The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Nyamweya, you are prepared to answer?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): No, I am prepared to answer the next Question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I see. We will have to leave that again for a moment.

Mr. Munyi, your Question.

*Question No. 167DISTRIBUTION OF BANNED PUBLICATIONS

Mr. Munyi asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs to state—

(a) if he was aware that, although a number of publications had been banned the distribution was being done from abroad without the consent of the people who received them;

(b) what immediate action the Government was taking to ask publishers abroad to stop sending such publications to people who had not asked for them;

(c) what action the Government was taking to defend innocent people who received those publications without their consent.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply on behalf of the Vice-President.

(a) I am not aware that distribution of banned publications is being done from abroad without the consent of the people who receive them.

(b) It is the responsibility of any individual who receives such publications to instruct the publishers abroad not to send them if he does not require them.

(c) All citizens have the right to prove their innocence before the Court of Law and the Government always provides the necessary assistance according to the law.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer which has been given by the Minister, is he aware that not only individuals, but even hon. Members including Ministers, have been receiving some publications, and they are always kept in their pigeon-holes? Not only that, but even badges are being distributed among the Members without their consent. Therefore, it is up to the Minister to answer the question which has been asked, because I can prove many publications are sent to us without our consent. What about innocent people in the countryside? They are in trouble.

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the law provides that in a case where an individual gets some publications without his knowledge, he can either surrender the publications to the nearest police station, to the appropriate authority, or destroy them.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we should go on now, but if the hon. Member could bring to my notice any specific case of a banned publication being distributed to Members in their pigeon-holes, I should be very grateful.

You have a supplementary question on this, Mr. Jahazi?

Mr. Jahazi: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir. In view of the fact that these publications pass through the post office and through Government machinery before they are delivered here or elsewhere, would the Minister make sure that not a single banned publication is processed through the post office to each an individual, it should be confiscated there, before it reaches an individual?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member asks almost an impossible thing for the post office to do. What, in fact, he is suggesting is that the post office should sort out or read the mail which is being sent to recipients, and this would be contrary to the accepted norm of the post office.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not illogical and unwise for the Government to prosecute people who receive Chinese documents, when we already have the Chinese Embassy in Nairobi?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is possible that you can have an embassy of a friendly country in Nairobi while some other people in that country may be distributing publications which are proscribed or objected to here, just as it is possible to have publications made by the nationals of this country which can equally be proscribed. It is the content of a document which is objectionable, not the representation of a foreign delegation in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now. Is any hon. Member authorized by Mr. Kariuki to ask his Question?

Question No. 176

E.A. POSTS AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS HEADQUARTERS MOVE TO KAMPALA

Mr. Shikuku, on behalf of Mr. G. G. Kariuki, asked the Minister for Power and Communications to state—

- (a) if objections lodged by the Kenya Government to "the hurried and unplanned move" to transfer East African Posts and Telecommunications Headquarters to Kampala had been resolved or withdrawn;
- (b) if he was in a position to disclose the expected cost of the said transfer;
- (c) if he was satisfied that any move to transfer the Posts and Telecommunications Headquarters from Nairobi to Kampala would not in any way affect the development of our Posts and Telecommunications.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is true that the Kenya Government has had some anxiety over the way in which the move of the Headquarters of the East African Posts and Telecommunications to Kampala was being carried out. This matter, however, has been discussed at length, both in the Communications Council where I am a member, as well as at the meeting of the Authority, and the differences have now been resolved. It has been agreed that there will be a planned move of the Headquarters of the Posts and Telecommunications from Nairobi to Kampala to be phased out so that by the end of the year most of the personnel required to move to Kampala will have moved.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Minister tell the House how much money was involved in this move, especially where families were moved to Kampala, and then they found there was no accommodation and they were returned to Nairobi?

Mr. Nyamweya: It is not correct to say that families have been moved to Kampala and found that they did not have accommodation there. It is true to say that this move will involve additional expenditure on the part of the corporation. I would like to reveal that the cost of the physical move of staff and office equipment is estimated at about £32,000. Members should naturally expect that this move will necessitate, at any rate until the move is complete, some offices having to be run both in Kampala and in Nairobi.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Minister tell the House whether they have already made any preparations to receive these people as far as housing, schooling, and so forth, is concerned? Have those arrangements been made for the staff before they move by the end of this year, and will there be any discrimination when they get there, such as we have read in the Press, where some Kenyans have been asked to go away, and so on?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge the hon. Member for Butere not to believe everything he reads in the Press. In the case of the welfare of the officers of this corporation who will be moving to Kampala, I would like to assure the House that the Uganda Government will cooperate to see that the children of these officers get places in schools in Uganda.

Mr. Muliro: Arising from the Minister's reply, would the Minister not agree with me that the Posts and Telecommunications' development in Kenya, because of money which is being transferred for the building of new offices in Uganda, is going to be hampered in Kenya?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that the hon. Member has raised this point. It has been the Kenya Government case all along, in the question of deciding how and when the move of this corporation to Kampala should be carried out, that when this is being done no money devoted or already allocated for development, in Kenya, Uganda, or Tanzania, should be diverted for the purpose of carrying out the move of the headquarters. This principle has been accepted, both in the Communications Council, [Mr. Nyamweya] as well as at the last meeting of the Authority, that is the three Presidents of East Africa. It has been agreed that money already allocated for development will be used specifically for the development for which it had been originally allocated. In regard to the move of the headquarters, whatever finances are used will have to be obtained from other sources.

FORM V ADMISSIONS, 1969

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Education to state—

- (a) how many students had been selected for admission into Form V in 1969;
- (b) how many had come from each Province.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) A total of 2,302 Form IV school-leavers were selected and offered Form V places in Higher School Certificate schools all over the Republic this year.

(b) Selection of candidates for admission to Form V is done extra-provincially and is based entirely on performance in the School Certificate examination. The province of origin of a candidate is not normally taken into consideration when the candidate is considered for admission to Form V.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply by the Assistant Minister, does he agree with me that he does not want to disclose the provinces where these students come from because there is an imbalance which he does not want to correct?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I would like to assure the House that if hon. Members think that there is any imbalance, and they bring it to the notice of my Ministry, we can look into this; but as far as I know, any boy or girl throughout the Republic of Kenya, who performs well in the School Certificate and obtains the necessary credits which are required for Form V, is considered throughout the country and will get a place.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me make this clear to the hon. Members. It may be that a boy from Kapenguria has obtained a Form V place somewhere in Nairobi; it does not necessarily mean that that boy from Kapenguria is from the Rift Valley because schools throughout the country cater for boys of Kenya, and any boy who qualifies, and if he is admitted to a school in Nyanza, he may be a Mluhya. Now, how are we going to find out whether that boy who has been admitted to Nyanza, who is a Mluhya, comes from Western Province when he gets admission to Form V? Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a complicated matter which I think my Ministry cannot get into.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister not actually evading the question because the issue is not tribal origins but provincial origins, whether these schools have been catering for a Kisii or a Jaluo or a Mluhya in Central Province or in Coast Province, where these schools are situated. How many students from these provinces went on to Form V, is the issue; it is not the tribal origin.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, we have understood, from previous experience, that whenever someone asks for a district or provincial breakdown, that comes to tribal breakdown. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as I know, nobody who qualified was refused a place in Form V. If the hon. Member can draw the attention of my Ministry to any boy from any province who was discriminated against, and had passed his School Certificate well, we will look into this.

Question No. 177

PAYMENT OF S1 TEACHERS, KENYATTA COLLEGE

Mr. Shikuku, on behalf of Mr. G. G. Kariuki, asked the Minister for Education if he was aware that teachers who went to Kenyatta College for S1 training did not get 80 per cent of their pay like those who attended other colleges of similar training.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am aware that PI teachers attending a one-year S1 course at Kenyatta College do not receive any part of their salary. One of the conditions for sponsoring teachers to this course is that they agree to go without salary. As this is the only PI/S1 course in the country, there are no other teachers getting 80 per cent of their salary attending a similar course.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Minister tell the House why he made this condition, that it would be only on the condition a person would not be given any percentage or any salary if he joins this course? Is he aware that the students agreed to this because they wanted the job, they wanted a future? Is the Government hereby supporting free services in this country without any payment, and if so, how do they live; how do they buy their razor blades or soap or things of that sort?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no free service here. Let us face the truth. If you are in training, you are not serving, you are training to come out and serve. These S1 teachers who are PI or ex-PI teachers, when they come out of their training, their basic scale, Mr. Speaker, is £378. When they are considered for SI courses, and they come out as SI after only one year's training, they automatically rise to £684. They do not lose anything within that year. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, let us again face the truth. If the Government were to pay these teachers while they were undergoing their promotion courses, this would cost Kenya £50,000 for the people in training only. What about the other services? The Ministry of Education is one Ministry, Mr. Speaker, which has a lot of services which require money, and if we are to pay teachers when they are still in their training course, Mr. Speaker, we will be doing injustice to the taxpayers of this country.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he not aware that it is necessary for these teachers to have at least, if not 80 per cent of their salary, some percentage of their salary due to the fact that they leave their wives and children at home, and it should be necessary all that time for the family to have something to keep them until the teachers come out of that college?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, who knows whether all these teachers are married? Some of them might not be married. Let us face the truth Mr. Speaker. There are hon. Members of this House who would not agree to an increase of £50,000 in the Ministry of Education Vote to pay teachers on the courses. I am very sure they would not agree to it.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers, and knowing that these teachers go to this teachers' training college having been teachers before, and having been working in the Ministry before, and so considering that this kind of training is the same as other kinds of training that are called in-service training in other Ministries and in other departments in Kenya, why has the Government not seen fit to give them this money or something since they also give salaries to those who are also doing in-service training in other departments?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very complicated matter because in-service courses of other departments do not take place for more than one year. Some of them are only for three months and some are for six months. Now here is a teacher out of classroom who is being promoted in order to receive, Mr. Speaker, an extra increment, immediately after that course, of £306. He starts, Mr. Speaker, with an increment of £306. If he has been teaching, definitely Mr.

Speaker, he should have been making some saving and from this saving, he should be able to look after his family.

Question No. 172INCREASED NUMBER OF ROAD ACCIDENTS

Mr. Munyi, on behalf of Dr. De Souza, asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House whether, in view of the increasing number of accidents on the Kenya roads, particularly on the Nairobi/Mombasa Road involving trucks and tankers, he would consider the following:—

- (a) Making it compulsory for all trucks on the Nairobi/Mombasa Road to have speed governors which would make it impossible for a truck driver to drive at more than 20 m.p.h.
- (b) Making it compulsory for all trucks on the Nairobi/Mombasa Road to have two drivers on each truck, so that when one driver was tired the other took over.
- (c) Making it a criminal offence for a truck driver to drink any liquor whatsoever when on duty, and prohibit bars and shops on that road from supplying truck drivers with any liquor at all.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In relation to (a) my Ministry is considering introducing regulations under the Transport Licensing Board which will cover the B licence and public service vehicles to install speed governors in their vehicles and other instruments which are likely to control the speed and the movement of these vehicles. I do not foresee that under this regulation a rule could be made to cover (b).

It is a practice which is being practised by a number of road transporters to have two drivers or at least more than one driver on the public service vehicles, not only along the Mombasa/Nairobi Road but also on the Mombasa/Kisumu Road. Some public transporters are already doing that. As to (c).

Sir, this is already a criminal offence where a driver is drunk while in charge of a motor vehicle.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies, will the Minister tell the House, how long it is going to take before this check is brought into being? How long is it going to take?

Mr. Nyamweya: In fact, my Ministry issued these instructions long ago to Transport Licensing Board that these are going to be the conditions

[Mr. Nyamweya] of issuing licences. Those bus operators who have not installed their buses with speed governors may be in a danger of losing their licences if they do not comply with these requirements.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the railways are losing revenue, and they have had even to put fares up for passengers, would it not be a better thing for the Minister to reduce, if not stop altogether, the licensing of all these tankers on the roads?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not relevant to this question. Let us go back to Mr. Mwatsama's question, if anyone can now answer for the Vice-President. Can anyone answer Mr. Mwatsama's question?

Question No. 146A

CAR ACCIDENTS, MARIAKANI TOWN

Mr. Mwatsama asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House how many motor-car accidents occurred at Mariakani Township on the Mombasa/Nairobi Road that year.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. 18 motor accidents were reported to have occurred at Mariakani Township during the period 1st January 1969 to 28th May 1969.

Mr. Mwatsama: Arising from that reply Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it not time now for the Minister to consider installing roundabouts at Mariakani Township so as to enable drivers to slow down their motor cars when passing through this township?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of putting up roundabouts in towns or on the roads does not really come under our Ministry. However, I am sure that this is one of the things that may be considered for adjustment.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

DISMISSAL OF KENYA NATIONALS FROM EMPLOYMENT IN UGANDA

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Labour the following Question by Private Notice.

According to Wednesday's (4th June 1969) Daily Nation issue, nine Kenyans were sacked by a Uganda firm under the Ugandanization policy:—

(a) What immediate arrangements does the Kenya Government have to get these Kenya nationals employment?

(b) What arrangement does the Government have to cater for such eventualities should they arise in future?

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is true that nine Kenyans were dismissed by a firm in Uganda. If the nine Kenyans could report to the Senior Labour Officer or to any of the country's labour exchanges, efforts will be made to find them corresponding employment with firms engaged in similar activities in the country.

(b) It is true that nine Kenyans lost their jobs with a Uganda firm under the Ugandanization policy. Hon. Members will appreciate that any sovereign state has the right to enact any legislation it may deem fit in pursuit of its own interests. The Uganda Government is merely exercising this right. Hon. Members will also recall that the recently enacted Kenya Immigration Act was aimed at ensuring that Kenya citizens were given opportunities to take any employment opportunities which were hitherto available to non-citizens. Nationals of the two partner states in the East African Community have so far been exempt from this provision, and although some Kenya nationals in Uganda and Tanzania have lost their jobs in favour of nationals of the two countries, Kenya has not taken any retaliatory action so far. The Government is currently making arrangements for discussing this tricky issue with the Governments of Uganda and Tanzania.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, especially part (b), where the Minister says that they are considering discussing this tricky issue with the other member states of the East African Community, would the Minister consider, so that these other Governments also understand that we are also people who can do things and take action, to take retaliatory action straightaway by forcing out the same number of people from employment in Kenya to make room for those who are now coming from Uganda, tit for tat, an eye for an eye?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government of Kenya does not intend to take any retaliatory measures at all and will never do that.

An hon. Member: Weakness.

Mr. Mwanyumba: It is not a question of weakness because how can the Kenya Government be accused of being weak? What is happening at the present moment, Mr. Speaker, is that the three Labour Ministers, that is the Labour Ministers of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania, are actively discussing this issue in a much wider range, and I am told that they have not reached any agreement at all, but certainly the matter is being discussed by the three Labour Ministers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members of the rule that friendly countries may not be criticized except by way of substantive Motion. I only allowed this question because it did not imply any criticism and it only asked what our Government was going to do to help such people in such circumstances. We can continue asking questions on those lines, but we must not discuss any retaliatory action against such countries by way of question.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply from the Minister in (a); did the Minister imply that these people will be given special consideration if they report to any labour office in the country and therefore avoid any embarrassment which might be caused to them or their families and so forth? Therefore, will they be given special treatment and not be treated like other people?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Yes, I said that the Ministry of Labour will do everything it can to assist these persons displaced in Uganda, in order to avoid family embarrassment and so on. The Government will do what it can to talk it over with the corresponding firms in the country to see that these people are given employment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question by Private Notice. Mr. Munyi?

ILLEGAL ARREST IN EMBU DISTRICT

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the following Question by Private Notice of the Minister for Tourism and Wildlife:

Is the Minister aware that during the last few weeks, more than ten people have been illegally arrested in Embu District without the knowledge of the district commissioner or local chief under the pretext that they were in possession of game trophies, which, in actual fact, were old animal skins which for many years had been used as bedding?

The Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware that game wardens have made any illegal arrests in the Embu District as claimed by the hon. Member. I am aware, however, that game wardens have made a number of arrests recently against persons who were found in possession of game trophies and animal skins. These alleged offenders were subsequently tried in a court of law by a competent magistrate who found them guilty of the offence as charged.

I wish to inform the hon. House, Mr. Speaker, that it is not the intention of game wardens to harass innocent people. Game wardens have instructions to talk to the people about the value of wildlife in Kenya and to explain that the laws have been enacted to protect this valuable resource against offenders. It is only after people have ignored these appeals that the game wardens are compelled to arrest persistent offenders and charge them in a court of law.

Under the law, a game warden is not obliged to inform any officer of the Government of his intention to arrest an offender, although in the interests of smooth administration, the district commissioner of the area is always informed of the activities of the other Government officers.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that long answer from the Minister, is the Minister aware that arising from very many complaints, this practice has been going on not only in Embu but in districts like Machakos, Kitui and other places, and every time we have been reading in the newspapers about the complaints from all these parts? Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister direct these game wardens that whenever they want to take any action they should inform the local chiefs as well as the district commissioners so that they will be given a good directive, rather than taking the law into their own hands, Mr. Speaker, because this has been happening and I have got letters?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my answer, I made it clear that any Government officer acting according to a certain law need not inform all the other Government officers of his intention to apply the law, although, as I said, in the interests of good administration, the district commissioner and, therefore, his other staff—the district officers and chiefs—usually know of what the game warden and games scouts are doing in a particular area.

