya, that any suspicion remains.

Mr. Oduya: No, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Thank you.

I must just comment on this before we move on.

It is the duty of hon. Members to bring to the notice of this House facts which are disturbing the public, and to ask for explanation of those facts. But it is equally the responsibility, and a very heavy one, of hon. Members to make absolutely sure that they are true facts. It is a vital responsibility this, and any abuse of the privilege that you have in doing such things spoils the whole reputation of this House.

There is provision in Standing Orders for a Member who makes serious allegations, which he cannot substantiate, not only to be required to apologize but to be named for misconduct. In this case, because Mr. Oduya has been so quick to withdraw and apologize without reservation, I do not think I shall take any further action. But I do warn hon. Members that, on another equally serious occasion, it will not stop at an apology; there will be a naming of the Member concerned.

MOTIONTHANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi) on 21st May 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 28th May 1969) (Sixth Day)

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to say a few words about this Presidential Address.

First of all, Sir, I would like to take this opportunity to say that the Presidential Address did not actually touch on the very important point: the question of the national plan for the country. When we came to this House we were given an economic plan for 1964/66. Since that time, we have been told off and on that this country's plan is still being reviewed. That is to say, this country is now without any plan. It is just like somebody who is trying to build a house, a modern house without a plan. That is why we have this huge rate of unemployment, that is why this strikes us every day. This is because there is no national plan. That is why there are no schools, not enough classrooms, not enough hospitals; these things cannot be there without a plan. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the whole Kenya nation is moving in darkness. We do not know where we are going.

I understand there is talk that we may have a plan for 1969/74. How can you make plans for years when a person does not know whether he is going to be elected? How can you plan for the years when, probably, KPU will be in power and will destroy that plan and have another instead? Sir, this is a way of bluffing the public. In fact, the Government has failed very much in leading the nation. The Government has had no plan.

Sir, you find 32-storeyed houses in Nairobi but in Kisumu, since independence, we have not seen—

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to repeat exactly what the hon. Okelo-Odongo said? Is he in order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a rule against repetition, Mr. Okuto Bala. I do not mind quite so much, when hon. Members are limited in their speeches, if they like to use their ten minutes by repeating what somebody else has said. We do not actually waste any time thereby. But it would be better if you said something new.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if HANSARD is read, it may be found there is some repetition but not every word, I am sure. In any case I will leave that point alone because I would not like to repeat.

Now, Sir, the Presidential Address did not mention anything on this question of people being detained for a long time without any proper grounds. The President said there was stability in this country. Then why detain people indefinitely? We have had so many of our people detained, and they have been detained, some of them since 1965, 1966, to date. If the President really believes that there is stability in this country, why should he continue detaining our people without bringing them to justice? It is one thing to talk about stability and another to detain people when, in fact, somebody has given the world to understand that there is stability in this country, there is no danger, and so on. I think that is not a sincere statement. If the President was really sincere about stability, then the people who have been detained— In fact, Sir, they are all Luo, which means that there is somebody, somewhere who is only against the Luo. If there was any danger, then the danger would not only come from the Luo.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can he substantiate that all those detained are Luo?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, I was going to say that of the people who are detained, all but one are Luo. If there is this instability in the country, then is it only the Luo who are against this Government? That is a wrong thing. In fact, Sir, these people have been detained for too long.

I think the President should be advised by the Vice-President, who is also responsible for detention, that these people are no longer dangerous to the stability of this country, and they should be released.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Rading joined them.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member says that Rading joined them. In any case, when he joined them he was wrongly advised and he ended up by losing his deposit. So they should be careful of those who are joining them from the Opposition. Some are rejected people who are not wanted but these are joining the other party to tell them certain fitnas, which is not a good thing. They end up by losing their deposits even though the Ministers spend a lot of time in Luo country trying to campaign. Nobody goes to their meetings.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the President appealed for Africanization in private industries and businesses to go on. However, the people who are actually entering industry and business must be assisted. This question of taking loans from Government institutions must be done without any tribalism. I challenge the Minister for Commerce and Industry that if a list were to be produced in this Chamber showing the people who have got loans, 90 per cent of the loans would have been found to have gone to Kikuyus and to nobody else. This is not the way of Africanizing industry. We must see that the loans go to every community in Kenya. In fact, people from my area have complained so much that, in fact, they say publicly the Luos are being discriminated against when they try to get loans from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. It may be that they do not have a Luo on the board of directors.

How is it, Mr. Speaker, that the people who have been in the detention camps—they have been out for only six years—own bars in Kisumu, in Kakamega, in Kericho; where did they get the money? However, the people who have been out here and who were never detained, cannot even afford to own a shop in Murang'a. Why is it that these people are owning shops everywhere? There must be a plan somewhere privately about which we must be told. We are not going to allow all the tribes in Kenya, the Kisii, the Kakamega, the Luo, to be dominated by only one tribe. This is impossible. This is not national unity; we cannot have national unity based on one tribe dominating everybody.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, everybody fought for this independence and nobody should feel that somebody is the only man who fought for this independence. Without some of these tribal groups in Kenya who united against the imperialists and helped the Kikuyu we would never have achieved independence and, as such, nobody should believe that he is the only person in this country who rules this country; the Government is the Government for the people of Kenya and not a Government based on somebody believing that he is the only big head. That sort of thing is the sort of thing that brought about the evils of Biafra in Nigeria and we do not want to see that sort of thing happening in this country.

Mr. Speaker, when we talk about going back to the land: personally, in the area that I come from, the settlement scheme from Muhoroni, you find somebody working on the land for four years and when his sugar-cane is harvested he gets about Sh. 4,500, but all this Sh. 4,500 is deducted for loans for development and he gets nothing, or sometimes he gets a cheque for 30 cents. Thirty cents cash after somebody has worked for about four years in a settlement scheme, and he cannot get anything. This kind of thing is discouraging him from trying to work hard on the land. The President's attention should be drawn to such matters.

I have here, Mr. Speaker, a list of over 100 names of people who have harvested their sugar-cane, but then you find somebody being given 30 cents, somebody being given Sh. 5/80, when he is entitled to about Sh. 5,000.

Mr. Muruli: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to interrupt the hon. Member, but he has just said that after a farmer has worked for four years on his sugar-cane farm he gets a cheque for 30 cents; can he substantiate that a farmer gets a cheque for 30 cents?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I said was that you find that a farmer works for four years and then he gets nothing, or for that matter he gets only 30 cents. I have here a letter written to Mr. Mark B. Obkwore, Muhoroni Area, Council Chairman—he is the Muhoroni Area Council Chairman—P.O. Box 12, Muhoroni. Mr. Speaker, this is the list of some of the people who have harvested their cane and you find in Tamu Scheme, you find in Muhoroni Scheme, you find also in Godogoro Scheme, and I give one example here, Plot No. 061226: he harvested 91.6 tons, he got Sh. 4,188/75 and he ended up with nothing, and so on and so forth. I would like to lay this on the Table for any Minister to see. We are not going to work free.

(The hon. Member laid the letter on the Table)

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks, I beg to oppose.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, I want also to speak on the President's Speech.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I want to start on the question of the National Assembly elections. We have been for about six years Members of the National Assembly of Kenya and we must have enough experience ourselves and we must know where we are, and we must know also what we are going to face.

An hon. Member: Tell us.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): One of my hon. colleagues is asking me to tell him and that is what I am going to do, Mr. Speaker.

My belief, Mr. Speaker, is that we should be proud to be Members of the National Assembly and that we should save the public from an expensive National Assembly General Election, and so each Member must know his own standing. To say that, in the first General Election we had we were apprentices, some of us, and we had to depend on somebody, some organization, to tell us how to work and what we could do. I think it is high time that these hon. Members went back again to ask how to campaign. This is to show that somebody is not capable and that is what I am saying. We must convince our people of nothing else but our party and, secondly, get our people to vote for us. In my experience, I have seen that most of the Members do not depend on the voters and the party, but they depend on someone. That is how mistakes come about what is going to happen. If we have only one evil group which has wrong feelings, the whole organization will collapse, and who is going to be blamed? The blame is on yourself because I do not see why the blame should be on somebody else. You should first think of yourself as a man and then you can come back to the National Assembly as a man and then you can be proud that you are an experienced National Assembly Member.

Also, Mr. Speaker, I appeal to hon. Members because I want all of them to come back to the National Assembly. I want to see these Members here because we are experienced in the National Assembly. When we come to elections we are going to use this experience we have when we come back. If we are all new here, we will come back as new people such as in 1963—all will be crude—and I do not like that. I want all my colleagues to use their energy and convince their people so that they can come back to the National Assembly with seven years' experience. This will give us good National Assembly Members with this much experience.

Mr. Speaker, as I have said, to do this we must face this problem as individual constituency Members and this can help us. I know my business because I have been a Member of the National Assembly and I have a Kanu mandate and I have taken part in three other elections besides my own. I was responsible for these other elections. Through those elections, including mine, I noticed that a person always depended on somebody else. Suppose the party chairman is weak and does not know how to organize and he does not know how to conduct the campaign, the candidate has to look elsewhere for support. There is something wrong there. I want all hon. Members to realize that we are going to stand on our feet deciding our National Assembly and our party, but not someone else or some other group.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, I want to go to the Ministry of Works. The Ministry of Works is responsible for the roads and for Government buildings. I appeal to the Government to help us to find the proper way which is not very expensive and technical. As regards houses, we are getting a lot of letters about recovering furniture and the repair of the houses and so I appeal to the civil servants to use their furniture in the correct way as well as maintain our houses properly. At the same time, I appeal to the public that they should use the roads in the proper way. I mean that the county councils, during the rainy time, should ensure that people are careful in the way they use the murrum roads. You find that when the rains come and people are using four-wheel drive or other heavy vehicles, they are spoiling the roads. To maintain these roads, Mr. Speaker, is very expensive and we need a lot of money, but where are we going to get that money? I appeal to all the hon. Members who put these questions about the roads from here to there to look out that the roads they have now are used carefully, particularly during the rainy weather. In my experience, I am also using the same as the others are using, and you must be careful. If you look at the vote for the Ministry of Works you find that it is very big, but if you look at what they have done with it, you will be surprised. The buildings are very expensive and they are not expensive on economy alone, they are also expensive because we have to use technical men who are expensive to be paid.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not have much to say on this. The only thing I want to say is that I appeal to the hon. Members to go back home when we have a recess, or when we adjourn, so that they come back with good faith when the General Election comes. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as both His Excellency and yourself said, this will be the last time that we debate the Presidential speech during during the life of this Parliament.

Mr. Speaker, as one responsible for a Ministry and only given ten minutes to answer what has been said on agriculture during the debate so far, it is an impossibility. Therefore, I think the points raised on agriculture are best left, perhaps, to the Agriculture Vote as, for the last six or seven years, it has always been the first vote. Mr. Speaker, as it is very doubtful that I will be standing here again for the next Presidential speech, I would like to take the opportunity of looking to the future as far as agriculture is concerned.

Since independence, Mr. Speaker, the country has now become self-sufficient in all its food-stuffs. Not only that, it has built up a strategic reserve which can keep us fully fed for 18 months at any time. Also and above that, our exports have gone up considerably.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the time has come when knowing that we only possess one-fifth of high potential land that in the future more per acre has got to be produced. Also our own people within Kenya have got to learn to consume more of what we grow. The Ministry has lately been reorganized and is ready now to, as it were, move off the launching pad, and there are three main aspects which must be taken care of by this House in the future of agriculture. One is that the planning section of the Ministry of Agriculture remains strong and that Kenyans serve in it. Secondly, that market research—one of the most vital elements in an independent country such as ours—has now reached the stage when we are getting involved in world markets, is most necessary. Members in this House seem to forget that we are the only independent country in Africa which has reached this stage of market research. Also we need to strengthen our general research in all aspects of agriculture. It is in these three aspects that agriculture has got to move ahead during the next decade, because there is nothing else for this country to rely on, at the moment, without having found oil or any minerals. It is only agriculture that one can rely on.

In the Estimates and in the Budget, hon. Members will learn of the tremendous development which is going to take place both in horticulture and in livestock over the next planning period. We are fortunate that the United Nations and the World Bank have accepted and loaned us a great deal of money and personnel to develop these areas which have never had much spent on them before.

I would like, Mr. Speaker, to take the opportunity of congratulating certain of the pastoral tribes who, already, are taking up this challenge in such a way that it has astounded not only me, but members of my staff. It was doubted for many years whether some of these pastoral people had the capacity to respond, and they most certainly have.

It is a pity, Mr. Speaker, that hon. Members in this House do not go around the country more to see what we have got, instead of travelling and worrying mainly about political meetings. We have, for instance, at Egerton, the finest agricultural college in Africa, including the Union of South Africa, and yet when I was up there the other day, I was even amazed myself to see what that board had done, mainly through voluntary contributions from various parts of the world. We have institutions and organizations, we are growing things in this part of the world and there are people who are doing fantastic jobs. It hurt me a lot the other day to hear what was said about certain of our civil servants, Mr. Speaker. I want to talk about my own civil servants in my Ministry.

Mr. Speaker, as regards the civil servants in my Ministry: I challenge any hon. Member in this House to go there any day he likes and he will see them in my Ministry working there until 7, 7.30 and even 9 at night, every day of the week. I have seen them working on Sundays in the Ministry. It is these civil servants and this calibre of civil servant who is carrying this Government. It hurts me a lot, Mr. Speaker, when I hear generalized criticisms of civil servants. There are civil servants in our Government, the great majority of them, whom we are very, very fortunate in having, and I think that hon. Members should, Mr. Speaker, try and find out a little more of some of the hardships which civil servants suffer. They know, a lot of these civil servants, that the people above them are young and they are not going to get promotion for some time. These are problems which they have to face, yet they continue to serve the Government loyally.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I heard also in this debate which we have had, that there are various things going wrong in the country. Mr. Speaker, one can criticize any country. I know that a lot of hon. Members have visited other countries, but unfortunately these visits seemingly are to the developed countries which really want them to go to those countries so they can impress them either with their ideologies or with their development and so on. I would like to be able to have power to send some of these hon. Members to some other African countries. They could then come home, Mr. Speaker, and see what is happening here in Kenya in comparison to some of the other countries. We are fortunate. If you go through our institutions, at Egerton the other day I found there were 179 out of 600 students from 11 other African countries. We are ahead of these countries and we have something to be proud of. Do not let us always criticize, Mr. Speaker, but let us be proud of some of the things which our people have done in the short time that we have been independent.

Mr. Speaker, let us also realize that if it was not for His Excellency, our President, we would not have reached the stage we have reached today. Irrespective, Mr. Speaker, of what party we belong to, irrespective of what we want in the future, we will never be able to continue to develop as we have developed, unless we have stability, and it is on this one point which I would like to end, Mr. Speaker, and that is to call upon hon. Members now that we are coming up to an Election, to remember that it depends entirely on them whether we can continue to develop.

I am not interested in talking about money from one country or another country, our biggest supporters are the various United Nations organizations and other such international organizations. They keep a close eye on what is happening in Kenya. For instance, we ran into problems the minute it was found we had lorries with overweight on their axles going up and down our Mombasa road. This immediately affected me and my Ministry on a loan which we were negotiating with the World Bank. The whole of this type of thing in a Government is interlocked.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that agriculture in the future is going to be difficult, because we cannot any longer control the prices for our commodities because we are now in the world market. This is why we are now moving with all the money which people will see in the next

[The Minister for Agriculture]

Budget and in the Development Budget, into live-stock and diversification. Farmers, for the benefit of Kenya in this next decade have to be able to produce what they are producing now at a cheaper rate. I heard the hon. Member, Mr. Okutu Bala, talking about the settlement schemes. He is right. We know as a Government that there are problems. I know there are problems there because the agricultural aspect falls under me. I also know as he knows, Mr. Speaker, that there are some co-operatives in that area who are not pulling their weight. There are some co-operatives which are exceptional. He also knows about the Ahero Irrigation Scheme, Mr. Speaker, which was criticized in this House by certain people when we wanted to start it, people who said Luos would not be able to work the scheme properly. Today those critics have been answered. The people down there at Ahero have done an incredible job of work. They are the people whom I would like the hon. Members to talk about. These people who have astounded the experts in what they have done in the short while in that irrigation scheme. Let it be said in this House, they have done as well as the people at Mwea.

I keep hearing somebody saying something about prices. Mr. Speaker, you can only afford to pay for a product what you are going to receive for that product. You cannot afford to pay more. If this country wants to continue to develop it has to export, and it has to learn to be able to bring its production and its costs in line with world exports. Unless they can do that, Mr. Speaker, they are going to be left out of the race.

I beg to support.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I have only a very few points to make. First of all I would like to express my appreciation for the comments which you and the President made in bringing the people and the Members of this House more in tune with what is going on.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what I am going to say is what I have experienced since His Excellency the President assigned me to the office of provincial administration and also Foreign Affairs on his behalf. I have been able to scrutinize as far as possible, the civil servants whom I have been working with, and frankly, I trust them.

My second point is this, Mr. Speaker. Recently before His Excellency came here to give his speech, he had about a week with the provincial administration district commissioners at the Kenya Institute of Administration at Kabete, where I had an opportunity to close the seminar and all members left there. The first appeal His Excellency made was that they must work together with the Members of Parliament, with the citizens in the area wherever they are. The Government and every department must work together. It is true, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that they have worked together. The result of their work, and which is also the result of the efforts of Members here, is that when it comes to the recent example of the Armed Forces Hospital, money has been collected in a real way, a friendly way by every person, Members included, as a symbol, not only of unity but to show, Mr. Speaker, that when each province decides to work together they do so. When many of the provincial commissioners were bringing the money to His Excellency they were bringing along Members of Parliament and Cabinet Ministers in some cases. I am very proud of this joint venture.

The name of Kenya starting in a small way, has grown because of the seriousness, Mr. Speaker, of our civil servants, be they the ambassadors whom we have sent according to their ability to various countries, to the United Nations, or New York or elsewhere. They have done wonderfully well and have helped to create the name of Kenya. When you come to commerce and industry, people are flocking to Kenya to invest here. Why? Because the combination of Members of Parliament and the Government, which is the civil servants—they themselves are Government—has created peace and stability in this country. The result, Mr. Speaker, of this stability, of co-operation between Members of Parliament, and civil servants wherever they work, has made Kenya the centre of tourism. People come here without fear. I am glad you warned my brothers here, Mr. Speaker, that if we have dirty clothes we must not wash them in this sacred place, our Parliament. What we do outside, if we make any mistake we should bring our mistakes together there but not to this microphone, which is used by the world press, to see what we are saying. The people then start to wonder why, if we feel Kenya is so stable, do we have these people attacking one another.

My appeal, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is this. If a person moves from province to province without malice, without prejudice, he will see that without exaggeration we have moved from 1963 to this year, and when I use the word move, I mean economically, educationally in every aspect, and that is why, Mr. Speaker, His Excellency the President said that he appreciates the prestige of the Members here. You are the Speaker, and you know what we used to be like in the beginning, a good many of us. How we used to use the Parliamentary regulations here. You have guided us and we have grown in stability. No sooner do we have a long holiday and come back and we are praised by His Excellency the President, and then two days later we start to throw rotten eggs between ourselves. What I am appealing for, Mr. Speaker, is that we refrain from throwing rotten eggs at one another. If there is a deliberate mistake I am not suggesting that we hide it. If there is any person who has done wrong, including myself, I should not be forgiven. I should be brought to justice if I am a criminal. A person should not come here and say something only to delay the debate, by our throwing rotten eggs unnecessarily against each other.

My last point is this. A Member of Parliament here—and this is repetition of what I have said before—and the district commissioner or the district officer, the provincial commissioner or the civil servants anywhere, are Members of this Government. They are totally inseparable. Nobody can say he is a Member of Parliament of this House alone and outside within the Government of Kenya. It cannot be done. There is not a civil servant who can say he is a civil servant only in the room where he is working and not outside. After all that very room belongs to the Government. Having said that we have a joint responsibility to steer the progress of the country we love, and the people we love, without malice, without bitterness and without prejudice.

As to the question of race and tribalism, Mr. Speaker, I am saying this. It is quite true that when the Missionaries started schools, they started in Mombasa, then they came to Machakos, then to Kitui, then Kabete, and it is absolutely true that members of the Central Province received education earlier, much earlier than the others. That is absolutely true. You may ask why? It is because of an individual seeking that education. Furthermore, the nature of the people of the Wakamba tribe, they like to be seen, and are proud to be smart with a gun, and the majority of them, Mr. Speaker, joined the army, and when His Excellency the President honoured Ndolo and others, people said this was tribalism. Mr. Speaker, if you turn to the police there you find all Luos. If we are here to say something other than about the efficiency and the ability of an individual, if we start talking about tribalism then we are committing national suicide.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, thank you very much indeed for giving me this opportunity to take part in this debate.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would first of all like to congratulate our President for the way he delivered his Presidential Speech to this House, and also to the Members of Parliament for the way they have made endeavours to bring out different points, and also to put across to the Government various views.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, speaking generally on my Ministry, there are a few Members of Parliament here who have expressed concern and also sentiments on my Ministry on the way in which we are executing our duty every day. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I said I share with these Members, I am with them in their concern and join in their sentiments when they talk about jobs. But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, let me say this to the House. We are lucky in that at no time in the history of Kenya have opportunities for jobs ever been better than they are now. This is because of the stability which Kenya has shown since we attained our independence. We have had mature leadership in the person of His Excellency the President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. It is because of his maturity that we have had this stability which, as a result, has created such opportunities for jobs.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I may only give some statistics for the period from January this year up to now of how my officers have worked in the Labour Exchange. No doubt the Members of Parliament will see for themselves that although we are not pretending that we have done everything possible, that the officers are trying their level best. I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, they should be congratulated and encouraged so that more and more work will be done. From January, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to the 30th April this year, 11,375 school leavers, from Standard I to Standard VII, have been registered with the Labour Exchange. I am not talking about the school certificate people but about the C.P.E.s and also the illiterate people. Out of this number, Mr. Deputy Speaker, 1,231 of those who registered as work seekers have been placed, both in Government and in the private sector. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is a record, and we have to congratulate both the labour officers and also the job seekers who have taken the trouble to go and register themselves. For those who roam about seeking letters from Ministers, Assistant Ministers and the Members of Parliament, from managers, letters to recommend them to different offices, I have this to say: some have wasted a lot of time in doing this because this is not the way to get employment. The way to get employment easily is to get to the labour exchange and be registered as a job-seeker. Getting letters from the Minister—it does not matter whether it is from the Minister of Labour himself—does not help. If we allow this sort of thing to continue, then tribalism, nepotism and call it what you will, will develop. Therefore, it is my appeal, and I mean it, that all the people, from all parts of Kenya, regardless of the place, provided that they are seeking employment, should go to the Labour Exchange.

I am not an angel; I am full of faults like any other human being and if any hon. Member of Parliament here, sees a fault in the Labour Exchange, let him come to my office and tell me what is happening and I promise that I will take steps to correct it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the day before yesterday, hon. Kamwithi Munyi charged the Government, very seriously, of allowing 5,000 people to work in Kenya without work permits but these are the people who belong to a cadre, a class whose registration has not been called up. A good example is the class of accountants. We have very many accountants working in Kenya without work permits because that class has not been called up.

I think the hon. Members heard me say to the hon. Kamwithi Munyi that I wanted him to come to my office to tell me or give me the list of the names he has. I am still waiting for him up to now.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, mine is really an appeal to the hon. Members of this Parliament that if they say anything here, let them take seriously whatever they say, but they should not just talk and leave the talk here because that does not do anybody any good. So I am still waiting for hon. Kamwithi to come.

The other hon. Member who charged the Government very seriously is the hon. Mr. Mbogoh, who said that he had a list of school leavers, some with Division I, some with Division II and others with Division III, that these fellows have been placed in jobs in a dishonest manner. Some of those holding Division III have been placed into jobs while those with Divisions I and II were ignored and not given jobs. I said that although I am not the person in charge of the Directorate of Personnel, I promised to do something if only he could bring me the list of these fellows; and I am still waiting for this list. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this shows, and it is a good example, that some hon. Members just talk for the sake of talking. This is wrong, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

QUORUM

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is there a quorum in the House?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, we do not have a quorum. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, will you rule that in future between 3.30 p.m. and 4.30 p.m., the question of quorum should not arise because the hon. Members are taking their tea?

An hon. Member: You will have to amend the Standing Orders.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Ngala-Abok, do you think that is a point of order? Do you really think it is, or are you trying to be funny? Do not try to do it again, please.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Mwendwa.

(Resumption of debate)

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker. On the side of the Kenyanization Bureau which a few hon. Members have attacked here, and in fact some went to the extent of saying that it should be abolished, I wish the hon. Members would listen and hear what the Department has achieved from January to April this year. I wish to say, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that in that office I have human beings and not angels. They are bound to make mistakes but I would like to be told, as the Minister in charge, the mistakes which have been made by my officers and I will endeavour to correct them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, from January to April this year, 988 people, among whom 886 were school leavers who have gone up to Form IV, have registered themselves with the Labour Exchange as job-seekers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, out of these 900, 610 applicants have been put into training institutes. Out of these, 382 school leavers have been placed into jobs. One might consider this, Mr. Deputy Speaker, as a small number, but considering the fact that it is only four months I am talking about, it is not a small number at all.

It is our hope, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that by the end of this year, quite a number of these applicants will have been placed either in institutes or in jobs. However, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to register one thing. I want the hon. Members to listen very carefully. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the approach of the school leavers to life has been wrong. The time has come, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when this attitude must be changed. If it is the belief of the school leavers that they will all get white-collar jobs, they are making a great mistake because this has never been done in any country and it will never be so in Kenya. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have nothing to apologize for, but let me say this: since we attained independence, Kenya has put education on a par with any other project. Many Harambee secondary schools have sprung up. I would like to tell the House that before we had independence, Kitui had only two high schools. Now we have 15 high schools which means that the school leavers up to Form IV are more than ever. Therefore, we have to swing with the times, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and I have to finish the sentence by telling the school leavers to change their approach to life. They have to go back and help their parents with whatever work they are doing in farms or shops because, at any rate, Mr. Speaker, they have had the education to do that.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance on this. Has the Minister the right to advise the students of what to do instead of advising the Minister for Education to change the policy of education?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The Minister is asking us to advise the students.

Mr. Chirchir: Thank you very much Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope I will be very brief. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am joining hands with my colleagues who have spoken since last week, and also thanking His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta during the time he delivered his Speech here, I think everybody was very pleased.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have a few comments which I would like to make now. To begin with, I would like to say something concerning the economy of Kenya which His Excellency did not mention. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is because we have several plans in the books which our people of Kenya refused to go on reading without action being taken. What the Kenya people want to see is action; to see the economy of Kenya in the hands of black men. No white man, not even those who are registered as citizens in Kenya. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I know, I say this because I am here in Kenya and I will die in Kenya. I have no money outside Kenya and I will be buried and turn into manure in Kenya. Maybe there are some gentlemen living in this Republic of Kenya who have accounts outside Kenya and if trouble broke out in this country today, they could arrange their get-away.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think this is a very important subject on which I should think, since 1963-69, as far as I have seen myself, I regret to say that the economy of this country is still in the hands of foreigners and is still being left in their hands. It is a shame to independent countries like this.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would also like to say something about the people of Kenya. The black people of Kenya are becoming poorer and poorer every year and I am not ashamed when I say this. The foreigners who registered themselves as citizens of Kenya, are becoming richer and richer. It is high time for this Government to enter into this problem Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, because unless this Government takes action, they will be inviting trouble. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is a shame when one goes round the city of Nairobi, where I came to in 1942, before some gentlemen here were born, there were then no Africans sleeping about in the streets. Today when one goes out at night, we find Africans sleeping in the streets; why is this when we say we are independent? If somebody challenges me, I will take him round during the night and show him where some of his people sleep. They are rolling round and begging for food on the streets, while the foreigners have wonderful hotels like the Nairobi Inter Continental, and others where I cannot afford to go because I am not rich enough.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is a shame. It is very bad because we cannot deceive ourselves that we are doing a good thing for our people. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are doing a very bad thing indeed. We are independent but what sort of independence is this unless all our people enjoy it? The people who are foreigners in this country are going up and up and I think it is high time we stopped these people somewhere and raised our people up. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if we do not raise our people up, we shall be inviting trouble in this Republic of Kenya. I am not ashamed of saying this and if anybody is to challenge me, I am prepared to challenge him back.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to say something about the Kenya land. We fought for the land in Kenya in order to acquire our land which the foreigners had taken from our parents. Now we are buying this land back for about a Sh. 1,000 and these foreigners bought it for ten cents. The other day I presented a book to Members of this National Assembly, which said that the foreigner bought their land at ten cents per acre.

Mr. Mwalwa: Will the hon. Member reduce his voice please?

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is nothing wrong with my voice but I would like to tell my friend to speak to me later because I am bitter. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want you to listen because when I speak slowly, I think you are not listening and so you had better listen when I speak louder.

[Mr. Chirchir]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Kenya land which was acquired from our parents—I do not know who paid ten cents for it—is why today we are suffering by paying a thousand shillings per acre for the land which has been exploited. No Minister and no one else attended to this. Several times, my hon. friend, since I become a Member of Parliament, I have spoken about it and everybody has ignored it. This is the trouble we are likely to get in Kenya in the near future and it will be because Africans in Kenya are tired of being exploited by foreigners. I hope in the near future the British Government will pay back the money they took from the Africans in Kenya. I am expecting them to pay it back because the people are tired of paying for the land which the foreigners acquired for nothing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, today, there are only a few Africans who are valuers in Kenya. Whoever sells the land is a European and whoever values the land is also a European. There is a Swahili saying which says that "Waswahili wana-juana kwa vilemba".

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is going on in Kenya. Is this fair? No, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is not fair. This Government should look into that in future. When His Excellency the President comes here, he will tell us something about that land which we fought for. I was amongst those people who fought for the land in Kenya. I have not changed and I am going to fight until I die to see the people in Kenya enjoying the fruits of their own country and independence.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I was listening carefully when the Minister for Agriculture was telling us about the prices of produce and so on. Since we achieved independence in 1963, prices have gone down year after year. This requires a commission of inquiry which should go into this. We are not blind and unable to see what is going on in Kenya today, because there are only two crops with prices still unchanged. These are tea, coffee, and peas and it is an absolute shame for we cannot rely on these. The country is purely an agricultural country, and we must not only rely on cattle, but also our produce. I know most of the foreigners who used to own farms up-country have moved down to Mombasa to own certain types of land, taking their cattle with them and staying next to sea so that they can swim in the ocean. We in our country are suffering a loss. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I warn this National Assembly and the people of Kenya to watch carefully because unless we watch our country Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there will be trouble here as for example, in other countries of Africa like Nigeria, Ghana, Mali, Sudan and in many others, where trouble has taken place because the indigenous people have never been satisfied whilst the foreigners are always ready at any time to come back and colonize the country and make large profits. This we must watch carefully. We are here to look after our country, and not to think about money; money means nothing. I think that my children may suffer. Therefore the Government of Kenya should look at the troubles that take place elsewhere. Unless we watch carefully, trouble will take place here. We are not at peace in Africa.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to join hands with my colleagues who have spoken in congratulating His Excellency the President, for his good speech to the nation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to speak about my own Ministry. I have heard Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, an hon. Member of this House saying that in the Muhoroni Scheme—that is one of my schemes—many people have been there for quite a long time planting sugar and yet they have never received a single cent. Some of them were given a cheque for 30 cents. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if I may differ on this, I think there is something wrong somewhere, with the plot-holders and although I am not going to mention the name of the gentleman I am referring to now, there is one plot-holder who has bought a petrol tanker, a good car, and I think even now he can buy an aeroplane out of sugar-cane. His plot, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is in Fort Ternan and I know the gentleman very well. Even yesterday he was with me, and he works very hard.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, you will be surprised to hear that about 43 people were selected by the district selection committee, and they have never come to take up their plots. They were selected since 1965. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it was last month when I gave my orders that the district selection committee must select another lot to come and take these plots. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I know many settlers in Muhoroni Settlement Scheme who have become rich people because they work hard, and live on their plots. Some of these plot-holders the hon. Member was referring to, are always away. Some of them do not stay on their plots. So how do you expect them to earn anything if they run away and come to stay in Nairobi, where they come to dance and drink? My dear friend, you cannot expect such people to make any money or to do any good out of the soil.

An hon. Member: Well spoken, Mr. Minister.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we have so far settled more than 46,000 families in various settlement schemes, all over a period of five to six years. Please do not interfere with me. Our hon. Members do not respect one another. I will give you an example, Mr. Deputy Speaker. One day, I happened to go to the Deputy Commissioner of Prisons' office, and a Member of Parliament—he is not here Mr. Deputy Speaker—came and insulted the Deputy Commissioner of Prisons in my presence. The Deputy Commissioner of Prisons got annoyed and took off his coat and was ready to fight the Member. I intervened, Mr. Deputy Speaker, but you see, without the civil servants, I tell you, we can never run this Government.

The civil servants are the Government machinery. We are going for a general election in 1970, and they are going to be left behind to run or to look after your Government. Why are you after them? Now, while I am here in Parliament, civil servants are attending to each and everything in my Ministry.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Address the Chair.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): Thank you very much. My Permanent Secretary and all my staff are in the office looking after the affairs of this Government in the absence of their Minister.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, excuse me for using what I would call "funny language". I remember during the colonial times I went for a road licence, and I was told that I could not get it, but a certain gentleman who is here, in this Parliament—he is not a politician but a civil servant—told the licensing officer to issue me with a licence.

Mr. Kebaso On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Will you advise the Minister for Lands and Settlement not to involve us in individual accusations? We are not concerned with that.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He is perfectly in order. Mr. Angaine is speaking to the point. He is in order.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine): I am sorry, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am not going to listen to that old man. He is an old man, of the same age as I. One is bound to say anything when he is in this House. We are being abused here and, you know, Sir, we are old men. We are being abused in this House and we cannot do anything about it, but if it is outside, then something can happen. It is my privilege that I say anything I like, and it is my duty to respect the hon. Members of Parliament, those who are in this House. I do respect Mr. Jaramogi, he was my schoolmate. We do not quarrel. There is another gentleman over there who was my schoolmate; I do respect him. I do respect everybody. So let me say whatever I have to say.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I want to tell our Members of Parliament, both Kanu and KPU is that I have no quarrel with the KPU Members of Parliament as such, if they can only bring here something to uplift our young country. That is what I want and not mere talking, talking this and that rubbish. I want them to be gentlemen who can bring something good for the Kenya nation. We are a very young country, we have a newly formed Government and if we are not careful, gentlemen, then we are going to spoil our good Government. It is a good Government, led by a good leader of this nation, His Excellency, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Sir, I have known Mzee since 1920, before some of you were born. It is almost 49 years since I knew the old man. We have been together for a long time and we have had no quarrel, and that is why Mzee respects me very much. He does so because of my age and because we have known each other for quite a long time. That is the kind of behaviour we want. He likes me because I do behave like a gentleman. Mr. Speaker, I did not know that Mzee would make me Minister for Lands and Settlement. At the time that I was made a Minister, Mr. Jaramogi was there. You see, these are facts. He said, "What about poor Angaine who has defeated Kadu in Meru?" He said, "Oh, Mr. Angaine, come on. We have appointed you Minister for Lands and Settlement." I swear to Almighty God, Mr. Speaker, that I will never, never let Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, our President, down.

You know that my job is not an easy job. If this kind of job was given to a young man, or if this Ministry was in the charge of a young man, Sir, I just do not know what would happen in Kenya today. Sir, the Minister for Lands and Settlement is not corrupt and that is why you do not hear any complaints about this Minister.

Mr. Muliro: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, does the Minister imply that other Ministers are corrupt and he is the only one who is not corrupt?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think so. That was the end of your time, Mr. Angaine. Mr. Sijeyo.

Hon. Members: Maiden speech?

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very pleased to have this opportunity to air my views in this House. First of all I would like to congratulate the people of Gem who elected me to come to this House. These people showed that this Government is not trying to uplift or help the people of Gem. For example, Mr. Speaker, some of the Ministers who were sent to fight me failed to express or to show the people of Gem what developments they had planned for Gem, show anything else that they had done for Gem and the people. Sir, one of the Ministers said in a public meeting—where there was only an audience of 20—that the Government had never planned for Gem or the people of that location with regard to development. This shows quite clearly that if we have achieved anything, that was not done for the people of Gem by the Government. He continued and said that if the Gem people voted the Kanu candidate in, and they thus had a new Member, then the plans for the development of Gem Location would be started. Mr. Speaker, this is an appalling statement by a Minister of this Government. It is bad that a Minister should stand in public and say that only if the people of Gem vote a Kanu Member to be returned to Parliament, that their location would be considered. What about our late Minister?

Mr. Obok: Was he not Kanu?

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Was he not from Gem? Was he not a Minister of this Government? Was he not Kanu? At the same time—

Mr. Obok: He was a rubber stamp.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): It seems as if this Government used my brother, the late Minister from Gem, as a rubber stamp. Was not Gem Location Kanu?

I am sure that some of the Ministers here will agree with me—

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member right in saying that we used the late Minister, the hon. Argwings-Kodhek, as a rubber stamp? Can you give us facts as substantiation?

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): That is not a point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is a point of order, but one must distinguish between an allegation and an opinion as to how things were going. This is clearly a statement of political opinion rather than a fact that can be proved.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the Minister thinks this is a classroom and that I am here to teach him.

This is a true fact, that one of the Ministers, Mr. Sagini, a Christian, whom I respected for a long time now, said in public that the people of Gem have remained behind all this time and that now the Government would try and help them, plan some development for them if they voted a Kanu Member in.

The second point, Mr. Speaker, is that we have been hearing of corruption that is taking place in the country. This should be taken seriously by the Members of the Cabinet. They should do this instead of trying to dodge about and beat about the bush. This is their duty: to stop corruption. When the time comes and the corruption shown up to the public, then what will happen? What if it is Ministers who are in the Cabinet? I am sure that some Ministers are not happy with the present state of corruption. The Attorney-General has condemned corruption in this country.

Mr. Obok: Not seriously.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): At the same time he did admit that there is corruption. If someone says that there is no corruption in Kenya, then it is just like saying that there is no sand in the Sahara Desert. We would like such evil things as corruption to be stopped forthwith.

Mr. Speaker, we in the Opposition are working for the betterment of our country, we are not working for an individual, not for individual groups, or for certain factions. Some people have been saying for some time that KPU is going to die. Some Ministers have said that KPU was for Bondo and for Nyamira. What about today?

Some hon. Members are afraid to resign from this House because they are earning something here and they have no other sources from which they can earn this money. That is why they are staying here.

According to the speeches they made, Sir, it seems as if many Members are frustrated with the way in which the Kanu Government is handling the affairs of this country.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement has spoken well. Under the Minister's management, land consolidation which was mentioned in the Presidential Speech— In this connexion I would like to say that the land in Gem Location was consolidated long, long ago; yet, today, the people have no title-deeds. The people have nothing with which they can apply for loans. This is because of the failure of the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

Mr. Speaker, we want to see the Ministers busy, checking all over the country. When we speak of development, it is only in the Central Province and part of Rift Valley, not the whole of Rift Valley. It seems as if in this country there is a new group of colonialists in certain parts. If you go to the former Central Nyanza, Siaya and Kisumu Districts, you find that some people were kept there because of brotherization.

The way that these people are collecting taxes, graduated personal tax, is appalling. Some of these askaris who are sent to collect the graduated personal tax go to the houses of the people and try to assess even domestic property. They assess your blankets, beds, and even stools. Is that the way to collect graduated personal tax in Gem Location? I would like to know this. When the Minister comes to reply, I would like him to reply to this particular issue and clarify whether Gem is another colony in this country.

Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Gikunju: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether the Member is correct in saying that the development done by the Government is only in the Central Province and the Rift Valley when we know that there is a very big scheme in Ahero? I would like him to say whether Ahero is in the Rift Valley or Central Province, or where.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, he was a Senator, but I think he wants to interrupt for nothing.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think he is, in fact, correcting you on your facts, that there has been some development beyond the areas you mentioned.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Yes, Sir, everybody knows that.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will you also inform the new Member, Sir, that when you are giving your ruling he should sit down, not remain standing.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, I know that Mr. Shikuku is someone who can bring a Motion and then vote against it, and so I do not bother about him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He was, in fact, correct.

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): Mr. Speaker, to end my speech, although the time is short, I am calling upon the Government to see that development is started in Gem and also Nyanza as a whole, instead of leaving it behind as some parts of Rift Valley have already been left behind.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had not intended to stand but the hon. Member needs clarification on a few points; maybe he has been out of the House for some time.

Mr. Speaker, it is a fact that neither a Kanu member nor a KPU member can deny that this Government has, in fact, got a very detailed development plan since 1965, and this plan is being carried out. It is no use trying to deceive the public that this Government is composed of a group of Ministers who do not know what they are doing, and a group of Members who do not know what they are doing; we know exactly where we are going and where we are coming from, and if, by enthusiasm we have gone beyond 1970 and planned up to 1974, we should be congratulated for looking ahead and not to be told that we should not plan because the KPU will be in power. If KPU is in power, they will follow our plans. Even the hon. Member himself has said that the KPU has the welfare of the people at heart.

An hon. Member: Who told you that?

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Well, unless—

The Member for Gem (Mr. Sijeyo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I seek your guidance as to whether the Minister is right to say that the KPU, when it is the Government, will follow the Kanu policy which has failed completely and that is why the people rejected them?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order. He is allowed to express that hope.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, that is why I am saying that the erstwhile Member for Gem may not have been informed of what the Government has done in Gem. I personally, as Minister for Health, cannot be accused for not touring the country; I have been round every part of Gem to see what the Government can do for them. In spite of what we have done for Gem—and my Ministry can boast—this is so: we have done very good work for Gem, we have set up health centres and everything. There was only one health centre we promised to assist and that was Rara; and when we were voting money for this place—in South Gem—we heard that the hon. Member was saying in Gem that we were not helping. Therefore, I said quite rightly that if the people of Gem Vote Kanu they will get this money, but if they vote KPU we shall think again. That I did say and the hon. Member, although he was returned by KPU, is quite at liberty now if he can talk to me properly, to get that money. The money will still go to the people of Gem and not to the KPU.

[The Minister for Health]

Now, Sir, I feel here that we should distinguish between ourselves, as individuals, and the welfare of the country. Whether I am here or not the welfare of our people is what is paramount. Therefore, to say that this Government is doing nothing is to say what one knows in ones conscience is not true. Maybe there are places where we have not done what we should do, but maybe we are short of money. I do not think, even if we change the Government, that you will be able to find a magic wand which the Minister for Finance will wave and money will drop from heaven. Never. Money will come from our own labour, as the Minister for Agriculture said, from our own exports and from our own hard work, and that money will always be short because we are a new developing country and we desire everything.

An hon. Member: What about free education?

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, I hear that we are challenged that we have not provided free education. I hope that when the KPU comes into power they will provide free education immediately.

Sir, the question of money is very difficult whoever is in power. We used to hear much in Britain when the Labour Party was out of power that they would do this or they would do that; I read nowadays that they are in great difficulties even to do what they promised to do.

Now, Mr. Speaker, every year we are doing something new. We have provided a little health service, according to our abilities. In the future, I know that Dr. Kiano is thinking of increasing Government contributions or the reduction of fees. That is all we can do. Over a period of time we shall attain that position of having free primary education. This is the aim of this Government and it has never stopped being the aim of this Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a word about what every Member has spoken about, about the idea of corruption. It is possible to give a dog a bad name by harping on corruption, corruption, corruption. The people begin to think that the country is corrupt even when it is not corrupt. Now, corruption begins in the mind; it is psychological. Once you accept to be corrupted, whether you have received the money or taken the goods, you are already corrupt. I would like, Mr. Speaker, to ask this hon. House to spend the next few months clearing our minds instead of belittling ourselves and our country. We should not broadcast in the newspapers and the radio that one or two people are corrupt; maybe there are some people who are corrupt, like thieves and robbers. We should not besmirch our own country with dirt.

I was reading a Tanzanian paper and I was very sorry at the way it was reported what was said in this hon. House. That report was very biased and was not what was said here and it was exaggerated and was meant to help a certain group of people here.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel definitely that we have come all this way by our own sweat; nobody gave us, on a silver platter, the Government we have today because we fought for it. This Government we must keep. If there is anybody in this country who is trying to ruin this Government, this country and the people of Kenya, he should be uprooted from our society.

Mr. Speaker, if our machinery of justice is not good enough to deal with the evil-doers, then it should be overhauled so that we get rid of the evil-doers. This is why we are here as legislators, to legislate in our country. It is not a good thing, and I would not like to continue to hear it, that Members of this House who have been elected by the public besmirch others and throw mud at others when other people whom they are besmirching are in exactly the same position as themselves.

It is true that I want the votes of Vihiga the next time; it is true that every one of you would like to come back to this House, but to come back to the House you do not need to spoil the names of other people. You can come by your own shoe-laces and you can come here by your own performance during the time you have been a Member. Therefore, I would like to ask hon. Members to approach this subject carefully. I know there is election fever on already; I do not know what it will be like in nine months hence. We should not, however, lose our sense of proportion by trying to start elections in this House. The elections will not be in the precincts of this House; elections will be held outside this House by the general public. This should make us humble here when we speak; we should speak humbly as the people's representatives and not as their bosses. This idea of "boss-ship", Mr. Speaker, is getting on our nerves; people trying to be bosses of certain political machines. There is no boss here. We are all servants of the Republic of Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is to our credit here that we allow a two-party system. We should be congratulated rather than blamed. Our neighbours may not be so good with the opposition. We do not intimidate but we speak of the facts. I believe in opposition so long as it is constructive. Our own Members here have been more than critical of their own Government, which is the right of man. I feel here, Mr. Speaker, that things should be made very clear.

While we are here as representatives until our time is over, we are due all respect, and all the privileges which were granted to us. I would not like, Mr. Speaker, that this House should go on to the debates on the Estimates in the same spirit as we started with. This spirit is wrong and I am not afraid to say so. I think I am not like my friend, hon. Mr. Angaine, because I am not over 60 years of age yet, but considering my long service I think I am getting quite old. My little advice may not be out of place to the younger community who are very active in this House, and I like the spirit of these young men. It is very good and they are very strong, but we want to use the strength of the young men to complement the strength of the old men so that our country is not divided.

I have noted with regret a gap developing, on the one hand between the ruling party and the Opposition, but what has been more alarming during the last few days, is the gap developing between the Parliamentary Group and the so-called government. There is a new definition of government, which seems to say—I know my friends behind are very happy about this but it will not work their way. We have noticed this and we have now strengthened the organization. There is no such thing as a government within a government. The Government of Kanu consists of His Excellency the President, all his Ministers and Assistant Ministers. All the Members of Parliament belonging to Kanu and all his civil servants, and we have closed our ranks and I do not think KPU will succeed.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to continue with the trend which has been very ably illustrated by my colleague the Minister for Health.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the foundation stone of this House was being laid, I am told that somewhere there is a scroll bearing the names of 170 gentlemen who were the representatives of the people of the Republic of Kenya when the foundation stone of this House was laid. Now, Sir, history should not, later on, say that we are the people who failed to chart the course for this country. Now, Sir, how can we fail our people? Sir, for the last six days we have heard speeches by hon. Members highlighting things like nepotism, tribalism and corruption.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all let me take the question of tribalism. Mr. Speaker, tribalism is a disease of the mind for those who are prepared to suffer that disease. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the representatives of the people here, we should refuse to be the victims of that disease. We should not be the representatives of the people who preach the gospel of hate. If today, Sir, we stand here and make a wholesale condemnation of one tribe, we should first of all examine ourselves. I belong to a tribe, one of the 48 tribes in Kenya, and I am proud to belong to that tribe, but, Sir, if that tribe is to contribute its fair share in this country, it must contribute the best in that tribe. I must give an effective contribution in every sphere of the life of this nation.

In agriculture my tribe is making an effective contribution. It is so in every walk of life. But, Sir, we should not be jealous of what X is doing or what Y is benefiting because of his own sweat. I was listening the other day when the hon. Member for West Pokot was attacking a section of my department, which is the Transport Licensing Board. I was somewhat bemused because he said that in that area the Transport Licensing Board is giving all the licences to one tribe, and as it is now, the song, "the Kikuyu".

Sir, this is in West Pokot in Rift Valley—

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell me if I actually said that the Transport Licensing Board was giving licences to one tribe, and not to the West Pokot, and could he show me the HANSARD?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I was not paying attention at the moment, but can you follow it, Mr. Nyamweya, and satisfy the hon. Member?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): What the newspapers reported—I will have to look up in HANSARD—is that the hon. Member said the Transport Licensing Board was licencing African transporters in that area, West Pokot, from one tribe, and this is what I am trying to correct, the impression created by the speech of that hon. Member, and my correction is this, Sir.

If I find, after reading through HANSARD, that this is not the case, then naturally I will correct what I am saying at the moment.

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No more of that, Mr. Lorimo. I think the hon. Member is going to satisfy you if he finds he was wrong.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the policy of my Ministry in relation to the transport industry,

[The Minister for Power and Communications] is to Kenyanize the industry, but with great emphasis on Africans. It is right that that emphasis should be there; but when we are trying to Kenyanize the industry, we, of course, have to bear in mind that there are a number of non-African citizens who have been in this industry for a long time. The Ministry and the Government, of course, owes these citizens the right to protect their business in this sphere. For this purpose, Sir, the Transport Licensing Board has very clear instructions from my Ministry that in every case if the Africans come forward, and preferably the Africans of that province, they should be given favourable consideration. I do not think it was fair that that criticism was brought to this House. If the hon. Member, for some reason, knows of people who have been aggrieved by the Transport Licensing Board, then he could bring this matter to my attention and, naturally, we would endeavour to correct the situation.

I think the best way to approach the whole issue is to be more responsible for our duties and know we have a duty to help one another. As Members of Parliament we have a duty to advise and help our Ministers. I am quite sure that I for one, and my colleagues, are prepared to listen to constructive suggestions and criticism from the hon. Members.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we can achieve quite a lot if we are united. There is no reason why we should keep ourselves divided. As the hon. Minister for Health has indicated in his excellent speech this afternoon, perhaps it is the election fever which is catching up with the Members. Let us remember that we have had six years sitting here, making our deliberations and also working among our people.

What have we done for the last six years we have been here? I do not think that the electorate is so naive that it will decide to elect us today on what is transpiring for the next three or four weeks for which we are staying in Parliament. From now on it may be nine months.

Sir, all over the country there has been considerable development. In the field of education there has been tremendous progress. In the field of agriculture, too, there has been progress as well, as in the field of health. I think our people know what we have done and what we had promised them; and although it is true that we have not delivered all what we had promised our people in 1963, it is true to say that we have done all that could be done by any government in our present circumstances.

An hon. Member: We want an additional post office in Nakuru.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is asking for an additional post office in Nakuru. It is true, I know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that Members are anxious now to press for the demands of their respective areas because of the election fever.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister really in order to misconstrue the intention of Members, whereas he knows that I put a Question earlier officially, about this additional post office? He is saying that we are doing that because of elections. But my interpolation was about the post office itself.

An hon. Member: Is he speaking because of the election himself?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It sounds a little petty, I think we had better get on with the debate.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think there is nothing wrong for a Member asking for additional services in his area. This can be done—

An hon. Member: Are you now campaigning?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not campaigning. I have already campaigned sufficiently in my area and I feel my record is good—I can stand on my record.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to hon. Members that they let us approach our duties here with seriousness, greater responsibility and humility. We have a great responsibility to our people and we must discharge this responsibility.

Thank you Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is very close to the time when I said that Mr. Mbogoh might move the adjournment of the House, and it will be hardly fair to ask another Member to speak for only two minutes; so I think Mr. Mbogoh is ready to move the adjournment now.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN'S PRESS STATEMENT—
AN ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the substance in the Government Spokesman's statement, which appeared in the papers and also in the Voice of Kenya commentary, was directed at the Members of this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Did you move that the House do now adjourn?

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I moved that the House do now adjourn, to allow me to raise that subject.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, I missed you.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the wish of all the Members that when such a statement like that is made, it is made by the Government with some facts which might be unchallengeable by anybody.

Mr. Speaker, that statement to start with, argued that hon. Members' criticism of corruption was irresponsible and unjustified. It was said that Members made these statements under the privileged conditions of this House.

Mr. Speaker, that was one of the things that made me feel that this should be raised because if it is a question of Members making privileged statements in this House, it is under our Constitution that this House is privileged to make statements. Mr. Speaker, this is a constitutional right; and if it is a constitutional right, then I do not see anybody who can challenge that as long as we are in this House. Mr. Speaker, on that board there it is written that we will work for the welfare of society and the just government of men. If, Sir, we have to work for the welfare of society and the just government of men, then shall we work under fear? Shall we work hypocritically where we cannot say anything here fearing that we will be criticized outside this House? Mr. Speaker, that was a most irresponsible statement that any Government can make against its own people.

Sir, our Government is our own Government and we want to know today who is this Government spokesman because the position, as we know it, is this. This is the Government with the President, the Ministers, the Assistant Ministers—and this Parliament is the supreme authority of this country. Therefore, it is the Government of the country and we want to know who was this Government spokesman who was speaking on behalf of all these hon. Members. If the name of that Government spokesman is known today, this House would recommend that he is sacked immediately. This is because he misrepresented the Government in the opinion of the people and he has been creating a rift between the Members of this House and the public outside.

Mr. Speaker, we have the right to criticize our own Government, and if there is nothing to hide, then why can the Government not take steps to do what the Members of this House want. If the Government cannot do anything that the Members want, then it is no use answering anything that has been said in this House and outside the House. If we are privileged to talk in this House, Sir, and this Government spokesman says that the House was attacking civil servants who did not have a place to answer, then I would say that we have 50 Ministers who answer for these civil servants every day. Every time we ask a question here a Minister gets a written reply—drafted for him—from a civil servant. This is what he comes and reads here. Sometimes what they say here are half-truths. Do we question the truth of such statements? Why can the Ministers not stand up here and defend the civil servants in case there is any trouble within the Government or between the Government and the Back-benchers? This is a first-grade failure on the part of our Government to defend their own cause. They take something from this legally-constituted House into the field, for the papers and everybody else to fight over.

From that statement, Mr. Speaker, and even today I have heard about three Ministers repeating the same thing. They said this was an electioneering statement, it was cheap propaganda in crude form. Mr. Speaker, that is an abuse of this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I think that we are liable to get irrelevant to the particular matter you are allowed to move the adjournment on, Mr. Mbogoh.

Mr. Mbogoh: But, Mr. Speaker, I am reading the statement which was written in that manner. In the statement there was that part which says, this was electioneering and it was cheap propaganda in crude form.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, Mr. Mbogoh, but I do not want you or any other hon. Member to discuss any more than we can possibly help the merits of the statement. The complaint on which I allowed you to raise this matter on the adjournment under Standing Order 20 was the actual procedure of Government using the Press to answer a debate, not actually the way it answered.

Mr. Mbogoh: I agree, Mr. Speaker. I will leave that for the time being and come to the other part of it.

Mr. Speaker, in the statement there was also a statement which was criticizing the Press for writing this statement and publicizing it in the papers. When I looked at this statement I feared. My fear was that if our Government is going to criticize the papers or to castigate the papers because they are reporting the truth from this

[Mr. Mbogoh]

House, then the next step will be to censor them. That is my fear. If, in our Government, we are not going to be allowed to have free expression, especially in relation to things said in this House by hon. Members who have been elected by their own people, to come and represent them in this House, and who owe their existence to the welfare of society and the good government of men, and who are here for the Republic of Kenya, then we are heading towards a very dangerous position.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I feel that this statement, if it was, should have been made here. If it was made here, then this House should have listened to it and the papers should have given prominence to the Minister's speech—the Minister would have answered this—instead of going out to fight. I can see this as confrontation between the Government and its own Back-benchers. If it is a confrontation between the Government and its own Back-benchers, then I fail to see where Parliament is and where Government is.

Mr. Speaker, the Ministers of our Government have been Back-benchers before and some of them were elected, others were not elected by anybody, they were just nominated. If it was a question of the elected Members against the nominated Members, then that is a different matter and it would be very unlucky to have these people continuing in a House like this, or in a Government like this.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to labour much on this point. I want a clear statement from our Government telling us who is the Government spokesman, which Government does he represent, and who are we in this House to be fought by this Government spokesman. We want that the Press of this country will be assured that they will not be in trouble for reporting the truth from this House which is the supreme authority of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that after this point I do not want to labour much on this issue. I know it is possible the Government responder might want to speak early on the debate and, therefore, I ask you, Sir, please to allow a few Members to speak for five minutes each, and then we will see what the support of the House is on this issue.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who is seconding you, Mr. Mbogoh?

Mr. Shikuku: I am, Sir.

I agree entirely with the hon. Mover, Sir, that we should try and share the debate by allowing five minutes to each Member.

Mr. Speaker, we have no quarrel with the Government. That is the first point. We are the supporters of the Government, we remain behind the Government. But on the question of this spokesman, we want to know who this spokesman is. This spokesman—we know we have the Leader of Government Business here, we have his deputy there and the Members here. Now, who is the spokesman? The Chief Whip is here.

Mr. Speaker, we would like to know who this spokesman is because I have the suspicion that if he is a Member of this House, an elected representative of this House who was brought here to represent the feelings of the people, and if he issued that statement, I am sure that if his name is announced he will never live to see the four walls of this House. Why? We are the privileged and it is our right to speak our minds here; and if we do not speak our minds here, where else can we speak? Underground? If it is underground, one day it will explode. The interests of this country are laid in this House and we should be responsible to speak responsibly here in the interests of the nation and not for the destruction of the nation.

If we come here and speak and are reported, and then we are denounced by somebody called a spokesman, then where are we going to speak? The principle Mr. Speaker, is that this statement is undermining the authority of this House and that is the most important point. I swear, Mr. Speaker, we cannot sit back and look at the authority being undermined, and just go on sitting saying "Hallelujah" we are not going to do that and we demand any Government responder who is going to reply to this to be honest with us and tell us the name, and from where he got that authority.

If the Government responder is just going to toss about and not speak here, we shall know it is him who issued this and we will denounce him.

We cannot, under any circumstances, underrate the intelligence of the people—and the integrity—in this House and, therefore, it is only fair that we make the position very clear. The Back-benchers of Kanu are behind Kanu and the Kanu Government, but we want to know why this statement was not made here so that we could cross-examine the Government. Usually, when a statement is made, we ask questions to find out facts about it. We cannot ask the Press.

I agree with you, Mr. Speaker, that we cannot debate the material in the statement because we will be lowering ourselves to talk about a certain idiot called the "Government spokesman". We will be lowering ourselves. We do not have to come and discuss that. Our aim is to find the truth and demand that the integrity of this House shall never again be undermined. With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I want to give other Members a chance because it would be fair to give other people two, three or four minutes so that we find out who this spokesman is.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the statement by the Government attacks two principles, two cardinal principles. The first one is the freedom of the Press to report authentically the deliberations of this House, which is privileged. That, Sir, is why I am disappointed with the so-called Government spokesman. It was an attack on the Press; and if the freedom of the Press is subjected to the whims of Government, the very essence of democracy is in danger. That group of Ministers, or whatever is the combination of Government, challenges the Press and I am asking them kindly that they should desist from that practice.

The second principle, Sir, is the immunity of Parliamentary proceedings and the integrity of this House. Sir, our deliberations here are privileged; they are immune and, in fact, if one says in this House something that would be libellous outside, one cannot be prosecuted in court. Today, Sir, our own Government—the Government that we support and the Government that we are going out to fight for to bring into power again—challenges the integrity of the Members of this House.

Mr. Speaker, here we do not know what Parliamentary immunity means. Here, Sir, is where I say this is a second point where the Government has challenged the integrity of Parliament and the immunity of this House.

Sir, it is very clear, according to our Standing Orders in this House, that no debate should be taken out of this House to be carried out in the papers and read. Here today the debate which was in this House was carried out by the Government spokesman to the Press. If hon. Members of this House tried to continue a debate outside, we would bring them to order because we do not want speakers out. However, here a Government spokesman has campaigned on the Voice of Kenya. Why do the Ministers—or that person—not come and stand in this House and tell us that we are idiots, that we do not know what we are doing in this place and that we are not representing our people.

Hon. Members: Shame, shame.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government thinks it necessary to use the media which hon. Members of this House never use. No Back-bencher in this House can ever be given that publicity on television, can never be given that publicity on the Voice of Kenya, to the degree of humiliation to which this House was subjected to in the Press and on the Voice of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, history repeats itself; our Government is failing to learn from contemporary African history.

Mr. Speaker, whatever the composition of the Cabinet is, any Member from the Back-bench is qualified to be a Cabinet Minister. We do not want the Government Ministers to abuse their privilege of having been nominated and appointed by the President to be the Cabinet to say that the Members of Parliament are talking rubbish.

Sir, we are very disappointed that we are not going to debate the pros and cons of the Government's statement. However, we want to know who this monster is.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to join the hon. Members who are so anxious and worried about this Government spokesman. However, I will not beat about the bush because we know who the Government spokesman is and we must blame him. In an established Government we must know that the head of that Government is the spokesman for that Government, or anybody whom he authorizes to speak on his behalf. This is the man who should actually speak; otherwise if that man has spoken without authority from Government, then he should be sacked completely.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members are now asking questions of the people who have supported this Motion. I am supporting them and now they are asking questions again. This means that we must know what we are speaking about and never go on fumbling about. We know exactly what we are pursuing. We want the Government to know exactly what this House is and what this House represents. The Government is well represented in this House. Certainly if somebody argues that the civil servants are not here to answer for themselves, I would say that the civil servants are represented by the Ministers in their own Ministries and also by the Assistant Ministers who are also here to defend them. If there is anything which is said, this is the truth. Therefore, if somebody jumps and accuses wananchi from my own area, he should know that I am their spokesman here and I must act and defend them—and defend them effectively.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I think the Ministers just absented themselves from the House because they knew that there was this very important charge in the Press, and they were startled and embarrassed. He then ran about and the head of the Government wanted him to reply and so he defended himself from outside this House. This is most unfair. It must be very unfair indeed. We must be able to defend ourselves. Even if he was not in this House, and then he found that something had gone to the Press with which he does not agree, it is still not too late because he can prepare his statement and come here and read it to the House. This is the right place. If we start to use the Voice of Kenya, which is now renamed the voice of the clique of certain people in this country, and make it a place where people can go and defend themselves, and also to make such irresponsible charges on hon. Members of this House, then that is all right. However, at the moment we cannot reply there because we are not given the chance to reply there; so, what can we do and what can we say? There have been so many irresponsible things said on the Voice of Kenya but we have not had our chance to reply there. Why should we make that the medium of discussion? It is better here where we can get them and exchange the views. When we exchange the views, then what is the idea of going to the poor pressmen who might have got what we people said here?

I think particularly about this statement which has been spoken about, that probably for the first or second time the East African Standard was quite fair to this House; they reported this House very fairly. The other Press, however, did not suppress the news at first; but later, after the Government spokesman had spoken, they came out in a flash in the Press. Why did we not also complain to them when they were also being defended; the Government was now being defended very unfairly by another Press. Therefore, I think this Government spokesman should be blamed and I join in blaming the Government spokesman who is known, who is the Head of the Government, that he must restrain his Ministries and not discuss our affairs in the Press.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, a few days ago we had a very lively debate here and then we noticed in the evening we had the Voice of Kenya and on the morning of the following day we had a statement in the Press purported to have come from a Government spokesman.

Mr. Speaker, here immediately some issues come out which we, as a National House, have to deliberate on and make a decision once and for all so that in future we do not have to make these silly mistakes.

I wish, Mr. Speaker, just to run briefly through what the functions of this House are in connexion with and in relation to the Government. Here we are elected—even the President of the Republic is elected to this House. We know that he is the Member for Gatundu, and therefore he is a Member of this House. Out of our number here, a Government is formed by the President appointing a Cabinet. Therefore, when we hear of the Government and Parliament, surely it is the same thing because the Cabinet is only part of this House. It is so arranged that every Ministry is represented by a Minister, and so anybody who argues that some civil servants have nobody to defend them is just not understanding the situation at all. We know every Ministry is represented by a Minister here. Parliament, from what I know, is a talking House and it is necessarily privileged because if it were not some of the things that go on in the country would have been very difficult to correct. We know of the laws of libel and so on, and it is very difficult. However, because this House is necessarily privileged, when we come here we can discuss any issue under the sun and subject the Government to any criticism. If they have anything to defend, they have the chance because they are also Members of this House. When I heard of this spokesman speaking, I thought that maybe the Government had no confidence in this House. If they did not, it would have been too bad because if we, also, turned against them and said we have no confidence in them, then we would have no Government.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to state once more that we support the Government. A mistake has been made and all that we want is for Government to come here today and admit very clearly that it made a mistake, and apologize to this House; and also assure us that they are going to deal with whoever made that statement purposed to be coming from the spokesman.

An hon. Member: He should be sacked.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is saying that he should be sacked, and I agree.

We should then continue with our normal relationship just as usual. If there is anything wrong, let a Government Minister come here and deny it. If we think we have facts, then we can counter and from there the Minister responsible can go and look into his own Ministry and see if he can get more facts and then maybe come and apologize. That is how governments are run. Otherwise, I think it was a very big embarrassment to hear something which would make us believe that the civil servants are the Government and that Parliament is different. This is the impression we got. We discussed here and we had the Leader of Government Business, who is the Vice-President; and according to the statement, the spokesman did not recognize the Vice-President here as the spokesman.

An hon. Member: Unless he is the one.

Mr. Khaoya: No, I do not think he was because he is capable of defending himself here. This is very dangerous indeed. I am appealing to the Vice-President, as the Leader of Government Business here, to take up this matter very seriously indeed.

Mr. Speaker, the other point which I would like to raise here is that an issue of this nature does not recognize party affiliations. We have all seen this afternoon that hon. Member after hon. Member from this side and from the Opposition has spoken the same language. Why? Because we all belong to this House and we jealously defend this House.

Mr. Speaker, because I would like to give a chance to my colleagues, I would only request—once more—the Government to tell us, after admitting, of course, that they made a mistake, because some of us are Christians and we can admit that we made a mistake and that the Government is going to sack that person. Also, they should assure us that in the future nothing of that kind will ever happen.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to reply to this anxious debate which was moved this evening by hon. Mbogoh. I hope the Members will bear with me, and I can assure them I am going to be honest in this affair, as was suggested by hon. Mbogoh. I am also going to be fair and just in telling the House the real facts. I know, Mr. Speaker, that my friend the hon. Kariuki is a little cross because he did not have time to speak. I think, Mr. Speaker, according to the Standing Orders it says a Minister must be allowed 15 minutes in order to see if he can clear the air. Therefore, if my friend hon. Kariuki is annoyed because I stood up, it is unfair.

Hon. Members: Are you the spokesman? Tell us.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members have moved a very serious matter, and they made a lot of noise in doing so; so they will now hear the reply in reasonable silence. They should give the Minister a chance.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is right and proper that the Members of this House must be concerned by the statement which was made, and it is true they must seek a Government decision on this particular one.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Government, I share their anxiety for this particular request. I would like to assure the hon. Members of this House that there is no question whatsoever in a democratic Republic like Kenya to take away the Parliamentary privileges which enables the Members of this House to air their views. It is known this is embodied in our own Constitution, of which we are part and parcel; we are the architects of this Constitution which was democratically drawn. This will continue to be followed and the Members of this House will be allowed, under that Constitution, to speak their minds without fear and without intimidation.

I would also like to come to another point—the question of the freedom of the Press. The Government, all along since we attained our independence, has stressed—and the President has on a number of occasions stressed—the need for freedom of speech, and it has allowed the newspapers in our country to play fair with that freedom of speech. The Government has no intention, whatsoever, of curtailing that freedom of speech; only in special circumstances, when that special privilege given to the Press is abused, that Government can interfere. The Government is not going to see that the Press reports what the Government wants. The Press has the freedom of reporting criticism from the people of Kenya, and it has no intention whatsoever of curtailing that freedom.

I would like the Members to take this very seriously. This is an assurance from their own Government of which they are part and parcel, and they cannot single themselves out and say they belong to another Government. That is why, Mr. Speaker, I say the Members have taken a keen interest in seeing that they bring this Motion in order to sort out the mess we are in.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to see that there is no cloud hanging over us. It is true that the Leader of Government Business, the Vice-President, is responsible for answering any statement which has been made in this House, and no one else has the right to make it outside. It is true that the Leader of Government Business, who is also the Vice-President, has the responsibility to see that there is unity between the Kanu Parliamentary Group, and also including the Opposition when it comes to matters of national importance, as we are embodied together and drafted together for the welfare of the society of Kenya and, of course, the just government of man.

In doing so, Mr. Speaker, we must also be Christians as my hon. friend, Mr. Khaoya said, and we must be willing to forgive. This is very important. Willing to forgive after a clear statement like the one I have made on behalf of the Government, and I am pleading with the Members of this House to accept my request.

[The Minister for Housing]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to go back and refer to the circumstances under which this statement was made, but I am now asking the Members of this House to accept that the Government will take care of this and rectify it, and, in future, such things will not occur again. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Members must have the spirit of give-and-take. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we sat here listening to speeches, which we took very seriously, from the hon. Members, and I would like to pray to the Members to listen to my humble plea: that the Leader of Government Business is going to deal with this affair. This is fair enough; so, what more do the Members want? Mr. Speaker, I have assured the Members that action is going to be taken, and I cannot go further than that. I have assured the hon. Members that this is not going to be repeated. If I assure you, Mr. Speaker, that the very foundations on which our very democratic Republic is based is not going to be touched, and that the Parliamentary immunity is not going to be touched, what more do the hon. Members want?

Mr. Speaker, what I am doing is thanking the Members for supporting the Government, and also assuring them that this will not be repeated again.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, some Members are saying that I must apologize. Honestly, I have assured the Members that this will not be repeated again. This is a very important matter. We will check and see that such statements are never made again, and Parliamentary immunity will not be touched.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure that the Members have seen that the Government is determined to rectify anything which is brought before the Government. We are not at all, and I repeat, we are not at all going to minimize the supremacy of this House. We are determined to see that unity between the Members of this House and the Government—of course, Members are part and parcel of this Government—continues.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I hope the hon. Members have seen that the Government has an arm to rectify this matter.

I would like to come to another point which was raised by the Leader of the Opposition. He said that the Head of the Government is somehow responsible. Let us be frank, Mr. Speaker, in his home he is the head of his family. The sons or the daughters sometimes make a mistake. Does he have the spirit, Mr. Speaker, of forgiving the mistake which is made by his son or daughter? What I am trying to say, is that the Leader of the Opposition must accept that at times mistakes are made, but when they are exposed and accepted, then the spirit of unity remains and continues.

Mr. Speaker, I see the Members are—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Order! You have a point of order, Mr. Shikuku?

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what happens in a case where a Minister is deliberately consuming time with delaying tactics like this? Is it not in order for you to ask another Member to speak?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member quite correctly said that on this particular procedure of a Motion for Adjournment under Standing Order 20, the Mover and one Minister each have 15 minutes in which to speak. The hon. Member has not yet used up his 15 minutes, and he is entitled to use it as he likes.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister in order to use the kind of similes which he has used concerning the Leader of the Opposition? That what the Government has done was, in fact, a mistake by somebody smaller in Government, and yet the Government had two days in which to correct this if it was wrong? Is the Minister in order to come here and merely not answer the debate, not to say if the Government was wrong or right—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You are not making a good point of order at all, Mr. Okelo-Odongo, though you are sparing Mr. Ngei the trouble of spinning out the last few minutes. I thought his simile was rather nice.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): I am very pleased that you have congratulated me on this particular issue, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, my last point is how could the Kanu Government, the Kanu Members expose to the Opposition our affairs? If there is something which the Members of the Kanu Parliamentary Group, which forms the Government, want to know, then I am prepared to tell them as the Kanu Parliamentary Group. I am not prepared to tell the story of Kanu before my hon. friend the Leader of the Opposition. This is feeding the Opposition party with ammunition to shoot back at me, and I am not prepared to do this. I am prepared to keep my ammunition—

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that it is this House, not the Opposition nor Kanu as a party, it is this House which was attacked by this invisible Government spokesman, is the Minister right in saying he will disclose only this information to a particular Parliamentary Group and not to the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is quite true that the matter which has been raised is a matter of principle affecting the House as a whole, but I do not think it is out of order for the Minister to say that because it may involve someone for whom his party is responsible, that he prefers not to disclose the error to the Opposition.

ADJOURNMENT

That is the end of our time. The House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 30th May, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

Friday, 30th May 1969

The House met at Nine o'clock.

PRAYERS

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 109

CHIEFS' MEETINGS, KILIFI DISTRICT

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House what was the aim and object of the Kilifi District Chiefs' meetings which were being held in every location under the chairmanship of Chief Ezekiel Karisa of Bamba Location known as Kilifi District Leaders.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

I am not aware that Chief Ezekiel Karisa has held any meetings outside Bamba Location of Kilifi. The chief has powers to hold barazas and meetings in his location at any time to explain Government policy in the course of the execution of his official duties.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Minister aware that there was a meeting of all chiefs of Kilifi District which was held at Chabari, and I and Mr. Omari also were there? Could he tell us what it was for?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, I am not aware of that, but if, in fact, there was such a large meeting, I do not think there is anything wrong with it.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, is it not true that in every division the district officer is allowed to hold one meeting for all chiefs, and what are these meetings for?

Mr. M. Koinange: He was invited to the meeting and so I do not see why he does not know what it was for.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 118

NZOIA MARKET PLOTS RENTS

Mr. Odera-Sar asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House why rents for plots in Nzoia Market differed, some Sh. 64 and others Sh. 30 per year.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

In August 1964, the local board of Central Nyanza decided that some of their markets which showed good progress and were of a permanent nature be graded as priority A markets and their plot rents were to be Sh. 64 per annum. Annually renewable receipts were issued by the Provincial Commissioner under the provision of the Native Tribes Land Ordinance, Register 1458/53 and 1459/53. Nzoia North Market is one of the 13 markets in the above category A, but Nzoia South Market was grouped by the same board as category C, and its plot owners were asked to pay Sh. 30 per annum.

Mr. Odera-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if that is the case, why does the council not provide these traders with title-deeds because they do not benefit from getting plots in the trading centres?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as title-deeds are concerned, the Ministry of Lands and Settlement is very close to the question of title-deeds, and they should be requested to consider that as far as the council is concerned.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 85

BRIDGE OVER TIVA RIVER FOR YATTA PEOPLE

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House, if he would consider possible means of aid in the way of constructing a permanent bridge (like the one at Niyuu River), in view of the fact that people of Yatta in Kitui District suffered hardships in crossing the Tiva River during the rainy season.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

With Kitui District there already exists a high-level bridge over the Tiva River at Ikutha. In addition, two high-level bridges have been designed and will shortly be built to cross parts of the same river on the main Kangondi-Kitui road, at Kaayo and Kauwi. Furthermore, the Government has already allocated £5,000 this financial year for widening the Tiva drift and improving its approaches at Ibobwe. The design has been done and work is due to start soon.

Apart from the above bridges over the Tiva River, a bridge is due to be built over the Kalundu River in the same programme, and all these new projects are within about 15 miles of each other. Also, further off, but still within Kitui District, there is scheduled to be built soon a bridge over Tyaa River at Mwingi. In addition, to connect Kitui with Kibwezi on the Nairobi-Mombasa road, a high-level bridge is already under construction over the Athi River.

I would request the hon. Member for Kitui West and the people of Kitui District in general to appreciate the fact that already Government is putting in a great deal of effort on bridge-construction for the district.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating all that the Government has done, I would like to come back to the Question as put: this location to which I am referring in Yatta is completely cut off because of this river known as the Tiva and, therefore, would the Minister consider how to save the location from this hardship because this location is like an island? Would you be kind enough to consider whether you can put in a drift so that during the periods of rain they have a better way of crossing?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do things one by one and according to plan. I have told the hon. Member that there is quite a lot which has been planned for his district and I would like him to appreciate that we cannot move faster than finances allow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 123

HEALTH INSTITUTIONS AND SCHOOLS DAMAGED BY FLOODS

Mr. Mwamzandi, on behalf of Mr. Wakole, asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House if the Minister would consider special assistance for the restoration of schools, dispensaries and houses which had been lost in the floods of December 1968.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

My Ministry negotiated for special assistance by an American organization known as the Co-operative for American Relief Everywhere, CARE in short, which, last February, purchased materials at a cost of K£2,000 to be used in restoring schools, dispensaries and houses in Tana River District. The Ministry provided another K£500 as temporary relief measures for food and clothing for the families in the flood-stricken areas.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Wakole's next question.

Question No. 122

CATTLE AUCTION FEES/TANA RIVER DISTRICT

Mr. Mwamzandi, on behalf of Mr. Wakole, asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

- (a) how much money had been collected by the Tana River County Council in respect of cattle auction fees in the years 1967 and 1968;
- (b) since the council was getting such money as fees from every auction, what the council had done to benefit the livestock of the district, e.g. water dams construction.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The following fees were collected. In 1967, Sh. 24,675/35, in 1968, Sh. 48,961/50.

As to the second part of the question, if the hon. Member is suggesting that cattle fees are collected to dispense any livestock services, then he is mistaken. All fees and charges, together with graduated personal tax, form the general revenues of the council, from which all services are financed with the aid of Government funds. It is a matter for the council to determine how this money is to be spent, subject to my approval of their budget.

The main items of expense are education, health, but some money is allocated each year to water development. However, wooden cattle crushes have been built by the council in places like Golbanti, Garsen, Galole and Wain, and I understand that the council, with the assistance of the Range Management Division of the Ministry of Agriculture, have planned for dams to be built as soon as possible, with assistance from United Nations Development Projects and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply and in view of the fact that so much money was collected by the county council from cattle auction fees, could the Minister instruct the Tana River County Council to build dams and send more veterinary scouts in order that cattle-raising might be twice as much as it is now?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, there is no need to instruct the county council to do that because they are already doing this.

I would like to point out that the money collected in respect of cattle fees is not enough to build even one dam.

Mr. Somo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the council has collected taxes amounting to over Sh. 70,000 for the last two years, would the Minister consider building water dips so that the number of cattle can double in that area in order that the county council can collect more funds?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know what these water dips are, but as I have already said, the council is at present having discussions with the Ministry of Agriculture with a view to carrying out construction work on dams. Thus the people of that area can be helped as far as the cattle are concerned. However, there are certain areas where this work can be carried out more profitably, and this is being looked into.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We come now to Mr. Chillo's Question.

Question No. 102

MAINTENANCE OF SECONDARY ROADS

Mr. Obok, on behalf of Mr. Ondiek-Chillo, asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House whether:—

- (a) Since the House had urged Government to take over maintenance of all secondary roads in the country as the responsibility of the Central Government, the Government had acted on that resolution.
- (b) Why it was that after passing that resolution, all the secondary roads were now in a worse condition than before.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I must apologize to the House because the answer is a rather long one.

The hon. Member is no doubt aware that, at present, secondary roads are vested in the county councils and before my Ministry can take them over, the existing legislation must be revoked and new legislation, embodying the change, must be passed by this House.

My Ministry is not at present fully staffed or equipped to carry out both the maintenance of trunk roads and secondary roads in an efficient manner. Taking over of secondary roads would mean an additional six to seven thousand miles of road to maintain. This additional maintenance responsibility will mean that my Ministry will have to engage more engineers and the supporting staff. The majority of additional supervisory staff will have to be trained by my Ministry, as approximately 110 road foremen will be required, and these will not be available for recruitment immediately.

In any case, arrangements are now being made to open a Road Supervisory Training School where this staff will be trained over the next two to three years. Similarly, more plant operators, drivers, and so on will be required, and training of such staff will also take some time. In addition to the staff that will be required for the additional work, funds will have to be found to purchase additional equipment, such as graders, bulldozers, trucks, rollers, and so on.

My Ministry, Mr. Speaker, realize that taking over of all secondary roads, as well as the other roads serving special agricultural activities, such as tea roads, sugar roads, settlement roads, and so on is a process that is bound to take a fairly long time because of the heavy additional responsibilities that would have to be assumed. It would not be unreasonable to expect such a process of taking-over to be phased over a period of two years. It would be necessary for the county councils' maintenance organizations to be replaced by a well-trained, well-equipped and well-administered Government organization, as there would be little purpose in making the change at all unless a definite improvement of roads were achieved by such a move.

My Ministry is planning for a smooth take over of secondary roads as well as other roads, financed by external agencies, and in this exercise my engineers are being assisted by a firm of engineering management consultants. We expect to have all the plans for taking over ready by July 1969, after which, a start will be made for the implementation of our plans. It is expected that the taking-over will be phased over a period of two years, in order to allow for the necessary training of staff as well as acquisition of the necessary construction and maintenance equipment.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that very long reply, with a lot of complications in it—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you can complain at the length of reply at all on such an important subject.

Mr. Obok: Yes, Sir, I agree.

Arising from that long complicated reply from the Minister, does the Minister not agree with me that we cannot expect quick development in our country if the roads are as they are at present? Are they not harmful and very expensive to our road users, including Ministers?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is because of the present state of roads that my Ministry is already taking steps to see that an improvement is made. We are all working towards that end; that finally, the Central Government will take over the maintenance of all roads.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, is it not true that after passing the resolution which asked the Government to take over secondary roads, the county councils decided not to maintain such roads, and the roads are now in a dilapidated condition and are impassable?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think I can agree with the hon. Member, because we know the financial state of affairs of many county councils. Government is trying to do what it can to help. However I do not think the county councils are neglecting the roads purposely.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister agree with me that the roads in Nyakach in particular are not being maintained now by the county council, and this has been from the time this resolution was passed? If the Minister is doubtful, would he agree to visit the area on the spot and see for himself in what condition the roads are? Would he agree to come along with me and see for himself?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the responsibility of roads in Nyakach— Most of the roads in Nyakach are county council roads, maintained by the county council. If the hon. Member wants them improved, then I think he should approach the county council and tell them the bad state in which the roads are.

I am able to talk to the Minister for Local Government and advise him to push the county council if that is desirable.

Mr. Gikunju: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies that the Ministry cannot take over these secondary roads, because of the present Regulations, would the Minister consider bringing amendments of these Regulations so that when he is ready to take over, the Regulations will not prevent him from doing so?

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we cannot take over the maintenance of secondary roads without bringing legislation to this House to be approved by this House. This is being looked into, not only by my Ministry but also by the legal people from the Attorney-General's Office.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Kebaso.

Question No. 95

APPOINTMENT OF ASIAN RESIDENT MAGISTRATES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House whether the Government would stop appointing Asians as Resident Magistrates in the Kenya Judiciary, and invite applications from other Commonwealth countries and from African countries to fill in the existing gaps on the Kenya Benches.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As I had to say yesterday in another question, it is the policy of the Government that preference will be given to citizens of Kenya when they can fit in the public service field.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Attorney-General tell the House what is the difference between citizen and Africanization? I repeat, is there any difference between citizens and Africanization, because we have to Africanize certain jobs and if we are to do so, are these citizens going to prevent us from doing so?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, a citizen is a person like me, the hon. Member and all other people who are citizens of this country. Kenyaization is a process.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Attorney-General agree with me that there is no need of replacing expatriates with other expatriates?

An hon. Member: Replace them with Kenyans.

Mr. C. Njonjo: I entirely agree.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that many of these Asian magistrates have failed to discharge their duties properly, can the Attorney-General give an undertaking that he is going to stop appointing them immediately?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is yet another generalization which is very unfortunate. I ask this House to recognize the work the magistrates are doing in this country, whether they are Africans, Europeans or whether they are Asians. If the hon. Member can tell us and move a Motion in this House and quote a magistrate that he has in mind who is not discharging his work properly, then the matter will be investigated.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I agree that such general accusations against a class of employees or race, are most improper.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

NATIONAL HOUSING CORPORATION IN RURAL AREAS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would inform hon. Members that on the Adjournment next Tuesday, 3rd June 1969, Mr. Karungaru has permission to raise the matter concerning houses built by the National Housing Corporation in rural areas.

SHORTAGE OF EQUIPMENT IN SCHOOLS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On Wednesday, 4th June 1969, on the Adjournment, Mr. Godia will follow up his question of schools lacking equipment.

MOTION

OPERATION OF RENT RESTRICTION ACT

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the present discriminatory attitudes being practised by some landlords throughout the Republic against Africans either by denying them the opportunity of renting premises or by demanding exorbitant rents, this House resolves to appoint a Select Committee to inquire into these prevalent malpractices and to make recommendations to the House as to restricting the demand of exorbitant rents, and as to possible amendment of the existing Trade Licensing Act, the Rent Restriction Act and any other relevant law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many people in the country have already seen that by passing the Rent Restriction Act in this House it will not help all Africans. By this I mean to say that there are some other laws which have been made and some of these laws have proved to be useless. They cannot help our people in this Republic. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no doubt that many of our people have seen and have experienced the difficulties facing them as a result of some of these laws. One of these laws, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Landlord and Tenant Act, which was passed in this House in 1965. This law, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is not at all helping the indigenous people of this Republic, irrespective of the fact that many people of this Republic have been promised many things with which they will be provided. Recently, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a law was passed in this House regarding the Trade Licensing Act and almost everybody in the Republic expected that this law could be implemented. What has happened now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is very sad because many of our people cannot manage to go into the businesses because the landlords have already ganged up against the people who are supposed to be benefited by these laws. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the landlords are playing a tricky game of preventing people from getting into businesses in this way, in that they increase the rents to whoever is interested in coming into business. Mr. Speaker, Sir, something which is very strange is that once you have agreed to pay Sh. 800 for a certain premises, you have no option. You cannot go to the landlord and challenge him to come to the tribunal or court of appeal against the decision. Some of these landlords are very clever, they are very cunning and they know why they are doing that. They know that many of our indigenous people do not own buildings, and therefore, they are just thinking how to prevent our people from getting into business. This is an allegation and any one can ask me to prove it.

Hon. Members: Prove the allegation.

Mr. Karungaru: However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am proving. There is another method which is being adopted now by some of these unscrupulous landlords of converting some of the buildings into other businesses without realizing that they have been given notices to quit the businesses that they are carrying out in these premises.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you go to Nairobi today, you find that all the shops which were being run by some of the non-citizens, say, certain given businesses, have already been converted into different businesses. The aim, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to defeat the Trade Licensing Act implementation, which was supposed to act accordingly. So, if an Asian, a European or an Arab was running a certain shop as a duka-wallah, and he has been given a notice to quit, he converts it to a curio shop. We have seen so many curio shops being run by some of these non-citizens. Mr. Speaker, Sir, is not very strange?

An hon. Member: No, it is not very strange.

Mr. Karungaru: It is very strange. Whoever says that it is not strange is perhaps encouraging it. If we are aiming at seeing that the present Trade Licensing Act is implemented, then we have to see that these people are not encouraged to convert some of these shops into different businesses.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you can see that if a landlord wants to increase the rent, he has an option under the present law. He can either go to the Tribunal Court and appeal against the tenant's rent which he is paid. The tenant has no option, he cannot appeal against anything; once he has agreed to pay a certain amount of money, that is the end of it. He cannot appeal against any decision that he has agreed with the landlord. In other words, this law was made for the landlords, and it has no place for the tenants. We want a law that is uniform; we do not want a law which favours a certain class of people and discriminates against a certain class of people. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to know why this law cannot be amended. I think this is a fair approach that we are making to our Government. If our Government is intending to help our people, then it must also see that a law like this one which is meaningless and cannot help our people, is amended.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Question! Question!

Mr. Karungaru: If any hon. Member of this House can question my stand in this regard, may I draw your attention, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to the fact that perhaps the Member concerned is involved, and may be one of those people who are now discriminating against us because he is covered by this law. Maybe he owns a lot of buildings, I do not know. He has no constituency,

[Mr. Karungaru]

I do not know who he is representing. He is supposed to represent me, but instead of representing me he is now trying to misrepresent me.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many of the premises which were used for commercial business have now been converted into residential quarters. The aim behind it is only to defeat the law passed by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry the other day regarding trade licensing. The moment that the new traders will not get shops or premises to run their businesses, how will they run businesses of this nature? How? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Minister for Commerce and Industry is sitting on fire because he does not know what is happening in the country and that it is useless for him to continue telling us that these businesses will be Africanized, the businesses will go to the Africans. How will the businesses go to Africans if we have a law such as this one—

An hon. Member: When the Africans have no buildings.

Mr. Karungaru —and when the Africans have no buildings. I think that some of these people are taking advantage of our ignorance by passing laws here and we do not know what we are doing. I wish I had been in this House when this law was passed.

Hon. Members: Where were you? What could you have done?

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am being asked what I could have done. What I could have done was just to oppose the whole thing, because this law is not helping us and some of us in this House are passing laws without knowing what these laws are for. I wish I had been here because such a law as this one would not have been passed.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Member in order to doubt the sincerity and capability of Members of this House, to say that they pass laws that they did not understand, that they knew nothing about? Is he really in order?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, he is in order.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not need to quarrel with the hon. Member who has asked that question—

An hon. Member: Speak on the Motion.

Mr. Karungaru: —because we know about his attitude, we do not need to discuss his character.

However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am still making my case. There are some buildings which were built in this country before I was born and which are existing now in the City of Nairobi, in Nakuru and other places.

An hon. Member: When were you born?

Mr. Karungaru: When I was born is not the issue. The issue is when these buildings were built, because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the rent of these very old houses is extremely high, and up to now the Government has not seen fit to go into the question of finding out how old these buildings are and whether they are worth the money which some of the traders are asked to pay for them. We would like the Government to go into this, because we cannot sit in this House and see our people being exploited, at the expense of this House. We are not going to sit in this House in that respect, and whoever thinks that he can sit in this House, and simply let the people be exploited, should not be allowed to be elected into this House. I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that we are not only elected to come and pass laws here; we are also elected to come and criticize any law which is not beneficial to our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the rent of a building today, which was built in 1902 is Sh. 1,000 per room or shop. Is this not a great shame to our Government? Yet the Minister for Commerce and Industry goes around the country telling people that they will come into business. How will they come into business? How?

An hon. Member: He has come late.

Mr. Karungaru: He had better tell us how the people will come into business, rather than going round and round telling the unfounded gospel, preaching it this way and that, and yet he does not know the problems facing our people. I would call upon him now to come to the question of realization and know that we do not want maneno mingi mingi. We want action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the recent Act we passed in this House regarding trade licensing, I do not remember whether there was any clause which was in connexion with limitation of the number of non-citizens who were to be issued with quit notices. Suddenly—and I would say that this was a coincidence—by the time this Act was to be implemented, the Minister at that time was not in the country, so the whole thing was left in the hands of the civil servants. You know what happened, Mr. Speaker, some of the notices were not issued, some of them were issued, some were appealed against. Up to now, some of those people who appealed against the notices they were issued with, have not yet been told what is happening. I do not know which board is hearing appeals, I do not know who the members are, whether it is just one man, a committee, a court or anything of that sort. We would have liked to have seen that this Act cannot be implemented, the Minister to sympathize with our people. Also, we are asking this House to see that, by our asking it to amend this law, we are agreeing with the Minister and we are supporting him. We are not against him; we are against the idea being employed contrary to what we have been expecting. That is not what we anticipated. We did not expect that by passing this law some other people could go against the Minister, against the Ministry and even against this House, and see that this law was not implemented which is now happening.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing that I would like the Minister to know is that if we had a standard rent, the question of an Asian asking for more money, simply because he had the opportunity of building shops when we were perhaps asleep, would not arise. At that time, we were perhaps asleep, but now all the non-citizens should realize that we are the people now in front. We are no longer behind as we had been at that time. Perhaps he was just favoured by time then.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be very serious.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Kibaki will also be serious.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, the Attorney-General is telling me about the Kabaka; the Kabaka is not my baby, the Kabaka is not my concern, the Kabaka is not Kenya's property, the Kabaka is Uganda's property and he has nothing to do with us here.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Not the Kabaka, Kibaki.

Mr. Karungaru: Oh, I am sorry, I thought that Kibaki was the Kabaka. If the hon. Kibaki is not the Kabaka, I am sorry for the remark that I made earlier on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us get to the Motion now shall we?

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, we would like the Minister also to tell us why he thought that it was necessary for him to go and tell the Lions Club members during luncheon time that he was going to amend the Trade Licensing Law and he did not think that it was necessary to come and announce it in this House; he only thought that he could go and announce it when he was having lunch with some of these people who are interested in these matters. We do not want our Ministers to go and do that, because if this is the practice, some of these fellows will be telling us, "Oh look, I know the Minister and if you play about I am going to see the Minister." We do not want this. We want everything to be done in this House. We do not want our Ministers to be carried by emotions. We want our Ministers to be very strong and tell us what they want in this House. This House is meant for that.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you very much, I would like to take this—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. Is it not true that always, whenever there is a Motion like this one, that you, being the Speaker, give a directive and you ask the Member who has moved the Motion to say who is seconding, or somebody who has no material on this Motion can speak on it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If an hon. Member has chosen some particular Member to second him, it is for him to tell me so; otherwise it is a question of who catches my eye.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the first place, I would like to assure my hon. friend who has moved this Motion that I have got a lot of material on the Motion. I did not want to stand just for the sake of standing to catch the Speaker's eye.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Mover has made his case very clear and he has quoted some examples of exploitation which are going on in the City of Nairobi and also other examples in this Republic. I do know of some practical cases in Kericho, in Sotik and even in Mombasa. In Sotik township, when an Asian was renting a shop with some houses at the side of the shop, he was paying only Sh. 150 per month. When an African went into that shop he was asked to pay Sh. 400 every month. This is the sort of exploitation which the hon. Mover has appealed to the Minister for Commerce and Industry to look into and, if possible, bring an amendment to the law which will fill the gaps which now allow these fellows to exploit our Africans who are coming into business.

Mr. Speaker, the Mover, in his Motion, has requested this House to resolve that a Select Committee be appointed and this Select Committee would go into details and would examine some cases here in Nairobi, in Nakuru, in Mombasa and even in Meru, and then the recommendations of the Select Committee would enable the Minister for Commerce and Industry to do something which would go a long way to assist our young Africans who, as yet, do not have any good, sound financial ability.

[Mr. arap Biy]

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Mover queried whether this Rent Tribunal has got only one member of the committee or several members. I think the hon. Mover knows full well that the hon. Wariithi is—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member not misquoting me when I was quoting the Trade Licensing Tribunal rather than the Rent Tribunal?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He may have misunderstood you.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, if I did so, I am sorry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Rent Tribunal Committee does not have enough powers to deal with these cases, we would like the Minister—who is an African and he understands the difficulties of the Africans—to come forward, on this Motion, to set up a Select Committee of the Members of this House to look into this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to take the time of this House; I only wanted to come forward and appeal to the Members of this House, plus the Minister concerned and the Government, to accept this Motion as it is and I hope this committee will help a lot.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to second the Motion.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you for asking me to speak.

Sir, I would like to make one point clear in this House this morning and that is that the Minister for Commerce and Industry is an economist and sometimes he appears to be too smart for this House. I am requesting the Minister not to try to bring in an amendment to this Motion because the Motion itself says quite clearly what the Members of the House want.

Sir, let me come to the point straight away. What I am going to tell the House are facts of experience, not imagination, facts that I personally have experienced in Nairobi here. The purpose of enacting the Trade Licensing Act was to enable us to Africanize business in Kenya. Sir, is this now being done? I am afraid it is not. Why? The reasons are simple and clear. I know of several cases in Nairobi here and what is happening is this: If an African wants to rent commercial premises where a non-citizen has been told to leave, the landlord becomes very difficult and in some cases they speak very openly and say, "I am not going to give my premises to an African."

I know of a case where an African was told openly, "I am not going to give you my premises because you are an African and you can go where you want to go." This is in Nairobi South; a gentleman called B. N. Kiarire wanted to rent a premises in Nairobi South and this building belonged to K. P. Shah, a person who is very well known by the Members here. Mr. K. P. Shah refused to give this house to Mr. Kiarire and he had nowhere to go. This building is now occupied by an Asian, but whether he is a citizen or a non-citizen I do not know. This gentleman went again to another place in Victoria Street; the former trading gentleman there called himself the Ordinance Store. The landlord did not want to begin with Mr. Kiarire and so he refused completely, and that same place is now occupied by somebody calling himself a tobacconist.

Now, Sir, you can see how discrimination is going on in Kenya about Africans taking over the business.

Sir, I am going to give some more serious facts. I, personally, was involved, a few months ago, in trying to rent a business. The person who used to trade in this one was paying Sh. 1,400 per month, but he was told to quit and I began negotiations with him. When I went to see the landlord—a gentleman called Mr. Alexander—he said that if I wanted to use the premises, the rent would be Sh. 2,500, which is almost twice as much. Do you know what he told me? He said, "You either say yes or no." I had no way out except to say yes because I wanted the premises. The serious fact is that this building was built even before I was born; it was built in 1920. How can you expect with a building that is so old, even older than myself, that a landlord demands so much rent? Not only are there little shops there, but the whole building has far too many shops and the landlord is making a hell of a profit out of this old building.

Mr. Speaker, we have the Rent Tribunal Court and yet this Court has no powers to reduce the rents. That is the biggest problem. As the Mover of the Motion said, this law was only enacted to benefit the landlords, and not the tenants because the Court has no powers to reduce the rents. This I know because I have tried to find out from the members of the Court, and one of them said, "We cannot reduce these because we are not given powers in the law." I was told that there was a process of trying to amend the law, but my question is this: whoever is going to amend the law—maybe it is the Attorney-General or a civil servant—does not have the experience of the problems of the people who live in Nairobi. We are the people who have seen all the problems.

and it would be proper and correct for the Minister to accept the Motion so that a Select Committee of this House could go into all these problems in all the different towns in Kenya, Kisumu, Mombasa and Nairobi, and even the little town of Kisii, so that they get the proper information.

Sir, I feel that it is only a Select Committee which would be able to solve all these problems. We have seen in the past what the Select Committees of this House have done; the Africanization Committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. Shikuku, how wonderful it did. We have seen the report, if you do not know what the committee has done.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that the saviour of the African business in this country will only be the appointment of a Select Committee of this House so that they can go into everything and we get the right things. This Select Committee will be able to recommend to the Attorney-General from what they find so that the businessman in Kenya can participate really well and reasonably in the economy of this country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks I hope that the Minister for Commerce and Industry—who is now here—will come forward and accept the Motion so that the country will benefit out of it. Otherwise, if he proves he is incapable, we will sack him and get another one because all hon. Members can do his job and I, personally, can even do better than he does.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, I accept the spirit of this Motion; the proposal and not the ghost like the hon. Member for Butere.

Mr. Speaker, as the House knows, there are already two Acts covering the matter which the hon. Members are raising, namely the Trade Licensing Act and the Rent Tribunal Act, and we are fortunate that in this House we have the chairman of the Rent Tribunal, the hon. Henry Wariithi. Perhaps he will take part in these deliberations and inform the House about the operation of the Act and the difficulties they encounter in the operation of the Rent Act.

I know, Mr. Speaker—I have discussed this matter with him—that there are some difficulties in the Act itself that need to be looked into, and I know there is a committee in which he is engaged which is discussing possible amendments to this legislation so that the operation of the Act is equitable to both the landlords and the tenants. We must remember that although at the moment we are thinking of other landlords there are quite a number of our own people who own houses and we would like to see that whatever money they invest they get a fair return on their investment. Even the hon. Mr. Karungaru—I do not know—perhaps has a house rented to a tenant. If so, he would like to get a return for his investment. I think this is what the House is seeking to establish, that the rents must not be exorbitant but, at the same time, that the tenants must also pay a fair rent to the landlords. We know, Mr. Speaker, of a number of houses in Nairobi owned by our own people where rents are exorbitant.

Mr. Lubembe: In Nairobi West.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Not in Nairobi West, in Pumwani. Do not think of other places, think of the shantis which are being built. The hon. Member for Starehe, if he were to open up and tell us in this House, he would tell us of a number of shantis in his constituency—in which pigs should not even live—and these people who own them are charging Sh. 100 or Sh. 200 for 12 square feet of house.

Mr. Speaker, these are people that the Rent Tribunal should also be able to control. Unfortunately, at the moment they do not come—subject to what the chairman says—under his control. These people should also come under the purview of the legislation so that they too charge a fair rent. In my view, that type of house should not cost more than Sh. 5 a month to rent. The Minister himself will be speaking, there are certain loopholes in the legislation, and I think the House will like to see that the amendments are introduced to cover these holes.

There must be no misunderstanding in this House, Mr. Speaker, about the operation of this Act. The Act is the Trade Licensing Act. It has nothing to do with the building. Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member is misunderstanding. If a licence was refused to a trader, and he owns the building, that building still belongs to that landlord, and whoever takes it has to negotiate the rent with the landlord. If Mr. Karungaru owns the building, and his licence was taken away, if he gets another tenant, that tenant will have to negotiate the rent with the hon. Member. Therefore, we must not mix the two things, namely a licence to trade and ownership of a building. There are quite a number of people who are operating in Nairobi and do not own a building, but they have a trading licence and perhaps a lease on a building. If these licences are taken away, the building reverts to the owner and whoever comes in, namely the landlord, and therefore the hon. Member must not mislead our people by saying that if your licence is refused you will take over the building. The building is owned by another person—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order. Is the Attorney-General not misrepresenting my speech by saying that I had suggested that if a trader has been asked to quit the premises, whoever comes will take over that property as his own? When did I say this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There were some points in your speech, Mr. Karungaru, which I think called for elucidation of this kind. You were suggesting, I remember, at one stage that because a trade licence was taken away from the owner of a building, he was not free to do what he liked with the building, by way of converting it to residential use, for instance. There is no harm in clarification.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): My name is not Mark Anthony to begin with. Mr. Speaker, all I was trying to clarify is that we must be clear in our minds when we talk about Africanization of trade, Africanization of the business. We must not forget that even if a licence is taken away, that building belongs to somebody, and whoever comes in, be he an African or an Asian or a European, he has to negotiate a rent or a lease with the owner of the building. Mr. Speaker, we want to encourage our own people to go into business. The Minister for Commerce and Industry has said time and time again that our people must be careful when they start business that they work hard, keep proper books of accounts and they do not misuse the money that they get by way of loans to buy something else instead of buying goods—

An hon. Member: Or buy more wives.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am told by another Member that some people buy more wives. Mr. Speaker, I think we can learn from other people, that if someone is interested in making his business pay, he must be conscientious, he must work hard. Although we say a lot of things against the Asians, I think we can learn quite a lot from them. You will see an Asian working from five o'clock in the morning until very late at night in his duka. Our people must also be prepared to work hard, keep proper books of accounts and I am sure this is the only way that our people will make good in this exercise.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, I would like first of all, to agree with the Attorney-General in what he has said. As you know, Mr. Speaker, I am the Chairman of Business Premises Rent Tribunal, which has been set up under the Landlord and Tenant Act of 1965, and during the operation of that Act, since 1966, I have become aware that there are several shortcomings in the law and, as my learned friend said earlier, there is a committee of four people composed of a member from the Attorney-General's Chambers, myself, and from the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. We are in the process of discussing the shortcomings of the Act under which the Rent Tribunal works. We have agreed, in principle, that the Act is very badly drafted and there are many shortcomings which restrict the operation of the tribunal. We accept that some rents being charged by landlords are very exorbitant; we accept also that the Act, as it is, does not protect the tenant as it should. Because of that, I share the anxiety of the hon. Member, but I doubt the benefit a Select Committee will bring if the Government has accepted at least that the Rent Act is defective and is going to be amended. It is in the process, in fact. I have already proposed amendments to this Act and they have been already accepted by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, and the Attorney-General's Offices are in the process of drafting these amendments.

To be more specific, Mr. Speaker, there is the question of rent. The major defect of this Act is that a landlord can increase the rent at any time. He can give two months' notice to a tenant that he intends to increase the rent. When this is done, the matter comes before the Tribunal and the Tribunal has the machinery to assess a fair rent, whereas the tenant once he agrees to pay a given rent, once he signs a lease or pays a rent of say Sh. 400, cannot subsequently come to the Tribunal to complain that the rent he is paying is too high. This, in my view and the Tribunal's, is a big shortcoming because these days particularly many of our people are going into business and when you go to a landlord you negotiate a tenancy. He may ask you very high rent, but because you want to go into these premises, and if you do not accept that rent the premises will be taken by somebody else because of the high competition, you will accept whatever figure he states. Unfortunately, if you accept and pay even for one month, subsequently, you cannot come and claim that the rent is too high and that the rent should be re-assessed. I have said this is wrong and it has been accepted that it is wrong. If a landlord can increase rent at any time, the tenant should also equally be at liberty to come and say, "The rent I am paying is too high and I would like it to be re-assessed."

The other major thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that some of these premises—let us say you have been paying rent for about ten years, they are becoming old, they are dilapidated, and there should be a possibility of a tenant later on saying, "I have been paying this rent for a long time, this house is becoming very old and therefore I will ask the Tribunal to assess a fair rent." This is something I would ask the Members to consider very seriously. We accept there are shortcomings and these are in the process of being amended. There is the Rent Restriction Act, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which you are all familiar with. This Act is far better compared with the Landlord and Tenant Act. Under that Act, Mr. Speaker, a tenant can go to the Tribunal and complain or ask for the rent to be assessed and I do not see any reason why this should not be the same under the Landlord and Tenant Act. The Act was meant to help the Africans or may be businessmen not to be exploited by landlords, but they can only be helped if the Tribunal is given powers to assess what fair rent should be paid. The principle we follow in the Tribunal is that once you have invested your money to put up a building you are entitled to a return. You should get a fair return for your investment. On the other hand, you should not get such a big return which is not proportional to what other investors are getting in other investments. It is known that the landlords are usually very greedy. It is known that landlords demand very high rents, and they want to get a return for their money quickly. On the other hand, however, we cannot say that they should pay very low rents, so that people do not go into building property. What should be assured, and this is the policy, is to see that fair rent is paid and a man gets a fair return for the money he invests. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, all that I am informing the House is that this Act is defective. There is another major defect in this Act, in that we only cover tenancies of up to five years, then you are under the Act. However, if you negotiate the tenancy for more than five years, let us say, five years and six months or six years for that matter, you are outside the Act. What we feel and this is what I have also recommended, is that all tenancies, no matter for what duration, should be covered by the Act; and if this is among the amendments, then I will accept. What I am requesting the House to consider seriously is that I would have liked to amend the Motion; but I understand, Mr. Speaker, that you have said that if one amends, and it approves the appointment of a Select Committee, that that will remove the central part of the Motion. I would have wished, if the Motion was to ask the Government to amend the law to remove all these difficulties which have been experienced. Nevertheless, I think maybe when the Minister comes up to speak or reply, he will be able to say what the Government intends to do.

As far as the Trade Licensing Act is concerned, my experience is that there are certain loopholes also in that Act. As the Minister has said himself at several meetings all over the country, that amendments will soon be brought to this House to regularize the shortcomings. I would request the Minister to consider that if a person is given notice not to continue trading, he ceases to trade and another tenant comes to occupy the same premises, there should be a condition, that the new tenant must pay the rent which was being paid by the previous tenant. What is happening where the landlords are exploiting this situation is that when he is negotiating terms of tenancy with the incoming tenants, he normally asks very high rents—well nearly always—because there are many people competing to get into these premises. If he was getting Sh. 1,000 he even asks for Sh. 3,000 or Sh. 4,000. I know of many cases of people coming to us to complain at the Tribunal. There should be a provision under the Act, that in any situation a new tenant must pay the rent which was being paid and if there is a case for increasing the rent subsequently, then the landlord should follow the normal machinery, to give notice and for the matter to come before the Tribunal for assessing the rent. Landlords should not be allowed to take advantage of the operation of the Act. In other words, if somebody cannot trade, the man who is coming in without any proper experience in business, and probably he does not have much money, is asked such a high rent that it will make it difficult for him to carry on with his business properly.

The other part of this Act which I am not happy with is the question of giving somebody a licence not to trade in a given area in Nairobi and allowing him to trade in another area. This also, in my view, defeats the purpose of this Act. If somebody was, let us say, in River Road, and you give him a notice not to trade in River Road then you allow him to go to Government Road, that in my view, should not be the case. He is going to take all his customers with him; he is going to occupy other premises which have been occupied by another African businessman, so, once it is found that a person should not trade he should not be allowed to go to any other part of the town to carry on trade.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would say that my main aim in speaking is to assure the House that I, as the Chairman of the Rent Tribunal, I am satisfied that the present law is defective, that it should be amended and that, in fact, the amendment is in the process of being drafted.

With these words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I reserve my support.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move an amendment to the Motion, in view of the fact that the House understands the true sentiments of it. I would want it to read, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this way:—

THAT, in view of the present discriminatory attitudes being practised by some landlords throughout the Republic against Africans either by denying them the opportunity of renting premises or by demanding exorbitant rents, this House urges the Government to inquire into these prevalent malpractices as to restricting the demand of exorbitant rents, and to possible amendments to the existing Trade Licensing Act, Rent Restriction Act, and any other relevant law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know Members, want to find out why I thought that the Select Committee should be left out. The sentiments of the Motion Mr. Speaker, Sir, are understood. They all end in one goal: that is, amendment to the existing law that affect the renting of premises. If that is the aim of the Motion, then there is no point taking a very long route as if we did not know the destination. Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before you go further, I did wonder whether you were not removing too much of the substance of the question by cutting out the proposal for the Select Committee. However, looking again at the Motion as a whole, the main purpose is an inquiry into these alleged malpractices and possible improvement of the law. I think if the Motion is still asking for an inquiry, even though by Government instead of a Select Committee, it is maintaining the spirit of the Motion. So it is in order.

Mr. Mwithaga: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for enlightening me. In fact, there is a need for inquiry, and I hope the Government will see sense in accepting this Motion, as amended, because most of these Members who are here, and other public servants, and the people in the country at large know that there are a lot of malpractices in the whole country as far as the renting of premises is concerned.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has been seen and this is a fact, that when an African wants to rent premises, rentals are increased, and in that way he is kept out of the premises. Rentals are increased immediately, in order to provide an opportunity for a Mr. Patel somewhere to come and rent it. He may be living in Mombasa. This is happening in towns and in other rural areas where trade is being carried out. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hear the Member for Butere saying that in Butere the same thing is happening.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, one thing we must understand. This is not happening merely because the landlords happen to be mostly foreigners; even with our own people, we must be honest, are doing similarly. Some of them are charging as exorbitantly as foreigners. Once a landlord has property, he is a landlord and therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no question of treating this issue as a racial or biased one. It is a challenge to the landlords. The Government must bear the whole responsibility of inquiring into these malpractices, in order to alleviate the situation created by them which makes it impossible for traders and other would-be traders to take over business.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one gets to wonder how premises have earned an additional value because Kenya has become independent, and I am wondering whether houses and premises were fighting for independence. Mr. Speaker, Sir, houses which were built in 1930, 1940, and in 1948 to 1950, you find today's rentals keep going up and up. Repairs are not carried out; maintenance and up-keep are not looked after; and these houses still go up in rental.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, an Assistant Minister says that it is an economic upsurge. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe he does not understand what an economic upsurge is. Indeed, if he would support the keeping out of traders, by using this trick of raising rents exorbitantly to allow other traders who are wanted by the landlords to occupy the premises. In fact, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the sake of justice, no landlord should decide who should actually come to his premises provided the trader comes and pays rent and will not disappoint the landlord. The law, Mr. Speaker, Sir, wants only the person to be able to pay rent, and pay adequate and just rent. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister for Commerce and Industry comes out, eloquently as usual, to try and tell the nation, that we are trying to take business away from foreigners and put it into African hands, he must be able to provide methods for doing so. It is not just the buying out the business; facilities for rental must be just and adequate to enable that trader to be able to occupy such premises. Therefore, it is the onus of the Government to protect the would-be traders and the traders at the moment, so that they be charged only just and right rents.

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Mr. Speaker, there is a lot involved in this issue. The value of the houses and premises must be re-assessed. If a house was built many years ago, we must now find out the materials which were used, and this is simple economics. I am speaking now to a professor of economics, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Commerce. We must find out what the value of building this premises was at the time of construction, and what the landlord has earned ever since. If the value of the house, built at that time, and the material involved was low, and during the period of 20 years that he has had this property he has earned so much, and the property has now paid for itself and now is only accumulating profit, then we must know whether these profits are called for, or uncalled for. If they were unnecessary, exorbitant and uncalled for profits, then this landlord must be made to allow another person at least to gain something out of this barter he has been feeding on for all those 20 years.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, politics is involved in this issue. Our people wanted the farms. We complained about the sale price of the farms. The Government has been hit very hard on this issue. Now, on the question of commerce there must be a similar attack on the issues which are not being taken care of. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to facilitate the occupation of premises which will enable our people to trade and trade easily, conditions must be created which will enable such easy trade and facilities to be maintained. The conditions cannot be created by negotiations between the landlord and the tenant. Sir, the landlord tells you, "If you do not want these premises, I will get hon. Wariithi. He will give me £20 on top of what you are offering. You can go". This man sits there and thinks. He cannot raise the £20. Mr. Wariithi wants to grab the opportunity to occupy the premises by adding £20. This kind of competition is one of the tendencies which are there and which are creating malpractices because landlords are using these tricks to get what they want. This is known to the Government, that they are using these tricks to keep out African traders. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these cases have been brought to me in my town. The Chairman of the Rent Tribunal has been to Nakuru quite often to try and settle some of these cases. They are numerous. Each day does not pass without cases being sent to his office. Mr. Speaker, Sir, do we really need the Rent Tribunal to continue appeasing the people, or do we need conditions created whereby much work will not be done by the Rent Tribunal because a system has been worked out. What we are lacking is a system. We need a system that would be able to provide facilities to our people. This must be stipulated in the law of the land. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know we may be afraid to legislate, but we must take it on ourselves, as legislators, that however nasty a law may be we have to bear the burden.

Therefore, the Government must come out with a completely mobilized inquiry so that a system can be found, after that inquiry, to enable our people to occupy premises without having to suffer at the landlords' exploitation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Mover of this Motion made various positions quite clear—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are seconding the amendment?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): I am seconding the amendment as well as replying. I will take my 20 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the important thing in order to get this Motion strengthened—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to the Minister, are we now clear that hon. Mwithaga has amended the Motion and, if so, what part of the Motion has he amended? We do not follow this. He was so mixed up.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You would hear when I proposed the question of the amendment. However, it is just as well you should understand it clearly now.

What the hon. Member is proposing is that you leave out the words after "House" down to and including "Committee" in the fourth line, that is to say, delete the words "resolves to appoint a Select Committee", and put in the words, "urges the Government". Then, later on, you leave out the words, "make recommendations to the House as to". In order to get the grammar quite right, I think, if you agree, you will have to put in the words, "with a view to" and leave out the words "as to" in the next line. What you would get is—

"this House urges the Government to inquire into the prevalent malpractices with a view to restricting the demand of exorbitant rents, and as to possible amendment of the existing. . ."

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, I think the hon. Member will be well appeased when we finish speaking.

Sir, the sentiments, if not the actual words in which they were expressed, expressed here, we share. Since this House passed the various laws which were aimed at assisting the new African traders, we have had nearly a year now of trying to operate them. Mr. Speaker, various, very difficult, administrative problems have come up. We, in the Ministry, and in the whole Government, because we have been assisted by the various administrative officers in various fields, have become very much aware of these particular malpractices and numerous other manoeuvres which I myself have had occasion to speak about a number of times. These are frustrating some of the things that we want to do.

Mr. Speaker, it is quite false for the hon. Member for Kitui East to presume that only he knows what the problems of the traders are, partly, as he says, because he moves with them. I do not know where he thinks we live. Mr. Speaker, we not only live with these people but some of us have the great fortune—like yourself, Sir, and myself—to represent concentrations of population in our urban areas where these traders are, not merely in our capacity as Ministers but also in our capacity as Members of Parliament in matters that they have brought to us. Equally, our own field officers were instructed from the beginning to watch out for these matters, and I would like on this occasion to say that we are very grateful for the assistance we have received from the field officers and from the officers in the Administration, the district officers, the district commissioners and the provincial commissioners. For these reasons, the malpractices have been brought to light.

We have also received valuable advice from the Rent Tribunal of which the hon. Mr. Wariithi is the Chairman, and which has four other members. They have, themselves, constantly come up against these problems. We know these problems. If I might just mention some of them so that Members do know that these have come to our attention, they are as follows. We are aware, Mr. Speaker, that for some of the old buildings in various parts of our towns, rents which are infinitely out of proportion with what should be paid are being requested. We are aware, too, Sir, that some traders who have been refused trading licences in various parts, have themselves refused to rent these places. In fact, we know of traders where we have had to take administrative action which is not really covered in that law. We have had to take administrative action to get people to open buildings which traders who were refused licences closed, and were quite unwilling to rent them to anyone, let alone negotiate any rent. Mr. Speaker, we are aware, too, of the opportunities being taken by these landlords to demand exorbitant rents when a foreign trader has moved out and the new African is going to come in. Since, under the law, the owner of the building is negotiating new terms, he takes this opportunity to demand very high rents. Let us face it, there is, in towns particularly—in the main towns—a very high demand for these new premises being vacated. Therefore, the landlord does exploit this fact of a high demand being there, that he may have five, six different applicants seeking to go into that same premises.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Therefore, we accept now, as Mr. Wariithi has said, we in the Government, the need for amendment to these two laws and to some other laws in order to do two things. One, Sir, to strengthen the power of the Government in this whole question of assessment of rent. There is today the arrangement whereby the assessment is done by the landlord. The tenant's position is purely one of complaining, that too high a rent is being demanded for a given premises. Then it goes to the tribunal for a determination of whether or not the complaint is justified.

What is required now, and we accept this—and we are now in the process of drafting the amendment, and this House before it rises during this Sitting will have these amendments to deal with—is to give powers of initiative, both to the tenant and to the tribunal, to give powers, above all, that a tenant can demand an assessment of whether or not the rent he is being charged is fair or not fair. What will then happen is this: the Rent Tribunal will require to have at its service qualified people as valuers because otherwise they will get into a whole jumble of questions as to whose opinion is right. That is an amendment which is accepted and which will come. Three or four other amendments which are necessary have been listed by the chairman of the tribunal, Mr. Wariithi, and I do not want to repeat them.

The second aspect of this amendment, which is required in the Trade Licensing Act, is to enable the Government, when they have given notice to a trader to leave certain premises, the people who move in, either to buy those premises or to rent those premises, it should be a ground of complaint to the Rent Tribunal if they are charged a rent higher than the one which was being charged to the previous tenant. As the law is now, they could not raise this point as a ground for complaint because under the present law the terms would be new terms. Therefore, they could not complain because they would be new terms and, as I said, in view of the very high demand, they would be forced to agree to very unreasonable terms. For this reason the new amendments are to be provided.

I want to mention, too, that we have assisted in this question of valuation of premises, which had to be taken as a separate matter. Where people are buying business premises as a result of the Trade Licensing Act, there is need to assist in valuation. We, Mr. Speaker, have arrangements so that anybody, any African trader who applies for assistance through the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation will always get a valuer provided. But this is not working effectively only for one reason, that in some towns like Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru, Naivasha and places of this sort, the demand for these buildings is so high that our own people, even after we have given them the valuation, because they are competing with So-and-so, are willing to go quietly and pay something extra to ensure that they get the premises. This is what is happening. We, as Members, have to recognize that this is happening. However, we are providing that particular service.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to propose that since we have recognized these shortcomings, and with the advice of all those involved in the administration of these three laws, have already undertaken—and we have the drafts—to bring to this House the amendments that are necessary— Since this is what the hon. Member for Embakasi really wants, that there should be amendments which shall strengthen the Government and everybody else, in stamping out these malpractices, for that reason, Sir, I believe that the amendments by the hon. Member for Nakuru town are reasonable in that the inquiry which is requested now has been going on.

The inquiry which has been requested, we are willing to intensify. If there are any particular points which the hon. Members think must be covered in these amendments, we are willing to receive such advice from them. In view of this, Mr. Speaker, I think that we would be delaying the implementation of these measures by having a Select Committee of Parliament because a Select Committee of Parliament will base its views on the tenants who have already made their views known to the Rent Tribunal, to the Ministry and the various field officers. They will also, perhaps, get their views from the landlords who have already made their views known to the same people; and then they will have to come and report back to this same House. I daresay that, with the greatest respect to ourselves as Members of Parliament, that we are likely to arrive at the same conclusion as those that have been arrived at with the help not only of lawyers but of everybody else as regards the amendment of these laws. Mr. Speaker, I would say, therefore, that rather than take further time, and spend so much time of the Members of this House in a Select Committee, we should be allowed to go ahead and bring in these amendments to this House as soon as they are published; and that will be very shortly. That is what I take to be an important matter, Sir.

There are two other matters I want to mention, Mr. Speaker, because I think we are all agreed that we proceed along the lines suggested by the Member for Nakuru town. There are two other matters on which the Members of this House can assist us. These landlords, in so many towns, particularly the smaller towns where people do not have access to the so-called estate agents, valuers, and so on, are taking advantage of the fact that our own traders, the African traders, may not be aware of the values, either of goods or of these properties. And there are cases which have come to light, where people have literally been exploited. Buildings which really were built in 1910—and which today are just mabati buildings, really have no obvious value as such, except that one will acquire the plot—very high rents are being charged for these; alternatively very high prices if the buildings are sold. Now, the hon. Members would do very well if, as part of their general political education to their constituents, they bring to light that we, as Government, are prepared to assist if requested. I say if requested because, essentially, a deal between one person and another to sell a property would not normally be brought to the notice of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry unless the person involved requires a loan or some other assistance. However, if this was brought to our notice, we are willing to assist in giving them valuers. This is one problem in which Members can help.

There is, Sir, the second problem where Members can help, and that is to encourage our people to think more in terms of business rather than purely in the ownership of business. You know, in the mind of the African, today, he is carrying over this mentality of the farmer, where the ownership of property is the most important thing, to be able to say, "That building is mine", "That land is mine", rather than the commercial view, that what you really have to have is a place in which to trade. As regards initial capital, the

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] money is now available to them. Rather than committing it to a building where they may never get a return, they should invest it in a business.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Members can help us in this latter approach. If they have this approach, then this competition which is all too much between Africans, the demanding and paying of very high prices for very old shanty buildings, this would actually be reduced. But this can only be done with the assistance of the Members themselves. We would very much like them to do so.

An hon. Member: City Council.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Yes, city council, too. In fact, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when the city council is mentioned, I would like to say that all the county councils in this country have rendered us help. They have been willing to ask their people, the personnel in their department of engineers, to do some valuation on behalf of tenants. In fact, the other day when I was on tour of the Eastern Province, in Meru, Embu and other parts, we did find that the county council officials had helped, as in so many other places. If the hon. Member for Machakos has not received any assistance of that sort from his county council, I think it is only because he has not asked for that kind of help.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is a second aspect on which one has to be careful. It has been mentioned that the rents should be reduced, they must be reduced; we agree that they should be reduced and they should be stabilized, but we, as a House, also have the responsibility of ensuring that the building programme for houses, for shops, for offices, continues. Virtually every person who builds a block of offices or shops in any town builds from borrowed funds. He borrows that money at a given rate of interest and he expects to be able to recover and repay that money over a given period of time. We have to accept that the proper way to go about it is to establish machinery for the assessment of what we call a fair rent. However, that fair rent must be set up to give a return on capital invested in buildings, similar to what one would get if one invested one's money in something else. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if we do not do it that way, then the obvious laws of economics will operate; those that have money will invest it in some other things and not in buildings. The return on investment in buildings should be the same as the return on investment in commerce, in industry, in building a house; it should be similar. It should not be exorbitant, but it should be similar. The incentive, therefore, for people to invest in buildings must be continued, otherwise we shall be defeating our own purpose; in three years' time we shall have so few new houses, so few premises for traders, that the demand will be so great that the rents will have to go up. Therefore, we have to encourage this programme of building. That is why I have, myself, talked about stabilizing the rents, talked about the assessment of rents, and not about forcing any people to quit this particular field of industry.

Finally, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, let me say this: that despite all the criticism that we have heard from the hon. Member for Embakasi, that the Trade Licensing Act is not working, you only have to speak to the traders—and I have just been on a tour of very many districts of this country—to know that the Trade Licensing Act is working like a bomb. The changes are obvious. To walk into a town like Meru you feel really encouraged and exhilarated because all of the trade is being taken over by local people from there, and they are doing extremely well. I know that in Nairobi the change is very perceptible because I, myself walk in these places and visit these people and talk to them. They come to me for the obvious reason that I represent part of where they live. We therefore, know it is working. What is required now is, of course, to prepare for its continued operation and to remove the obstacles which have been seen here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think this is the right occasion for us, as a Government, to make the very obvious statement which is not a warning and is not even a threat to anyone; that we have in this country some citizens of non-African origin who really seek to cash in on this situation. These people have the money and they see these buildings are up for sale today and they are able to pay much higher prices than any Africans whom we have around, and they see that the demand for these premises is bound to continue to be high, and that the return from their investment is going to continue to be very high, and there is a very serious effort by quite a few of them to buy very many of these buildings and to deny opportunity to those who do not even own one. We have to be very careful about this situation in this regard, that the equality that we talk about as between citizens cannot ever be achieved if we have such greedy people within our midst. Whereas the Constitution, therefore, guarantees equality of treatment between citizens, I do not think that any of our rich citizens should deceive themselves that those parts of the Constitution, and everything else, can continue to be given the respect they must be given if some people think that they are permanently deprived of the opportunity to make a living, which they feel that they can make and they have the means to make. Therefore, the duty of these citizens, particularly those of non-African origin, who are well-off because of history, is that they must co-operate; they must see to it that the stability we seek will only come when there is a fairer economic distribution of the income of this nation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I very much support the amendment and I hope the Member for Embakasi will also support the amendment to this Motion.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The only real amendments, as far as I can see, is to insert that the House urges the Government to make inquiries rather than appoint a Select Committee. I will now propose the question.

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, proposed)

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, put and agreed to)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid that the time for the Mover to reply has already come and so I will propose the question of the amended Motion.

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in view of the seriousness of the statement that the Minister has just made, would it not be in order for me to ask you to give us at least another 20 minutes on this Motion?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I think it is a bit late. However, I think the Minister has covered everything that could be covered and I do not think there is anything he said— Besides, Mr. Karungaru will have the chance to reply and there seems to be overwhelming support for the amendment and so I do not think it is necessary, as we have other Motions to deal with.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like now to reply, very briefly, to a few of the points that hon. Members have made in this House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, first of all I would like to thank the Members who have contributed on this Motion, and I would also like to thank the Minister who shares the same opinion as some of us. However, I have a little quarrel here, and that is that this Act was enacted in 1965. Counting from 1965 until this moment, it is about four years. I fail to understand why the Minister is supporting the Member for Nakuru by amending the Motion because the Government has been sitting on this amendment fully knowing that our people have been exploited. Taking into consideration what the Minister has told this House today, and also what the Attorney-General has told this House today, I fail to understand why today they think it is necessary to amend the Motion so that it merely urges the Government to do something, whereas the Government has seen all these problems and has been unable to help our people. This is why I have this quarrel with the Minister who has responded to this Motion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have been thinking that the Minister for Commerce and Industry is with us in that he understands all the problems facing us. Instead of waiting until the last minute, when everything has gone completely out of control, he should have helped our people earlier. I fail now to understand why he has been sitting on that very hot place without knowing that one day he will be asked to leave that place for another person.

However, Sir, since the Minister has accepted the Motion, I sympathize with him and I hope that he is going to see that the Motion is implemented. We have been told many times in this House by some of our Ministers that they are going to do this and they are going to do that, only to find that in the final analysis they do nothing. We may even be told today that this amendment will be brought before we go into another recess. This should be known because it is not a new thing; we have been told many things of this kind only to find that we do not see anything moving. We do not want things to stand still; we want things to move. If we are to help our people, we must act and not just speak. Of course, since we have already told the Government of our intention, we hope it will do its best.

Now, Sir, as for what the Attorney-General said in this House, I think he was a bit confused. I fail to understand why he brought up the question of shanties and other irrelevant matters into this Motion. When we are seriously speaking in this House, I fail to understand why a man of the Attorney-General's calibre and integrity does not understand why we are arguing in this House. I sympathize with him because he is not a representative of any given area, and that is why, perhaps, he fails to understand our requests.

[Mr. Karungaru]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to come to the other point which the Minister raised; and I have this to say. The Minister already knows that in Nairobi the Trade Licensing Act is not implemented in the manner that all of us anticipated. This is a hard fact. We go to River Road, we go to Government Road, we go to other places—and he knows the reason behind it, why they find it difficult to implement; this is because the landlords are demanding higher and higher rents. The Ministry has known this for a long time. I fail to understand why the Minister sat on fire.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think it is necessary for we Back-benchers always to come to this House to tell the Government what to do. If the Government is aware of what is wrong and what is required, why can Government not do something about our people. I have told the House earlier that we do not want red tape laws and I am still insisting that there are some laws which are not necessary even within the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. These laws are helping more of those who have, and they are not helping those who do not have at all. We do not want laws which are of a discriminatory character; we want laws which are impartial and which are helpful to all. We do not want discrimination of this form, and he has agreed with me that this Act that we are speaking about today should not have been known as the Landlords' and Tenants' Act, it should have been known as the Landlords' Act, because it is an Act that favours the landlords. This is not an Act which is in favour of the tenants; and so, why should it have the title of the tenants whom it does not help at all?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): He is the president of the tenants.

Mr. Karungaru: I understand that he is the president of the tenants and I am glad that the president of the tenants is here, but I think that perhaps he enjoys seeing our people being frustrated. I hope that he has now been aroused; we want to see your action and we do not want to hear that you are the president, a president who is not acting.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are not people who wear blinkers and we do not want to wear blinkers so that we only go where we are wanted to go. We are here to see that whatever we do here is in favour of our people, and not in favour of just a few people whose sole interest is to exploit our people. We have been exploited enough and I think it is time that some of these people who have been exploiting us should about-turn and let us enjoy what they have been enjoying.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have heard some of the arguments which were brought up regarding the old buildings. The Minister has not told us whether in the amendment they are proposing to bring before the House here that they have taken care of that one. We cannot say that a suit that is worth now Sh. 500 after three years it will still be worth that money or more. We fail to understand this logic. The Minister has been a student of economics and I believe he knows that if something, when new, is worth, say, Sh. 500, when it is old it is not worth that money. I fail to understand why rents for some buildings which were built in 1902 are still going higher and higher and higher. Perhaps the old people are now going to be made to look younger and younger and younger.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to move.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

THAT, in view of the present discriminatory attitudes being practised by some landlords throughout the Republic against Africans either by denying them the opportunity of renting premises or by demanding exorbitant rents, this House urges the Government to inquire into these prevalent malpractices with a view to restricting the demand of exorbitant rents, and possible amendment of the existing Trade Licensing Act, Rent Restriction Act, and any other relevant law.

MOTION

PRICE OF MACADAMIA NUT TREE SEEDLINGS

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, in view of the fact the Government has accepted the macadamia nut as another paying cash crop to be introduced into this country and again considering the fact that one farmer on the Thika Road is holding the entire monopoly of growing the seedlings of this cash crop and also noting that he sells one seedling very expensively because of this monopoly, this House calls upon the Government to allow and encourage the co-operatives and any other farmers interested in growing these seedlings to do so, in order to eliminate the monopoly by this one farmer and to reduce the selling price by competition between these farmers.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is a straightforward Motion. Therefore, I would not be wrong to suppose that the Assistant Minister for Agriculture will put it into effect. Mr. Deputy Speaker,

[Mr. Kathanga]

Sir, when I was speaking in the debate on the Presidential Address, I stated without reservation that the Government has introduced a new cash crop by the name of the macadamia nut. I also stated that the seedlings of this important cash crop are at present being grown exclusively by one farmer. Indeed, I expressed my disapproval. This is simply because it is a matter of giving a monopoly to one person. As a result of this monopoly, this farmer sells a single seedling very expensively, for your information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when this farmer started growing these seedlings he was selling each one at a price of Sh. 8 to Sh. 9, I understand that since I put a question to the Minister for Agriculture in this House, he has reduced the price from Sh. 9 to Sh. 6 and Sh. 7. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I consider this to be one of the greatest exploitations against our people by a single farmer who is a foreigner. This is simply because these prices are exorbitant. In view of that, something must be done.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, to that end, I would like to suggest what should be done. This will in itself benefit our small-scale farmers or our peasant farmers. I am sure the Minister will try to convince me that this is a specialized work and therefore, our people are not able to establish their own nurseries. I would like to point out to him that when coffee was introduced in this country by the colonialists, Africans were told that they would not be able to grow the crop. This was simply because they were Africans. At that time, the colonialists took Africans to be bure and primitive. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to state openly that today the best coffee is grown by the Africans. If that is the case, I do not see any reason why they cannot do likewise with regard to macadamia nut cultivation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker. Sir, I would like to make another point. I think it would be advisable for the Government to help co-operatives and individual farmers who are interested in the importation of macadamia seeds. This should be done with a view to establishing their own nurseries in the country. By so doing, our peasant farmers will be able to buy the seedlings of this important crop very cheaply. At present, they are unable to buy seedlings, because of the prevailing exorbitant prices. I have already cited this issue. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Government can do this very easily by using some of its own agents for that purpose. For example, the Government can use the Kenya National Trading Corporation for the importation of these seeds. They can, in turn sell them to the co-operatives and farmers who would like to establish nurseries. After growing these seeds in the nurseries, they can sell them to our farmers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in order to speed up the growth of this cash crop which will obviously be of economic advantage and which is a way of diversification of farming activities in this country, as has been outlined by the Government, it would be advisable to follow my line of argument on this issue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I understand that this farmer in question started to grow macadamia nut seedlings some time back in 1964. Up to now, he is still going on with this business. He has up to now grown about 600,000 seedlings. They have yielded him over Sh. 4,000,000. This is really a surprising thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker. This in itself implies making a person a millionaire within a fortnight. I have never heard of a person who became a millionaire within a fortnight. I cannot understand the person who made all these arrangements. This is simply because, I understand, there was a propagation nursery of macadamia nut seedlings at the Government Research Station at Thika. We don't know who stopped that nursery, and why he did it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it may be that the person who did that in the name of the Government did it with a view to giving a chance to that person to exploit our people by making him a millionaire within a day.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am really surprised. If the Assistant Minister for Agriculture rejects this Motion, I will provoke it from another corner, thus making it more difficult for him to reject it completely.

Mr. Speaker, I understand that, today, nobody is allowed to buy the seedlings from that nursery without a written permission from an agricultural officer. Why should the Government be interested in such an affair? This is why we are bound to believe that they allowed this person to establish this nursery in order to exploit our people. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure the Assistant Minister will accept this Motion.

There is also another point which I would like to discuss. When the Government stopped the established nursery at Thika, why did it not find it necessary to establish another one if it can possibly be claimed that the nursery in question was stopped due to climatic conditions? Why did it not find it necessary to establish another one? Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is extremely bad.

[Mr. Kathanga]

There is also another point which I consider to be very important. I understand that the Minister for Agriculture is busy with negotiations with a certain company at Thika. These negotiations are aimed at giving the company in question the right of processing and marketing the crop. For the information of the hon. Members of this House, I regret to say that that company is a foreign company. If the handling of the crop is going to be given to a foreign company, whereas I know there is a company run by wananchi which is interested in the said agency and which is capable I deem this to be very bad. When the Minister for Agriculture attended a co-operative leaders' conference held in Nairobi recently on 21st and 22nd of this month, he told them that he was negotiating with a certain company by the name of the Del Monte Company. This company owns a cannery at Thika. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to state quite clearly that there is another organization by the name of Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union which is owned and controlled by large and small-scale coffee farmers. Many of them are members of co-operatives. It should be given the right of this agency, if we really intend to help the co-operatives. Many farmers who are beginning to grow this crop are members of co-operatives. When co-operatives and farmers who are interested are allowed to establish nurseries the farmers will be able to buy the said seedlings cheaply instead of them being exploited by one farmer.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is that there is something wrong with Government planning at Thika, and I think this point is very important. The Ministry should establish research stations to sample different varieties of macadamia seedlings for recommendation in various districts in the Republic.

I have made it clear in this House, many times, that coffee is becoming a bure cash crop, and we are lucky that the Government has agreed to introduce this new cash crop. The Government should work hard to see that every district benefits from this important crop, because it is only by doing so that the peasant farmers in our rural areas can benefit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not intend to make a very long speech because as I said right from the beginning, this is a straightforward Motion and I am very optimistic that the Assistant Minister for Agriculture is going to accept it so that our people can benefit from it.

Without spending more time on this Mr. Speaker, may I ask my Seconder, Mr. Kioko, to support the Motion.

Mr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, I rise to second the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, as the Mover has said, this is a very straightforward Motion which asks the Government to break the monopoly held by an individual who is enjoying the butter while the Africans who are growing this macadamia nut crop are not.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my opinion, I think this is a very genuine Motion which the Minister for Agriculture should consider accepting without any amendment. This is simply because here you can see that we should not allow, as it is the policy of the Kenya Government that nobody should be allowed to enjoy all the privileges while others suffer. Therefore, in view of this, I feel what we are asking the Ministry of Agriculture—which is responsible for this—to do is to break the monopoly. Africans who grow more than 95 per cent of this crop should be given the priority to have their own nurseries so that they will be able to plant these seedlings.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Mover of the Motion has said, it is clear that this gentleman has been charging too much for these seedlings. They are too expensive, Sir, because when you consider that after one has bought a seedling for Sh. 9, and while one is taking it home, the chances that it may die before it is planted are very great.

I am very thankful that the Mover decided to bring this Motion to the House so that we can tell the Minister what is in the minds of the people. We have learnt that there is exploitation by this gentleman who was given this monopoly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank the gentleman who established this nursery in the country, Mr. Harries, and I feel that he did a very good job. But the time has come when he should allow others to enjoy the benefits from this very important crop which he has enjoyed for the last four or five years. He, as my colleague said, has made quite a lot of money. I am not quite sure, but I think he has made almost Sh. 6 million and even if it were two or three million, to be frank, I think this is a lot of money he has enjoyed from us, at the expense of the Africans.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, those who grow this crop are mainly Africans, members of the co-operatives, and I think it is high time the co-operatives were given an opportunity to establish the nurseries through which they will be able to sell cheaper to the members of the co-operatives. This is very important, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we want to help the Africans.

[Mr. Kioko]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point I would like to raise on this is about the handling and marketing of this crop. Mr. Speaker, I was very much disturbed when I heard the Minister for Agriculture was negotiating with a foreign company to handle and market this crop which is grown by the Africans. This, Mr. Speaker, is absolutely absurd. I felt he was not following Sessional Paper No. 10—on African Socialism—which declares the sharing of wealth to all and not to a few. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what do these foreign companies have to do with the crop which is grown, looked after, and reaped by Africans who should, therefore, get all the butter or cream? This, to me, Mr. Speaker, Sir, was a very serious proposal and I would like to warn the Minister for Agriculture that the time has come when the Ministry of Agriculture should be fully Africanized. There should be an African way of thinking in the Ministry, because it looks to me that there does not exist the African way of thinking. Mr. Speaker, Sir, how can a crop which is grown by Africans mainly be handled and marketed by a foreign company, whereas we have another organization established and prepared to handle this crop and market it? This organization has made several approaches to the Ministry of Agriculture so as to be allowed to handle the crop, but all in vain. Mr. Speaker, I think it is high time when this Ministry should think in terms of Africans, so that the Africans can be helped.

We know very well that the major industry of this country is agriculture. Knowing that agriculture is our main industry, we should accelerate this all the time; all our efforts, all facilities and goods should be in the interest of the poor, small farmers of this country and not of individuals as it appears the Ministry of Agriculture is trying to direct.

Mr. Speaker, that is the point which I wanted to tell the Ministry. I can see the Assistant Minister for Agriculture is almost agreeing with me. I know well that he thinks in an African way and I am sure that he is going to accept this Motion without any amendment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as everyone of us knows, that during the colonial time—and I think we have moved from those days—there was a mentality with some of the Europeans who thought that Africans could not do any good thing. At that time coffee was not supposed to be grown by Africans; I am sorry to repeat that, but now Africans are growing the best coffee in the country. This is a true fact. Therefore, I am sure Africans are going to grow the best macadamia trees which will be healthier than those grown by my friend who is now enjoying this monopoly. The Africans should be given the opportunity and this is what we are demanding from the Ministry.

These two points are very important; one: we would like the Ministry to break the monopoly; two: the co-operatives should be given—on district level—the opportunity, with the help of the Ministry of Agriculture, to establish the nurseries which will be a cheaper way of distributing the seedlings to the members of the co-operatives. I feel that these two points are very important, and this is what I want to point out and emphasize and also urge the Ministry of Agriculture to accept and take action. It is not the question of accepting in this House and not implementing it. We want the Ministry of Agriculture, plus all other Ministries, to be Ministries of action. The Ministers and their Assistants should be Ministers and Assistant Ministers of action and all of us, too, should be the Government of action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these are the few words in which I want to second this Motion, but before I sit down, I will remind the Assistant Minister for Agriculture that we are not speaking against the gentleman who was given this monopoly. He has done a very good job as I said before, because without him, probably today, we might not have had anything to discuss here and perhaps nothing to enjoy. However, I want him, through you, to know that the time has come when he should now give way to allow others to have a chance. He had enough time to do it and I thank him for all he did, and I am sure that he will agree with me that it is high time the Africans enjoyed these fruits of his work as he has enjoyed the fruits of our work.