Now, referring to the other question about the widespread nature of this type of complaint, I would like to inform the hon. Member that I am already aware of quite a number of similar cases which come, in fact, from the other hon. Members from Embu. I am referring particularly to my hon. colleague, the Minister for Natural Resources who is a Member of Parliament from Embu, who informed me that he is holding a meeting on Sunday at Kiambere and that this question is going to be one of the main issues. I would like, therefore, to inform the House and the hon. Member that I have decided to send my Under Secretary to represent me on Sunday so that this question is listened to and answered on my behalf by my Under Secretary. I say this because I want the hon. Member and the House to know that it is not the intention of the Government to harass anybody. On the other hand, the laws of the country must be applied and our wildlife must be protected because our wildlife is valuable to the country. We will do this only bearing in mind that this is to be done for the good of the people.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies of the Minister, is he really aware that many Africans use animal skins as their dresses? If he is aware of that, what arrangements is he making that these people should continue to get their dresses?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware of the fact, and I know that the hon. Member himself owns quite a number of animal skins as his dress. What we have done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that I have instructed game wardens and game staff all over the country, to inform people who have been owning these skins to report the fact of the position to the game warden so that the position may be licensed. However, this has to be done very carefully because we will not agree to anybody going to kill an animal just because he wants to own a dress of skin. According to the laws of the country, all animals belong to the State, and nobody has any right to kill without the knowledge or permission of the State. However, skins which were owned say years ago, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have made a provision for these to be properly licensed. If anybody does not report the fact of the position, then he will be arrested.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on hon. Members.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

SHORTAGE OF SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform hon. Members that on the Adjournment next Tuesday, on the 10th of June, Mr. Godia will pursue Question No. 54, concerning lack of equipment in schools which he was to have raised on Wednesday, this week.

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN TRADE LICENSING

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On Wednesday, the 11th of June, having had Notice from Mr. Pandya that he wishes to raise a matter of racial discrimination in Trade Licensing, I have said that he may raise that on the 11th of June.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday when we had a debate on a Motion to— Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Finance does not see properly, should I lend him my glasses? Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday when we were debating the Motion to delete Mondays from our Standing Orders, in fact I supported the Motion, but the East African Standard reported me as having opposed the Motion. Does that not create a different picture, when actually that is not what I did? Can that be corrected through your instruction?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but it is not really necessary for the hon. Member to bring it as a point of order in the House. I am sure that a direct request to the newspaper concerned will achieve the desired result equally well.

MOTION

REVIEW OF AGRICULTURAL PRICE STRUCTURE

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of changed circumstances, and in realization of the part played by agriculture in our economy, this House requests the Government to review the price structure for agricultural produce with a view of giving a fair return to the farmers.

Mr. Speaker, when moving this Motion, I am very much aware that the advancement of Kenya's economy, shall remain and shall depend solely on the advancement of agriculture. When you look at the situation, at the moment, Mr. Speaker, it is to the contrary. We have gloom everywhere; we see falling prices on the world market everywhere, let us take the question of tea, Mr. Speaker; you find, say, from the latest report by Mr. Alfred Viton, who is the head of Tropical Beverages and Products Division of the Food and Agriculture Organization. He reports Mr. Speaker, of the difficulties which we are going to have to face in the tea industry. For example this year, we have had a conference, we intend to have another conference in July, and maybe another one in September, and all they are going to discuss is how they can reduce the sales of tea on a quota basis, which, as everyone knows, is mainly based on traditional averages, and since African countries, including Kenya, have not been doing very well for the last five years, Mr. Speaker, so all is not well with the tea industry.

If you look at coffee which is one of our main crops in Kenya, and if you read the report of last week, especially in our most informative papers, the East African Standard and the Daily Nation, you find that the prices in London auctions have been falling very rapidly. From, say, Sh. 300 a ton to something like Sh. 250 a ton, and this also does not auger very well for our coffee industry.

We know, Mr. Speaker, of the situation in the sisal industry, it is almost in ruins, Mr. Speaker, we know of what has happened to our maize and wheat. Only October last year, it was announced that there would be a reduction in the price of wheat of Sh. 5 on a bag, and a reduction of Sh. 3 on—

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I think there are some gentlemen there talking too loudly.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I agree. I would request all hon. Members to talk quietly, so that we can hear the hon. Member on his feet.

Mr. Khaoya: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I was just saying that last year in October, we all realized what happened to our wheat and maize, when wheat was reduced by Sh. 5 a bag, and our maize Sh. 3 a bag.

This Mr. Speaker, shows the gloom which our agricultural community in Kenya, is subjected to. I think Mr. Speaker, when we realize that, it is time to look at the circumstances in the world and also in Kenya. I think circumstances have changed so much, that there is a need for us to review the price structures for all our produce in Kenya. At some time or at some stage of last year or the year before, we were told of the difficulties in the Suez Canal when it was blocked, but it is now no longer the case, because the Suez Canal has been closed for a long time. So I consider that, a circumstance which has changed. Mr. Speaker, we also, at one time, were subjected to the devaluation of British sterling, but now we have lived long enough for us to be able to adjust ourselves to that reasonably well. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you look at the Meteorological Report for 1969, you will find that our rains have been very late. We have had a very long drought and surely the effects will not really be felt until some time next year.

If you look at newspaper reports daily, say the Kenya Gazette, you will always find on the other hand, that every time there is a court case between the trade unions and some employers, wages are raised. You will never find a court case where it was decided to reduce wages. The wages are either raised or left as they are.

When you consider these circumstances and then compare them with the falling prices or agricultural produce, I think you must come to the conclusion that we definitely require a review of our price structure, so that we may give the farmer his fair return.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my moving the Motion, I stated that agriculture plays a very vital part in our economy and I would like just to justify that. In some countries they have minerals. In Kenya, we have a small amount of minerals contributing to our economy. Looking at our Mines and Geological Annual Reports, let us say for 1966, you find that we have a variety of minerals totalling about 26 items. When you look at the number, it is big enough, but all that we get from them, Mr. Speaker, and I should say that they are quite many, ranging from asbestos, barytes, gypsum, gold and silver, all that we get from them is something like half a million long tons—I hope the House knows the difference between a long ton and a short ton.

An hon. Member: Tell us, we do not know.

Mr. Khaoya: A long ton is 2,240 lb. and a short ton is 2,000 pounds. Anyway, I am now talking about long tons, and for this Mr. Speaker, we only get £3.8 million per annum. This is not very much. Gold, which is one of those precious minerals which fetches a lot of money in other countries, we have only something in the region of 12,000 ounces, and not pounds. If you put that into pounds, you will not have many pounds of gold, and Mr. Speaker, the whole of the mining industry employs only about 1,000 people.

If you look into our recent report, and I think it was only this morning that it was reported in the Daily Nation, that our only mine in Kenya, the Macalder Mines in South Nyanza, is to be closed this year, according to a report from the Commonwealth Development Corporation, so we are likely to have no gold at all. If you continue further Mr. Speaker, and also if you want to keep an eye on the economy and look at the gross revenue from our agriculture, we have something in the region of £67 million total gross revenue. This is something quite considerable when you compare it with for example the gross revenue which we get from our minerals of about £3.8 million. If you also look at the gross product or the capital formation in Kenya, agricultural definitely plays a very vital role indeed.

Mr. Speaker, when you have these facts I think you must rightly come to the conclusion that it is time we reviewed our position and tried to give a fair return to the farmer. But, Mr. Speaker, time and again, we have been told that we are subject to world prices and that we can do nothing about this. That point has been well taken and I agree that we can do very little on the world market. All that we are trying to present to our Government today is that it should leave the impossibles alone and deal with those that are possible, and when I say those which are possible, I immediately look on our home front: that is our internal marketing organization. I think it is very faulty indeed, and I will give a few examples to show that we can do quite a lot to improve the income of our farmers just by looking at the internal organization of our marketing system.

Mr. Speaker, last year we were told that the price of maize was to go down to something like Sh. 17, Sh. 21 or Sh. 25 according to the Maize and Produce Board, and the reason they gave was because the world price was going down. Today, I am pleased to say, and I would also like to thank the General Manager of the Maize and Produce Board, that our maize today is fetching on the world market Sh. 417/50 per ton, which represents a figure of nearly Sh. 40 per bag. So why should our Government not reconsider the price they announced last year of Sh. 25 a bag? Why should they not reconsider that? I think here is a case for review in the case of maize. Mr. Speaker, it is only a few days ago when I was debating on the Presidential Speech, that I put up a case on the price of milk. I do not want to go to the details of this, but all that I want to say is that at the moment, one gallon of milk is being sold by the producer at Sh. 2/40 a gallon.

Hon. Members: You are lucky. Where? It is one shilling.

Mr. Khaoya: Hon. Members say that it is even lower and I will agree with them, but let us take Sh. 2/40 a gallon.

An hon. Member: No, take Sh. 1/50 a gallon.

Mr. Khaoya: My colleague says he sells his at Sh. 1/50 a gallon, which is very bad indeed. You will find at the other end according to my argument, our hotels which sell this milk in glasses for 50 cents each or in other cases you buy milk at one shilling a glass, and according to the calculations we had in this House, there are three glasses in one pint and there are eight pints of milk in one gallon. Somebody is getting more than Sh. 12 for that same gallon and for that matter, my hon. colleague tells me that somebody is getting Sh. 24 for that one gallon, which I as a farmer sold for Sh. 1/50. If the public have been trained to buy this milk for Sh. 24, if I may borrow the figures my hon. colleague gave me, if the public can buy this milk at Sh. 24 a gallon, surely it is possible for our Government, by adjusting the prices to the producer, at least to give him more than two-thirds of the price because he is the man who is producing that milk? I was very generous indeed as I was working on the figures of Sh. 2/40 versus Sh. 12. In my case, I think a gallon of milk should bring to the producer from Sh. 8 to Sh. 10 a gallon. If, on the other hand, somebody is selling it for Sh. 24, I think here is a case where we could review our internal marketing organization.

There is the question of meat, which caused a lot of controversy only a few months ago. This made those of us who are interested in farming visit the Kenya Meat Commission at Athi River. I see my hon. colleague, hon. Munyi who was with me there nodding his head. We went there and one of the things we saw there was meat Grade 3, Grade 4 which was being sold to the butchers for about Sh. 2/70 a kilogram. When you come to Nairobi today, in Mariakani or Pumwani or wherever you go, you will buy that same meat for about Sh. 5/50 or for Sh. 6 a kilo. or for any amount they choose and you will not be able to know what grade you are buying; whether it is third, fourth or fifth or even tenth. You will just buy meat for Sh. 6 a kilogram. Surely, there is something definitely wrong somewhere? There is exploitation of man by man. This is something that we should go all out to stamp out. Then, of course, Mr. Speaker, we are told there is a committee in Kenya which deals with prices. We also hear that there is a Ministerial Price Control Committee. What do these gentlemen do?

Hon. Members: They never meet.

Mr. Khaoya: What do they control? I think it is time we demanded to know their names and what meetings they have had—whether they have ever met with anybody in Kenya or whether they meet with papers in their offices; and if that is the case, whether they should not to be scrapped all together. I do not think that committee or those committees for that matter serve any useful purpose in Kenya. If they are determined to help in the question of prices, they should go out and meet the people who are concerned with the prices. In our case, they should come out and meet the farmers. Thus they would be able to hear their grievances and see whether they can reconsider their cases. I think the time has come when we should do away with those committees. We should in place thereof employ some agricultural economists purposely to work on the basis of these facts and see whether they can give us a better price system.

Mr. Speaker, I consider the fairest way of rewarding a farmer is to consider his expenses. That is the amount he spends in the production of a product. Then, adding something reasonable for the depreciation of his machinery if he has any; and, on top of that, allow him a profit of 15 per cent since one cannot live on losses but on profit. If we adopted that measure, then all the anomalies we have in Kenya might be alleviated. For instance, let me take the example of maize which I have referred to on so many occasions that people have started referring to me as the Member for maize. However, I am not worried about that. It takes about Sh. 350 for a farmer to produce one acre of maize. From one acre, one gets about 15 or 20 bags of maize, after spending Sh. 350 if one is economical. Working on the basis of the present price although Mr. Kariuki tells us Sh. 25 what in fact one gets as net price is in the region of Sh. 20 per bag. Working on the basis of average production in Kenya today which is something under 15 bags per acre, one gets a gross income per acre of something like Sh. 300 whereas one had invested Sh. 350 in the acre in question. How can one expect farmers to live on these losses? They can only live on profit. I think there is an urgent case here. I only here plead with the hon. Members that we subject our Government to these facts so that they may respond and do something to that effect.

When I say this, I do not in any way reflect the inefficiency of the Ministry of Agriculture as such. I should say a kind word to them. In the person of hon. Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce McKenzie and his deputy I think we have had first class services. Here it is not the question of the Ministry of Agriculture alone. This is simply because the prices in the final analysis are determined by the Treasury. They are the people who matter and we have to tell them in simple language.

An hon. Member: Where is Mr. Gichuru?

Mr. Khaoya: It is no use for us simply to blame the Ministry of Agriculture when we know that the whole thing is determined by the Treasury, where they say, for example, we have to subsidize so much and we cannot waste money. Of course the Government should subsidize. This should be done, especially when one takes into account the developed countries where agriculture has always been subsidized.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, because I can see that my hon. colleagues are bound to help me, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who is to second you.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Munyi will second me, Sir.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much Mr. Speaker, Sir. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I was one of those people who wanted to table a question in this House some time ago when the prices of wheat and maize were reduced. I have therefore every right to second this Motion.

Farmers always try their level best to work as hard as they can on their farms. Our people have already agreed to go back to the land. This has been the call from the President. Our President has constantly been telling our people that they should go back to the land. It is an established fact that our people have gone back to the land. They grow, for example, maize. As the hon. Member has argued, when you grow one acre of maize, you get at least ten bags of maize. The expenditure on the hand is quite high. The expenditure soars to more than Sh. 350. The present price of maize is only Sh. 25 per bag. Using simple mathematical calculation, the return per acre is only Sh. 250. This means that you work in your farm, but when the time of the harvest comes you get nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me avail myself of this opportunity and accuse some of the big powers. The hon. Assistant Minister, Mr. Josiah Kariuki will agree with me that when he recently went to a meeting in Rome he made excellent representation. This is because he accused the big powers of trying to monopolize things and of trying to dictate us by way of sabotaging prices of commodities which are grown in the newly liberated States of Africa, and also those commodities which are grown in the Asian countries.

The prices of other commodities are rising daily. If prices of other goods are rising, what assistance will our farmers get? What is the use of working very hard in our farms if the return is nothing? There is no use. I am therefore appealing to the Ministry of Agriculture to take immediate action. A meeting should be called by the Ministry so that they can consider ways and means of trying to help our farmers. If we are to sit and thereby take no action, we shall be in trouble. We shall always be accused by our farmers that we are responsible for the reduction of the prices of these commodities. What reasons can we give for a case of this nature? When a farmer goes to a shop and he wants to buy goods or by-products of the farmer's commodity, he finds the prices very high. There are many by-products of the commodities produced by the farmers. The prices of these by-products is always very high. I can give an example of a simple commodity, that is cotton. I know when you want to buy a by-product of cotton, that is sim-sim oil, or if you want to buy one pound of ghee, you cannot manage because the price is so high. By that I mean that an ordinary person will not be able to do that. Taking the first case, the sim-sim oil is a by-product of cotton. But, by the way who grows cotton? It is grown by the common people. They are the majority of people whom we represent. They are people who are in the rural areas in such places as Kisii, Bungoma, Embu and so forth. They are the ones who produce such commodities like maize and cotton. They are just ordinary farmers.

[Mr. Munyi]

The hon. Mover of this Motion the hon. E. B. S. did mention one very important thing. Whenever, a case is heard in the Industrial Court, the wages of the workers are increased. But what about the fate of farmers? By the way I am a member of Industrial Court. The farming section of our population constitute more than 90 per cent of Kenya's population. It is high time that the Kenya farmers were helped.

I have another example which I am going to give. There was some time back in my district—Embu, the lower part of Embu, and the hon. Minister, Mr. Ngei knows this very well, for he is well acquainted with a case where the people of Machakos were told to plant more sisal only to be told later that there was no market for sisal. A campaign was going on everywhere.

An hon. Member: Does he agree it is true?

Mr. Munyi: He has agreed that it is true. I have been to the Minister for Agriculture now and then appealing to Ministry officials and telling the Minister himself that in Embu there are many people who have sisal and sisal products, but there is no market for them. They are told that if they want to sell their sisal products, the price will be less than the amount of money they used when planting that sisal. The same thing is happening with maize now. We should be told what is going on. There is something wrong somewhere. It was not long ago that we were buying maize from America at Sh. 60 a bag, and that was for yellow maize which is only supposed to be used by pigs. Now we have very good maize, white maize, but the amount which is paid for one bag is only Sh. 25, but after the cess which is paid to Government it goes down to Sh. 18 a bag. This is known, because when you go around you are told that you must pay the cess, you have the self-help group, you have to do this or that. There are many other ways, and they are completely bottomless, in the way that money is taken from the farmers.