With these few words, I beg to second.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you Mr. Speaker, Sir, for this opportunity to say a few words. Before I go on to speak on the Motion, I have one observation to make. I have noticed on several occasions that when the Minister for Agriculture has something concerning the minds of the Africans of this country, he usually does not come to the Chamber but allows his Assistant Minister to come and discuss these affairs with his fellow Africans. This must be due to something wrong that he must have done for which he is not prepared to come and face us, otherwise why does he not come to the Chamber to face us and answer for himself without having to send his African Assistant Minister to answer these accusations? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that there is something wrong in this and it is high time he became courageous enough to come and face the Members and listen to their views.

[Mr. Mwalwa]

Now Sir—

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the hon. Member speaking now explain to this House how he obtained the information that the Minister for Agriculture has something to hide about this Motion before the House and that is the reason why he did not come to the House? Can he really substantiate that there was something he was hiding?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, the hon. Member was expressing an opinion based on the fact that the Minister is not here on this occasion and, according to his allegation, on other similar occasions. Whether that opinion is rather far-fetched is for the House to judge.

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is high time the Assistant Minister learned our views in this House. Personally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no grudge against anyone, be he a European, an African, an Asian or anybody. But, Sir, when I feel there is something wrong somewhere I cannot hesitate in speaking my mind. As for yourself, as the Speaker of this Chamber, we know how much work you have put in this House and that if we were to elect another Speaker, without fear or hesitation, we would re-elect you. I am sorry to say this but I am trying to prove that somebody, whether he is a European or an African who is responsible, provided he does his work properly, this House is prepared to accept him for his good service. Sir, I am going to say that as long as we have the present Minister as the Minister for Agriculture, this House will continue to complain about his deliberation not because he is a white man, but because, naturally, we feel that he has some inclination towards his white-skinned men than to us. Therefore, I am saying that whether he is a citizen or a non-citizen, I feel that he is somehow inclined to show some sort of favouritism to some of his people.

Mr. Nyagah: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to know through you whether the hon. Member speaking now is strictly speaking to the Motion on macadamia nuts or speaking on something else? Is he on the Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have been wondering about that too, but I think he is making the point that the Mover made, that this farmer who appears to have the monopoly in growing seedlings has been favoured by the Ministry in being allowed to continue with that monopoly; and, unfortunately, the farmer and the Minister are of the same colour.

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you Mr. Speaker, Sir, for teaching these tired Ministers.

The point I am trying to make is very clear. If, in this country a certain crop is grown by Africans, that is, if most farmers who grow a certain crop in this country are Africans, then I see no reason why somebody else should be given the monopoly of selling and reaping all the benefits of the crop. I see no reason whatsoever, and I believe the Minister can see no reason for this either. It is because they are employed by His Excellency the President that they tend to be together without being afraid of what the Minister does. Sir, I am trying to say that, naturally, if most of the growers of this crop are Africans, surely, one wonders why a certain individual—and not the majority of the farmers—is allowed to grow and market the crop. It is absurd and I see no point in allowing this to continue.

The Mover of the Motion has shown clearly that the co-operatives are competent and able to grow the crop and market it so that, if they were given the opportunity to grow and market, then they will be able to reap the fruits of our independence. If the Minister is not prepared to allow the co-operatives to grow and market the crop, then there is another alternative. The Ministry of Agriculture should establish experimental farms in the whole country so that these seedlings are grown by the Ministry and then supplied to individual farmers. What is the difficulty in doing this? What I can see here is that the Ministry is trying to favour this one individual to get the benefits which, of course, is not accepted by this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have given two alternatives to the House for the Ministry to consider. One, to allow the co-operatives or individual farmers to grow and market the crop, and if the Ministry finds that hard because they want to please their friends, then let the Ministry establish experimental farms all over the country where we can have this kind of crop nursed and then have the seedlings supplied to all the farmers so that the farmers will be able to get the benefit. Two, if they fail to do that, they should not give the marketing of this crop to this gentleman. It should go to the Maize and Produce Board which is a governmental organization, so that the money gained out of this will go into the hands of the Government as well as those of the African farmers in the country. So we are asking the Ministry to accept one of the three alternatives. The marketing side of it should go either to the Maize and Produce Board or to the co-operatives; at least let it go into the hands of the African farmers in one way or the other. This is exactly what we are asking this House for, and I am sure the country is not going to allow this monopoly to be given to only one individual. In fact, Sir, one wonders why this is being done when the people in power in the Ministry are Africans; it has African Assistant Ministers, African agricultural officers—all these big shots in the Ministry are Africans, and they should not let these things go that way. This is against African Socialism.

Mr. Speaker, if they are going for capitalism, then let us be told this morning. Let us be told if the Minister and the African Assistant Ministers are following capitalism, why they want to make one individual get richer and richer every day. Let us be told if that is what they have in mind. I see it is not what the Assistant Minister has in mind. His big boss may have that in mind, but I do not believe that the hon. Kariuki will support that one person should be allowed to accumulate big wealth.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am asking the Assistant Minister to straight away accept the sentiments and ideas given to the House this morning about the macadamia nut.

With these few remarks, Sir, I am asking the House and the Assistant Minister to accept, without amendment, the Motion as it is, in order that we can carry out African Socialism in the proper sense.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have decided to rise at this juncture in order to clear the air. The Ministry of Agriculture is sometimes being accused by the hon. Members of certain things which those same hon. Members do not first of all check before they make their statements.

I would like to say, Sir, that the Ministry of Agriculture has no objection whatsoever to any person or co-operative society that is interested in growing macadamia nuts. They can go ahead and grow that.

We must, however, point out to the hon. Members of this House that they should bear in mind the following points. First, I want to give them the names of the places where they can go and organize their co-operatives in order to get the macadamia nut, rather than going and getting it from the gentleman in question. We started first a horticultural research station at Thika in 1964; but this, as the hon. Members said, was later on discontinued because there was lack of initiative from the farmers at that time. So this was closed down.

Now, seedlings are also available from A. I. R. Harries and Sons of Thika as the hon. Mover said. Well, people can continue going there and getting the seedlings from him. I do not agree with the Members at all in what they said—that we should stop him from selling in order to give this right to the co-operatives. You must allow any farmer, who wants to do so, to continue selling to other farmers. It is not the intention of my Ministry to stop Mr. Harries from selling the seedlings at all.

The other point is that the hon. Members can advise their co-operative societies that there are available some of these macadamia seedlings at the farm of Mr. H. A. Bonker of Kitale. Farmers from the Rift Valley and other parts of Kenya who would like to continue planting macadamia nuts can continue buying the seedlings from this gentleman. So it is not in monopoly of one person.

Then we have a nursery at Wundanyi in Taita which is selling seedlings to the local people at a lower price: that is in the region of Sh. 3 to Sh. 4 per seedling. Since the Minister for Agriculture tried to introduce the growing of macadamia nuts, production as a cash crop on this to many farmers and on the basis of bulk supply, the prices of the gentleman mentioned by the Mover of this Motion have been reduced slowly. In 1965 it was Sh. 8; in 1966, it was Sh. 7/50; in 1967, it was Sh. 6 and in 1968 Sh. 5; and now, in 1969, small seedlings are available at Sh. 4. So you can see that it is between Sh. 4 and Sh. 5 at the moment. It is very clear, therefore, that Mr. Harries has no monopoly whatsoever of supplying macadamia nuts in Kenya, and the price per seedling has been reduced quite considerably over the years.

The point to note here is that our view is that this is the only source of reliable supply at the moment, tested for good quality and also good yield. He has faced a lot of difficulties as the Seconder of the Motion has said, and has lost quite considerable funds in establishing his business, to plan and plant ahead. In fact, he is entitled to some sort of reasonable return from his toil. As the hon. Member mentioned that this gentleman is now a millionaire, well, what do you mean by a millionaire? A millionaire is a person who can make a million shillings. That gentleman has not actually netted more than £13,000 or £15,000 over the years. This is because he has sold 394,000 seedlings and we reckon that over the period of four years, if you calculate this properly, he had something like £100,000. Therefore, this is not more than Sh. 2 million. If you take away from this amount all his expenses which we reckon is in the region of about £85,000, then you will definitely see that he is not left with more than £15,000. I do not think that we should sit here and try to discuss about a person who has introduced this very important crop in this country, and try to discredit him. We should also give him credit for what he has done. What this Motion is asking for is to allow other people, the co-operatives, to plant and the Minister has no objection to this.

The Ministry will even go so far as to help these co-operative societies by giving them loans to plant if they can. They should, however, bear in mind that a bad nursery, or bad macadamia nuts which are not properly looked after, end up in failure. Thus the individuals and the co-operatives might end in not getting good returns. That is why we would like the farmers to continue buying them from a reliable place because we have said that if a co-operative can produce a very good nursery, then there is no reason why the farmers should not buy from them.

The hon. Mover made a very interesting point, that we continue buying seeds from abroad through the Kenya National Trading Corporation. What is the necessity for that, Sir, when we had seedlings in this country? There is no necessity whatsoever of bringing more seeds from abroad through the Kenya National Trading Corporation. What I would like the Members to understand is that once we bring anything through another institution, there is definitely a commission charged and that will help to raise the prices. The Kenya National Trading Corporation is not going to do this work on charitable grounds. They must charge some percentage and this percentage will be passed on to the farmers. In this way the price will go up.

So I would like the hon. Members to press on the point of co-operatives establishing better nurseries and then sell to the farmers. Sir, we are not refusing this, we are not rejecting this idea. I would like everyone of us to appreciate what this gentleman has done over the years because by concentrating on the problems of this nut, the farmer has acquired some considerable expertise in this specialized subject. In any case, Sir, this same farmer has, for many years, been quite outstanding in many ways, being one of those first people to introduce macadamia in this country. After careful study, the Department of Agriculture was particularly interested by the nursery techniques this farmer has, and the care with which seeds are selected, and with which seedlings are being treated to and including the time of collection by planters.

Now, Sir, the Ministry decided that in view of the fact that this farmer possesses the only major source of selective seed in the country and because of the particular of their nursery work, that the quickest way of establishing this crop in the country would be to encourage the farm to produce as much planting material as possible. I have just explained to the Members that he has sold over 390,000 of these seedlings. Investigation has shown that this would be the quickest and the best method of establishing other macadamia nurseries in the country.

We would like the period to be reduced. To reduce the period of planting macadamia nuts— It is not a very simple thing to plant this nut and expect the yield in three to four years. It is going to take more than that, approximately seven years. In some cases, if you plant it badly, then you will definitely get poor yields from your nuts. So, there are lots of things which need to be looked into. We are not objecting to the hon. Member's Motion, but all these facts have to be looked into. These are the facts. I believe that we in the Government will continue giving loans and advice to the farmers.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say, also, that the Ministry tried some time ago, two years ago, and they imported about £5,000 worth of seeds. We have now come to realize that it is only 16 per cent of the total seedlings which germinated. So you can see that a co-operative can invest a lot of money, but if it is not properly looked after, there is a possibility of losing money. This is not what the hon. Members want. If we lend money to the co-operatives, then we expect this money to be repaid so that we can, in turn, lend it to other people. If you get bad seeds, there is a danger of losing some of the seeds. That is not what the hon. Mover of the Motion wants.

I would like to say here that the cost of per acre of establishing macadamia nuts is not so high when you compare it to tea. Macadamia is about Sh. 500 per acre whereas tea is over Sh. 1,000 per acre to plant. So, I would like the hon. Member and other Members of this House to go and explain to their people who are interested in planting macadamia nuts that there are loans available today to the small-holders to meet half of the cost of seedlings. That is, if one acre is Sh. 500, then the loan is Sh. 250 to plant macadamia nuts. He must be prepared to provide the other Sh. 250 himself. If it is a co-operative, there is also the possibility of giving this loan. So, there is no use somebody accusing the Ministry of Agriculture and saying that it is sleeping or that the Minister has something to hide. No. We are saying today—and I challenge the hon. Members to go and tell their constituents that the money is ready—that instead of challenging the Ministry they must take the initiative of informing their people that loans are available for the planting of these macadamia nuts. The trouble is that instead of some of us going and telling our people this, we will forget all about this as soon as we get to our constituencies. Thus nobody will know about the opportunity of loans. May be, Sir, the hon. Member who is saying, "Question?", will not be able to explain to our people that these loans are available. Quite a number of our people do not, in fact, read the newspapers; they do not understand these. So I believe it is the responsibility of the hon. Members to go and talk to their people in meetings and explain to them that these loans are available.

Due to intervention of Government, the price of seedlings, which was originally Sh. 6, has now been reduced to Sh. 5. So it is also good to explain to the people that the price has been reduced to Sh. 5.

To sum up, Mr. Speaker, after careful investigation, the Ministry of Agriculture has come to the conclusion that the quickest, safest and most economical way of developing the crop rapidly is to use commercial nursery facilities available because it is the only major source of seed in Kenya, and of proven excellence. Now, nevertheless, there is nothing to stop anyone who is interested in starting a nursery from doing so. However, Government feels that that person would meet many difficulties. If he is strong enough, bold enough to start this, then we will support him financially.

Now, the present cost per acre is not high, and even loan funds made available to date have only been for cash transactions, that is, the supply of planting materials to-date can be sold for cash. The Government welcomes the initiative of one of its citizens who feels he can manure the crop; if by his efficiency there is some reward for him, then the Government feels he is well entitled to it. He is, however, not asking for any reward for pioneering this very important crop. This is an incentive to everyone to emulate his good example.

Mr. Speaker, Government is, therefore, not keen that undue publicity should be given to this development. This is, and I must say now, due to fear. We fear restrictive counter-action by present producers and stimulating production in other countries. So, the less said about the whole subject, the better, especially about the programme.

If hon. Members do not know, Mr. Speaker, there is another country known as Hawaii. This is the only major producer in the world today and they are estimated to have only about 5,000 acres or so in production. So, what we are aiming at in Kenya, is that our farmers will be able to plant about 12,000 acres. That is, within the period of four years. No doubt this would worry Hawaii if they know that we are moving very fast into planting 12,000 acres; there is no doubt about it. The nut is very highly priced. In fact, it is the most expensive nut in the world and that is why we presume that even Hawaii, with its high lands and labour costs, can grow at a very high price. So, if we come in with lower costs and as many producers, we might not have very serious problems when competing with Hawaii.

I said the other day that some of these countries are moving very fast into producing many cash crops that our country can grow. I said that because, as you know, today our coffee markets are monopolized by South America, our tea markets monopolized by Asia, our rubber markets by the Far East. Therefore, you can see that there is very little left for us in Africa. So, I feel that once we move into the planting of crops like macadamia nuts, then we would like to do it quietly. This is another crop which is now coming into the field and there should not be a lot of publicity about it, lest other countries will jump to it when we come to the word "competition".

So, Sir, since production is so small and the price so high, and the nut is known only to a small number of people, there is an enormous potential for market development in United States and Europe. There are no marketing difficulties whatsoever at the moment.

The present price for these nuts is in the region of Sh. 2 per pound, and even if it goes down to Sh. 1 per pound, and the production is only 15 pounds per tree, at population of about 100 trees per acre our return will be Sh. 1,500 per acre. The actual figure is not known accurately as yet because, you see, we have not been able to ascertain with those people who have planted in previous years what the yield is. However, yields of 120 lb. per tree have been recorded, and 15 lb. average is considered a very pessimistic figure indeed. So the cost of production, once the tree itself comes into bearing, is very small, but it will help to keep it properly weeded and also to pick up fallen nuts from the ground. As you know, you do not climb the tree in order to pick, you have to wait until the nuts fall and you collect them.

So far there are no serious pests or diseases as we have encountered with coffee. Therefore, we feel that the nut has a very hard shell and, like the cashew nuts, this needs to be processed in a factory.

[Mr. J. M. Kariuki]

The Ministry of Agriculture is presently considering the best way of setting up processing facilities to maximize profit from the nuts. So there is a very good market for unshelled nuts. That is why somebody mentioned that Del Monte is going to be given the monopoly. Del Monte are very good in organizing the markets abroad. In fact, I believe that the co-operatives will need a good organization to get the markets abroad which will be able to process their nuts. So, there is no use trying to cross the bridge before you come to it. I would like the Members to be patient at the moment because this organization has all the market facilities. This is a joint venture between the Kenya Government and the Del Monte group. The Kenya Government and the Del Monte group at present have a good organization which is processing the pineapples: not macadamia at the moment. Members should not think that we would like to prevent the co-operatives from establishing a factory in future. If they have the ability to do so, and if they can sell abroad, well and good; there will be no problem. However, this organization is well known in the world for its good market resources.

It is estimated that approximately 4,000 acres have been planted over, and 2,000 of this over small-holdings, predominantly in certain regions of East and Central Province. Now, development of these areas started spontaneously because they were near the nursery and because the Agricultural Department was sure that the crop would do well in those areas. From 1968 onwards, the Department of Agriculture decided to devote this crop entirely to the small-holdings sector of the farming industry and only allow planting on other farms if this, latter, did not take up all plants on offer. This is where another challenge comes because hon. Members must also tell their own areas, their people, to take the quantity allowed to them in the small-scale areas, because the Ministry has now tried to change the scale a little bit by preventing the large-scale farmers from producing more and has given the opportunity to the small-scale farmers. All available plants were taken by the small-holders but, in fact, the demand was greater than the supply at that time. The future programme is for the planting of 3,000 acres of this crop per annum, for ease of organizing this large-scale operation because it had been proved that the crop would grow there. Initial plantings were concentrated in the provinces adjoining the natural acres and it is now under consideration where else the crop should be planted. Therefore, coffee co-operatives are playing a major part in the ordering, transporting and distributing of the planting materials. If they want to continue doing so, or if they want to start nurseries in their own areas because they feel that the cost of transport is very high indeed, they are at liberty to do so and the loans are always available.

The problem, Sir, is that once we tell the Members that the loans are available, we accept that the loans are available, but when they go back they do not even tell their constituents that the loans are available. Now we do not have to talk about the 50 per cent; and so, why can they not go and tell their own people that the loans are available and they can get Sh. 250 to plant this.

Sir, it is very important also for the Members to check with us in the Ministry because, after all, we are employed by the people to do the job; we do not employ the people, they have employed us. It is the farmers who have employed us in the Ministry of Agriculture and they should come to us as we are prepared to listen to them. Also their representatives, let them come if they find some problems because we are always prepared to assist them.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, we have not rejected the Motion at all.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank the Government spokesman for replying and accepting the Motion. I appreciate the deletion of the word "monopoly" from the Motion—or the allegation or accusation that this Motion implied—but the reply has left me a little confused as a rural farmer and a rural Member.

This is no criticism on the part of the Ministry of Agriculture, but I sometimes wonder whether there is close liaison between the wing that the hon. gentleman before us represents, and the technical wing of the Ministry. We have had experience, as rural smallholders, of an answer given, an assurance of this kind, and when it comes to the actual marketing of the produce or the crops that has been so well praised, we have been confounded. Pyrethrum is one example, wheat is another, cotton is another, and pineapples and several others. And so, what I would like to put to the Ministry of Agriculture is this: while macadamia is a good cash crop, have they made quite certain that there is a proper market for this crop? Are they going to say, because they have made so much noise about the monopoly and co-operatives trying nurseries, that they want us to go ahead and plant in the co-operatives, only to find that we have committed our smallholders to the planting of this nut which cannot be marketed? Can the small farmer be assured that when he has planted this nut it will be the proper nut and it will not be like a kind of pyrethrum which has only a little pyrethrum? We do not want to be told after this thing has been growing for seven years that it is not the kind of nut that the world wants.

What I would like to put into the heads of the Ministry is this: instead of encouraging the ordinary farmer to take the loan, they should encourage the co-operatives to take the loans to buy at a good price and not at Sh. 5. The reply was that it was Sh. 4.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Sh. 4/25.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Sh. 4/25; well, that is better because, Mr. Speaker, two months ago I bought this stuff at Sh. 5; and yet I belong to a co-operative society which should be helping me as a member of the co-operative.

What I was going to say, Mr. Speaker, is that the Ministry should encourage the co-operatives to take a long-term loan with a possible guarantee to write it off if the market for this crop does not prevail. If we are encouraged, as a co-operative, to plant this material at a very high cost, and the co-operative society has committed a lot of money on it, it will be very bad if we find no market, and it seems to me that the members of the co-operative will lose because of bad advice.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would strongly advise members of the co-operatives who plant this stuff to pass in their general meeting—if the hon. Mover would agree—that the co-operative societies should approach the Government for these loans with a possible write-off if things go wrong later so that the price is lower than Sh. 4, and also that the marketing side of it should be very, very carefully looked into. This is no slight on the Government or on the Ministry of Agriculture but, as I say, we have seen experience when we have gone all out to plant something and then things have not worked out well. Some of us find it difficult to preach what is going to be planted. I opened my mouth so widely the other day about cotton in Eastern Province, and I am now going slowly, I am dragging my feet, because things have not worked as we said. Therefore, in this respect, Mr. Speaker, I have that to observe.

Mr. Speaker, another point which I would like to leave in the heads of the Ministry of Agriculture, is that macadamia nuts—I am told and we are advised—take quite a lot of space; I believe it is about 25 feet by 25 feet. Therefore, very few trees can be planted in an acre. How many to an acre?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): 100.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): 100 to an acre. If a small farmer who has about five acres plants 100 trees which will bear fruit in seven years—these trees grow into big trees—he will find it is very difficult to cultivate part of his ground, and the end result is that you are committed for seven years. If we are going to commit our valuable land for such a length of time, we must be very careful about the prices and the marketing of this crop. Therefore, a proper survey of the growing and marketing of this crop needs a lot of care. I have no grudge against Mr. Harries himself or the other growers, but the price is high and it should be reduced. This is where the Government should come in with giving loans to the society, so that they can purchase this stuff and sell it to the growers at a lower price. Also, the Government should advise the present growers to reduce the present price. It can be reduced. If this man has sold 4,000 trees at an average price of Sh. 6, or, let us make it Sh. 5—we know it was Sh. 8 and now it is Sh. 4—if I multiply 4,000 by Sh. 5, this is about shillingi milioni mbili; Sh. 2 million, which is more than £13,000, he says. So I think this gentleman should be advised to lower his price. This will be his contribution to nation-building.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. J. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to speak very much on this Motion which talks about monopoly. Mr. Speaker, you know very well, and the Minister also knows, that in our country, a few years ago, say, in the 1950s, there was a monopoly in this country in regard to cotton. It was part of this monopoly that brought about the chaos in this country in relation to coffee. We should be very careful when in this House when we bring matters that talk about monopoly. We know that there are some experts who would advise us that So-and-so has the know-how to do this or that.

A few years back, Sir, our people in Nyeri were advised to rear pigs. I would like the Minister for Agriculture to hear this. After the people had wasted all their time on this, then the pigs could not be taken to the bacon factory here. This means that they wasted quite a lot of their time and labour on this. Why were the pigs not taken? Because there were other people in this country, the Europeans who, we understand, knew how to rear pigs better. There was much chaos in Nyeri as a result of this.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have this macadamia nut. If the Government wants these few Europeans to grow them, then I would say there are many kinds of macadamia nuts. It is not only this type that our friend at Ruiru is growing, there are so many other types. Why, then, not give us these other types, and let our people grow them. Thus we can compete with the Europeans.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that we have a Government experimental farm at Thika. Why should the Government not grow these nuts there and sell to our people? There are people who are engaged, expert Europeans and African agriculturalists, who could look after these trees and then distribute or sell them to our co-operatives, or our individual farmers.

We have been told by the Assistant Minister that there are certain tea zones and that there are macadamia zones. We are not saying that everybody in this House should go and plant macadamia trees even if the Minister says that a particular place is not a favourable for growing them. Those people who are in the zones which are good for growing macadamia, like the people round about Thika where this man is growing this nut, people round about Kitale where the other man has a nursery, or Nakuru—why have they not been given the chance so far to try their luck with these trees? Mombasa, too.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know when this Motion was tabled; but in the speech of His Excellency the President, at page 3, he says: "Farmers should constantly be seeking and/or adapting fresh ideas". This is a fresh idea, Mr. Speaker. It is a fresh idea and, therefore, if our President has told us to adapt fresh ideas, then we should tell our people, "Here is a fresh idea. We want you to follow the instructions of His Excellency". So we do not want anybody to be told that he is not in the zone for macadamia because if we did that we would be fighting against the idea of the President.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to tarry very much on this because I heard the Assistant Minister say that Government accepts the Motion.

Therefore, I beg to support.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to join my other colleagues who have supported this Motion. I also thank the Government for accepting the Motion in the way it has done.

I want to warn the Ministry of Agriculture very seriously in this respect. We hear nowadays very hopeful, very sweet, very good replies whenever we raise anything that concerns the Ministry of Agriculture. This is what I have to say. The Ministry of Agriculture is the backbone Ministry of this country, economically. It is from this Ministry that we should have a dynamic method of approaching the problem so that we can tackle it in a better way than we have done before.

I would like the Assistant Minister for Agriculture to take note of what I say here. I would like to draw the Ministry's attention to the question of tea. I was reading this morning the report on the Kenya Tea Development Authority.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that is relevant to the Motion.

Mr. Kamau: I am referring to this, Sir, because it is almost the same as macadamia nuts.

I want to tell the Ministry that we understand, through the report, that tea, because of the devaluation of the British pound, has had its price dropped. The Ministry is aware that our people have now changed from coffee, because the price has come to a standstill, to tea. Before the tea is classified, the price is 40 cents per pound. That being so, when it is classified you find that the small farmer is going to lose quite a bit on this tea.

I would like the Ministry to know that whatever the new crop the Ministry of the Government suggests, we come forward to plant it; we accept the wish of the Government. Now, it is this crop, macadamia nuts. In this I would associate myself with the Minister for Natural Resources who stated very clearly that these nuts will at first interest our people, but that it will ruin our people economically in time to come. As soon as a person plants this land with this particular crop, then it will take seven years before any of these trees bear fruit. By that time it is possible that the people may be told that there is no market for it. Then the all the money, time and labour will have been wasted.

I feel this should be made a Government project, that Government should get the nuts, plant the seeds at an experimental station and then give seedlings to the people, together with loans to enable them to buy land on which to plant the seedlings.

The Assistant Minister also stated that there are loans and the people should come forward and apply for them. I would like the Minister to consider this very seriously because when we go to our people and tell them that there are these loans for which they can apply for growing macadamia nuts—when we have made propaganda for these loans—then we do not want to be challenged by our people on this. We want a definite assurance from the Ministry, that once we tell our people to apply for these loans, the Ministry will certainly help them with the loans.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gikunju. You will have just three minutes.

Mr. Gikunju: First of all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Assistant Minister for the way in which he has accepted the Motion and answered various points.

But there is something that one cannot understand. The Assistant Minister said that in 1964, this macadamia nut tree was grown at the horticultural station at Thika but later, because the farmers did not accept buying and growing this nut, the station was closed down. I would like to say, however, that it is at the time when this station closed down that this gentleman in question started a nursery for macadamia nuts.

In 1967 the Ministry of Agriculture made propaganda all over the country that macadamia was a cash crop and the people had better grow it. So there is something here that the people cannot understand. Why did the horticultural station fail while, at the same time, this gentleman succeeded? How is it that the Ministry did not propagate to the farmers that the macadamia nut was a cash crop, but propagated at the time that this gentleman was having the macadamia nut in his nursery? That is a question that needs to be answered. This makes people think that this gentleman was helped to have the monopoly, and this was done by the Ministry of Agriculture.

If the growing of this nut, at the nursery stage, is left in the hands of societies, then it is going to fail. It is known that the societies do not have the technique to plant this. Therefore, even before the Government comes in to give loan-money, why does the Government not come in, in conjunction with the horticultural centre and grow the macadamia nuts in co-operation with the societies in order that proper advice can be given to the societies. If it is to be left completely in the hands of societies, as I see it, then this will fail because the societies do not have the know-how, nor the technique. Hence the monopoly will be left to continue in the hands of this gentleman.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, that I would like to mention is in connexion with the loans. These loans should be given through the union, comprised of the farmers, rather than given directly to individuals. Thus the unions will give loans to the individual members of the societies, and this will be a far better thing to do.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the Mover to reply.

Mr. Kathanga.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I must thank the Assistant Minister for Agriculture for accepting this important Motion. I also want to thank those hon. Members of this House who have supported it, and I think that is why the Assistant Minister thought fit to accept the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one thing that I would like to say and make it very clear to the Assistant Minister is that we had thought that, since the Minister for Agriculture is not an African, he was not going to tell our people to establish nurseries for this important crop because he would probably tend to favour his friend who is a white man. However, since the Assistant Minister has made it clear that they are now going to advise our people to embark on establishing nurseries for this crop, I have now no quarrel with the Minister. To prove my case here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think when coffee was introduced into this country—and I spoke about it right at the beginning—Africans were not allowed to plant it because the Europeans wanted to exploit the crop for their own advantage.

Another important point, Mr. Speaker, is at a recent co-operatives leaders' conference which was held in Nairobi on 21st and 22nd of this month, resolution was passed by the leaders urging the Government to allow co-operatives to establish these nurseries. This shows clearly that the Ministry had failed to tell people the importance of this important crop. I now take this opportunity to read the resolution to the hon. Members of this House:—

MACADAMIA NUTS: This Conference resolves that the Ministry of Agriculture authorize the importation of seeds of the Macadamia tree for planting by co-operative unions to form nurseries for the growing of seedlings for sale to affiliated societies.

Further urges that the Ministry establish research means to sample out different varieties Macadamia seedlings for recommendation to various districts in the Republic.

This conference also resolves that the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union Limited, as it already has an organization with facilities available for processing and handling, and already has country-wide association with co-operative unions and societies, many of which are encouraging their members to plant Macadamia trees, be appointed as the sole body to handle the crop on behalf of producers."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with your permission I want to lay this document on the Table so that anybody who wants to read it may do so.

(The hon. Mr. Kathanga laid the document on the Table)

[Mr. Kathanga]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing which the Assistant Minister said—and this is the point which is probably making us to say that one seedling of macadamia is being sold very expensively—is that to establish a nursery of macadamia is cheaper than to establish that of tea. He said that it will cost a person about Sh. 500 to establish an acre of nursery of macadamia whereas we know that to establish a nursery of tea is not expensive. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister should know that the price of one seedling of tea is very cheap. It is about Sh. 2 only, whereas this man, after establishing the nursery of macadamia, sells one seedling very expensively at Sh. 6. Something must be done about this matter, Mr. Speaker.

The other point is that we know the price of one seedling of coffee is 50 cents only. However, coffee is a more paying cash crop than the macadamia nut. Why should the macadamia nut seedling be more costly than the coffee seedling while coffee is much more paying than the macadamia? Let me make this clear to the Assistant Minister. Our interest is to break the monopoly and reduce the selling price by the competition between farmers who grow the crop. That is what he should know. We are not saying that Mr. Bobs Harries should be denied the chance of growing the seedlings. No. Let him continue, but there should be other people growing the same seedlings so that there can be competition amongst farmers, as I have told you.

The Assistant Minister has said that the growing of seedling of this crop should be left to individual farmers, but not to the co-operatives. I did not say that, and even my Motion does not read that the growing of seedlings should be given to co-operatives only or to individual farmers only. I said that the growing of seedlings should be allowed to be carried on by co-operatives and by any other farmers interested in growing them. Therefore, I think that the Assistant Minister was not correct when he said that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing is about giving agents the chance of processing and marketing the crop. The Assistant Minister said that Del Monte a canning company at Thika, is more efficient to handle or to market the nuts of this important tree, but he should know that the Kenya Co-operative Planters' Union, is more efficient than that company, and even richer and more capable of marketing these nuts. I do not see the reason why the Assistant Minister for Agriculture should not allow the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union to handle the crop. I understand that this union has submitted an application to the Ministry and no green light has been given. We would like the Minister to give the green light when he goes back to his office. I told you, Mr. Speaker, for the information of hon. Members, that the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union is a countrywide organization which is owned and controlled by large—and small-scale coffee growers in this country, and I think that it is the right body to handle the marketing of the macadamia nuts.

Many of the peasant farmers who are going to grow the crop are the members of the co-operatives in the country and we know that the co-operatives of coffee are affiliated to the Kenya Planters' Co-operative Union.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, without spending much time on this issue, I would say I am very happy that the Assistant Minister has agreed to my Motion and I hope that he is also going to implement it soon because if he does not do so, I may bring it here again to find out why he has not done so. I think that I should now stop here and thank God for blessing this day. Thank you very much.

(Question put and agreed to)

ADJOURNMENT

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

MONDAY SITTINGS—NOTICE OF MOTION

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I know that the Leader of Government Business was intending to give notice of Motion today for the amendment of the Standing Orders to provide that from now on we do not sit on Mondays. Unfortunately, it has not been possible to prepare that notice in time for him to give it today. It will be ready for him to give tomorrow, so that the House may resolve that matter in the course of this week, but, perhaps hon. Members might like to have this informal notice today.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 111

HOUSE SEARCHES BY RABAI ADMINISTRATIVE POLICE

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House why the administrative police constables at Rabai were searching houses and arresting people without a warrant to do so.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that on the 15th January 1969, Silas Bemkoka and Albert Dudu were arrested in their house; again on the 1st March 1969, Johnson Makutubu and Joseph Kulola were arrested; is he not aware of this?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware. However, the law provides that chiefs and subchiefs and administrative police can carry out normal checks in their respective areas without being in possession of any warrant whatsoever. If the hon. Member has any specific information about that matter, he should report to us for investigation.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since I have already reported by asking a question in this House, why can the Minister not agree to take action against these people?

Mr. M. Koinange: There is nothing to be added to what I have already said, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I stick to what I have already said but if what the hon. Member said is considered to be the point which he wants us to investigate, I will do so.

Question No. 112

RACES OF EMPLOYEES OF BARCLAYS BANK, MOMBASA

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House—

(a) how many Africans and Asians male and female clerical staff were working in Barclays Bank (D.C.O.), Nkrumah Road, Mombasa; and

(b) how many of those were Africans.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Barclays Bank on Nkrumah Road, Mombasa, employs a total number of 61 African and Asian clerical staff as follows:—

African males, 16; African females, 1; Asian males, 29 of which 6 are citizens; and Asian females, 15 of which 8 are Kenya citizens.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell us what the qualifications are for a person to be engaged as clerical staff in this bank.

Mr. ole Oloitipitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it is the responsibility of the Ministry to tell the House the qualifications that are necessary for the bank to employ its own staff. However, you all know that unless a person is properly qualified to do that particular job in the bank, he will not be employed.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that the number given here is shockingly low? Did he take the trouble to ask this bank what difficulties they are finding in recruiting more than the one African who is now there when he received this reply? Was he not surprised to get this number?

Mr. ole Oloitipitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as we all know that Africanization is taking place very rapidly the number is not shocking. For 16 Africans to have been employed by this bank in such a short period is not shocking.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer which the Assistant Minister has given, will he agree with me that by stating that it is not the duty of the Ministry to bother over the question of the qualifications, when we have set up the Kenyanization of Personnel Bureau which deals with this once recruitment has been done according to qualification so that Kenyans may be employed, is contradicting the Government policy of Africanization?

Mr. ole Oloitipitip: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not contradicting the Government's policy and I do not agree with the hon. Member at all.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Arising from the answer which the hon. Member has been endeavouring to pursue, that the Assistant Minister is not in a position to tell us what qualification a person should have to be employed by this bank as a clerk, is the Assistant Minister aware that this particular bank has the lowest number of Africans employed there and that it has used a most cunning system to avert Africanization?

Mr. ole Oloitipiti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not really know that this is the only bank that has employed the lowest number of Africans. However, should this be the case, then we shall be prepared to look into it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF QUESTION No. 112—RACIAL GROUP OF BARCLAYS BANK MOMBASA EMPLOYEES

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir. With the permission of the hon. Questioner, I would like to move this matter on a Motion for the adjournment.

Mr. Mwatsama: I have no objection.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 120

STUDENTS ABROAD AND BANNED PUBLICATIONS

Mr. Okelo-Odongo, on behalf of Mr. Odero-Sar, asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House whether the Government had reminded Kenya students who were studying in foreign countries of laws of Kenya regarding which type of publications, books and documents were banned in Kenya in order to avoid unnecessary arrests and prosecutions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to have a little more time so that you may come back with the answer to this question, Mr. arap Moi?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question is addressed to the Office of the President. So I do not have the answer to it at the moment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will you be ready to answer it if it comes on the Order Paper tomorrow?

Mr. arap Moi: Yes. Tomorrow, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will put it on the Order Paper tomorrow. Thank you.

Mr. Wakole's question. Is there any hon. Member who was authorized to ask?

Mr. arap Biy: Yes, Sir.

Question No. 126

DEATH OF ADMINISTRATIVE POLICE CONSTABLE
IN MASABUBU

Mr. arap Biy, on behalf of Mr. Wakole, asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House—

(a) whether he was aware that during a clash between administrative police and shifta bandits in Masabubu Location on 24th December 1963, one of the administrative police named Bonaya lost his life in the course of the fight; and

(b) if the answer was in the affirmative, what way the Government had helped the widowed constable.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Yes Sir, I am aware.

I regret to inform the hon. Member that the Government has not aided the widow in any way at all.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the second part of this reply, will the Minister tell the House whether the Government is now looking into ways and means of aiding this unfortunate widow since there is no other way of getting assistance of any kind apart from the Government?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as regards (b) the word "widower" is a Government servant who is an administrative police constable. He will not, and cannot be aided by the Government on account that his wife died. A person cannot be aided because his wife is dead. Under that circumstance the incident did not warrant the extension of his usual pay.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It looks to me as if the wording of the Question as it stands on the Order Paper leads to some misunderstanding. Is it not that the police officer concerned lost his wife, and not his life? Then we will begin to understand the Question. It is his wife that he lost and not his life, is it?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if he lost his wife—

Hon. Members: Life.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should elucidate that. You see, if he lost his life then the reference to a widower does not make sense. If he lost his wife, then he is a widower; and the Question makes sense. I think it must have been the loss of his wife, which indeed the Minister is answering.

Hon. Members: No.

Mr. M. Koinange: In that case, Mr. Speaker, I think we should look into that.

Hon. Members: Very good.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. arap Moi tells me that he is now ready to answer Mr. Odero-Sar's Question. Would you ask it again Mr. Okelo-Odongo?

Question No. 120

STUDENTS ABROAD AND BANNED PUBLICATIONS

Mr. Okelo-Odongo, on behalf of Mr. Odero-Sar, asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House whether the Government had reminded Kenya students who were studying abroad of the laws of Kenya regarding which types of publications, books and documents were banned in Kenya, in order to avoid unnecessary arrests and prosecutions.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Kenya Missions abroad have always inserted articles in Students' News Letters informing them of any prohibited publications which cannot be brought into Kenya.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Then, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister say whether we have a Kenya Mission in Korea, North Korea, and whether we have a Kenya Mission in these other neighbouring countries, the socialist countries?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we do not have Missions in some of the countries he has referred to.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is the Minister aware that the prosecuted students, on return from abroad, were merely innocent people? Are you aware that those already prosecuted are up to now innocent?

Mr. arap Moi: No, Sir.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister for Home Affairs arrange to issue a statement in the Press advising every relative who has a child or some other relative studying in a place where we have no Embassies to inform them of the laws at home so that they do not bring these books here and so get into trouble?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the hon. Members to advise their constituents, who include parents, to inform their children abroad about the prohibited publications.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Vice-President agree with me that the idea of having some educational attachés as advisers to our Missions is because we want them to advise all our students throughout the world—wherever they may be—and as such it is not the responsibility of the villagers in the constituencies?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was answering the questioner who asked earlier whether I should, as Minister for Home Affairs, give publicity by way of radio and such media to inform parents whose children are studying abroad, to inform them of the prohibited publications.

As I answered earlier, Sir, we have educational attachés in countries where we have established Missions and these officers always keep our students informed of what goes on in Kenya, including what I referred to earlier on.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is there any arrangement from the Ministry, where there is contact with these educational attachés, to contact students who are in other countries where we do not have any Embassies? Can there not be some sort of arrangement for this?

Mr. arap Moi: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that some of these publications are considered quite normal in these places where these students are studying, will the Ministry, then, take the trouble to await these students when they come from wherever they are studying, so that the Immigration Officers can advise them at the port of arrival and remove the books from them instead of taking them to court?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on this issue, the Attorney-General and I have been considering whether we might be able to advise people who may be harbouring some of these publications, and give them a certain period, let us say, a week, for them to return such publications to the nearest police station so as to avoid prosecution. We have not, however, come to any definite decision, we are still considering what to do.

Question No. 86

WATER SHORTAGE, YATTA

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House if the Minister would consider sending a team of experts to Yatta Location in Kitui District to examine possible ways of eradicating hardships caused by the water shortage in that particular area.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

This question is the same question I answered in September 1968, that is, Question No. 842, asked by the hon. Member for Kitui West, Mr. Munyasia. Subject to your guidance, Sir, on this point, I do not think it is in order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, Mr. Murgor, it is in order, because the rule against repetition of questions only applies to repetition of a question during the same session. We are now in a new session, and hon. Members can come back to all the questions which they had asked previously.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of your ruling, I beg to reply.

The Water Development Division of my Ministry have already carried out mineral investigations in the Yatta Location at the request of the county council. The provision of water in this area depends on the pumping schemes which are costly to install and to operate, and the county council has, so far, not been in a position to finance such undertakings, particularly while the location is not very densely populated.

The initial development of water supplies in the Yatta or any other location is primarily the responsibility of the county council, and the Water Development Division acts as an adviser on technical matters.

The county council have so far not allocated a high priority to this area for the reasons stated, but should they choose to revise their priority list, the Water Development Division and my Ministry will give them every assistance.

It is to be emphasized that funds for uneconomical supplies will continue to be limited for some time, and schemes such as those that may be possible in Yatta will, if installed, have to be self-sufficient, at least to the extent of paying for their operational maintenance. This means that the people of Yatta Location will have to find the money for this purpose and thereafter be prepared to pay for the water which they use, as people do in other locations, such as Mbitini where the long awaited pipeline scheme is now nearing completion.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that long reply from the Assistant Minister, that Yatta is not densely populated, and realizing that water is an essential factor in human life, what is the Ministry doing, apart from these people raising funds since September 1968 to date? Can he indicate a single project towards water development in that particular area? What has the Ministry of Agriculture done for those people of Yatta in regard to water which is of vital importance?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member tells his constituents to provide the amount of money which will be required, we are ready to help him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We come now to Mr. Wakole's Question.

Question No. 125

MEAT FACTORY FOR TANA RIVER DISTRICT

Mr. arap Bii, on behalf of Mr. Wakole asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House, in view of the fact that there was a considerable number of livestock in the Tana River District, and that the distance to the nearest meat factory was great, why the Government did not consider establishing a factory to cater for the area.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

I regret that Government cannot consider the proposal of the hon. Member at the present time. In the first place, it is usually more advisable in a developing country like our own to locate larger abattoirs in areas of meat consumption such as Nairobi, Mombasa, rather than in areas of meat production like Tana River, Masailand and Samburu. To transport meat rather than animals requires good roads, regular rail services, special refrigeration facilities, none of which are presently available in the Tana River District.

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, there are quite a few other districts such as South Nyanza, Narok, Kitui, West Pokot, to name only a few, that have greater stock population than that of Tana River District and are also farther away from the nearest Kenya Meat Commission abattoir. Obviously, we cannot set up slaughterhouses in all these areas.

I would suggest to the hon. Member that the people in his area should build an abattoir to cater for their own needs. Cattle over those supplied to these local requirements can be exported on the hoof to Mombasa as is the practice at present.

Mr. arap Bii: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Government is now turning its eyes to rural areas as far as development is concerned, would the Minister agree with me that the total income of the people of Tana River is from their livestock? Would he consider establishing a meat factory as suggested in the question so that they will be helped to develop as other counties in Kenya?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are two things on which I do not need to contradict myself. The people who eat meat are the people who are in the towns and not the rural people in the rural areas, and so what you need is to take the meat to the people who eat the meat and not to slaughter the meat and then transport it to the towns.

[Mr. Murgor]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations estimates that it will cost approximately twice as much to transport meat rather than livestock, although it is more efficient technically.

Some representative stock populations are as follows: South Nyanza 600,000 head of cattle; Samburu 360,000 head of cattle; Nandi 270,000 head of cattle; Narok 425,000 head of cattle; Kitui 400,000 head of cattle and Tana River 130,000 head of cattle. There is a good deal of animal disease—foot-and-mouth, rinderpest, etc.—in areas like Tana River which prevent adequate stock movement to the factory. A new factory would be much better placed in a disease-free zone, in areas where there are no such diseases.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 127

MUNICIPAL STATUS FOR KERICHO

Mr. J. K. arap Soi, on behalf of Mr. Kiprotich, asked the Minister for Local Government if the Minister would consider giving Kericho Urban Council municipal status.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

As I have explained on many occasions in this House, all requests for upgrading of the status of a local authority will be considered by the Review Commission when it is appointed in 1970.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer where the Assistant Minister is contradicting himself, that he has stated several times in this House that a commission is going to be appointed, but the date 1970 has never been mentioned, does it therefore mean that a commission is definitely going to be appointed in 1970 and that Kericho will be one of the ones on the list to be considered by this commission?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have issued the statement and my colleague, the Minister, has explained in this House that the review commission will be established in 1970 and they will be in a position to do everything as far as upgrading is concerned.

Mr. arap Bii: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the Assistant Minister's reply that this might be considered in 1970, would he assure us that Kericho, as has been suggested by the Questioner, is going to be given the first priority, if he is going to be in that Ministry again next time?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it would not be appropriate for the Ministry to admit this, because requests for upgrading have been coming from my Ministry for Kakamega, for Nyeri, for Thomson's Falls, for Nakuru, and it would be very unfair for the Ministry to commit itself. However, the commission will tell us what to do for the best.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 87

DISCHARGE OF UNTRAINED TEACHERS IN KITUI DISTRICT

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Local Government if the Minister would state the reasons which led to the discharge of 250 untrained teachers in Kitui District who were appointed on 13th January 1969, but who soon after that were dismissed.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. 250 untrained teachers were recruited by Kitui County Council to provide one extra teacher per school in accordance with the authority provided by the Ministry of Education under Legal Notice No. 16, Education Regulations 1968.

However, the financial position of Kitui County Council is such that it cannot afford the additional teachers. The recruitment had been carried out, regardless of the necessity to maintain financial control, and contrary to the instructions contained in the Ministry of Local Government Circular No. 97/1968 of 27th December 1968.

When the situation was pointed out to the officers of the county council by the Ministry of Local Government, action was taken to dismiss the 250 untrained teachers.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while agreeing with the Assistant Minister that these 250 teachers were dismissed for the reasons given by him, but why did not the Ministry of Local Government and the Ministry of Education not consult one another before these teachers were employed? We are told here that the Government is working hand in hand with itself, so why was there no consultation between these two Ministries?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no contradiction there. The position is that the Ministry of Education had issued a circular as to what requirements were suitable for the schools, but, at the same time, the Ministry of Local Government has to approve the estimates which Kitui County Council has not, up to date, submitted, and, until they are submitted, these consultations cannot take place.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that these 250 teachers had some hope of getting salaries and working and in view of the fact that they were dismissed, has any compensation been paid to these unfortunate teachers by the employer?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is not a question really of having to dismiss any teachers; these people were being taken on in excess of the number which the county council could afford, and so you cannot really say they were dismissed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 103

OPENING OF MIRIU BRIDGE

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House when Miriu Bridge would be opened officially.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The bridge has not been completed because the contractor involved has met with various engineering problems, and for that reason we cannot tell when we are going to open it officially, but it will be opened when it is finished and I hope it will be completed by the end of this year.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the last five months the work on this bridge has stopped, and so could I hear from the Assistant Minister what happened between the contractor and the Ministry which has actually stopped the work?

Mr. Godana: Mr. Speaker, first in my reply I said that the contractor met with some engineering problems on the foundations of this bridge, and that is why work was stopped. However, consultations have now been gone into and I hope that they are going to complete the bridge soon.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 104

STATUS OF KISUMU-HOMA BAY ROAD

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House if he was planning to raise the Kisumu-Homa Bay Road, via Nyakach-Karachuonyo, to trunk road status once the Miriu Bridge was completed.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer is no, Sir.

Just because a high level bridge has been built to cross a river on a secondary or feeder type of road, it does not mean that the road classification will be raised.

There are some factors, Mr. Speaker, involved in making a road, for example, a secondary road. For the hon. Member's information, the above road has been included in the draft 1969/74 development programme for reconstruction, but this has yet to be approved by the Government.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer for which I am partly grateful for the information that the Assistant Minister has given, would he tell us when this approval is going to be given? Will this be in this House or where, at a chief's baraza?

Mr. Godana: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is aware of the methods of the Government; roads can be planned by the Chief Engineer or the plans can come from elsewhere.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 50

BURNING OF JUTE FACTORY, THIKA

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House what the total value of damage caused by the recent fire at the jute factory in Thika Township was.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It was £240,000.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer and arising from the fact that the cost of the damage was so great that even words are completely inadequate to express our concern, does the Assistant Minister rule out the possibility of sabotage when the damage occurred? Was this sabotage, Mr. Speaker, Sir, or something which happened in an accidental way? Would the Minister tell us because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right, you have asked your question.

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the investigations are still going on. The fire was very sudden, Mr. Speaker, and up to now the cause has not been established.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, arising from the answer from the hon. Minister, would he tell this House whether this factory was insured and, if it was insured, would the Government assist the people who have lost this money to recover it from the insurance people without any difficulties?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. Member for Starehe must be aware that all factories in this country are insured, more so a jute factory which, if he does not know anything about it, is a fibre factory, because fire hazard is one of the things you necessarily must insure against before you start business. The people involved do not need Government help in these matters, which are normal commercial transactions which should take their course.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 119

FORCED CLOSURE OF SHOPS AT UGUNJA MARKET
BY KANU YOUTHS

Mr. Okelo-Odongo, on behalf of Mr. Odero-Sar, asked the Attorney-General if he would tell the House if it was lawful for the Kanu youths to order the closure of shops in order to enable traders to attend a Kanu meeting at Ugunja Market on the 19th January 1969.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The answer to this question is definitely no.

I want, Mr. Speaker, to ask you to ask the hon. Member, under Standing Order 37 (2) and Standing Order 37 (6), to substantiate the allegations that he has made, because my information, in fact, is the reverse, and I have had information from the chairman of the Kanu branch in the area that the hon. Member was the one who was instigating his followers not to attend the meeting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is in order to require substantiation in a case like this, implying a definite allegation. I do not know whether you are in a position to substantiate, Mr. Okelo-Odongo?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not in a position to substantiate, but the Minister raised the question that he gets his information from the Kanu chairman; I wonder why he did not get his information from the normal Government sources, the district commissioner, who might have been more—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Wherever he gets his information from he is entitled to ask for substantiation, and if you cannot give it—and I quite understand that as this is another Member's Question you are not in a position to do so—would you please convey to Mr. Odero-Sar that he is required to make a personal statement as soon as he is in the House, substantiating his allegations.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: May I ask a further question on this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A further supplementary, yes.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Now, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that sometimes we witness such actions taking place and then after asking a question we find the Minister denying that it was true; what should the people do in the case that they are forced to close their shops? Should they refuse and see if they can be beaten, or what should they do?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that in view of the denial, at present, by the Attorney-General that this ever happened, that becomes the kind of hypothetical question that is not really appropriate. I do not think we can get any further on this question without substantiation by Mr. Odero-Sar that this actually happened, so we will wait for his substantiation.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that here legal opinion was sought in this particular respect, and if the Attorney-General is taking it as the legal man, he should have consulted his legal man in the field, and not a politician, in order to make his reply to this particular question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Odinga, if that is a point of order, I do not think it is a very good one, but I would not agree with it anyhow. Hon. Members, whether Government or Back-benchers, are entitled to seek their information wherever they can get it and it is for them, in the first instance, to judge what kind of information is the most desirable, and eventually it is for the House to judge according to the source of information. No one is limited, in seeking information which may or may not be of benefit to this House, to any particular source of information.

I think we will move on now.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

ARREST OF SELF-HELP GROUP BY BUTERE
POLICE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the following Question by Private Notice of the Minister for Home Affairs.

Why did the Police Inspector attached to Butere Police Station visit my home with a view of arresting a self-help group men and women who had been clearing the paths in Regeya Bukhokoro area of Shiatsala sub-location and later assembled in my home and elected their headmen?

Will the Minister give an assurance that in future self-help groups or Maendeleo men and women will not be harassed by the police and that they will never be interfered with whenever they assemble to discuss Maendeleo?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 24th May 1969, acting on information received that an illegal meeting was taking place in the house of Mr. Yohana Oyondi, the father of the hon. Member for Butere, a police party visited the house only to find that the alleged meeting had finished and the people had dispersed. The object was to ascertain the purpose of the meeting and not to harass any person.

[The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs]

The police do not interfere when people assemble to discuss Maendeleo matters and no embarrassment was caused to anyone by the police visit.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it seems that this question is that the police did visit his home; and according to the reply from the Minister, he says that it was another person's home.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no point of order there, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, is the Minister aware that those, self-help—Maendeleo women and men, who met in my home and who had been clearing the paths which the police saw, heard of the visit to my home because it was reported to the police by the sub-chief, and therefore they will no longer agree to come to my home? They fear now to assemble even to discuss which place they are going to clear or which bridges to make next. This has got a very retrogressive effect on the people of Butere and elsewhere in Kenya?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is in this House that we pass laws. When the laws are passed, they are subject to being enforced. Now, the people who assembled there numbered more than 60. If the hon. Member wishes this project to go on in the normal way, he should have approached the police officer to inform him that these people were working on a normal project and that he was holding a public meeting. It is known by everybody that in order to hold a public meeting one is required to have a licence. Therefore, I would only advise the hon. Member that in future if he wants to hold such a thing, particularly when they were holding it in the house of his father—anything could happen; and if rioting took place, the police would be ready, so there was no harassment to his people and they could continue to do the work he wanted them to do.

An hon. Member: What do you know of Butere?

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, assuming that the house of the hon. Member was large enough to contain 60 people, will the Vice-President give a warning to the people who gave false allegations to the police so that in future the sub-chiefs and police will be careful?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, I wish I could dare—

An hon. Member: Members are free to assemble.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member says that Members are free to assemble. They are not free to assemble illegally. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am answering the question of the hon. Member; I have been to Butere myself and I have been to the house of the hon. Member, which is adjacent or very close to his father's house. There is a clear space between the two houses, and I suppose that this is the place where the people met.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, I have no bad or ill feelings against the police at all, because they have the right to come and check, but then intervention and the visiting by the police is interpreted in a way that it can scare the people in future from assembling to discuss Maendeleo. Does the Minister want to tell me that my father or myself, cannot have a tea-party of more than 60 people, and when I am a representative of the people of Butere? Am I not allowed to do so? Have I got to tell the hon. Minister, the police, and God knows who, before they can come to my house to sing for me or take tea?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not object to people going to sing for the hon. Member every Monday or every Sunday, but it might have been that the people who gathered had wished to discuss a sub-chief or something like that. And therefore, the information was given to the police. It could have resolved into a scuffle and so on; so the police did not do any wrong. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the hon. Member agrees with me that the police were as innocent as anybody, and I would like the hon. Member to help to make the people realize that the police are friendly.

POLICE SHOOTING IN WEST KANO LOCATION

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my colleague, the hon. Okuto-Bala, I beg to ask the following Question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Why were people refused by police permission to mourn in the usual Luo tradition on 27th May 1969, after the police had shot dead Mr. Ochieng Abuto of West Kano Location?
- (b) Why were people beaten and chased away from attending Ahero Market in a manner which brought about a lot of losses to the general public on 27th May 1969?
- (c) Why were all shops at Ahero ordered to be closed and some trade licences taken away by the police?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 24th May 1969, three police constables from Ahero Police Station arrested an accused person for being in possession of a bottle of Nubian gin. On their way to the police station a group of people—approximately 40 men—attacked them and the arrested person escaped.

On 26th May 1969, a police party recognized a man concerned with the earlier attack. He resisted arrest and slashed one constable on the left hand. The other constable shot him dead when he tried to attack him as well. The incident is at present under investigation and therefore sub judice.

Later, about 300 people armed with spears and sticks went to Ahero Police Station in a hostile mood. The district commissioner and the police officers in charge cooled them down. As a security precaution, shops, bars and clubs were temporarily closed down. At no time, were the people refused permission to mourn for the deceased nor were any of them beaten at the market place. The police are not aware of any losses sustained by the public as a result of this incident.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that actually this ceremony, which was therefore in Luo, is just a part of mourning and that these people were not there to fight anyone, and that on that particular day, at Ahero, it was a market day and therefore the people had to suffer a lot of losses due to the ignorance of the police of the local customs?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like this time, this warning given to the hon. Member that such traditions should never be used for political purposes. I would like to inform the hon. Member that in this particular area, and elsewhere in Nyanza Province, and South Nyanza, people have been using such traditional matters for political purposes, and Government may not, in future, allow such things to occur again, unless the elders including the hon. Members, can help us to allow this sort of tradition to continue without political aspiration being thrown into them.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has not answered the question asked. He alleges that these people went to attack the police station and he has not given evidence that they really went to attack the police station. These people normally when they go for these traditional ceremonies, carry with them spears, animals and many other things, and they were in a market place. Can he actually tell the House definitely that these people made any charges which justified the action which the police took to disturb people in the market?

Mr. arap Moi: If these attacks had started earlier on the 24th and also on the 26th, there was no doubt in anybody's mind that the people who were carrying spears and all these weapons would not use them and therefore, the police had to take precautions.

Mr. Odinga: I would like the Minister to answer the question because we want to get this very clear—because he is an African. When we had the Europeans governing us here, they also respected the African traditions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, just ask your question.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister actually give the House to understand that as a result of the death of this man, these people who had come from various and from far places to carry out a traditional ceremony of going to a definite place which they know they always go to. It is a place where they always go to. Did they make any disturbance to the police which justified the police to attack them and to beat people as they did?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I answered that. The hon. Member ought not to be so excited on this matter. I did say, Mr. Speaker, that as a security precaution, shops, bars and clubs were temporarily closed down. At no time, were the people refused permission to mourn the deceased, nor were any of them beaten at the market place.

OPENING OF FORM I LUGULU GIRLS' SCHOOL

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Education the following Question by Private Notice.

- (a) Why has a Form I not been opened at Lugulu Girls' High School since selections took place immediately after C.P.E. results?
- (b) When does he consider it will be opened?
- (c) Since almost half of the year has gone, would the fees be reduced?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Form I pupils have not yet been admitted to Lugulu Girls' High School this year because the school has an acute shortage of accommodation. Buildings which were expected to be ready for occupation in December 1968 have not yet been completed.

(b) It is expected that these buildings will be ready by the end of this month and Form I pupils may be admitted early in July.

(c) The fees payable by the Form I pupils will be reduced accordingly.

Mr. Barasa: Arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister not aware that we have been having Form I at Lugulu every year for the last seven or eight years up to date, and until now we have been opening Form I in January and February, so really we would like to know what delays the Government from opening Form I this year; is it because of the building of accommodation because we already have some completed building at Lugulu?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it appears as though the hon. Member does not know the situation at Lugulu. Lugulu is one of the larger developing girls' high schools to cater for three streams right from Form I to Form IV, and every year we have been adding a further stream. Last year, we added another stream—the third stream there. Now, that is not all, Mr. Speaker; Lugulu is being developed and built with International Development Agency money and it is the school that is looked upon as being the most important girls' high school in that area. The school has not enough accommodation to cater for three Form I classes this year, because the buildings which were supposed to have been completed last year were not completed by the contractor.

Now, my Ministry does not build houses. It deals with the admission, and general duties and responsibilities to do with the school. When it comes to delay, Mr. Speaker, by the contractor, there is nothing we can do, but delay commencement of the classes, and see that, even if they are admitted at a later stage, they still cover the period that they have lost during the time the pupils have not been at school.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer that implies that I may not know the situation at Lugulu, is the Assistant Minister not aware that there are some other schools in Kenya which have been termed "day-secondary" schools and that there are some others that have been termed "boarding-schools" and that there are some classes or streams at Lugulu which are now termed "day-streams" while others are termed "boarding-streams" by the Ministry?

Mr. Khasakhala: I am fully aware.

Mr. Godia: Arising from that reply from the Assistant Minister, since the school term for this year is nearly finished, what arrangement has the Ministry to see that the girls who should cover the full syllabus for this year do so before the end of the year.

Mr. Khasakhala: I said very clearly that my Ministry has made necessary arrangements with the staff at Lugulu to see that when the girls come in July, they will catch up over the whole year, and I am sure they will do this, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the earlier reply by the Assistant Minister, why did the Ministry not arrange with Misikhu so those girls could have been admitted temporarily at Misikhu Girls' School until July?

Mr. Khasakhala: We used to do that previously, Mr. Speaker, and the administration was very difficult. To send three classes to Misikhu, where there would be no accommodation for the three streams would be impossible and, as a result of this, my Ministry decided to have all the three classes wait and come in at a given time so that they study their syllabus at the same time without any class losing and that was the reason why we are determined that the three classes should wait until the accommodation is completed.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

NATIONAL HOUSING CORPORATION IN RURAL AREAS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now, hon. Members. I have to remind you that on the adjournment today, Mr. Karungaru is to raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

CHANGE IN ORDER OF BUSINESS

FORTHCOMING VISIT OF PRIME MINISTER OF SWAZILAND TO PARLIAMENT

As regards tomorrow, I can now inform you that there will be an official visit by the Prime Minister of Swaziland, which will include a reception to be given to him in Parliament Buildings by the Vice-President and Leader of Government Business tomorrow evening at six-thirty o'clock; and I hope also we shall see our distinguished guest in the gallery for a moment before the end. This being so, I think it would be better to put off the matter which Mr. Godia was to raise on the adjournment tomorrow, until Tuesday of next week.

POINT OF ORDER

DISTRIBUTION OF DOCUMENTS TO MEMBERS BY OUTSIDE ORGANIZATIONS

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I note that there is a leaflet of unknown authenticity going round the building and I think all Members have got it. addressed to the Government and the Republic of Kenya from some people called the National Council of Women of Kenya.

This pamphlet does not bear any signature. Now I am seeking your guidance as to how such a leaflet is treated if they are circulated to Members through the Members' pigeon holes and yet we do not see the legality of doing that unless something is sent and signed, so that we can know what is happening.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mbogoh, the position is that from time to time I get requests from various people to allow circulation of documents for the information of Members, and to ask administration to arrange distribution to their pigeon-holes. The decision on that depends on whether the request comes from a responsible, recognized organization whose views Members might wish to hear. If we get a request of this kind from individual persons who appear to have a private grudge, then we say it is up to him to get this communication to the Members as best he can.

However, very often in the past, and on this occasion again, when representation is made to Members on a matter of current interest, by a recognized body, like the National Council of Women, then I think it is proper to facilitate distribution of their views to hon. Members.

I think it is unfortunate, perhaps, that this was not actually signed by any person on behalf of the National Council of Women, but I know from the inquiries I had that it does actually come from the National Council of Women.

So, whatever Members may feel, I thought it desirable that they should see the views of this particular council, or of any other recognized council if that council has views on any particular matter. With regard to trade unions, and the National Union of Teachers, and often, you will remember, on other occasions, we have allowed distribution of their views among Members on a current issue has been allowed in the same way.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, would it not, then, be fair that every time you allow them to do that, that you insist that it be signed? Otherwise some other organizations might use this chance to slight others by giving out pamphlets which are not signed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think you are right, Mr. Mbogoh. We should look more carefully to ensure that the thing is verified. However, I can assure hon. Members that on this occasion that it was verified by direct contact with me from the headquarters of this council.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this distribution of documents deals with the Affiliation Bill, will it not be in order, when tomorrow the Bills are discussed, to move a Motion to get Order No. 10 to read Order No. 6 so that we deal with this question and dispose of it in order that we do not receive more documents of this nature being distributed here by women?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It sounds to me as if the hon. Member wishes to discriminate against women. I do not think we can do that.

I do think that hon. Members should welcome expression of views from the public as long as they are, at any rate, responsible organizations of the public, men or women.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am sure you know my views on this matter. I am just raising, on a matter of principle, whether it is right for this organization or any other organization to use Parliamentary machinery to post these documents because I received mine in an envelope together with my other Parliamentary papers? I am only asking whether it is right for this organization, or any other organization, to use Parliamentary machinery to send these documents out?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For reasons that I have given, I think that it is in the best interests of hon. Members that, at the discretion of the Speaker, documents of this kind should be made available easily to hon. Members.

MOTION

THANKS FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

THAT, the thanks of this House be recorded for the exposition of public policy contained in His Excellency's Presidential Address from the Chair on 20th May 1969.

(The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi) on 21st May 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 29th May 1969 (seventh and last day))

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before proceeding with this debate, I have to inform hon. Members that I understand from the Mover, the Leader of Government Business, that he has ceded his right of reply to this debate to the Deputy Leader of Government Business, Mr. Ngei.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to come very briefly and make a few comments on the statement of policy as given by His Excellency the President of Kenya.

I think, first, this nation must be very appreciative of the leadership and wisdom of the President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta in leading the nation to its present prosperity and respect. Purely with regard to his personal status, the country enjoys a good name overseas. I know this, having just arrived from overseas, Gibraltar, the United Kingdom and other places. Therefore, I would like to join hands with those who have in the past expressed similar views in appreciating the leadership of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the statement that was made by Mzee, there are two aspects I would like to comment on. First, is the question of discipline and order in the party. This is particularly important when we go towards the general election which is not very far off. The question of discipline and order in the party, Sir, has been spoilt by a few people who are thirsty for power and who are prepared to use the backdoor to make it look as though they have the mandate of the people. This, in a party like Kanu, which is leading the country, is wrong.

I would like to put forward three points in relation to this, Sir. In my view, the party, in order to be successful in the forthcoming elections, must be able to uphold the constitution which has been made by members of this party. There are some people in Kakamega, Mombasa, Isiolo, Manderu and so on who would like to sabotage the party and the constitution of the party. I would like to assure these people that they are heading for a big failure and disappointment because nobody is going to sit back and watch these few puppets spoiling the machinery. Therefore, I would like to say very clearly here, that any people who think that they can do down the party by resorting to backdoor methods are deceiving themselves. As we go towards the elections, we have to stand very firmly with our people against this clique who do not want to uphold the party.

So I would like to advise the House that the idea of upholding the party must be maintained by everyone; that the party constitution must be maintained by everybody.

The other aspect which I would like to speak on is the question of the constitutional officers, the officers who have been properly elected. These must be protected by the party. Several times we have read in the Press, there have been statements coming from the organizing secretary of the party, the hon. Mr. Munoko, saying something which is according to the constitution of the party, and then a little fellow, out of the blue, from the bundu comes out and challenges the national organizing secretary of the party. This little fellow from the bundu is not even a popularly elected member of the people. So we wonder, Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether this is the order of the day. If it is the order of the day, then we as leaders of the party have to stand very firmly against such people. It is no use saying that the Government wants this, the Government wants that. The Cabinet Ministers are under the Chairmanship of the President. The Government has not decided anything and nobody should—

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the speech which we are hearing, I wonder whether it is not a speech which should be made at a Kanu meeting instead of the National Assembly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga has a point. The internal affairs of a party are not really the concern of this National Assembly as a Parliament. It is only when we come up to the question of the application of the law which governs registration of parties and registration of party officials and so on, that the matter may become relevant to a debate in this House. I think, really, that is what Mr. Ngala means to get at, the question of the recognition by the Registrar of Societies of certain change of offices. If so, it is relevant. However, any question of how Kanu should organize itself, outside the law, is not relevant to this debate.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was just coming to that. The backdoor methods of registration, or any complaints of registration of the party, is the responsibility of my colleague who is very well aware of this and very knowledgeable as to what the constitution of the party is. Here I would like to leave it to my colleague who is able to make up his own mind on this. All that I would like to say in this matter, Mr. Speaker, is that the constitution must be upheld. It does not matter whether anybody says here that this reflects the ignorance of the Minister. What I want to say, on the ground, in the Coast Province, in Mombasa, is that everything will have to be redone. Therefore, Sir, this question of exchange of words does not worry me, because people must understand that the constitution of the party must be upheld in the way that will please the people.

I would like to mention another thing. In the policy statement it is made very clear what the question of development involves, and the need for developing the country. Quite a number of people in Kenya do not realize how much progress we have made in the six years since internal self-government in Kenya. We have made tremendous progress, in schools, where the number has gone up from 51 secondary schools when we first got our independence to about 600 secondary schools at the present time. This has taken place in about five years. In the roads system and in all other things there has been tremendous progress. Although we have made so much progress, I think very little praise and propaganda is mentioned in this House to give credit to the Kanu Government which is in power. These Members should concentrate more on giving the Kanu Government credit for the amount of progress that has been made during this time instead of dwelling, perhaps, on other things which do not give first things their first place. Mr. Speaker, I know of many other countries in Africa which have attained independence long before Kenya and yet they have not done as much as Kenya has done. I would like to draw the attention of the Members for the need to give credit where it is due, and this is to the Government, the Kanu Government which is led by His Excellency, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta.

Mr. Speaker, I know the Opposition may feel a bit different on this but the Opposition cannot feel otherwise, because they are the Opposition. At one time, I used to be an Opposition Member. I feel, very strongly, that Kenya should be given credit for the development that the Government has done. As Minister responsible for self-help projects, I would like to give credit to the people of Kenya, because, in relation to the self-help projects, 94 per cent, Sir, of the contributions have been made by the people themselves, from their voluntary efforts. Only 6 per cent has been made by the Government. This is a very unique spirit of Harambee which has been shown by our people. Therefore, we should also give credit to the people for the effort they have made in making it possible to attain the progress we have so far achieved. I think, therefore, that appreciation should be given to the Government and less criticism.

I also think it is very important, Sir, that I say something about the economic development. I feel very strongly that the Government is right in boosting the co-operative movement, because in so doing, the co-operative movement is the collective effort of the poorer people, and this has made it possible for us to create the capital within the country and, at the same time, allow the participation of the people within their own economy.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I would like very much to congratulate the President for the excellent speech he made at the opening of Parliament.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also would like to join my colleagues who have spoken on this Motion to congratulate His Excellency the President on his wise leadership given to the country and this Parliament. Under his leadership and guidance, this Parliament has continued to the stage it has reached today, and the country has enjoyed the peace and stability that it is enjoying right now.

I would like to make a few observations. How are we going to create a Kenya that is a Kenya which will enjoy the same stability at any other time in the future? If you listen to many people speaking at different times you hear them saying, "This country is stable because of Mzee". Can we not, as parliamentarians, can we not as leaders of the party, can we not as thinking people find a way in which we can create that Kenya which will enjoy the same stability, enjoy the same leadership at any time in the future in order that no one will doubt the next leadership? This is easily done if we are sincere with ourselves, if hon. Members can take their responsibilities seriously and try to create that leadership amongst ourselves without jealousy, without trying to undermine one another by backdoor methods as the hon. Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services said. It is only through the party machinery, it is only through the constitution of this Government, that a country like Kenya can continue enjoying the stability and peace which we have right now; this can be done if we respect these things. It is no use pretending that we are passing legislation here which is meant for certain individual and that other people may not enjoy the same facilities of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I thought that in the Constitution we have made it very clear that a Kenya citizen is a Kenya citizen, whether black, yellow, or brown. He will be regarded as a Kenya citizen. But now, here we find discrimination against other races who live in Kenya and who are supposed to be protected by the Constitution. I think the time has come when we have to be realistic and to look at any person who lives in Kenya, to look upon anybody who is a citizen of this country, who has been given that citizenship by our own Government, to be a Kenyan and not an Asian, not a European. We know they have their colours but so long as they have agreed to live with us here, they have surrendered their rights, the rights of their own countries, we should give them the same treatment as we give to our own people. It is then that this document will have some meaning. The moment we start discriminating against people who are of other races, people who have been granted Kenya citizenship, then this means that we are bluffing people by giving them mere pieces of paper while not making them, in actual fact, people, citizens of this country. We should give them the same treatment so that they can enjoy the facilities which are enjoyed by the rest of the Kenya citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Constitution of this country must be obeyed and it should be honoured in all ways. A thief who is a thief should be treated whether he is from my own tribe, or whether he is from tribe X, as a thief; let him be sent to a court of law, judged and imprisoned. There should be no mercy to anybody who is a citizen of this our Kenya because he happens to belong to X tribe or to X race. I think the Constitution of this country—which we passed here—should be respected by all people and by us all. By so doing, we can then create a Kenya, a Kenya that will enjoy the same facilities, the same stability, the same peace, as we have now under the wise leadership of His Excellency, the President.

Mr. Speaker, moving now to my own Ministry, I must say that although some people tend to look aside and not give credit where it is due, the Ministry of Education right now has moved much, much further ahead than we were before independence. If you count the number of secondary schools in the country today, you will see, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that there are many more, more than double the number that we used to have before independence. Therefore, what we need to do is for us, as Members of this House, to be creative and instead of urging our pupils to end after their Certificates of Primary Education, we should urge them to stay. I feel that instead of building more Harambee secondary schools we should find ways and means of building more Harambee technical schools or polytechnics which can create jobs and train the young Certificate of Primary Education leavers in specific jobs and specific ideas. Harambee secondary schools are not going to solve our problems; we are still going on with the old methods of classroom teaching by the teacher for passing examinations only. If we can be creative it would be better. We could get some sewing machines, some carpentry materials, and some other technical things and then build some Harambee technical schools in our areas or, what I would call, village polytechnics, and this would go a long way to help our Certificate of Primary Education leavers who are now left in the country to roam about. Let us start another Harambee effort in this way, Mr. Speaker. I am sure that this can help the country very much. We have many people who have left technical schools like Sigalagala who are roaming about in the country because they have not managed to be employed with building contractors. We can make use of these people; we can employ them in our schools so that they can teach our young folk to march forward with some technical ideas.

Mr. Speaker, Kenya as a non-aligned country, it surprises me—and I am saying this with all sincerity—to see that up to this minute that the hospital which was donated and given as a gift to the Kenya Government at Kisumu by the Russians has not yet been officially opened. I happened to pay a visit to this hospital—it is a pity the Minister for Health is not here—and it is becoming filthy and useless and yet it has all the facilities which we do not have in our provincial hospitals. I would appeal very strongly to the Minister for Health to pay a special visit and attention to this hospital. He should give Kisumu Hospital more staff because Kisumu Hospital, as it stands today, is the only large hospital in West Kenya. I have not left my own province and I am now talking of West Kenya. This hospital can cater for people from Western Province, it can cater for people even from Kericho, and people from Central Nyanza. It is the only able and worthy hospital where we can have the specialists like the ones we have at Kenyatta National Hospital to look after our own people there. Let us leave the Russians alone; they have given the gift, the hospital is there, the facilities are there, and we must make use of these facilities.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to say a few words about the administration. We have, from time to time, been told to co-operate with our administrators which I think is a very good thing, because no country can develop when politicians look aside as independent people and leave the administrators as different people. I think we should co-operate with our administrators—we politicians—so that development in our areas can forge ahead without difficulties.

Mr. Speaker, I would appeal to the Minister for State in charge of administration to divide Bunyore, which is my own constituency, into three locations. I have now in my constituency over 100,000 people, and this can easily be divided into three locations and be given a division by itself. The Higa Division should also be given a sub-district because it is becoming very difficult to administer.

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks I beg to support.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not got very much to add to what has been said already. However, I feel that the speech the hon. Mzee Jomo Kenyatta made was very good and worth commenting on.

[The Minister for Finance]

This country, Mr. Speaker, has gone a very long way in development. If I were to take my portfolio—as it were—the amount of money we started with when I took over the Treasury was less than £40 million; that was our recurrent expenditure at that time. Today, in this financial year that is ending at the end of this month, we are spending about £62 million. If that is not progress, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know what is.

The prosperity in the country has been extremely good; there are areas that have not done all that well, but it is not a question of not getting the support of the Government, it is a question of getting a lot of support from the Government and the people themselves not working as hard as the President has been insisting on us doing. The future of this country lies with us. I was interested in listening to the President's speech on Sunday when he reminded us that we should rely on ourselves and that we should not look to the heavens to get the manna which should fall down and feel happy, because that is not likely to happen.

What this Government has done is shown by its activities: the road programme, the schools—as Mr. Khasakhala was saying—the hospitals, health centres and things like that. Even the increase in Members of this particular House is part of the whole development, so that more and more of our areas are represented here so that we do not get distortion of facts from some areas.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only beg to support those speakers who spoke before me, by relating that the speech of His Excellency the President has to be commented upon.

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I also join all the other speakers in congratulating His Excellency the President on his very lucid and forthright exposition of Government policy.

I particularly want to congratulate His Excellency the President for his campaign against gangsterism and theft with violence in this country. I think it is very important that the Head of State should take the initiative in combating crime which is, in fact, a very serious threat to our progress at the moment. Sir, what is most needed is public opinion. As long as public opinion appreciates that the criminal is not an interesting Wild West story or a gangster film, but is a disease to our body politic which, unless exterminated, will harm the whole of Kenya, unless we have that we will never be able to combat this criminal element. It is very important, therefore, that the public should co-operate with the police to ensure that the criminal element is completely uprooted from our society.

Sir, the President has laid great stress on the question of receivers. It is very important that not only should the criminal be arrested, but also the person who gets the criminal loot should also be traced, tracked down and put into prison. They are the persons who, in fact, encourage the criminal element to do its job. I was very happy, Sir, to see that the President has proposed and given an amnesty to a certain number of criminals. However, I would like to say that we should be assured that before any criminal is given an amnesty he should be sorry for what he has done, and prove his regret by returning the loot that he has taken in those particular raids and not keep it. It is also important to make sure that before a man is given an amnesty and forgiven, he must give the Government the full facts of each and every criminal adventure which he undertook, and be willing to give State evidence to see that those of his former associates who have not surrendered are, in fact, traced and put behind bars. Unless this is done, unless they really co-operate with the Government to make sure that the criminal element is uprooted, we are not really achieving very much. In fact, we may find that a person who has the police hot on his heels finds it much more convenient to go and surrender and say that he is taking advantage of the amnesty, rather than be put in prison. Therefore, we should make sure that the amnesty achieves what it sets out to achieve.

Sir, I do want to congratulate my friend whom I have just heard, the hon. Mr. Khasakhala, for a very statesmanlike and forthright speech which he made just now on the necessity to abide by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, to ensure that every citizen in this country is given complete equality of treatment. Equality of treatment, that is, not only on paper, but also in the very fact and administration of our country. In this connexion, Sir, I would like to draw attention to two important aspects. One is—and I say this without any regrets because I have raised it many, many times—that we must see that our Immigration Department, at last, tries to rush and process all those application forms for registration of citizenship which were made before 1965. It is quite disgraceful, Sir, that we have had to wait for four years and more and people who applied—in fact under the Constitution—for citizenship have not yet got their papers processed. I know we have been told here that applications for citizenship have been processed. This is not true. I, myself, have written at least 25 letters to the Immigration Department. They are never replied to. I go there myself and every time I am told to wait a minute because they are looking for the file, and then later they tell me that they will ring me back tomorrow, but they never do. Almost every week I make a daily pilgrimage to the Immigration Department and they do nothing at all. It is no use some of the officers saying they are doing their best, because there is only one man, and I repeat, there is only one man, Sir, in the Immigration Department who is supposed to deal with cases of citizenship, and I am afraid one is not enough. The Government should either say that all those who have not been given citizenship are not going to be given it, so the persons concerned will know what to do.

There are very many people, Sir, who have applied for citizenship by post as they were told to do, by registration, and when one goes to the Immigration Department the person is told the papers cannot be found. What are these people supposed to do? They cannot go round and find their papers in the Immigration Department. What is the filing system there like? It is obvious that this department requires a considerable amount of overhauling, and I would earnestly request, Sir, that the Minister should do something about it.

Very important at the same time, is the question of work permits. Those people who applied in time are often being dismissed from their jobs because they do not have work permits. How, on the one hand can we say there is equality of treatment and yet people who are citizens by right, according to the Constitution, are not even allowed to work and support their wives and children, and families, just because somebody is totally incompetent in processing their application papers? This is something, Sir, which cannot be allowed to continue. It is a joke no more. It used to be a joke for many, many years, but for those poor people who are almost starving and who want to support their wives and children, it is not a joke. It is a very pathetic story and something should be done about it.

Further to that, Sir, is the question of the Trade Licensing Bill. We fully support Africanization in commerce and industry; we fully support this and we have supported it all the time. By all means they should Africanize the non-citizens but why Africanize citizens who, in fact, have no other home to go to, who have abandoned their nationalities? I know of a number of cases just now where the Appeal Tribunal, which we have appointed, have approved licences which have been countermanded by somebody in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. These are cases in which the majority are citizens, and in one case which I know of today, it is 100 per cent citizens who own the particular firm and they have been told to close down. No reasons whatsoever have been given. Surely, if they are citizens and they have the right to earn their bread and butter, they have the right to live, they have the right to live honestly, they have the right to maintain their wives and children, and how are they going to do so if they have to close their shops? I know, Sir, of cases in Victoria Street where, I am told, there were five textile firms, four were owned by non-citizens and one was a citizen-owned shop, and only the citizen shop was asked to close down. Why is this? Why cannot we close down the non-citizen shops? I notice the same thing has happened in the Bazaar in a number of cases.

This is grossly unfair. We would like to know how many appeals were upheld by the Appeal Tribunal, and how many of those appeals upheld by the tribunal were, in fact, summarily rejected by the Minister. In fact, I asked the Minister at that time to go through the appeals. Who then has countermanded the Appeals Tribunal without sufficient reason? We would like to know why they have been countermanded, and on what grounds the Appeal Tribunal's recommendations have been totally disregarded.

Now, Sir, the other point is that while we say we want to do this, we see new shops being granted licences to non-citizens all the time. We see the Inter-Continental where all the shops, so far as I can see, are belonging to non-citizens. If we really want to get Africans into shops, why do we not see that all the new buildings which are going up today have shops only for citizens, or even Africans? Where is the logic I ask you, Mr. Speaker, in telling a firm which has been for 30 or 40 years in the Bazaar or in Government Road to close down his shop because we say we want to put Africans there, and of then allowing non-citizens who have nothing to do with the shops to open new shops in the Inter-Continental or the other places? Do we have any guarantee that in the shops, for example, in the Hilton Hotel, or in any of the new buildings which are coming up, that only Africans will be allowed to open shops? I have no objection to this. Let us make sure that the new shops in the Inter-Continental, in the Hilton, and in all the new buildings, that Africans are allowed to open up there. Why do we have to discriminate against citizens and yet, at the same time, we allow non-citizens to flourish freely? I do feel this is hypocrisy at its worst, for on the one side we say we are Africanizing when we are not really Africanizing. All we are punishing is the poor non-African citizens. I do want to appeal to the Government to take this seriously, because it is very disheartening for somebody like myself, who has championed the cause of this country over and over again, who has assured people that if they take up citizenship then they will be free, only to be reminded again and again by people asking me what is the use of my requesting them to take up citizenship because they are now starving because they cannot run their business? I appeal to the Government to do something about this.

Thank you.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am also rising to support my friends who have spoken at length in connexion with the Presidential Speech.

I know that my Ministry has been attacked on some points and I think it is important for me to try and clear up some misunderstandings.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one of the items I would like to talk about is coffee. Every Member knows that coffee has been Kenya's most important export crop for a long time, and in fact will continue to be so for quite some time. Members will recall that this crop was attacked very heavily by Coffee Berry Disease, and the subsequent reduction in yields of coffee has caused many farmers a considerable reduction in their own income. We are doing everything we can to help our farmers in this respect. At the time of independence, in 1963, my Ministry had plans to expand the acreage then under coffee. But like any other agricultural commodity, the world market for coffee reached the over production stage, and we had to curtail our expansion. At the same time, my Ministry was engaged on the exercise of reducing our reliance on coffee as our main source of foreign exchange by introducing new cash crops such as macadamia nuts, passion fruit and so forth.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

We are, at the moment, laying great stress on the importance of the improvement of coffee in the country today, in order that it may fetch a better price than the one we are receiving today. This programme, Mr. Deputy Speaker, will definitely go right ahead to help the farmers obtain a better yield.

Coming to tea, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which is an item I feel the Members would like to know more about. Tea is Kenya's second most important cash crop, next to coffee. My Ministry undertook to expand tea production in the small-holder areas as a substitute to coffee, which, in fact, we could not expand any more because of the International Agreement—

An hon. Member: That's no explanation. Give us the reasons.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): If the hon. Member would care to listen instead of jumping in then he would find that I am explaining the reasons. This is because of international control. The small-holder programme under the Kenya Tea Development Authority is still in its initial stage, and we still have more to do to make tea a viable undertaking. As the Members are aware the devaluation of the B£ hit our tea industry very hard indeed, more so than any other commodity in Kenya. The United Kingdom is one of the biggest tea consumers and we could hardly do anything about it because we sell most of our tea to the United Kingdom. The latest development on the world market in tea indicates that the supply of the commodity is increasing at a faster rate than the demand itself. This recent development, as the hon. Members all know, was the subject of a conference which was held in Rome last month. All the Members know that Kenya went to negotiate and to discuss with other tea-producer countries, in connexion with the anticipated tea quota in the world. Our stand is well known, and that is we decided to stand firm so far as the small-scale producers of tea are concerned in order to give them a better market, and also to enable them to continue expanding. As I have rightly said, we feel that these developed nations should not try to stand in our way when we want to develop in this kind of cash crops, like tea and other very important crops which bring in foreign currency.

I can assure the hon. Members that our small-holder programme on tea production will continue, and we will continue planting until we complete it even in the case of an international agreement.

My Minister has appointed a small but powerful working committee to look into the problems now being experienced by the tea growers, and to make recommendations for necessary action by the Government. I can assure the hon. Members that all necessary action will be taken so as to help the farmers to reap quite a lot of profit from their sweat in their shambas. The situation on the world market will be kept under review, and I can now assure the hon. Members that they will be kept in the picture by my Ministry as to how the development is going on with regard to tea.

I would now like to turn to another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and that is the pyrethrum industry. Hon. Members are aware that there is a vital role which the pyrethrum industry has played in revolutionizing the agricultural development in [Mr. J. M. Kariuki] the smallholder areas, and the part it has played in the success of several of our settlement schemes. My Minister gave this Parliament a statement on the latest development in connexion with this industry last November, particularly in connexion with synthetics and I do not need to elaborate on this.

The threat from synthetics is still there even today, and is increasing every year. We are determined to make ourselves competitive on the world market by reducing our costs. Hon. Members should not spare any efforts in helping us achieve this very important objective in their own areas.

The Pyrethrum Marketing Board has the problem of increasing the quality of the crop in order to reduce processing costs. The success of this programme is going to depend on the co-operation we receive from the co-operative societies by informing the producers and growers of this.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must give—because, as His Excellency the President said, this might be the last Presidential Speech before we go to the elections—I must comment on one very important point, and that is that we, as hon. Members of this Parliament, must look back over the last six years and see what we have achieved in this country. I still believe that the Kanu Government has achieved quite a lot. We have given our people free medical services in the country. We have reduced costs in education. We have really built quite a lot of roads, and there has been other development like hospitals and so on in the country. It is the responsibility of all of us, the Members of this Parliament, to go and explain this to our people so as to make them understand and make them know what their Government has done, rather than coming to this Parliament and start criticizing things among ourselves. They must realize that what they are going to do today, what they are going to criticize in their own Government today, will one day bounce back on themselves. The thing is we must work together, and we must explain to our people, because it is we, as future candidates, who will have to stand in front of our constituents and say what our Government has done. We cannot expect to speak with one voice today and then go and face the electorate and tell them something different. We have to start from here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would also like to say that some of us have been accused in this Parliament, and outside, by some of us, perhaps due to our generosity to the people, and I would like to say this to all those critics of many of us who are trying to help the self-help projects in the country, that man comes into this world without his own consent, and, in fact, will leave it without his own consent. When he is on this earth he will be misjudged and misunderstood. In infancy, he is called an angel. In boyhood, he is a devil. In manhood, he is a fool. If he is a bachelor, he is inhuman and mean. If he enters a public house he is a drunkard. If he stays out, he is temperate, fanatic and they may even call him a miser. If he is poor, then they say he has no brains. If he is a rich man, then they say he has all the luck in the world, and he is also a crook. If he goes to church, he is a hypocrite. If he stays away, he is a sinful man. If he gives to a charity, or does a good turn, then people say he is doing this for self advertisement. If he does not, then he is called a stingy and mean man. When he comes into the world as a “baby” everyone wants to love and kiss him, but once he is grown up, what happens? Before he departs, everyone wants to kick him away. If he dies while he is still young, then they say there was a great future for him. If he lives to a ripe old age everybody then says he has made a will.

So, Sir, what is more important in this world is to do what is right irrespective of what other people say.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No other Member wishing to speak? I will call upon the Mover to reply. I think Mr. Ngei is replying on behalf of the Government.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must confess that I have been taken by surprise because I was just sitting down to have a rest. It is amazing that the hon. Members who showed a very keen interest in the debate are not here to listen to some of the very important replies to be given. Mr. Deputy Speaker, somebody is asking me if I am replying. I am replying.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when His Excellency the President, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, opened the current session of our Parliament a few days ago, he reminded the hon. Members of their enormous responsibilities as leaders of this country. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I may, I would like to quote the relevant passages of His Excellency's speech. The President also emphasized the necessity for a full play of judgment and constructive criticism which any reliable, responsible and honest Government is not afraid to listen to, and also the full contribution from us all, that is including the Back-benchers of the ruling party.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the President emphasized the question of constructive criticism and made it a duty to the nation, and of course, a duty to this House.

[The Minister for Housing]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when I finish this, I would like to dwell on some of the baseless allegations which have been levelled in this House. If I may go quickly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to page 5, paragraphs 3, 4 and I quote—

“As we move towards the 1970's there are certain attitudes of mind that I wish to see adopted by Ministers of the Government, hon. Members of this House, Officers of the Public Service, Trade Union Leaders, and all who hold positions of influence or responsibility.

Having laid all the foundations of a modern State, Kenya must progress now. I want to witness and to feel harder work and more practical effort being made by all who carry the burden—and also the privilege—of public leadership. There must be more decisive and virile conduct of public business in many departments of national endeavour. We can in no sense afford to try and live on slogans or self-congratulation.”

Mr. Deputy Speaker, following that and stressing on the national endeavour I would like also to quote page 1 paragraphs 2 and 3, which is very important to Members of Parliament—

“Within the framework of the business of this House, there must be and always will be scope for the full play of judgment and of conscience, constructive criticism, even of a robust nature, as a part of their contribution. In a House now sufficiently experienced, there should be fewer parochial attitudes, far less automatic condemnation, or baseless and sometimes marathon attacks by hon. Members on the Government to which they are committed by popular mandate, to support with loyalty and striving. There should be no wild allegations rooted in ignorance, or in failure to study the implications of some issue.”

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is the basis of my reply today on behalf of the Government. Of late, in this House, it has come, to the notice of the public and of the House that Members have criticized the Government. One fact must remain that the Members of this House are part and parcel of it and therefore are within the ruling party which is the Government and they can not under any circumstances, shun the responsibility of leadership with which they have been entrusted by their electors. The electors are now expecting or, in the last six years of Government, they have now come to the conclusion that they expect responsible leadership and guidance from Members of this hon. House.

All I am saying Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is: being a Member of the Government or being a Member of this hon. House, then what stops the Members from taking the grievances of their own constituencies to the respective Minister? Why do they not come to us because we are part of them as we also go to them, and tell the Ministers or Assistant Ministers or the Government officials, the officers of the Ministries, that they want certain projects in their own constituency? One wonders why of late we have had this sort of thing. Of course, we know that the forces of disunity are at work all the time. One wonders why there should be what may be termed—a small rift between the Government and the Members of Parliament within the Government. This is the emphasis and is why I am saying that the hon. Members must be aware that the forces of disunity are at work all the time and this is the crux of the whole matter, to try and encourage the forces of disunity in order to destroy our young prosperous nation. Who will try to destroy the country, the nation? All the hon. Members are very responsible people who know they are here for the well-being of the people of Kenya. To try, within the Government—this is the question Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—within the Government, to encourage the forces of disunity is like killing oneself and this is a very important thing that hon. Members must take into consideration.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, an elderly and powerful statesman like our Leader has all the honesty needed in the world to congratulate the Members on their maturity—it is here—the Leader of this country, the Head of State, the Leader of Government has a clear conscience and the honesty to tell the Members that we are now grown up and have attained in this six years, maturity, we know how to run the Government. Political maturity, I am not saying anything else—it is maturity which carries along with it guidance, leadership, and honesty. The Mzee said, here in the House, during his speech, that hon. Members are now responsible people. Why then is there this turn of events? This is the question, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

Hon. Members: What are you referring to? Turns? What are they?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): I said “turns” and this is what I am asking you to tell me. I want to ask my fellow hon. Member whether we are carrying the burden equally, whether we are responsible to lead the people of Kenya into light or darkness. The Opposition which is quite irresponsible—I can say so—Members of the Opposition, not Members of the ruling party—the hon. Members of the ruling party have shown some signs of leadership and maturity for which of course I must congratulate them—they have shown this by bringing into light strong criticism of the things that the Government ought to do but they did not show—I am coming back to the Opposition—what the Government has done. There are only a few Members who had the courage to say what the Government has done. I am not replying to the Opposition, because there is nothing to reply to there. They spoke and spoke of nothing and I would like to say there was nothing constructive. Of course, they always labour in destroying all the time, but they cannot destroy what we have built in six years' time and which is going to be built next year after the Kanu Party wins the General Election.

I now want to come to some very important things of which the most important thing is corruption. The Members voiced their concern about corruption and I want to say this on behalf of the Government. We would like the Government not to entertain corruption and I repeat; Government will not entertain corruption. I want to state clearly on behalf of the Government that drastic action will be taken to see that the culprits are dealt with severely when the evidence is available. Every Member of this House is responsible and is called upon to assist by bringing evidence that shows that a certain individual has been concerned in corrupt practices and I can assure this hon. House that drastic measures will be taken. Already the Attorney-General revealed the other day, during Question Time, that 17 of our people, who have been charged with corruption have been dealt with severely. I will repeat here, emphatically, that Government is going to deal with these corrupt practices and stamp them out. There is one danger, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that hon. Members must be told clearly, and they know it, that wild statements and generalized statements on corruption are going to mar the image of this country and it is going to spoil the welfare of the people of Kenya economically, socially, and politically.

I have Press cuttings which I have been sorting out, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which I have tried to get from all over the world. One says from The Times of London—"Kenya condemns talk of corruption". And then you have another from a Tanzanian paper—"uproar in Kenya Parliament"—and then I have, Agencies French Press which of course, as I understand is the Agence Francaise in French, and then you have Riuta Transmissions on the debates here and other numerous papers reporting various speeches in this House. Here you have the Daily Telegraph of 27th—"corruption in Kenya Civil Service"—and another from The Times—"Kenya corruption claim discounted", "Kenya charge of graft and corruption". You have got them here, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, let the hon. Members see. This is the image which has been brought to this country by our very wild allegations that are going to mar this country, if we go on in this way.

As soon as a country like this is stable, which enjoys stability under the leadership of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, we have no doubt of what is coming in. Look at these big hotels. Do you think anybody is going to invest money in a country when he knows that it will erupt in a few months' time and his money will be completely gone? Tell me, today in those countries where there is trouble whether anybody is prepared to go and invest his money there? When the money is brought here, it does not mean that we are being colonized economically. When investments come to this country, and when truth itself shows up, and people come in, then we enjoy the facilities of getting foreign exchange coming in—having foreign money coming in, then we enjoy facilities of extended employment to our people. If we are going to scare this thing, we in this House are going to have to answer for it. You may all be faced by numbers of your people from your constituency asking you to provide jobs for them. This is very serious because they will tell you: "You told us that when you go to Parliament you will give us all the help possible, and therefore we want employment". This is very important, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, someone is saying "free education". Can I request the hon. Tsalwa to read the speech of Mr. Nyerere of Tanzania who said he does not see the future for free education in the Republic of Tanzania earlier than 1989 or even later. Even on the question of removing Standard IV education which we removed some years back—is only now that the Government of Tanzania is thinking of removing Standard IV education.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member must be informed of the number of secondary schools that we have as compared to the static position we had before, and he will be ashamed. We are far advanced and have a marathon state of progress as far as education is concerned. This Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member must be informed when he interrupts.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to come to the question of corruption and say that every hon. Member must be called upon to assist. If you know of any cases, you should go straight and inform the police. This would be straight forward.

[The Minister for Housing]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I was speaking about the action on overseas countries who give us help, and now I would like to come to an important thing which was an accusation in this House. Accusations in this House, Mr. Speaker, Sir, on tribalism, nepotism, and brotherization. Another relevant complaint which has been brought to the House. I think if you are a member of the Luo tribe—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Are you trying to attack a particular tribe?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Let me put it this way Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I remember one very famous moral re-armament ideology that when you point one finger at your hon. friend yonder, there are four other fingers pointing at you. I want the Member to remember this. I, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, to be very frank, have the statistics here, I have been reading, I know. If I Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, told the hon. Members that there was tribalism and nepotism in a particular area then, the same four fingers will be pointing back at me. They will say you are committed by the army

. (Inaudible.)
It can be said that my hon. friends over there and they are all on statutory boards of the Government. They employ their Luo, Luo, to the end. Where do we end? The best thing is to suggest to the Government a method or, if it is a relevant complaint, to bring to me. If it is this question of nepotism, brotherization, let it be brought to the Government for the Government is not refusing to sort it out.

Now, I would like to tell the Members of the ruling party that of late we have done very well. Bring all your complaints to the Kanu Parliamentary group, including complaints of brotherization, nepotism and whatever else it is and it will be sorted out. We are not prepared to show our inside cause before the Opposition Leader, the hon. Odinga. We can sort out our own measure, and we can leave them to talk by themselves. Therefore any Member who has a specific complaint, please bring it to our Parliamentary group. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, since the little hour glass is running out of sand very fast, I would like to say a word about the Civil Service before I come to other details on accusation to various Ministries.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, everybody needs a pat on the back to encourage him. Even a dog needs a pat from its master. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, a word of thanks must be recorded in this House for the good work that has been done since independence by our Civil Service. We cannot, because of allegations, say that the whole lot has gone rotten. They have done something, they were given a big burden since independence to carry. They have carried the burden marvellously well and there is no doubt about this. I would like to ask the House to pass a word of thanks to the Civil Service to tell them to continue, but to be vigilant against malpractices, if there are any.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, rebuking civil servants will demoralize and destroy the Government machinery. This is the executive arm of your own Government and you cannot allow your right hand to be cut off from your body. The civil servants are a very important part of our body and we must pat them on the back and thank them for the good work they have done since independence.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to ask the hon. Members to allow me to continue so that I can lay some facts here on some accusations about loans so that the Government may be clear of this. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Members have no objection.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): How many more minutes would you like, Mr. Ngei?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): About ten or twenty, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will put the question, I think ten minutes would be all right. I will put it to the House to ask leave of the House. Does the House give leave for an extra ten minutes so that Mr. Ngei could finish his speech?

Hon. Members: Yes.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes the House has agreed.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, this is a very good sign and shows how Members appreciate getting the facts, and I thank them very much for allowing me to continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I was finishing with the Civil Service and I would like this House to accord the Civil Service a good word for what they have done. Now I come to some specific points that have been made although the Minister has mentioned some of the points, but there were some which we cannot leave unanswered. There was for example, my hon. friend, Mr. Somo, Member for Lamu, who spoke about the Kenya Inshore Fisheries Limited. He said that local people have been removed and Kikuyu have replaced them. He said that the general manager is a Kikuyu from Kiambu.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

[The Minister for Housing]

I want to show this House Mr. Speaker, Sir, that Members do real homework before they make these allegations. I want to prove that some of these are false and, therefore, Members must be really responsible before they make such allegations.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Mr. S. Njeru, is the General Manager of the Kenya Inshore Fisheries Limited. He is not from Kiambu, he is from Embu. He comes from the district of the hon. Munyi, and hon. Nyagah. Therefore, he has been given this work because he is capable. Mr. Somo accuses the board of directors of being full of Kikuyu. This House must now be told about it. The board of directors is composed of the following. Hon. R. S. Matano, chairman, Mr. A. M. Jeneby, director, Mr. J. B. Wanjui, director, Mr. B. M. Cindwell, director, Mr. F. A. S. Adwinburg, director and Mr. Hydes.

This is a partnership company which is as follows.

Kenya Government has 51 per cent, Coastal Agencies 13 per cent, Ross Group 36 per cent, which was formerly a British company which has put money in with the Kenya Government.

Now the company has a total of 80 employees and 40 of them are made up of the coastal people. There are also nine from the Central Province including Nyanjeru; 12 from the Eastern Province and 19 from other areas of Kenya and overseas. Therefore, non-Kikuyu are in the majority. Now the amazing part of it, for I can read and quote the HANSARD which I have here. Hon. Somo accuses and he does not tell us the truth, Mr. Speaker, that he has an interest. I have a letter here from Nairobi signed by Mr. Matano, and another one from the Ministry signed by the Permanent Secretary, inviting the hon. Somo to be a member, a Director of the Board of Governors. Why didn't the hon. Somo tell us himself? It is here, Mr. Speaker, the invitation, but they are classified documents, and so, I do not want to lay them on the Table.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngei, I must explain, any document which an hon. Member wishes to refer in this House, must be laid on the Table. If it is too confidential for that it should not be mentioned.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): There, Mr. Speaker, I can lay it on the Table, for it is only a normal letter, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that the Board of Directors have also agreed to invite the hon. Somo, M.P., to take part in the deliberation of the board, and this is a copy to him. "The hon. A. Somo, M.P., P.O. Box 773 Mombasa". It is dated the 15th July 1966, Mr.

Speaker, Sir, and then there is another one of 22nd July 1966, and there it is on the Table. Therefore, when a Member makes a wild allegation, one ought to be careful, because it clearly misleads the Government.

(The hon. Member laid the letters on the Table)

I want to come to another very important thing, Sir, and it is on the question of loans. Hon. Tuwei, I remember very well, Sir, said that one has to pay Sh. 400, Sh. 300 and one gets a receipt, and then one is rejected repeatedly. Mr. Speaker, Sir, here, I have told the Development Loans Board, Central Province, a number of loans and loanes which were 101, and totals approved amounted to Sh. 1,122,000; Sh. 453/55 North-Eastern and so on; Eastern Province, Sh. 1,623,000/55, and for Rift Valley, where the hon. Tuwei comes from, is Sh. 1,757,000. Rift Valley gets more, it is misleading and the hon. Member is making a mistatement, when he makes an allegation that they are not getting loans. For Central Province, I said, Sh. 1,122,000 and, you can see here. Western Province is getting Sh. 484,000 because they do not ask for anything.

An hon. Member: What about the Coast?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, half a million Coast. Anyway, the figures are here. I have also figures on property loans put up in provinces, Nairobi, Rift Valley, Central, Eastern, and Nyanza. It is here. The money spent on buying commercial loans, is all here and I can lay these papers on the Table. So you can see the allegation is unfounded.

(The hon. Mr. Ngei laid documents on the Table)

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to come to the third point, the ownership of property. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have also another list of agencies of sugar co-operatives according to provinces, and I have some papers that I can lay on the Table for my old friend and of course, some of these belong to Matara Trading Company, and we know who is Matara Trading Company.

(The hon. Mr. Ngei laid documents on the Table)

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to come to the question of National Trading Corporation property. In our Constitution, it is clearly stated that—anyone including a civil servant, and I repeat, in the Kenya Constitution, it stipulates that anyone including a civil servant, can obtain property. Mr. Speaker, Sir, for those who work very hard; for those who save their money, and for those who have the initiative to buy property, what prevents them from buying? If the Members want to change that Constitution, then let them bring suggestions here, and we shall study it, and, of course, if the House decides what sort of pattern

[The Minister for Housing]

we shall follow, but so long as the Kenya Constitution, which has been approved by this House, stipulates that anyone can own property, it shall be so. Then there is no way in which our Government can especially exclude the civil servants from owning property. I think, Mr. Speaker, this is very unfair, for they work very hard; they insure their lives in life policies, and they deposit this to buy property, and therefore, let the sleeping dog lie. Those who want to mess around and they do not want to work hard, it is their own affair. Let the gentlemen who are full of initiative, like the hon. Leader of Opposition, who owns several boats in Kisumu, and owns property which I know—

Mr. Odonga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can the Minister just actually mention a few of my properties which he is talking about?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, Mr. Ngei, can you substantiate?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, I know quite well, unless and until this afternoon the hon. Odonga may have changed his title to his own wife, that he owns several houses here. I am the Minister for Housing and I know he has several houses in Kisumu and in Nairobi.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Be more specific, Mr. Ngei.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): He has one property, Mr. Speaker, around Kileleshwa where he used to live, and he has another one at Kisumu which is near the Ofafa Memorial Hall. What do you say about that, Sir? Mr. Speaker, Sir, all I have said, according to the Constitution, we are allowed to own property, including the Leader of the Opposition, and therefore, I beg to support the Motion.

(Question put and agreed to)

BILLS*Second ReadingTHE SPECIAL PENSION (MR. ODONGO) BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Balala, the consent of the President has been given to this Bill?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the purpose of this Bill is to make provision for granting a pension and gratuity to Benjamin Ezekiel Odongo in respect of his military service. Mr. Odongo joined the then King's African Rifles as a clerk on 15th February 1935. He served with the armed forces during the 1939/45 war and on demobilization joined the Civil Service of the Government.

Under the provisions of the Pensions Act, Cap. 189, pensions or other retiring benefits can only be awarded to persons who served the Government in a civil capacity. Prior to 1939, however, the Civil Service with the then King's African Rifles was regarded as Government service in a civil capacity and attracted retiring benefits. Apart from this, military service cannot be taken into account for civil pension purposes except under regulation 19, now repealed, of the Pensions Regulations which enabled persons who, prior to the 1939/45 war, served on a permanent basis with the Government and who served with the armed forces during the war to count their services as pensionable service. Mr. Odongo's service with the King's African Rifles prior to 1939 was not pensionable service by virtue of his enlistment for general service, since by that fact he did not technically serve as a civilian and could not, therefore, earn a pension under the Pensions Act. For the same reasons, his military service during the war could not be regarded as pensionable service. This fact was not appreciated and a written undertaking was given to him in 1948 that that service and the war service could be taken into account as pensionable service under the Pensions Act.

In view of this the former Council of Ministers agreed in November 1962 that the pension payable under the Pensions Act to Mr. Odongo on his retirement from the Civil Service should be enhanced ex gratia by the amount of his King's African Rifles service, prior to 1939 and his war service would attract, as though he had originally been appointed in 1935 to the old Arab and African clerical service.

Mr. Odongo has now retired with effect from 15th August 1968 and granted a pension of £586.15.15cts. per annum and a gratuity of £2,444.16.90cts. The ex gratia enhancement of that award amounts to a pension of £293.7.50cts. per annum plus a gratuity of £1,222.7.90cts.

Clause 2 of the Bill, Mr. Speaker, therefore, seeks to ensure the proposed ex gratia additional pension and gratuity to Mr. Benjamin Odongo from 15th August 1968, the date with effect from which he retired from Government service.

Clauses 3 and 4 are identical to the purpose of the Bill.

I beg to move.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that the Assistant Minister for Finance has raised this issue of Benjamin Ezekiel Odongo. This is one way of the Government demonstrating that they are human and for that reason I am going to congratulate them.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to raise in this House this afternoon is the few other aspects which come up when we receive a case of this nature. Surely, one is entitled to ask how the Minister or the Assistant Minister came to know about the case of this Odongo. Is it because Mr. Odongo wrote, and wrote persistently, to the Ministry? If that is accepted, then there must be very many others like Mr. Odongo who have fallen along the pipeline without coming to the notice of the Ministry. I think here is a question of the Ministry where we should ask them to go and re-examine all the civil servants who did their work prior to independence, to see that their pensions and gratuities are brought up to date. Unless we do this, Mr. Speaker, I am sure every now and then we are going to be faced with a single Bill. This time it is the Odongo Bill, next time it may be the Khaoya Bill. Next week it may be the Ojuwok or Kamau Bill. This will be tiring. What we require is a guide-line. Say, we work on a principle, we approve that principle, then the Civil Service can use that principle as a guide-line. Mr. Speaker, what I would have thought would be reasonable is for the Ministry to use Mr. Odongo's case as a basis for introducing here a rule that in future any of those civil servants who worked in the military service, like Mr. Odongo, and were not given a pension or a gratuity be given that pension or gratuity forthwith. There would be no need to bring other Bills here for approval by this House.

Mr. Speaker, I know that this is an important Bill; but when I listened to the Assistant Minister I observed that he did not appear to have gone thoroughly into his exercise. One other thing which I noticed is the basis on which this sum was calculated. For instance, the Assistant Minister, is in fact, asking for a pension of £293.7.50cts. per annum, and also a gratuity of, say £1,222.7.90cts. How did he arrive at this figure? Why did he not arrive at a figure of £1 million? Why did he not arrive at a figure of £50? Why did he arrive at this particular figure? As a responsible House I think we are entitled to know how exactly he worked his figures, whether he was working on a particular percentage, or whether, as is explained here, there is some ex gratia payment which may be just an arbitrary figure. If it is arbitrary, then is the Ministry satisfied that this figure is going to make this ex-civil servant feel comfortable? How did they come to this figure anyway? I think we are entitled to hear from the Ministry before we can give our consent.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very straightforward and simple Bill; but, as I have said, it raises a very big principle. It is not just a question of Mr. Odong, it is a question of the whole Civil Service, the people who have worked and have not been paid sufficiently. I am now asking the Government to go back, make a good exercise, bring up a clear suggestion as to what will be done in future to civil servants who will be in the same circumstances as Mr. Odongo.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to sit, waiting for some explanation from the Assistant Minister.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, I have very few comments to make here. In the first place I would like to agree with my hon. friend, Mr. Khaoya, that we need some explanation as to how this figure was arrived at. I am sure that the Assistant Minister will be able to give the explanation.

There is another very important point, Sir, and this is the question— When such a Bill is brought before the House, we should be told whether the amount of money being paid to this particular gentleman is tax free or is taxable. We must know, if it is to be taxed, how much this man is going to get.

I am not aware whether army people are exempted from paying tax. Since this is now being mixed up with some of the services this man might have rendered when he was with the Civil Service, it is necessary that we know whether that amount of money that is to be given to him for the time when he was with the army is taxable, and whether the amount being given to him for the time that he was a civil servant is not taxable. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must know how much this will be.

In supporting my friend I would like to say that it is not good for us to continue to publicise the amounts of this money here, how much one is going to get, and so on, every time this money is to be paid. It is necessary that we have a law covering all these people so that when cases of this nature arise the Government does not need to come here with Bills. We do not need to have it publicised who is going to get this money, and how much. Mr. Speaker, this country is going through a difficult period, where many people's money is being robbed. People with money are very scared. When it is known that somebody is going to get Sh. 20,000, and that he may have it in his house or a bank, then when he is seen going to that bank, these people who slaughter other people because of money, keep an eye on him. They will think that he is going to withdraw the whole amount and will catch him, cut his neck and take the money away. Such things have happened.

It is no use bringing this thing here piece by piece for various people who have served the Government. When the Minister wants to pay a pension and gratuity for special services, he should have a Bill covering the whole lot of such people so that he does not need to come to this House every now and then with Bills for these things. This can be very dangerous. Let us get rid of this by having just one Bill to deal with this particular question.

One last point which I think is necessary is this. Mr. Odongo retired last year, in August. All this time this money has been kept there, pending. In my view he must have been pressing for it. I feel that when a matter of this nature comes up to the Government, they should expedite it so that it does not take almost a year to be settled, for one to get the money that he is entitled to. Those who are against us may use this fact and say, "Well, the Government does not want to pay So-and-so. Maybe we said this and they agreed to pay". We have a lot of people about nowadays who want to say that if we do not do this, then Government will not do that. These are the small things that can give those who have long tongues the chance to come out and open their big mouths. So, I feel that when a case of this nature occurs, the Ministry or the Government should make arrangements to expedite it and pay the money as soon as possible.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, this being a small Bill, I beg to support.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, I am persuaded to agree with my hon. friends who have contributed to this Bill. I would have liked to get something quite clear from the Ministry which is responsible for this particular Bill.

I think the Assistant Minister should have helped the House by giving us enlightenment in this fact: is this as a result of long correspondence between Odongo and the Ministry, or is this something which has just cropped up when they were searching through some documents? We would like to know this before we go on with further discussion. This information would be useful. If it is after long correspondence between Odongo and the Ministry, then I think we would only be able to congratulate Odongo for having paved the way, or initiated something which might help some of the people in the country who are suffering. There are so many people who might also have been compensated—but since they did not know where to go to demand their rights, you find, as a result, that many of them are suffering. You find some person who probably lost his senses during the war. Now he moves on like a senseless person, or a person people call mad. Yet, this was as a result of some explosion during the war which affected him. If you get a number of such people, they need some attention to be given to them—certainly if this was brought about as a result of their services in the war.

Now, Sir, if, on the other hand, it is the Ministry which has gone through their documents and found that they have not done their bit for Odongo, then we wonder how they were so kind to dig through the books and documents which began from 1935, when they were not responsible for that government, when the government was completely in the hands of the British colonial régime. This is where I am perplexed, because between 1935 and 1939, and even later on, we were under the colonial régime of the British. If we are now going to be held responsible for all these benefits for those who served under them, which they should have given to the servants who actually served them during that time, then what arrangement have we got with them to refund us this money? At the present moment we are heavily indebted to the British Government and to the British people; so, is there any arrangement we have with them providing that they will refund us this money?

Mr. Speaker, I think these things must be made very clear. I do not think that we will understand it. I know that the Minister for Finance, being the man in charge and responsible, would be able to enlighten us. At the same time he should also be able to explain to us what he will do if, supposing, tomorrow he is confronted with some of the servants who served the colonial régime from 1920—even the war—up to now, because some of them are still alive and some of them are suffering as a result. If they all now confront him with their demands, what will he do? We want these things to be explained before we actually accept the passing of this particular Bill of Odongo.

If other Members agree, and we are going, today, to pass this Bill of Odongo alone, then why is it a Bill on an individual and not actually a Bill which covers any such cases which might occur, so that we do not need to come here and pass each and every Bill which might be introduced into the House? I think I have experience that this is the second Bill of its kind which we have passed in this House; first we passed one of Isaac Okwiri, and now this is the second one which we are about to pass.

An hon. Member: He is from your tribe!

Mr. Odonga: I do not mind whether he is from my tribe or any other tribe because all these are Kenya people. We should always talk of these people as Kenya people because they are Kenya people, and when we consider their cases we must think of them this way. It is good, however, that it comes from a place from which I also happen to come.

I think that what we need here is only clarification to make it quite clear so that every now and then we are not confronted by individual cases which might occur. Furthermore, the thing that worries me is the relationship because this thing happened during the colonial régime. I remember that recently, when we were checking some public accounts, I found there are still some expatriate officers who served just at the end of the colonial régime and they have gone overseas and we are still paying their dues. I do not know whether the British Government are still responsible for any loopholes they made or anybody whom they did not compensate adequately. This should all be made very clear, and when this is made clear we will ask the Minister to consider whether it should not be a general Bill to cover all the cases which might come.

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks, I beg to reserve my support.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by saying that I do appreciate very much the remarks that the hon. Leader of the Opposition has made. I must say that this is another special case; we had the Okwiri case and this is the Odongo case which is also special in that particular respect. The United Kingdom has no responsibilities whatsoever. If this House thinks today that we should not give this fellow anything, that will be it.

Mr. Speaker, he joined the army in those early days of February 1935 and he was a clerk and, therefore, he was not pensionable. What has happened is that in due course he has continued. As the Assistant Minister for Finance has just said, he has just retired; he retired in August 1968. All that the Treasury is trying to do is to see as to whether we should not do him justice by giving him this extra money so that he has got the ex gratia additional pension and gratuity.

I think it would be wrong and we would be doing Mr. Odongo, himself, a mistake, if we were to relate his case to the colonial days. All I am trying to do is to see as to whether, since he has just retired this last year, we should not agree that he should get this pension. To try and tie it up with everybody else would be a mistake because we have not got everybody else with us. We have got a special case called the Odongo case and my hope was that we would sympathize and appreciate the service he has done for the country, first of all as a clerk in the army in the good old days and lately within our own Government. He has done good service and, therefore, does he not deserve some appreciation from the Government that he has served so well? Must we tie this up with what pensions Gichuru in the army might get in the year 2000? Must we tie this up with all the other conditions, or must we look upon the service that this man has rendered to his own country right up to August last year? If we feel appreciative of the service he has given us, well and good—and we must allow him the pension. If we feel that he has been wasting his time, let us say so, let us be frank, and say we are so sorry we cannot allow him a pension of that magnitude. To try and tie it up with anything else would be very unfortunate and would be very bad and a disrespect to the service that Mr. Odongo has rendered to his own country.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that the Members will view the whole case in that light. We must not prejudice the case in any other way; it is either that we give it to him or we do not. Let us not tie it up with any other things.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, while agreeing with the Minister for Finance who has just spoken that we should not prejudice the case of the particular individual in question, I had a question to ask, which I think is very relevant, the Mover of the Motion, the Assistant Minister for Finance.

Mr. Speaker, nobody is quarrelling with the work of Mr. Odongo, whose pension is being discussed here, but I do feel as a matter of principle, and because of historical reasons, it would have been a good opportunity for the Mover of the Bill to have given us an idea, generally, of the procedure that they use in reaching the amount to be paid to these individuals, because we may have other problems of people who have served partly in the army, or partly in the Civil Service, in other departments, who may be in similar troubles. If these people come to us, we have no way of reaching the Minister as far as questions are concerned. I think it is relevant, Mr. Speaker, for him, when he comes to reply, to give us an idea of how they do it.

Mr. Speaker, the point is that I do have two people who have problems of this type. There are two chiefs in Meru, Chief of Egoji and ex-Chief Kararwa of Chuka, who are now retired.

[Mr. Mate]

These chiefs, during the emergency, were confused with oath-taking but they were later proved to be clean. Now, there may be other similar cases in the old Central Province, of people who were confused by the colonial régime and who were tricked into corners whereby they lost their services and their benefits. In this particular case, I have been to see the District Commissioner, Meru, the district officers and other people, to try and follow up cases of such individuals to see if they are entitled to anything, even Sh. 500, as a gratuity or as a pension.

Mr. Speaker, when I go to the offices I am told that they have no records and they show me letters they have received from one district officer or a provincial commissioner or someone else, and then we get nowhere. Therefore, I do think I am relevant in asking the Assistant Minister, when he comes to reply, to give us a specific idea as to how we can, as Members, assist individuals of this type to go to the Ministry and have their cases proved right or wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Assistant Minister would be doing the House and the country a lot of good if he could throw some light on this aspect of this kind of thing. I do not think anybody here would oppose the particular case in question. The only thing is we want to know a few more details as to how did the Ministry know about this particular case, and how can we help other cases in future? I do think the House is entitled to request the Assistant Minister to give us an idea as to how we go about such cases because I think there are fairly genuine cases.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, as one with, perhaps, some knowledge of the matter under discussion, maybe I could enlighten the hon. House on a few points which make this case a special case.

Mr. Speaker, if one officer served in the capacity of a chief for 33 years, I do not think Mr. Gichuru would bring it up here as a special case; he would be paid quietly in the Treasury. Why Mr. Odongo is a special case—and I know this very well because he happens to be in my age group—is that Mr. Odongo first joined the King's African Rifles as a clerical officer in Turkana. He worked there for many years when Turkana was almost on a war footing. Then the war came and he joined the Army and served throughout and then came back to become a labour officer and then retired only last year. You will notice, therefore, that he played several roles in the Government very faithfully and continuously; he did not retire as an ex-chief does. Therefore, as he moved from one kind of work to another, he needs special consideration from this House to thank him for the work he performed so faithfully and well. I would ask the House that in view of this case, and of many other cases which might come when people retire, especially those who have done over 30 years, that in a case like this we should understand the background, and not the mathematics which are quite complicated, and the principle of giving a person a benefit when he could not have received a benefit in the early days when the Africans never received any benefits at all. That is why the House is being asked, as it is explained here, to treat him as if he were pensionable from the time he joined the army in 1935. At that time Africans were paid very little, and they did not receive anything at the end. Since this man has served over three different periods of history, you cannot dismiss those days by saying he was working for the British Government, he was working for the benefit of this country. He defended our country throughout the war and we must thank him for that as well. The point at issue is that this is a special case, and is not a normal case and therefore the Minister for Finance was right to bring it here for approval to spend the money with the approval of the House.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all I must congratulate the Government for having brought this Bill; namely, a Bill which affects public funds. I wish they could bring a Bill here, Sir, affecting the gratuities to the Ministers themselves. It is with the blessing of the House that an individual in this country should take funds from the public funds, and this Odongo is one of the lucky ones to have this money approved by this House. I am sure no Member is going to oppose this. We know how much is going to be paid and why he is going to be paid. Here we have had some money approved to be paid to Ministers, and we do not know why. Probably because they served, but if they served then we also served, and we do not know how much it is going to be. This is one of the things which I congratulate the Government for putting across. The public will know how much Odongo is going to receive, and we would also like to know how much each Minister and Assistant Minister receives.

Having said that, Sir, I now come to one of the points which was touched on by some of the Members who have spoken before me, and that is in connexion with Okelo-Odongo. Not Okelo-Odongo but Odongo. I am sorry. Unfortunately the Member himself never served in any of the wars, neither did I.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: I have not received any gratuity.

Mr. Shikuku: The hon. Okelo-Odongo is complaining about his gratuity, but I think his must be among the many gratuities which we approved here the other day, and if he has not received his then he should be patient because he will probably be receiving something. I am told the Member ran away.

The point I was pursuing, Mr. Speaker, which I said had been touched on by other Members, is the fact that time and again I have people in my constituency, Mr. Speaker, coming to me and saying I should look at their thigh, or at their arm, and that they served in the Army between 1935 and 1949. They were then told they would be given a gratuity and would be taken care of and up to now they have received nothing. When you put such cases to the Government you are told that they are not there to go into contracts or agreements which were agreed by the imperialists or the colonialists who were here. The man did not serve in our army and they do not know anything about it. Mr. Speaker, I thought the Minister was going to tell us, was going to elaborate, what type of people who served, in what rank, are entitled to this privilege which Mr. Odongo is going to receive. I was listening in my office, Mr. Speaker, to the Mover, the hon. Assistant Minister, Mr. Balala, and all he did was to read figures as to how much the gratuity is going to be, the pension, how much per month and year; but he did not tell us on what grounds this was agreed, how long this man had served. We should know this, so that we can tell—and this is a serious point, our people at home. When they come to us, we can tell them that if they reached the rank of captain they will be entitled to something; but if they were not in the rank of captain, then they will not be given anything. If they were this and the other for so many years they will not be paid. We are representatives of the people, Mr. Speaker, in this House and we should be briefed so that when we are confronted with these questions by our constituents we will be in a better position to explain. In this case we are only given figures, for how long and so forth, but we have not been told any more.

I think when the Minister comes to reply he should make it very clear to us that Odongo, or such-and-such a class of people, who serve in the army will be given so much. In future, an amendment should be brought, not only for Odongo, but which should cover all the people in Butere—all the people in Kenya, so that they, also, have something from this fund. This is the point which I am driving at because I know there are many more. Probably Odongo was known to some of the big men in the Government. One never knows. Probably he had a friend in the Cabinet who has been fighting this case slowly; otherwise how did Mr. Odongo know this was going to be approved? When I was listening to the Mover speaking in my office, Mr. Speaker, he said that this was approved by the Cabinet of 1962. In 1962, Mr. Speaker, we were not independent. It was the Colonial African Government, the Madaraka set-up sort of Cabinet. If it was approved at that time, Mr. Speaker, then probably it might be that this man helped Odongo to get this money through.

What about those people who are not known to the big men? The people who served in lower ranks, and who have had some of their limbs amputated or some other injury. What will happen to those small men who are not known to the big men? This Odongo was known to a big man, that is why he knew about the resolution in the Cabinet, and probably he has been fighting for it. What about the small man? The same thing is happening today, Mr. Speaker, where jobs are concerned. If you are known to a big man, then you are given a job; but if you are not known, then you are finished. I speak for the small men, and I think there are many more small ones like Odongo, who are entitled to such a privilege as this, and who cannot do so because they are not known to the big men. Now that Odongo has opened the door, let us have everybody who served also being given something.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think enough hon. Members have now made this important point, which was being made again by Mr. Shikuku, that instead of having a series of Bills dealing with specific cases it would be desirable to have a law of general applications for such cases. This is for the House to decide on, of course, and for the Minister to reply to. I do not think we need have any repetition of that particular point.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is not only the hon. Member for Butere who is reminded of Okelo-Odongo by this Bill, because on the street today somebody stopped me and said "Oh, you are going to speak today." I told him I was not really intending to speak, and he said "But you are going to move your Bill today."

I think that due to the fact that it was privilege at that time, when I was a new Assistant Minister to move a Bill, Okwiri's Bill, and I quite agree with you, Mr. Speaker, that it is not good to repeat this and it was rather unnecessary to bring this Bill again since Mr. Okwiri's Bill ought to have led the way. Since this is going to be in our log-books and it would be rather funny to see a series of names all along.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that point having been made by other hon. Members, the only point left for me to make now is the fact that there are so many people in this country coming up to our Members of Parliament asking for our assistance as to whether we could assist them to obtain pensions or gratuities for services they have given to the Government. I do not know what is going to happen. I agree with my hon. friend from Butere in that I do not know how Mr. Odongo came to get his case in the right place in the Cabinet because with these others, especially the Africans who have served on the tribunals and so on—there are so many of them in the country who say they did good service and they are not being given anything merely because the Pension Act as it is today, does not include them. I think these people should also be considered by the Minister when he will be considering the point that has been raised in this House, that there are many Odongos and many Omolos and perhaps a few Njoroges here and there who, probably, are due for pensions but their names have not come forward. The Minister should make some amendments to this Act in view of the many of our African elders who are in the reserves, who were dismissed from their jobs due to a change of policy by Government. For instance, when all these elders were retired from the tribunals because Government wanted to employ some younger magistrates. These people were just told, "From today on you are no longer the head of the court here". Then, when they asked about pensions, they were told, "Unfortunately, according to the Act you are not included, so nothing can be done". I think the Minister should look into this and think of amending this law so that these class of Africans who have served both the Colonial Government and the present Government, and who somehow or other, due to technicalities of our present law, cannot benefit from this, would be considered and enabled to benefit. I know that those people who can push their cases get along. In this country, I think the former enlightened groups, like the European and Asian communities, know the law and they always push their cases and get justice done for them. Unfortunately, Sir, a great many of our people cannot push their cases successfully because in many cases they do not know where. When a Member has asked a question here, the Government has merely answered that there is no law. That ends the whole situation. This is not worth it. So, Sir, in order to do justice to the whole country, I think the Minister should look into the possibility of amending this law and look into the position of others who probably should be able to benefit from pensions.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this seems to be a very simple Bill and it is very clear to the House. I am sure the Minister will be in agreement with what the Members have expressed, their concern over this particular Bill.

It is high time that the Act concerning pensions should be revised so as to avoid the controversy which will arise. We, as Members of Parliament representing the people, have been confronted with difficulties as one of the hon. Members, the Member for Meru, Mr. Mate, mentioned. There are so many people who seek help from us, asking us to assist them. For example, Sir, some were expelled from their services during the struggle for our independence. Even though they had long service, they were expelled because they were alleged to have associated themselves with the Mau Mau activities, and because of that they lost their important jobs. Some of them, later, after our independence, were reinstated by our Government and are now serving the Government. They are trying to get their gratuity and pension but there is no way in which they can get this. If the Minister agrees with what the hon. Members are requesting, then he has every way since he can use the authority of this House to amend the Act in order that all these individuals can benefit. In this particular case, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did say that this point has been made by enough Members now, and you are only repeating it. It is enough, I think, for you to say that you agree with it, because the arguments have been fully ventilated on that particular point.

Mr. Kamau: I hope, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the Minister will agree with the request of the hon. Members, to have the whole thing revised so as to cover the whole country.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to associate myself with other Members who have spoken on this Bill. I have this to say.

The Minister has been sitting for a long time on the pension and gratuity of Mr. Odongo. We have not yet been told why this particular case was delayed. We understand that Mr. Odongo has already retired from the Government service; this took place last year. We were here early this year and we were not told that there was anything urgent, in this connexion, which this House was required to pass. So we fail to understand why such cases which seem to be very important should be brought to this House so late. Why punish such a person who is innocent, who has rendered service to the country, and leave him to feel that he is not getting his dues in time? We would like to warn some of our Ministries which are trying to cause our people hardship. Some of these people who have been working with the Government have had to face hardships already.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to quarrel with my colleague in the Ministry of Finance, but I fail to understand why this Bill was not brought here last year when this person was about to retire from the Government. This is a challenge to the Ministry, in that a person has just retired but has nothing to keep him going and he does not know what will happen to his pension. Perhaps his pension will be reduced because of income tax, and such other things which we have not yet been told about. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to tell the Minister for Finance that we are tired of things of this nature and we do not want the Minister to repeat this kind of mistake. Mr. Speaker, I can see the Minister panicking.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of information, Mr. Speaker, can I clarify—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member gives way.

Mr. Karungaru: I give way, Sir.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I think hon. Members will note from the Bill that this man has been getting a pension. All I am seeking is a little bit extra money which I hope, as Mr. Karungaru says, will help him a little more. We have not, however, left him in the cold as it were, and starving.

Mr. Karungaru: Now that the hon. Minister has informed the House, Mr. Speaker, am I to take it that the information he has given to this House is nothing but malinformation because, Sir, is it not true that the Ministers were paid money and that that money was not passed by this House? Then, what was the problem in paying Mr. Odongo? We must be told. We have not yet been told. And now, Mr. Speaker, the information? I have received from the Minister does not help me at all. If he wanted approval from this House, then he should have brought the Bill earlier so as to be enabled to pay Mr. Odongo; but he did not do that. He was paying him little by little. Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this time the Minister has already seen the sense in paying Mr. Odongo his due, I have no quarrel with him.

But I would like to advise him that in future he should avoid bringing to this House pieces of law which are of no help. Why not bring only one kind of Statute Law and we pass it here, rather than introducing pieces of law from time to time. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I now call on the Mover to reply.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful for the contributions which have been made by hon. Members sympathizing with this case and supporting the Bill in order that Mr. Odongo could be paid his due. It is not true, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to say that this Bill has been delayed by the Treasury because Mr. Odongo only retired in August last year. It is not also true that Mr. Odongo was in financial difficulties because he was not receiving his extra pension and gratuity because he received this through the normal channels of administration as covered by the Pension Act, his pension and gratuity for his services in the Civil Service. The pension and gratuity he seeks the approval of this House for, is in connexion with his services during the Second World War. This case is special, Mr. Speaker, because he was serving in the army, not as a soldier but as a mere clerk and there was nothing to cover his clerical services in the army as far as a pension was concerned. This is why this case is considered to be special.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister tell the House what Mr. Odongo was in the army, a clerk or a soldier?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, Mr. Lubembe.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, why I say that this is a special case is because the clerical service with the army was not pensionable, and in addition he was promised in writing that he would be paid. This was approved by the Council of Ministers in 1962, and the matter has been subject to much correspondence and administrative work. Finally, this matter was submitted to the Cabinet for approval. This is why it is considered to be special. I do sympathize with the hon. Members' opinions when they said that there should be a law which should cover any special pension not covered by our Pension Act, Chapter 189. I do sympathize with the views and I can assure them that the views they have expressed that there should be a law covering special pensions or cases of such nature, will be looked into. I have taken notice of this and I will submit it to the Attorney-General for action.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to tell the hon. Members that this is the only case of its kind known to us as a special case. If hon. Members think that they have relevant cases which they want to be considered, they are welcome to submit them to us—cases which they think have been forgotten and require consideration. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree that these are the cases which face the hon. Members because these are individual cases and obviously only affect individuals who happen, perhaps, to come from an hon. Member's constituency. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, hoping that I have covered the queries of hon. Members, with these remarks I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

BILL*Second ReadingTHE PETROLEUM DUTIES (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Petroleum Duties (Amendment) Bill 1969 be now read a Second Time.

This Bill seeks to increase the tax on petrol by seven cents and to reduce the tax on light diesel by nine cents.

These changes in taxation were brought into force by the provisions of Collection of Taxes and Duties Orders which were issued on 22nd April. The object is not to raise revenue and there will be no significant gain or loss to the revenue as a result of these changes in taxation. The object, as explained in the Press statement which I issued on 22nd April 1969, is to ensure that no farmer or transport operator would have to pay any more for his diesel fuel. On 1st April, new railway rates for the transport of petroleum products came into force. If the Government had taken no action, these changes would have been reflected in prices charged on petroleum products on or about 23rd April when the stock held by the oil companies at various depots would have resulted in reduction in prices of most petroleum products. But the price of light diesel at Nakuru would have gone up by one cent, at Nanyuki and Thomson's Falls by two cents, at Eldoret and Kisumu by seven cents and at Kitale by nine cents.

I was anxious to avoid farmers, particularly in some of our main wheat and maize growing areas, paying any more for their fuel. The only way I could ensure that this would not happen was by reducing the tax on light diesel by nine cents. Following this action the price at Kitale remained the same, the price at Eldoret came down by two cents, the price at Thomson's Falls and Nanyuki came down by seven cents, and the price at Nakuru came down by eight cents. The price at Nairobi came down by 11 cents. Again, if I had taken no action, the price of petrol would have come down at Nairobi by seven cents, and by greater extent at places farther from Nairobi than Nairobi. I feel therefore, it was fair to increase the duty on petrol by seven cents, which has made the price in Nairobi remain unchanged, the price at Nakuru come down by three cents and the price at Kisumu and Kitale by seven cents. Admittedly, those at the Coast have had to pay an additional seven cents per gallon since the 23rd April; but they will continue to get their petrol considerably cheaper than those in Nairobi. Before the change motorists at Mombasa got their petrol 38 cents cheaper than in Nairobi, but after the 23rd April, they have been getting it for 31 cents less than those in Nairobi.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, that all hon. Members will support this Bill which is merely designed to reduce or maintain present farming costs of production without demanding any significant sacrifice from the motorists.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to welcome this Bill, but in welcoming and supporting the Bill I have these few words to say on it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the increase in the price of petrol is reasonable as far as those who are able to purchase motor-cars are concerned, but when you go to the farmers—those to whom the Minister refers as going to benefit out of this decrease on the prices of light petrol—I do not think it is all that reasonable because the farmers in the countryside are still suffering. The prices, generally, are absolutely down, they are very low, and I understand from reliable sources that the prices will go down further as we move ahead. In which case, the maize price might come down to something like Sh. 17, or less than that, in some years to come. This lowering of the diesel prices and other petroleum items will not really benefit the farmers. I would like to urge the Minister in his Ministry to think again and do something tangible to help our farmers in this country.

An hon. Member: Are you a farmer?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am a farmer and my hon. colleague, the ex-chief speaks of my saying better, so I will say better because I am a farmer.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel very strongly that the Minister for Finance and the Minister for Education should get together and think harder. If possible, they should raise some of this taxation on various items in order to enable this country enjoy free primary education. We go on talking of having no money and yet we continue increasing the price of petrol—I do not think we are getting anywhere at all. Let us even increase it twice, or as much as possible so that our poor man in the countryside can benefit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Finance has very clearly explained to the House the reasons which led to these changes in the taxation and I hope during his budget speech, which is coming fairly soon, he will really give us something tangible to this effect which will help the poor man in this country.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, the—

Mr. Shikuku: Is he a farmer?

Mr. Lubembe: The hon. Member thinks that only he can be a farmer; farming is his property and not anybody else's. If any Member thinks like that, then we will blame him for the lower prices of crops.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when this particular Bill came in April, many people were surprised. There has been nothing hidden about it; when one looks at how the reduction was made, one will find that price in towns east of Nakuru was reduced, but if one goes to that area around Kitale, and also in other places—I have been visiting friends there—one will find that there have been no changes at all. Perhaps the Minister would be good enough to explain why this has taken place when it is a fact that the people in that particular place are the people who feed the other people on this side with maize and therefore need more help on these particular products than anybody else.

I will also say, Mr. Speaker, Sir, on this question of petrol, that although we were told that certain areas did not reduce and so on, everybody knows that the petrol products are very, very important for our development today. There are many vehicles, transportations and so on. These transportations are mostly the small cars which are travelling from here to Mombasa, to Kisumu, to Kitale and to every place, and these people are using petrol. If we do not take into consideration how we increase petrol, we will really land the public into difficulties, because the people who pay are the people who are using these vehicles; the people who travel by these small Peugeots and other vehicles to go to certain places. It may be true, as one Member has said, that those who have cars can afford to pay for this petrol, but this petrol is not only used in the cars of the people who own them for their own transport; it is used also for people who own vehicles for carrying passengers, public transportation and so on. When we increase the price of petrol, what we are doing is making those people who use this means of transport to pay more and, in fact, even more than the person who owns the vehicle, because there are some people who own vehicles and they do not travel very much. There are some people in Government who use Government transport instead of using their own vehicles. This price, in my view, should have been made a little bit lower even if there was a need for increase. The Minister has not really stated the reasons for this; he has not said why there was necessity to do that, although in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons he has tried to explain things about it to us. The real reason which was needed very urgently to get this duty increased has not been explained very clearly. I hope when the Minister replies he will do something about it.

There is another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which I intend to raise. Now we are going to have the budget this month, I hope, in view of the fact that the petrol has been increased and so on, the Minister is going to be liberal in some other things which the public really use. We do not want on this last budget to make everything very expensive, starting with petrol. I hope that when the budget comes the Minister will consider this.

The last point which I think is necessary is that if something that is very important and essential like petrol is increased, then the people—I am saying this like any other person who is very well acquainted with the workers—will feel that it is necessary for those who are taking care of the workers and so on, to put in a demand. We hope that because the oil companies are going to get more money out of petrol they will grant this. In my view, the Government should not try at any time to interfere if the unions put in demands to get the workers' wages increased. I hope this will be left freely so that they can use this increase as one of the reasons for them putting in their pay-rise demands.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I also rise to support the Bill which is before the House. One of my reasons is that the farmers have actually been suffering for quite a long time due to poor roads and, therefore, the cost of producing their crops has been so high that they have not been getting any profits when they sell their products, especially the maize farmers, as the hon. Member has said.

Therefore, I am sure the Bill will help our farmers because most of these farmers have to use diesel, which is necessary for farming at the moment. There is one thing on which I must warn the Minister, and that is public vehicles: for example, police cars must always be full of petrol because we do not want to see the police vehicles not running about because cost of petrol is very high and they are unable to fill their tanks in order to get to different places, as they did one time in Butere Constituency.

Mr. Shikuku: Hear, hear; they said they had no petrol.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Deputy Speaker, here it says: "... as the proposed alterations in duty rates will largely cancel out, there will be no significant effect on overall revenue." When the Minister replies I think he should tell us how these proposed alterations in duty have cancelled out the cost so that this will not affect our revenue. I think that our revenue will be affected, although it is said here that the cost of petrol will cancel out the cost of diesel. He will have to explain this so that the House is aware that this will not affect our overall revenue in this country.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think that this Bill does not seem to me to be really necessary because I do not think it does what the Ministers says it should do.

The Minister said that this Bill is brought forward in order to assist the farmers. As far as the problems of the farmers are concerned, just reducing the price of diesel by so many cents is like a pinch of salt in the sea. If you want to assist the farmers, you must give them credit; if you really want to assist the farmers, you must try to help them in the payment of loans by either reducing the payments or things like that. In this way you can help the farmers of this country today. If you want to help the farmers you should increase the price of their products; you should increase the price of maize and all these other products being grown by the farmers, then you will be helping the farmers. I do not think that by reducing the price of diesel by a few cents you are really assisting the farmers.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the tax system in this country is wrong and this one here takes the same line because I believe that the person who is going to be hit hardest by this is not the rich man, but the ordinary middle-class man, the person who has got a small car and has to get to places; he is the man who is going to be hit hard here. Possibly this will affect the very small man who rides on a bus or rides in a Peugeot—as my hon. friend there was saying—and this is the person who is going to suffer. This business of trying to play about by saying that you reduce the price of diesel and increase the price of petrol does not get anybody anywhere. At best, it would be robbing Peter to pay Paul, which does not get you anywhere also.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the ordinary person—and I take the Members of this House as ordinary people—has to run a car because he has to go to his constituency and has to visit places. This person is going to be hit very hard.

The African élite who are coming forward—the class in which the Ministers belong, the African directors belong and the top-class civil servants belong—are not going to suffer because they get their petrol free anyway. The top-class managers and directors get it from their companies free, the top-class civil servants drive Government cars and the Ministers also drive Government cars, and also get an allowance for driving in Nairobi when they live in Nairobi. Therefore, you see the person who is going to suffer is Okelo, Shikuku and perhaps Lubembe.

Mr. Lubembe: Did you get this allowance?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: I did not get this allowance because it was not given to Assistant Ministers. I do not know what is happening now, but the Ministers used to get mileage for staying in Nairobi. The Assistant Ministers did not get this; perhaps they get it now.

Mr. Lubembe: Did you get it yourself?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: No, Sir.

Mr. Lubembe: Why?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Because I was not a Minister.