This is an issue which is quite explosive. It is not one which should be taken lightly. I would like to appeal to the Minister, the hon. Josiah Kariuki, when he speaks this morning to tell us what has been going on in the international markets, what has been going on in Rome, London, New York. Meetings are always being held there, and many officials go there to represent us. I do not know what happens when they go there, they tell us that the discussions last for months or weeks, but when they come back we are told that it was to do with world markets, and by-products. Take the price of clothes in the shops.

It has already gone sky-high. All the time the prices are going up, and these are the by-products. Why is it that ever since we started growing cotton, the price is only 40 cents? We start growing something else and the price goes down? Now we are told by the Ministry officials that we should plant macadamia—there was a Motion about it last week. People are moving from place to place telling us to increase the acreage of macadamia, but within a short time we are likely to be told that there is no market for macadamia, because it is being supplied by another place.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second.

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to—

Hon. Members: Support, support.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei):—to congratulate the hon. Khaoya for the keen interest— Mr. Speaker, Members should let me finish my sentence.

I rise to support the hon. Mover, the hon. Khaoya, for his interest. I have watched his keen interest in agriculture, and of course as Vice-President of the Kenya National Farmers' Union, I agree that we must be in a position to know the problems which face the farmers in Kenya today. Therefore, I rise to support the Motion, not only as a Minister but as a farmer as well. I am saying this, because otherwise someone will accuse me of having a interest, but since farming cannot be considered on the same basis as other businesses—it is a basic and fundamental way of livelihood—I think I am entitled to be a farmer.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very important Motion, and that is why I took the trouble to ask your permission to speak so that I can contribute a little towards the intent of this very important Motion.

Mr. Speaker, it has been said that farmers make money.

An hon. Member: Good farmers.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): It is true that prosperous, hard-working farmers, after many years of hard work, conclude by making a little money, but because of the fluctuations of prices in the world economy, on the world market, they often find there is a slump and they lose money. Indeed, they struggle all their lives without earning anything. That is why it is important for us in this House, realizing that this is a country with an agricultural economy, to examine the price structure especially when related to our internal consumption. If we say, as the hon. seconder did, the hon. Munyi, that we have to base our price structure and review it by taking into account the world market, this is going to be very difficult indeed, because the prices in the world market fluctuate also. We know pretty well there is world competition in these things, and for example in methods of agriculture. Some other countries are very well advanced indeed, and they are in a position perhaps to subsidize a certain crop, and therefore they are able to reduce the price to meet their demands. I would like us to take into consideration—and I hope the Minister concerned will reply to this—that it would be good if we were to examine our price structure in relation to our internal consumption. If we base our price structure on the world market, I am sure we are going to find ourselves in the same trouble all the time.

A word of thanks must go to the Minister for Agriculture, and of course to the Government, because, lately, we have seen that the Government has taken steps to take care of the farmers by providing subsidies for fertilizers, and also by reducing the price of diesel fuel. I do not know if the hon. Mover said this, but the hon. Members know about it, they are well informed. A word of thanks must be given to the Government for taking steps to see that fertilizers are subsidized. Fertilizers are a principal item in agricultural operations, and also the price of diesel fuel was reduced only a few months back.

Coming back to internal consumption, Mr. Speaker, which I think is the main factor to determine the review of agricultural prices, let us look at the matter. We have a problem here, the Government has a problem, because of the workers. We know that quite a lot of people have come to town and they buy products such as maize meal, the consumption has gone up. However, on the other hand, you have the workers' organizations hitting at the Government all the time, saying that the price of such and such a thing has gone up, and therefore salaries must go up. Then the Government is again asked to review the wages of the workers, especially in the main towns. Therefore, a balance, an equilibrium must be kept between the farmer and the consumer. This is what, actually, the hon. Mover did not take into consideration. I do not want to accuse him of having a very strong interest in the farmers and forgetting the consumers and, therefore, the Government must keep a balance, an equilibrium, so that the farmers are not going to die of starvation and also that the worker is not going to be hanged with a rope by raising the price of maize meal relatively higher than it should be.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want also to point out another minor point which, perhaps, the Mover might have spoken on. I was not here when he started speaking and I would have liked to be here from the very start. This is the question of the relative cost which comes on farmers in regard to mechanical accessories that make up, for instance, a tractor. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am a farmer of a meagre income because the price factors do not favour me, and then I have a wheel-bearing which is broken. Now, it is known that we have of course prices for our mechanical accessories such as I have mentioned, as Tinken roller bearings which go to, let us say, a Ford 4000 or to a Massey Ferguson 165. The price goes up and the farmer is not at all helped in this way. In other words, this factor is not taken when the price of a certain commodity or product is reviewed by the Government Central Price Committee of in the Ministry of Agriculture. This is what the Government must, of course, see and I hope that the Minister will take note of this.

The prices of accessories go up relatively higher and higher. Every year we are told that the temtem bearings have gone up by 2½ per cent. What happens to the farmer? He is, of course, left out and, therefore, these are the things I am asking the hon. Minister to consider seriously. In short, the farmers go the hard way.

I want to come to a very important thing which was said by the hon. Mr. Munyi. This is of course about the Maize Produce Board. Now and again, let us take for instance, millet from Kitui, millet from Teso, millet from Nyanza around the valleys, millet from Embu and so on. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we look at the price structure of millet, it is relatively lower than it used to be ten years ago. It is because of the profit factor that has been made, that the Maize and Produce Board is a viable statutory board, and I am asking Minister to take this seriously.

When the question of profit comes in, in the Maize and Produce Board, this is where the farmer is killed. We know that a statutory board must maintain its people. We know that it must maintain the storage and whatever facilities there are in case of serious consequences of a famine or invasion of locusts in this country. However, we must beware of the fact that the profit making of a statutory board, to slice down the prices of a farmer, is a more serious thing than we consider. I want the Minister, when he replies to this—and I know positively that he is going to accede in some degree to this Motion—to consider that a profit factor is most serious for a statutory board. It kills the farmer, it ends him outright and I want us to consider this very seriously. I know that Government is very sympathetic on this, and I know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, with our internal consumption, it becomes very difficult for this kind of structure.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the Motion, wholeheartedly, with the reservation that the Minister may make a minor amendment. Thank you.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry welcomes this Motion, with only minor amendments which I am going to move, and I believe that these good farmers will support my amendments. However, before I do so, I would like to begin by explaining to the Members the administrative machinery for setting out the prices. I would like to inform hon. Members that the constant review of prices of agricultural produce is not only the responsibility of my Ministry alone; it is also the responsibility of all other economic Ministers. There is a permanent committee of senior officers which deals with all aspects of cost and prices of all agricultural commodities, and they are the same people who make these recommendations to the Cabinet. For some commodities, the price reviews are an annual type of feature, and it is in the interest of the farmers and the producers themselves, that these reviews are carried out annually, on a regular basis rather than an ad hoc basis.

Now, you will find out that for 1970 and 1971 prices, we would like to inform the farmers that the committee, which is at the moment dealing with the review, will take into consideration the interests of all the farmers in the country and that they will definitely feel that the Government is not sleeping on their oil. However, I would like, with the permission of the Mover, and with due respect to whatever other hon. Members have said, in accepting this Motion, that we amend it by:—

Inserting after the word "House" the words "notes the action" and we delete the word "requests". "This House notes the actions the Government is taking", and then insert immediately after the word "Government" the words "is taking to review the price structure for Agricultural produce with a view of giving a fair return to the farmers".

The reason why I have said that Sir, is because my Ministry is, together with other economic Ministers, taking action as requested by the hon.

Mover of this Motion. Sir, I also made some statements before we adjourned the House last time, that the Government will definitely go into the details and try to make some sort of recommendations for the prices of crops because we have to give farmers fair return for their toil. I am, therefore, grateful to the Mover of this Motion, because it gives me the opportunity to also inform hon. Members and the farmers themselves not only of the changes that have taken place in the agricultural sector, but also of the action that the Government is now taking in the light of these changes. Unfortunately, I cannot go into details of all that the Government has done in the farming industry. The Motion accepts—and I agree with the Mover and the seconder and even with the hon. Minister for Housing on what he has just spoken—that agriculture is the prime mover of the economic growth of this country. I, however, appeal to the hon. Members that they should not feel that the people who are in the Government are sitting on the prices of our crops in this country. We would like to see that a fair return goes to the farmers, and appeal for greater stimulus to increase the agricultural produce in the farms.

If I may explain in short, Sir, as hon. Members would appreciate, the Government would wish to pay as high prices as possible to the producers, but is it not in many instances possible. For instance, we may not be able to do this for a number of reasons which I would like to explain to the hon. Members today, and these are (1) market limitation to terms of volume of supply and demand; (2) the ability of the consumers to pay a given price; and (3) the competition among various agricultural crops. Some people, Sir, may try to ask, "How can crops compete amongst themselves?" I would like to say that crops do compete amongst themselves. I would like to say that in addition to this, one has to take into consideration the economic and the financial implications which are given to various prices. You take, for example, crops like maize. Maize is, at the moment, competing with wheat for the land, because there are areas where you can plant wheat, but in the same areas you cannot plant maize. This is what I call the competition amongst the crops themselves. We have, therefore, to keep in mind, when fixing prices for these two crops, the relations between the two prices so as to achieve an optimum allocation of land between these two crops. You cannot plant some crops in the North-Eastern Province; you can plant some crops in the Coast, but these same crops will give a better yield in Central Province. That is what I mean by saying that the crops themselves compete amongst themselves.

[Mr. J. M. Kariuki]

Now, another example in this context is the competition between maize and cotton, for example, in Nyanza Province. There are areas where you can grow better cotton and you cannot grow better maize. In Busia, for example, you can get better cotton but, at the same time, I do not think that you can get better tea there. These are only a few examples which I would like to use to show the hon. Members what we have to take into consideration.

Now, Sir, in view of the economic and financial concepts combined with the market constraint, you cannot go and pick a price from a hat and say that this is the price for maize and this is the price for wheat; this is not possible. We have to look into the ability of the crop. You cannot put the price of maize at Sh. 40 or Sh. 50 and then you put the price of tea at Sh. 50 and then you put them in a hat and pick them out. This is impossible and cannot be done.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Now, Sir, what I feel is, in other words, the price has got to be at a level at which, in fact, you will get an output which has some relation to market demands and this will not erode the limited financial resources available to this country.

I must state here that it is declared Government policy that all sectors of the economy, including agriculture, should be self-supporting. In other words, no sector will be subsidized by moneys from public funds, because, if you do that, there are some other people in other areas who also are working hard to get other types of crops developed in their own areas. Therefore, you cannot continue for many years subsidizing these crops.

Despite this, Sir, you will have noted that very recently the Government has kept some sort of flexibility. As Members know, we are at the moment subsidizing fertilizers which are an important import for increased productivity. We are also subsidizing some other things like export maize. However, there is a limit to the subsidies that the Government can give and it is up to the producers themselves to raise their level of efficiency so as to be able to take a price dictated by the world market. The hon. Member from Embu wanted me to explain this competition from the world market. He is talking about sisal, but we know the reason why sisal has gone down the drain; it is because of synthetic fibres. Now, what can we do? These developed countries lend us money to come and develop our country—and I have repeatedly said this in this Parliament—but at the same time they go back to their own developed countries and they invent some other things, they make other things. Now we cannot sell our sisal on the highest world market because of synthetics. Our pyrethrum industry is also threatened by the same synthetics. This is why we are saying that the only solution we have is to continue using better methods, getting more yields per acre, so that even if there is this world market competition, our farmers will be able to get more from their acreage than they are getting at the moment.

Therefore, I must make it quite clear that I am not suggesting, even for a moment, that I am not aware of the difficulties which our producers face; I understand them and, in fact, if I may say so, I know them better because I am a farmer. However, at the same time there are limitations. Even if we know what the problems are, we are limited by our resources.

Members will understand that ours is a developing country and what we have to do, Sir, is to increase our productivity and put more in the hands of the farmers so that they get more and more produce from their own acreage. I understand that you are conscious that we have to help the productivity of our producers to help them reduce their cost of production.

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it seems that the Assistant Minister is going to take the whole morning, and there is no way of our knowing whether he has finished his time or not.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The Clerk, I am sure, even though he is out, is certainly keeping a check of the time.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): I was just wondering, Sir, whether there is any commodity planted in that area of the hon. Member.

I am going to say, Sir, that I must make it clear that reductions in costs can be achieved by two ways, namely the reduction in costs of inputs and also the increase in productivity. There are some problems about which the hon. Members may wish to know. I would like to say here now that maybe they are only looking at the crop itself. How about the machinery side of it? Maybe the hon. Members do not know that the machinery bought in this country is sold to us at more than half the price of that which they are sold in the United States and the United Kingdom. Now, Sir, when you buy this machinery here at such a high rate, that is where some of the problems arise. When the farmers buy this machinery and go back to their own farms in order to make money, it will take them some time. Why do we not come back and try to find a solution as to what should be done on the machinery side of it? That is why, Sir, it is sometimes difficult for us to compete with other countries where they make their machinery cheaper. This, Sir, is one of the most important points which the hon. Members should also learn. I can hear some hon. Members who look after their ngombes around Lake Victoria shouting at the back, but I would like to say that we are looking into ways and means of regulating this and I am hopeful that in the near future we will achieve some sort of success. That is why we, in the Ministry, are very delighted that this Motion was brought, because it gives us a little push into getting better prices for the farmers. The more the farmers get, the better for the Ministry of Agriculture.

Now, Sir, the other point is that hon. Members will no doubt appreciate that we are spending a great deal of money on applied research on increasing yields per acre which we believe will consequently enable farmers to reduce their per unit costs. In this regard, I think I can claim that we have made considerable progress and the yields of most crops now produced in the country are now very high—in fact, much higher than they were some years back—and in some cases very notable. I have in mind maize which is higher than even three or four years ago. However, we are still not satisfied that we have made any progress and we will continue making better progress than we have at the moment and we are still going to work vigorously that our farmers get better yields.

Some hon. Members, I think it was the Member for Embu, mentioned about Sh. 350 per bag an acre and that the cost of production is Sh. 350. Anybody who spends Sh. 350 should be able to obtain a yield of at least 20 bags per acre. In fact, a farmer who gets ten bags to the acre did not use the modern inputs as allowed by the agricultural officer. What I would like to appeal to the hon. Member, is that when he gets back to his constituency, he should tell his people that when they plant maize they should follow the advice given by the officers in the field. This is another method, Sir, of increasing the yields per acre from a farmer. I am quite happy, and the hon. Members are quite happy, that the Government is doing something in order to ensure that in future these things happen. When the Ministry of Economic Planning has completed the price structure of all commodities in this country, this House will be informed and I am quite sure the Members will support this wholeheartedly.

The only advice I want to give to the Members is to go and advise their farmers of one thing. If you plant five acres of maize which give only ten bags, that is only 50 bags, and if you sell the whole lot you do not get much money from your five acres, maybe Sh. 1,000. The best method which should be followed by the small-scale farmers is that instead of selling the whole lot, they should keep one or two bags and then go and grist it in the mills so that they can keep it in their own homes. If they sell all the 50 bags they only get £50 and then they go round the country to the shops and buy the same maize which they sold at a very large amount of money. This is what they do; they go back and buy at the small markets at Sh. 3/50. If you calculate properly you find that the same bag will cost you over Sh. 200. The best thing is to advise the farmers to grist at least one bag or two so that they can use this at home because it is much better than what you buy in the shops. Our people are inclined to believe that the only good posho is that which they buy in the small bag. This is the thing I would like the hon. Members to take into consideration and on which they should advise the farmers in their own areas.

I would like, therefore, Sir, to say that the Ministry is quite happy with this Motion and I hope that the hon. Mover will accept these amendments because these amendments are only improving the Motion and showing that we are taking action. I would like to appeal to the hon. Members not to think that we in the Government are only devils who do not take into consideration the problems of the farmers, and that they are the only ones who take into consideration the problems of the farmers. We are as much concerned as the hon. Members here because some of them come from areas where they do not grow crops, like Embakasi. However, we take these views and we feel that they go to the farms and that when they go to the farms they also contribute towards the development of this country.

I hope, with these few remarks, Sir, that the hon. Members will rise to support the amendment as it stands, because the Government is definitely taking action. If these Members do not accept my views and the promise that I gave in this House before we adjourned last time, that we are going to reduce these prices, there is very little more I can tell them.

Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to amend.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hear the Member for Embakasi telling me that I am failing. If I am failing, it is up to the people of machinery and go back to their own farms in order to make money, it will take them some time. Why do we not come back and try to find a solution as to what should be done on the machinery side of it? That is why, Sir, it is sometimes difficult for us to compete with other countries where they make their machinery cheaper. This, Sir, is one of the most important points which the hon. Members should also learn. I can hear some hon. Members who look after their ngombes around Lake Victoria shouting at the back, but I would like to say that we are looking into ways and means of regulating this and I am hopeful that in the near future we will achieve some sort of success. That is why we, in the Ministry, are very delighted that this Motion was brought, because it gives us a little push into getting better prices for the farmers. The more the farmers get, the better for the Ministry of Agriculture.

Now, Sir, the other point is that hon. Members will no doubt appreciate that we are spending a great deal of money on applied research on increasing yields per acre which we believe will consequently enable farmers to reduce their per unit costs. In this regard, I think I can claim that we have made considerable progress and the yields of most crops now produced in the country are now very high—in fact, much higher than they were some years back—and in some cases very notable. I have in mind maize which is higher than even three or four years ago. However, we are still not satisfied that we have made any progress and we will continue making better progress than we have at the moment and we are still going to work vigorously that our farmers get better yields.