[Mr. Okelo-Odongo]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this tax is quite unnecessary in that I think it is going to make people suffer for nothing, and I know what is going to happen is that as soon as petrol goes up some people, like the bus owners, are not going to reduce—even if they use diesel—their fares. As a matter of fact, they may even increase the fares under the influence of the fact that petrol has gone up. And therefore the ordinary man who takes the bus is going to suffer while the big bus owners might be the people who will get something out of this tax. They will buy the diesel cheaper and yet the fares will remain the same. That is why I said that the taxation system seems to be going the wrong way: assisting those who are already up and hitting hard those who are trying to get up, and finishing off those who are lower down.

The other aspect, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, into which I think the Minister should look into is that Kenya is one country. I cannot see why somebody should buy petrol at Mombasa at a different price, at Nairobi at a different price and at Kisumu at a different price. That kind of transport should be taken care of by subsidies, either by reducing the charges, or charging more for the people at the coast, if necessary. I do not think that should be the case; but I think that the person who buys petrol at Kisumu should be subsidized because it is not his fault that he lives at Kisumu. So, why should he be penalized just because he lives far away from Mombasa? Do they want everybody to go down to Mombasa?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Kenya is one country and I think that, by using the facilities available to the Government, they should be able to make the price for petrol uniform throughout the country so that everywhere people pay the same for petrol. I do not think that people working in Mombasa are paid less than the people working in Nairobi or Kisumu. Government salaries are the same and salaries for people working in companies are the same, and so why should an item like petrol be different at the coast? This makes a lot of difference to one's pocket. I think the Minister should also look into this.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that is all that I have to say about this Bill, and I say that I cannot see why we are being troubled with this Bill in this House; maybe it is just for the sake of getting the Minister for Finance to do something in this House.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am quite interested to hear the various remarks made by the hon. Members.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, is the Minister replying? I thought he was the Mover of the Bill.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am so sorry, I did not realize that he is the Mover, and the fact that he stood up to speak I assumed that he was not the Mover.

Mr. Shikuku: He wants the Bill to go through quickly.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since I stood up before the Minister, why was I not allowed to speak instead of Mr. Makone?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order. You will have your turn later.

Mr. Makone: I think the Minister ought to know what is a point of order;.....
.....(Inaudible.) and they do not seem to comprehend.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to say right away that the intention of the Bill is good, and the Minister has chosen to move in the right direction; but he did not do sufficient homework otherwise he would have gone further on that direction.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Minister stopped very quickly after he had started. Mr. Deputy Speaker, speaking now as a low-medium farmer, practising farming from the start, I would like to say that Kenya has to compete in the marketing of its crops with other countries abroad. To do so, some sort of work in the way of reducing the cost of production must be done immediately. If, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the farmer is to receive anything from his farm, this must be done.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have told the Minister time and again that the farmer must be assisted in order to produce good work in the spirit of "go back to the land." We must be in a position by now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if we want to produce more by way of the scientific method of farming, and the Minister should see to it that the farmers are given some assistance in the form of reducing the cost of production in his crops, and he can only do so if, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the price of diesel can be reduced, no matter if it is in Butere, in Kisii, in Mombasa, wherever it might be. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if other countries have reduced the cost of diesel to the farmer, then why can we not do the same thing in this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, some other countries have applied various methods of checking that the diesel used in the farming sector is not used for commercial purposes. In some countries like

[Mr. Makone]

America. Germany and so on, they have succeeded in putting some sort of colouring matter into the diesel which is used by the farmers. The police, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can always check by dipping something into the tank to find out whether any unscrupulous person has used such diesel for commercial purposes.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are speaking on behalf of all the farmers in the countryside, and we will not accept the slogan of "go back to the land" if the Government cannot see sense in helping the farmers, particularly the farmers who are just beginning to show results in the farming industry. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are two ways of becoming a successful farmer. If what you receive is less than what you put in, you will not trouble yourself; but if the margin shows any amount of profit, then, Mr. Deputy Speaker, farmers will be encouraged.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I said if we want to compete our products in other markets, then we must assist the farmer in order to make two ends meet by way of living comfortably on the farm.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I will not support this kind of shallow thinking on the part of the Minister, when he does not go far enough in helping the farmers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, 95 per cent of our people live in the rural areas and these are the people we must seriously think about to help all the time. We must stop them from coming to the cities. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if this is the way we are going to think, that we do not want a lot of people in the cities, then we should help them to stay on the farms and help them to realize something by way of income to support them. If this is not the case, then this is not the Bill we expect at this stage of independence from the Minister.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to reserve my support until the Bill has been improved in order to make rural life really attractive and something which will make it worth while to stay on the farms.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I just wanted to congratulate the Minister for Finance. I, being a representative of the farmers in the rural areas, Mr. Deputy Speaker, think this is the kind of Bill which the House should appreciate. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the farmers who have been given loans are using tractors which run on diesel, and most of the farmers, as hon. Makone has said, use public buses, most of which are using diesel. Mr. Speaker, also Bedford lorries are used to transport the crops of farmers and I believe most of them do use diesel. In this sense, Mr. Speaker, the main reason why the Bill is in the House, Mr. Speaker, hon. Makone has already spoken, and as a farmer I think I support him, but the only thing we can ask the Minister to do is to make sure that the bus owners are not going to increase the fares. The reason is, Mr. Speaker, that the price for diesel oil is being reduced and that is one way of helping the farmers, by reducing the cost of transporting their half debe of maize, or wimbi or whatever they have to transport to the market; they are not now going to be charged as much as they used to be charged before.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

I believe this is the kind of Bill which will earn the support of the House because it represents the farmers, and I think the Members are all farmers, and they also represent the farmers.

Mr. Speaker, with these few short remarks I beg to support the Bill.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir—

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT NATIONAL HOUSING CORPORATION IN RURAL AREAS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichuru, it is just time for the interruption of business, and I see there is still another Member who wishes to speak, so I think I must now call upon a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that this afternoon I am privileged to speak on a Motion for the Adjournment arising from a Question asked by the Member for Embu, hon. Kamwithi Munyi, on the 11th February 1969. The Question No. was 1522, and it went like this, Mr. Speaker—

"(a) since the attainment of independence, what was the total number of houses which had been built with the assistance of the National Housing Corporation; and

(b) how many houses had been built in rural areas".

[Mr. Karungaru]

The reply, Mr. Speaker, was as follows:—

“Since the attainment of independence, up to December last year, 3,568 houses have been built with the assistance of the National Housing Corporation.

Of this total, 2,987 were built in seven municipalities: that is, the City Council of Nairobi, municipalities of Mombasa, Kisumu, Eldoret, Nakuru, Kitale and Thika. 192 were built in urban council areas and the remaining 389 in other areas”.

Mr. Speaker, these “other areas”, in other words, mean the rural areas. Seeing that rural areas have not been properly taken care of, I felt there was a question that needed to be answered by the Ministry concerned.

There was another question on supplementary basis which was asked by Mr. Nyaberi, who asked—

“Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister aware of the actual conditions of giving a loan in the rural areas and that they are different from those conditions in the urban areas, and that is why it is difficult for people in the rural areas to get houses?”

The answer from the Assistant Minister went like this, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

“Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree that it is quite different, but the hon. Member should also realize that if the Government were to give every individual in the country a loan, how would the Government be able to get that money back? We do give people living in the rural areas loans through the county councils. If the county council can really guarantee that a person is credit-worthy, we give him a loan.”

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like the Minister to tell us what the Assistant Minister intended by credit-worthy? That is one question, knowing full well that some of the county councils in the country are very poor and they cannot give a guarantee for an individual who is interested in buying a house. How could the county council be of any help to a member of the public who asked for a loan to build a house? I think the Assistant Minister was ignorant of the facts and that is why he did not give the House the proper answer required by the Member who asked the question.

Mr. Speaker, we have the Kanu Manifesto, and on page 2 it talks about encouraging the building of houses through obtaining loans from the Government. Mr. Speaker, this has not been happening, but if it has, then only 387 people have managed to obtain houses. This is in view of the fact that the population of this country is in the region of 12 million people, and we fail to understand if the Minister has a proper housing policy to take care of these people who are living in the rural areas. It was only very recently, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the information of this House, that the Assistant Minister for Agriculture told this House that the conditions which were being employed by the Agricultural Finance Corporation were going to be done away with in order to enable a farmer to obtain a loan without being asked to produce any security—that is provided he has the land and the land is his.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very logical that land is immovable material, and cannot be moved. If the land is there then we cannot see any reason why a person is asked to produce any other surety. If the house is to be built on that land, then why is the person required to have a guarantee of some kind since the land is permanently there? I fail to understand the logic employed in this particular respect.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we now challenge the Minister for Housing to tell the House this afternoon the policy of housing throughout the entire Republic of Kenya in order that the masses of this Republic may know the proper policy of the Government. In our Manifesto this is stipulated, and we know it is there, and we must see that it is geared up in order that proper implementation is carried out. I do not see any reason why we should dodge this subject if we know it exists.

I hope the Minister is not going to dodge the issue as the Assistant Minister did during the course of his reply to the hon. Member for Embu East. Mr. Speaker, we do not want a diminishing policy, neither do we want a deflating policy. What we want, Mr. Speaker, is an inflating policy, a policy which can help us in this House and which can help our country. Mr. Speaker, we do not want the Minister to come here and make a hurried statement to brief us in this House and eventually see the masses do not benefit. We do not want the Minister to come here and give void statements to this House and then we find later that whatever he said does not exist. We know that actions speak louder than words and we want action and not words.

Mr. Speaker, we were told then that there are some teams going around the country and educating the masses in building good houses in the rural areas. I fail to understand the logic behind this. Why should the people be told how to build good houses and then when they apply for loans they are not given them? We fail to understand the premises of the argument that the Minister brings up. Therefore, it is today that we are challenging the Minister to tell us the policy and how we can get good houses in the rural areas.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move, and ask the Member for Embu to second the Motion.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

All we want the Minister to do is to help us. We have a very dynamic Minister for Housing. Today, this evening, we are making an appeal to the Minister for Housing to change the present system which is being followed by his Ministry because the majority of the Members of this House will agree with me that more than 95 per cent of the people live in the rural areas. That is a fact, Mr. Speaker, Sir. The Minister cannot deny that fact. Therefore, Sir, if the majority of our people do live in the rural areas, why does the Ministry have a policy of concentrating on building houses in the urban areas only? Areas in the countryside have been forgotten.

When we come to the Kanu Manifesto we find that this Manifesto— Mr. Speaker, the Kanu Manifesto is our political bible, the bible of the party in power, of the party which has done so much. For the information of the hon. Minister for Housing, I would like to quote what is written in the Kanu Manifesto. This is the Kanu Manifesto, and I am holding it up. Whenever Ministers sit down to review the policies, it does not matter whether it is the housing policy, whether it is the industrial policy, they should refer to what is in our Kanu Manifesto. In one of the clauses it reads that the Government will do everything possible—that is the Kanu Government—to help the people, not only in the urban areas but in the rural areas as well. Therefore, what we are trying to do is to appeal to our Minister to do something for the rural areas, to have some plans for the rural areas.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is only seven municipalities which are enjoying the privileges when there are other districts, namely, Kitui, Kisii, Embu, Kakamega and even Bungoma— All what we want the Minister to do is to consider areas which are in the countryside, areas which are inhabited by the majority of the people, by the Africans of this country.

I know that the Minister is a man of action, but we want him today to tell this House that the policy which is being pursued at present will be reviewed, will be changed so that more development will be started in the rural areas. More development, Mr. Speaker, Sir, should start at once. Mr. Speaker, when I refer to the rural areas I am referring to county councils as well.

Mr. Speaker, according to the present policy which is being pursued sometimes, if you want county councils to give assistance or to advise the Ministry to do something, if you want the county council to recommend you to the Housing Corporation, they ask you to produce land. There are so many things which can easily be done. We want to build a nation, a nation which will cover almost every area. The same thing is happening in the industries. We find that so many hotels are coming up in Nairobi, so many hotels—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of information—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you want to give way?

Mr. Munyi: All right, Sir.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has said a very important thing about the county councils. The information I want to give is that you do not produce the land. If you want the county council to guarantee you, you will have to surrender your land to them, they will take it and then they will guarantee you. Otherwise you cannot get a guarantee.

Mr. Munyi: What I want to emphasize, Sir, is this: there are many hotels which are being put up, but these are all being put up in the big towns. This is completely wrong. This policy should not be pursued because the ones who should be helped are the majority of the people. Where do the majority of the people live? They, Mr. Speaker, live in the rural areas. So, why does the Government pursue this policy of concentrating everything in Nairobi, everything in Nakuru and Mombasa. Why not extend some of the facilities to places like Embu, Kitui, Kisii. Development must cover almost every area in this country. This will be the correct policy.

When people come from the countryside, they go to the towns, they see that all the facilities are available only in the big towns. This should not be the case.

Housing problems must be dealt with in a good way. There must be a change, there must be a man in the Ministry of Housing who should be dealing with these matters only. Also, if the Minister invites suggestions from the hon. Members, I am sure that he will be given very good suggestions. I know, Sir, that our Government has done much and our Government is continuing to do more; but the tendency is that everything is being concentrated in the urban areas. Our people in the rural areas are being forgotten. This is wrong.

I know that the Assistant Minister answered this Question when I asked it in this House. Now the Minister is present in person, and I am sure this evening he is going to tell us exactly what his Ministry is planning to do in future, what his Ministry is planning to review; and whether his Ministry is in a position now to review the policy because the sooner the policy is reviewed the better for us, the better for the people in the rural areas.

After having mentioned that, let me now come to the total number of houses which were built in the so-called rural areas. There were very few indeed—I think there were about 200. However, in the urban areas— Mr. Speaker, the figure might be 300, but I do know that the number is very small. Therefore, I would like the Minister to take action. Money which was supposed to be allocated for more houses in the urban areas should now be transferred, be reallocated to houses in the rural areas so that the people in the rural areas will live in good houses, will live in houses which have been built in accordance with the rules of health. The sooner this is done, the better for us all.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like the Minister to say something definite this evening. During the last few days the Minister has proved to be a man of action. I want this to be translated in a practical way, to be translated in the rural areas. That is what I want the Minister to do. He has proved himself in this House; he should also prove now that something is going to be given to our people in the districts. This should be demonstrated not only in theory but in a practical way.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to second the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ngei, how long do you want? There are only ten minutes left.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): I want ten minutes.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, I thought the Minister for Housing would agree to give me one minute.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I pointed out to the Minister that he only has ten minutes left, whereupon he thought he had better start now.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thank the Mover of this Motion in trying to point out to the Government, especially to the Ministry of Housing, the places where we seem, according to him, not to have moved. Of course, Mr. Speaker, the anxiety of the Mover and the Seconder, is vividly displayed by the manner of their high-pitched tone of voice when they speak, because they are feeling the touch and the problem of their constituents. I hope, this evening, I shall be able to allay their fears and show them that we are not ignoring the rural areas.

I hope the information I will give to the House will satisfy the Mover and the hon. Members of this House. Before I do that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not wise, is it not right that I challenge the hon. Members for not probing me? How many of these two hon. Members, how many of their constituents have they brought to my office saying, "Mr. Minister, you are a public servant, what about a loan for such-and-such a farmer, for such a trader, for such-and-such a member of my constituency?". How many have done that? I am asking, how many have done that? I know that some hon. Members have brought their people who wanted loans. I also know that I have approved their loans outright and they have received the money. Mr. Speaker, if we could try to get information, I think we shall avoid quite a lot of fears in this House that the Ministers are not doing their best. I assure the hon. Members that action is my order of the day. Kakamega has been mentioned today, that it has not received the attention of the Ministry. To your surprise, Mr. Speaker, Sir, today, this morning, I authorized two loans for Kakamega District going to individuals. I authorized them and said "Give this gentleman that money to build a decent house, in order that he may breathe the fresh air of this independent country."

Therefore, it is only a question of the hon. Members probing and bringing their people forward. I cannot go and fish out the members from a society at Embu and beckon to them, Mr. Speaker, and say, "Come and build a good house". I think there is an old saying that "He who feels the itch knows how to scratch the part that itches". Therefore, the Government has laid down the housing policy, directives have been issued through the normal media in the Voice of Kenya and also in the newspapers. Pamphlets have been issued on how to acquire loans. They are in the offices of the housing officers or in the offices of the district commissioners. These should be made use of and the question of coming here and raising a question which has already been settled, Mr. Speaker, gets us nowhere because we do so because of being ignorant of the facts.

[The Minister for Housing]

I want to say this: where the hon. Mover says (a) but I can say it is true because you do not know. We have sent pamphlets to tell you what to do to get loans. The question of quoting, Mr. Speaker, the number of houses that have been built and saying they are 389—who knows whether some of these houses were not built before the formation of the Central Housing Board. How many times have I issued loans to individuals in Fort Hall, in Embu, in this and that district when Members have not asked me to. It is unfortunate that my Assistant Minister did not have up-to-date information about this. However, I must thank the hon. Mover because this is the first Motion on the Adjournment directed to my Ministry—in other words I have been satisfying you, hon. Members. I therefore do not mind having this one, Mr. Speaker. I hope the hon. Members are going to be happy about my reply. Let us hope so.

May I say, with the approval of this hon. House, that a total of £250,000 is earmarked on the next Financial Year to go to rural housing. I repeat, that subject to approval of this House, a sum of £250,000 has been earmarked for housing projects in the rural areas and I am going to watch whether the hon. Mover is going to object to this or perhaps oppose it. I shall keep an eye to see whether, when the next budget comes—I shall be watching you hon. Members—you will oppose my Ministry's Estimates.

Mr. Speaker, the further information that I would like to give to the hon. Members is that recently, Sir, I issued a directive that applications coming from the rural areas must be processed immediately, and if there are any difficulties at all they must be referred to me. That is why I am taking a keen interest. One vital and most important point which was raised by the two speakers, the hon. Mover and Seconder, is the question that has been embodied in the first regulations when loans for housing in the rural areas are processed. This is the question, Mr. Speaker, of a local authority being asked to sanction loans; it is what is called "loan sanction". This requirement is the one that has been impeding the progress in housing in rural areas. I have spotted this anomaly and I can assure the hon. Members of this House that this is going to be removed or rather has been set aside in order that the progress may go on. We know that most of the local authorities have suffered greatly, financially, because of the running of their affairs, and it is becoming increasingly difficult for local authorities to do this.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Minister is giving the impression that there are houses all over the country, is there any way of asking him whether there is any in Kisii District because there are not any in Kisii?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Makone, that does not make a good point of order. A valid point of order would be to ask the Minister to substantiate that there is activity all over the country, but that would be quite impossible in the very short time we have; so I think we must let it rest. We know you are not happy regarding Kisii. I think we should go on now. No more points of order.

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the hon. Member, that he received £9,000 the other day. I signed the document authorizing payment of the money and I do not see why he did not, in fact, come to my office for more money. If he did, I would have approved his application. Mr. Speaker, I think he is aware that I gave £9,000.

I was saying that this loan sanction by local authorities, Mr. Speaker, Sir, was a real impediment for the people who wanted loans. Therefore, I have introduced this new system and I think the hon. Member will be very happy.

Coming to another very important point, I have housing pilot schemes in various places, and I have appointed provincial housing officers in various districts. One pilot scheme is at Voi, which will cater for the Coast. Another one is going to either Embu or Kirinyaga, and will cater for Central Province, and I am also setting up another one. I have two more appointments for provincial housing officers to go to Nakuru and to another town who will be bringing me problems concerning housing in the rural areas. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am moving fast; but I must move carefully so as to see that the Government money is not put into a hole. I must see that the normal economic operations are followed, that when you get the money you will be able to repay it.

If it is the question of housing the destitute, then this comes under the umbrella of the Ministry of Social Services and, of course, I am ready to help, as I am going to do very soon in Mathari Valley. Therefore, I must thank the hon. Member for prompting me and I assure you of my fullest co-operation in removing this anomaly. Thank you.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is now time for the interruption of business. The House is therefore adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 4th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

PRAYERS

NOTICE OF MOTION

AMENDMENT TO STANDING ORDER 17

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, Standing Order No. 17 be amended in paragraph (1) thereof, by deleting the word "Mondays" therefrom.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 139

ENTRANCE TO JOGOO HOUSE FOR MEMBERS

Mr. Kiprotich asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home affairs if he would tell the House why the Members of the National Assembly were not allowed to enter Jogoo House through the front gate.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no objection to Members of Parliament using the front gate of Jogoo House (Old Wing) subject to availability of parking space and provided that hon. Members are not accompanied by Members of the public who would otherwise be required to enter Jogoo House through the normal reception office for visitors.

Mr. Kiprotich: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House, if a Member of Parliament is accompanied by his constituency people who want to enter Jogoo House and cannot do so through the front gate, and the Member has an appointment with the Minister, why does he need to have another pass for his visitors?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is quite easy. The hon. Members must realize that if people are just allowed to go in without any check, that is not really the ideal thing. What we are requesting the Members to do is this. When they pass through the front door, and they have a group of people with them, they should tell them to go the other way and get proper admission to the building.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that I, personally, went to Jogoo House and was refused entrance one day?

Also, in view of the fact that the Assistant Minister is contradicting himself, I had a similar Question last week and at that time he said that no Members of Parliament were free to go anywhere, will he say that from now onwards he is going to instruct all those who are at the gates to make sure that every Member of Parliament will be allowed to enter Jogoo House without any difficulty?

Mr. Matano: Sir, I have already answered that question.

Mr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister agree to issue permanent passes for Members of Parliament so that they can enter the building freely—

Hon. Members: We have them already. We have them.

Mr. Matano: Sir, if I remember correctly, I think all hon. Members have cards to enable them to enter any Government offices.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think this is getting a little beyond the Question. I think what the Question really meant is why Members of Parliament were not allowed to enter through the front gate rather than the back gate. I think the idea was that Members of Parliament were told that they were not allowed to use the front gate; it was reserved for the Ministers and the Permanent Secretaries only.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from a previous reply, will the Assistant Minister tell the House why, out of 12 working hours, that car park in front of Jogoo is empty although the askaris at the gate have been instructed not to allow any Member of Parliament to enter there, whether there is space or not?

Mr. Matano: Sir, first of all I do not agree with the hon. Member when he says that those areas are empty for 12 hours.

Another point, Sir, is that these areas have been earmarked for certain officers and Ministers. If the Minister is not there, and somebody else comes and parks there and then it follows that when the Minister comes in he will not have a place where he can park his car. This is the reason.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since Members of Parliament are privileged to go anywhere within the country, will the Assistant Minister, who has given no reasons for the previous refusal to Members not to enter Jogoo House by the front door, now apologize to the House for this serious mistake?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think it is a mistake. I do not agree it was a mistake. There was a good reason for that. I have explained to the Members now that they are allowed to enter through the front door, but if they are accompanied by Members of the public, then the public must go by the back door.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Next Question.

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, because I asked a similar Question last week, does it mean that what I said last week and whatever I said today is contrary to the Ministry's policy?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think there is a slight misunderstanding. What you asked last week was slightly different. Today, the Question is, why Members of Parliament are not allowed to use the front door, why they have to go through the back door. That is the substance of the Question.

Last time I think your Question was—I may be wrong, I am now speaking from memory—why Members of Parliament were not allowed to see Ministers in Jogoo House. There is a slight difference.

Hon. Members: On a point of order—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! There are so many Members who have risen on a point of order. If any hon. Member wishes to raise this matter on the adjournment, we can go ahead now because we do not want to go into lots of points of order.

Mr. arap Biy: My point of order is a straightforward one. I would like, Sir, to seek your guidance whether I would be in order to ask for your assistance to give a ruling on this matter because we would like the Minister to make a Ministerial Statement to the effect that this point is made clear: whether Members of this House are not allowed to enter through the front door of Jogoo House.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order!

I think the Assistant Minister has made it quite clear. He said that from now on, irrespective of what happened in the past, Members of Parliament can use the front door and use the front car park provided there is space, and also provided they do not have members of the public with them. I think this is what he said quite categorically, and we do not need to go further into this.

We will now go on to the next Question.

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since cards have been issued to the Members of Parliament, and if you read the card at the top it says, that every Member of Parliament can enter any official office without being stopped, could the Assistant Minister tell us—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker—this is a genuine point of order—although the Assistant Minister has said that Members of Parliament can be admitted to Jogoo House subject to availability of space and having no other friends with them, I can produce evidence to show that the card given to Members of Parliament is a card which says that So-and-so is a Member of Parliament while that building issues cards which permit people to enter Government offices have written, clearly, on them that So-and-so is entitled to enter any Government office.

So, Sir, what I want to say now is, Jogoo House being a public building and a public institution where the public are expected to go, can this not form a basis of discussion under Standing Order 20 because it is a matter of administration?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You took a long time to come to that, I am afraid.

We will now move on to the next question, Mr. Munyi.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 139:
ENTRANCE TO JOGOO HOUSE BY MEMBERS

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that this House feels that the answer given to the Members is insufficient, I would like to raise this on the adjournment provided I have the permission of the Questioner.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Do you agree, Mr. Kiprotich?

Mr. Kiprotich: Yes, Sir.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, that is all right, Mr. Mwalwa.

Question No. 105

BETTER PROVINCIAL HEADQUARTERS' OFFICE AT KISUMU

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House if there was any plan for building a better Provincial Headquarters Office at Kisumu.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yes, Sir.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that, "Yes, Sir", could I hear from the Minister as to what amount of money has been estimated for that building and when the building will be started.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Member repeat this question, I did not quite get it.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: The Minister said, "Yes, Sir", to my question, which indicated that there is a plan for building an administrative headquarters at Kisumu. What I am asking him is this. Could he tell the House how much money has been estimated for that building, and when is the building going to be started?

Mr. M. Koinange: The question was whether there is such a plan, and to that I replied, "Yes Sir". There is a plan but as to when this plan may be effected depends on the availability of funds.

The second point I want to make to the Member is this. There have been two possibilities on the question of the site for the new provincial administration building. One, is adjacent to the law courts where the place is much too small.

The second possibility is in an area between the provincial police offices and the market. This is a larger area. So far, no definite solution as to which of the two possibilities has been made but the plan to put up the headquarters does exist.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Could we get an assurance from the Minister that the estimate for this particular plan will be in the current Development Plan of 1969/70, when this comes to the House for approval?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the estimate of this Government building does exist and it is for this Parliament to pass the vote for that; the plan is there.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Deputy Speaker, arising out of the reply, do we understand that Government has not assented to the proposal of how soon the building will start?

Mr. M. Koinange: I did not get him.

Mr. Jamal: Do I understand that there is no specific proposal to start the building because we are not told when the building will start or how much money is earmarked?

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the proposal is there, the plan is there, efforts are there because the investigations of the two appropriate sites are going on, and although those three points are there, the other point is the availability of finance and the Ministry concerned with administration is still looking for funds. Members should rest assured that will be done.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that the present building is so old that it is going to give way one day?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: It will collapse and kill the provincial commissioner.

Mr. M. Koinange: It is not just for the provincial commissioner, but the building is for the whole country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 110

COLLECTION OF MONEY BY EX-KANU CHAIRMAN, KILIFI

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he was aware of the public money collection in Kilifi District in the name of Mr. Pane Kambi Ngala, ex-Kanu district chairman, and what was the purpose of this collection and how was the money disposed of.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Sir, I am not aware.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, is the Minister prepared to assure this House that he is going to make investigations, if I lay on the Table a receipt which has been issued in the name of Paul Kambi Ngala at the moment, because I have got one here?

Mr. M. Koinange: Yes, Sir.

(The hon. Member laid the receipt on the Table)

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from this answer, Mr. Speaker, where a receipt has been laid on the Table, which proves that the man in question collected some money illegally, would the Minister actually tell the House whether he is going to investigate and then deal with the man in question according to the law, because this is an illegal Kanu collection of money which is actually meant for destroying the other party?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was still right because I could not tell the House that I was aware of that which was in his pocket, and having tabled that, the information that I have here is from the district commissioner who denies any knowledge of illegal collection of money by Mr. Pane Kambi Ngala. If this is produced I will take it to my office and I will investigate definitely.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 106

INCREASE IN NUMBERS OF EXPATRIATE ADVISERS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development why the numbers of expatriate advisers had increased so much in the country after independence.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. At the time of independence, Kenya faced an acute shortage of professional and technical personnel required to man the energetic development programmes in all fields, which the country embarked on as had been earlier promised by the Kanu Government. This manpower shortage was a result, partly, of the inadequate educational and training opportunities available to our people during the colonial era, and partly to the considerable outflow of expatriate civil servants at the time of independence.

The massive development programmes which we initiated required then, and still require today, many more technical and professional personnel than are available locally and we are therefore forced to obtain the additional personnel from friendly foreign governments and private organizations. I should, of course, mention that the country is making every effort to train its own people and these efforts are going a long way to meet our needs, but our output of trained manpower, at present, cannot keep in step with our heavily expanded development programmes.

I would like, however, to assure the hon. Members that the Government does not bring into the country foreign personnel unless these are absolutely required, that is in terms of the criterion that we have no local person to do a job and that the expert is fully qualified for the job.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, and according to the information I am given here, it shows that in 1965 we had 276 of these expatriates and that in October 1968, we had 70 of them. Could the Minister tell the House as to how they are making efforts in actually training the local people, whereas in the information given, it appears as if the efforts he is talking about cause the numbers of expatriates to increase, and I guess that by 1979, we might have 1,000 of them. Is it true that the training of local people is taking place?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, first the hon. Member has an advantage over the other Members in the House because I did not read another part of the answer which is additional information, and it is only fair that the other Members should have this information before I answer this supplementary. The additional information given—which is available to the hon. Member—is that the comparative numbers of personnel for 1965 and 1968 are as follows: experts, in October 1965, 276; in October 1968, 700; volunteers: October 1965, 222; in October 1968, 660.

Secondly, the current sources of technical assistance personnel that we have in the country are: the United Kingdom, the United States of America, Czechoslovakia, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Nations, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Yugoslavia, Germany, Canada, the Netherlands, Japan, the Ford Foundation, France, Italy, Israel, New Zealand. Our policy is to get personnel from any source that can meet our requirements.

Thirdly, about 67 per cent of all technical assistance personnel is absorbed by the two sectors: namely education and agriculture. Education has 210 personnel which represents 30 per cent of the total number that we have; agriculture has 140 personnel which represents 20 per cent of the total personnel. The two of them together represent 50 per cent of the total personnel. The reason for the increase in education and agriculture is the expansion of the system; the expansion, through development, of the secondary education system, as well as the expansion in agricultural extension services.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that we have School Certificate boys who have passed in the first and second division at home, and can the Minister therefore tell the House what technical advice they could give to our country?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member speaking must surely be aware—and I believe he has met some of these personnel in his own district—that the secondary school teachers that we import into the country are graduates in order to teach at the secondary schools, and you could not take the Cambridge School Certificate school-leaver and make him a teacher in the secondary school system before you have trained him.

The second point, Sir, is that there is a certain expert that we need to man the services and development in certain areas, which we cannot do with a secondary school-leaver, unless he has been given further advantage of training. What Government seeks to do is to give the secondary school-leaver further advantage of training so that he can be used later.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 148

NUMBER OF CASES OF DESERTION IN ARMED FORCES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Defence if he would tell the House how many cases of desertion from the armed forces of Kenya had occurred between 1966 and 1968; how many of these deserters had been arrested and punished; also had the number of cases of deserters increased or decreased.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, do you think that it is fair for the Minister to keep you busy so that you do not even notice that there were so many Members who were interested in the particular question which the Minister was answering?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The fact that I get engaged for a moment in conversation does not mean that I have not got ears and eyes elsewhere as well. I was perfectly well aware that there were a number of questions hon. Members would have liked to have asked Mr. Mboya on this question but, unfortunately, we have to move fast today because we have to start on a Supply Day not later than 3.30 p.m.

The Assistant Minister for Defence (Mr. Njeru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There were 39 cases of desertion from the armed forces during the three full years of 1966, 1967 and 1968, an average of 13 a year. 14 of these deserters have been arrested and punished. The whereabouts of the other 25 is not known.

Desertion is on the decrease. There have been only three cases in 1969, up to the end of May.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, and bearing in mind that this question of deserters is one of the disappointing issues in an independent country like Kenya, what is the Ministry doing to see that these other deserters whose whereabouts is not known up to this moment, so that these fellows are brought before the court-martial on trial to see that they are punished? Our country—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! You have asked your question.

Mr. Njeru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said that 25 are at large, but we are carrying out investigations as to their whereabouts; if we find them we shall certainly bring them to court.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 141

HEALTH INSPECTORS' TRAINING PROGRAMME

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House why no mention was made in the high-level manpower report of 1964/1967 of a health inspectors' training programme, and what immediate action was the Ministry taking to increase the total number of health inspectors, as well as improving their qualifications and standards.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Although no specific training programmes for health inspectors were mentioned in report of 1964/67, in the manpower survey which will be issued in the next few months, health inspectors will be included.

The Ministry has plans in the current and next development periods for increasing the number of health inspectors.

Regarding qualifications and standards of health inspectors, the Ministry is quite satisfied with their general performance. In addition, field officers are given specific short courses from the latest development in the techniques of their profession. Also, selected individuals are sent for specific courses and study tours.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer given by the Minister, is the Minister aware that it was not long ago when one of the Ministers—the Minister for Economic Planning and Development—addressed health inspectors at a meeting held at Nakuru where he gave the health inspectors an assurance that in future, the Government or his Ministry was going to do something to see to it that more facilities were given to health inspectors? Secondly, that the Government was trying to find ways and means of improving the present standard of health inspectors so that there would be no defections from the Central Government through health inspectors joining either the city council, municipalities or other private organizations? This is therefore contrary to the assurance given by the Minister and he should give an answer to that, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to contradict the hon. Member, but he is bringing in the major exercise in which the Government has been engaged, of trying to put health inspectors in their proper places vis-à-vis the other members of the Civil Service.

The hon. Member will remember that a few months ago, there was a Government survey team which tried to equate salaries and to put people in their proper places. I think the speech which is supposed to have been made—although I have no recollection of it—was because the health inspectors were asking for a higher pay and more recognition. I think the answer will be coming in the next question of the hon. Member.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go to the next question then, Mr. Munyi.

Question No. 144

HEALTH INSPECTORS' SALARIES

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) what the total number of health inspectors working with both Central Government and local authorities was; and
- (b) whether the Minister was aware that the basic salary of health inspectors in 1964 was £1,096 a year, and that it was reduced to £850 and then further reduced to £708.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) There are 133 health inspectors working with both the Central Government and local authorities.

(b) (i) The salary of the health inspectors in 1964 was not £1,096 a year but was £850 per annum. The £1,096 was the figure recommended by the Pratt Salaries Review, but this figure was never accepted by the Government and, instead, the £850 per annum was adopted.

(ii) The latest salaries review recommended that the salary attached to the post of health inspectors newly joining the service be paid at £708 instead of £850. This was to bring it into line with similar levels of training undertaken by the Ministry.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers given by the Minister, is he aware that one of the many reasons why at present there is a shortage of health inspector personnel in most of the districts in Kenya is that the salary which is given to health inspectors is so low that it does not conform with the present facilities which should be given to health inspectors? Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is high time the Minister—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Munyi, you have asked your question and you cannot make a speech. It was quite a long question.

Mr. Otiende: Assuming that the hon. Member has asked his question, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can only say that in view of what the last salary commission review recommended—that the entry point of health inspectors be lowered to remove the anomaly of entry points of professional staff; this recommendation was of course accepted by the Government—it is not possible to make a case altering that position as it stands now. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that there is great sympathy for health inspectors, both in this House and outside in the Civil Service, to retain their former position, but the reason was that the course which is undertaken after attaining Cambridge School Certificate Examination takes three years and there are other courses taking three and a half or four years. It was found that the health inspectors were starting at a higher scale than the other people of similar training and qualifications and therefore it was recommended that they start at a lower scale, for those who are starting now; but they are still on the same salary scale and maybe they will serve the Government longer.

However, the question of local authorities and their salary scales is a question which has been with us for many years and I would like to say that we should be pleased if the House would solve the problems for us, because it is not only for the health inspectors; even doctors and other professional staff like engineers in local authorities are paid far higher than their counterparts in Central Government. This is one of the problems that the Government machinery should solve, not the Ministry of Health.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and arising from one of the answers given by the Minister, is it not in order that the House will give "okay" to whatever proposal you give to this House when a Minister makes—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is not a point of order. Next question, Mr. Barasa.

Question No. 136

KIMILILI HEALTH CENTRE TO BE A COTTAGE HOSPITAL

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House when the Kimilili Health Centre would be established as a Cottage Hospital.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no plan at present to upgrade Kimilili Health Centre from what it is, a full-fledged health centre, to a cottage hospital, due to shortage of funds, but when the funds are available, it will be considered along with others that have been recommended for upgrading.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the suggestion was made to upgrade Kimilili Health Centre, the circumstances were different. Now Kimilili is surrounded by other health centres which did not exist and, therefore, the whole subject will have to be reviewed again.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply that there are no funds, can he tell the House as to what steps he is taking to see that he gets the funds necessary for this Kimilili

[Mr. Khaoya]

Health Centre since it was he himself who gave the promise when at one time he had visited Bungoma.

An hon. Member: Were you there?

Mr. Khaoya: Yes, I was there.

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Member was a Member of this House then; however, he might have been; he is cavesdropping.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Kimilili is a very heavily populated area and, at that time, our intention in the Ministry was to raise Kimilili Health Centre into a cottage hospital because it is far from Bungoma. But two things have happened since then; first of all the people who live on Mount Elgon have built up a very big health centre at Kapsakwany and so they do not come to Kimilili any more. A few miles away, the Catholic Mission has built a very decent little hospital at Misikhu which serves the same people. A short distance away the Friends' Mission have put up a biggish kind of health centre at Lugulu, and now, Sir, we ourselves have just offered some money to put up another health centre in the settled area which is now called Najjiri-Ngalu. The pressure which was to be on Kimilili Health Centre is relieved and the problem can therefore wait for the time being.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, bearing in mind that this National Assembly is still allowed to conduct its affairs in English, and seeing that there is a mistake or not good English written on the Order Paper, and noticing that there are students attending our proceedings, will it not be in order for the hon. Member asking the question to correct the English or the Speaker to remind him that the English is incorrect?

Hon. Members: Like which one?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Like the question we have just dealt with.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members can allow for an occasional clerical error. We have not much time to waste.

Question No. 140

BUSES TO AND FROM KANGEMI

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House whether he was aware that there were only three buses to serve the people of Kangemi, and the residents in that area were always late for duty, particularly in the morning because the three buses could not meet the demand.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There are four bus services to and from Kangemi operating at present. Three operate in the morning, from Kangemi to Nairobi commencing at 7 a.m. 7.15 a.m. and 7.30 a.m. The fourth operates in the evening from the city centre to Kangemi at 5.15 p.m.

The Kenya Bus Services Ltd. have recently been given permission to operate another service, and as soon as they have a vehicle, they propose operating it in the mornings. This additional service should meet the demands referred to by the hon. questioner.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, will the Assistant Minister not agree with me that this was the golden chance when KENATCO, which is our own company, should have been given a chance to help the people in this area rather than the Kenya Bus Services Ltd. which is monopolizing everything, and above all, which is attached to Britain?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I suppose it is, but then the Kenya Bus Services Ltd. is doing the work.

Question No. 135

AREA COUNCIL'S ELECTION DELAY, BUNGOMA

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House—

- (a) what had delayed the area council elections in Bungoma District; and
- (b) who had authorized the public area council's expenditure since there were no such councils existing in the whole district.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) There are no area councils in Bungoma District and therefore no elections for such area could have taken place.

(b) Since there are no area councils in that district, the question of authorizing expenditure in those areas does not arise.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that Bungoma District Area Location is raising Sh. 17 per person as a rate for the local council and there should be a council to authorize the expenditure of such an amount of money?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is not an area council. At present there is what we call a winding-up commission so that after the review commission, everything will be set up.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if there is this commission, why is it that there are certain locations in Bungoma District which impose a charge of Sh. 2 per person? Who authorizes this, because instead of paying Sh. 15, people are paying Sh. 17. Who is authorizing this when there is no council existing in Bungoma?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I told the hon. Member that at the present, there is the winding-up commission and the commission is now running those areas.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for how long will this commission operate over the people of Bungoma without councils?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, until the real commission has started the work.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what does the House do when a question like this one has been asked and the Assistant Minister, who is also the chairman of that commission, is the one answering it?

An hon. Member: He is not the chairman.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The House listens as usual.

Question No. 113

TELEGRAPHISTS, ETC., IN E.A. POSTS AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Power and Communications to tell the House—

(a) how many School Certificate telegraphists and phonogram operators had been engaged by East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration between 1965/68; and

(b) how many had since resigned or had been dismissed.

The Assistant Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Masinde): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The East African Posts and Telecommunications Corporation started recruiting young men with and without School Certificate for telegraphist grade even before 1965. As for the period in the question, the following information will probably suffice the hon. Member:—

(i) With Cambridge School Certificate 1965 to 1968, 31 were engaged, five resigned and one was dismissed.

(ii) Without Cambridge School Certificate 1965 to 1968, 41 were engaged, 19 resigned and four died.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, since this figure appears to be very high, could the Assistant Minister tell us the reasons why these people are resigning. Is it because they are given low salaries by the Government and therefore, they decide to join other firms?

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised to hear the hon. Member allege that the figure appears to be high. When 31 School Certificate holders were recruited, five only resigned. You cannot control someone who wished to resign; if he resigns it is his own business. There are so many other people who would like to do that same job, and so they take up the places left by those who resign.

Question No. 22

ELECTRICITY FOR BUNGOMA TOWN

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House when Bungoma town was going to get electricity.

The Assistant Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Masinde): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The question of supplying Bungoma township with electricity is very involved and I hope the hon. Member will try to be patient enough until the other projects, which are supposed to be established around Bungoma, are established and then the town will be supplied with electricity.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell us whether we can hope to get electricity before the next general election?

Mr. Masinde: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been in this House for six years, and this is long enough to enable us not use any of the Government's projects for electioneering.

Question No. 114

SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS; ISAAC NYANDO PRIMARY SCHOOL, RABAI

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether he was aware that there was a shortage of three teachers in the Isaac Nyando Primary School, Rabai, and if so, what was the Minister doing to carry out their replacement.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no shortage of teachers at present at the Isaac Nyando Primary School. It is true that at the beginning of the year, there was a shortage of three teachers, but this situation was then corrected and at present the school has 15 teachers for the 14 classes.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that the school committee is complaining and the headmaster reported that there should be 17 teachers instead of 15, and that eight out of the 15 are untrained. Why are there eight untrained teachers?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the complaint is absolutely unjustified. If the hon. Member would like to know the qualifications of the teachers there, are only five untrained teachers, but 10 are trained teachers.

Question No. 108

HEADMASTER OF ST. JOHN'S PRIMARY SCHOOL

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, as I went through this Question, I thought this Question was answered some time ago, and therefore there is no necessity of repeating the same Question. I think it was repeated by mistake. It was answered some time back.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I apologize for the mistake of its re-appearance. We have to come back to Mr. Munyi's first Question.

(Question No. 108 withdrawn)

Question No. 143

VIOLATION OF WORK PERMIT RULES

Mr. Munyi asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House the total number of employers who had been convicted illegally in 1968 for employing non-citizens who had no work permits.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry for Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The number of employers who were convicted in 1968 for illegally employing non-citizens who did not have work permits was 18.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer is the Minister aware that cases of this nature are increasing every day, and that they are cropping up almost daily in the newspapers? Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a fact. In view of that, what is the Government doing to see to it that severe punishment is imposed on people who commit offences of this nature so that they may be stopped?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware that the number is increasing. I would like, however, to assure the hon. Members that the Government is wide awake and whoever is caught will be punished accordingly.

Mr. Munyi: Arising from that answer and bearing in mind the fact that we unanimously passed an Act in this House to that effect, what sort of machinery is the Government using to trace cases of this nature? There are certain people who cannot be found unless other machinery is established by the Government. There are certain companies either in the industrial area or for that matter other places where people are working illegally who cannot be traced. Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Government therefore reveal the policy—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Munyi your questions are much too long. They always become speeches. Just ask a straight question and do not follow it up with other arguments. You have asked a question now, so you had better wait for the answer.

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government has adequate machinery to deal with such cases through information being provided. If the hon. Member has any idea of anybody who is contravening this law, he is quite at liberty to inform the Government, and we shall follow it up. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to assure the hon. Members here that the Government is adequately equipped and we are quite ready to deal with any of these cases. There should be no fear, therefore, that the Government will not do its duty.

Mr. Lubembe: Arising from the Assistant Minister's answer, what is the Government doing to correct employers who are upgrading the jobs in which non-citizens are employed and raising them to professional status so that they can obtain permits when these jobs are not professional at all?

An hon. Member: That is a good idea.

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a different question altogether and I do not see how it is related to the number of employers who have been convicted for this offence in question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20BLOCKAGE OF BUNGOMA COUNTY COUNCIL ROADS
BY E.A. RAILWAYS AND HARBOURS

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am standing to try and get the permission of this House under Standing Order No. 20 so that I may move the adjournment of the House so that we may discuss a matter of national importance.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, towards the end of last week in Bungoma, the East African Railways and Harbours came into a heavy dispute with the County Council of Bungoma which had failed to pay the annual fees due to the complainant, in return for the services rendered on the level crossing. It so happened that the railways were demanding something like Sh. 4,000, which the county council failed to pay, and so the E.A.

[Mr. Khaoya]

Railways and Harbours moved in and blocked the county council's roads in Bungoma—all the cattle paths and the level crossings all over the length of the railway line. We are now disrupted communicationally in the district. With this, I wish to plead with the House so that we can get permission to discuss it today.

An hon. Member: It is serious.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is clearly a definite matter and an urgent matter if communications are disrupted to that extent; and if they are disrupted as alleged throughout the whole district, then I think it is of sufficient national importance to justify a Motion for Adjournment under Standing Order 20 if enough hon. Members feel that it is very important. So, we will see how many hon. Members support you.

(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have well over 15. The only difficulty Mr. Khaoya, is that it so happens that we have today a Supply Day; and under Standing Order 143, we cannot interrupt a Supply Day by a Motion for Adjournment of the House. So, though you have every right to move the Adjournment of the House, it will have to be tomorrow but not today. I therefore propose you move the Adjournment of the House at 6 p.m. tomorrow, Thursday 5th June.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

CLARIFICATION OF PREVIOUS STATEMENT

Mr. Shikuku: Some time last week, I think it was on 26th May, when the Attorney-General, on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry, categorically stated in this House that some delegation came from Kakamega District and went to the Ministry and told the Minister, or somebody in the Ministry, that the people of the area in question could not Africanize the trade. This was published in the Daily Nation of 27th May and has brought a lot of concern to the people. I would like him to make a statement to the effect that that was not the case at all, because none went to the Ministry.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I am not quite sure that I am clear as to what the hon. Member is complaining about. This is simply because when I replied on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry, I think it was last week, I did say that some hon. Members were honest enough to say that in certain areas, Africans were not yet ready to take over businesses to be run by them. I know the hon. Member has started a campaign 18 months after the operation of the Act. All I want to say, Mr. Speaker, if I did mention Eldoret—and I do not think I did—if I did mention Kakamega, that was not intended. I hope that in the hon. Member's area he has enough Africans to take over the businesses.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do remember that Mr. Njonjo was pressed as to whether this alleged delegation included hon. Members of this House, and did make it clear that, as far as such a delegation from the Western Province was concerned, he did not allege that it included any Member of the House though I think he did suggest that a delegation from some other place had included Members of this House. It is unfortunate that the newspapers did not give a complete report, but I think it is on record now, that it was not alleged that any Member from Western Province was party to a delegation of this kind.

Mr. Shikuku: May I ask Mr. Speaker, would it be possible to have this mistatement corrected? It was published in the Daily Nation of 27th that it was Kakamega? This is what we take exception to. This is because we never sent any delegation and for that matter we shall not send any delegation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The paper concerned will now publish what has been recorded here now.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): I think I was in the House and was perturbed when the Minister made this particular statement. He clearly stated Kakamega District. If the HANSARD can be sought, we will find Kakamega District clearly written in. A delegation had come to state clearly that some people—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do not pursue this. We have got it quite clear that Mr. Njonjo did refer to a delegation from Kakamega District, but on being pressed, he made it perfectly clear, that he did not allege that any such delegation included any member from that area. That is enough.

POINT OF ORDER

NOTICE OF MOTION UNDER S.O. 20—NOT ALLOWED: MORE INFORMATION REQUIRED

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are faced with another threat of a strike by the Kenya National Union of Teachers and its members. This was reported in the papers about a day or two ago. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to raise this matter under Standing Order No. 20. You have already given a ruling that it would not be possible today but if possible, I hope you would not mind to direct me and others

[Mr. arap Biy] in the House how we can approach it. This is simply because we would like to avoid this threat.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. arap Biy, I should in any case wish to see more of the facts of the case before I said whether it was a proper occasion for the Adjournment of the House under Standing Order No. 20. I think it is desirable that you should show me what material you have, sometimes before the House sits again. If, in the meantime, you would like to put in a Question by Private Notice, as to how matters stand, I am almost certain that I should be able to allow that.

COMMITTEE OF SUPPLY

(Order for Committee read)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

IN THE COMMITTEE

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

MOTION

STATEMENT OF EXCESSES: 1965/66

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, a sum not exceeding K£108,164.10.05 cents be issued from the Consolidated Fund to meet expenditure during the year ending 30th June 1966, in respect of Statement of Excesses 1965/66.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, Sir, looking at my copy of the 1965/66 Estimate of Excesses, as stated thereof a sum of K£678 18s. 34 cents.

Mr. Chairman, what I am trying to find from the Minister— I see that they are not paying any attention at all—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Shikuku, I think we will discuss this according to the departments, so that we do not have an overlapping of debate. We will start with Vote 2— State House. You are in order, go on.

VOTE 2—STATE HOUSE

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you Sir. Now Mr. Chairman, Sir, I see the Minister is talking. I think this is very serious because if you look at the explanation, they say "The Excess Vote of K£678 18s. 34 cents was due to the failure of the Accounting Officer to bring to Account Appropriations in Aid in time". Note the word "failure". His failure, not our failure, but his failure. That is the operative word. Are we here Sir, as a National Assembly to accept these failures to take our time? The answer is certainly no. Now, Sir, why this Accounting Officer has not been sacked, only God knows. If we have to encourage inefficiency, laziness and failures, and we come and admit them in writing, even our own grandchildren will laugh at us. I disapprove of this very vehemently. The other thing Mr. Chairman, Sir, is that you will find that the explanation below says that "The Public Accounts Committee has examined the circumstances leading to the excess expenditure and recommended that where there was a split in a Ministry, the division of funds should be carried out with greater care in future." "The Public Accounts Committee has examined the circumstances leading to the excess expenditure and has accepted the Accounting Officer's assurance that there would be no recurrence".

He is assuring us, the taxpayers, because of his past failures that it will never happen again. Is this the money of the accounting officer? If it is not the money of the accounting officer, then the money belongs to the public, are we to accept this and follow the explanation? Mr. Chairman, I take great exception to this, because if we have to get only assurance, from this person who, if he is so big that even the Public Accounts Committee, could not recommend his sacking—I would like to know who this guy is—who is so big that he can only give an assurance that he will never do it again, and we say "Hallelujah" and "Amen", he will never do it again. Who is he?

An hon. Member: Is he around?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to be told this by the Assistant Minister, who is just taking it easy—he is just looking there and smiling away. Mr. Chairman, I hear the Minister for Works saying this is not important—I wish the Taita people could hear him saying this; he has put on so much weight. He will not come back to this House. It is important, Mr. Chairman when it comes to the question of public money. For the Minister to say that it is not important, it is only the devil that can help him.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir. Is this not an insult to the hon. Minister for roads, when the hon. Member for Butere, tells him that he has put on so much weight that he does not care about this?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think if it is a question of insult, you are adding to it, Mr. Biy, by trying to raise something else. We do not want a lot of points of order. We have a lot of work to do.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, this is for the sake of record. The hon. Member, Mr. Chairman, called the Minister, "the Minister for roads", how does that go in the record?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): He is in order. we will go on now.

Mr. Shikuku: He has made the situation even worse. Now, Sir, I would like to have a definite statement or explanation from the Minister, why first of all, he accepts these excesses of expenditure, due to the failure of the accounting officer, and also why nothing has been done and only an assurance from the said officer that he will never do it again when he has messed up the public funds.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, this is all I have to say, on Vote 2, the State House.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I very much agree with the hon. Member for Butere, on this particular issue. There is one problem which he himself, other hon. Members and I have to face. The problem we might have to face is that the Public Accounts Committee, in its second paragraph says, Mr. Chairman, "the Public Accounts Committee, has examined the circumstances leading to the excess expenditure and have accepted the accounting officer's assurance that there will be no recurrence of excesses of expenditure again".

What I am saying is that the Public Accounts Committee is a committee answerable to this House, and it is the Accounting Committee, that we will have to take to task on this issue. In view of the fact that the accounting officer in any Ministry, is the supervisor of all moneys spent.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Lubembe, we have already discussed the Report of the Public Accounts Committee, and we passed it a long time ago. We cannot go on discussing the Public Accounts Committee's Report at this stage. We have to decide whether or not we are passing this excess expenditure. We cannot go back to the previous debate that has already taken place, in full on the Public Accounts Committee.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I am sorry that you really took me on the wrong direction, I was not going to discuss the Public Accounts Committee, because it is not here.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): You did say you were going to take the Public Accounts Committee to task.

Mr. Lubembe: I am saying that those are the people to take to task, and not this particular one accounting officer.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Not at this stage.

Mr. Lubembe: Yes, Sir, not at this stage Mr. Chairman. I would only say that everybody knows, that a Permanent Secretary of any Ministry does all the job of supervising money, and also he is the Accounting Officer. This is a political appointment, and we would like to get assurance from the Minister that he would convey to His Excellency that these kinds of big mistakes should not be repeated by the accounting officers, and if such things happen again, the Minister will have to draw the attention of His Excellency the President to these particular mistakes, so that disciplinary action can be taken.

One more point, Mr. Chairman, Sir, that I would like to add that it is true, is that a thing like this has to be brought here so that we are committed to having to accept a mistake; to me that is not good. I hope, in future, the Minister, whether there is a failure or something like that, will not put in a clause like this. The Minister should say that some explanation has already been given, but when he says that there is a failure and we are being asked to be a party to it, it means that we also are approving this particular failure. That will be very difficult for any Member to approve.

With this, Mr. Chairman, I beg to support.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Chairman, Sir, my colleagues have already said enough about this, that we do not want to approve something which really can show us up in the eyes of the public as being failures also. Sir, it is a big shame for the Government, particularly the Treasury, when we have State House, which should set a very clear and good example, spending KSh. 130,000 without the authority of this House. We should give whoever is in charge of the affairs of State House a warning. If anything of this nature happens again, that very same gentleman should be taken before a court of law and tried and put inside. We do not want to approve something which really seems to be a lot of money. This amount is enough for a secondary school in one of the districts of the country. We lack secondary schools, water projects, and so on, and we would like to see that this money is taken good care of. How many fellows in the Republic of Kenya go to State House and make use of this money? Is the hon. Lubembe going there almost every evening to make use of this money? Why is he complaining? Why is he shouting too much?

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, can the hon. Member substantiate that I go to State House every evening and make use of this money?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): He is not saying that you are going there. He is only asking what is known as a rhetorical question.

Mr. arap Bly: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I was only making a point. My hon. friend was making a lot of kelele and that is why I said that probably he was going to State House to consume all this money.

Mr. Chairman, I want to sound a note of warning. This is very serious. I think the Minister for Finance might get away with it this time, but, next time, there will be no further getting away with it. I suggest that we clear this amount of money because if we do not, then the KPU might make use of this saying, "Look, Kanu Government has made use of this money and they never cleared up this excess". Therefore, Sir, we would like to clean up this country by putting things on a proper footing.

I hope the Minister for Finance will go deeper into this and warn everybody, including those in charge of State House.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to make it very clear that we in the Treasury are very particular about excesses of expenditure, not necessarily only of State House but of every Ministry. Sometimes we do become extremely unpopular over this. That type of unpopularity has never worried me or the Treasury.

It is quite possible in any Ministry, and we have had instances of this nature, where expenditure of this kind has not been reported on time. Then we find these things later on. As soon as we find them, we report them to the Auditor-General.

He has made his report to the Public Accounts Committee of this Assembly. All we are trying now to do is to ensure, since the Committee itself has agreed that this was in excess, and being satisfied, all we want is to clear this in our accounts. There is no money that is going to be spent any more. This is just to put our accounts right.

I hope that the hon. Members are full of forgiveness. If this particular individual has made a mistake, well all I can say is that we are all human beings. Anyone else can also make a mistake. This was a mistake; the account was not rendered in time. Therefore, the accounts as audited showed this excess.

(Vote 2 agreed to)

VOTE 7—MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

Mr. Munyi: All I want to say, Mr. Chairman, is that the hon. Minister interrupted before I could say something about State House. Sir, I do know what is going on in the Treasury.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I am wondering, on a point of order, where we are. Are we still on Vote 2?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We are now on Vote 7.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Chairman, I very fully agree with the Minister that the Ministry is becoming a little bit unpopular but, in fact, Sir, the Minister has been doing an excellent job. On many occasions, he has been pressurized to approve some excess expenditure, but, every time, he has been very firm. Therefore, Sir, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the hon. Mr. Gichuru for the firm action he has been taking to demonstrate in no uncertain terms that he will never approve money which has not been processed by this hon. House.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, even Members of the Opposition would agree with me that the action which the Minister has been taking is an action which should be credited, because the Minister has been following the directive which was given to him by the House, that, unless any expenditure has been approved by the House, it should not be given the okay, it should not be cleared by his Ministry.

Mr. Chairman I would like to remind hon. Members that the father of the Kenya nation has never stayed at State House. Therefore, Sir, we should—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! Mr. Munyi, you know that we are not discussing State House any more. We have passed that Vote a good five or ten minutes ago. We are now discussing the Vote of the Ministry of Defence.

Mr. Munyi: Sir, I very fully agree with you but I wanted only to say that Mzee has not been living there and, therefore—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is not relevant.

Mr. Munyi: To come now to the Ministry of Defence, Mr. Chairman, I would like to say that I am very much concerned by the amount of money which has been used by this Ministry. When we come to page 3 we realize that the Immigration Department was transferred some time ago from the Ministry of Defence to the Ministry of Home Affairs. Therefore, I do not see the reason why there has been an excess of expenditure in this Ministry. Many hon. Members have, for a very long time, been complaining that what has been going on for the last few months in the Ministry of Defence is something which has only been helping people from one particular area.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! This has nothing to do with this I am afraid. I do not know to what you are referring that the Ministry of Defence should help people in your particular area. You have got to stick to the relevance of the Vote, otherwise you will speak for two hours because I know you are capable of doing that.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Chairman, Sir, naturally I am within the framework of the Vote, but in actual fact—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that we seem to have Members only repeating themselves on this issue, may I be in order to call upon the Mover to reply?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Not yet, but Mr. Munyi does seem to be speaking at length and I cannot, as yet, fully appreciate the relevance of what he is saying. Perhaps he will now come to the point.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Chairman, Sir, in actual fact, hon. Members are going to agree with me that although the figures have been given to us, what is important is that it does not matter what amount of money is used by the Ministry of Defence, but what matters is that I will read an explanation: "As a result of changes in the—

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, in view of the fact that may not be possible for the hon. Member to be relevant to what is being discussed, should he not be asked to stop so that the other hon. Members can be asked to contribute and we can go ahead?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will give Mr. Munyi one more chance. Mr. Munyi, please try to be relevant. I do not know whether you have prepared yourself or you are now trying to find out what you want to say. There are so many other Members who also want to speak and if you keep the Floor the whole time nobody else can speak.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. My good friend wanted to interject just for the sake of interjecting.

Mr. Chairman, now I am coming to the very point which I was trying to emphasize. My point is that it is very true that the figure that has been given here is a very clear figure. What I would like the Minister responsible to do is to clarify and give further explanation. Even the hon. Member for Starehe will agree with me that he would like this to be put in that category of saying that this was used for one particular purpose and that was used for another particular purpose.

We agree, Mr. Chairman, that the amount given is quite reasonable and even the Member for Nakuru would like to know this. He would like the Minister to explain further so that he will be in a position to explain to his electors that we approved this amount of money and that when we approved that amount was used for this particular thing and the other one was used for that particular thing. We do not have any quarrel and this is important.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think you have made your point.

Mr. Munyi: Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I would like to—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Sit down, Mr. Munyi.

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, with due respect to my friend the hon. Kamwithi, are we made to accept what he says because it seems as if he is dwelling on his imagination which is irrelevant from the Bill? Mr. Chairman, can you rule that he stops forthwith so that we can get on with the business?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I do rule that he stops. That is enough now, Mr. Munyi, I think you have made your point.

Mr. Munyi: I want to emphasize that—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is enough.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know when we come to a money Bill it is a difficult topic, because Members try to cover up by wandering around. I would like to be very specific and ask questions on the first paragraph under this Vote 7, and the excess and the circumstances which arose.

It seems, Mr. Chairman, Sir, that there is quite a lot of confusion in the first paragraph, because, first of all, it refers to the original Estimate and then the Supplementary Estimate and then the Appropriation, and there is a big confusion. I do not know where this particular department was heading to, whether they actually had an officer-in-charge who knew what was going to happen, or whether they just had people sleeping who woke up the following morning to find themselves in the Ministry of Home Affairs with their books forgotten and so they did not know what to do. We would like the Minister to explain why this happened and why there was an oversight and there was this gross reduction of K£86,238 which showed that this should have been reduced when this department was transferred to Home Affairs. Later on they discovered that this was a gross reduction and therefore there was an excess of expenditure. In this case, we would like the Minister to explain why this happened; whether the officer was not following up his books properly. What new things happened when they moved? Did they move with the same files and the same personnel? Did they increase the number of people, or what happened? How is it that they discovered that they had reduced so much that there was now an over expenditure of Sh. 230,000? Mr. Chairman, this is a lot of money and we would like to know how this money was actually spent. We would not like to take it for granted that the mere fact that a department is transferred from one Ministry to another justifies an excess. We would like to know the reason why this actually happened and why it was not immediately corrected, so that when we vote, we know exactly for whom we are voting and we do not just throw money to careless officers who do not know how to account for the expenditure.

Mr. Chairman, in the second paragraph, I would also like the Minister to assure this House that the Treasury has confirmed that the position has improved. This is a definite recommendation from our hon. Standing Committee of the Public Accounts and we would not like just to leave it like that, because many things are usually left for granted by us without any action being taken. We would like to know from the Treasury what action has been taken to ensure that this sort of confusion does not arise again, or does not arise in other years, because we know there are a few years from which expenses are going to be brought into this House. We would like to know what definite confirmation the Treasury or the Ministry of Finance has got from these confused officers in the immigration section that there is not going to be an excess again.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, you know that under this Motion we have the Minister for Home Affairs coming again, and so we would also like to know whether it is the same officer doing the accounting or not, because if he is, he is dumb, useless.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, I want the explanation.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the factors which brought about this state of affairs and which are queried by the hon. Members are mainly two. One is the split in the Ministry: at that time in 1965, the Ministry used to be the Ministry of Internal Security and Defence and at that time the Department of Immigration was under the Ministry. Unfortunately, I must admit, during that time the Chief Accountant who was responsible for the Ministry was on leave and in his place was an expatriate accountant who was not very familiar with the procedure of our accounting.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, the state of affairs which is reflected in this is that the officers concerned were taken to task by the Public Accounts Committee and recommendations made by the Public Accounts Committee were seriously taken by the Treasury. I can assure the hon. Members that the recommendations that were made by the Public Accounts Committee have been implemented and we went even further to say to all Accounting Officers that in future if there is any excess of expenditure which is not authorized, they will be responsible for payment of such excesses.

I hope the hon. Members will be satisfied that we in the Treasury take a very, very exceptional view of such state of affairs and I can assure them that the position has very much improved and such things will never be repeated.

(Vote 7 agreed to)

VOTE 11—MINISTRY OF EDUCATION

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Attorney-General is asking me why I am on my feet. Mr. Chairman, I am paid to talk and to scrutinize any expenditure and that is what I am here for.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it right for the hon. Member just to get publicity by saying that I am opposing him and to say that I opposed him because I did not say anything about the hon. Member? If he wants the Gallery to hear that he is being opposed, let him say so.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think you will accept the correction, Mr. Shikuku. The Attorney-General says that he did not make an interjection.

Mr. Shikuku: He denies, but I heard him, Sir, and I am not a liar.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Let us forget it now.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Sir.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Not just now as I am dealing with a point of order now. The point of order is that you are saying that the Attorney-General made an interjection but the Attorney-General says that he did not. I am not in a position, I am afraid, to decide this issue but, in any event, it is quite irrelevant.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you. It is a question of—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I am not trying either to say the hon. Member heard or did not hear, the truth is that by saying that the hon. Member wants to get publicity, wants the people in the Gallery to hear, is that not imputing bad motives on the hon. Member? By saying that he is doing that because he wants to get publicity, is the Attorney-General not imputing bad motives on the Member?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Lubembe, in this particular case, if no interjection was made and if a reply in the terms made by Mr. Shikuku was made saying that So-and-so is saying: "Why am I on my feet as I am paid for it", that is reasonable grounds for somebody to be annoyed because, in fact, he is being accused of doing something he never did. I think you have both had a good innings on that and so we will not go on with it.

Mr. Shikuku: I do not need any publicity from the Attorney-General. Who is he anyway as far as the Butere people are concerned?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): All right.

Mr. Shikuku: Now, Sir, I am drawing your attention to page 4 where the explanation says: "An excess of K£52,027.2.9 cts." Below that you will read that the explanation goes on to say: "The Public Accounts Committee accepted the Accounting Officer's explanation that the excess . . ."—the one I mentioned of £52,027.2.9 cts.— ". . . was caused by miscalculation . . ."—the word, Mr. Chairman, is "miscalculation"—". . . of provisions within the Ministry but warned that the Accounting Officer should exercise greater care in the future."

Because of miscalculation £52,027.2.9 cts. was spent in excess. If you work out this figure you will find that we could have had Harambee secondary schools aided, we could have had a clinic, and I have been asking for a police station to be built in Kisa Location and this could have been built. However, because somebody miscalculated this money when we ask for anything they say, "There are no funds, there are no funds". However, they miscalculated to the tune of £52,000. This is something which we cannot accept, Mr. Chairman. The Minister for Finance is not responsible himself because he is a Member for Limuru and he is in charge of a Ministry, but somebody is paid to do a good job for the Minister but not to come here and look all miserable at bringing this terrible mistake here. I think the Minister should take it upon himself to sack this type of officer who lets him down so badly because we need this money in this country.

I would like to have an assurance from the Minister that this particular officer will be sacked because this £52,000 could have built a police station or a clinic or aided those poor children who do not have parents here so that they could have free education because somebody pays for them. This money, however, has gone into somebody's pocket and the only thing that is said is that the committee—and I see one of the Members of the committee here—says he should exercise more care in future. That is all, the money is gone. Maneno exercise. How long are we going to tolerate it? We need every single cent in this country to help our country. I think the Minister will agree with me that this particular person and any officer who is careless and his carelessness costs some money, should not just be left. We should keep them from doing their jobs and kick them out. It is normal here when you ask for anything to be told that there are no funds and yet there is misuse like this.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, the points that have just been raised by the hon. Member for Butere are correct in the sense that, particularly in the Ministry of Education when you have teachers coming in and going out, you are supposed to overlook some of these things. I would definitely tell him that this is not the kind of thing we tolerate in the Treasury. We have made our complaints a little stronger than the hon. Member, but I am glad that he has done this, because the Ministry itself will come to agree that what we say in the Treasury is the truth. We cannot hide a thing like this. Money has been spent and all we are trying to do is correct our books and inform the House that this money was spent although we did not know about it at that time, and now we know everything we are assured that it was well spent; it was not stolen. We, who are in the Treasury, ought to have been informed. We are only trying to correct these errors so that the Auditor-General does not say we just skipped these over-expenditures just like that.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, the Ministry of Finance is to be congratulated for having been very firm on this. This is witnessed by their bringing this to the House. What makes it worse is that it is stated here that this was over-expenditure on personal emoluments. This is very serious. It means that no matter whether this was stolen or not, my view is that when it involves personal expenditure it is very serious. I was listening one day, or reading about a case in court, where a State Counsel told the magistrate that people who do this are people who commit robbery without violence. When you have this kind of robbery it is not good just to keep quiet about it.

The other point which I would like to make, Mr. Chairman, and I will repeat this, is about appointing top accounting officers in a Ministry without checking how ably they will do the work, or without checking how helpful they will be to the nation is going to put us into a lot of difficulties. I feel this is only happening because of appointing the wrong people to be accounting officers. The Assistant Minister has admitted that when an officer who was efficient was on leave an expatriate officer who did not know the work, was not properly conversant with the work, was appointed and who makes all the arrangements when one is on leave? It is the accounting officer who is a Permanent Secretary.

It is my submission, Sir, that there is a need now for His Excellency to scrutinize and find efficient Permanent Secretaries in the important Ministries. There are people who have stayed in these Ministries for a very long time and who know how to handle these things, but they were left out and these young boys were put in and now we are in a mess. To have this sort of thing being brought to the House, to the Press, to the public and so on is very wrong. I feel the Ministry of Finance must be congratulated, and we should convey to His Excellency that we feel proper appointments of better people, who can really take care of these kind of mistakes and see that they do not happen again, should be made.

With these few remarks, Mr. Chairman, I support the proposal.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think I should say something here being a member of the Public Accounts Committee, and I notice my hon. friend gave the impression that may be the Public Accounts Committee was not being very firm on this.

I would like to assure the House that the Public Accounts Committee really takes these accounting officers to task. As a matter of fact, we are much firmer than the Ministry of Finance. We deal very seriously with these accounting officers, and question them until they begin sweating and trembling some of them.

Mr. Chairman, Sir, we are very much against the excess accounts, because the accounting officers can always obtain extra money by informing the Ministry of Finance so that they can bring in a Supplementary Estimate. When they spend beyond the amount they are voted, it is a very serious affair and we have always been very firm on this. I think, however, my hon. friend from Butere is led by the following, and I quote—

“The Public Accounts Committee accepted the Accounting Officer’s explanation that the excess was caused by miscalculation of provision within the Ministry but warned that the Accounting Officer should exercise greater care in the future.”

This is only a summary and is not a verbatim report of the questions we put to the accounting officer, and if he had seen that he would have seen that the summary was justifiable.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We are not really discussing the Public Accounts Committee. I gave you a chance to reply to what has been said.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Thank you, Mr. Chairman, Sir.