Some hon. Members, I think it was the Member for Embu, mentioned about Sh. 350 per bag an acre and that the cost of production is Sh. 350. Anybody who spends Sh. 350 should be able to obtain a yield of at least 20 bags per acre. In fact, a farmer who gets ten bags to the acre did not use the modern inputs as allowed by the agricultural officer. What I would like to appeal to the hon. Member, is that when he gets back to his constituency, he should tell his people that when they plant maize they should follow the advice given by the officers in the field. This is another method, Sir, of increasing the yields per acre from a farmer. I am quite happy, and the hon. Members are quite happy, that the Government is doing something in order to ensure that in future these things happen. Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hear the Member for Embakasi telling me that I am failing. If I am failing, it is up to the people of

Butere to know I am failing, but certainly not those at the Embakasi Airport who see VC10's every night and every morning.

Now, Sir, may I inform the hon. Member that I speak as a farmer; I know what I am talking about and if he keeps his ears open he will hear some wisdom coming from this head over here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not wish to be very disgruntled about the amendment at all. We have had amendments by the Government in this House and we have had Motions on which we have also defeated the very Government's amendments and they were passed. However, no Member can challenge me whether those Motions have ever been implemented. The point is that we can shout and get amendments to Motions through, but once we have passed them, the experience is that they are shelved. If the Government makes an amendment but supports the principle of the Motion, I only feel that it is only just that we should accept it so that something will be done. In the future, I am going to move a Motion in this National Assembly, whereby all the Motions accepted with amendments will have to be brought in as a Bill so that we keep the Government on its toes. It is in this spirit that I am supporting the amendment.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, while supporting this Motion, I would like to speak on the contents of this Motion. First of all, the Member for Bungoma South has ably put the case and there is no doubt in my mind at all, and indeed in the minds of the Members of this House as far as this question is concerned. I am a farmer and I know how much I have suffered and I am still suffering and I hope—and I hope that I am not hoping against hope—that something will definitely be done. At least, I have faith in the Assistant Minister because he is permanently here just as I am, and if the worst comes to the worst he has no place to go to but here. This is one of the things that I have faith in. He is a farmer; he is a permanent citizen here; he is not another country's citizen and he is not a citizen by application or registration. I therefore say to the people of Nyandarua and also myself that I shall get a grip-hold on him and then if the worst comes to the worst he will have to share with us. We want to give him a chance and see how far he is going to go, because as a person he has done something.

Now, Sir, coming to the question of the difficulties of the farmers. You will find that the question is that the amount we used to get our crops on the market is very much more than the amount we now get for our crops on the market.

For example, diesel fuel we were told here the other day was reduced by 12 cents, but this was only in the Rift Valley and Nakuru is the end. What about the people in Kitale, in Bungoma, in Kakamega, in Busia and around there; they did not profit at all? Why was it brought in there only? Is it not a very well-known fact that the western part of the country is the part which produces more food for the nation? Why were we not given that reduction? This is discrimination and I accuse the Minister for Finance for being so discriminatory to think of that part of Kenya as if it were Somalia. I accuse the Minister for Finance for being so limited in his imagination that we must even threaten one of these days to stop giving food to the Minister to see if he can come back to this House and talk without food.

We cannot sit back and watch our part of the country, Western Province, being discriminated against when we are the taxpayers. This must be registered and I hope the Minister for Finance, whom I have accused, will rectify the situation, so that the reduction in the price of diesel fuel should apply to all parts of this country, particularly the Western Province which is the granary of this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope the Minister will do something about that.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, about the prices: those who fix the prices, the Minister for Finance, the Minister for Commerce and Industry and the Minister for Economic Planning, should realize that we, the workers on the farms, want a better price so that we can educate our children, we can pay our taxes and are able to buy good clothes for ourselves and our wives too. We are entitled to that and they should not sit here having a nice time and then they think that everything is green in the garden.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is on the question of maize. This is my disease and I think the hon. Member for Bungoma South will agree with me that I should also accompany him in being called the Member for maize. Sir, one thing is that we ought to be able to get a good price for this maize. If only our people could eat it. Some of the people in this House do not even want to eat ugali. Even in the National Assembly there are only about five Members who eat ugali, and the others have all turned to the Western way of life. If all these Members would eat ugali, all their children eat ugali, and everybody who is an African eat ugali, then we would be able to sell our maize well. Today, the Permanent Secretaries, the Under-Secretaries, the Members of Parliament and Ministers have grown so big that they look at ugali as an inferior thing. They should consume more of our maize as ugali so that we have some place to sell our maize.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that the millers are really exploiting us because for one bag of maize we are only paid about Sh. 19 they make about Sh. 80 out of that. I think this is something which the Minister should look into and he should go into it and get a good price for our people.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as far as maize is concerned, is that you have a different price all over the country, as if you were in Scotland. In the Western Province, it is Sh. 19; in Kisumu which is 29 miles away you get Sh. 45; if you come to Machakos, it is about Sh. 70 a bag. These irregularities in the price must be adjusted so that we do not have all these different prices for the consumer in our small country. The producer is getting almost nothing for his sweat.

The other point which kills this country which is mainly an agricultural country, is the question of Minimum Financial Return for the farmers. The M.F.R. for the farmers is given and then the interest on this M.F.R. is very high as they have to pay it daily. You get a M.F.R. to plant maize now and then before it goes to the market there is about six months while it grows and all this time, every day, you are paying. For example, I took a M.F.R. for about Sh. 2,000 and I had to pay 47 cents per day for six months. Do you know what happened? They recovered all the amount that I had borrowed and over the amount I had taken. For the small farmers this is what kills them; they work for a M.F.R. and they get nothing. When they take their crop to the market, the M.F.R. takes everything and the poor farmer is left empty-handed and then he has to start working again. In other words, Sir, the small farmers, the people who are getting this M.F.R. from the Government, are not making any money at all in agriculture but they work for M.F.R. I think the Minister should take this very seriously so that they only start charging interest for their money as from the time that the crop goes to the market and is ready. From the day he plants and he is getting money, it is all taken by M.F.R.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is about meat which was touched upon before. Meat in this country has become excessively expensive. I want to ask one question. What will happen if you eat third grade meat? Will you go blind? Why have they made these grades? They confuse us and they confuse the public; my mother can never know which is first grade and which is third grade. I challenge the Minister and the Assistant Minister that their mothers can make out from a carcass in the shop that this is first grade and this is third grade. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is where the people are being exploited by the butchers. The other day I tricked the health inspector in Nakuru because I went and bought some first grade meat and some second grade meat and I put them together—they look the same—and then I said, "Tell me, which is first and second grade here?" He said, "I can't tell, it is all good meat". If the health inspector could not make this out, how can my mother find out? This is where we are being exploited and the Minister should look into this very carefully.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with hesitation, I support the amendment but since the amendment goes along to commit the Government in trying to review the prices of our commodities, then I will not definitely have a quarrel with it but we will give it a trial. One thing which must be brought home, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is that the prices of our commodities in this country, apart from being deterrent to the development of agriculture, are deplorable because they are uneconomic. You cannot actually consider that they can encourage anybody to work as hard as we want the people to work on their shambas or on their land. If people are told that they should return to the land; a person will only return to the land when he knows that he is going to reap something from that land, so that he labours on the land knowing that the returns he is going to get from it will be able to support him.

At the present moment, it is well known that the prices are deplorable and you cannot actually say that there is only one particular crop in regard to which people are not complaining; people are complaining on nearly all the crops. I personally come from an area where people grow cotton as their cash crop and I personally have laboured on this cotton crop, but each year I find that I lose a considerable sum of money, simply because the price does not actually pay for the expenses of the labour plus other things we have put into it. Now, Sir, I would first of all like to make one big suggestion to the Government.

Sir, could you not give your ruling because it seems as if we have two conferences at the same time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Hon. Members should pay a little more attention.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would have liked the Government—if they want to control the prices, particularly the prices of our crops and so on—to take the bold step of nationalizing the export of our commodities. They must control this and have it in their hands. They must control also the shipping arrangements of our products which go to the international markets. They must have a big say in this. They should not leave it for the private firms to do, because, by doing so, we only tend to be at their mercy. When they therefore come to bargain on our prices here, they will keep the prices as cheap as possible so that they get the bigger margin of profit, when they go to negotiate or bargain in the international or world markets. This is what is also putting us down here. I think it is time the Government took control of all these imports coming in. I noticed recently that for most of the imports coming into Kenya, the value is twice as much as our exports which we send outside. If this is the case, then certainly it means that we are consuming more foreign goods here and we do not bargain with them to take our goods, or our products in exchange. Why should we be their market by letting them bring their goods here and make us to be the consuming ground for their goods when we do not actually negotiate with them that they in exchange should take our goods and give us better prices for our goods? This will only help us if we are controlling—

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, can the Leader of the Opposition substantiate the allegation he has just made, that in agricultural produce—because the Motion is on agricultural produce—the Government is importing twice what it is exporting?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think that is what he meant, what he meant, as far as I understand it, is that the general amount of imports seem to be twice the amount of exports in the country. I do not think he meant that as far as agricultural produce alone is concerned. As far as I understand it, he is speaking on the Motion generally and not confining himself to agricultural produce, exports and imports in itself. I therefore think he is in order. You may not agree with him, that is different, but he is not out of order.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance.

This Motion is a specific Motion, on what action the Government should take on agricultural produce. Is the Leader of the Opposition then, in order to speak on the policy of exports and imports generally? This is what I want to check and if it is so, then can the Government be given a chance to reply to that afterwards as a different general matter?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Ngala, you will remember that even when the Assistant Minister for Agriculture spoke, he referred to the question of the price of machinery, imports of machinery, the prices overseas and the cost of manufacture of machinery. I think on the question of exporting of agricultural goods, he can refer to the general import and export volume in the country. I do not think that is anything out of order. The Government certainly had 20 minutes to speak on this and the Assistant Minister spoke on this.

At five minutes past eleven, technically, we should close this debate. I notice that there is a tremendous amount of interest and if an hon. Member wants to ask for an extension of time of 20 minutes or perhaps half an hour, I will have no objection provided, of course, it is unanimously granted by leave of the House. I will wait till the time comes.

You can carry on, Mr. Odinga.

Mr. Odinga: I am sure, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services has wasted my time. He knows that Agriculture is the backbone of the economy of this country and when we are talking about the agriculture of this country and we talk about imports and exports, certainly, it is based on agriculture. When one then talks about that, one cannot really be wrong. I do not know why he should be so anxious to pin me down on that.

Well, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I must be a little bit more specific as he wanted me to be. In being specific, he will find that now in Kenya, at the present moment, the buying of produce from the producers is being controlled by a Board. There is a Board which is controlling that but I wish that this Board, instead of being anxious to control the movement of produce in this country, from one locality to another locality and so on, would instead actually be anxious to try and find better prices for our produce outside. This should be the major service of the Board if it is to be of any material use for all the people of this country. Instead of worrying about one or three bags of maize being moved from Meru to Embu, or even five bags of thoroko being moved from Kitui to Nyeri, I think it would be better for it to be busy with trying to canvass the world over. At the same time it must be liberal to go to all corners of the world for markets.

With these few remarks I beg to support the amendment.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The time is up. I do not know whether hon. Members want to continue or not.

MOTION

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR DEBATE

Mr. Karungaru: I would like, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the time to be extended because this is one of the important jobs that is necessary to be done.

Mr. Omweri: Seconded.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Provided there is leave of the House, I will accept a 20 minutes extension. Does any hon. Member object?

Mr. arap Biy: I object.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Anybody else objecting? What is your reason, Mr. arap Biy?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to explain to the House my reason for objecting to the extension of the time. Let people be silent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I object to the extension of time because there is another very important Motion coming up soon. This is why I object to the extension of time. What has already been said is enough, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

Hon. Members: No! No!

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If the reasons given by the hon. Member are not considered to be adequate, and if no other Member objects, then the Speaker, can allow an extension of time.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members I understand that the leave of the House is sought for extension of time for this debate for another period of 20 minutes, and that one hon. Member, Mr. arap Biy, has objected on the grounds that there is another Motion to come on. If he was the Mover of that Motion, I think I would have accepted his single objection, but as he is not, unless there are three hon. Members objecting, I think I should say we have the leave of the House.

(Leave of House for 20 minutes extension given)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So, we will continue the debate for another 20 minutes, which means there is 20 minutes before the Mover is due to reply.

(Resumption of debate on original Motion)

Mr. Omweri: I am very grateful, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to get this chance, and I will first of all congratulate the Mover of the Motion for bringing this very good Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I first of all say that I totally disagree with the Assistant Minister's amendments, and just to follow up what the Chief Whip says, that he is a good man, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say I have no personality disagreement here. What we are talking about is what action has been taken by a good man or a bad man. What we are interested in is the action, and in that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only wish to note the promise, but not the action because action is negative. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say why I oppose the amendment.

Just recently, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Agriculture announced the reduction of prices of maize. This does not mean that a farmer is getting anything better than what he was getting. In fact, the farmer is losing and, therefore, that is contrary to what the Motion is asking. The Motion is asking that a farmer should be given a fair price. A fair price, according to what the Minister's actions are, is a bad price, and therefore, we cannot take that note because no farmer has supported it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this committee which the Assistant Minister has promised should be given material and told what to do and if it has any recommendations to make to this House. It is not for us to note a committee in formation which has not taken any action, and, therefore, we say it has taken no action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to suggest, in regard to what the Mover said about milk, that this committee, if it is going to review prices of milk, or any produce, it should note why there should be such a big difference between what a farmer gets and what a consumer pays. Why should there be such a big difference? We get Sh. 1/30 a gallon in Kisii. When that milk, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is brought to the market, it fetches over Sh. 4. Why should that be so different? What is the cause? We should like to know; and this is why we are asking what is causing these differences. These should be minimized so that there is a saving and the farmer will get something. This is the main reason, and that is why I say that when we are being asked to note the action which people have not agreed to, I will not agree.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we talk about coffee, we know that the price of coffee is controlled by world bodies; but at the same time, looking at what Kenya coffee fetches at the auction, about Sh. 3 per lb., which comes to about 60 cents per lb. of cherry, we feel that the farmer should be able to get at least 40 cents per lb. But what do we get? —15-20 cents per lb. Where is the rest? This is what, Mr. Speaker, we want to know if we are to note any action. We should see that a farmer now is getting 30, 40 or 50 cents so that he can leave a few cents for management costs. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this does not happen. The farmer is being hit so hard that he gets almost nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir; if you took that particular crop with the imposition of the Coffee Authority and the extension services, some of which are a complete failure, you would find that a farmer is really crying each day. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Agriculture has taxed our people to a degree that they will not be told to wait for another time. We are suggesting here that the review should be an upward trend so that a farmer is encouraged. We know, as the Mover said, that salaries of workers who are supposed to be the main consumers of this crop, keep on going high. If the salaries are going up, we would like equalization by making the farmer get a little more too so that the salaries' structure does not keep on inflating the Kenya economy. When we look at the structure, it is very good, but the farmer at home, his per capita income is being reduced from what it was, while the Minister for Economic Planning says that the per capita income in Kenya has increased. What does that mean? It only means that the salaries of Ministers, Members of Parliament and top civil servants have gone up. That is all. It does not mean that a farmer at home has any benefits. He is still where he was. In fact, in certain cases, he is worse off. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would call on the Ministry to see that something is done to improve the prices of our crops. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you take fruits, for example passion fruits, you will find that in this respect the price is hopeless. A farmer gets about 10 cents or 8 cents per lb. but when you go to buy a bottle of passion fruit juice, you pay Sh. 5. Where is this money going? Is it because our industry has experts, more experts that it is costing us so much, or what? The Ministry should look into this. It is not a question that we are ungrateful to the Minister for his suggestion, it is that the actions already taken are not pleasing, and therefore we cannot accept them. In this case we would like the Ministry to take note and see that there is an overhaul of prices for everything we produce here. If not, we should be told, first of all, if we are to agree with the Ministry, why when this House—hon. Members, including some good Ministers—decided that the prices of maize should be put at Sh. 47/50 a bag that decision was thrown aside and there has never been any statement to that effect. The Minister comes out with his own arbitrary statement, somewhere in Nakuru, where he says, "The price will now be this." Why did he not make that statement here? This means that what we do in this House is not recognized. We have to continue to hammer at the Government until they become sensible enough to understand the problems of our electors.

Mr. Speaker, if we want to make any use of the good slogan given to us by His Excellency the President, of "Go back to the land", then the land must be made attractive. You cannot go to the land if it is repulsive because when you go there you do not get anything. The Ministry of Agriculture is responsible for this. It is not a question of the Treasury. If it was the Treasury, then we could deal with them here. If there was an excess, then we could help the Ministry of Agriculture. However, the policy of the Ministry of Agriculture must be good enough to be conducive to this slogan, otherwise the slogan will be meaningless and nobody will go back to the land; people will always keep on swarming around here because they will say it is better to get Sh. 200 a month in Nairobi than go to the land where they have to pay, out of their pockets, for transportation of whatever they produce.