One thing I would like to say is that the Excess Vote we accept in this manner, and may be the accounting officer could not help this. Where it is spent on parties and so forth, we have always recommended that they should be surcharged themselves.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I would like to say that we very much appreciate the scrutinies by the Public Accounts Committee, but, at the same time, I wish to remove any doubt or confusion in the minds of the hon. Members, in case they have any impression that perhaps these excesses are misappropriation. I would like to make it clear that these are not misappropriations of accounts, but are merely expenditure on items which perhaps did not receive authority and this is why the Treasury is always quarrelling with the Ministries which usually spend without authority. This is why, Mr. Chairman, I would like to tell the hon. Members that the Financial Orders are being revised in order to establish stringent measures, even taking into account the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee so that we do not have any repetition of such nature.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Before we get to the next Vote I would like to remind hon. Members that we have only one day for three of these Motions, in other words the two Supplementary Estimates and this particular one on excess, the Statement of Excess. We have to put all these to the vote at six o’clock. If hon. Members do want to discuss a little more on the other Supplementary Estimates, then I suggest we move a little faster and this is what I have been trying to do. Please try and make the speeches shorter so that everybody can have the chance to speak.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, your guidance is needed here. Supposing we do not finish today will we not have another day?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No. I am afraid at six o’clock we put all the rest to the vote. If we have not even come to the first Supplementary Estimate we still have to put them all to the vote. So it is in the interest of Members, if they do want to discuss other items, then they should make their speeches short and move a little faster.

(Vote 11 agreed to)

VOTE 18—THE VOICE OF KENYA

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Chairman, I note the Voice of Kenya has, as usual, spent in excess of over £16,000 and the explanation given below says and I quote:—

“The Public Accounts Committee has examined the circumstances leading to the excess expenditure and noted that lack of proper organization and control of finances contributed to the excess expenditure. The committee recommended that the excess be met subject to Treasury’s confirmation that the control has been improved. The Accounting Officer has given an assurance that no expenditure will in future be incurred without proper approval.”

What I would like to know here, Mr. Chairman, is whether the Treasury is now satisfied that proper control of accounts is being exercised, and also as they say it was on the Presidential Press Unit Subheads I would like this figure broken down in such a way that it does not hide the Presidential Press Unit only, because this only appears to be £4,946.11.85, but we would like to know what happened to the rest. If we are receiving inferior services from the Voice of Kenya, we would like to know how this is spent and how it happened that they spent so much money without using proper control.

I have noted, Mr. Chairman, that the other day there were prosecutions within the Ministry and I think some people were imprisoned because of claiming money which was not actually due to them. Can we be given an assurance that not everybody in that Ministry is receiving this free money by claiming that they are writing scripts for the Voice of Kenya while they are not doing anything?

Mr. Chairman, I would also like to know whether this misuse was also contributed to by the fact that there are some people who are given more chances to use the Voice of Kenya, including cameras, when somebody is just opening, let us say, a small dip somewhere in the North-Eastern Province, when they sent a whole team there to give them publicity while there are people who are opening big secondary schools to which 100,000 people have contributed money, yet they cannot be given publicity. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I feel we should be given a proper explanation since everybody in this country, including the hon. Members and everybody else here, know that nothing has been improved in the Voice of Kenya. They are continuing to misuse this money and it is no wonder if during the coming year we are asked again to give our consent to excesses which might be three times as great because of this misconduct and misuse of public funds by people who are not caring simply because they want their own publicity.

[The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

We must also, Mr. Deputy Chairman, be assured here that this Voice of Kenya will truly be the voice of Kenya and not the voice of a few. It must not be the voice of just a few people going round and using all the tax-payers’ money without giving the people the quality of the news they want. We would like to be assured by the Minister for Finance that they have already controlled this and if they have then let him tell me why this sort of thing is happening everywhere in the country where you see schoolgirls playing netball but when a Member of Parliament opens a big school there is no mention of this anywhere on the Voice of Kenya.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I would like to reply to just a few of these points.

First of all, I would like to say that the Voice of Kenya is truly the voice of Kenya. If it is misused, then it is up to this House to make complaints. Unfortunately, at the moment, the Minister for Information and Broadcasting has bronchitis, I think it is, and he cannot speak. I hope the next time he will be able to elaborate much more on this. From what I listen to on the Voice of Kenya and I also watch television, I am impressed that the Voice of Kenya is truly the Voice of Kenya.

I think you will find that one of the reasons why we have this over-expenditure is that when the expatriates—and we have always pushed the Ministries to Africanize—when the expatriates left and Africans took over, we did not have houses for them. We had to try and rent flats as near to Broadcasting House as possible. With the result, that these were very expensive and as these people did not have either cars or houses so we had to get housing for them as near as possible to Broadcasting House. That accounts for some of the excess expenditure.

Before last year, we did not have a Presidential Unit which does a lot of good. It shows the President moving around in the countryside, and it does help to publicize the Government in the country and we feel it is fitting that this money should have been spent. Unfortunately, it did not come about in the usual way. The thought of adding more cameras and so on came much later and we had no provision for it in our Estimates. This is why we, in the Treasury, have felt sympathetic to these two main items and we felt we should ask the House to accept them and give them the legal status which they deserve.

I would like to give assurance that this has been gone into very much and we have no complaint. If there were any misappropriation of funds, we would have said so. The committee which goes into these matters would also have mentioned this and commented on them. It is unfortunate that we had these allowances to pay. We had to buy parts of the Presidential Unit which we so much like and which is giving a lot of publicity to whatever the President is doing today. To argue that perhaps when every Tom, Dick or Harry goes to make a speech then the cameras should come round, I think this is taking things too far. I think if one had any specific occasion on which one had asked to be covered, like opening a school or doing something else which was really of national importance, and if the Voice of Kenya refused to do this then there would be a case for complaint. The Members will agree with me that we cannot have a camera in every street in the country of Kenya. They are very expensive items and unfortunately at the moment we can only afford to pay for a camera for the President alone.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I do not intend to be long on this but would just like to ask the Minister for Finance to tell this House why this sum was not included in the Budget Estimates which followed this Financial Year, say 1966/1967, or 1967/68 or, for that matter, 1968/1969, which we have already gone into?

Further, Mr. Deputy Chairman, I would like the Minister to tell this House, even though he says the money will come from the Consolidated Fund, where in actual fact is this money going to come from? I can remember that all the money which has been, so to speak, put in the Consolidated Fund has been shown where it is going to come from and for what specific projects it is intended to use it for. Now that more money is going to be needed from the Fund then I think we would like to know from where this money is going to come so that it is put in the Consolidated Fund from which we can then withdraw?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I have been repeating myself so often. This money has already been spent. If you read in the book you have, you will notice that it is expenditure in excess of what was allowed. All we are trying to do now is to legalize the position. The money was spent; it was necessarily spent and all we want is the approval so that I can put my books right and say the excesses have been covered.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Perhaps I can help further by an explanation of one point the hon. Member raised. When you get Excess Expenditure in any year, that is unauthorized Expenditure; and if you do not cover it by a Supplementary Estimate in that year, then it is not proper to cover it by a Supplementary Estimate or any other Estimate in the next year. It has to be faced openly as an excess and authorized in that way.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I did not intend to speak on this kind of thing which is very clear. I was surprised when the Minister of Finance inclined to reduce this kind of expenditure by trying to imply that there are some very important jobs that have been done with this money like buying cameras and other things, like paying for houses in Nairobi when for example a district like Meru has had no Information Officer all these years. This money was spent in 1965 and I have been asking question for example, to have an Information Officer. Now the Minister was trying to make right, this kind of expenditure and I would like to ask him to tell his friend, the Minister for Information and Broadcasting, that when they come to do this kind of thing again, misusing money for the wrong purposes and at the wrong time, they should remember that if they had proper control, areas like Meru, maybe Kericho, maybe Turkana and other places would have Information Officers. We are sorry to have to be faced with these miscalculations, but we do think that people in Nairobi should tailor their suits according to the needs of the land and remember the outlying districts, and if the Minister would please, when he goes to advise them, remind them of that. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I remind you that when we are dealing with Excess Expenditure of one or two particular items, we cannot go into all the shortcomings of the Ministry concerned in other directions.

Mr. Lubembe: I have only two questions Mr. Deputy Chairman. One in the last paragraph, it says that the Accounting Officers have given an assurance that no expenditure will be in future incurred without proper approval. The Minister has said that he agrees that there was a need for this particular Ministry to spend the money. Why was it necessary again to ask for an assurance from the Accounting Officer? This is one question. The second question is that the Minister said that the question of housing was necessary after the expatriates had left. Now, what happened to the houses where these expatriates used to stay? Did they go with those houses or did they remain here? If they remained why were the Africans who took over not given the opportunity to use these houses? Another question is that of proper organization. I see, talking about assurance, I thought that the only assurance the Accounting Officer could have given is that there will be proper organization in the Ministry other than the question of money being counted. These three questions made my problem, Mr. Chairman.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I think, Sir, I have answered quite a number of the questions that my friend, the hon. Lubembe is asking. I would like to state that quite a number of these people who left Broadcasting House, used to live in their own houses. I am told by the Minister who I am afraid, cannot speak himself today, is that these people are still here, they still live in Parklands—live in their own houses and therefore the Ministry was faced with the problem of one, Africanizing and two, housing. This is why these Africans were put into the Delamere Flats. I think I have already answered the other questions, Sir.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the Minister in fact does not seem to be having a real defence because, despite the excuse he is trying to air in this House, he knows pretty well what has caused the actual excess is lack of control. Mr. Chairman, Sir, his Treasury was adamant on the method employed during the period 1966 when this money was over-spent or when the excess was incurred, so, obviously, he should not have to be questioned here in this House, and therefore, if he is defending the issues that are already known, to have been official is not a point. What he should be doing now is to ask the House to forgive him, forgive the Treasury, forgive the Government and treat it as a foregone conclusion and do away with this Motion. This is what I thought he should be appealing for, because even if he cried very much here, this money will not be recovered in any way whatsoever. It is now three years, since this money was spent illegally because there was no authorization by the House. Therefore, there is no point in the Minister now trying to defend this issue; the only thing is that he admits that this was a mistake and promises the House there will be corrections and therefore hope that there will be no repetition. That is all, Mr. Chairman.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): I think that is what the Minister has been trying to do. He has been offering some excuse but not to the extent of deporting officers. We can go on with the next Vote.

(Vote 18 agreed to)

VOTE 21—MINISTRY OF HOME AFFAIRS

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not have really much to say on this. I have very few things to explain. It appears that most of this money was spent on prisons and food and some other things. Can the Minister tell us whether the reason was that many people were sent to prison and this is why there was the need to spend more money to get food for these people? If so, what was the cause? That is all I want to ask.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I have been informed, because I was worried too, and I have to try and dig into some of these things. In the prisons, it has now become a habit that the prisoners must have meat three times a day.

An hon. Member: Three time a week.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru):—Oh, yes, three times a week. They also get a few other things and I am worried that if we make the prisons extremely comfortable, there are people who would prefer to live there than get out. I can assure the House that we are going into this and we are still discussing it, but because the year is coming to an end—the Financial Year—that is why we have to bring these things in so as to close our books at the end of this month. The whole question of rations and so on is being gone into.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Chairman, I thank the Minister for his explanation but according to the note of explanation its says:—

“The Public Accounts Committee noted that the Ministry foresaw that there would be excess expenditure and submitted a report to the Treasury in June 1966”.

Sir, my question there is, if they saw there would be an excess of expenditure, why did they not even ask for this during the last financial year, 1967, if they knew that this would be there?

The second point, Mr. Chairman, the last time when we had the Report of the Public Accounts Committee here it was stated that it was in this department, the Prisons Department, where some cattle were taken away by an officer who was surcharged by the auditors. Is the Minister not now prepared to tell us whether these cattle were kept for milk and meat for the prisoners, and whether this is the reason why they had to use more money, because their ngombes had been taken away by one of the officers who took them away to his house?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, that particular officer that the hon. Member is referring to was dealt with accordingly to law. I do not house these people. I am afraid, Mr. Deputy Chairman, I cannot discuss this particular gentleman.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): I do not think this has anything to do with this matter, because those were cattle from the farm and not cattle connected with meat rations for the prisoners.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, my reason for asking that is because the prisons have farms and on these farms they have, they grow everything. Therefore, they get very little food from outside. So, I was trying to put these cattle into those farms thinking that they would be good for chakula and also good for milk.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): I think that is a bit, too farfetched to make any connexion.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Chairman, I do not have much to say on this but when the Minister talks in terms of meat three times a week for the prisoners; in other words, Sir, they only eat vegetables twice a week, would he not take it upon himself— Mr. Deputy Chairman, I eat vegetables throughout. I am the healthiest Member of this House. So why should not the prisoners only eat vegetables three times a week? Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I am sure you will agree with me that I have never fallen ill since I came to this Parliament. The last time I was ill was during 1953. That shows I am very healthy.

Now, Sir, would the Minister assure us that we are going to cut down this expenditure, and that he will take it upon himself to see to it that this luxurious or unnecessary expenditure is cut down and the prisoners given a lot of vegetables because that is good for them? As a matter of fact, Sir, the people who have lived longer in this world are those who eat vegetables. I refer to the Russian great men and many other people who eat vegetables and not meat. So let the prisoners eat more vegetables and not meat so that they can use less of our money.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Sir, what the hon. Member for Butere has just said is really a reproduction of what I have said before. I do not think I have any other answer to it.

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, we must go on. We have quite a lot of ground to cover in a short time this afternoon.

MOTION

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATE NO. 2 OF 1968/69—RECURRENT

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, a sum not exceeding K£638,394 be issued from the Consolidated Fund to meet expenditure during the year ending 30th June 1969, in respect of Supplementary Estimate No. 2 of 1968/69 (Recurrent Expenditure).

VOTE 1—OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Personal Emoluments

Subhead A2—Provincial Administration

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Chairman, I see there is a definite additional sum of K£210,000 for provincial administration and so forth. Now, under the Explanatory Note, which I do not quite agree with, I want the Minister to tell me how he arrives at this sum. I see there are such things "as payment in arrears of revision of salaries which were not paid in 1967/68" and "adjustment of salaries arising from the segmentation of the scale applicable to district officers", and so forth. The Minister should explain to us in detail how this is arrived at. The explanation given here is more or less in a nutshell. Could he give us a detailed explanation, of how we increased this to the sum of K£210,000? When we ask for a district office headquarters in our areas, we are told there are no funds. Where did this money go to and who are these people who consumed this money?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, this sum of money involves vacancies for about 49 administrative officers throughout the country. All these posts are filled— Out of the 49, there are 15 remaining; ten are already committed and about five are still vacant.

Sir, the payment of salaries arrears relating to the financial year 1967/68, during the current financial year, arises from inevitable difficulties in the preparation and transmission of documents from provincial personnel branches to the Ministry headquarters. This was due to the amount of work involved in the implementation of the recommendations of the Salaries Review Commission.

Again, Sir, the adjustment of salaries in respect of administrative officers involved complicated exercises and, as a result, it was not finalized until a few months before the commencement of the financial year 1968/69, and thus was too late for any change to be made in the provision already made for these salaries in the Annual Estimates. The provision required covers, not only the increased salary payable for the current financial year, but also same arrears due to officers for periods prior to 1st July 1968.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I only want to get answers to two questions. One, when were these vacant posts discovered, and since there was no money, why were they not left vacant until the money was voted for the following year?

The next one, this extra expenditure arising out of the segmentation of the scale applicable to district officers. What kind of segmentation is this because they are only district officers? I do not know what other people are there, district assistants, and so on. If there was no money for that, why did they not wait before they segmented so much?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, it was very essential to have these posts filled because if these posts were not filled, then the provincial administrative branches in the country would have been understaffed and, therefore, there was a fear of collapse in the work in the provincial administration at district level.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House why so many of these officers, if there is so much work for them to do, spend most of their time walking in the countryside with Ministers? Even the provincial commissioner spends most of his time accompanying the Ministers to various places. Why can they not cut down on this, what appears to be useless work, just roaming around in the reserves, not having anything specific to do and instead of doing their work in the office?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I wish to make it clear that work done by the administrative officers, whether provincial commissioners, district commissioners or district officers, when accompanying Ministers who are visiting different parts of the country, is a national duty which is essential for such administrative officers to do. These officers are not at this time roaming about in the countryside for nothing; they are accompanying Ministers to see the development throughout the country so as to encourage people to develop their areas.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, the Assistant Minister has raised a very important question, because when he comes here to demand that we should vote extra money for a particular Ministry, as this one, he cannot leave us by saying that there were services to be done. There should have been a breakdown in the services. He cannot make a generalization, he must be specific and show cause, and also convince us there was really a danger that the administration might have broken down and that is why this extra expenditure was really needed. We cannot be convinced by mere generalization.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, this House will recall that Members of Parliament have always been pressing the Government to see that there is efficient machinery to run the Government at all levels. So we cannot have efficient Government machinery at administrative levels if we are to leave posts vacant, without filling them, to see that the officers concerned do their work and to see that efficiency is achieved.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir I am only giving the Minister a warning again that he should advise, especially the Office of the President, not to divide some districts when the people in that given district are not willing to have the district divided into two. For example, the former Central Nyanza, this was done without the consent and the wish of the people of the given district. This is the cause of these excess. Now there are two district commissioners instead of one; more staff are being employed for the two areas which, really, should have been left as they were.

This is a development of the KPU areas and this is what we do not want.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I have not been convinced that we should vote this money and unless the Minister, or Assistant Minister, can consider giving me a proper answer, I do think we are going to take very serious action on this.

Sir, we want to have specific information and if he cannot give us specific information, the particular reason which necessitated that this money should be voted as a Supplementary Estimate, then he must get us another person who will convince us, who will give us the details.

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services]

was then talking to another hon. Member. The first reason is that there was the payment of arrears caused by revision of salaries, which were not paid in 1967/68 and the adjustment of salaries arising from the segmentation, that is, the scale point applicable to district officers—the district officers within the administration. This is one reason I am explaining this to the Leader of the Opposition because I think it is important that he should understand this point, and also follow the reasons for these over-expenditures, particularly because he is the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee. Now, this is one reason.

The second reason, Mr. Chairman, Sir, also explains that there was an under-estimation arising from filling the vacant posts of which no part or provision was made in the original printed estimate within the provincial administration. Therefore, it is this under-estimation that was being covered by the further expenditure, and also the correction within the segment of salaries of district officers. These two reasons have made the emoluments swell and the provision for the swell was not provided for originally, and hence the Supplementary Estimates. If the Leader of the Opposition will bear with the Government, he will see very clearly that the two reasons, for this expenditure, are valid and legitimate, and this is what we are trying to explain throughout, and is what the Assistant Minister has been explaining under A.2—Provincial Administration.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not have any question here since the Minister has explained everything, but I hope that the Leader of the Opposition is not going back to his usual talk that he sympathizes with the people who need to be helped. These district officers need money, because they have done some services to the Government and their salaries were under-estimated.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is the hon. Member in order to be discussing this now?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Although I, myself, am very strict about being relevant, I do not think I should stress it too hard. But we should be careful, and this being a fairly political House, we can use argument to show our particular point of view. In fact, he is in order.

Mr. Lubembe: Thank you, Mr. Chairman, Sir. I wish that question came from somebody who has never been in the Ministry of Finance. The hon. Member was there and was defeated and ran away.

I will say, Mr. Chairman, that in view of the fact that so many points have been explained, I do not want to go any further.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the question was that if there were these vacant posts, why, if there was no money, did they have to be filled, especially when the provincial commissioners, the district commissioners and the district officers found it necessary to roam around in the country for such a thing like a Kanu candidate selection meeting? Now, if there is time for the provincial commissioner or the district commissioner to attend such a meeting, merely to elect a Kanu candidate, is it not conceivable that there is not enough work in the office and that some of these vacancies could have been left out until work was found for these people which they could do in their offices.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the hon. Member probably misunderstood the whole intention. The posts, Mr. Chairman, Sir, were filled, and therefore there was work from the word "Go". However, it was very clear that the Supplementary Estimates had got to be revised to pay for the service of the officers who had been in the establishment.

Secondly, it was then later on discovered that it was necessary to adjust the salary scale for the arrears to make up the proper salary over the period which had to be paid. To allege that there was no work and that the posts were not originally filled is not true. If the posts were not originally filled, of course, the hon. Member is a financier himself and he would understand that the Government would not be so stupid as to pay for the work which has not been done. I am making the point that the work was done and the posts were filled from the word "Go". If the work had not been done, we are not as dull as the hon. Member thinks. We would not have paid for work which had not been done.

HEADQUARTERS—OTHER CHARGES

Subhead B6—Miscellaneous Other Charges

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is quite an interesting one—Miscellaneous Other Charges. When I look at the explanation, I find that it is on the caretaking of the Harambee House from the Ministry of Works which has moved to new offices. I think we all agreed that this was quite necessary, but then there is an additional provisional required to cover the cost of telephone rentals, and that is what I am concerned with. Mr. Chairman, that building should be without any

[Mr. Odinga]

He has not actually given us any details and he is trying to argue on general questions. Yet, all the time, he is requesting us to approve a particular expenditure.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, it is not for me to say whether the Leader of the Opposition is convinced or not because, as usual, he is never convinced and he will never be convinced if he does not want to be convinced.

Mr. Odinga: On a point order, Sir, is this a proper allegation for the Assistant Minister to say that I have never been convinced on any question, when it is reasonable, in this House?

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, you must not get excited over that. That is the sort of thing that is said in Parliament many a time. It is not taken seriously. It is not out of order.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Chairman, I still want the Member to substantiate. This is serious. We are dealing with finance, which is something which is rather important and—

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): You are quite in order, Mr. Odinga, with what you raise, but the Assistant Minister is also in order in his parliamentary exaggeration.

Have you finished what you were saying, Mr. Balala?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I have stated very clearly the number of vacancies that were filled. I have given him figures, and if the hon. Mr. Odinga cannot be convinced with facts and figures that I have submitted to him, then I do not know how I can convince him.

I have stated very clearly that the number of posts involved are 49 throughout the country. If this number of 49 cannot convince the hon. Leader of the Opposition, as to be an appropriate number to have efficient machinery in the Government, then it is not for me to say whether Mr. Odinga is convinced or not. I have given convincing evidence and also figures. This is all I can say.

[The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Assistant Minister, who has never actually tasted any election at all, he talks of these things—

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask you whether the question of tasting election does arise in this debate on the Supplementary Estimate?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order, I am afraid. As Mr. Speaker said, in Parliament, when one speaks, one is allowed to use whatever arguments one wants so long as they are not abusive or anything of that sort. I do not think we ought to take this too seriously.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is the hon. Leader of the Opposition in order to allege that the hon. Assistant Minister has never tasted elections when, in fact, the hon. Assistant Minister was elected by the Members of this Parliament before we changed the Constitution?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sure he will stand corrected on that point of view, I am sure.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, I will go on to develop my point of view. To say that the vacancies were 49, this alone is not enough reason for us to vote a Supplementary Estimate. We wanted to know the urgency and the reason which actually necessitated that this amount of money should be voted as a Supplementary Estimate. Why did we not wait for the normal time of Estimates? We want to know this and if the Assistant Minister is incapable of answering, then he should have brought the proper man here, the man who would be able to convince us. This is a very clear thing we have before us.

Secondly, Sir, he has never been to the country and actually faced a constituency—and constituents—and that is why he was playing with the Minister for Social Services, whose performance in the country is well known.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the Leader of the Opposition should be patient and perhaps read page 2 of the same Supplementary Estimates. When he has read that part I will then point out two points which might convince him. In that section, Mr. Chairman, Sir, if the Leader of the Opposition sees the causes, or looks at the causes of these extra expenditures, he will see that they are only two. First, there was some revision of salaries and some adjustment of salaries arising from the segmentation of the scale applicable to district officers. Now, this is one cause for the extra expenditure which was imperative. I have read the whole thing and I think, Mr. Chairman, Sir, it was not clear to the Leader of the Opposition because he telephone at all, that Harambee House. This is because it has the most inefficient systems of telephones that we have anywhere in Kenya. The most inefficient system that there is in Kenya is in Harambee House. This should not be paid for by the people of this country because fellows there keep on talking to their friends, and when you ring there you cannot get an answer. When you ring from Parliament Buildings, you hold on for five minutes or ten minutes, the telephone ringing there all the time, and I do not think that £7,000 was worth the cost it was paid for. Mr. Chairman, Sir, I feel that unless the telephone system is improved there, then we are wasting our money and we are not doing the service we are expected to do. That building, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is a very important building and it houses nearly every important department in this country, but it is the most inefficient building in telephone operations. Secondly, telephone operators there are very rude and when you try to speak to somebody, you are told to hang on and you may hang on for the rest of your life. So, Mr. Chairman, Sir, except that this is only one small part in the whole Vote, I would have refused to pass this Vote. But this is only one, which I think can be improved, and I would like the so-called Minister concerned with this money, instead of wasting money paying those telephone operators, to take them immediately to training and teach them how to answer the telephone calls, to say "Good Morning" to a gentleman when he rings from a certain building, and not when I ring just say, "Harambee House" and then stop, as if I am speaking to a grave. So, Mr. Chairman, I feel that those ghosts who live in Harambee House should be taught, and there should be no money voted to them in order to teach them how to operate telephones and how to receive telephone calls. Therefore, I think that point is very important indeed.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Government has overspent and is requesting this House to approve an expenditure of Sh. 140,000 for the Ministry of Works. One would like to know who is there now, since the Ministry of Works has vacated it—and what does caretaking imply?

Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Members of this House have no offices. I should say that Harambee House should provide offices for the hon. Members so that we can write to our constituents and receive letters from our constituents, and so forth. This is provided in other countries. Here is a case where the Government is spending extra money on a building which has been vacated, just for paying people engaged in sweeping the floor every day, I suppose, and things like that. Can the Minister explain what is going on in Harambee House since it was vacated, and whether provision should not be made within this building for Members of Parliament to have offices where they can interview their constituents and other people? We need offices so that we do not keep on roaming about in Nairobi like ghosts.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Well, Mr. Chairman, Sir, maybe the hon. Member who criticized Harambee House was not happy about it because, perhaps, one day he might have rung and he had to wait for some time before being replied; but we should, at the same time, take into consideration that Harambee House is accommodating several Ministries, including the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Power and Communications, Administration, and the President's Offices and Defence, and as such, Harambee House is undoubtedly under pressure of work. So are the telephone operators.

The offices that were vacated by the Ministry of Works are now occupied by the different Ministries in Harambee House which had their offices and responsibilities expanded, and that is why those offices were taken over by other Ministries which used to be in Harambee House.

Subhead B11—Honours and Awards

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, this is where this House will need the Minister for Finance to come and explain fully why, despite the indication on page 2 that this is a mere decision to be carried out by revising the design of all honours and awards and that the cost is estimated, and convince this House that it is absolutely necessary, at this stage when the country so much needs money for many other services, that money can be spent on honours and awards. Now, Mr. Chairman, Sir, in the original estimates we see there was only £1 that was provided for; in the revised estimates we have £61,000, and the explanation given, in two lines, shows that there is much to be admired in the whole affair. I, personally, feel that this is absolutely unnecessary at this stage because there are other services which Kenya needs, and, in fact, Mr. Chairman, £61,000—I repeat, £61,000—is provided to create prestige, decorations for some individuals! Mr. Chairman, I feel it, and I am sure even the Ministers who wear some of those things feel it, and it is no use trying to vote this £61,000.

Mr. Chairman, the hon. Maisori says that I am not included. Honestly, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I have no interest to declare; I have never wanted to be decorated in this country, and I do not wish to be decorated.

An hon. Member: He is decorated by his beard.

Mr. Mwithaga: My beard does its bit, Mr. Chairman, you agree.

Therefore, all I am trying to say is that there must be an expounding of the whole involvement so that the House is actually convinced that there is absolute need, at this stage, to vote for this money. If the change, the revision of this design, will mean importing the medals and other decorations from overseas, it should be stopped forthwith, and we should suspend the whole expenditure and transfer it to the teachers who are now going on strike and want more money and other things. Mr. Chairman, Sir, that is an essential service. Instead of decorating 24 men in this land, we shall be able to provide this money for the teachers' salaries—41,000 teachers in the whole Republic—and this is very vital. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I hope the Members will join hands with me to oppose that particular item and do away with it.

An hon. Member: We can continue using the honours which are there now.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Chairman, Sir, while we are on this question of honours and awards, it is quite true that the amount required is very substantial, and I will join my colleague, the hon. Member who has spoken, to express my concern.

Mr. Chairman, however, my major concern is that these honours and awards which our Republic gives to our distinguished people who do certain things, must have a proper place in this country. I doubt the reasonableness or rightness of continuing to recognize honours awarded by foreign powers. We do still have, in this country, people who are honoured M.B.E.s., and O.B.E.'s., and when you see them in meetings or in offices you find these labels written after their names. Now, does that not indicate, Mr. Chairman, that they still have honour or loyalty to whoever gave them these awards? What I am saying, in short, is this: we would like our Government to assure us that those honours which were awarded by foreign powers, colonialists who were here, will not be recognized any further because if they are, the honours which we award as Sovereign State will have no place in certain respects. Take, for example, my own profession, the legal profession, you have Q.C.'s.—who are supposed to be Queen's Counsel; in other words, they are not even the President's Counsel—they are Counsel of the Queen of England.

So, I will say here very strongly that the Government must have a definite policy. I know one gentleman who is an O.B.E. You go to a meeting of the board of directors and you will find his name is written first because he is an O.B.E. That gentleman, I do not want to say who he is, but you do not expect him to have the same loyalty to Kenya as he has for the King or Queen, or whoever gave him the award. So, what I am asking the Minister, Mr. Chairman, is that while we are going to spend all this money, we should be assured that only the awards given by our Head of State, by the Kenya Government, by the Republic, are going to be recognized and given a position, and others should be ignored and should not even be referred to. We have still some Sirs, and So-and-so, and when you call him "Sir", he feels different and, strangely enough, some of them are citizens of this country and still have this title. You wonder how this agrees with our Sovereign State, giving someone a citizenship and continuing to recognize the former title. So, Mr. Chairman, I see the Minister listening very attentively. Maybe he himself will respond to this.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, I entirely agree with the hon. Member, and the Government is determined not to recognize foreign decorations, and this has been said very clearly before, otherwise our own decorations will not have much meaning.

I would like to take the opportunity of saying that a Kenya citizen who has foreign decorations can keep them in his box as we are not interested in seeing them.

An hon. Member: Throw them in the sea.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Let them put them somewhere where we cannot see them. I think this is the point; whether it is the sea, a box or the choo—I have no preference.

I would like to emphasize that the Government recognizes only our local decorations.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think we are going a little bit further than we should on this. The question of honours and awards is not at issue because, in fact, the principle has been passed; all we are discussing here are two things. The first is the cost of revision, the additional cost, namely £61,000, and secondly the amount itself to which only £1 was allotted. The principle of honours is accepted and was, in fact, passed in the Budget.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move a reduction of £1 on this particular item because I think that it is most unnecessary to have so much money spent on these honours. Sh. 1 million is not a small amount of money. I do not know what kind of metal the Government intends to buy for these honours. Whether it is gold or something else, evidently it is very expensive. If it has to be so expensive, and the Government wishes to give so many honours to people in this country, then I think they should use a cheaper material which is not so expensive as to cost us Sh. 1 million.

In any case, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not see how you can foresee to how many people you are going to give honours. I would have thought that when you give honours you only give honours to people who have done really something and have distinguished themselves on something specific which is a service to the country and to the nation.

An hon. Member: Kanu chairmen.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: This whole business of Kanu chairmen getting something and then all Ministers getting something is not good; they might just as well all be given dresses. If they want the Ministers to have something, they should buy them some kind of beads from the stores here so that they wear them and then we will know that they are Kenya Ministers. The same thing goes for the Kanu chairmen; they should be provided with some kind of necklace, or whatever it is, so that we know that these are Kanu chairmen.

I think that honours and awards should be only for those people who have distinguished themselves in some specific service to the country, either in the military service, or they have been freedom fighters in the past, or a leader of opposition who has done something—like he has done—or a runner, for instance, who has done wonders in Olympic Games, or something like that. I think that this whole system of deciding that all Ministers have to get this and all So-and-so have to get this is completely missing the point. These honours should only be for those people who have distinguished themselves by specific action or specific excellence.

Mr. Chairman, I do not think we can estimate a specific amount for it. We should only work on a few gold medals, because I do not think many of us will be really available if they are really worth what they are; not many of us will be acceptable for this because some of them you have to get when you are dead, like the Victoria Cross of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Chairman, I was moving the reduction of £1 mainly because I think we should not have so much money spent on it, because only a few people need to be honoured and not all.

(Question of the reduction proposed)

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, I think that this is quite reasonable because I think the Government has devalued what was meant to be an honour. When I found that it can only be used to campaign and register support from the Kanu chairmen, then I thought that this is becoming meaningless and useless. Should we actually spend public money in canvassing support from the Kanu chairmen? I think that this should be considered very seriously in this House.

Furthermore, for a Minister to receive an honour is wrong because as a Minister he has got his salary and he is well paid for the work that he does as a Minister. He is well paid. But if he has actually distinguished himself in another duty somewhere, which is recognized nationally, then he should be given that recognition by that honour. However, to go and spend our money like this is wrong. If somebody wakes up and he thinks that he should go and please So-and-so, and spends public money in that manner, then I feel this is wrong. I think that this is unfair and, therefore, I can never agree that this is the best way of spending our money.

Certainly, at the very beginning, I was one of those people who sponsored this system of honours, but I did not have in mind that it would be used in the manner that it is now being used. If this is the manner in which it is going to be used, then it is worthless and, therefore, we should not spend any public money on it and should leave it alone.

Therefore, I support the Motion moved.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, when the Mover moved a reduction of £1, I first thought that perhaps he had a very genuine case for moving the reduction, but from the comments of the Mover and the Seconder it looks as if the question of Kanu chairmen has been a repeatedly made. This is why I am now satisfied and convinced that it is only because chairmen of Kanu were awarded honours that the Members of the Opposition moved this reduction of £1 in the Vote.

It must be understood that the aim of having honours and awards is to give them to people who deserve such honours and awards. Such honours and awards are given to Heads of State, to military men, Ministers who have done a lot for this country, and even to chairmen of Kanu who have contributed to nation building, and also because they made it possible for a Kanu Government to be formed and will do so during the next General Election.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Chairman, I very much understand the mentality of the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion for this reduction, but

[Mr. Mbogoh]

I feel that this pound which they say they reduce is a bit difficult because this money has already been spent. Although we understand that, I think the Assistant Minister has said that this cannot be repeated and it will continue to be done very honourably, and therefore, Mr. Chairman, I wish to move that the Mover be called upon to withdraw that Motion immediately.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): You cannot move that I am afraid.

Mr. Mbogoh: That the question be put.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is still one speaker and so I will give him a chance.

Mr. Lubembe: I see that the hon. Chief Whip intends to tell me exactly what I should do.

Mr. Chairman, there is a very important point here. While agreeing with the hon. Mr. Mbogoh that the Mover is just jealous that the wife of the Vice-President got this medal—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! No, Mr. Lubembe; you must withdraw that.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Chairman, I did not use that word.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, you did not. It is Mr. Lubembe who is to withdraw.

Mr. Lubembe: I will say, Mr. Chairman, that it is important that we keep this money and that we get these awards for our people. The only thing I can say is that those who advise the President as to who should get these awards should always be nice and see that the proper people who deserve these awards are given them. I am not saying that those who have been given do not deserve them because they have already been given, but in future I feel that proper advice as to who has done that and who has not done this and so on, should be the basis of giving these particular awards.

The second point is that the Minister, having said that those who have foreign decorations should put them away, I think the committee concerned should advise the President that anyone having a foreign decoration, or a foreign honour at all, should not be given any of our awards if he has not denounced it. When we give people who have already got other awards our own awards, and they continue using both, in my view sometimes they take those that they got earlier as being more important than the ones we have given. We have people who are called lot of names which they got in the army, and some were knighted by the British Government, and still we have given them our own honours and told them to use them. However, you find that when they write they write those other ones first and then put ours last. That means that ours are less important and those they got first are more important. It is because of this, Mr. Chairman, that I feel that unless the people with these foreign decorations denounce them, the President should be advised not to give them anything at all.

(Question of the reduction put and negatived)

(Subhead B11 agreed to)

Subhead B13—Expenses of State Visits

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, here again is an additional sum, and it is shown on page 1. In the original estimate we had only £2,000 for this sort of business, and then there was a revised estimate of £22,000, and then in the long run we have the additional sum of £20,000. I do not want to go much—

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Chairman, am I in order to think that after rejecting a vote on reduction we move straight from that head to another head? I have a feeling that that is not the right procedure.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no. We are, in fact, doing just that. We have moved further on. The Office of the President, as you know very well I am sure, is like this: When one is moving a reduction under B11, you have to move a reduction to the whole Vote, the whole department. However, we have not as yet discussed B13, and we have not even started on E9.

Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, I will not take up much of the House's time on this, but it is this increase of £20,000.

Mr. Chairman, when I look at B13, on page 2— and I quote:—

“A number of visits by Heads of States to Kenya have taken place during the financial year and additional provision of £20,000 is required to cover the expenditure involved.”

I hope this is including our friend from Ghana and many other places. Mr. Chairman, I do not mind who visits Kenya as Head of State, or which part of the world he comes from. I do not have any quarrel with this, but the expenditure you see here, for the Heads of States, they have not given us details. I am sure, Mr. Chairman, because we have had some drinks here in the National Assembly, and I remember one party which cost us Sh. 29,000. This was in one day, from 6.30 o'clock to a few minutes to 8 o'clock. During this short period we spent Sh. 29,000—we consumed this. Who consumes, and this is the question? The public of this country? No. It is a few privileged big-bellied people. This includes the Member for Butere. Mr. Chairman, I am not accusing anybody, but it is a fact that I do not drink because I only take my Fanta, which I can pay for. If the future Government wants me to repay this, then I can repay money for all the bottles of Fanta I have taken. Those who take whisky, brandy, gin and so on, including the hon. Okelo-Odongo, these are the people who are bringing a lot of bother to the country.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for the Member to shout my name so loud when he has already accepted the principle that he does take things there. I do not know what he takes. He may be the one taking whisky in the guise of Coca Cola.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I know that is an interjection, but it is only God who knows whether I take alcohol at all, but I know I do not.

The principle is that these drinks are very expensive and cost us a lot of money. Mr. Chairman, I do not disapprove of the parties, but I think parties are intended to enable people to come together and meet and exchange views. We can do that very cheaply—an example is the other day, Mr. Chairman, when we opened the National Assembly; we had cold tea there, sandwiches and Fanta, and this is all right. But the parties with all the gin, sherry and God knows what is what is increasing our expenditure. I appeal, and I have done this several times, I appeal to the Minister for Finance that in future for State Visits and so forth, we can easily meet over a glass of soda, or a cup of tea; the purpose is to meet our friends. At any rate, you do not know your friends very well when you are tipsy. Some of them, Mr. Chairman, cannot stand on their own feet at a party, so how will they know who they are meeting when they are topsy-turvy and do not know anybody? He repeats whatever he says ten thousand times and this does not make public relations any better. Some of them are very responsible men in the Government who are tottering about and saying “I am glad to meet you; Mr. So-and-so” and he does not even remember names. I am told some of them have even fallen down at the Airport.

Mr. Chairman, I appeal to the Minister for Finance to make it a point that in future at State parties or at any other parties, there will only be bottles of soda and cups of tea, and we will be better off and we can help other important and urgent projects in the countryside.

I know the money has been spent, Mr. Chairman, but I am only cautioning the Minister for his future reference.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I remember having said in this House some time back that it was time we decided on how many visits we should be having from Heads of States because of incurring expenditure which this country finds difficult to bear. I know it is the prerogative of the President in carrying out State duties and trying to establish relations with our neighbours and other Heads of State. This is unquestionable.

Mr. Chairman, expenditure being incurred to the extent of £20,000 and not knowing how many other State Visits we are going to have before the year ends, which might mean a further Supplementary Estimate being brought to this House. Mr. Chairman, Sir, the whole thing is really questionable. I believe most of the leaders of this Government have read rudiments of economics and they know very well that it is vital to try and curtail expenditure in the interests of the nation.

Mr. Chairman, if we continue to encourage these State Visits, some of which, I believe, are by very questionable men, then, Mr. Chairman—I say they are questionable because I know.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Who are questionable?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not need the hon. Odero-Jowi to tell me who these people are. I know them.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, the hon. Member is insulting some people under the guise of calling them “questionable”. Mr. Chairman, I feel he should be able to substantiate that Kenya asked some questionable people to visit here.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think we really want to go into this. I, myself, did not like the qualification “questionable” because, after all, anybody who comes on a State Visit to Kenya is a guest of this country. I do not think we really want to go into the merits of the particular individual. You can, I think, speak on the amount of money spent on entertainment, that is in order. I do not think we want to go into the question of the merits or demerits of a particular individual.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not intend to hurt anybody, but this is my personal submission out of my personal understanding out of conscience and a very clear conscience. I will not tread on that ground again.

The question of spending £20,000, Mr. Chairman, is something which the Minister for Finance should be prepared to tell us about. He should tell us if we are going to have further visits because I believe this is, as the President said, the closing of a chapter of six years of Parliamentary rights and this means we are going to have a General Election.

Mr. Chairman, the country cannot afford to spend more money at this juncture. What I am trying to find out from the Minister is whether he can give us any indication as to how justified this expenditure is, and if it is not why is it not possible to do away with it. The essential services, as I have said earlier in the other Vote, is that we have very vital issues concerning salaries for our people, and I refer specifically to teachers. Now, Mr. Chairman, we have the problem of unemployment, the school leavers, and all these need money to be spent on them. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, why cannot we transfer some expenditure to some essential and national issues rather than spending money on mere public relations and internationalism which sometimes may not be all that good for us?

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, without dwelling on this very much, there are those essential services to be treated as emergency issues—like the teachers' salaries, unemployment and so on—to be handled by this money. I hope the Minister will take heed of this and consider it very seriously in his good wisdom.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, again we are being asked to provide nearly Sh. 800,000 which has already been spent by the Government—

Hon. Members: It is written in pounds here.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Our people understand shillings better than pounds. This money has been spent on State Visits. Mr. Chairman, the important thing here is that this money—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, am I to understand that by six o'clock, if we have not finished, this will be guillotined?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is what I was under the impression earlier. I have been talking to Mr. Speaker about this and he is of the opinion that anybody can move a Motion that we continue this debate tomorrow, or another day. If that is so, I just want to check it up before I give a final decision on the point. But if it is so, then I will let any hon. Member move that the debate on the Supplementary Estimates be continued on another Sitting Day. I do not want to give a decision at the moment. I am considering the matter first, and at about five minutes to six o'clock I will decide one way or the other.

Mr. Mbogoh: I just wanted to draw the attention of the hon. Member speaking, that if it comes to that point and we have not finished the whole thing it might be very bad, therefore, I submit that in case the Speaker agrees that somebody can move that the debate be continued then I am prepared to do that.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, what I was saying is that this money is being paid by the ordinary citizens of this country. The ordinary man who pays it from his pocket. The most unfortunate thing is that the ordinary man is not told why these people must come here, and what they come to do, especially when there is no money to pay for their being here.

I think the Minister should be surcharged on this because they invited a guest when they knew they were broke and could not pay for him. Mr. Chairman, this is most unfair and I think the Government should put this right, that to invite people here without telling the country exactly why they have been invited is wrong because to ask somebody to pay for somebody's visit here, and we do not know what the person is going to do for us, is very disturbing. We had a guest the other day, the Head of State of Ghana, and as soon as he went back to Ghana he was toppled. We do not know if this was because he came here and so the people there did not want him, or what happened. If we can invite a person here and he goes back and is toppled just like that, one wonder's why, if we knew he was so weak, we invited in the first place, Was it because he visited here that he was toppled?

Mr. Chairman, that is one point. Another point is that if we are going to have Heads of State coming here to eat our money, then our Head of State and other guests, Ministers and Members of Parliament, should go to these places and also eat their money. Why does not the Kenya Head of State go to Ghana, Liberia, Zambia and the other places? When they do go they should also take Opposition Members, and not segregate them and so on. If this was the case it would be better. This is one-way traffic and we do not want this. If we are going to have Heads of State, Mr. Chairman, then our Head of State must visit those places. We should go there to eat what they ate here. This is African Socialism. If our Head of State has decided not to go anywhere, then for goodness sake let no Head of State come here. We can send our ambassadors there because this is expenditure on one side only.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the point raised by hon. Shikuku was a very minor one, which was in connexion with having parties and so on when a Head of State visits the country. He implied that this is expensive to the ordinary man. We should take into consideration not only the question of taking drinks or coming to eat the food which we provide. There is much more behind a visit by a Head of State, and this is to improve international relations between us and our friends in other countries. It is also to improve and increase our trade relationship with other countries whereby we can sell our products, those we manufacture here.

So the question of the Heads of State visiting our country is not only a question of their coming here, having our drinks and food, but there is much more behind this. The hon. Members will remember when we had a crisis, when we had trouble with the shifta in the North-Eastern Province, how we received a big support from the majority of the world Heads of States. This was brought about not only through giving drinks and food to Heads of States who come here, but through consultations and understanding one another's opinion and political ideas. This is why I say that visits from Heads of States are very meaningful, they are very beneficial for our country. In fact, it is not that we spend, say, £20,000 to entertain several Heads of States but because of their visits we may be able to get more than that through trade relationship and relationships in other directions.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will entertain the resolution now, that the Committee do report progress and beg leave to sit again. Then, if this is passed I will put it to the House—we will sit in the House—and any Member can move that this debate be continued for a further sitting day.

If any hon. Member wishes to move this, I will now accept it. Mr. Mbogoh wanted to move it, but I see that he is not in the House now.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): On a point of information, Mr. Chairman why should we extend this discussion? Are we not in a position to close the debate?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is nothing for us to decide it is for the Committee and the House to decide. All I am saying is that there were hon. Members who had expressed the wish that they wanted to continue the debate on this matter. I am merely giving them a chance; if any hon. Member does want to move such a Motion, he can now do so. If nobody wants to move it, then we will continue.

MOTIONPROGRESS TO BE REPORTED

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the debate on the Supplementary Estimate No. 2 be given time tomorrow to be debated further. This is necessitated by the most important questions which we want to discuss tomorrow, Sir. Therefore, I would request the House to support me in this Motion.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order!

The Motion will be, that the Committee doth report progress and beg leave to sit again. If this is passed, it will go to the House and any Member can there move that we have another sitting day to discuss this particular matter.

So I will put the question without debate. Every hon. Member knows the points involved here.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, if you put the question now, that the House should not discuss this further today, then there will be no debate again. Therefore, could we not advance our arguments—

Hon. Members: No. No.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! If this is passed, we will go into full House. That means the Speaker will be in the Chair, and some hon. Members can then move the formal Motion. The Standing Order says, "Unless the House otherwise orders", so only the House can order that there be allowed an additional day. So, what we are in fact doing, is adjourning the Committee to enable the House to decide. However, it is for the Committee to decide whether, it wants to have an adjournment or not. I leave it to the Committee to decide.

There is hardly any point to have a full-scale debate on this particular matter because I am sure hon. Members are quite clear whether they want another day or not. If they do not want another day, they will vote against it, if they do want another day, they will vote for it. However, it is my duty to put it to the Committee and it is for the Committee to decide.

I will, therefore, put the question in terms I have proposed, namely, that the Committee do report progress and beg leave to sit again.

(Question put and negatived)

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We will now proceed with the Supplementary Estimate and at 6 o'clock we will have the guillotine.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, now that you say that at 6 o'clock everything will be guillotined, does this mean that there will be no question of any Member moving that the debate be continued?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is right.

Mr. Shikuku: That being the case, Sir, what happens in a case where we have been rather delayed and there is something which we are going to—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry. It is for the House to decide. I, in fact, put it to the House and the House voted against it.

Mr. Shikuku: So the Ministers have the money? The Ministers will have to pay for it. You cannot win all the time.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo):
..... (Inaudible).

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We will overlook that, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: But do you accept that Sir?

THE PETROLEUM DUTIES (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Minister for Finance on 3rd June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 3rd June 1969)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No other Member who wishes to speak? I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say thank you very much to those who spoke on this particular Motion and I do not think I have anything to add to what I said yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the Mover is called upon to reply and so many points were made during the course of the debate, does it really mean that he has nothing to say except that he begs to move?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. arap Biy, there is no point of order there.

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think again, hon. Members, if convenient to the Attorney-General, we will move on to the next one, or if it suits the Minister for Finance we could move on to Order No. 9. The African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill. We will take Order No. 9, Mr. Clerk.

Second Reading

THE AFRICAN ASSURANCE AND PROVIDENT CORPORATION LIMITED BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited was incorporated in Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, in March 1953. It was registered in Kenya in May 1957 as a foreign company. At that time there was no special legislation in Kenya which could control the company's activities except in matters which fell under the Companies Act.

The African Assurance and Provident Corporation was, therefore, able to write life assurance business without hindrance until February 1960 when the Federal Authorities in Salisbury prohibited the company from writing further business, both in the Federation and in Kenya. The company is now in the course of liquidation under Zambian Law.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

To wind up the company's affairs in Kenya would have resulted in a substantial loss to policy-holders in Kenya. It has been estimated that the Kenya policy-holders would only have received Sh. 1 for every £1 of the premium they had paid. Such an event would have resulted in a serious setback to the life assurance movement in Kenya, and life assurance is a valuable channel for raising savings and promoting Kenya's own development. Besides, there would have been a social problem because the dependents and policy-holders would have lost protection due to no fault of theirs.

An interesting part of the situation, Mr. Speaker, was that most of the company's assets were held in Kenya whereas the liabilities were divided between Kenya and the Federation, and some claims were also made by people resident in South Africa. Thus, if no arrangements were made to retain Kenya assets for Kenya policy-holders, most of the funds would certainly have flowed out.

For all these reasons, shortly before the liquidation was put in hand in Zambia, the Kenya Government with the directors' consent, obtained possession of the company's assets in Kenya in order to hold them in trust for the Kenya policy-holders. Later on a new company was incorporated in Kenya under the same name, African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited. Its share capital is £100 and the issued share capital is held by two nominees of the Government of Kenya in trust for the liquidation of the Zambian Company. This also enabled the Government to control the company's affairs and administration in Kenya.

An interim actuarial valuation of the company's portfolio suggests there would be a deficiency of not more than £25,000. This deficiency is the difference between the actual valuation of the contractual life assurance liabilities to be taken over by the new company and the value of the Kenya assets held by the Government. The House is aware I think, Sir, that it has already approved in the 1968/69 Development Estimates, Vote 25, a sum of £25,000 for the purpose of covering the deficiency. The Bill provides that the funds so given by the Government will be invested in Government Stock thus there would be no cash loss to the Government.

Once the new company was established and assets safeguarded for the Kenya policy-holders, the question of day-to-day administration of the company arose. In the initial period the Government nominees continued to manage the company. However, on long term basis it was considered the administration should be passed to the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited, in which, as the hon. Members know, the Government has a controlling interest.

With this in view the Government has signed an agreement with the Kenya National Assurance Company to enable it to take over the management of the company. Basically, the Bill aims at transferring the assets and liabilities of the Zambian Company in Kenya to the new Kenya company, and then pass on the share holding to the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited. The Bill also enables the Government to find the deficiency and indemnify the new company against likely liabilities and costs.

Finally, I would like to say that the whole matter has been very complex legally and I thank the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited for undertaking the ownership and administration of the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to say a few words about this corporation.

Mr. Speaker, we understand from the Assistant Minister that the people who insured their lives are to receive only Sh. 1 per £1. Mr. Speaker, what the Assistant Minister has not told us is how much of the investment of this corporation in Kenya, how much money have they invested in Kenya which cannot be taken over by the Government in order to pay these policy-holders. Also, Mr. Speaker, he has not told us about the assets owned by these people. How much money have they invested in buildings? How many people have received loans from them in this country? We would then know exactly the amount of money which has been paid by the policy-holders, and the amount of money which they have invested in Kenya—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Selling money.

Mr. Bala: The Attorney-General is saying "selling money", but I did not say this, and I think it is time the Attorney-General listened to me carefully. I am his employer and as such I am entitled to be treated properly.

[Mr. Bala]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister would have done a good job if he had told us the exact position of this corporation because, Mr. Speaker, we are not going to approve the Bill in darkness. We should know if we can get away with some of the money which these people invested in Kenya so that our people do not suffer unnecessarily.

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks I reserve my position.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to stand to support the Bill. The issue was discussed here some time ago. If the Government had not stepped in the policy-holders would definitely have lost money and the Assistant Minister did say that we had, as a Government, to close the gap to ensure that our people did not lose £25,000. What we are trying to do to save the position is to get our own assurance company to take them over. There was some resistance at the beginning and we have managed to negotiate, and my hon. friend, Okelo-Odongo, knows all about this and so he ought to support me. We were only trying to help. This is a real operation to assist these people not to lose their money and that is all it means and all we want. Over 90 per cent of the holders of these policies are Africans and we felt—just as we did with Kenatco—that a lot of poor fellows were deceived into an organization by some other fellows. Some of these fellows I know very well, and whatever they have touched with their fingers has gone rotten. I said, “You give this organization six months; if it survives, well and good, it will carry on.” It did not survive six months because the fellows running it were dishonest. I am not ashamed to say that because if I am called to a court of law I could name a few of them.

We are talking about the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill; we did not want to change this name although this name was initiated in Salisbury. We did not want to delete it. We want this group to get into our own national assurance company as a group until all the matters are rectified and there are no problems to arise. This is a helpful operation; all we are trying to do is to help these people. We want to legalize it so that they do not lose their money; so that people, in future, who want to assure with our national assurance company will have confidence, which is important.

An hon. Member: What about the losses?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): The present losses, we are going to see how much we can help.

An hon. Member: Who are the directors?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): You and I as Members of this Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is the gist of the whole thing, that all we are trying to do as a Government is to help these people so that they do not lose their money—our own people.

An hon. Member: Who are they?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Many of them like you and me.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): And the Government representatives.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): And the Government representatives, yes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill is very welcome in that in one aspect it is a big blow to Ian Smith and his régime in the south, and an encouragement of the Government's policy of services for the welfare of society and safeguarding such welfare is, indeed, very vital. In fact, this is the second time—The Attorney-General does not have to tell me to read there because I have got specs and can see the words “for the welfare of society and the just government of men.”

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the second time the Government has come out in the open to try and safeguard the interests of the people because some hands have been very awkward and very cheeky, fraudulent hands, which have been trying to misuse the intelligence of our masses. At this time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, our people are going to lose money after investing it and depositing it somewhere in the hopes that their futures are secure. Therefore, I am sure those who have taken out their policy with this assurance company, will feel very grateful to the Government and will feel confident and that they have nothing to fear because they are safeguarded.

The only thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have to guard against is the merger between the Kenya Assurance Company and the African Assurance Company, which is obviously anticipated. This assurance company is going to remain a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Kenya Assurance Company until some time in the future, because both of them at the moment are entities, and since they are entities, we have to formulate the method which will make them merge in the way that will suit the people who have taken out policies with this assurance company. I know this is not too technical for the Treasury because they are very well versed in this, but they have to be very careful in the manner in which they handle it so that the Kenya Assurance Company which, I think, is the Government, or something like that, takes over this assurance company and absorbs the policies involved for the betterment of the people.

WELCOME TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRIME MINISTER OF SWAZILAND

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members we are honoured by the presence in the Speaker's Box of a Distinguished Visitor, the Prime Minister of Swaziland, Prince Makhosini Dlamini, and his distinguished company.

On behalf of all hon. Members I assure our distinguished visitors of a warm welcome to our country and to this Assembly.

The debate will continue until the interruption of business.

(Resumption of debate on Second Reading of Bill)

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Minister for Finance wanted me to sit down.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was just about to finish by saying that the documents to be issued by this assurance company may be difficult to be understood when there is a merger and this is what I was telling the Government to try and guarantee against. We should try and use mostly the Kenya National Assurance Company in order that it may become more common with the policy holders, rather than the African Assurance Company, to make it easy for people to understand that merger when it comes about.

With those few observations, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister did say that I knew all about this. I knew something about it, not all about it. There was a bad aspect which I knew about, namely that I think there was somebody who was working for this company who had run away with the money to Salisbury. The Kenya Government was then in a fix because they did not know what to do because they could not approach Mr. Smith down there and get the money back.

Mr. Speaker, the point is whether our Government has learnt anything from this, because there are many companies now functioning in Kenya which are more or less in the same status as this company was in, and are still enlisting the patronage of our people. Whether they are, assurance companies or not, there are still many foreign companies which are functioning in Nairobi. What I do not know is whether the Government has learnt anything from this one, and whether it has taken precautions so that this kind of thing is not repeated. This is the main point. Of course, the taxpayer is now being asked to pay money from his pocket to a company to assist people who have bought life assurance and so forth from this company where the manager went away with the money to another country. This kind of thing cannot be repeated.

What I would like to know from my friend the Minister for Finance is whether he has taken precautions so that it will never be repeated again.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichuru, you have already spoken in the debate have you not?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, obviously the hon. Member is speaking from inside information. As the hon. Minister for Finance has just told us, when this company was getting into trouble the hon. Member opposite was, in fact, an Assistant Minister in the Ministry of Finance, and Chairman of this Kenya Assurance Company that we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, I want to commend this Bill to the hon. Members because it is a salvage operation. This is not the first time that the Government has come to the assistance of our people when companies get into trouble. We have done that with Kenatco and Kenatco is now doing a profitable job. The trouble about this company is that if the Government, and indeed this House, does not support this Bill, the people who are going to lose are our own people because 95 per cent of policy-holders in this company are Africans. I am satisfied because I did the registration of this company. I strongly ask the hon. Member to support this Bill so that our fellow Africans can get some proceeds because otherwise, if this company were to go into liquidation—as it is now in Zambia—then the African policy-holders in this country will possibly, if they are lucky, get 50 cents or Sh. 1 in the pound. What percentage is that, Mr. Speaker, as against the amount of money that these people invested in this company by way of buying shares?

Mr. Speaker, the matter is clearly set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons of the Bill and I am sure if the hon. Members read this carefully, they will see that, in effect, the whole Bill is to try and help our fellow Africans who are policy-holders so that this company can form part of the other assurance company which is being run by the Government.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the adjournment of the House and so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 5th June 1969, at 2.30 p.m.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 150

SHORTAGE OF MEAT

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Agriculture, if he would tell the House what immediate measures the Ministry had undertaken to alleviate the present shortage of meat supply to all local butchers in order to discourage the black marketing of meat; and what plans the Ministry had to prevent future shortages of meat supply.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There is no shortage of meat at the present time; in fact, the situation is quite the reverse. On the supply side, the Kenya Meat Commission is in a period of high cattle intake which should last for the next three to four months.

On the demand side, there is more than adequate quantities of meat on offer to the local butchers. A lot of the butchers have not even taken all the meat on offer by the Kenya Meat Commission over the last few weeks.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are two ways of tackling the problem of possible meat shortages in the future. In the short term, we must streamline the marketing arrangements for livestock, so that all beef animals suitable for slaughter and sale find their way to the consumers. For example, my Ministry has now considerably improved and strengthened its Livestock Marketing Division to facilitate its operation in the North-Eastern Province, Eastern and other areas, which have been difficult to reach in the past. In addition, Sir, to this the Kenya Meat Commission is improving its marketing and buying operations. In the long term, however, only increased productivity and assistance in our beef producing areas is going to give us the supplies of meat necessary to meet future demands.

Over the years since independence, our growing Kenya population, rising incomes, changes in status, and growing export business, have put great pressure on our local producers to provide more and more beef.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the long reply that the Assistant Minister is trying to give to the House, would it not be better for him to give this as a written reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have on many previous occasions advised Ministries to give a written reply if they think the reply must be very long, but it is at their discretion and as we have it now, we should hear it to the end.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was just going to finish it.

It has become apparent, Sir, that unless increased investment in the form of higher prices to producers is put into our beef production areas, Kenya will begin to run into an increasing severe shortage of beef in the early 1970's. In short Sir, Kenya has to speed up transitions from its feeling of one where range animals were collected from the range areas, to one in which animals bred and fed specially for meat production are utilized.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that boring reply, would the Assistant Minister deny or reject that two months' ago Nairobi had a shortage of meat, and that is why I was asking this question, because we are afraid of getting our meat from outside the city?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, there may have been a shortage a few months ago, but I stress here that we are doing our best. Most of the cattle that could not, in the past, come to the town, now, because of our improvements in the north and the north-east, are now coming.

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that this commission is making a monopoly especially to prevent people from places like the Eastern Province from selling their meat in Nairobi and so they have to go out?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the monopoly to the Kenya Meat Commission was given in this House.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since we have listened to a denial that there is any shortage of meat supply and at one stage the Assistant Minister said that on the demand side there is an increase of demand and, therefore, local supplies have to meet this demand, would the Assistant Minister give an account for why there is also an increase in the price of meat?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have said that we are going, as a Government, to try and increase the price to benefit the farmers.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister and the Ministry aware of the very strong rumour going on that the Ministry put a quarantine on all African cattle coming to

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

Athi River, and that the beef that we get there is all of European origin, and therefore the African trade has now been put to an end without a proper reason?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I refute that allegation. My Ministry and the Government does not work on rumours; we have never worked on rumours. There is only one thing, Mr. Speaker, if producers move their stock on instructions given by the field staff of my Ministry there will be no quarrel in their areas. The only solution to stamp out foot-and-mouth disease is for the producers not to move their cattle from place to place.

Mr. Wood: Mr. Speaker, arising from the answer, would the Minister agree with me that at the rate at which we are going now there will be a shortage of meat in 1970?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, about 907,000 head of cattle were consumed in Kenya during 1968; we will need another 200,000 head by 1975 to meet the growing demand. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as we improve our areas of production and improve the water supplies in various places, this demand in 1970's will be met.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 134

MATERNITY BEDS SHORTAGE, MASAKU PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL

Mr. Nthula asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House what were the causes of the delay in building a maternity house in Masaku Provincial Hospital; was he aware that in the small hospital two women were sleeping in one bed; was he satisfied that the diet used there was sufficient in quantity; and what plans had the Ministry to modernize the laundry there.

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. ole Tipis): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Health, I beg to reply as follows.

Arrangements are under way for building a maternity unit at Machakos Hospital and as soon as all the necessary plans have been finalized, construction will start.

The Ministry does not and will not encourage the idea of two mothers sharing one bed. It is understood, however, that at one time there was brought a very serious case at night and, because there was no extra bed, two mothers who were not all that serious, were asked to share one bed for the night in order to give room for the mother. That was inevitable if the lives of that mother and baby were to be saved. However, this is not the normal procedure.

The answer to part (c) is "Yes, Sir". The Ministry is satisfied that the diet used in that hospital is sufficient in quantity.

The Ministry intends to modernize the laundry depending on the availability of funds.

Mr. Nthula: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell us, because he tried to evade the question, why this has been delayed because it is known that this hospital has been there since 1920 up to this moment? Why is there the delay in supplying the provincial hospital with a maternity unit in the Eastern Province? Could he tell us the reason why.

Mr. ole Tipis: The reason why, Mr. Speaker, is the shortage of funds. The Government has recognized the urgent need for the extensions of this maternity unit and, as such it has, even now, made provision in its recurrent expenditure for £50,000 in 1969/70.

Mr. Nthula: Arising from the answer, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister tell the House why, in a small cottage, a small hostel of the county council, this has been granted to the Wakamba people, and it is known to the Ministry that this hospital is the provincial hospital for Eastern Province? Could he tell us why the Ministry has delayed the building of the maternity unit since we were granted that by the county council, and a small hostel—not hospital—is there? Where is the money which was granted to the Machakos Hospital?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Where did you take the money?

Mr. ole Tipis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have answered the hon. Member's question earlier on. What he has failed to mention here is the contribution by the Machakos County Council, and I would like to inform him that the project value will be approximately £245,000, and the Government has already taken steps to try and find this money for this particular purpose.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

[Mr. Odinga]

He has not actually given us any details and he is trying to argue on general questions. Yet, all the time, he is requesting us to approve a particular expenditure.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, it is not for me to say whether the Leader of the Opposition is convinced or not because, as usual, he is never convinced and he will never be convinced if he does not want to be convinced.

Mr. Odinga: On a point order, Sir, is this a proper allegation for the Assistant Minister to say that I have never been convinced on any question, when it is reasonable, in this House?

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, you must not get excited over that. That is the sort of thing that is said in Parliament many a time. It is not taken seriously. It is not out of order.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Chairman, I still want the Member to substantiate. This is serious. We are dealing with finance, which is something which is rather important and—

The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade): You are quite in order, Mr. Odinga, with what you raise, but the Assistant Minister is also in order in his parliamentary exaggeration.

Have you finished what you were saying, Mr. Balala?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Chairman, Sir, I have stated very clearly the number of vacancies that were filled. I have given him figures, and if the hon. Mr. Odinga cannot be convinced with facts and figures that I have submitted to him, then I do not know how I can convince him.

I have stated very clearly that the number of posts involved are 49 throughout the country. If this number of 49 cannot convince the hon. Leader of the Opposition, as to be an appropriate number to have efficient machinery in the Government, then it is not for me to say whether Mr. Odinga is convinced or not. I have given convincing evidence and also figures. This is all I can say.

[The Deputy Chairman (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Assistant Minister, who has never actually tasted any election at all, he talks of these things—

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask you whether the question of tasting election does arise in this debate on the Supplementary Estimate?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order, I am afraid. As Mr. Speaker said, in Parliament, when one speaks, one is allowed to use whatever arguments one wants so long as they are not abusive or anything of that sort. I do not think we ought to take this too seriously.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is the hon. Leader of the Opposition in order to allege that the hon. Assistant Minister has never tasted elections when, in fact, the hon. Assistant Minister was elected by the Members of this Parliament before we changed the Constitution?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sure he will stand corrected on that point of view, I am sure.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, I will go on to develop my point of view. To say that the vacancies were 49, this alone is not enough reason for us to vote a Supplementary Estimate. We wanted to know the urgency and the reason which actually necessitated that this amount of money should be voted as a Supplementary Estimate. Why did we not wait for the normal time of Estimates? We want to know this and if the Assistant Minister is incapable of answering, then he should have brought the proper man here, the man who would be able to convince us. This is a very clear thing we have before us.

Secondly, Sir, he has never been to the country and actually faced a constituency—and constituents—and that is why he was playing with the Minister for Social Services, whose performance in the country is well known.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the Leader of the Opposition should be patient and perhaps read page 2 of the same Supplementary Estimates. When he has read that part I will then point out two points which might convince him. In that section, Mr. Chairman, Sir, if the Leader of the Opposition sees the causes, or looks at the causes of these extra expenditures, he will see that they are only two. First, there was some revision of salaries and some adjustment of salaries arising from the segmentation of the scale applicable to district officers. Now, this is one cause for the extra expenditure which was imperative. I have read the whole thing and I think, Mr. Chairman, Sir, it was not clear to the Leader of the Opposition because he was then talking to another hon. Member. The first reason is that there was the payment of arrears caused by revision of salaries, which were not paid in 1967/68 and the adjustment of salaries arising from the segmentation, that is, the scale point applicable to district officers—the district officers within the administration. This is one reason I am explaining this to the Leader of the Opposition because I think it is important that he should understand this point, and also follow the reasons for these over-expenditures, particularly because he is the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee. Now, this is one reason.

The second reason, Mr. Chairman, Sir, also explains that there was an under-estimation arising from filling the vacant posts of which no part or provision was made in the original printed estimate within the provincial administration. Therefore, it is this under-estimation that was being covered by the further expenditure, and also the correction within the segment of salaries of district officers. These two reasons have made the emoluments swell and the provision for the swell was not provided for originally, and hence the Supplementary Estimates. If the Leader of the Opposition will bear with the Government, he will see very clearly that the two reasons, for this expenditure, are valid and legitimate, and this is what we are trying to explain throughout, and is what the Assistant Minister has been explaining under A.2—Provincial Administration.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not have any question here since the Minister has explained everything, but I hope that the Leader of the Opposition is not going back to his usual talk that he sympathizes with the people who need to be helped. These district officers need money, because they have done some services to the Government and their salaries were under-estimated.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is the hon. Member in order to be discussing this now?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Although I, myself, am very strict about being relevant, I do not think I should stress it too hard. But we should be careful, and this being a fairly political House, we can use argument to show our particular point of view. In fact, he is in order.

Mr. Lubembe: Thank you, Mr. Chairman, Sir. I wish that question came from somebody who has never been in the Ministry of Finance. The hon. Member was there and was defeated and ran away.

I will say, Mr. Chairman, that in view of the fact that so many points have been explained, I do not want to go any further.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the question was that if there were these vacant posts, why, if there was no money, did they have to be filled, especially when the provincial commissioners, the district commissioners and the district officers found it necessary to roam around in the country for such a thing like a Kanu candidate selection meeting? Now, if there is time for the provincial commissioner or the district commissioner to attend such a meeting, merely to elect a Kanu candidate, is it not conceivable that there is not enough work in the office and that some of these vacancies could have been left out until work was found for these people which they could do in their offices.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, I think the hon. Member probably misunderstood the whole intention. The posts, Mr. Chairman, Sir, were filled, and therefore there was work from the word “Go”. However, it was very clear that the Supplementary Estimates had got to be revised to pay for the service of the officers who had been in the establishment.

Secondly, it was then later on discovered that it was necessary to adjust the salary scale for the arrears to make up the proper salary over the period which had to be paid. To allege that there was no work and that the posts were not originally filled is not true. If the posts were not originally filled, of course, the hon. Member is a financier himself and he would understand that the Government would not be so stupid as to pay for the work which has not been done. I am making the point that the work was done and the posts were filled from the word “Go”. If the work had not been done, we are not as dull as the hon. Member thinks. We would not have paid for work which had not been done.

HEADQUARTERS—OTHER CHARGES

Subhead B6—Miscellaneous Other Charges

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is quite an interesting one—Miscellaneous Other Charges. When I look at the explanation, I find that it is on the caretaking of the Harambee House from the Ministry of Works which has moved to new offices. I think we all agreed that this was quite necessary, but then there is an additional provisional required to cover the cost of telephone rentals, and that is what I am concerned with. Mr. Chairman, that building should be without any telephone at all, that Harambee House. This is because it has the most inefficient systems of telephones that we have anywhere in Kenya. The most inefficient system that there is in Kenya is in Harambee House. This should not be paid for by the people of this country because fellows there keep on talking to their friends, and when you ring there you cannot get an answer. When you ring from Parliament Buildings, you hold on for five minutes or ten minutes, the telephone ringing there all the time, and I do not think that £7,000 was worth the cost it was paid for. Mr. Chairman, Sir, I feel that unless the telephone system is improved there, then we are wasting our money and we are not doing the service we are expected to do. That building, Mr. Chairman, Sir, is a very important building and it houses nearly every important department in this country, but it is the most inefficient building in telephone operations. Secondly, telephone operators there are very rude and when you try to speak to somebody, you are told to hang on and you may hang on for the rest of your life. So, Mr. Chairman, Sir, except that this is only one small part in the whole Vote, I would have refused to pass this Vote. But this is only one, which I think can be improved, and I would like the so-called Minister concerned with this money, instead of wasting money paying those telephone operators, to take them immediately to training and teach them how to answer the telephone calls, to say "Good Morning" to a gentleman when he rings from a certain building, and not when I ring just say, "Harambee House" and then stop, as if I am speaking to a grave. So, Mr. Chairman, I feel that those ghosts who live in Harambee House should be taught, and there should be no money voted to them in order to teach them how to operate telephones and how to receive telephone calls. Therefore, I think that point is very important indeed.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Government has overspent and is requesting this House to approve an expenditure of Sh. 140,000 for the Ministry of Works. One would like to know who is there now, since the Ministry of Works has vacated it—and what does caretaking imply?

Mr. Chairman, Sir, the Members of this House have no offices. I should say that Harambee House should provide offices for the hon. Members so that we can write to our constituents and receive letters from our constituents, and so forth. This is provided in other countries. Here is a case where the Government is spending extra money on a building which has been vacated, just for paying people engaged in sweeping the floor every day, I suppose, and things like that. Can the Minister explain what is going on in Harambee House since it was vacated, and whether provision should not be made within this building for Members of Parliament to have offices where they can interview their constituents and other people? We need offices so that we do not keep on roaming about in Nairobi like ghosts.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Well, Mr. Chairman, Sir, maybe the hon. Member who criticized Harambee House was not happy about it because, perhaps, one day he might have rung and he had to wait for some time before being replied; but we should, at the same time, take into consideration that Harambee House is accommodating several Ministries, including the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Power and Communications, Administration, and the President's Offices and Defence, and as such, Harambee House is undoubtedly under pressure of work. So are the telephone operators.

The offices that were vacated by the Ministry of Works are now occupied by the different Ministries in Harambee House which had their offices and responsibilities expanded, and that is why those offices were taken over by other Ministries which used to be in Harambee House.

Subhead B11—Honours and Awards

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, this is where this House will need the Minister for Finance to come and explain fully why, despite the indication on page 2 that this is a mere decision to be carried out by revising the design of all honours and awards and that the cost is estimated, and convince this House that it is absolutely necessary, at this stage when the country so much needs money for many other services, that money can be spent on honours and awards. Now, Mr. Chairman, Sir, in the original estimates we see there was only £1 that was provided for; in the revised estimates we have £61,000, and the explanation given, in two lines, shows that there is much to be admired in the whole affair. I, personally, feel that this is absolutely unnecessary at this stage because there are other services which Kenya needs, and, in fact, Mr. Chairman, £61,000—I repeat, £61,000—is provided to create prestige, decorations for some individuals! Mr. Chairman, I feel it, and I am sure even the Ministers who wear some of those things feel it, and it is no use trying to vote this £61,000.

Mr. Chairman, the hon. Maisori says that I am not included. Honestly, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I have no interest to declare; I have never wanted to be decorated in this country, and I do not wish to be decorated.

An hon. Member: He is decorated by his beard.

Mr. Mwithaga: My beard does its bit, Mr. Chairman, you agree.

Therefore, all I am trying to say is that there must be an expounding of the whole involvement so that the House is actually convinced that there is absolute need, at this stage, to vote for this money. If the change, the revision of this design, will mean importing the medals and other decorations from overseas, it should be stopped forthwith, and we should suspend the whole expenditure and transfer it to the teachers who are now going on strike and want more money and other things. Mr. Chairman, Sir, that is an essential service. Instead of decorating 24 men in this land, we shall be able to provide this money for the teachers' salaries—41,000 teachers in the whole Republic—and this is very vital. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I hope the Members will join hands with me to oppose that particular item and do away with it.

An hon. Member: We can continue using the honours which are there now.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Chairman, Sir, while we are on this question of honours and awards, it is quite true that the amount required is very substantial, and I will join my colleague, the hon. Member who has spoken, to express my concern.

Mr. Chairman, however, my major concern is that these honours and awards which our Republic gives to our distinguished people who do certain things, must have a proper place in this country. I doubt the reasonableness or rightness of continuing to recognize honours awarded by foreign powers. We do still have, in this country, people who are honoured M.B.Es., and O.B.E's., and when you see them in meetings or in offices you find these labels written after their names. Now, does that not indicate, Mr. Chairman, that they still have honour or loyalty to whoever gave them these awards? What I am saying, in short, is this: we would like our Government to assure us that those honours which were awarded by foreign powers, colonialists who were here, will not be recognized any further because if they are, the honours which we award as Sovereign State will have no place in certain respects. Take, for example, my own profession, the legal profession, you have Q.C's.—who are supposed to be Queen's Counsel; in other words, they are not even the President's Counsel—they are Counsel of the Queen of England.

So, I will say here very strongly that the Government must have a definite policy. I know one gentleman who is an O.B.E. You go to a meeting of the board of directors and you will find his name is written first because he is an O.B.E. That gentleman, I do not want to say who he is, but you do not expect him to have the same loyalty to Kenya as he has for the King or Queen, or whoever gave him the award. So, what I am asking the Minister, Mr. Chairman, is that while we are going to spend all this money, we should be assured that only the awards given by our Head of State, by the Kenya Government, by the Republic, are going to be recognized and given a position, and others should be ignored and should not even be referred to. We have still some Sirs, and So-and-so, and when you call him "Sir", he feels different and, strangely enough, some of them are citizens of this country and still have this title. You wonder how this agrees with our Sovereign State, giving someone a citizenship and continuing to recognize the former title. So, Mr. Chairman, I see the Minister listening very attentively. Maybe he himself will respond to this.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Chairman, I entirely agree with the hon. Member, and the Government is determined not to recognize foreign decorations, and this has been said very clearly before, otherwise our own decorations will not have much meaning.

I would like to take the opportunity of saying that a Kenya citizen who has foreign decorations can keep them in his box as we are not interested in seeing them.

An hon. Member: Throw them in the sea.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Let them put them somewhere where we cannot see them. I think this is the point; whether it is the sea, a box or the choo—I have no preference.

I would like to emphasize that the Government recognizes only our local decorations.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think we are going a little bit further than we should on this. The question of honours and awards is not at issue because, in fact, the principle has been passed; all we are discussing here are two things. The first is the cost of revision, the additional cost, namely £61,000, and secondly the amount itself to which only £1 was allotted. The principle of honours is accepted and was, in fact, passed in the Budget.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move a reduction of £1 on this particular item because I think that it is most unnecessary to have so much money spent on these honours. Sh. 1 million is not a small amount of money. I do not know what kind of metal the Government intends to buy for these honours. Whether it is gold or something else, evidently it is very expensive. If it has to be so expensive, and the Government wishes to give so many honours to people in this country, then I think they should use a cheaper material which is not so expensive as to cost us Sh. 1 million.

In any case, Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not see how you can foresee to how many people you are going to give honours. I would have thought that when you give honours you only give honours to people who have done really something and have distinguished themselves on something specific which is a service to the country and to the nation.

An hon. Member: Kanu chairmen.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: This whole business of Kanu chairmen getting something and then all Ministers getting something is not good; they might just as well all be given dresses. If they want the Ministers to have something, they should buy them some kind of beads from the stores here so that they wear them and then we will know that they are Kenya Ministers. The same thing goes for the Kanu chairmen; they should be provided with some kind of necklace, or whatever it is, so that we know that these are Kanu chairmen.

I think that honours and awards should be only for those people who have distinguished themselves in some specific service to the country, either in the military service, or they have been freedom fighters in the past, or a leader of opposition who has done something—like he has done—or a runner, for instance, who has done wonders in Olympic Games, or something like that. I think that this whole system of deciding that all Ministers have to get this and all So-and-so have to get this is completely missing the point. These honours should only be for those people who have distinguished themselves by specific action or specific excellence.

Mr. Chairman, I do not think we can estimate a specific amount for it. We should only work on a few gold medals, because I do not think many of us will be really available if they are really worth what they are; not many of us will be acceptable for this because some of them you have to get when you are dead, like the Victoria Cross of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Chairman, I was moving the reduction of £1 mainly because I think we should not have so much money spent on it, because only a few people need to be honoured and not all.

(Question of the reduction proposed)

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, I think that this is quite reasonable because I think the Government has devalued what was meant to be an honour. When I found that it can only be used to campaign and register support from the Kanu chairmen, then I thought that this is becoming meaningless and useless. Should we actually spend public money in canvassing support from the Kanu chairmen? I think that this should be considered very seriously in this House.

Furthermore, for a Minister to receive an honour is wrong because as a Minister he has got his salary and he is well paid for the work that he does as a Minister. He is well paid. But if he has actually distinguished himself in another duty somewhere, which is recognized nationally, then he should be given that recognition by that honour. However, to go and spend our money like this is wrong. If somebody wakes up and he thinks that he should go and please So-and-so, and spends public money in that manner, then I feel this is wrong. I think that this is unfair and, therefore, I can never agree that this is the best way of spending our money.

Certainly, at the very beginning, I was one of those people who sponsored this system of honours, but I did not have in mind that it would be used in the manner that it is now being used. If this is the manner in which it is going to be used, then it is worthless and, therefore, we should not spend any public money on it and should leave it alone.

Therefore, I support the Motion moved.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, when the Mover moved a reduction of £1, I first thought that perhaps he had a very genuine case for moving the reduction, but from the comments of the Mover and the Seconder it looks as if the question of Kanu chairmen has been a repeatedly made. This is why I am now satisfied and convinced that it is only because chairmen of Kanu were awarded honours that the Members of the Opposition moved this reduction of £1 in the Vote.

It must be understood that the aim of having honours and awards is to give them to people who deserve such honours and awards. Such honours and awards are given to Heads of State, to military men, Ministers who have done a lot for this country, and even to chairmen of Kanu who have contributed to nation building, and also because they made it possible for a Kanu Government to be formed and will do so during the next General Election.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Chairman, I very much understand the mentality of the Mover and the Seconder of this Motion for this reduction, but

[Mr. Mbogoh]

I feel that this pound which they say they reduce is a bit difficult because this money has already been spent. Although we understand that, I think the Assistant Minister has said that this cannot be repeated and it will continue to be done very honourably, and therefore, Mr. Chairman, I wish to move that the Mover be called upon to withdraw that Motion immediately.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): You cannot move that I am afraid.

Mr. Mbogoh: That the question be put.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is still one speaker and so I will give him a chance.

Mr. Lubembe: I see that the hon. Chief Whip intends to tell me exactly what I should do.

Mr. Chairman, there is a very important point here. While agreeing with the hon. Mr. Mbogoh that the Mover is just jealous that the wife of the Vice-President got this medal—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! No, Mr. Lubembe; you must withdraw that.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Chairman, I did not use that word.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, you did not. It is Mr. Lubembe who is to withdraw.

Mr. Lubembe: I will say, Mr. Chairman, that it is important that we keep this money and that we get these awards for our people. The only thing I can say is that those who advise the President as to who should get these awards should always be nice and see that the proper people who deserve these awards are given them. I am not saying that those who have been given do not deserve them because they have already been given, but in future I feel that proper advice as to who has done that and who has not done this and so on, should be the basis of giving these particular awards.

The second point is that the Minister, having said that those who have foreign decorations should put them away, I think the committee concerned should advise the President that anyone having a foreign decoration, or a foreign honour at all, should not be given any of our awards if he has not denounced it. When we give people who have already got other awards our own awards, and they continue using both, in my view sometimes they take those that they got earlier as being more important than the ones we have given. We have people who are called lot of names which they got in the army, and some were knighted by the British Government, and still we have given them our own honours and told them to use them. However, you find that when they write they write those other ones first and then put ours last. That means that ours are less important and those they got first are more important. It is because of this, Mr. Chairman, that I feel that unless the people with these foreign decorations denounce them, the President should be advised not to give them anything at all.

(Question of the reduction put and negatived)

(Subhead B11 agreed to)

Subhead B13—Expenses of State Visits

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, here again is an additional sum, and it is shown on page 1. In the original estimate we had only £2,000 for this sort of business, and then there was a revised estimate of £22,000, and then in the long run we have the additional sum of £20,000. I do not want to go much—

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Chairman, am I in order to think that after rejecting a vote on reduction we move straight from that head to another head? I have a feeling that that is not the right procedure.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, no. We are, in fact, doing just that. We have moved further on. The Office of the President, as you know very well I am sure, is like this: When one is moving a reduction under B11, you have to move a reduction to the whole Vote, the whole department. However, we have not as yet discussed B13, and we have not even started on E9.

Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Chairman, I will not take up much of the House's time on this, but it is this increase of £20,000.

Mr. Chairman, when I look at B13, on page 2— and I quote:—

“A number of visits by Heads of States to Kenya have taken place during the financial year and additional provision of £20,000 is required to cover the expenditure involved.”

I hope this is including our friend from Ghana and many other places. Mr. Chairman, I do not mind who visits Kenya as Head of State, or which part of the world he comes from. I do not have any quarrel with this, but the expenditure you see here, for the Heads of States, they have not given us details. I am sure, Mr. Chairman, because we have had some drinks here in the National Assembly, and I remember one party which cost us Sh. 29,000. This was in one day, from 6.30 o'clock to a few minutes to 8 o'clock. During this short period we spent Sh. 29,000—we consumed this. Who consumes, and this is the question? The public of this country? No. It is a few privileged big-bellied people. This includes the Member for Butere. Mr. Chairman, I am not accusing anybody, but it is a fact that I do not drink because I only take my Fanta, which I can pay for. If the future Government wants me to repay this, then I can repay money for all the bottles of Fanta I have taken. Those who take whisky, brandy, gin and so on, including the hon. Okelo-Odongo, these are the people who are bringing a lot of bother to the country.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, is it in order for the Member to shout my name so loud when he has already accepted the principle that he does take things there. I do not know what he takes. He may be the one taking whisky in the guise of Coca Cola.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I know that is an interjection, but it is only God who knows whether I take alcohol at all, but I know I do not.

The principle is that these drinks are very expensive and cost us a lot of money. Mr. Chairman, I do not disapprove of the parties, but I think parties are intended to enable people to come together and meet and exchange views. We can do that very cheaply—an example is the other day, Mr. Chairman, when we opened the National Assembly; we had cold tea there, sandwiches and Fanta, and this is all right. But the parties with all the gin, sherry and God knows what is what is increasing our expenditure. I appeal, and I have done this several times, I appeal to the Minister for Finance that in future for State Visits and so forth, we can easily meet over a glass of soda, or a cup of tea; the purpose is to meet our friends. At any rate, you do not know your friends very well when you are tipsy. Some of them, Mr. Chairman, cannot stand on their own feet at a party, so how will they know who they are meeting when they are topsy-turvy and do not know anybody? He repeats whatever he says ten thousand times and this does not make public relations any better. Some of them are very responsible men in the Government who are tottering about and saying "I am glad to meet you; Mr. So-and-so" and he does not even remember names. I am told some of them have even fallen down at the Airport.

Mr. Chairman, I appeal to the Minister for Finance to make it a point that in future at State parties or at any other parties, there will only be bottles of soda and cups of tea, and we will be better off and we can help other important and urgent projects in the countryside.

I know the money has been spent, Mr. Chairman, but I am only cautioning the Minister for his future reference.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I remember having said in this House some time back that it was time we decided on how many visits we should be having from Heads of States because of incurring expenditure which this country finds difficult to bear. I know it is the prerogative of the President in carrying out State duties and trying to establish relations with our neighbours and other Heads of State. This is unquestionable.

Mr. Chairman, expenditure being incurred to the extent of £20,000 and not knowing how many other State Visits we are going to have before the year ends, which might mean a further Supplementary Estimate being brought to this House. Mr. Chairman, Sir, the whole thing is really questionable. I believe most of the leaders of this Government have read rudiments of economics and they know very well that it is vital to try and curtail expenditure in the interests of the nation.

Mr. Chairman, if we continue to encourage these State Visits, some of which, I believe, are by very questionable men, then, Mr. Chairman—I say they are questionable because I know.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Who are questionable?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not need the hon. Odero-Jowi to tell me who these people are. I know them.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, the hon. Member is insulting some people under the guise of calling them "questionable". Mr. Chairman, I feel he should be able to substantiate that Kenya asked some questionable people to visit here.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think we really want to go into this. I, myself, did not like the qualification "questionable" because, after all, anybody who comes on a State Visit to Kenya is a guest of this country. I do not think we really want to go into the merits of the particular individual. You can, I think, speak on the amount of money spent on entertainment, that is in order. I do not think we want to go into the question of the merits or demerits of a particular individual.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I do not intend to hurt anybody, but this is my personal submission out of my personal understanding out of conscience and a very clear conscience. I will not tread on that ground again.

The question of spending £20,000, Mr. Chairman, is something which the Minister for Finance should be prepared to tell us about. He should tell us if we are going to have further visits because I believe this is, as the President said, the closing of a chapter of six years of Parliamentary rights and this means we are going to have a General Election.

Mr. Chairman, the country cannot afford to spend more money at this juncture. What I am trying to find out from the Minister is whether he can give us any indication as to how justified this expenditure is, and if it is not why is it not possible to do away with it. The essential services, as I have said earlier in the other Vote, is that we have very vital issues concerning salaries for our people, and I refer specifically to teachers. Now, Mr. Chairman, we have the problem of unemployment, the school leavers, and all these need money to be spent on them. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, why cannot we transfer some expenditure to some essential and national issues rather than spending money on mere public relations and internationalism which sometimes may not be all that good for us?

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, without dwelling on this very much, there are those essential services to be treated as emergency issues—like the teachers' salaries, unemployment and so on—to be handled by this money. I hope the Minister will take heed of this and consider it very seriously in his good wisdom.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, again we are being asked to provide nearly Sh. 800,000 which has already been spent by the Government—

Hon. Members: It is written in pounds here.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Our people understand shillings better than pounds. This money has been spent on State Visits. Mr. Chairman, the important thing here is that this money—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, am I to understand that by six o'clock, if we have not finished, this will be guillotined?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is what I was under the impression earlier. I have been talking to Mr. Speaker about this and he is of the opinion that anybody can move a Motion that we continue this debate tomorrow, or another day. If that is so, I just want to check it up before I give a final decision on the point. But if it is so, then I will let any hon. Member move that the debate on the Supplementary Estimates be continued on another Sitting Day. I do not want to give a decision at the moment. I am considering the matter first, and at about five minutes to six o'clock I will decide one way or the other.

Mr. Mbogoh: I just wanted to draw the attention of the hon. Member speaking, that if it comes to that point and we have not finished the whole thing it might be very bad, therefore, I submit that in case the Speaker agrees that somebody can move that the debate be continued then I am prepared to do that.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Chairman, what I was saying is that this money is being paid by the ordinary citizens of this country. The ordinary man who pays it from his pocket. The most unfortunate thing is that the ordinary man is not told why these people must come here, and what they come to do, especially when there is no money to pay for their being here.

I think the Minister should be surcharged on this because they invited a guest when they knew they were broke and could not pay for him. Mr. Chairman, this is most unfair and I think the Government should put this right, that to invite people here without telling the country exactly why they have been invited is wrong because to ask somebody to pay for somebody's visit here, and we do not know what the person is going to do for us, is very disturbing. We had a guest the other day, the Head of State of Ghana, and as soon as he went back to Ghana he was toppled. We do not know if this was because he came here and so the people there did not want him, or what happened. If we can invite a person here and he goes back and is toppled just like that, one wonder's why, if we knew he was so weak, we invited in the first place, Was it because he visited here that he was toppled?

Mr. Chairman, that is one point. Another point is that if we are going to have Heads of State coming here to eat our money, then our Head of State and other guests, Ministers and Members of Parliament, should go to these places and also eat their money. Why does not the Kenya Head of State go to Ghana, Liberia, Zambia and the other places? When they do go they should also take Opposition Members, and not segregate them and so on. If this was the case it would be better. This is one-way traffic and we do not want this. If we are going to have Heads of State, Mr. Chairman, then our Head of State must visit those places. We should go there to eat what they ate here. This is African Socialism. If our Head of State has decided not to go anywhere, then for goodness sake let no Head of State come here. We can send our ambassadors there because this is expenditure on one side only.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Chairman, Sir, the point raised by hon. Shikuku was a very minor one, which was in connexion with having parties and so on when a Head of State visits the country. He implied that this is expensive to the ordinary man. We should take into consideration not only the question of taking drinks or coming to eat the food which we provide. There is much more behind a visit by a Head of State, and this is to improve international relations between us and our friends in other countries. It is also to improve and increase our trade relationship with other countries whereby we can sell our products, those we manufacture here.

So the question of the Heads of State visiting our country is not only a question of their coming here, having our drinks and food, but there is much more behind this. The hon. Members will remember when we had a crisis, when we had trouble with the shifta in the North-Eastern Province, how we received a big support from the majority of the world Heads of States. This was brought about not only through giving drinks and food to Heads of States who come here, but through consultations and understanding one another's opinion and political ideas. This is why I say that visits from Heads of States are very meaningful, they are very beneficial for our country. In fact, it is not that we spend, say, £20,000 to entertain several Heads of States but because of their visits we may be able to get more than that through trade relationship and relationships in other directions.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I will entertain the resolution now, that the Committee do report progress and beg leave to sit again. Then, if this is passed I will put it to the House—we will sit in the House—and any Member can move that this debate be continued for a further sitting day.

If any hon. Member wishes to move this, I will now accept it. Mr. Mbogoh wanted to move it, but I see that he is not in the House now.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): On a point of information, Mr. Chairman why should we extend this discussion? Are we not in a position to close the debate?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): There is nothing for us to decide it is for the Committee and the House to decide. All I am saying is that there were hon. Members who had expressed the wish that they wanted to continue the debate on this matter. I am merely giving them a chance; if any hon. Member does want to move such a Motion, he can now do so. If nobody wants to move it, then we will continue.

MOTIONPROGRESS TO BE REPORTED

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, Sir, I beg to move that the debate on the Supplementary Estimate No. 2 be given time tomorrow to be debated further. This is necessitated by the most important questions which we want to discuss tomorrow, Sir. Therefore, I would request the House to support me in this Motion.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order!

The Motion will be, that the Committee doth report progress and beg leave to sit again. If this is passed, it will go to the House and any Member can there move that we have another sitting day to discuss this particular matter.

So I will put the question without debate. Every hon. Member knows the points involved here.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, if you put the question now, that the House should not discuss this further today, then there will be no debate again. Therefore, could we not advance our arguments—

Hon. Members: No. No.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Order! If this is passed, we will go into full House. That means the Speaker will be in the Chair, and some hon. Members can then move the formal Motion. The Standing Order says, "Unless the House otherwise orders", so only the House can order that there be allowed an additional day. So, what we are in fact doing, is adjourning the Committee to enable the House to decide. However, it is for the Committee to decide whether, it wants to have an adjournment or not. I leave it to the Committee to decide.

There is hardly any point to have a full-scale debate on this particular matter because I am sure hon. Members are quite clear whether they want another day or not. If they do not want another day, they will vote against it, if they do want another day, they will vote for it. However, it is my duty to put it to the Committee and it is for the Committee to decide.

I will, therefore, put the question in terms I have proposed, namely, that the Committee do report progress and beg leave to sit again.

(Question put and negatived)

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We will now proceed with the Supplementary Estimate and at 6 o'clock we will have the guillotine.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, now that you say that at 6 o'clock everything will be guillotined, does this mean that there will be no question of any Member moving that the debate be continued?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): That is right.

Mr. Shikuku: That being the case, Sir, what happens in a case where we have been rather delayed and there is something which we are going to—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry. It is for the House to decide. I, in fact, put it to the House and the House voted against it.

Mr. Shikuku: So the Ministers have the money? The Ministers will have to pay for it. You cannot win all the time.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo):
..... (Inaudible).

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): We will overlook that, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: But do you accept that Sir?

THE PETROLEUM DUTIES (AMENDMENT) BILL

(Minister for Finance on 3rd June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 3rd June 1969)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No other Member who wishes to speak? I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say thank you very much to those who spoke on this particular Motion and I do not think I have anything to add to what I said yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when the Mover is called upon to reply and so many points were made during the course of the debate, does it really mean that he has nothing to say except that he begs to move?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. arap Biy, there is no point of order there.

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think again, hon. Members, if convenient to the Attorney-General, we will move on to the next one, or if it suits the Minister for Finance we could move on to Order No. 9. The African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill. We will take Order No. 9, Mr. Clerk.

Second Reading

THE AFRICAN ASSURANCE AND PROVIDENT
CORPORATION LIMITED BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited was incorporated in Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, in March 1953. It was registered in Kenya in May 1957 as a foreign company. At that time there was no special legislation in Kenya which could control the company's activities except in matters which fell under the Companies Act.

The African Assurance and Provident Corporation was, therefore, able to write life assurance business without hindrance until February 1960 when the Federal Authorities in Salisbury prohibited the company from writing further business, both in the Federation and in Kenya. The company is now in the course of liquidation under Zambian Law.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

To wind up the company's affairs in Kenya would have resulted in a substantial loss to policy-holders in Kenya. It has been estimated that the Kenya policy-holders would only have received Sh. 1 for every £1 of the premium they had paid. Such an event would have resulted in a serious setback to the life assurance movement in Kenya, and life assurance is a valuable channel for raising savings and promoting Kenya's own development. Besides, there would have been a social problem because the dependents and policy-holders would have lost protection due to no fault of theirs.

An interesting part of the situation, Mr. Speaker, was that most of the company's assets were held in Kenya whereas the liabilities were divided between Kenya and the Federation, and some claims were also made by people resident in South Africa. Thus, if no arrangements were made to retain Kenya assets for Kenya policy-holders, most of the funds would certainly have flowed out.

For all these reasons, shortly before the liquidation was put in hand in Zambia, the Kenya Government with the directors' consent, obtained possession of the company's assets in Kenya in order to hold them in trust for the Kenya policy-holders. Later on a new company was incorporated in Kenya under the same name, African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited. Its share capital is £100 and the issued share capital is held by two nominees of the Government of Kenya in trust for the liquidation of the Zambian Company. This also enabled the Government to control the company's affairs and administration in Kenya.

An interim actuarial valuation of the company's portfolio suggests there would be a deficiency of not more than £25,000. This deficiency is the difference between the actual valuation of the contractual life assurance liabilities to be taken over by the new company and the value of the Kenya assets held by the Government. The House is aware I think, Sir, that it has already approved in the 1968/69 Development Estimates, Vote 25, a sum of £25,000 for the purpose of covering the deficiency. The Bill provides that the funds so given by the Government will be invested in Government Stock thus there would be no cash loss to the Government.

Once the new company was established and assets safeguarded for the Kenya policy-holders, the question of day-to-day administration of the company arose. In the initial period the Government nominees continued to manage the company. However, on long term basis it was considered the administration should be passed to the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited, in which, as the hon. Members know, the Government has a controlling interest.

With this in view the Government has signed an agreement with the Kenya National Assurance Company to enable it to take over the management of the company. Basically, the Bill aims at transferring the assets and liabilities of the Zambian Company in Kenya to the new Kenya company, and then pass on the share holding to the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited. The Bill also enables the Government to find the deficiency and indemnify the new company against likely liabilities and costs.

Finally, I would like to say that the whole matter has been very complex legally and I thank the Kenya National Assurance Company Limited for undertaking the ownership and administration of the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to say a few words about this corporation.

Mr. Speaker, we understand from the Assistant Minister that the people who insured their lives are to receive only Sh. 1 per £1. Mr. Speaker, what the Assistant Minister has not told us is how much of the investment of this corporation in Kenya, how much money have they invested in Kenya which cannot be taken over by the Government in order to pay these policy-holders. Also, Mr. Speaker, he has not told us about the assets owned by these people. How much money have they invested in buildings? How many people have received loans from them in this country? We would then know exactly the amount of money which has been paid by the policy-holders, and the amount of money which they have invested in Kenya—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Selling money.

Mr. Bala: The Attorney-General is saying "selling money", but I did not say this, and I think it is time the Attorney-General listened to me carefully. I am his employer and as such I am entitled to be treated properly.

[Mr. Bala]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister would have done a good job if he had told us the exact position of this corporation because, Mr. Speaker, we are not going to approve the Bill in darkness. We should know if we can get away with some of the money which these people invested in Kenya so that our people do not suffer unnecessarily.

Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks I reserve my position.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to stand to support the Bill. The issue was discussed here some time ago. If the Government had not stepped in the policy-holders would definitely have lost money and the Assistant Minister did say that we had, as a Government, to close the gap to ensure that our people did not lose £25,000. What we are trying to do to save the position is to get our own assurance company to take them over. There was some resistance at the beginning and we have managed to negotiate, and my hon. friend, Okelo-Odongo, knows all about this and so he ought to support me. We were only trying to help. This is a real operation to assist these people not to lose their money and that is all it means and all we want. Over 90 per cent of the holders of these policies are Africans and we felt—just as we did with Kenatco—that a lot of poor fellows were deceived into an organization by some other fellows. Some of these fellows I know very well, and whatever they have touched with their fingers has gone rotten. I said, “You give this organization six months; if it survives, well and good, it will carry on.” It did not survive six months because the fellows running it were dishonest. I am not ashamed to say that because if I am called to a court of law I could name a few of them.

We are talking about the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill; we did not want to change this name although this name was initiated in Salisbury. We did not want to delete it. We want this group to get into our own national assurance company as a group until all the matters are rectified and there are no problems to arise. This is a helpful operation; all we are trying to do is to help these people. We want to legalize it so that they do not lose their money; so that people, in future, who want to assure with our national assurance company will have confidence, which is important.

An hon. Member: What about the losses?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): The present losses, we are going to see how much we can help.

An hon. Member: Who are the directors?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): You and I as Members of this Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is the gist of the whole thing, that all we are trying to do as a Government is to help these people so that they do not lose their money—our own people.

An hon. Member: Who are they?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Many of them like you and me.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): And the Government representatives.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): And the Government representatives, yes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill is very welcome in that in one aspect it is a big blow to Ian Smith and his régime in the south, and an encouragement of the Government's policy of services for the welfare of society and safeguarding such welfare is, indeed, very vital. In fact, this is the second time—The Attorney-General does not have to tell me to read there because I have got specs and can see the words “for the welfare of society and the just government of men.”

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the second time the Government has come out in the open to try and safeguard the interests of the people because some hands have been very awkward and very cheeky, fraudulent hands, which have been trying to misuse the intelligence of our masses. At this time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, our people are going to lose money after investing it and depositing it somewhere in the hopes that their futures are secure. Therefore, I am sure those who have taken out their policy with this assurance company, will feel very grateful to the Government and will feel confident and that they have nothing to fear because they are safeguarded.

The only thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have to guard against is the merger between the Kenya Assurance Company and the African Assurance Company, which is obviously anticipated. This assurance company is going to remain a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Kenya Assurance Company until some time in the future, because both of them at the moment are entities, and since they are entities, we have to formulate the method which will make them merge in the way that will suit the people who have taken out policies with this assurance company. I know this is not too technical for the Treasury because they are very well versed in this, but they have to be very careful in the manner in which they handle it so that the Kenya Assurance Company which, I think, is the Government, or something like that, takes over this assurance company and absorbs the policies involved for the betterment of the people.

WELCOME TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE

(Hon. Members rose in their places while His Excellency the Prime Minister took his seat in the Speaker's Box)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members we are honoured by the presence in the Speaker's Box of a Distinguished Visitor, the Prime Minister of Swaziland, Prince Makhosini Dlamini, and his distinguished company.

On behalf of all hon. Members I assure our distinguished visitors of a warm welcome to our country and to this Assembly.

The debate will continue until the interruption of business.

(Resumption of debate on Second Reading of Bill)

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Minister for Finance wanted me to sit down.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was just about to finish by saying that the documents to be issued by this assurance company may be difficult to be understood when there is a merger and this is what I was telling the Government to try and guarantee against. We should try and use mostly the Kenya National Assurance Company in order that it may become more common with the policy holders, rather than the African Assurance Company, to make it easy for people to understand that merger when it comes about.

With those few observations, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister did say that I knew all about this, I knew something about it, not all about it. There was a bad aspect which I knew about, namely that I think there was somebody who was working for this company who had run away with the money to Salisbury. The Kenya Government was then in a fix because they did not know what to do because they could not approach Mr. Smith down there and get the money back.

Mr. Speaker, the point is whether our Government has learnt anything from this, because there are many companies now functioning in Kenya which are more or less in the same status as this company was in, and are still enlisting the patronage of our people. Whether they are, assurance companies or not, there are still many foreign companies which are functioning in Nairobi. What I do not know is whether the Government has learnt anything from this one, and whether it has taken precautions so that this kind of thing is not repeated. This is the main point. Of course, the taxpayer is now being asked to pay money from his pocket to a company to assist people who have bought life assurance and so forth from this company where the manager went away with the money to another country. This kind of thing cannot be repeated.

What I would like to know from my friend the Minister for Finance is whether he has taken precautions so that it will never be repeated again.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichuru, you have already spoken in the debate have you not?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, obviously the hon. Member is speaking from inside information. As the hon. Minister for Finance has just told us, when this company was getting into trouble the hon. Member opposite was, in fact, an Assistant Minister in the Ministry of Finance, and Chairman of this Kenya Assurance Company that we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, I want to commend this Bill to the hon. Members because it is a salvage operation. This is not the first time that the Government has come to the assistance of our people when companies get into trouble. We have done that with Kenatco and Kenatco is now doing a profitable job. The trouble about this company is that if the Government, and indeed this House, does not support this Bill, the people who are going to lose are our own people because 95 per cent of policy-holders in this company are Africans. I am satisfied because I did the registration of this company. I strongly ask the hon. Member to support this Bill so that our fellow Africans can get some proceeds because otherwise, if this company were to go into liquidation—as it is now in Zambia—then the African policy-holders in this country will possibly, if they are lucky, get 50 cents or Sh. 1 in the pound. What percentage is that, Mr. Speaker, as against the amount of money that these people invested in this company by way of buying shares?

Mr. Speaker, the matter is clearly set out in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons of the Bill and I am sure if the hon. Members read this carefully, they will see that, in effect, the whole Bill is to try and help our fellow Africans who are policy-holders so that this company can form part of the other assurance company which is being run by the Government.

With those few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the adjournment of the House and so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 5th June 1969, at 2.30 p.m.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 150

SHORTAGE OF MEAT

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Agriculture, if he would tell the House what immediate measures the Ministry had undertaken to alleviate the present shortage of meat supply to all local butchers in order to discourage the black marketing of meat; and what plans the Ministry had to prevent future shortages of meat supply.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There is no shortage of meat at the present time; in fact, the situation is quite the reverse. On the supply side, the Kenya Meat Commission is in a period of high cattle intake which should last for the next three to four months.

On the demand side, there is more than adequate quantities of meat on offer to the local butchers. A lot of the butchers have not even taken all the meat on offer by the Kenya Meat Commission over the last few weeks.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are two ways of tackling the problem of possible meat shortages in the future. In the short term, we must streamline the marketing arrangements for livestock, so that all beef animals suitable for slaughter and sale find their way to the consumers. For example, my Ministry has now considerably improved and strengthened its Livestock Marketing Division to facilitate its operation in the North-Eastern Province, Eastern and other areas, which have been difficult to reach in the past. In addition, Sir, to this the Kenya Meat Commission is improving its marketing and buying operations. In the long term, however, only increased productivity and assistance in our beef producing areas is going to give us the supplies of meat necessary to meet future demands.

Over the years since independence, our growing Kenya population, rising incomes, changes in status, and growing export business, have put great pressure on our local producers to provide more and more beef.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the long reply that the Assistant Minister is trying to give to the House, would it not be better for him to give this as a written reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have on many previous occasions advised Ministries to give a written reply if they think the reply must be very long, but it is at their discretion and as we have it now, we should hear it to the end.

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was just going to finish it.

It has become apparent, Sir, that unless increased investment in the form of higher prices to producers is put into our beef production areas, Kenya will begin to run into an increasing severe shortage of beef in the early 1970's. In short Sir, Kenya has to speed up transitions from its feeling of one where range animals were collected from the range areas, to one in which animals bred and fed specially for meat production are utilized.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that boring reply, would the Assistant Minister deny or reject that two months' ago Nairobi had a shortage of meat, and that is why I was asking this question, because we are afraid of getting our meat from outside the city?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, there may have been a shortage a few months ago, but I stress here that we are doing our best. Most of the cattle that could not, in the past, come to the town, now, because of our improvements in the north and the north-east, are now coming.

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that this commission is making a monopoly especially to prevent people from places like the Eastern Province from selling their meat in Nairobi and so they have to go out?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the monopoly to the Kenya Meat Commission was given in this House.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since we have listened to a denial that there is any shortage of meat supply and at one stage the Assistant Minister said that on the demand side there is an increase of demand and, therefore, local supplies have to meet this demand, would the Assistant Minister give an account for why there is also an increase in the price of meat?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have said that we are going, as a Government, to try and increase the price to benefit the farmers.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister and the Ministry aware of the very strong rumour going on that the Ministry put a quarantine on all African cattle coming to

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

Athi River, and that the beef that we get there is all of European origin, and therefore the African trade has now been put to an end without a proper reason?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I refute that allegation. My Ministry and the Government does not work on rumours; we have never worked on rumours. There is only one thing, Mr. Speaker, if producers move their stock on instructions given by the field staff of my Ministry there will be no quarrel in their areas. The only solution to stamp out foot-and-mouth disease is for the producers not to move their cattle from place to place.

Mr. Wood: Mr. Speaker, arising from the answer, would the Minister agree with me that at the rate at which we are going now there will be a shortage of meat in 1970?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, about 907,000 head of cattle were consumed in Kenya during 1968; we will need another 200,000 head by 1975 to meet the growing demand. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as we improve our areas of production and improve the water supplies in various places, this demand in 1970's will be met.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 134

MATERNITY BEDS SHORTAGE, MASAKU PROVINCIAL HOSPITAL

Mr. Nthula asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House what were the causes of the delay in building a maternity house in Masaku Provincial Hospital; was he aware that in the small hospital two women were sleeping in one bed; was he satisfied that the diet used there was sufficient in quantity; and what plans had the Ministry to modernize the laundry there.

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. ole Tipis): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Health, I beg to reply as follows.

Arrangements are under way for building a maternity unit at Machakos Hospital and as soon as all the necessary plans have been finalized, construction will start.

The Ministry does not and will not encourage the idea of two mothers sharing one bed. It is understood, however, that at one time there was brought a very serious case at night and, because there was no extra bed, two mothers who were not all that serious, were asked to share one bed for the night in order to give room for the mother. That was inevitable if the lives of that mother and baby were to be saved. However, this is not the normal procedure.

The answer to part (c) is "Yes, Sir". The Ministry is satisfied that the diet used in that hospital is sufficient in quantity.

The Ministry intends to modernize the laundry depending on the availability of funds.

Mr. Nthula: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell us, because he tried to evade the question, why this has been delayed because it is known that this hospital has been there since 1920 up to this moment? Why is there the delay in supplying the provincial hospital with a maternity unit in the Eastern Province? Could he tell us the reason why.

Mr. ole Tipis: The reason why, Mr. Speaker, is the shortage of funds. The Government has recognized the urgent need for the extensions of this maternity unit and, as such it has, even now, made provision in its recurrent expenditure for £50,000 in 1969/70.

Mr. Nthula: Arising from the answer, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister tell the House why, in a small cottage, a small hostel of the county council, this has been granted to the Wakamba people, and it is known to the Ministry that this hospital is the provincial hospital for Eastern Province? Could he tell us why the Ministry has delayed the building of the maternity unit since we were granted that by the county council, and a small hostel—not hospital—is there? Where is the money which was granted to the Machakos Hospital?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Where did you take the money?

Mr. ole Tipis: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have answered the hon. Member's question earlier on. What he has failed to mention here is the contribution by the Machakos County Council, and I would like to inform him that the project value will be approximately £245,000, and the Government has already taken steps to try and find this money for this particular purpose.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 138

TARMACKING ELDORET-TORORO ROAD

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Works if he would consider tarmacking a road branching from the Eldoret-Tororo main road to Bungoma District Headquarters which was only a mile away.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The road from Mumias to Bungoma is one of the roads which has been included in the feeder-roads programme for which it is hoped that money will be available from the World Bank for Reconstruction to gravel standard. Subject to the loan negotiation being successful, it is hoped that it may be possible to start the reconstruction of this road towards the latter part of 1969/70 financial year.

Although it is proposed to reconstruct the Mumias/Bungoma Road to gravel standard, the Government agrees that the portion of this road linking Bungoma Township with the main Eldoret-Tororo Road carries a higher density of traffic than that carried by the rest of the road. The Government will, therefore, look—

Mr. Barasa: On a point of order, this answer is not relevant to my question. I am not concerned with Mumias at all, I am concerned with the road from Tororo to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order, Mr. Barasa. Wait until you have heard the whole answer, and then ask a supplementary which brings in the other points.

You had not finished, I think, Mr. Bomett?

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): I have not finished, Sir. The Government will, therefore, look into the possibility of reconstructing the link from Bungoma to the main road to bitumen standard, subject to funds being available.

I was answering his question.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, my question referred to a road which is just one mile from the main Tororo/Eldoret Road; it is just a branch coming to Bungoma, and is only a mile away from the main road. Would the Assistant Minister tell me when this road will be under construction?

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did answer that question. If the hon. Member had been patient and listened, he would have heard me say that the Government actually anticipates doing what he is asking as soon as funds are available.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is quite correct. The question of the Eldoret/Tororo Road was answered only a day or two ago. This question only refers to a branch which you yourself describe as being one mile long, Mr. Barasa.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, arising from the reply by the Assistant Minister, does he not realize that when you come from Uganda on the tarmac road and enter Kenya, Bungoma is the immediate administrative centre which represents Kenya on this side of the boundary, and therefore there is a big need to make a show piece of it, to show everyone coming from Uganda that this is Kenya?

Mr. Bomett: We are speaking the same language.

Question No. 129

BUILDING OF DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES OFFICE, LAMU

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti asked the Minister for Works to state—

- (a) what was the name of the contractor who had built the offices for the Department of Fisheries in Lamu;
- (b) what was the cost of building those offices.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The name of the contractor was Messrs. Mavji Construction Company of Malindi.

(b) The cost of the building was Sh. 215,320 made up as follows:—

| | Sh. |
|---|----------------|
| (i) Building contract with Messrs. Mavji Construction Company | 194,720 |
| (ii) Electrical installation and Ministry of Works Overheads .. | 20,600 |
| TOTAL | 215,320 |

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, as we know the policy of the Government is to encourage Africans in all spheres of development in this country, why did the Ministry see fit to give the contract to Mavji instead of to an African?

An hon. Member: Tell us, that is serious.

Mr. Bomett: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the policy of my Ministry to give contracts to Africans, but in this particular case, the contract was advertised, and the contractors who applied were Haramjam Singh, Mulji Devja Brothers, Vimaram Mulji, Mavji Construction Company, Maram Mavji, and the Coast Building Works. All of them were Asian companies.

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Minister has said that it is the policy of the Government to give priority to African contractors for construction, will he tell me when, at any time, the Ministry has given contracts to Africans, either for road building or other building with which the Ministry is connected?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is getting too far away from this question, I am afraid.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 129: BUILDING OF DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES OFFICE, LAMU

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Sir, in view of the fact that I know quite a lot about these contractors, and a lot of Africans who are sub-contractors and who are doing very well in many parts of Kenya, I would like to raise this matter on the Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Any objection, Mr. Madhbuti?

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti: With pleasure, Sir.

Question No. 152

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE SCHEME

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Labour to state, in view of the fact that many of our citizens were victims of distress, destitution and old age as a result of unemployment and landlessness, when would the Government consider establishing an unemployment insurance scheme for those people.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. As the hon. Members will recall, the Sessional Paper No. 12 of 1963/65 explained the Government's policy on the development of Social Security. The National Social Security Fund Act of 1965, which was enacted by this House, derived its spirit from that document.

The National Social Security Fund Act already provides for payment of old age benefits to contributors who retire from employment on account of old age, whereas the Workmen's Compensation Act provides benefits for workers who are incapacitated during the course of and as a result of their work. The two Acts have provisions for the survivors' benefit in cases where workers may be totally incapacitated.

Any Social Security Scheme covering unemployment benefit must, first of all, ensure that the persons to benefit from it make contributions to the scheme in anticipation of the unfortunate eventuality, just as a person who takes out an insurance policy pays premiums to cover the risk.

As the Government Social Security Fund Scheme has been in existence for just over three years, it has not been possible for it to expand and provide social security of the nature envisaged by the hon. Member. However, as a Social Security Scheme has already been established, it is hoped that, gradually, the scope of the scheme will expand to cover other contingencies of social insecurity which it does not provide for at the present time.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, and in view of the fact that in this country we have people who are self-employed, and also people who sometimes lose their jobs—and it takes them a long while to find new jobs—would the Minister consider making provision for these people so that when they are out of employment they are able to benefit by receiving money from the already-established body, as he has indicated, and in that way these people do not become destitutes or the victims of distress?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have said, when the present National Social Security Fund becomes a success, it is hoped that it will cover other forms of insecurity envisaged by the hon. Member.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that many times we are told that Kenya is an example in Africa as a whole, that it is doing very well, the economy is booming, is it not time that the Kenya Government should establish the scheme in question, that is an unemployment insurance scheme, by which most of our boys and girls who at the moment are still looking for and cannot find jobs through no fault of their own, in order that they can be looked after by the Government by at least being provided with some bread? Is it not time, because the economy is booming? That is the question.

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all this means money. As I have said, at present, the National Social Security Fund is swelling to over £14 million, and it is this money we hope will cover—

Hon. Members: When?

Mr. Kubai: As we grow old, it will cover our insecurity.

Hon. Members: For how many years?

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 152:
UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE SCHEME

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if my hon. friend has no objection, this is a very important question and I am contemplating raising it on the Adjournment, if I am allowed to do so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you agree, Mr. Karungaru?

Mr. Karungaru: With due respect to the hon. Member, I have no objection, Mr. Speaker.

*Question No. 137*SETTLEMENT OF LANDLESS EX-SQUATTERS, BUNGOMA

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement to state—

- (a) how many landless ex-squatters had been registered for future land settlement in Bungoma District;
- (b) how many more farms had been set aside for settlement in Trans Nzoia.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

- (a) There are 324 squatters registered in Bungoma District for future settlement.
- (b) At present, there are no farms set aside for settlement in Trans Nzoia.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer that there is no place for the landless ex-squatters, what is the Minister trying to plan now if there are no farms in Trans Nzoia? Where will he try to put these landless people, the ex-squatters?

An hon. Member: In the lake.

Mr. Malinda: I did not say that there were no farms. What I said was that no farms have been set aside for settlement of these registered squatters. This will depend on the availability of funds and when these are available we will look around for farms. There are quite a number of farms around Trans Nzoia and these can be purchased if the funds are available.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from what the Minister has said, is the Minister aware that the Trans Nzoia was occupied by the people of Pokot before the European came to this country, and several commissions have been held in Kenya concerning the Trans Nzoia, and in view of the fact that my hon. friend, Mr. Barasa, is asking for Abaluhya to come to Trans Nzoia, is he trying to tell the people of Pokot that they should fight? Will the Minister tell the House that no land within Trans Nzoia will be given to the Abaluhya but the land will be given to Pokot? Otherwise, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You have asked your question Mr. Lorimo.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kenya Government does not encourage tribalism or tribal frictions.

Mr. Godia: Will the Minister tell the House, whether the Government will do something to acquire some of the farms in Trans Nzoia which are needed for settlement?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that I cannot give such an undertaking because we have no—

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what shall I do when a question of this kind comes in when a Member of this House is interested—for I want to enlighten the House as to how the Trans Nzoia used to be—the Trans Nzoia, Mr. Speaker, Sir, belongs to the Pokot people.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! What is your point of order.

There is no point of order that I can see.

Mr. Malinda: I was saying that with regard to the question asked by the hon. Member I cannot give that undertaking because I do not have the money.

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No more points of order Mr. Lorimo. Will you sit down.

*Question No. 107*TRANSPORT OF BODIES OF DEAD STUDENTS FROM ABROAD

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House, since the death rate of Kenya students abroad was not very high, why the Government could not take the responsibility of bringing back the body of any Government-sponsored student who might die abroad.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In the first place, it is very difficult to budget for this, since we will never be able to know how many persons may die in a given year.

Secondly, it is because dead bodies are charged much more money than a living person in transport and, thirdly, we have no such provisions for such exigencies.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, and according to the experience we have had, not many of these students die abroad. Would it not be possible for the Minister to make any provision in the Estimates of about Sh. 100,000 for any student who might die abroad? A Government-sponsored student should have his body brought back, rather than leave him to be buried there when, traditionally, his parents would like to see him before he is buried.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the figure that the hon. Member has given Sh. 100,000 may or may not be adequate, and as I say, sometimes, we have to ask ourselves which would be the better way of spending our money whether on the living and destitute people or one who has died.

Question No. 128

PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PRESIDENT WITH CAP

Mr. Obok asked the Minister for Information and Broadcasting if he would tell the House whether, in view of the recent statement by the Assistant Minister for Information and Broadcasting, hon. J. Onamu M.P., to the effect that in future the President's photograph wherein he wears a cap should not be allowed to appear or displayed anywhere, that represented Government policy.

If so what would happen to the numerous colourful photographs of the President which had been distributed, not only locally but also overseas, and to his Excellency's statue which now stood outside Parliament Buildings.

The Assistant Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Onamu): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply. I would not call the directive of the Government to withdraw the photograph of the President portraying him wearing a cap a matter of policy. Rather, I would call it Government's desire, I would also like to emphasize the importance of the cap in that picture because it is not so much the cap but that that particular version of the President's picture has a technical defect which is the cause for its withdrawal.

In reply to the second question of the hon. Member, I would say that there is no intention by the Government to destroy the statue of the President standing outside Parliament Buildings, because there appears to be nothing wrong with the statue.

Regarding numerous colourful photographs of the President already distributed locally and overseas, we can only hope that they will gradually disappear from use, partly by replacement with better portraits of the President in black and white and partly by co-operation from the local people to obey Government's directive for withdrawal of those photographs from public display.

Mr. Obok: Arising from the hon. Assistant Minister's reply, the Assistant Minister told us in his reply that there is a technical defect which is causing this withdrawal. I wonder what technical defect it is that was not noticed at that time of production of this photograph? Would he tell the House what the defect is?

Mr. Onamu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was noticed later and we have decided to withdraw it.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could he repeat his reply for I missed it?

Mr. Onamu: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that this was noticed later and we had decided to withdraw the photograph.

Question No. 151

CASES OF CORRUPTION IN CIVIL SERVICE

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General if he could tell the House—

(a) how many cases of corruption by the public civil servants took place in the Republic during 1967/68 and the first quarter of 1969; and

(b) whether these cases were increasing or decreasing.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In 1967, we had 11 cases which were taken to court and the people concerned were prosecuted and convicted. In 1968, there were 13 cases, and I will offer gratuitously that in the first half of this year there have been seven cases.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Attorney-General has told this House that there were 11 cases in 1967—

Mr. C. Njonjo: Did you call me?

..... (Inaudible.)

Mr. Karungaru: No, Attorney-General.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Repeat your question.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not provoking the Attorney-General because I have no courage.

Since there were 11 cases in 1967, and seven cases this year, is the Attorney-General satisfied that there is some improvement in this particular case?

Mr. C. Njonjo: We are now in June Mr. Speaker, Sir, and as I have said, we have had seven cases, but I might tell the hon. Member that these figures cannot indicate to one whether there is going to be a sudden increase or whether there is going to be a decrease. I am hopeful that the figure will decrease, if we have the co-operation of the public in these cases. One might argue, for instance, that there are so many children born today, but I might also tell the hon. Member that there are just as many people who are dead today, and so the figures cancel each other.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to my calculation, it appears since 1967 to the present date, the total figure of the cases heard was 33. May we know out of these 33 how many were acquitted and how many out of the 33 were convicted?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have those figures available, but if the hon. Member is interested, I can, of course, do some research, but I do not know how it helps in this matter because these cases are reported in the daily papers where you may have seen some yesterday and I assure you that tomorrow you will see one where somebody was caught this afternoon, and so on and so forth.

I think that the House must agree that the only way we can eradicate corruption in this country or indeed, in any other country is by the public reporting immediately somebody trying to offer a bribe, or the person to whom the bribe is being offered also reporting this matter, because it cuts both ways and it is punishable both against the person who offers the bribe and the person who receives the bribe.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the cases you informed us of were all cases of convictions.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, taking into account that the total number of these people who are found corrupt comes to 48—

An hon. Member: No!

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, 11, 30 and seven.

An hon. Member: 30.

Mr. Tsalwa: All right, 30. No, I think the House would like to know the tribal breakdown of these people.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have had occasion previously in this House to say that criminals do not belong to any tribe.

An hon. Member: No!

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Yes. When they are being brought to court, they are not being brought to court because they belong to a particular tribe, but because they have committed a specific offence.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go back to Mr. Omari's first question.

Question No. 158

OPENING OF BRANCHES OF THE CENTRAL BANK

Mr. Mwamzandi, on behalf of Mr. Omar, asked the Minister for Finance if he would tell the House when the Central Bank of Kenya would open branches in the following townships, Mombasa, Nakuru, Kisumu and Thika.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Central Bank of Kenya is planning to open a branch in Mombasa and land has already been acquired for that purpose. It is also considering opening a branch in Kisumu. No branches are planned for Nakuru and Thika yet. I would inform the hon. Member that the Central Bank needs to open branches only in those places where the convenience and business of currency issue and redemption justify their opening.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply and appreciating what he has told this House, because Mombasa is included, will he tell this House how soon this bank will start operating in Mombasa, in particular?

Mr. Balala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I have just said the site has already been acquired and arrangements are in hand but no funds have yet been found.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We now go back to Mr. Omar's second question.

Question No. 156

MOMBASA TAXIS CARRYING PASSENGERS OUTSIDE TOWN

Mr. Mwamzandi, on behalf of Mr. Omar, asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House why licensed taxi drivers of Mombasa District were being prosecuted when found outside Mombasa District carrying passengers.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Mombasa Municipality is the licensing authority for all taxi drivers within its jurisdiction of Mombasa District and such licences are only operative within the said area.

If the taxi drivers wish to operate outside the Mombasa Municipality they must, in addition, acquire licences from the outlying local authorities. Failure to do so leads to them being prosecuted.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply and taking into consideration the necessity of some taxi drivers having to take Mombasa people from their local areas, will the Assistant Minister not take into consideration that these sorts of regulations have not operated for a long time, even during the colonial days. Will the Assistant Minister consider denouncing these regulations and giving the taxi drivers a further chance before these regulations come into effect?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if these people are being prosecuted, then it is under the by-laws which the Municipal Council of Mombasa passed a very long time ago.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister tell this House, in general, whether it is an offence for that matter—if you hire a taxi from Nairobi to Thika—and therefore those taxi drivers will be prosecuted because someone hires their taxis to take them out of Mombasa to another place?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as regards the question about taxicabs, if anybody wants to go outside of the Municipality of Mombasa—or Nairobi for that matter—then he has to take a private hire vehicle such as Kenatco or Eboos.

Mr. Mwamzandi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance, when we referred to taxis, according to what the Assistant Minister has said, is it not generally thought that even Kenatco taxis are regarded as taxis?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think it is a point of order really, but obviously the Assistant Minister took the question referring to taxis licensed for public hire.

Let us go on.

Question No. 115

MAINTENANCE OF MAZERAS-KALOLENI ROAD

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Works to tell the House whether he was aware of the bad road between Mazeras and Kaloleni and if so, who was responsible for its maintenance.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Bomett): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the answer to (a) is yes. The answer to (b) is that my Ministry is not responsible; it is the responsibility of the Kilifi County Council.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Mwatsama, your next question.

Question No. 145

CITIZENSHIP OF CLERICAL STAFF, STANDARD LTD., MOMBASA

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House—

(a) how many African and Asian clerical staff were employed in Messrs. Standard (Africa) Limited, Mombasa; and

(b) how many of these were Kenyan citizens.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There are 22 African and Asian clerical staff in Messrs. Standard (Africa) Limited, Mombasa. 15 of them are Kenyan citizens.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell this House how many of these 22 people are Africans and how many are Asians? We want to know the breakdown of them.

Mr. Kubai: The rest are Africans.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, and due to the fact that we have several students running about for lack of employment, how is it that the Assistant Minister employs non-citizens while we have several young Africans roaming about without employment? Why does he see fit to give them work permits while our Africans are roaming about without employment?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said 15 of them are Kenya citizens and the rest are Africans. The total number is 22.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on to the next question.

Question No. 160

DELAY IN PUBLISHING CAMBRIDGE SCHOOL CERTIFICATE RESULTS

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what was the cause of delay in publishing the results of Cambridge School Certificate Examination of 1968.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply. The delay was caused by a sudden increase of candidates, both from the Government maintained schools as well as from private candidates, without a corresponding increase of the personnel marking the examinations.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply and in view of that fact that these papers are examined abroad, will the Minister tell us whether the under-staffing of examiners was abroad? If so, will the Minister make sure that this does not happen again in the next year?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure he is referring to the end of this year and the situation is being looked into.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now that the Minister has not actually told us what really happened because speaking of personnel does not imply personnel in Kenya or the personnel in Britain, where did the personnel fail? Was it in Britain or here? If it was here or Britain, can you tell us exactly whether this year the marking of these papers will be done by our local syndicate?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Cambridge University Examination Syndicate and the East African Examination have to work hand in hand until such time as this examination can be internationally recognized.

Question No. 146

NUMBER OF PUPILS AND AMOUNT OF FEES:
TAKAUNGU PRIMARY SCHOOL

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) what the total school roll of Takaungu Primary School was; and

(b) how much the school fees per year were.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad I did not hear what my friend said over there. I might have been upset.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the total enrolment at Takaungu Primary School is 174 at present, and the school fee is Sh. 126 per child per year.

Mr. Mwatsama: Mr. Speaker, Sir, does the Minister agree with me that it is because of these school fees that our people, the Africans, cannot afford to pay these school fees and it is high time the Ministry of Education should take over the school.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to take this opportunity to thank the hon. Member as well as the hon. Mr. Madhubuti and other Members who have brought to my attention the situation existing in that area, whereby some primary schools of very ordinary and common amenities—nothing special about them—which were classified as Arab Primary Schools before independence, were charging higher fees than the African Primary Schools. I have agreed with the hon. Mr. Madhubuti and other Members that the Minister for Local Government and myself are taking a very urgent action on this matter to make these schools charge the same fees as other schools.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, can the Minister give an assurance that by next year these school deductions will be the same as other county council primary schools?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member actually knows that I have already discussed this matter with the Municipal Council of Mombasa and now I am discussing the matter with the Minister for Local Government. It depends on how fast the machinery of Government operates in this regard.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister then, in view of the prevailing conditions, allow African children to pay according to their means, that is, about half of what is paid in that school, and allow the so-called Arabs who own the school to pay as high fees as they like?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not believe in discrimination among students.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 146:
AFFAIRS OF TAKAUNGU PRIMARY SCHOOL

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I get permission from the hon. questioner, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwatsama?

Mr. Mwatsama: No objection, Sir.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20

CLOSURE OF ROADS BY E.A.R. & H.—
BUNGOMA DISTRICT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members I would remind you that at 6 p.m. today, Mr. Khaoya is to move the adjournment of the House under Standing Order 20 to discuss a definite matter of urgent national importance, that is, the closing of level crossings in the Bungoma District.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

AMENDMENTS TO THE STATUTE LAW—TO BE CIRCULATED WITH SUBSTANTIVE ACTS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is another matter to which I would like to refer—I am glad to see the Attorney-General is here—and that is the notice that hon. Members have received today, that the Attorney-General proposes to move in the committee stage of the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendment) Bill an addition to the Schedule, of a very important further amendment. Which, in fact, involves the introduction of the death sentence for certain crimes in certain circumstances. I am a little bit doubtful whether the amendment of a law of such importance is really suitable for a Miscellaneous Amendments Act, but as long as hon. Members are made aware of it—fully aware of it—I think no real harm is done.

However, in accordance with Standing Orders, I must ask the Attorney-General to circulate copies of the existing section, that is, 296 of the Penal Code, for hon. Members to see the actual law which is being amended, before we come to the committee stage.

MOTION

AMENDMENT TO S.O. 17

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, Standing Order No. 17 be amended in paragraph (1) thereof, by deleting the word "Mondays" therefrom.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may say this, the paragraph says, "Unless for the convenience of the House, Mr. Speaker—otherwise directs the House shall meet at 9 a.m. on Fridays and at 2.30 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, but more than one sitting may be directed during the same day". It is the first part with which we are concerned now, the sitting of this House on Monday.

It is common knowledge to the hon. Members, that we agreed to sit on Mondays because of the pressure of work and the increase of business in this House. But we used to sit on Tuesdays and, therefore, this is not introducing a new thing but it is a thing which has been there before. The extra day, that is, the sitting on Mondays, Mr. Speaker, was brought in because of the increase of business.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think Members will agree with me that it is time for the hon. Members to find time to go to their constituencies and to speak to their constituents in preparation—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): It is amazing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that some four Members are very hostile to this Motion. I would, however, like to tell them on Monday, in a Parliamentary Group meeting, they were the ones who assented and said it was very good when the President sat in the chair. I am beginning to wonder why Members change; when the Chairman of the Kanu Parliamentary Group is there, they are different, and the moment they get into this House they change again.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister actually in order to try and bring all the Parliamentary Group matters here when this Motion is subject to the decision of this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think in support of a Motion, an hon. Member can refer to conversations that have taken place outside the House, especially if he thinks they implied agreement on the part of some hon. Member. It is in order.

I am very grateful to you, Mr. Speaker, for correcting the Member for Nakuru West for bringing in his own understanding about this particular aspect. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am told the Member comes from the town.

I think this is for the convenience of hon. Members, especially those who come from very far away, that they should have time to spend in their constituencies, explaining the achievements of the Government. They have a duty, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these hon. Members here have a duty to explain to their constituencies the achievements of the Government, so when the General Election comes they will be able to clear their position completely.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is clearly known and, of course, I can see the Members that they would like to spend an extra day in their constituencies that we revert to the old Standing Order, where Mondays were excluded from the sitting of this hon. House. Therefore, without much to say, I beg to move that the Members will accept this Motion.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in fact, the Motion is self-explanatory, but the Minister has failed to convince the House exactly why Mondays should not be sitting days. Despite the fact that we had a Parliamentary Group meeting, the decision taken there had no binding authority on this House. The House has its own authority as by law, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the only thing I want to quarrel with, is the substitution of the day that we have to start sitting. If the Motion reads, that we delete the word "Monday" therefrom, and not substitute the day when we will be sitting, then the Motion is incomplete. The Standing Orders will be amended. The word Monday will be deleted. What day will it be substituted with?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I suggest you read the Standing Orders, Mr. Mwithaga and you will see that sitting days will remain as Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in fact, this is not my view alone, for I believe that many other Members have a similar confusion. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if we are not to continue sitting on Mondays, I must say that I personally welcome it for only one reason and that is we have a lot of work sometimes to do during the week-ends. Sundays are busy days for it is the time we go to church, and Saturdays are not convenient for these are the half-days for work. Mr. Speaker, Sir, let the Minister tell this House that it is because of work which has become less and that makes us not require so many days for sitting. The amount of work is the same and he should only ask the Members to make a sacrifice and work harder here during a shorter week than in the longer week as we had been doing before. That is all, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have no quarrel with the Motion as it stands. I do remember I did point out to Members in our Parliamentary Group—which has been referred to by the Deputy Leader of Government Business—that I am a Member of the Sessional Committee which is very much aware of the amount of work to be done during this session. If the hon. Members were supporting the idea of sitting from Tuesday to Friday, they should do so on the understanding that they will have to be pressed very hard in order to get the present work done and completed. This is physically impossible, because there are so many Bills to be debated here and so many committee meetings to be held that I feel we shall not be able to complete all this work if we only sit from Tuesday to Friday. I pointed out those facts in our Parliamentary Group and I want to point it out to the Members now. If the Minister can agree that the business of Government will be reduced, then it is possible to complete our work if we sit from Tuesday to Friday in this session. If the Government is not going to reduce the volume of business, then what it means is that we may have to sit from 2.30 to 8 p.m. every day.

An hon. Member: Address the Chair.

Mr. Shikuku: I am looking at the clock, I think there is nothing wrong with looking at the clock, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for I am addressing the Chair. We shall have to sit from 2.30—according to that clock of ours—until 8 p.m. or 9 p.m. to finish the business. If we do that, Mr. Speaker, we are going to have—from experience I remember in 1963 when we had a marathon debate in the former Chamber of ours—how nonsensical these long sittings can be. This is because hon. Members of the National Assembly get very tired and some of them cannot afford not to attend important discussions. Some of them get so bored that they have to go and have a glass of beer. When they come back, they are totally drunk and not in a mood to do anything except to cause chaos. This makes nonsense of the whole thing. I must warn, Mr. Speaker, Sir, being a representative of this country that if we are going to sit for a long time here, very many important Bills which will affect our people, will be passed because the Government will take advantage of the tiredness of Members and their disinterest and many of the Bills will be bulldozed through. This is not in the interest of hon. Members nor is it in the interest of the nation. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not mind what anybody thinks about me, but there is one thing I know; that truth shall prevail and justice to the people of this country is a must. We should not take things simply here and call it a day. There is more than one alternative; there are many alternatives, Mr. Speaker, Sir. If we have to sit from Tuesday to Friday we have to agree that the Government will have to push us as much as possible and sometimes we will have to have a Bill passed in all its stages, on one day in order that things will be kept going. If that is what the hon. Members are going to accept, then I am not opposing because there are only two alternatives: either we sit for long hours or we have the business and Bills pushed through and in no time at all. I think it will be passed through at a terrific speed so that all the business we have to complete in the session will be completed. I am only giving them the true picture of the amount of business we have been told about in the Sessional Committee. I have no objection, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to sitting from Tuesday to Friday as long as the business is going to be reduced; but as long as the same amount of business is going to be there. I would only be fooling myself and failing in my duty as a representative of Butere in this House to think that we can hoodwink ourselves into thinking we can finish this amount of business within this short time.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir—the Deputy Leader of Government Business says that we need time to see our constituents. This is all right for I want to see my constituents, too. The fact is that we were recently at home for a good three months. Were we shaving? We were seeing people and we were always there. Any hon. Member who has not been going to his constituency, as the President of this Republic has informed any of us who stay in the town drinking, and now thinks that he can go and convince his people so late, because of next year's General Election—he is doomed. Therefore, we do not need that single day each week because one cannot do much in one day. Those who have not been going back will have already failed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, during our time in school, if we had not been studying very hard and waited until two months before the Cambridge School Certificate Examination and then started reading throughout the whole night without enough sleep, then one will never make it and one will always fail. Therefore, those who have been sitting here during the last six years, sleeping in the city—and I am sure the hon. Members of Nairobi City are very kind—they cannot make up even if they are given every Monday to spend at home. So, the argument does not hold water at all, because Monday is just a single day and what can you do in a day? At any rate they should be travelling back on Monday to come here on Tuesday, so they will not do much, any way. If there is less business, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then we can sit from Tuesday to Friday. If there is business, for Heaven's sake, let us give every consideration to every clause in a Bill or to every Motion that is brought to this House in the interests of our people but not for ourselves. If there is question of a recess, then I do not know how it will work if we are going to sit from Tuesday to Friday. There will be no question of having a recess because the days will be so numbered. Now, Mr. Speaker, let it be understood that all I am trying to do is to keep the Members of the National Assembly aware of what they are trying to do. I agree that they first must see this in the National Assembly. If they agree, as I pointed out to them in our Parliamentary Group Meeting, if we are going to pass this Motion, which I am not objecting to, then we know the two conditions; that we shall either be sitting for longer hours, or we shall have everything bulldozed through until we have no time to think on whatever we do and there will be no recess at the same time.

If the business is to be reduced and Government is going to agree to that, and I hope that when the Deputy Leader of Government Business stands to reply to this Motion he will tell us whether the business will be reduced. I had a talk with one or two Ministers who said that we could cut down the business. If they can cut down the business, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then I have no objection. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wait for reply from the Minister.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand up just to argue on one small point that the hon. Member for Butere has been working on. Actually, he over-stressed this and it is a shame that a man of his experience should go on repeating himself all the time. We do get bored and tired of repetitions. We have been working as a Parliament in this House for four days for very many years and we have always managed to get through our business. It was only for a short time that it was felt necessary to commence sitting on a Monday. Now, Sir, the problem here is—let us be sensible and let us not go on continuing to say that business must be less. It could be much less. It should be much less.

An hon. Member: On a point of information.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): No information. I am pretty well informed; extremely so. The thing is that business fluctuates.

An hon. Member: Are you co-operative?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I am extremely co-operative. Business fluctuates, and you cannot deny that. Sometimes we just sit here and just talk, talk, talk, talk nothing.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Minister to say that we sit here and talk and talk and do nothing? Is he in order to imply that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, hon. Members should not speak so contemptuously of their own House.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is not what I meant. He is misinterpreting me purposely.

An hon. Member: Say it again!

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): I am not saying it again.

To be serious, Sir, my feeling is that we could do our job—what we are doing now in five days—in four days. One of these coming days you will be asked to do it in three days. The thing is that if all we want is to have a very convenient time so that we can sit here five times a week and sometimes we, as I said earlier on, tend to prolong our speeches just to kill time. This has been my personal feeling.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, should we let that go unchallenged when the Member is actually imputing the motive that we are just here to make talk which is to kill the time? Is he not imputing an improper motive on the Members' speeches here?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think if the hon. Member was imputing an improper motive he is out of order, of course; but if he is only saying that some Members speak longer than necessary, I do not think one could call him out of order.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, that is what I meant.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am persuaded to support this Motion, because I also feel that we are being very unfair to those who have to drive over 300 miles every now and then to come to this House. When we leave this place on Friday afternoon, then we go there and we have only one day and that is a half day on Saturday to dispose of any duties in our own offices and then on Sundays we also have to attend some of the meetings in one place or the other.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Attend the churches.

Mr. Odinga: And also, yes, those who attend the churches also have to be present to attend the churches.

Therefore, to travel again to come back it is also fair that we should start coming back on Monday. At the present moment, you go a long way and you arrive at home at about 10 o'clock at night and then the next morning you are very busy with other things. On Sunday you have to get prepared to come back again to Nairobi. Doing this every now and then is very tiresome indeed. This is something which those who live near might not have noticed, but those people who live a little bit further away notice a great deal. This is a great strain on our movements. At the same time, I do believe that if the Kanu Government—taking into account the size of Kanu—could adopt the method that we used to adopt it would be a good thing. In the past all the Back-benchers used to wash all their dirty linen in their own Back-benchers' meeting before they came to Parliament. If this was done now, the work here would be easier. I remember at one time there were only eight African elected Members against several others, but when we came in to discuss a Bill we came when we had elected that So-and-so was going to participate and So-and-so was going to participate in that Bill. On the other side also, on the Government Bench, the European elected Members had selected who was going to speak on it, the principal speaker. The others only spoke when there was time left over. Now you find that everybody likes to speak and, in many respects, repeat something that somebody has already said, and this is no good. This does not help. I remember that even before the Opposition was only eight people and although we were only eight people at that time, we were given that Friday as our time for our debate. Mr. Speaker, I am reminding them of what happened.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not relevant, Mr. Odinga.