Sir, we would like that the prices for our crops should go up so that the people who work on the land, the people who, when they leave school, are told, "Take your jembe, go and cultivate something. Grow something so that you can make a livelihood" can know that they are actually going to get something out of the land. If this is not so, it will not be good.

For the reasons I have given, I support the Motion as originally moved by the hon. Khuroya and disagree with the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kago. Mr. Kago you will have less than ten minutes, I am afraid, say about eight minutes, before I put the question of the amendment.

machinery and go back to their own farms in order to make money, it will take them some time. Why do we not come back and try to find a solution as to what should be done on the machinery side of it? That is why, Sir, it is sometimes difficult for us to compete with other countries where they make their machinery cheaper. This, Sir, is one of the most important points which the hon. Members should also learn. I can hear some hon. Members who look after their ngombes around Lake Victoria shouting at the back, but I would like to say that we are looking into ways and means of regulating this and I am hopeful that in the near future we will achieve some sort of success. That is why we, in the Ministry, are very delighted that this Motion was brought, because it gives us a little push into getting better prices for the farmers. The more the farmers get, the better for the Ministry of Agriculture.

Now, Sir, the other point is that hon. Members will no doubt appreciate that we are spending a great deal of money on applied research on increasing yields per acre which we believe will consequently enable farmers to reduce their per unit costs. In this regard, I think I can claim that we have made considerable progress and the yields of most crops now produced in the country are now very high—in fact, much higher than they were some years back—and in some cases very notable. I have in mind maize which is higher than even three or four years ago. However, we are still not satisfied that we have made any progress and we will continue making better progress than we have at the moment and we are still going to work vigorously that our farmers get better yields.

Some hon. Members, I think it was the Member for Embu, mentioned about Sh. 350 per bag an acre and that the cost of production is Sh. 350. Anybody who spends Sh. 350 should be able to obtain a yield of at least 20 bags per acre. In fact, a farmer who gets ten bags to the acre did not use the modern inputs as allowed by the agricultural officer. What I would like to appeal to the hon. Member, is that when he gets back to his constituency, he should tell his people that when they plant maize they should follow the advice given by the officers in the field. This is another method, Sir, of increasing the yields per acre from a farmer. I am quite happy, and the hon. Members are quite happy, that the Government is doing something in order to ensure that in future these things happen. When the Ministry of Economic Planning has completed the price structure of all commodities in this country, this House will be informed and I am quite sure the Members will support this wholeheartedly.

The only advice I want to give to the Members is to go and advise their farmers of one thing. If you plant five acres of maize which give only ten bags, that is only 50 bags, and if you sell the whole lot you do not get much money from your five acres, maybe Sh. 1,000. The best method which should be followed by the small-scale farmers is that instead of selling the whole lot, they should keep one or two bags and then go and grist it in the mills so that they can keep it in their own homes. If they sell all the 50 bags they only get £50 and then they go round the country to the shops and buy the same maize which they sold at a very large amount of money. This is what they do; they go back and buy at the small markets at Sh. 3/50. If you calculate properly you find that the same bag will cost you over Sh. 200. The best thing is to advise the farmers to grist at least one bag or two so that they can use this at home because it is much better than what you buy in the shops. Our people are inclined to believe that the only good posho is that which they buy in the small bag. This is the thing I would like the hon. Members to take into consideration and on which they should advise the farmers in their own areas.

I would like, therefore, Sir, to say that the Ministry is quite happy with this Motion and I hope that the hon. Mover will accept these amendments because these amendments are only improving the Motion and showing that we are taking action. I would like to appeal to the hon. Members not to think that we in the Government are only devils who do not take into consideration the problems of the farmers, and that they are the only ones who take into consideration the problems of the farmers. We are as much concerned as the hon. Members here because some of them come from areas where they do not grow crops, like Embakasi. However, we take these views and we feel that they go to the farms and that when they go to the farms they also contribute towards the development of this country.

I hope, with these few remarks, Sir, that the hon. Members will rise to support the amendment as it stands, because the Government is definitely taking action. If these Members do not accept my views and the promise that I gave in this House before we adjourned last time, that we are going to reduce these prices, there is very little more I can tell them.

Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to amend.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hear the Member for Embakasi telling me that I am failing. If I am failing, it is up to the people of

[Mr. Shikuku]

Butere to know I am failing, but certainly not those at the Embakasi Airport who see VC10's every night and every morning.

Now, Sir, may I inform the hon. Member that I speak as a farmer; I know what I am talking about and if he keeps his ears open he will hear some wisdom coming from this head over here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not wish to be very disgruntled about the amendment at all. We have had amendments by the Government in this House and we have had Motions on which we have also defeated the very Government's amendments and they were passed. However, no Member can challenge me whether those Motions have ever been implemented. The point is that we can shout and get amendments to Motions through, but once we have passed them, the experience is that they are shelved. If the Government makes an amendment but supports the principle of the Motion, I only feel that it is only just that we should accept it so that something will be done. In the future, I am going to move a Motion in this National Assembly, whereby all the Motions accepted with amendments will have to be brought in as a Bill so that we keep the Government on its toes. It is in this spirit that I am supporting the amendment.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, while supporting this Motion, I would like to speak on the contents of this Motion. First of all, the Member for Bungoma South has ably put the case and there is no doubt in my mind at all, and indeed in the minds of the Members of this House as far as this question is concerned. I am a farmer and I know how much I have suffered and I am still suffering and I hope—and I hope that I am not hoping against hope—that something will definitely be done. At least, I have faith in the Assistant Minister because he is permanently here just as I am, and if the worst comes to the worst he has no place to go to but here. This is one of the things that I have faith in. He is a farmer; he is a permanent citizen here; he is not another country's citizen and he is not a citizen by application or registration. I therefore say to the people of Nyandarua and also myself that I shall get a grip-hold on him and then if the worst comes to the worst he will have to share with us. We want to give him a chance and see how far he is going to go, because as a person he has done something.

Now, Sir, coming to the question of the difficulties of the farmers. You will find that the question is that the amount we used to get our crops on the market is very much more than the amount we now get for our crops on the market.

For example, diesel fuel we were told here the other day was reduced by 12 cents, but this was only in the Rift Valley and Nakuru is the end. What about the people in Kitale, in Bungoma, in Kakamega, in Busia and around there; they did not profit at all? Why was it brought in there only? Is it not a very well-known fact that the western part of the country is the part which produces more food for the nation? Why were we not given that reduction? This is discrimination and I accuse the Minister for Finance for being so discriminatory to think of that part of Kenya as if it were Somalia. I accuse the Minister for Finance for being so limited in his imagination that we must even threaten one of these days to stop giving food to the Minister to see if he can come back to this House and talk without food.

We cannot sit back and watch our part of the country, Western Province, being discriminated against when we are the taxpayers. This must be registered and I hope the Minister for Finance, whom I have accused, will rectify the situation, so that the reduction in the price of diesel fuel should apply to all parts of this country, particularly the Western Province which is the granary of this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope the Minister will do something about that.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, about the prices: those who fix the prices, the Minister for Finance, the Minister for Commerce and Industry and the Minister for Economic Planning, should realize that we, the workers on the farms, want a better price so that we can educate our children, we can pay our taxes and are able to buy good clothes for ourselves and our wives too. We are entitled to that and they should not sit here having a nice time and then they think that everything is green in the garden.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is on the question of maize. This is my disease and I think the hon. Member for Bungoma South will agree with me that I should also accompany him in being called the Member for maize. Sir, one thing is that we ought to be able to get a good price for this maize. If only our people could eat it. Some of the people in this House do not even want to eat ugali. Even in the National Assembly there are only about five Members who eat ugali, and the others have all turned to the Western way of life. If all these Members would eat ugali, all their children eat ugali, and everybody who is an African eat ugali, then we would be able to sell our maize well. Today, the Permanent Secretaries, the Under-Secretaries, the Members of Parliament and Ministers have grown so big that they look at ugali as an inferior thing. They should consume more of our maize as ugali so that we have some place to sell our maize.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that the millers are really exploiting us because for one bag of maize we are only paid about Sh. 19 they make about Sh. 80 out of that. I think this is something which the Minister should look into and he should go into it and get a good price for our people.

The other point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, as far as maize is concerned, is that you have a different price all over the country, as if you were in Scotland. In the Western Province, it is Sh. 19; in Kisumu which is 29 miles away you get Sh. 45; if you come to Machakos, it is about Sh. 70 a bag. These irregularities in the price must be adjusted so that we do not have all these different prices for the consumer in our small country. The producer is getting almost nothing for his sweat.

The other point which kills this country which is mainly an agricultural country, is the question of Minimum Financial Return for the farmers. The M.F.R. for the farmers is given and then the interest on this M.F.R. is very high as they have to pay it daily. You get a M.F.R. to plant maize now and then before it goes to the market there is about six months while it grows and all this time, every day, you are paying. For example, I took a M.F.R. for about Sh. 2,000 and I had to pay 47 cents per day for six months. Do you know what happened? They recovered all the amount that I had borrowed and over the amount I had taken. For the small farmers this is what kills them; they work for a M.F.R. and they get nothing. When they take their crop to the market, the M.F.R. takes everything and the poor farmer is left empty-handed and then he has to start working again. In other words, Sir, the small farmers, the people who are getting this M.F.R. from the Government, are not making any money at all in agriculture but they work for M.F.R. I think the Minister should take this very seriously so that they only start charging interest for their money as from the time that the crop goes to the market and is ready. From the day he plants and he is getting money, it is all taken by M.F.R.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is about meat which was touched upon before. Meat in this country has become excessively expensive. I want to ask one question. What will happen if you eat third grade meat? Will you go blind? Why have they made these grades? They confuse us and they confuse the public; my mother can never know which is first grade and which is third grade. I challenge the Minister and the Assistant Minister that their mothers can make out from a carcass in the shop that this is first grade and this is third grade. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is where the people are being exploited by the butchers. The other day I tricked the health inspector in Nakuru because I went and bought some first grade meat and some second grade meat and I put them together—they look the same—and then I said, “Tell me, which is first and second grade here?” He said, “I can’t tell, it is all good meat”. If the health inspector could not make this out, how can my mother find out? This is where we are being exploited and the Minister should look into this very carefully.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with hesitation, I support the amendment but since the amendment goes along to commit the Government in trying to review the prices of our commodities, then I will not definitely have a quarrel with it but we will give it a trial. One thing which must be brought home, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is that the prices of our commodities in this country, apart from being deterrent to the development of agriculture, are deplorable because they are uneconomic. You cannot actually consider that they can encourage anybody to work as hard as we want the people to work on their shambas or on their land. If people are told that they should return to the land; a person will only return to the land when he knows that he is going to reap something from that land, so that he labours on the land knowing that the returns he is going to get from it will be able to support him.

At the present moment, it is well known that the prices are deplorable and you cannot actually say that there is only one particular crop in regard to which people are not complaining; people are complaining on nearly all the crops. I personally come from an area where people grow cotton as their cash crop and I personally have laboured on this cotton crop, but each year I find that I lose a considerable sum of money, simply because the price does not actually pay for the expenses of the labour plus other things we have put into it. Now, Sir, I would first of all like to make one big suggestion to the Government.

Sir, could you not give your ruling because it seems as if we have two conferences at the same time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Hon. Members should pay a little more attention.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would have liked the Government—if they want to control the prices, particularly the prices of our crops and so on—to take the bold step of nationalizing the export of our commodities. They must control this and have it in their hands. They must control also the shipping arrangements of our products which go to the international markets. They must have a big say in this. They should not leave it for the private firms to do, because, by doing so, we only tend to be at their mercy. When they therefore come to bargain on our prices here, they will keep the prices as cheap as possible so that they get the bigger margin of profit when they go to negotiate or bargain in the international or world markets. This is what is also putting us down here. I think it is time the Government took control of all these imports coming in. I noticed recently that for most of the imports coming into Kenya, the value is twice as much as our exports which we send outside. If this is the case, then certainly it means that we are consuming more foreign goods here and we do not bargain with them to take our goods, or our products in exchange. Why should we be their market by letting them bring their goods here and make us to be the consuming ground for their goods when we do not actually negotiate with them that they in exchange should take our goods and give us better prices for our goods? This will only help us if we are controlling—

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, can the Leader of the Opposition substantiate the allegation he has just made, that in agricultural produce—because the Motion is on agricultural produce—the Government is importing twice what it is exporting?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think that is what he meant, what he meant, as far as I understand it, is that the general amount of imports seem to be twice the amount of exports in the country. I do not think he meant that as far as agricultural produce alone is concerned. As far as I understand it, he is speaking on the Motion generally and not confining himself to agricultural produce, exports and imports in itself. I therefore think he is in order. You may not agree with him, that is different, but he is not out of order.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance.

This Motion is a specific Motion, on what action the Government should take on agricultural produce. Is the Leader of the Opposition then, in order to speak on the policy of exports and imports generally? This is what I want to check and if it is so, then can the Government be given a chance to reply to that afterwards as a different general matter?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Ngala, you will remember that even when the Assistant Minister for Agriculture spoke, he referred to the question of the price of machinery, imports of machinery, the prices overseas and the cost of manufacture of machinery. I think on the question of exporting of agricultural goods, he can refer to the general import and export volume in the country. I do not think that is anything out of order. The Government certainly had 20 minutes to speak on this and the Assistant Minister spoke on this.

At five minutes past eleven, technically, we should close this debate. I notice that there is a tremendous amount of interest and if an hon. Member wants to ask for an extension of time of 20 minutes or perhaps half an hour, I will have no objection provided, of course, it is unanimously granted by leave of the House. I will wait till the time comes.

You can carry on, Mr. Odinga.

Mr. Odinga: I am sure, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services has wasted my time. He knows that Agriculture is the backbone of the economy of this country and when we are talking about the agriculture of this country and we talk about imports and exports, certainly, it is based on agriculture. When one then talks about that, one cannot really be wrong. I do not know why he should be so anxious to pin me down on that.

Well, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I must be a little bit more specific as he wanted me to be. In being specific, he will find that now in Kenya, at the present moment, the buying of produce from the producers is being controlled by a Board. There is a Board which is controlling that but I wish that this Board, instead of being anxious to control the movement of produce in this country, from one locality to another locality and so on, would instead actually be anxious to try and find better prices for our produce outside. This should be the major service of the Board if it is to be of any material use for all the people of this country. Instead of worrying about one or three bags of maize being moved from Meru to Embu, or even five bags of thoroko being moved from Kitui to Nyeri, I think it would be better for it to be busy with trying to canvass the world over. At the same time it must be liberal to go to all corners of the world for markets.

With these few remarks I beg to support the amendment.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The time is up. I do not know whether hon. Members want to continue or not.

MOTION

EXTENSION OF TIME FOR DEBATE

Mr. Karungaru: I would like, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the time to be extended because this is one of the important jobs that is necessary to be done.

Mr. Omweri: Seconded.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Provided there is leave of the House, I will accept a 20 minutes extension. Does any hon. Member object?

Mr. arap Biy: I object.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Anybody else objecting? What is your reason, Mr. arap Biy?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to explain to the House my reason for objecting to the extension of the time. Let people be silent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I object to the extension of time because there is another very important Motion coming up soon. This is why I object to the extension of time. What has already been said is enough, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir.

Hon. Members: No! No!

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If the reasons given by the hon. Member are not considered to be adequate, and if no other Member objects, then the Speaker, can allow an extension of time.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members I understand that the leave of the House is sought for extension of time for this debate for another period of 20 minutes, and that one hon. Member, Mr. arap Biy, has objected on the grounds that there is another Motion to come on. If he was the Mover of that Motion, I think I would have accepted his single objection, but as he is not, unless there are three hon. Members objecting, I think I should say we have the leave of the House.

(Leave of House for 20 minutes extension given)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So, we will continue the debate for another 20 minutes, which means there is 20 minutes before the Mover is due to reply.

(Resumption of debate on original Motion)

Mr. Omweri: I am very grateful, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to get this chance, and I will first of all congratulate the Mover of the Motion for bringing this very good Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I first of all say that I totally disagree with the Assistant Minister's amendments, and just to follow up what the Chief Whip says, that he is a good man, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say I have no personality disagreement here. What we are talking about is what action has been taken by a good man or a bad man. What we are interested in is the action, and in that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only wish to note the promise, but not the action because action is negative. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say why I oppose the amendment.

Just recently, Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Agriculture announced the reduction of prices of maize. This does not mean that a farmer is getting anything better than what he was getting. In fact, the farmer is losing and, therefore, that is contrary to what the Motion is asking. The Motion is asking that a farmer should be given a fair price. A fair price, according to what the Minister's actions are, is a bad price, and therefore, we cannot take that note because no farmer has supported it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this committee which the Assistant Minister has promised should be given material and told what to do and if it has any recommendations to make to this House. It is not for us to note a committee in formation which has not taken any action, and, therefore, we say it has taken no action.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to suggest, in regard to what the Mover said about milk, that this committee, if it is going to review prices of milk, or any produce, it should note why there should be such a big difference between what a farmer gets and what a consumer pays. Why should there be such a big difference? We get Sh. 1/30 a gallon in Kisii. When that milk, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is brought to the market, it fetches over Sh. 4. Why should that be so different? What is the cause? We should like to know, and this is why we are asking what is causing these differences. These should be minimized so that there is a saving and the farmer will get something. This is the main reason, and that is why I say that when we are being asked to note the action which people have not agreed to, I will not agree.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we talk about coffee, we know that the price of coffee is controlled by world bodies; but at the same time, looking at what Kenya coffee fetches at the auction, about Sh. 3 per lb., which comes to about 60 cents per lb. of cherry, we feel that the farmer should be able to get at least 40 cents per lb. But what do we get? —15-20 cents per lb. Where is the rest? This is what, Mr. Speaker, we want to know if we are to note any action. We should see that a farmer now is getting 30, 40 or 50 cents so that he can leave a few cents for management costs. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this does not happen. The farmer is being hit so hard that he gets almost nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you took that particular crop with the imposition of the Coffee Authority and the extension services, some of which are a complete failure, you would find that a farmer is really crying each day. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Agriculture has taxed our people to a degree that they will not be told to wait for another time. We are suggesting here that the review should be an upward trend so that a farmer is encouraged. We know, as the Mover said, that salaries of workers who are supposed to be the main consumers of this crop, keep on going high. If the salaries are going up, we would like equalization by making the farmer get a little more too so that the salaries' structure does not keep on inflating the Kenya economy. When we look at the structure, it is very good, but the farmer at home, his per capita income is being reduced from what it was, while the Minister for Economic Planning says that the per capita income in Kenya has increased. What does that mean? It only means that the salaries of Ministers, Members of Parliament and top civil servants have gone up. That is all. It does not mean that a farmer at home has any benefits. He is still where he was. In fact, in certain cases, he is worse off. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would call on the Ministry to see that something is done to improve the prices of our crops. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you take fruits, for example passion fruits, you will find that in this respect the price is hopeless. A farmer gets about 10 cents or 8 cents per lb. but when you go to buy a bottle of passion fruit juice, you pay Sh. 5. Where is this money going? Is it because our industry has experts, more experts that it is costing us so much, or what? The Ministry should look into this. It is not a question that we are ungrateful to the Minister for his suggestion, it is that the actions already taken are not pleasing, and therefore we cannot accept them. In this case we would like the Ministry to take note and see that there is an overhaul of prices for everything we produce here. If not, we should be told, first of all, if we are to agree with the Ministry, why when this House—hon. Members, including some good Ministers—decided that the prices of maize should be put at Sh. 47/50 a bag that decision was thrown aside and there has never been any statement to that effect. The Minister comes out with his own arbitrary statement, somewhere in Nakuru, where he says, "The price will now be this." Why did he not make that statement here? This means that what we do in this House is not recognized. We have to continue to hammer at the Government until they become sensible enough to understand the problems of our electors.

Mr. Speaker, if we want to make any use of the good slogan given to us by His Excellency the President, of "Go back to the land", then the land must be made attractive. You cannot go to the land if it is repulsive because when you go there you do not get anything. The Ministry of Agriculture is responsible for this. It is not a question of the Treasury. If it was the Treasury, then we could deal with them here. If there was an excess, then we could help the Ministry of Agriculture. However, the policy of the Ministry of Agriculture must be good enough to be conducive to this slogan, otherwise the slogan will be meaningless and nobody will go back to the land; people will always keep on swarming around here because they will say it is better to get Sh. 200 a month in Nairobi than go to the land where they have to pay, out of their pockets, for transportation of whatever they produce.

Sir, we would like that the prices for our crops should go up so that the people who work on the land, the people who, when they leave school, are told, "Take your jembe, go and cultivate something. Grow something so that you can make a livelihood" can know that they are actually going to get something out of the land. If this is not so, it will not be good.

For the reasons I have given, I support the Motion as originally moved by the hon. Khaoya and disagree with the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kago. Mr. Kago you will have less than ten minutes, I am afraid, say about eight minutes, before I put the question of the amendment.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you for giving me this opportunity to say a few words on this very important Motion.

I would like to bring to the attention of the Assistant Minister, who is responsible for this operation, some facts, especially the one affecting small farmers. I appreciate what the Assistant Minister has told us, Sir, that they are planning something and I do not think we will be out of time if we bring some ideas, like the ones I am going to advance, to the Ministry at this juncture.

While this committee is operating, I would like it to note very, very carefully that there are some areas which are more hit by the price structure than other areas. In particular, we have those people who are in the settlement schemes. In settlement schemes, Mr. Speaker, we have a lot of loans to repay to the Government, which must be covered from the produce that we grow on those plots. The prices that we get from the produce that comes from our land are so bad that they cannot help meet the requirements for loan repayment of these plots. Time and again we have heard of price reviews, but when we have these reviews we only have them either on maize, coffee, tea or wheat. We have never heard of a price review affecting some other crops which are also very important to some parts of the country. These that are not mentioned—they may not be important to the country in general, but they are very important to particular areas. Some places, especially Nyandarua, where the Assistant Minister also comes from, do not grow cash crops other than pyrethrum and some wheat. When we do not hear any mention of pyrethrum on these important occasions, we just wonder how we are going to meet our expenses. I know that we are threatened by the lack of markets for pyrethrum, which has come about because of synthetics. However, I think that the Ministry should do something to the effect that even though we have the synthetics problem, the farmer who is in the settlement schemes, who is confronted with the problem of repaying loans, would be given special care and attention. The special care I would like to mention here is, whatever small market there may be for pyrethrum, I think this should be given to those more needy farmers than to farmers in general. We know there are areas which are growing pyrethrum but can also grow wheat, tea, coffee and such other things. Why should not such areas be deprived of the right of growing pyrethrum so that that quota can be given to the other areas which cannot grow anything else but pyrethrum? If this one thing is not taken into consideration, then these farmers who are so badly hit will not be able to continue repaying their loans, neither will they be able to benefit from these plots.

Another point I would like to mention is that we would like the Ministry to take into consideration some other crops. Tea is never mentioned—potatoes, beans and other domestic crops are never mentioned in any place. It is high time that they were also controlled in the same manner as maize and wheat, which are controlled by boards. Thus when the prices are fixed, these other crops can also have controlled prices which will enable the farmers at least to benefit from their toil. So long as these are kept out of the control issue, then things will only be left to the willing buyer and the willing seller to negotiate the price. In many cases, as is well known, the person who loses is the farmer. So long as the farmer does not get something, the whole machinery will run down, will lose, and Government will be confronted with the problem of trying to pay so much to the foreign governments who had lent money to the settlement schemes.

Mr. Speaker, when Government secures the market from overseas, they should be able to hammer this one point: where we get loans to develop land, then the buying countries should agree to buy our produce at a better price so that we are able to repay the money that they have lent to us. However, so long as they exploit us, so long as they continue to give us very bad prices, then their money does not stand a good chance of being repaid. On the other hand, if they could give us better prices, their money will be repaid on the terms on which it was borrowed.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Ministry to take very serious note of the areas which are badly hit by the question of loan repayment at times when they consider price review.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for me to put the question of the amendment and call on the Mover to reply.

(Question, that the first part of the amendment, that the words to be left out be left out, put)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the Noes have it.

(Question put and negatived)

(Debate on the original Motion resumed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I now call on Mr. Khaoya to reply.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want first of all to thank—

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Kariuki): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not agree that the Noes had it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You could always call for a Division.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I call for a Division now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are too late now.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very glad for the support I have received from hon. Members this morning. I think the Government should agree with us that what we have asked is only fair. We have asked that the Government should review the prices. From what I heard from the Assistant Minister—all that he said was that they were about to review. If they are about to review, and that is what we are asking them to do, then it is only fair that we agree with them.

Mr. Speaker, leaving that aside, because that has been decided on already, I would like to deal with some of the points which have been raised by my hon. colleagues in the course of their speeches.

The first one was that dealing with diesel and fertilizer subsidies which the Government has already extended to the farming community.

DIVISION

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Khaoya, I think I must interrupt you. I am not quite sure I was fair to Mr. Kariuki, because, before sitting down, I called on the Mover straight away, I think.

You asked for a Division. I agree there was some doubt. So I think we must have a Division and I will put the question again.

I apologize for my mistake. Your time for replying, Mr. Khaoya, will come when we have dealt with the Division.

Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

(Question put and the House divided)

(Question carried by 16 votes to 10)

AYES: Messrs. Godana, Godia, Kago, G. G. Kariuki, J. M. Kariuki, ole Kipury, ole Konchellah, Lawi, Munoko, Mwaura, Ngala, Njeru, Njiiri, Nyamweya, Osogo, Shikuku.

Tellers of the AYES: Messrs. Nyamweya and Khaoya.

NOES: Messrs. Asiba, arap Biy, Chirchir, Ithirai, Khaoya, J. M. Koinange, Seroney, Tuva, Tialal, Wario.

Tellers of the NOES: Messrs. Ithirai and Odero-Jowi.

ABSTENTIONS: Messrs. Abdillahi, Ogle and Wasonga Sijeyo.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That being so, hon. Members, I have to put the second part of the amendment, which I presume will be carried.

(Question of the second part of the amendment, that the words to be inserted in place thereof be inserted, put and agreed to)

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Khaoya, you can now reply.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to reply to some of the points that have been raised this morning. As one of those who have learned to live with democracy, I take the majority decision with pleasure.

There was the question of the diesel and fertilizer subsidies which was presented this morning by the Government. The first thing I would like to say is that we are grateful for the attempt—but this is the sort of attempt that one gets when a sick person gets what they call palliatives instead of getting drugs which can actually attack the disease. Here the case was to try to reduce the cost of production, per acre for instance. In reducing the cost of diesel, the exercise should have been in such a way that the cost of diesel here, per gallon, would have compared with the cost of a gallon of diesel in the United Kingdom. In the United Kingdom I understand the price is Sh. 1/70 a gallon; in Kenya, today, it is more than Sh. 4. Therefore, if two farmers, one in Kenya and one in the United Kingdom, are each ploughing an acre, obviously the one in Kenya is at a big disadvantage. When the Government announces a reduction of 7 cts. a gallon, this is a mere insult. I would only ask the Government that, when they want to take remedial actions, they should do it properly and not by such half-measures.

Mr. Speaker, there was the question of considering the balance between the consumer and the producer, which was aired by the hon. Ngei. Here I would like to say one thing: a case was put this morning about me and several of my colleagues talking about the disparity between the prices the producer gets and the prices which the consumer is paying at the end of the line. Here we get a case of—should we borrow some words from the Bible—a middleman reaping where he never planted. I think our exercise here is not that we should tax the consumers more but that we should let the consumer continue to pay what he is paying now—if it is Sh. 24 for a gallon of milk, as they are paying now at the hotels, so let them continue to pay because they are paying—but the middleman should not be allowed to come and buy from me at Sh. 2/40 a gallon and then be able to make a profit of Sh. 18 on that same gallon without any costs at all to justify his price. This is the sort of area into which we would like the Government to look.

There was then the question of the rising costs of machinery. This is a challenge to our Prices and Costs Committee, which we understand is operating in Kenya. We were told recently that there was a devaluation in Great Britain and that things would now be cheaper from Great Britain. However, we have seen the contrary; we have seen that the price of machinery has always been going up despite the fact that there was devaluation in Great Britain. I think the Prices and Cost Committee should immediately examine to see whether or not we can do something about the prices of machinery coming into this country.

Mr. Speaker, there was also the question of market limitations which the hon. Ngei referred to. I need only remind him that at the Maize and Produce depots a lorry of maize comes in and the maize is rejected because of being bad; at Sh. 25 it is rejected; and then the farmer very happily gets a permit and now goes to the local market and sells that rejected maize at Sh. 60 a bag. Surely you cannot convince me that there is no market here, because I know there is a market. If there was no market, then the rejected maize could not fetch twice the price that the good maize is fetching at the Maize and Produce Board.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing I would like to tell the Assistant Minister is that he gave us some advice that he felt we should convey to our constituents. However, I thought that it was very bad advice indeed for him to give us, because that implied that he assumed that we have not been giving such advice. We have been hearing radio announcements, one after the other, saying that such-and-such a Member of Parliament has been asking his people to follow the advice of the Agricultural Department. Has he not been listening to these announcements? If the Ministry wants to know whether agriculture is effective or not, let them take a graduate from the university who has completed his graduate work and ask him whether he would prefer to go into straight farming or whether he would prefer to go into a managerial position in Nairobi. When he gets a graduate who is prepared to go into farming straight away from the university, then he will know that agriculture, today, is attractive enough. We have been told that we must go back to the land. One of my colleagues has told the House this morning that you do not go to the land unless it is attractive. That is the point we would like our Government to know; we can only go there if there is some shelter there, but if you find everyone running away from there and coming to the towns, there must be some trouble there. Every day you find people coming to the city, and every day people are arrested for having come here, illegally so they say, and sent home and the following morning you find them coming to the city again. What are they running away from? There must be something and that something is economic. That is why we bring this Motion today, to ask the Government to see that there is something wrong there and it must be corrected if you want people to stay there.

Mr. Speaker, there is another aspect into which I would like to go, and this is the question of statutory boards. We have seen the Ministry dismantle one board after another: there was the case of the Coffee Board which was dismantled; there was the question of the Kenya Meat Commission; and then there was that one of the pig industry. I think that this has been done for no good purpose at all because even with all that dismantling, up to now we do not see any change in the services. Therefore, I think there must be somebody in the Ministry who is giving all these directions, and I think that person should be examined to see whether he has been giving the right directions or not.

Mr. Speaker, I said at the beginning—and I will repeat again—when I moved this Motion, that my views are not a reflection on the ability or otherwise of the Minister for Agriculture because I think, and believe, that the Minister for Agriculture is one of the most capable Ministers that we have in the country. He has the disadvantage of having a white skin, but he is not any different from the hon. G. G. Kariuki simply because he does not have a black skin. The words of His Excellency, Mzee, are that the hon. McKenzie has a black heart; and I agree that it is so black that it is even blacker than mine—and if it is not black, we have recently had medical advancement which can enable us to transfer a heart from somebody and put it into somebody else. The other day I understand that a dentist in South Africa, Dr. Blaiberg, was very happy with somebody else's heart.

Therefore, I think that here we have to give praise where it is due. The Ministry of Agriculture, the Minister himself—and of late his deputy—have been quite active.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member relevant to talk about black and white skin? How does that come within the scope of the Motion?

Mr. Khaoya: The Minister for Agriculture.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, except that the colour should be ignored.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, I know he was talking very busily and that is why I referred to him and now he is listening.

Mr. Speaker, one day I said, and I will repeat, that there was a discussion one day between a man and his son and the son said, "Father, my name is Jimmy; all I want is good food and some shelter." I think that little discussion very well fits in with the conditions of the farmers in Kenya. All we want is some shelter and some good food, and this shelter we are not getting at the moment. That is why we now ask the Government to speed up with whatever they have promised they are going to do.

Mr. Speaker, with this I beg to reply.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

THAT, in view of changed circumstances, and in realization of the part played by agriculture in our economy, this House notes the action the Government is taking to review the price structure of Agricultural produce with a view of giving a fair return to the farmers.

MOTION

SEPARATE EDUCATION VOTE FOR LOCAL AUTHORITIES

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:

THAT, while appreciating the most excellent efforts being undertaken by the Minister for Local Government to save the Local Authorities from collapsing financially, this House recommends that the Education Vote in all local authorities be kept under a separate vote in order to save education from becoming the victim of any local financial embarrassment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is a straightforward Motion and, in fact, it speaks for itself. We know that the Minister for Local Government has an interest in the local authorities. He has in the past—a number of months ago—taken steps to post financial advisers to local authorities in order that the advisers might assist the local authorities in the preparation of their estimates of expenditure.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the financial advisers had, in fact, been appointed and I know that when Kakamega County Council, when it collapsed financially, had services of a financial adviser. I think the adviser did his best.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, even with Kisumu Council, that is the old Central Nyanza County Council—which now comprises Kisumu and Siaya District County Councils—when it collapsed and came tumbling down, it already had services of one of these financial advisers. I think, Sir, that most of these advisers were expatriates who were not very interested in staying in Kenya because they were a bit worried about the state of affairs in this country, and perhaps this is the reason why the county councils in areas where they were serving began doing badly in that way, simply because the officers were not really Kenya citizens and they were not interested in staying here but were only interested in making a bit of money and then go away and retire permanently.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must pay tribute to the Minister for Local Government for doing his work because it was his efforts that saved the county councils from collapsing. He has tried, and he is still trying, and we thank him very much for the efforts which he is putting into his work.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, some time back the Minister for Local Government told this House that he was considering appointment of auditors who would assist local authorities in auditing accounts and in bringing their accounts up to date. This work is going on and this is an effort that will help raise the standard of work in the local authorities. I, myself, thank the Minister for taking this action because this is trying to save our local authorities from collapsing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the intention of my Motion is merely to try and help the Minister in his work in trying to save the local authorities. It may be remembered that in the past, during the colonial times, this country had established institutions in the local authorities which were responsible for education. These institutions were known as district education boards. These boards were in every district and they were responsible for the educational policy in each district in which they were established. The county education officer, or the district education officer, was responsible to these boards as their executive officer. The revenue to these boards was merely fees and grants from the Central Government and the money was spent merely in the payment of salaries to teachers and in buying school equipment.

Mr. Speaker, in this way the policy of the Ministry in each local authority was properly handled and the work which the boards did is appreciated by everybody in this country. These boards laid the foundation upon which we are now working. I think that when we became independent we did not think that these boards were necessary and we did not think that we could make use of their services; and so, under an Act of this Parliament, these boards were abolished. Mr. Speaker, Sir, since Kenya became independent and since the local authorities have been looking after themselves, we have had very many problems in very many districts.