Mr. Odinga: I will leave it, but I want to say that Government business was only for three days, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and the other time was private time, that is Friday. However, we still concluded a lot of business.

I think, Mr. Speaker, that even now we can still conclude a lot of business during these days that we have, if Kanu had as often as possible a Back-benchers' meeting—I am just trying to help them to organize themselves—where they should discuss all Bills so that people can argue over these little things there and when they come here they should speak on what they are going to contribute as important points. We could do the same on this side.

With this, Mr. Speaker, I know that some people might not like this, but this is what is called organization. If you want to live in an organization, you must conform to the rules of the organization. That is why we have got confusion because we cannot leave people just to move as they like. There must be a system of doing things in an organization.

As such, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to support this Motion and I support it rather strongly.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, I beg to call upon the Mover to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! This is quite a serious issue. I see that a lot of hon. Members wish to speak, and so I do not think that I can assume there is nothing more to be said at this stage. I think it is too early for the closure.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this Motion because I do not think sufficient reasons have been advanced by the Mover of the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, I have heard the three points from the Leader of the Opposition and I, for one, think that anything which the Leader of the Opposition agrees with is bad for me and so naturally I oppose. He does not belong to Kanu and, therefore, he cannot support anything which is good for Kanu.

Mr. Speaker, one point has been raised that those who stay far away get very tired going home every weekend and coming back on Mondays. I am one of those who go very far away and I cover more than 300 miles in one single journey, and the return journey is more than 600 miles. I never stay here during the weekends. I am prepared to go every weekend. Those who say they are tired, we are nearing the election, they can opt out. I think this is the time that we should show that we are vigorous and that we are prepared to fight for five more years. If you say that you are tired, we shall tell your electors that you are too tired to come here on Mondays and that will be sufficient.

Mr. Speaker, on that count, I do not agree with the Leader of the Opposition; we are very vigorous; we are not tired at all. We are prepared to come for ten years every Monday and go home every Friday and come back every Monday for ten years.

Mr. Speaker, the second point which I would like to raise is that there is always time for resting and time for working. Already this year, as everybody knows in the country, we have had a rest of almost six months, for this year, and so when we come for business we mean business even if it means working on Sundays, we shall stay here. I am prepared to work here and ask for no overtime because as national leaders we are prepared to do this work without overtime.

Now, there was this question of a spokesman. The Leader of the Opposition touched on that and said that the Opposition is going to select certain Members to represent them here and that our Kanu side should also select certain Members. He must understand that when we were elected in our constituencies, we were elected as the only spokesmen for those constituencies. If you come here and decide to give your mandate to somebody else, you had better declare that at the polls because it is important that your electorate should know whether you are going to speak for them or not. I think any hon. Member here is here as a representative in his own right; he is not to be bulldozed by anybody. You can talk in your Parliamentary group but, primarily, the thing is decided on this Floor, and this is where people will judge you whether you are representing them or not, whatever you do. These backdoor meetings are only to help the party maybe, but in the final analysis, when the votes are taken, people like to know from your constituency, "How did our Member vote and how did he speak?" You are not just supported because you happen to belong to Kanu and they support Kanu, or because you happen to support KPU, and they support the KPU.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, on these three grounds I totally differ with the Leader of the Opposition and I only ask the Leader of Government Business and his Deputy to withdraw this Motion as it does not help anybody at all.

Mr. Speaker, I know that this is the year where we have to show our worth, if at all we are worthy, and we know that there are a number of things which we have to clear before we can present a clean face to the electorate. This being so, I think we have to look at every aspect of the colonial laws—and this requires time—and we have to look at every aspect of Government's undertakings—and this requires time—and that is why we should speak from Mondays up to Mondays again, so that when the year ends we can present ourselves as having done an honourable job. We should not say that we were tired and so could not manage Tuesdays, and then we hear that we only sat from Wednesdays up to Thursdays, and then again we found that too much and so we sat only on Fridays, once in a week. What sort of Parliament would that be?

Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Speaker, this is the supreme authority in this country: Parliament. Sir, when you questioned what had been decided in the Parliamentary group—or somewhere else—about deleting the word "Monday", you were taken in that grace that this is the place to decide. We have been on for about six years and for five years we have been working for four days, Tuesdays up to Fridays, and a lot of business was transacted. When it became necessary to add a little more time for the business of this country to be transacted through this House, one extra day was added to by this House. What this House is being asked to do is to reapportion the time again because it is necessary to reduce the number of days and do something else during the other days of the week.

I am sure, Mr. Speaker, this House is capable of apportioning this and that is why this has been brought here by the Government, and this House which added this extra day some time ago when it was necessary, is being asked to consider reducing this day because it is not absolutely—and I repeat the word absolutely—necessary. However, should it be found that we need another day in the future—not only one day, perhaps two days—this very House will be asked again to consider adding.

Therefore, it is on these grounds, Mr. Speaker, I want to support this and also to say that despite what we say here there was quite a lot of merit in what the Leader of the Opposition said.

Hon. Members: Are you agreeing with him?

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, let us be frank here. At this particular time, the words said on this Floor a few minutes ago by the Leader of the Opposition on this Motion have a lot of merit.

Hon. Members: Cross the Floor.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): This does not mean that I mean to cross the Floor. The trouble, Mr. Speaker, with some of these people who tell me to cross the Floor is that they do not know what they are talking about.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Minister to say "some of these people"? Are we to be referred to as "these people" when we know very well that we are honourable Members?

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do apologize. It is right that I should apologize but may I define what I mean by “these people”? These people are known in my mind to be hon. gentlemen. I hope, Mr. Speaker, that these hon. gentlemen will let me expound a little further on this.

This is all right, Mr. Speaker, and this Motion is not asking too much; all that it is asking is that this hon. House should apportion ourselves—for the time being—to sit between Tuesdays and Fridays. Being an old teacher, I think I should say that there is something known as précis which means being brief. Brevity is a very essential part, especially when we are all grown up and very mature in these things.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think whoever is the architect of this particular Motion did not read the substance of that clause. Whatever we may do, whether we pass it or not, the Speaker can still direct under that clause that this Parliament meets on Mondays until he is satisfied that the business of this country can be conducted efficiently, properly and in good time, giving the Members sufficient time. If this is wrong, then I advise you that you did not understand what you were meant to do with this Motion here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should explain, Mr. Ngala-Abok. It is quite true as Mr. Ngala-Abok says, that the Standing Order starts with the words “Unless for the convenience of the House Mr. Speaker otherwise directs . . .”, but of course that power of otherwise directing is not an arbitrary power, nor is it meant to be used so as to override permanently what is written in the Standing Orders. I should never regard it as my right to direct otherwise than is in Standing Orders, unless I was sure that the majority of the House would like me to do so, and I should never feel justified, where we have a Standing Order to sit on certain days, to direct that on every week we do the contrary. It would be a direction that one would only use occasionally by fairly strong pressure from the House. I would not like a misunderstanding as to the powers of the Speaker here.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: That being so, Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members have now fully understood, but it still remains with Mr. Speaker to see what there is to be done by the House, and to see whether he should direct that some other days, not included in the Standing Order, could be used for the convenience of Members.

I would like to oppose this, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I wanted to amend the Motion by inserting in front of “Monday”, the words “Whenever Mr.

Speaker directs”. We have had a very long explanation from the Speaker, counting the days remaining ahead, Government days and Private Members’ days, and the business which is coming. The explanation was long and was sufficiently convincing, but I do not know whether it will help this country. If anybody thinks that he will keep on warning the Members of his own party that they should go and farm, that they should not go and roam about looking for prostitutes, Members of his own party, or Members of the National Assembly, or that they should tell some Members to do this or that, then he is treating us as children. The Members here have experience and know the facts of this country. If you keep on warning them all the time, they will think they are your enemies, and you are doing a great disservice. There is no point in it, Mr. Speaker, Sir. The Leader of Government Business, the Deputy Leader of Government Business, the President of this country, they all know very well that they have the Parliamentary Group meeting regularly, and there they can warn as much as they like, but to make a statement which will go all over the world, that they warn Members of the National Assembly that they should not go looking for prostitutes in the country, hon. Members who were elected by the people, some—

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand the hon. Member is saying that the hon. Members were accused of going to look for prostitutes. Could he give us substantiation of this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it will be found in the report of a certain speech—a newspaper report—but I was going to say to the hon. Member that I do not think it is really relevant to this question and we must get back to the point of the Motion.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, I will leave that, but it is one of the worst ways of organizing your party. We have to be handled properly in this country, we are not children, and we have a say in our own future progress. We have the experience.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I am opposed to the cancellation of meeting on Mondays, just because if Government brings a Motion to this House, it must have its reasons well tabulated, one, two, three, four, five, but we do not want sweeping and shallow statements here.

With those few remarks, I wish to oppose.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is somebody wanting to move the closure?

Hon. Members: No, no.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wanted to move the closure.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think it is premature now, so I will put the question of the closure.

(Question, that the Mover be now called upon to reply, put and negatived)

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought there was an amendment moved by the hon. Member, Mr. Ngala-Abok.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was not quite clear, but I understood that although Mr. Ngala-Abok had contemplated such an amendment, he was not actually moving it.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: No, I just suggested it.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Motion as moved by the Deputy Leader of Government Business. The reason why I do so is simple: it is true that we are here to pass legislation. It is true that it is our duty to cover and complete as much as we can of the Government business, but we should also realize that it is our duty to explain to our voters the same matters which we are passing here. It is difficult for an hon. Member—the hon. Member in the Opposition, the Leader of the Opposition, and the hon. Member, Mr. Nyagah have said the same—to leave here on Friday afternoon, get home on Friday night, on Saturday he is in his area, and then on Sunday he has to prepare to come back. Mr. Speaker, it gives you very little time. You have also to consider the dangers on the roads today. There are so many accidents on the roads, and for hon. Members to be rushing away on Friday afternoon and to rush back on Sunday—

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since it was the wish, as we heard the other day in the Parliamentary Group meeting, that when debating such Motions all Government Ministers must be present—this was a ruling from the President—and since we only have two Ministers present, all others are absent, may I move that we adjourn this debate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I put the question of the closure to the House only about three minutes ago when it was negatived and I cannot put it again so quickly.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member for Kisii in order to mislead the House by saying there are only two Ministers in the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is mistaken certainly.

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like your ruling on this. The hon. Member was not suggesting the closure but it was the question of adjourning the debate so as to enable Ministers to be present.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am very sorry I cannot always hear Mr. Kebaso very clearly from that corner, it is rather a bad part of the House. That was your proposal, that you wished to move the adjournment of the debate, Mr. Kebaso?

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, I meant to adjourn the debate until all the Ministers are present here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. When hon. Members wish to move the adjournment of the debate, the Speaker has a discretion as to whether he will allow the Motion, and he does not allow it unless he sees some really good reason, and I cannot see any.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, I was making one valid point which was that if we move on the road today, Mr. Speaker, let us face the truth, we have so many accidents on the road and hon. Members would be rushing from here every Friday afternoon to get to their constituencies and then rush back here every Sunday.

If we want to demonstrate, as leaders of this country, it is high time that hon. Members occasionally stopped on the road, and talked to the people instead of rushing from Nairobi at 80 or 100 miles per hour, going to their constituencies and back here. Mr. Speaker, we have also talked about co-operation with the Administration, co-operation with the people we represent. It is only by giving me a free mandate so that I could go to a chief's baraza to hear if the chief is explaining Government policy properly, and I can then tell the people, who are my voters, what the Government is doing. Coming back every Sunday, Mr. Speaker, has deprived us of a lot of opportunities in our constituencies. We need to see the people. We need to assist them with the self-help projects also, Mr. Speaker. I feel we need to reconsider our stand and support this Motion as moved.

Mr. Speaker, this is the only chance the Members have to explain the policy of the Government to their voters, and you can only do so if you have enough days at home at the weekend, but not when you are rushing on the road to your constituency and then rushing back to Nairobi.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I fully support the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, we are getting some repetition now on the same points. I hope those who wish to speak will try to make new points.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fail to understand how shortlived the memories of our Government are because it was only last week that Mr. Speaker, you enumerated the business of the House which is before us. Mr. Speaker, with such an amount of business in front of us, and having very great difficulty in finishing that business, and yet somebody goes to advise the President and the Cabinet that Mondays are not good days to sit.

Mr. Speaker, I just do not see how this can happen. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would like to say here today is that I have heard the arguments of the Ministers, and, in fact, the Mover of this Motion was very weak and did not know what points he wanted to bring to the attention of the House. He gave no reason at all why we should not meet on Mondays. In fact, it is high time that he stopped being the Deputy Leader of Government Business.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many hon. Members have spoken here both in favour and against the business of the House. The hon. Member for Limuru, who is the Minister for Finance, started speaking here saying that it is easy to finish this business very, very quickly. Mr. Speaker, did he consider the fact that it was only yesterday when we were discussing his business of 1966? He did not remember that. Yet, he says we can finish this within a short time. This, Mr. Speaker, gives us no room for good thinking at all.

Mr. Speaker, it is true that in a month's time we will be going for another recess, and all the business we have will be pending. Let the Government today state clearly that they do not want this business discussed, and there are many Bills which they want to hide, and which they do not want us to discuss, and also the reports of the Select Committee. Let them say they do not want to discuss these here so we can agree that we are not going to meet on Mondays, and, therefore those can be thrown into the ditch or into the waste-paper baskets and be finished. Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious Motion and I feel that many arguments which have been advanced here, including that Members should go back to the land, are all nonsense. Nobody can teach me to go back to the land. I came from the land, I live there and I will be buried in the land. Mr. Speaker, there is no use in anyone coming here to tell me I should go back to the land. I just do not see where the sense is in a Motion like this. Let those hon. Ministers who want to move this Motion tell us that they are finding it difficult to go to their offices on Mondays because of their Sunday hangovers. If they say such things, Mr. Speaker, then we can accept it very easily and we will say that it is all right and on Mondays they can transact their own business in their own shops while in the House we do not have to witness their hangovers.

Mr. Speaker, there is no reason at all for them to say it is anything to do with our being tired. A young man like myself being told he is tired of driving home every day, is absurd, Mr. Speaker. It is absurd to be told I am getting tired, when I am serving this great country of ours, and I feel it is now the right time to serve this country with distinction, and with all my might until I die for the people who as people, work day and night for our country and not just people who just want to sleep on Mondays and then we will continue on Tuesdays.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Leader of the Opposition was very well applauded by the gentlemen on the Front Bench because he appeared to be their leader. But, Mr. Speaker, what substance was there in his speech? He only wanted more time to consolidate his KPU offices right inside Nyanza, and, yet when he says he should have that day to consolidate his offices and to attend funerals on Sundays, then these gentlemen were applauding him as if he were their leader. Mr. Speaker, I fail to see the sense in this.

Mr. Speaker, I feel this Motion should be tackled in a more realistic way than the way it has been done, and I ask the Deputy Leader of Government Business to withdraw it immediately and face the facts and go back to the so-called Parliamentary Group where he obtained it from and obtain the mandate of those people who did not have a chance to express themselves in the Parliamentary Group and then he can come back and test the popularity of that proposal in this House.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose this Motion, very very seriously.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my mind is very clear on what I am saying and there is no question of anybody saying I am opposed and so on.

Mr. Speaker, what I would like to say is this. Both sides have a case which the Government must look into. Mr. Speaker, I am going to speak my mind and I, for one, feel that Monday is a clumsy day for Parliament to sit, but, Sir, I am duty bound to say that if there is any business to be transacted by the Government on Monday then I will come on Monday. It is very unfortunate that when the Motion was being moved I was not in the House, but I have been told that one of the Ministers said we should go back to the land. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the Minister who said this "go back to the land" is a very aggressive slogan, Sir, which was used in good sense but now it is being mocked by some people here. It is unfortunate, Mr. Speaker, that this was used here. Mr. Speaker, it was mockery of the slogan.

Now, Sir, what I would like to say is that as we have so much business to be got through, if we do not sit on Monday's it will not go through. There is something at the back of my mind which tells me we should sit on Mondays.

Mr. Speaker, in clear thinking I oppose the Motion, and as hon. Mbogoh said those who had no chance to air their views at the Parliamentary Group meeting will have a chance to do so and, therefore, it is not only in the Parliamentary Group, where such things should be decided. If the Government could bring a really good case and convince the House—we are all Members of the ruling party, and we can see the sense and we see the reasons behind it—but when you bring a blank cheque thinking the majority is behind you, then, Mr. Speaker, we must register our protest.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when you used your discretion a few minutes ago when the hon. Member rose to move that the debate be adjourned, I think, Mr. Speaker, you can see the tension in the House and I would like to move that the debate be now adjourned.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to give some reason for proposing the adjournment of the debate, Mr. Kariuki?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, the reason being is that I remember we took a unanimous decision at the Parliamentary Group, and now, Mr. Speaker, it seems as if Members did not wholeheartedly support what we agreed at the Parliamentary Group meeting. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I am moving that we refer this matter to the Parliamentary Group for further consideration.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I must say it is a doubtful reason rather that debate should be adjourned simply for reference back for discussion in a particular group of the House very often. But since apparently Members are greatly troubled because of a previous decision taken by the Group, and since I believe it might be the wish of the Mover himself to allow the adjournment of the debate for further discussion. If you would like to say, Mr. Ngei, would you be in favour? You would be in favour?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): I am in favour, Mr. Speaker, that we go back and thrash this out again so that the Members can be easy in their minds.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In that case, I will allow Mr. Kariuki to move the adjournment of the debate, and then if it is seconded I will put the question immediately, I think.

MOTION

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBATE: AMENDMENT TO S.O. 17

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I am very grateful to the Deputy Leader of Government Business who thought it wise to have this debate referred back to the Parliamentary Group. I remember almost all of us attended this Parliamentary Group where the President—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member speaking said all of us attended the Parliamentary Group, can he substantiate that all of us, including myself, were at the meeting?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You would mean a large majority no doubt.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I did not say all of us. I said "almost all of us", almost everybody here, although I remember my hon. friend over there was not at the Parliamentary Group meeting. I remember he was not there, but the majority of Parliamentarians who support Kanu as a party, were at this Parliamentary Group, and we unanimously decided that the amendment to the Standing Order—

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the hon. Member who has just sat down tell the House if the Parliamentary Group meeting is becoming the National Assembly of Kenya and will be given the responsibility of making laws as we do in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sure the hon. Member is not suggesting that. It is certainly a very wrong suggestion. It is a common thing for Parliamentary Groups, strong or weak, to meet and decide on the attitude they take in the House when a matter comes to the House. That is what Mr. Kariuki is referring to. I do not think we want a very long discussion as to what exactly happened at the Parliamentary Group, especially if this Motion is to go back there again.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since I was the originator of the move to have this debate adjourned until we meet again, I see no reason why the Member for Laikipia should continue wasting the time of the House talking about something which we want to put away.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not describe other Members efforts as a waste of time, Mr. Kebaso, even if we believe them to be so. When the hon. Member has finished, if you would like to second him, you would be welcome.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I think I should be given time to explain why we are moving this Motion and, Mr. Speaker, I am sure Members will agree with me that this is the right time to have the debate adjourned until we meet again in the Parliamentary Group.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I said the debate be adjourned until we meet again, I did not mean we should go back to the Parliamentary Group. I said that since the Government Ministers who are supposed to be the policy makers—that is most of them—were out, and since they have now come in and that it is the wish of the whole House that this debate be adjourned until they decide either in the Parliamentary Group or in another place, I beg to second the Motion that the debate be now adjourned.

REPORTS AND THIRD READINGS

THE SPECIAL PENSION (MR. ODONGO) BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Chairman, I beg to report that the Committee of the whole House has considered the Special Pension (Mr. Odongo) Bill and the Petroleum Duties (Amendment) Bill and approved same without amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Sorry, we will take one at a time. We will take the Special Pension (Mr. Odongo) Bill. You now move that the House agrees with the Committee in the said report, that is the report on the Odongo Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House agrees with the Committee of the whole House in the said report.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange) seconded.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Special Pension (Mr. Odongo) Bill be now read the Third Time.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is interesting that the Assistant Minister, despite the appeal made by various Members on this issue of Mr. Odongo's Pension during the Second Reading, has not in the Third Reading given a statement, at least to assure the hon. Members of this House that in future there will not be either Mr. Odongo's Bill, or any other Member's Bill, and that in future there will be one Bill for all the people. This he has not said during the Third Reading, and I would like to remind him again that he should give an assurance to this House that there are many people like Mr. Odongo and so forth who should not be mentioned in this House, but a Bill to cover them all will be brought to this House for approval so that they also get enjoyment from the sweat they had in the past.

Mr. Speaker, that is the only assurance I would like to have from the Assistant Minister because it appears that he did not take the feelings of the Members seriously. If he does not take the feeling of the Members seriously, it is too bad, but I think he will take the views of the hon. Members in this House because they are speaking the minds of the people.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Members wishes to speak I will call on the Mover to reply.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make it very clear to the hon. Member that I always take the views of the hon. Members very seriously and when I give an undertaking that I will do something, I usually do it. During the Second Reading of this Bill, I also made it very clear, and I said it very clearly, that I sympathize with the views expressed by the hon. Members, to the effect that there is a need for a law whereby all special pensions are covered instead of mentioning names of individuals to be covered by special Bills. I have also made it very clear that the suggestions of the hon. Members are noted and I have undertaken to pass the same to the Attorney-General.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read the Third Time and passed)

THE PETROLEUM DUTIES (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Chairman, I beg to report that the Committee of the whole House, has considered the Petroleum Duties (Amendment) Bill and approved the same without amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So you move.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Petroleum Duties (Amendment) Bill, be now read the Third Time.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while accepting the intentions behind this Bill, and as it has been supported by the House in the Second Reading, I know that the Minister tried his best. However, my report in this Third Reading, Sir, is that people living outside Nairobi, Nakuru, and other parts—those who live far off in the rural districts have not felt the difference in the price as far as diesel fuel is concerned. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, it should be enough for the Minister to reduce the little amount which he did, but a half a loaf is better than none—we congratulate the Minister for that. However, we need something far more than that, even going to the extent of reducing the price of fertilizers and other items, that will make the farming in this country, which is the backbone of the economy of this country, rather more economical than it is at the moment.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

It is in this spirit Mr. Deputy Speaker, that Government should undertake to develop this country, because, unless this country is developed agriculturally, we will have no hope at all of standing on our own feet economically.

I wanted him also to tell me why, despite his reduction of the price of diesel fuel in other remote parts of Kenya, in places like Kakamega, Bungoma, Busia, and others, the price is still the same. Was it only mere maneno, and nothing has been done? Could he give us a statement undertaking that?

Otherwise, I have not much to say on this, apart from saying that I support the intention of the Bill, and let us hope that everybody will profit from it. So far, Western Province people have had nothing from it.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I must now call on the Mover to reply.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, at this stage of the Third Reading, I would like to thank the hon. Members who contributed to this Bill by putting forward very valid suggestions and very genuine ones. I can assure, the hon. Members particularly on the point raised by the hon. Mr. Shikuku, when he said that in some parts of the country the reduction has not yet been effective, that the reduction contained in the Bill from the date of its effect has been effective. If the hon. Member feels that the reductions are not affecting in some parts of the country, I am prepared to take up the matter, and I can assure him, that the proper and necessary steps will be taken.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

BILLS*Second ReadingTHE AFRICAN ASSURANCE AND PROVIDENT CORPORATION LIMITED BILL

(The Assistant Minister for Finance) (Mr. Balala)
(on 4th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 4th June 1969)

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. In this Bill I have one or two observations to make about the whole business.

Sir, yesterday we were given to understand by the Minister who spoke about this Bill that we have about 95 per cent of policy-holders in this company.

That may be true, but there is one question I want to put to the Minister who brought this Bill forward. I understand that this company was a branch of the one in Salisbury, and that the branch in Kenya had African directors. One wonders, therefore, what caused the collapse of the company. Also, when the Minister said that he was going to save policy-holders from losing their money, this to me does not hold water at all, simply because taking a life assurance policy is just like a business. When you go into a business, you expect two things: either to get profits or to lose. If, therefore you lose, it is nobody's business; it is your own shauri because you started your business wrongly and so there is no need for crying and saying, "Look, I have failed, I need assistance". Therefore, this to me does not appeal at all.

Sir, we all know that we have another assurance company which Government supports; the Government has about 51 per cent of the shares of the Kenya National Assurance Company. We are quite well aware that an assurance company is just like any other business; indeed, it is one of the most difficult businesses that one can undertake. This is because to get people assured in the company, one needs to work very hard; one needs some agents to canvass the people in order that they may buy a policy from one's company.

Already, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are numerous such companies in the country, and I do not believe that just because Government is going to assist in this one, this company is going to prosper so as to protect policy-holders in the company. This I do not believe. Unless they work twice as much as the other companies are doing now, I do not think that this company will succeed, just because Government is helping it.

What I am trying to say is that, although Government came up and said that it was trying to protect policy-holders in this company, to my mind this was a wrong thing for it to do. This is because if one is going into business, one goes into business on one's own and when the worst comes to the worst, there is no need to go to the people for help.

Sir, if the Government is prepared to step in and try to assist to bring this company to success, then we must have trained personnel in the company. We must have 95 per cent of the directors and people working in the company as black Africans, so that if the worst comes to the worst—if we lose—it will not be very bad because some of our Africans, who will have worked there will have been getting salaries and, therefore we will not complain very much. However, if they are going to put in expatriates as experts to run the company, then I do not see any need of our saying that we are trying to protect the policy-holders and so the Government comes in.

If Government wants this one to succeed, we must have Africans as directors, Africans as clerks, typists and so forth, so that we know that Government is really prepared to help not only the policy-holders in the company, but also the people working in the company will have some shares of salaries if the worst comes to the worst.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am very doubtful of the intention of the Government in this Bill.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have one or two things to say on this Bill.

First, I support the Bill, because the intention is to protect the policy-holders who I hope are Kenya citizens. I think, therefore, that this is a very good intention on the part of Government. If it was not so then the policy-holders would lose substantially in this country. However, I want the Government to take note, to learn from this particular example, that foreign companies in this country are extremely dangerous unless they are fully controlled. You can see that this was a foreign company, registered in a foreign country, and the government of another country decided that they should no longer be allowed to operate in Kenya. Now, Sir, this is a very dangerous thing and we should learn from this. What would happen if other foreign companies, registered in foreign countries, operating in Kenya, also decided that they were no longer going to operate in this country despite the fact that our people have invested so much money in them.

So, I would like the Government now to think more seriously about these foreign companies in our country, what is their future, whether or not our people who invest money in these companies are likely to recover their money or they are likely to lose it. We do not want every time that our Government should come forward and tell us, "We would like now to protect our people who have invested in this foreign company because this foreign company has now been refused by some other government, or some individual, to operate in Kenya". For this reason I sincerely appeal to the Government, particularly to the Attorney-General, to look into the legality of these foreign companies in our country. We have said time and again that these foreign companies should either be nationalized or be more or less 100 per cent controlled by local citizens. So this is very, very important, Sir. I am sure the Attorney-General will take note of it.

Otherwise, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to support this Bill because we do not want our policy-holders to lose money. I, personally, have already lost money in this company. I had a policy with this company and this is in the records of the company. I bought a policy in this company some years ago and then I was told this company was about to be liquidated. I became afraid and did not pay the premiums due, I did not finish the three years which was the surrender-value period because I was told that if I went on paying the money I would lose it. There must be a lot of other people in the same position as I who have already lost some money.

So, it is a good thing that the Government is going to protect those who are holding policies in these companies. I lost mine, otherwise I would have benefited from this Bill. If I had known that the Government was going to bring this kind of a Bill I would have continued to pay my premiums. Unfortunately, I lost everything.

Let the Government take heed and look into the activities and the future of the foreign companies in this country.

I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Kase): Mr. Deputy Speaker, on a point of order, I wish to move that the Mover be called on to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not think you need a point of order for that because I do not think there is any other Member who wishes to speak.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I fully agree with the last speaker who said that this should set us an example and that we should exercise more control as regards the insurance companies. However, I would like to point out to the hon. Member that at that time when this company was to be liquidated we did not have an insurance law whereby control of this company could be exercised. At that time we had only the Companies Act, but now I can assure the hon. Member that now we have our own insurance Act which deals properly with all insurance companies operating in this country. Also, the policy-holders of this country are safeguarded by our insurance Act.

The point raised by the hon. Mwithaga, to the effect that there should be a complete merger between The African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited and our Kenya National Assurance Corporation is a good one. I would like to point out that The African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited is no longer under-writing any business. All business is now being under-written by the Kenya National Assurance Company, which is at present managing The African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited.

I would like to point out and to re-affirm the point made by my Minister yesterday when he said that over 90 per cent of the policy-holders were Africans; today I would like to make it clear that, in fact, it is 100 per cent Africans who are policy-holders in this particular company.

I do not see any other point raised by the hon. Members in view of the fact that the Bill was very short and satisfactory and received the whole-hearted support of the hon. Members.

However, I would just like to give an example as to the benefits by which the steps taken by the Government to salvage the policy-holders from losing their money are noticeable. When the late Ngaira, the former Chairman of the Public Service Commission, died, this particular company could pay his benefactors the money. It was only because this particular company was taken over by the Government that the benefactors of the late Mr. Ngaira were paid Sh. 30,000. Had it not been for the Government stepping in and taking over this company, benefactors of the estate of the late Mr. Ngaira would not have received this lump sum of money.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these remarks, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second ReadingTHE STATUTE LAW (MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS) BILL

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendment) Bill be now read a Second Time.

The purpose of this Bill is to continue the process of bringing the Statute Law up to date and removing anomalies. The amendments set out in the Bill are all of a minor nature and do not warrant the publication of separate Bills. For this reason they have been placed together in one measure instead of bringing separate Bills, for instance for the Penal Code, for the Chattels Transfer Act, the Debt Summary Recovery Act and so on. As hon. Members will realize, all these amendments are either to reflect the new changes in our Republican status or to correct the drafting errors.

I think, Sir, hon. Members would like me to explain the reasons for the various amendments proposed. So, I will now deal with them as briefly as I can. If the hon. Members have their Bills with them, then I can go through these proposed amendments fairly quickly.

The first one, the Chattels Transfer Act, merely amends the present Act so that we include the co-operatives in the Act. When a company gives a charge on its moveable assets under this Act, it is exempted from certain fees and formalities. The proposed amendment in the Chattels Transfer Act is intended to extend the same concession to co-operative societies, so that they enjoy the same facilities.

The next one, the Debts (Summary Recovery) Act, is merely to bring it into line following the amendments which we made in the Courts Act.

With regard to the Penal Code amendment, the amendment to section 52 will remove restriction on the powers which was originally designed to protect bona fide publishers being penalized in respect of their publications, merely because one of those publications or a single issue has been banned. This is now being introduced in order to remove the words in the original Act, namely, the bona fide publisher, because it has been found that some publishers have misused this exemption which at present is in the legislation.

The next amendment, to sections 389 and 390, deal with the penalties to be imposed on people who attempt to commit a crime. As often as not — I see there are no lawyers in the House, because they are familiar with this type of offence — what is in law an attempt is really a crime which has not succeeded and it ought to be punished as a crime. At the moment, a crime which would carry a long term of imprisonment will only involve the offender in a fine of Sh. 200, if he does not carry out the crime, perhaps because he becomes frightened in the attempt. If he succeeded in frightening, for example, people who might be in their house having tea, and he comes in brandishing a panga, that is an attempt. However, as I say, the punishment for the offence is only Sh. 200. At the present time, an attempt to commit a crime of violence does not make the offender liable to suffer corporal punishment. The changes set out in this Bill will render the person attempting a crime liable to receive corporal punishment, and will also provide that a fine or imprisonment can be imposed upon him up to a limit of one-half of the punishment which would be provided if the crime is completed.

The next one is the amendment to section 29 of the Criminal Procedure Code. This is purely a drafting correction.

The amendment to section 186 is consequential upon recent changes in the age limits regarding sexual offences. Some of the hon. Members took a lot of time when we were discussing that amendment. They appeared to be very knowledgeable in these matters, and I see they are now conferring together, but as I say if the hon. gentlemen will remember the debate we had in this House, it is merely to conform with what they were suggesting, to change the ages from 14 to 16.

The amendment to section 186 is consequential upon recent changes, as I say, in the age limit regarding sexual offences.

The amendment to section 202 removes an anomaly whereby although a person ought to be entitled to be acquitted, he could be subjected to a fresh charge at a later date. This will, therefore, mean that once a person has been acquitted, he cannot be charged again.

The amendment to section 354 is also purely of a drafting nature.

The amendment to the First Schedule is to enable a first-class magistrate to deal with certain currency offences. Most currency offences in this country are of a very minor nature, and it is not felt that only the High Court should have jurisdiction to try them. If this amendment is passed, it will enable other magistrates to deal with these types of cases which are not complicated, where the amount of money involved is not big, and where cases should be dealt with as quickly as possible so that witnesses do not disappear or forget the evidence they will be called upon to give in court.

[The Attorney-General]

The next one is the amendment to the Evidence Act, which again is of a purely drafting nature.

The amendment to section 29 is required because of the changed conditions since independence, and it is designed to ensure that restriction is imposed by the Act on the admissibility of confessions, and is confined to persons who are acting in the capacity of a police officer.

The Bill, Mr. Speaker, introduces a new section, 47A, which is designed to prevent an abuse of the courts which has become common elsewhere. The practice has grown up, of alleging that the newspaper report of the conviction of a person by the criminal court—this is criminal prosecution—is a libel upon the person. Such a person then brings a civil action and forces the newspaper to try and justify its report, a report on a criminal case. In order to do so, the evidence has to be reheard according to the rules of the civil court which are different from the practice of the criminal court. This involves the prosecution, the witnesses who gave evidence in that case, police officers, and officers in my Chambers, in a great deal of additional time, when they are called upon to give this evidence in another court, as it were. For that reason, this amendment is designed to prevent the practice from occurring in this country.

The amendment to section 57 is of a drafting nature resulting from the codification of a widely-accepted Common Law practice. The effect of the amendment is to establish that the introduction of evidence merely intended to prove bad character—for that purpose only—shall not be permitted. Evidence of bad character will still be admissible, as at present, if it is required for other purposes which are relevant to the proceedings.

The other amendment, Mr. Speaker, is the Administration Police Act. The amendments of this Act are required by the changed conditions in Kenya. It used to be the practice that all administrative officers were also magistrates, but this is no longer the case, as hon. Members will remember when they passed the Magistrates' Courts Act. The changes in this Act are necessary to reflect the present position.

The next one is the Fugitive Offenders Pursuit Act. These changes are consequential upon the introduction of the new legislation recently passed by this House regarding extradition from East African countries and other foreign countries with whom we have entered into a mutual agreement on the return of fugitive criminals.

The next one is the Prisons Act. The amendment to section 67 is to enable the accused to be sentenced to borstal training if he is over the age of 17 years but under the age of 21, instead of being sent straight to prison where he is mixed with hard-core criminals. The present lower limit is 18 years of age, but this will enable more young persons to receive the benefit of borstal training.

The amendment to section 68 will enable female prisoners to be ordered to perform work outside a prison in the same manner as male prisoners can be ordered at the moment. At the present moment I understand that they enjoy certain privileges which are not accorded to the male prisoners.

The next one, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is on liquor. The amendment to section 27 will enable the liquor licence to continue to be in force pending the result of an appeal against its refusal upon application for renewal. In other words, pending appeal you will be allowed to continue selling your intoxicating liquor. This will prevent licences being put out of business even though the higher court may consider they have a good case and the licensing court was wrong. In certain cases, the Minister retains the power to refuse such a renewal, should he consider it necessary.

The amendment to section 38 is again designed to reflect present conditions; it will enable the officer in charge of a local police station to report to the licensing court on the licensed premises in his area even though he may not be of the rank of inspector. At the moment, the only person who can give such a report is an officer of inspector's rank.

The African Liquor Act: this again follows the changes in the magisterial system. The amendment will enable administrative officers who are not magistrates to carry out those functions which, in the past, were carried out by administrative officers in their capacity as magistrates, which they are not at the moment.

I wish the hon. Member who is speaking would, instead of snorting, speak clearly because it is difficult to understand the comments he is making.

The district commissioners and the provincial commissioners today do not hold any magistrates' courts because they have been abolished, and so the work that they used to do will now be carried out by the district magistrates.

[The Attorney-General]

The amendment to the Trustee Act, namely section 4, is of a drafting nature and it provides that the Registrar-General may give a certificate certifying that a company is substantially the same in identity although the demands of commerce may have led to its reorganization or amalgamation or some other change which, in the absence of this provision, would render the shares ineligible for treatment as trustee security.

The amendments to the Public Trustee Act are of a drafting nature intended to reflect Government office practice which have now become accepted over the years.

The Asian Officers' Family Pension Act: this change will enable the Minister to deal with the routine administrative appointments without the necessity of obtaining the signature, every time, of His Excellency the President.

The amendment to the Trade Disputes Act is to correct a drafting error which occurred in the publication of a previous change.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

The amendments to the Survey Act are all, or nearly all, purely of a drafting nature necessitated by the changes which I am now going to mention.

The first change is the alteration of section 7 so as to recognize the qualification afforded now by our own examination known as the East African Land Survey Examination. This is an examination given locally and which will now be recognized when this amendment to section 7 is effected.

The amendment to section 9 is to enable the Land Surveyors Board, under the Act, to arbitrate in any disputes which may arise between the Director of Surveys, and the licensed surveyor in regard to certain provisions of the regulations.

The regulations themselves are now being altered to reflect the changes to the metric system, which I hope hon. Members are now familiar with, because the whole House should have gone metric by now because this legislation came into effect—

An hon. Member: What is your metric age?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): We do not calculate ages in metres. The hon. Member must not disclose his ignorance.

This is another alteration required by the changing conditions since they were last reviewed. This amendment is, therefore, by way of preparation.

The amendment to section 37 is designed to effect a better safeguard for the public against the unscrupulous persons who attempt to use staff who are not properly qualified for the job which they are required to do.

The Dairy Industry Act: the amendment here is of a purely drafting nature reflecting a change which has already occurred administratively.

The Branding of Stock Act: this again is to remove a relic of Majimbo because branding of cattle used to come under Majimbo and now it comes under the Central Government.

Mr. Shikuku: You see, Butere will become a jimbo.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I hear the hon. Member saying that Butere will soon become a Majimbo, well that will be a very interesting Biafran exercise which we will wait and see.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member in order to put words into my mouth to say I said Majimbo will come back, when I did not? I was talking of Butere becoming a jimbo. Is he in order when I did not say that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am trying to follow a point of order.

Mr. Shikuku: Is the Minister in order to say that I said Butere was going to become a Majimbo and would then become a Biafran exercise when I never said that at all?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then he is not in order to say you did. Perhaps he misunderstood you.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, the other amendment is on the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act. At the moment, if an inspector or other authorized person has to destroy an animal he cannot dispose of the carcass legally unless the owner can be found. This is a sick animal which has died as a result of an illness. In the case of stray dogs and other stray animals, it is frequently impossible to ascertain quickly who the owner should be. This change is designed to enable an authorized officer, or a police officer, to dispose of the carcass if the owner cannot be found, and if it becomes necessary. The hon. Members will have seen a number of dogs near towns knocked down by cars—this amendment is to meet cases like that which can produce an epidemic in the countryside. It is because the present law cannot deal with it that this amendment is being introduced.

The next amendment, Mr. Speaker, is the Streets Adoption Act. This alteration will enable local authorities to have a little more time in which to prepare their registers of adopted streets. It has been thought that the present time limit, and this is a suggestion from the local authorities, that the time within which they prepare their registers on adopted streets is too short.

The Registration of Business Names Act: this again, Mr. Speaker, is one of the Acts we have a lot of trouble with. We receive a number of papers and notices in the office that a particular group, or certain individuals, have held meetings and the Registrar-General has no way of finding out if, in fact, these meetings have been held or whether the elections have taken place, or whether it was an election of just two individuals and they submit the papers to the Registrar-General, and this now will enable the Registrar-General to call for evidence and other factors which will help him to make a decision and ascertain the truth.

The next one, Mr. Speaker, is the Civil Procedure Act. This Act, which is of vital daily importance, has not been changed since independence because in due time recommendations will be made for substantial changes. However, these recommendations are still being discussed but we cannot allow out of date laws to remain on the Statute book for ever. I am recommending a little tidying up in this legislation. Those amendments which relate to the appeal procedure are necessary at this time because of the changes in the structure in the courts by the Magistrate's Court Act enacted by this House last year. I have taken the opportunity afforded by the need to make these changes in the appeal procedure to commence the process of bringing the rest of the Act up to date.

With regard to the Magistrate's Courts Act, the experience of working this new Act during the past year led to two proposals for amendment. The first will enable the Registrar of the High Court to apportion the amount of work between the various magistrates qualified to undertake it, so that at no time will cases pile up in any one court. The other amendment is of a technical nature and is designed to preserve certain rights in the respect of appeals which are pending under the former legislation.

The Tourist Industry Licensing Act: this is a drafting amendment intended to help protect our wildlife. It makes clear that in certain prosecutions the person accused will have to show that the articles he is selling are not made from the skins of animals killed in Kenya. In some cases these wild animals are killed and then one can say that the owner of this animal does not come from Kenya; but then the onus will be on that person to prove that, in fact, the skin or the articles he has were not from an animal in this country, and that in fact, the animal came from outside.

The Land Adjudication Act: the first amendment to this Act will help prevent—

An hon. Member: What about the rule of law?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): There is the rule of law, it is true. But where, in certain cases, you are found in possession of certain goods then I think the person who is in possession of those goods is in a better position to say whether they are his goods or if they belong to somebody else. If one is innocent, then surely it would not be very difficult for one to establish this fact.

With regard to the Land Adjudication Act the first amendment will help to prevent delays in adjudication which have occurred because people cannot be traced.

The second amendment will mean that the owner of the land will not have to pay fees in respect of adjudication unless he wishes to benefit from the registration of his title after the adjudication has been completed. This concession will be made, subject to the discretion of the Minister, in regard to each particular area.

Mr. Speaker, I think I have briefly covered all the proposed amendments in this Bill, and, as I indicated, it is not possible to introduce an individual Bill because the House will agree that most of the amendments in this Bill are of a minor nature and are intended to bring the law into line with the present conditions.

If the hon. Member, Mr. Karungaru, finds these amendments difficult, then I am afraid I cannot help him and he will just have to study them intelligently and I am sure he will find there is nothing complicated in them.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda) seconded.

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would point out to hon. Members that the Attorney-General has taken the trouble to publish with this Bill the existing law so far as affected by the proposed amendments, except so far as the proposed amendments are self-explanatory, or, in my opinion, of a very minor nature. It is possible for hon. Members to see the exact implications of the proposed amendments if they will study them in relation to the law as published at the back of the Bill.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although the Attorney-General has published the Bill together with the parts which are required, I am sorry to say that I tried to trace them but I could not find any of them. As he was reading I think I followed his steps one by one and being also a qualified lawyer—a bush lawyer of course; when he was called to the Bar, I was called to the Corner Bar, and therefore I can still follow what he is talking about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of that I will not comment on each piece of legislation which he has mentioned, but will touch just briefly, on the few parts which I think concern me and concern the public in general as I see necessary.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, to start with, when the Attorney-General mentioned something about criminal court reports, it struck me immediately that the newspapers of this country are not like the newspapers of other countries, where, if a case is in court, the newspapers do not condemn the accused before the court itself gives a verdict on the accused. Here, Mr. Speaker, what happens is that if you are arrested and you are prosecuted, the newspapers, and even the courts, do not give you your due respect straight away. What they do is to strip you of all your qualifications, of all your decorations and they make you a plain criminal before you are even proved to be a criminal.

Mr. Speaker, I think if anybody has to go to court he still retains the right to be addressed respectably—if it is Mr. Njonjo, then he should be called Mr. Njonjo even in the newspapers and in the courts until he has been proved guilty, and then they can call him Njonjo the thief or whatever they want to call him.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Why do you want to use my name?

Mr. Mbogoh: It is a coincidence, Mr. Speaker, because that Njonjo is no relation to this one here. I could even have used Mutiso if necessary. That is a different Njonjo altogether.

Mr. Speaker, I think the accused should retain his dignity until he is proved guilty, and he should be given his right address and should be respected until he has been convicted. This is one of the things which I think that people, if they had any sense, could follow in the papers as much as possible, because once somebody addresses me like that, while reporting court proceedings, it is as if a verdict has already been passed and have already been convicted. The impression gained by the people in the country is that that man is a thief, full stop. Even if he wins the case in the court, everybody who meets him will think he is untouchable because of the newspaper reports which they read. This is one of the things which should be looked into as quickly as possible so that people will not be condemned before the court passes a verdict on them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing which the Attorney-General spoke on was “intended crime”. This is one of the things which we support him on, and even the President of this country has said this many times, and he has repeated it everywhere he has addressed the people, that those people who rob with violence will receive very severe sentences. Now, this is intended robbery with violence. Mr. Speaker, if somebody goes with simis waving them at a couple taking, let us say, a cup of tea in their home, or having a drink in a bar; if they manage to foil that robbery, although they have not done harm, it is the same as having done it because if they had the chance they would have killed those people as quickly as possible. Mr. Speaker, I feel those people should get the maximum penalty that can be awarded, plus corporal punishment; if they can be given strokes with a cane, that would be even better.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this City of Nairobi at present, we have discovered that even women are engaged in this business of robbery with violence and are also accomplices to the rogues who go robbing banks and committing these violent acts. Now is the right time that the Attorney-General thought of not just isolating women and thinking that because they are women they cannot be given the maximum penalty which can be given. They should even be given corporal punishment because if they are able to get hold of somebody and push him about, they must be strong enough to take such punishment.

Since women are fighting for their rights in this country, Mr. Speaker—and I do not want any discrimination against our women, I want them to be given their rights as they deserve to be given their rights—then if a man can be given this kiboko, a woman should be able to be given this kiboko. If a woman can drive, a woman should be able to drive. Mr. Speaker, there should be no discrimination whatsoever and they should be given their rights.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing on which I would like to congratulate the Attorney-General is the question of the magistrates. Our magistrates in Kenya do a lot of work; but it is now a very bad thing to find a magistrate being given the duties of a district officer, which the district officer used to do. We opposed this very much previously, because the district officer or the district commissioner was the arresting officer and the magistrate at the same time. This was very bad because if the magistrate did not like you— There was a case I heard of before, where a district commissioner was drinking with somebody, and then they quarrelled. The district commissioner immediately arrested him and the next morning he took him to court and imprisoned him. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is wrong—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mbogoh, I think you are dealing with an amendment of the law which has already taken place and not with any further amendment proposed here, are you not? This removal of magisterial powers from provincial officers is something that has already happened.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, as I said before, I am congratulating the Attorney-General—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You ought to keep to the Bill.

Mr. Mbogoh: I am not trying to suggest that we give them back their powers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This Bill does not try to do that, so we must keep to what this Bill proposes.

Mr. Mbogoh: Good, Mr. Speaker. The only thing I would like here is that although we have these magistrates acting, we do not have enough Africans in the Judiciary, and those who have been magistrates and those who have been working in the Judiciary are running away and are practising as lawyers—I can name a few who have done that. The Attorney-General should be able to tell us why this is happening, because it is very difficult when we say “Africanize, Africanize”, and when an African gets into that department he just gets out of it and goes away. Mr. Speaker, we are very concerned about this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You should realize, Mr. Mbogoh, that you must keep to the amendments of the law proposed by this Bill.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, there is one difficulty you are creating. That is if I separate all the Attorney-General's amendments from the facts of life, I will not have any material to talk about.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In that case we would finish the debate quite soon, would we not? Now, hon. Members, really it is a rigid rule of the House that when we have a Bill before the House, especially a Bill for the amendment of the law, you keep strictly to what is proposed and do not go rambling on other things; it is even more necessary when we have a Bill before the House for the amendment of a score of different laws. We cannot discuss what is involved in all those different laws outside the proposed amendments. I must hold hon. Members rigidly to the amendments proposed by this Bill.

Mr. Mbogoh: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I was just trying to mention them one by one in passing. I will not dwell very much on those points.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that this is a very important amendment and if we could amend as many of those laws which exist as possible, and make them compatible to African Socialism and the African way of living, I believe there would be no complaints around this place.

Mr. Speaker, before I finish, I would like to mention only one thing. The Attorney-General has brought this Bill here, because our country has gone metric. I very much agree with the metric system, but the Attorney-General should strive to see that even the roads in this country are changed to “keep right” which conforms to international systems. This “keeping left” is rotten. It is only a few countries that keep to the left and it will cost a lot of money when they decide to change to the right.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Seroney: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite sympathize with the Attorney-General in bringing all these amendments to the law in one Bill because I note that there are about 25 Acts affected, and quite rightly some of the amendments are very minor. As to which amendments are minor and which are serious, I think sometimes leaves room for differences of opinion. I think, Mr. Speaker, we should really guard against Members considering Bills and thinking some things are not all that serious and that they are of a formal nature, only to find that one or two serious changes have taken place. I think an illustration of what can be included in a Bill, and which Members may not realize, is found in an amendment to the Constitution which we passed last year, which dealt with the election of the President. The majority of Members considered only that aspect of it, but somewhere in it there was a provision which is giving us a lot of trouble now, and disqualifying independents from standing in elections. At that time, Members did not notice how serious such an inclusion was. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is really not very fair on the Members to bring in a lot of changes. If there are going to be some serious changes—for example, I have noted an amendment which I think is very serious, and which I do not think is of a drafting nature, seeking to introduce the death penalty—then that will be too bad, Mr. Speaker, the introduction of the death penalty which did not exist before cannot be regarded as a matter which is not serious at the moment. Therefore, I would like to reserve my comment and reactions on this matter until we come to the Committee Stage.

[Mr. Seroney]

However, I would like to ask the Attorney-General to try not to bring in a lot of changes in a law under this very convenient title, the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendment), in future. It may involve a little extra work for the people at the Attorney-General's office but I think it will be better to treat an important Bill, such as the Penal Code, separately instead of putting them together with other laws like the Streets Adoption Act, or a minor act like the Debt Summary Recovery Act, and so on. I think some laws are very important particularly the Penal Code Act or the Evidence Act or the Civil Procedure Code. I think the amendment which touches serious laws affecting the rights and liberties of the subject should not be dealt with together in a jumble as if they were not important. Where it is just a clear case of amending a drafting error—a genuine drafting error—that is well and good. However, where it is sought to introduce changes, even if the Attorney-General thinks that they are minor whereas other people may think they are not, I think such amendments should be introduced in separate Bills in future. It may involve more work, but I think that more work which will be brought about by printing separate Bills will be justified and will be fair for those Members who will then be in a better position to realize the importance or unimportance of changes which they will be asked to make.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, our laws in this country can only be ascertained by referring to very many documents. We have solved one problem in the Constitution but the general laws in the country are confusing because if you want to find out something about a certain law you will find it very difficult unless you have a clerk to guide you, or go to a library where amendments have been kept up to date by various slips. I think that the Members of this House who are not lawyers will find it very difficult to know what a certain law is all about at any particular time.

In countries like the United Kingdom, which, of course, has more money than Kenya, and which has a large section of its population interested in buying Bills, whenever any amendments are made, the Acts affected, are rewritten immediately the Bill goes through Parliament and there is no need to buy two separate documents or to rely on a clerk or librarian to attach slips into existing Acts. This is not made easier, Mr. Speaker, by having, for example, a law like this, a Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act because, strictly speaking, somebody has to pick up the section dealing with the Penal Code, cut it away, take it and attach it to the part dealing with the Penal Code. I know this would be inevitable even if the Penal Code was amended separately instead of including it with other miscellaneous amendments. I would therefore urge the Attorney-General to consider this problem for the convenience of everybody. This will be fair to Members because they will be aware of what they are being asked to approve, to pass or to change. I think that in future, the less we resort to this system of amending the laws the better.

With these reservations, Mr. Speaker, I support.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been listening carefully when the Attorney-General was moving this Bill and I observed a few points which I also would like to talk about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as regards this question of the Asian Pension Act, Chapter 194. I have a little quarrel here because the Attorney-General is inferring that we have to take the responsibility of paying pensions to some of the Asians who were working here during the colonial days, to continue paying them until, perhaps, our country will suffer from bankruptcy.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to give our Government a very stern warning in that; when we continue paying money to the people who were not—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry to interrupt you, but I would point out the extent of the amendment proposed for this particular law. There is no proposal to alter the substance of the law at all with regard to pensions. It is only a very small alteration as to the authority for the purpose of the Act, replacing "President" with "Minister". That is all we can discuss on this Bill.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to be very unlimited, I would also like to be limited, but the thing is, this question of continuing to pay for the Colonial Government—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! That is not relevant to this amendment.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, are we not paying that money?

An hon. Member: Which money?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What you are talking about is not relevant to this amendment. The only proposed amendment of this particular Act is replacing "President" with "Minister". You may discuss that if you like, but nothing else.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, let me leave that alone.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, now I am going to talk about the question of the election. It has been the practice in the past that many people could only submit their forms regarding the annual return to the Attorney-General and such people, even the unconstitutional leaders, could pass an election of their own and at the time the Chamber had no authority to question as to whether the election in question had any validity—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am sorry to interrupt you, but we want everybody to know to what you are referring to in the Bill. I think it is the Registration of Business Names Act or the Registration of Societies Act, is that not it? Could you just point out which provision of the schedule you are referring to, so that we may know where we are?

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, some of us in this House are asking for explanations, because we do not have copies of the Bill. I have been listening to whatever the Attorney-General was saying and was—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Surely you all have copies of the Bill?

Mr. Karungaru: No, I do not have one, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If you do not have a copy, then you should not speak. Hon. Members must try, in discussing a Bill, to refer to the actual provisions. That is the reason why the Members are provided with copies of the Bill. We all get very confused if Members talk about a Bill and if we do not know exactly what part of the Bill they are referring to. I personally find it very difficult to see which particular provision of this Bill you are referring to now.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I am now seeking your guidance. What happens if one does not have a copy of the Bill? Does one go and look for a copy and then come back to speak?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is much better not to speak at all unless you come armed with a copy of the Bill.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, I would like to help my colleague, the Member for Embakasi, for the purpose of the record. I think the Attorney-General himself might have made a mistake when he was introducing the amendment. Referring to page 28 of the Bill, the Registration of Business Names Bill— When the Attorney-General was referring to that amendment he said that this would take care of the registration of societies whereby, if you submit a list of names, the Registrar-General is given power to reject some of the names. For the purposes of the record, he made a mistake. What the amendment refers to is to the registration of business names and the amendment is to give the Registrar of Business Names power to reject a name which he thinks is undesirable. This has nothing to do with the Societies Act. When the amendments were moved, Mr. Speaker, I think there was that impression given and perhaps that is why the Member for Embakasi was referring to this. I would like to correct this and draw the attention of the House to the fact that there is no reference to the Societies Act but only to the Registration of Business Names Act.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with the greatest respect, I was reading and I can still reread it again. I read, the Registration of Business Names Act. I did give an example of the difficulties that we have in other Acts but I did read this, and this can be read in HANSARD. I did not say that the amendment we are proposing here is to the Societies Act.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your reference to the registration of societies was only incidental?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Wariithi: Well, actually, Sir, I do not want to quarrel with the Attorney-General but I heard him make reference to names being returned to the Registrar of Societies of elections which probably never took place. He made reference to this and I am saying that probably he did this when he was explaining and made reference to something which was not relevant to the amendments.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is clear now that it was only a casual reference, and does not relate strictly to the Bill itself.

It is time now for Mr. Khaoya to move the adjournment of the House. So, no doubt you will continue when we resume the debate, Mr. Wariithi.

Mr. Khaoya.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

CLOSURE OF ROADS BY E.A.R. & H. IN BUNGOMA DISTRICT

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I now move under Standing Order 20, that the House adjourns to allow an issue to be debated here, over a dispute between the East African Railways and Harbours and the Bungoma County Council.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I must be very grateful for your permission and also for the permission of the hon. Members here who thought fit yesterday to allow me to raise this matter.

[Mr. Khaoya]

The dispute arose last week when the East African Railways and Harbours, through their officers from Eldoret, moved into Bungoma District and physically blocked the level crossings and cattle crossings in the district over what was alleged to be a failure of the county council to pay the annual fees which, I understand, is required for the maintenance of these level crossings and cattle crossings.

Sir, I experienced a difficulty when I was driving home on Sunday, after the Madaraka Day celebrations. When I was driving home from Nairobi, at about 10 o'clock in the night, I found that I could not reach home because just five miles from home I had to cross the railway line, and there I found one of these railway sleepers stuck right in the middle of the road with a trench dug across the road. The check rails, which are the additional rails used over the level crossing, were also removed. It was a pitiful situation because the first thing I wondered was whether I was being ambushed or not. I just did not know what was happening. Later on, however, I found that there had been this dispute.

Mr. Speaker, two things immediately come to mind. One, there is a blame to be apportioned to the local authority. Why did they not pay? That is one question we have to ask. We do not require the population in Bungoma to go and pay the fee when it is due because I understand this has been paid annually over the last 20 or 30 years and the county council, as a matter of routine, should have done so without inconveniencing the public. That is question number one. I hear that, may be, the Ministry of Local Government could have helped us—if it was a question of inefficiency they could have investigated it and removed the bloody inefficient officials of the county council.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am wondering whether the word "bloody", in this hon. Chamber, is parliamentary?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not parliamentary, Mr. Khaoya. You should choose your words more carefully.

Mr. Khaoya: I apologize, Mr. Speaker.

The other question which immediately comes to mind is in relation to the East African Railways and Harbours. We know that this is one arm of the East African Community organization and, surely, we in Bungoma are a part of Kenya, and Kenya is a member State of the East African Community. If there was this dispute, and if the railways were not getting their dues, surely there are many ways they could use other than just coming in physically and doing this dirty work. I would have thought the best way for them would have been, Sir, to report the matter to the Ministry of Power and Communications—we have a Kenya base here and somebody should have done something about it—or, maybe, they could have reported the matter to the nearest district commissioner, who is a representative of His Excellency the President, to see whether he could do something. Here, what happened was what I call a Don Quixote armchair type of arbitrary decision and action, where somebody moves with a trolley and then stops there, he removes the rails, thus inconveniencing about half a million people within the district as if he never thought that even the railways themselves were built solely to help the people. Mr. Speaker, this is a point which needs explanation today: the relationship between the East African Railways and Harbours and the member States which use the railways. We cannot afford to be maltreated like this. In fact, Sir, we who live in the area, feel that if they continue to do this, then we have every right to ask whether, when the railways were built, any compensation paid to us. If there was, then who received the compensation? I thought this was a piece of colonial legislation, and when we attained independence that went away with the colonialists. I do not even see why we should continue paying an annual fee when the railways virtually pass on our land without any compensation.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, that there is what they call the railway reserve, and that it extends 100 feet on each side of the railway line. 200 feet in all for this railways reserve. I also understand that we have to pay if we want to cross the railway reserve.

Sir, I see that this railway runs through a length of about 70 miles in the district. We must bear in mind that wherever it passes, there are farms on each side of the railway line. You find some person's farm was divided into two by this railway. It is, therefore, desirable that, for the inconvenience the railway causes the population there, at least it should do something to facilitate them to cross from one side to the other. Say, suppose you have your maize on the other side of the railway line and you want to move it to the other side of the line, or, say, if you want to take your farming implements from one side of the railway line to the other, or you merely want to cross to the other part of the district, these are the things that have to be considered. I think, Mr. Speaker, the East African Railways and Harbours must be told in no uncertain terms that if they are going to do this, take the law unto themselves—what would happen if the people of the area also took the law unto themselves and removed the railways? This could happen, but I do not want it to happen. If you provoke people, you can always expect a counter-provocation. I feel that the people in Bungoma have been provoked more than they can bear. Imagine, one day finding all the cattle paths taken up.

I understand that the railway chaps were even threatening to block—and I do not know how they could have done this—a pipeline, say, taking water to a health centre at Matokho in West Bukusu of Bungoma District. I understand they wanted to block—I do not know if they wanted to cut the pipe and let the water run free or not. Surely, Mr. Speaker, it is this kind of thing that makes us bring the matter before the Government so that they can take immediate remedial action. We are very sad over this affair. If nothing is done, I think we can defend ourselves and the railways can go to hell.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to tire the patience of the House. I am very grateful for their sympathetic hearing and also for the permission which they gave yesterday.

I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, can you keep your speech to five minutes, do you think, as I have not allowed very much time?

Mr. Shikuku: I see, I will give other Members a chance to speak.

Mr. Speaker, I was one of those who, unfortunately, was caught in this dirty trick by the East African Railways and Harbours. I was travelling from my home to the settlement scheme which is in Bungoma District. For your information, Mr. Speaker, I come from Kakamega, and am not a taxpayer as far as local business is concerned in Bungoma. I was travelling to Kiminini Settlement Scheme, only to find that I could not go over the rails, and so I had to drive back and go—

An hon. Member: Why?

Mr. Shikuku: —through the Eldoret route so as to get to my farm—this was because of this inconvenience. The point, and the most important point here, Mr. Speaker—and it is the one on which we want the Minister to explain to this House—is whose fault it was. Is it the fault of the people? Could not this so-called East African Railways Corporation resort to the courts if there was any dispute? Why had they to interfere with innocent people like us who are not even from Bungoma District and were just travelling through?

Mr. Speaker, this is a terrible thing because buses were interfered with and poor people who were moving from one end to the other to visit their fathers who were sick, or people who were going to weddings and so forth, could not go because of this inconvenience. Mr. Speaker, how can you allow that in this independent country? I cannot recall any day when the imperialists did that. The so-called East African Railways and Harbours, manned by our own Government can inconvenience the people of an independent State like Kenya. I am sure the Tanzania people, the Uganda people and, indeed, the people of Kenya will be very much disturbed when they learn of this unfortunate situation which took place in this area.

Mr. Speaker, the question is: will the Minister stand up and tell us why he took the law into his own hands, because I accuse the Minister and not anybody else? He is in charge, and we want to know why he took the law into his own hands and why he did not take the County Council of Bungoma to court rather than inconveniencing the people. That is why I accuse the Minister.

With this, Mr. Speaker, I will give a chance to other Members to accuse the Minister for having failed to meet the needs of the people of Bungoma District.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am grateful that this matter has been raised by the hon. Member for Bungoma South. I would like to explain to the House, as well as the people of Bungoma, the exact position as it was a few days ago and as it is now.

I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it is appropriate that we put the matter in its proper perspective. The situation here is a matter which is covered by the law. The legal provisions regarding level crossings are dealt with in sections 17, 18 and 19 of the East African Railways and Harbours Act.

An hon. Member: Amend them.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): That is what I am going to say later if the hon. Member would like to listen, because I am going to ask their help in order to change them if it becomes necessary.

Now, Sir, that was the East African Railways and Harbours Act which has now been superseded by the new Act—the East African Railways Corporation Act, which was passed by the Authority some time in 1967—as a result of the East African Community coming into being.

[The Minister for Power and Communications]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the purpose of this legislation is, briefly, that where a new railway line crosses an existing road, public or private land, where it is severed in such a manner that in order to pass from one severed portion to the other a level crossing or a bridge is required, then the cost of providing the crossing or bridge, and maintaining that crossing or bridge, is borne wholly by the East African Railways. That is one way of looking at it.

The second position, Sir, is where the crossing is required to cross an existing railway line. Now, the cost of construction here is borne by the party, or parties, requiring the crossing. What I mean to say here is that where there is a railway line already in existence, and then a new road is being constructed and it becomes necessary to have a crossing on the existing railway line, then the cost is borne by the party which is constructing the road. In this case, as I shall explain, it will be the County Council of Bungoma.

When this situation occurs, a level crossing agreement is drawn up between the two parties, and the cost of maintaining the crossing or the bridge is then apportioned between the East African Railways and the other party who, in this case, will be the county council.

Now, in the case of the Bungoma County Council where the crossings were required by the county council itself, their provision and their maintenance was therefore governed by the agreement which was drawn up by the Bungoma County Council and the East African Railways and Harbours. I want to be fair to Bungoma County Council. The situation as it is is that the agreement was drawn up a long time before between the Northern Nyanza African District Council and the Railways, but when the Northern Nyanza African District Council ceased to be in existence, its obligations and rights and duties were assumed by the Bungoma County Council on the one hand and the Kakamega County Council on the other.

In this case, Sir, the agreement specifically stipulates that the Bungoma County Council will pay an annual fee of Sh. 425, payable on 1st January every year. As it is, Sir, in this case the Bungoma County Council failed to discharge their part of the obligation by paying this as agreed in the agreement. Therefore, there was a breach of agreement.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think we had better put the blame where it belongs. At the end of November last year the East African Railways and Harbours sent a reminder—in fact, five letters—to the Clerk of the Bungoma County Council, saying that the fees for these crossings were due on the 1st January 1969. I am advised that—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, listening to the hon. Minister I have noted that he has referred to the law and I have no question about the law, but he has referred to an agreement drawn up between the Railways and the county council. The procedure that we have used is that any document being referred to should be laid on the Table. Is it not in order for me to request the hon. Minister to lay this agreement on the Table so that we can have access to it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is in order, Mr. Lubembe. I do not know whether you have the agreement with you, Mr. Nyamweya, or can lay it, or a copy of it, on the Table within the next day or two. Mr. Lubembe is quite correct.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Later, Sir, as I do not have it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A day or two later?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Yes, I will do that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Thank you very much.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 28th January the Clerk of the Bungoma County Council was reminded that the fees still remained unpaid. He was also reminded in the middle of March and he was warned that if the fees were not paid within 21 days then the agreement would be terminated forthwith.

Now, on the 12th April, further letters were sent stating that the agreement would be terminated and the crossings would be closed if payment was not made by the 26th April.

On the 2nd May, Sir, the Clerk was informed again and there was no response from him.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, here I think the House ought to take note that five letters had been sent to a responsible officer of the Bungoma County Council who failed to take the necessary action.

Sir, when there was no response from this gentleman, the East African Railways and Harbours had no option but to take the action they did by terminating the agreement. The agreement was terminated and one of the crossings was closed on the 29th May 1969; but as soon as this was closed, the Clerk of the Bungoma County Council and the Treasurer woke up and immediately sent the cheque to the East African Railways

[The Minister for Power and Communications] and Harbours for payment of the fees. As a result the crossing was reopened on the 4th June, which was yesterday, after the county council paid the fees which they were supposed to pay.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it should be noted here, again, that the Railways Corporation was extremely lenient, that for five months a small amount which the Bungoma County Council should have paid was not paid, despite so many reminders.

Mr. Shikuku: Why did you not send them to court?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): That would be another way of doing it, but what the Railways Corporation did here was to terminate the agreement. We have, as a result of receiving the payment, reinstated the agreement and that is why the crossings have been reopened.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members may feel this is a wrong way of collecting fees for these crossings, but if that is the position the Members who feel very strongly about the current legal position have one way open to them. The provisions of the law, as I have explained to them, are available in the library and a Member who is not happy with the existing provisions of the law could table in this House a Motion requesting the amendment of the provisions of the Bill.

The Railways Corporation, at the moment, has no intention of repealing these particular provisions. It should be borne in mind that this is the law, not only in Kenya but throughout East Africa. It is the latest Act which was passed by the Authority, as I said, last year, and which came into existence from 1st June 1969. We are quite satisfied that the law as it is now does not really inconvenience the citizens of this country or, for that matter, of East Africa as a whole, but it could inconvenience citizens of any county council whose senior officers are delinquent in discharging their obligations.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Nyamweya, to complete the picture and to comply strictly with our practice, would you please also lay copies of the five letters with a copy of the Agreement? The five letters of demand.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only made reference to letters written, or reminders, but I do not think it is necessary to lay them on the Table.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid so. You see I have said, and I think it is absolutely necessary, that if hon. Members wish to refer to documents as part of their argument they must produce those documents for the House to see and lay them on the Table, so that everybody really sees the contents and the context too.

Just five minutes, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must thank the Member for Bungoma for bringing this Motion to the House because this has been a very surprising affair where the East African Railways Administration found it necessary to punish the people in Bungoma—not only people of Bungoma but also, in fact, other people who travel through that district.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that this mistake should not happen again. If somebody received a letter from the East African Railways Administration, asking him to effect an Agreement, and that person did not effect the Agreement, then it was up to the East African Railways Administration to take legal steps against that particular individual. The public who have been inconvenienced have the right now to claim damages from the East African Railways Administration. Those who have been inconvenienced have the right to go to court against the East African Railways Administration as it had been made impossible by the East African Railways Administration for them to carry out any work they had at that time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appeal to the Minister who is responsible for this Administration to see that such a thing does not happen again, and also to make sure that where there is any district with complaints of this nature, the Members for that particular area are informed so that they know what is happening, rather than having people being inconvenienced by such a move which is contrary to the wishes of our people.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is known that the East African Railways make a lot of money in this country, and nobody questions the profits made. I know some of it is used in various places to improve the work of the Administration, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it must be known that without us, the people of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania, this Administration would not be doing its work. Therefore, it should respect the wishes of the people first. Should there be any irregularity, then the particular individual who is involved should be taken to court.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words I thank the Mover.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Two minutes, Mr. Kibuga.

Mr. Kibuga: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

[Mr. Kibuga]

While the Member for Bungoma South was speaking, and also the Secunder, after listening to what they said I was about to condemn the Minister for failing in his duty; but after hearing the Minister I find it is the county council who is to blame.

Mr. Speaker, knowing this Agreement had to be observed, we should also take note of the fact that there were four days of inconvenience to the citizens of Bungoma County Council, and to all the other citizens of Kenya. They are free to pass over these roads and it is high time that the Minister for Power and Communications thought of repealing this law. In fact, now that this is the work of the East African Community, when a county council fails to pay, instead of the roads being blocked the Government responsible for that county council should pay and then demand the money from the county council. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if, for example, there was a tarmac road and somebody forgot to pay, and then the tarmac was dug up in order to block the road, this would be rather expensive to replace.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the Government will repeal this law.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the interruption of business, so the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 6th June, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

PRAYERSORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 161FORM V ADMISSION, 1969

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Education to state—

(a) how many students had been selected for admission into Form V in 1969;

(b) how many had come from each province.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Ministry of Education?

Mr. Kariuki not here yet?

Dr. De Souza?

Is any Minister in a position to answer for the Vice-President?

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since most of the Ministers who were supposed to answer all these questions are not present, can you not give a directive that they be called to come to the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I cannot, but you will observe that some of the Members who were due to ask Questions are also not here.

We will have Mr. Mwatsama's Question again.

Question No. 146a

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs to state how many motor-car accidents had occurred at Mariakani township on the Mombasa/Nairobi main road this year.