I cannot remember once, during the colonial time, when any district ran short of salaries for teachers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this was because the Government was very careful, and I think that it is not bad for the House to remember the good work which they did. There was never any financial embarrassment in any county council, and therefore there were no irregularities such as the ones we get from week to week.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a parent pays fees for his child, maybe that is all the money that the parent gets in his income, and therefore, it is in the interest of the parent that once he pays the fees for his child, the child should get education for a complete year. But this is not the case now. When a parent pays the fees to a county council which is financially poor, some of the money is used to pay the people working on the roads, health centres and other places; and so, as a result, many county councils decide to close schools because they do not have enough money to pay the teachers. Well, the parents give all they have in order to pay fees for their children.

We do not think that it is fair to make the children suffer. We should not leave the children to suffer, and we should not leave the parents to suffer—this is a matter which we should look into and find ways and means of helping the young pupils and the poor parents.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this time we have a problem. Right now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in South Nyanza there are 2,000 teachers who have gone on a sit-down strike. This is because there is no money to pay them and therefore they have decided to be on a sit-down strike. This is an appalling state of affairs. Mr. Speaker, this having began on Wednesday, the children might—throughout this week and perhaps next week—not receive instruction from the teachers due to the fact that there is no salary.

It is important, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that teachers attend school—

QUORUM

Mr. ole Kipury: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the House is almost empty. Do we have a quorum?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have no quorum, but actually we do not worry unless you take objection to the fact, Mr. Kipury. You are entitled to, but under the Constitution it is only if an hon. Member takes objection to the lack of quorum when I have to take the action. You do actually object, I take it?

An hon. Member: Yes.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

Mr. ole Kipury: I said that I had no objection.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry. No objection. We take no notice in that case. Stop the Division Bell.

An hon. Member: Very good.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should explain, hon. Members, that it is only on further study of the Constitution that I realized that this is the actual wording; that if an hon. Member takes objection to the lack of quorum, the Speaker has to take action. So, the mere drawing of attention to the lack of quorum does not of itself necessitate action.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that in South Nyanza, teachers go to schools where they work, but instead of going to teach in the class-rooms they sit idly outside the classes. All the time there is a lot of trouble at the schools. This is a bad affair, as a result of teachers protesting over the salaries due to them, having not been paid. South Nyanza, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has not the money to pay the teachers. It has not had enough grant from the Central Government to pay the teachers in the month of May. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is why they are on strike, and they are right to go on strike so as to press that they be paid in a better way.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, while we are discussing these affairs here, I think the teachers should be human and know that their problems are being dealt with by the Minister for Local Government. They should begin to work.

I would like the Minister to promise, when replying, that he will send instructions to the Kenya National Union of Teachers asking all the teachers of South Nyanza to resume work on Monday; and he should, meanwhile, send the money required to the South Nyanza County Council so that, within next week, the teachers will be paid their salaries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in South Nyanza again, apart from 2,000 teachers who are on strike, about 1,000 teachers have been sacked because there is not enough money to meet their salaries. The 2,000 teachers who are on strike are sure to stay in their job; but no provision has been made available for paying the 1,000 teachers, and therefore they will be unemployed.

In other districts, for example in Bungoma, there are 112 trained teachers who have been dismissed because there is not enough money to pay them. Take for example, if a teacher is supposed to teach about 40 pupils here in Bungoma, we can see that 480 pupils are without a teacher. This is not their mistake; it is the mistake of the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Kakamega, already 100 trained teachers have been dismissed. This means that if a teacher is to teach 40 pupils, in Kakamega there will be 4,000 pupils without a teacher, and this is a very grave situation.

Mr. Speaker, Kisii has dismissed 330 trained teachers. This is simply because Kisii District has not enough money to pay the teachers, and here it means that about 13,200 pupils will be without a teacher if each teacher is to teach 40 pupils. That is the loss that Kisii is receiving and this is an appalling state of affairs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I consider Kitui, there are 179 teachers who are being dismissed. This is still due to lack of money, and here it means over about 7,100— It means that about 7,160 pupils are going to be without teachers. According to my information, Mr. Speaker, it means that about 1,820 teachers, or roughly in round figures 2,000 teachers, are being laid off due to lack of money to pay them in the local authorities. If we consider this in figures, it means that in this country about 80,000 boys and girls, who need teachers, will not be taught because these teachers have been laid off. I ask the Minister for Local Government to see that something is done.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is known that equipment in schools is being handled by three Ministries. There is an English saying to the effect that "many cooks spoil the broth". There is no need to have three important Kenya Ministries handling equipment, which is merely one little item.

An hon. Member: There is no alternative.

Mr. Godia: The Minister is telling us that there is no alternative, but in the past the local authorities used to handle equipment without difficulty. That is why I suggest that if this matter is left to the local authority, each local authority has its own education board and they can determine how best to spend money on equipment, and the schools will not suffer as they do now. The Ministry of Education is responsible, and it should be responsible. The Ministry of Local Government should pull out of education and allow the Ministry of Education to handle these affairs, particularly equipment. This should be done more easily if one Ministry handles the whole thing, rather than having it handled by three Ministries. When there is a mistake, one Ministry blames another one. We are now discussing this with the Ministry of Local Government. The Ministry of Education is not here. This is an appalling state of affairs. It appears there is no co-operation. When we are discussing matters of this type, the Ministry of Works should be here, the Ministry of Education should give their views because this affects their Ministry—and yet only one Ministry, the Ministry of Local Government, is represented here. This state of affairs is appalling. That is why I say it is not good to allow more than one Ministry to handle this item. We should leave the matter entirely with the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Education should recommend to the local authorities that they make their own arrangements for the supply of equipment to schools. It should be their work to advise the local authorities where to get the equipment cheaply, because they are interested in getting equipment to the schools, rather than having equipment transported from Nairobi to Busia or Mombasa. There are cheap shops in Kakamega or Busia where such equipment could be purchased and supplied to local schools.

Mr. Speaker, I think this state of affairs is unfair, and we should not allow it to continue in our schools. The children are suffering, the parents are suffering, people are complaining. Now we have brought the matter to this House, maybe somebody will report on it and action will be taken. This is unfair.

We thank the army for supplying equipment to schools, but this should not be the work of the army. We do not expect the army to do this every year, to send their lorries to supply equipment to schools. This was an emergency, and we should now ask each local authority to normalize the situation. I hope the Minister for Local Government, who is going to reply on this Motion, will look into it. Let the pupils and innocent parents be allowed to have their freedom.

We should recommend that the education vote in all authorities be kept separate. Instead of it being put into the general pool, where it is used to pay the salaries of administrators or road gangs or people in health centres, it should be used entirely for the purpose of education.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a straightforward Motion, and I do hope that the Ministry of Local Government, which is very concerned in seeing that local authorities do not collapse, will help us.

With these few words, I beg to move.

Mr. arap Bii: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Member for Hamisi who has seen fit to bring this Motion to the House. The Motion in itself has a lot of meaning, and any intelligent Members of this House as well as the Ministers will support it without further defence.

The hon. Mover has made us think back and look at the Colonial Government of this country when we had district education boards, provincial education boards, which were looking after the educational interests of our children in the various local authorities. When there was anything good in the Colonial Government, I think we must give credit, and that credit is due to them because they knew very well that education was the backbone of any country in the world.

This Motion states clearly that the House appreciates what the Minister for Local Government, with his Ministry, has been doing to help in assisting local authorities and preventing them from collapsing financially. We would therefore like to recommend to this very Ministry that they authorize all the local authorities to keep separate votes for education. If this were done, the problem of laying off teachers, lack of school equipment, and so on, would be overcome. This is a fine idea which the Member for Hamisi has brought before the House, and for that matter before the Ministry of Local Government.

Before I go further, Mr. Speaker, I would like to request that the machinery of Government looks into these various portfolios within given Ministries. The policy on education in this country is never made clear to anybody. We do not know whether the Minister for Local Government is in charge of education or if the Minister for Education himself is in charge of education, or if it is the Minister for Works or the Minister for Planning, or the Minister for Defence, for that matter. This is absolutely shameful. We would like the Minister for Education to come out in true colours and take over the whole system of education from the hands of the Minister for Local Government. Local Government has a lot of work to do with the local authorities. Health centres will remain with the local authorities; water supplies will still be with the local authorities; roads will still be with the local authorities, and so on. We would like to see a change, and I think I shall be bringing a Motion to this House fairly soon to urge the Minister for Local Government and the Minister for Education to define exactly where the education policy—especially in regard to primary education—stands.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to have this vote being separate and every county education officer being an accounting officer for that vote.

He will be in charge of that vote and will be the man responsible, with his education committee, for the whole planning of the year's programme for primary education within his local authority. They would be able to sit and plan how many teachers would be in the country for the whole year, say 1970, how much money would be put aside for school equipment, how much money would go for teachers' salaries, and so on. If this were done, we would save this embarrassment which occurs from time to time. How often have we heard of teachers being laid off, as the hon. Member has already described? So many times.

Let us look at other employees of local authorities. For example, take the Clerks' department. How many have been laid off. Probably there have been a few cases in the engineers' department, just a few unskilled labourers are laid off. However, in most cases they are never touched. Teachers have become the victims of this shortage of finance. We would like the Minister for Local Government to take this question of teachers' salaries seriously, as well as the whole education vote in various local authorities, before the Minister for Education takes over the whole thing. This is rather cumbersome. The Ministry of Education trains teachers, trains all the institution tutors. When those teachers come from the colleges, they go to somebody else, and that person can easily say "there is no more money," and so they have to leave. This is terrible. A trainee in a teachers' training college costs not less than Sh. 4,000 a year to train. That is what is spent on him. That is public money, and if that individual is laid off after his two years' training, it means that over Sh. 4,000 has been wasted. We would like this to be looked into very carefully.

Mr. Speaker, we have a problem with secondary school bursaries. These should also come in the education vote. Take, for example, my own county council of Kipsigis. Usually, they allocate so much money for secondary school bursaries, about £2,000. Up to now, the money has never been approved by the Minister of Local Government. Many students are now being sent away from their respective schools, and yet there is money for them. The county council knows too well that they have that money, but the Ministry of Local Government here is sitting on the whole thing. This is a great shame, and that is why we would like to have the whole education policy redefined, so that we know where we stand. When I was on my overseas tour early this year, I learnt with pleasure that in a class of 20 pupils they have four teachers. For a class of only 20 pupils, they have four teachers. Every teacher is assigned to one or two subjects. I know this country is not mature enough, financially, to conduct such a programme, but at least we should try to assign one teacher, say, to 30 pupils in every school. The whole thing has now risen until there are 40 pupils per teacher.

An hon. Member: 50.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, these teachers are again laid off because there is no money and then 50 children are left lying idle; they have paid their school fees and their parents have exhausted themselves and they are left just wandering about in the various classrooms. This is what we do not want repeated any more, and the Motion asks the Minister for Local Government to take this and have it put into practice.

With these few remarks, Sir, hoping the hon. Minister for Local Government is going to take something out of it, I beg to second.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a genuine Motion which has been prompted by the repeated problems we usually see in our county councils and the problems to which our children are put.

Mr. Speaker, although financially we mean teachers, the emphasis concerned must be how much the Government thinks of the children who are left to suffer. These are our Kenya youngsters who will be our helpers in the future and they are the people of whom we are the guardians and, therefore, we must protect them from this problem of finance.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Motion is very clear; it only asks that this vote of education be kept separately and, therefore, the Government, when giving its grants from here, will know that this money will be sufficient to finish the job for the whole year without any problem. However, if we leave the situation as it is at the moment, the rates, the grants from the Government, all go into a pool and we do not have proper work from these people because of the lack of technical accountants, and so we find ourselves in a complete mess where children are left without teachers because the teachers are not paid for a long time. We know very well that nobody likes to work without receiving a salary, or an assurance that a salary will come.

In this case, Mr. Speaker, I entirely agree with the Mover that this vote must be separated from all other votes in the local authorities and we must make sure that the Government is responsible for this vote.

Mr. Speaker, Kanu as a party rejected this problem of divisions and regions and all these other decentralized services, but education has remained behind when all the others have been centralized. We know when the Majimbo Constitution was amended, education was left to these local authorities—the responsibility for looking after education in each area was left to local authorities. However, at the moment we feel that it is high time that the Government felt responsible and answerable to the people so that in education it is the Government whom we can blame for poor planning and not the local authority. If this happens, we will then conform with the Kanu manifesto which put us into power. This manifesto clearly indicated that the Government will be responsible for seeing that education planning is geared by the Government and everybody is assured of good education in the future.

Mr. Speaker, we still talk of free education, and I know that the Government is working towards this. However, it is very difficult to work towards that stage unless we, first of all, unify to make sure that everybody in the country benefits, and at least every child of school age is able to get education. Therefore, the first step must be that we must unify the whole of education in the local governments so that thereafter we can make sure that we are going to give education to all children in the country, then from there we can jump to the last step of free education. If this is our aim, then this Motion is the right one because it is a very good beginning and there is no reason why the Minister should not support this.

I know we are going to be questioned on education; we will be asked to say what have we done for our country in an endeavour to make sure that everybody is educated and given to understand how Kenya is moving, and also the world around us. We have a responsibility to our people, we have a responsibility to our children, and it is the State which is responsible for these children because they are children of our State; they are not citizens of our local authorities, they are citizens of this country and they must be given every opportunity and every right to acquire education without being hampered simply because one county is mismanaged or it is financially not capable to provide education. Where this happens the Government must take over.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know in the past Government used to help primary schools; Government used to have boarding schools which were catering for primary education. These days there is not anything of that nature; they have moved away from boarding, and we agree with this because it means that we want to expand more and make more room for more children. There is no reason why you should want to have more people under your care when there is no food for them to eat. It is better that we tell them the truth, and we feel that the truth is that the Government is capable to help our children to get as much education as they need and, therefore, this Motion should be supported and the money which used to be given for boarding facilities should be used for making sure that there are no teachers in the country who go without their salaries and therefore go on strikes, which deprives our children their entitlement of education.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Assistant Minister, who might be ready to reply to the Motion, should take note that the Ministry of Local Government recently handed over some responsibility of supply of equipment to which the previous speakers have referred. This was a move to centralize the services of education. One other step which we would like to add to this move is to make the votes also under one unit. We have already moved on the supplies and we are not going to have supplies given here and there with somebody else being in control of the money at the other end; it has been centralized. This should also be centralized if possible. One step is to make this one vote and then when you get the aggregates from all the authorities you will get a really good unit which is centralized and looked after by the Ministry concerned so that there is not any further embarrassment on this part of our education.

Mr. Speaker, I see the red light is showing and I hope that the Minister has taken note of what is happening, and I wish to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the interruption of business and so I will adjourn the House until 2.30 p.m. on Monday, 9th June 1969.

*The House rose at thirty minutes
past Twelve o'clock.*

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION*Question No. 94NUMBER OF EXPATRIATES IN GOVERNMENT MINISTRIES AND DEPARTMENTS

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he could give the breakdown of all expatriates still serving in each of the Government Ministries, including Government Departments, the Army and Police Force (excluding female secretaries).

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): The breakdown of expatriates who are non-Kenya citizens in the Government Ministries and departments as at 31st March 1969, was as follows:—

|--|--------------|
| 1. Office of the President | 65 |
| 2. Ministry of Home Affairs | 185 |

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

PAPERS LAID

The following Papers were laid on the Table:—

Trade Agreement between the Government of the Republic of Iraq and the Government of the Republic of Kenya.

(By the Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei) on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki))

Kenya Meat Commission, 1968 Annual Report and Accounts.

(By the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. B. McKenzie))

NOTICE OF MOTIONS

AMENDMENTS TO STANDING ORDERS

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, Standing Orders be amended—

(a) by adding at the end of Standing Order 4 the following paragraph:—

“(10) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary hereinbefore appearing, if there is not more than one candidate who has been duly nominated, that candidate shall be declared forthwith to have been elected Speaker, without any ballot or minimum vote being required”;

(b) by substituting in Standing Order 25 (1) for the words “the attention of Mr. Speaker or the Chairman of Committees is called to the fact” in the third and fourth line thereof, the words “any Member objects”;

(c) by inserting in paragraph of Standing Order 61, after the word “majority”, in the second line thereof, the words “and the Noes have not numbered 35 per cent of all Members of the House or more”.

JUDICIAL COMMISSION OF INQUIRY INTO CORRUPTION

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the serious allegations which have been made in this House, in the Press and on public platforms about corruption, and in view of the fact that the public is increasingly becoming concerned about these allegations, this House requests His Excellency, the President of the Republic of Kenya, to set up a Judicial Commission of Inquiry to investigate into alleged corruption in the public service, private sector, nepotism and tribalism in Africanization of business and personnel in the public and private sectors and massive property ownership by civil servants, politicians and some leading personalities in public life and in all areas where allegations of corruption have been made related to execution of public responsibility.

ADMINISTRATION OF SIAYA DISTRICT

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, this House noting that two years since the establishment of the new district of Siaya, created purposely for the purpose of bringing closer administration and rapid development, no closer administration nor rapid development has taken place on account that most of the officers involved are operating from offices situated in the neighbouring districts, urges the Government immediately to accommodate all such officers at Siaya District Headquarters.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 178

ACREAGE OF NON-CITIZEN PLANTED WHEAT

Mr. G. G. Kariuki asked the Minister for Agriculture and Animal Husbandry to state—

(a) what was the total acreage of wheat planted by non-citizens during the year 1968;

(b) how many acres were planted by Kenya citizens in the same year 1968.

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not possible to give the total acreage of wheat planted by non-citizens during the year 1968 or to give the number of acres planted by Kenya citizens during the same year. The reason is that we did not keep statistics in 1968 giving the breakdown as between citizens and non-citizens.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Can the Minister give an assurance that he will tell us the acreage which was planted last year by non-citizens and by citizens when statistics are available?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I explained, last year was 1968 and this is not possible.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Minister make it his business to go and look and find out these statistics and give us a reply in this House? Even if it means next session, we would like to know this.

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as 1968 is concerned, it is not possible to do this, other than with a tremendous lot of work which I am not prepared to do at this stage of the development of my Ministry. The in-coming Minister, after the elections, may have time to do this.

An hon. Member: Who is that?

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the foreigners still control wheat-growing in this Republic of Kenya up to the moment? Is he aware of that?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first that is another question; secondly, I am talking about 1968, not 1969.

Question No. 132

COMPLETION OF WORK ON GREAT NORTH ROAD

Mr. Galgallo asked the Minister for Works to state—

- (a) why was work on the Great North Road—Nairobi/Addis Ababa which was expected to be finished by 1970 going slow since the shifta war obstacles were now over;
- (b) was the road going to pass through Moyale Boma and, if not, what was nearest distance it would be from the above town.

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The hon. Member must be aware that the construction of the Nairobi/Addis Ababa Road started in a difficult emergency situation, and, in the circumstances, it was impossible for any rapid progress to be made. In those days, the National Youth Service was only able to construct one mile per month.

However, since the last quarter of last year a Ministry of Works Construction Unit has been working on the job and, with the assistance of the National Youth Service, an average of eight miles is completed per month. This is a definite improvement which must be acknowledged.

The project is intended to link Nairobi/Addis Ababa as has been agreed between our country and Ethiopia, and this should pass through Sololo. However, in future, if funds are available, we shall construct Sololo/Moyale link road on the Kenya side.

Moreover, Mr. Speaker, the Kenya-Ethiopia Road is not normally kept into the— The Kenya-Ethiopia Road passes through Sololo, for the information of the hon. Member, and the distance from Sololo to Moyale is 50 miles, which is considered more economical than constructing a link of three miles from Kenya to Ethiopia.

Mr. Galgallo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply and while appreciating the difficulties in paragraph (a) of this question, is the Assistant Minister, therefore, prepared—if this road is not going to pass through Moyale—to move the old Moyale Town to Sololo, at Government expense, so as to maintain the solitary stand of that commercial centre on the Great North Road and that part of the country?

Mr. Godana: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I had difficulties in following what the hon. Member was saying, this much I can gather: I have told him in my first answer that we shall maintain the 50-mile link from Sololo to Moyale, just as we maintain the other roads in Kenya. However, there is a difference in maintaining an international link like the Kenya-Ethiopia link. That one I reject, but we do maintain the Sololo-Moyale Road like any other road in Kenya.

Mr. Galgallo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, is he therefore prepared, financially, to divert this road to go through Moyale Town instead of moving Moyale Town to Sololo?

Mr. Godana: Obviously no, Mr. Speaker. I have said that we are going to maintain the Sololo-Moyale Road. However, we shall not link Ethiopia with three miles instead of 50 miles. Regarding the moving of Moyale Town to Sololo, the answer is no. We have great business at Moyale and it is much better for the hon. Member to maintain that town.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Munyi?

Question No. 142

GOVERNMENT AID TO SELF-HELP SCHEMES

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services if he would tell the House—

- (a) how much money the Government had given since independence for distribution to assist self-help projects in all provinces;
- (b) what the breakdown was in provinces; and
- (c) how much money was given by the Co-operative American Relief Organization or any other international organization.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The total amount of money given by the Central Government so far is K£354,000.

(b) The funds have all along been divided equally among the provinces, except the Nairobi Extra-Provincial District which has been getting less than the provinces because not having the full status of a province. Also, up to two years ago, the North-Eastern Province was getting less but now it receives the same amount as the other provinces. I should also point out that during the current financial year, the Rift Valley Province received a little more funds than the other provinces due to its large number of districts which were considered to be less progressive as compared to the other provinces.

(c) An agreement between the Kenya Government and C.A.R.E. was signed last October. It provides that C.A.R.E. will, for a period of 12 months, supply K£35,000 worth of materials for self-help projects through the Department of Community Development and Social Services. The American Agency for International Development has also been giving valuable materials to selected projects in the normal manner.

Mr. Munyi: Arising from one of the answers given by the Minister, especially the answer to (c), Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that Embu, or Eastern Province for that matter, is one of the provinces in Kenya which has been lagging behind as far as the Agency for International Development aid is concerned? The Minister knows it because, for many days, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been going to his office and have been mentioning and pointing out that Eastern Province and Embu have been lagging behind. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what is the Minister doing to rectify that, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us hear the Minister's answer.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, any aid offered to the Kenya Government by the Agency for International Development or C.A.R.E. is considered very carefully as to where it should be directed. In this respect, the Eastern Province has not been discriminated against at all. In fact, the hon. Member knows how kind I was when I went round with him in his own constituency and machines for making blocks for the women around him there, were distributed by me personally from such assistance.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister agree to convey the appreciation of this House to those organizations which have voluntarily helped in these donations to promote social work in Kenya?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which, I think includes the Kenya National Fund.

Mr. Ngala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, because the Kenya National Fund is so well known in the assistance it has given this, of course, includes the Kenya

National Fund which has been making a very, very big contribution to self-help projects in the country through, I am sure, your wisdom and leadership.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Omar?

Question No. 179

EXTENSION OF TRADE LICENCES IN NAIROBI TO NON-CITIZENS

Mr. G. G. Kariuki asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House how many non-citizens have had their trade licences or notices extended in Nairobi area, and why.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There have been no extensions of licences in Nairobi or in any part of the country because, according to the law, licences once issued are valid for one year and cannot be extended halfway through the year. In the case of notices, as distinct from licences, there have been 28 traders who have had their licences extended to allow them time to wind up their businesses.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that some of the non-citizen traders are not intending to empty their shops because they expect that their licences will continue to be extended?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the hon. Member for Laikipia West should go by facts rather than rumours and gossip, and there is plenty of gossip in the bazaar. The fact of the matter is that the traders have been given two, three or four months' extension for the specific purpose, as I said, of winding up their businesses. At the end of these notices, we are not going to renew them or give them new licences, and the traders who are involved know this very well.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 37

KENYA STUDENTS IN COMMUNIST COUNTRIES

Mr. Mbogoh asked the Minister for Education if he could tell the House—

(a) how many Kenya students there were at present studying in North Korea, Communist China, U.S.S.R., Poland and Czechoslovakia;

(b) who had sent them there and who met their expenses; and

(c) how many had completed their courses, especially from the first three countries, in military technology, elements of revolution and the allied subjects but had not been given jobs in the Kenya Government.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I would very much request the hon. Member to give my Ministry additional time because the compilation of all the information he has asked for regarding students in North Korea, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Communist China, is not yet available because we are still communicating with our sources of information, namely the Education Attachés in those countries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): How long do you think it will take you, Dr. Kiano?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is rather difficult for me to estimate, but if I am given another three weeks I may be able to produce the information.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It will be put on the Order Paper in three weeks' time then.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I very much appreciate that request, but is the Minister able to tell us how many have already come back, if he cannot tell us who is there?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we will have it all on one day instead of having two goes at it, Mr. Mbogoh.

Next question.

Question No. 168

RURAL TECHNICAL AND COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) what plans were already underway to establish simple rural technical and commercial schools to train the thousands of school-leavers who were doing nothing in the countryside; and

(b) how many schools of this type had been started in 1968/1969.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, and I wish to thank the hon. Member for raising this question, although it is not quite clear what he means by the "simple rural technical commercial schools". However, I would like, first of all, to congratulate him for setting up a project, which is what we want now, for a technical trade school in his area.

There are 12 secondary vocational and technical schools which started as trade schools during the pre-independence period. The Ministry of Education has improved, expanded and upgraded these schools to secondary school level.

At a higher level than that, the Minister has two institutes: the Kenya Polytechnic and the Mombasa Technical Institute. There are plans to expand all these existing institutions and to develop another one possibly next year.

In addition, the Ministry of Education plans to introduce vocational and technical subjects, known as Industrial Arts, at 15 more secondary schools. There are also plans to introduce commercial subjects at seven secondary schools during 1969/1970, the next financial year.

Further, Mr. Speaker, the Ministry is finding ways and means of assisting two other private vocational and technical training centres. In addition to the Ministry of Education's efforts to provide vocational training for the school-leavers, the Ministry of Co-operatives and Social Services gives financial assistance to some youth centres which also give vocational and technical training in those youth centres. The voluntary bodies, assisted by the communities, have also assisted in this respect and I would also like to take this opportunity of thanking the National Christian Council of Kenya for setting up a good number of village polytechnics for the same purpose.

(b) In the year 1968/69, the Ministry of Education started eight schools giving vocational and technical training as well as seven schools giving commercial arts education in already existing ordinary schools. Therefore, Sir, we are hoping to increase technical and vocational education in as many places as possible.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer given by the Minister for Education, and arising from the fact that the Minister has very fully agreed that one of the ways of eliminating unemployment amongst the school-leavers is by establishing this type of school, is the Minister aware, although he has appreciated what we have done in Embu, the Ministry of which he is the head has not done a single thing whatsoever to help the people of Karumo to establish a technical school, for which they have been fighting for a very long time? Therefore, it is high time that the Minister should tell the House what—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! You have asked a question.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did congratulate the hon. Member for starting this as a Harambee project and, in accordance with our practice, if the Harambee secondary schools get on well we shall consider assisting them. However, as of now it is still at the formative stage.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell us, as he gave us in one of the answers that in the near future very many schools, for example seven, are going to be converted into such youth centres and the rest for these boys and girls so that they get this training, and is he in a position to tell us where these schools are, in which districts or in which provinces, for that matter?

Dr. Kiano: Would the hon. Member repeat it?

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: I will repeat it as the Minister does not seem to have heard me.

Dr. Kiano: A little louder please.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A little louder and a little shorter please.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: I think there is a fault with the microphone.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am asking is this: the Minister has told us in the previous answer that several schools, like those in Embu, are going to be established in several places in the near future, and for example, he mentioned some seven schools being converted into technical and academic schools at the same time, so is the Minister in a position to tell us where these ones are placed, either provincially or at the district level?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yes I am quite prepared to do so, it will only take a minute, Sir, and I will not be very long.

The secondary technical schools are: Nairobi Secondary Technical School; Mombasa Secondary Technical School; Nakuru Secondary Technical School; Sigalagala Secondary Technical School.

The second category is known as the secondary vocational schools and these are at Kabete Secondary Vocation School; Machakos, Thika, Rift Valley, Kaiboi, Mawego, Meru and Kisumu.

The regular secondary schools to which we are adding industrial arts, at present, are: Ofafa Jericho, Nyandarua, Kijabe, Mwatate, Siakago, Nakuru Day Secondary School, Emüsire, Aquinas, Dagoretti, Thika, Njiiri High School, Kagumo, Kitui, Homa Bay and Nanyuki.

Agricultural courses have been introduced at Kisii Secondary School, Rapogi, Njoro, Chavakali, Narok, Bungoma and Kangaru. Similar courses are being planned for Kianyaga, Murang'a, Kagongo, Muhoho, Ngerenya, Chika, Maranda, Sawagongo, Mosocho, Chesamisi, Amakura, Sigalame and Musingu.

Commercial arts are going to be introduced at Kabare, Tumutumu, Machakos, Mulango, Homa Bay, Asumbi, Nakuru and Lugulu.

This is what has already been planned and some have already got them and others will be getting them very soon indeed.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, why has the Government not so far, seen fit to start technical secondary schools in every area when for example, Chewoyet Secondary School has all the equipment and all tools? Why is the Government refusing to start a technical secondary school in West Pokot whereas we have the equipment, building, tools and everything?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have not refused to do what the hon. Member alleges I have refused. I am acting according to the finances and other resources available to me at the present time; but this is not closing the door. The hon. Member wanted to know how far we have gone in planning and I have indicated how far we have gone.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 168—RURAL TECHNICAL AND COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if there is no objection from the Questioner, I would like to move this on adjournment because everything is put up in Thika and Nairobi.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since it will give us an opportunity to say something, I think it is quite in order, and I give 100 per cent support, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, your question.

Question No. 175

PAYMENT OF ARREARS—LOCAL GOVERNMENT
TEACHERS

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education whether he would tell the House, in view of the fact that teachers were barred by the Minister from participating in the local government elections recently, and those teachers who did not obey this order were asked to resign which some of them did;

(a) whether it was true that those teachers who had resigned during the elections had been re-instated to teaching and paid the arrears of their salaries for the period they were not teaching.

(b) Should that information be true, would the Minister tell the House what circumstances led him to change his former ruling, and from what funds he was paying this amount of money as arrears to those who had not been teaching.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, It is not true that teachers who resigned during the elections were paid salaries in arrears for the period they were not teaching. In view of the above, the second part of question does not arise.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 153

AFRICANIZATION OF HEADS OF TRIBUNAL COURTS

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General whether he could tell the House when the posts of Presidents and Chairmen of all Tribunal Courts would be completely Africanized in the whole Republic.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I have, on a number of occasions, repeated that it is the policy of the Kenya Government that merit, suitability and qualifications shall be taken into account in appointing Presidents and Chairmen of the tribunals, and preference is always given to persons who are citizens of Kenya.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, is the Attorney-General denying the fact that as a result of the Chairman of the Rent Tribunal having been arrested and charged, that in his present post there is a non-citizen who has been promoted to that post? Is he denying that?

Mr. C. Njonjo: I am not denying Mr. Speaker, nor have I been given an opportunity to deny it. I have said that the qualifications necessary for this post, and we are not hiding—the man who has been appointed is a qualified lawyer an ex-judge with ten years' experience—this post requires—This is the Act which specifies the period of five years after being called before you can be appointed Chairman of the Tribunal.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General telling the House that after five years of independence, we have not had advocates or lawyers who have had more than six years experience so that they can be appointed to these posts?

Mr. C. Njonjo: That is precisely the position, and I wish the hon. Member will do some research. He will find that there are no Africans in private practice today who have five years experience after being called, except those hon. Members who are in this House.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Attorney-General is really serious would he be ready to accept certain names if we can name these people right way? An example is Collins Omondi in Kisumu, Niruka who was the Clerk to Council and Mr. Waiyaki who was Clerk to Council in Nairobi. If a man can qualify to be a Clerk to Council, why can he not qualify for this position?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that just shows the ignorance on this matter. My friend the hon. Member who has just put that question, has named three specific persons and he would be surprised to hear that none of them has this qualification of five years, since they qualified as lawyers.

Mr. Mwalwa: In view of the fact that the required experience is five years, does the Minister realize that that is too long a period and it is just to deny the Africans the opportunity of becoming Chairmen?

Mr. C. Njonjo: I am satisfied, Mr. Speaker, and I ask the House to agree with me, that five years is, in fact the minimum that you can call upon to decide these cases. We have had a man already who has a lot of experience but, unfortunately, today, he has been suspended because of certain actions which he did. If you put a man with two years' or three years' experience, the temptations are there and possibly we will be changing these posts every five years. Anyhow the position in law today, is that the person appointed as Chairman, must have at least five years' experience.

Question No. 154

CORRUPT ADVOCATES

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General whether he would tell the House—

- (a) how many cases of advocates being involved in misuse of their clients' money had taken place in Kenya during 1966/68.
- (b) what legal action, the Attorney-General had taken to protect the members of the public against such misuse of their money

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

This question is somewhat related to the previous one I was answering, and I hope this House will realize the difficulties that we are in. We have had some of our advocates, unfortunately Africans—for we are now talking about citizens, and in particular some Members are talking about Africanization—who have been disbarred because they have misused clients' money. This is a serious professional offence. The period that the hon. Member is talking about, fortunately we have had no cases. I want to assure this House that the law is very strict to all lawyers who undertake clients' work, that they must respect the clients' money, and separate it completely from their own personal income. If they do not comply with the law, the matter is brought before the disciplinary committee and if the particular lawyer is found to be guilty, then he is disbarred from the legal profession, maybe for five years or ten years or maybe for ever.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Attorney-General has not told this House how many lawyers have been involved, and has he only been giving warning, would he now be kind enough to tell us how many have been involved?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this House knows that in the past some Members, in fact one hon. Member in this House, who was a lawyer, has been disbarred. He is no longer an advocate. The other one, unfortunately, is no longer with us. I, happily, this year, had him enrolled once again on the Roll of Advocates.

As far as the period the hon. Member is speaking about is concerned, we have had none.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We come back to Mr. Omar's Question. Is any hon. Member authorized by Mr. Omar?

Question No. 162

INCREASED FACILITIES, MALINDI HOSPITAL

Mr. Shikuku, on behalf of Mr. Omar, asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) when the Malindi Hospital would get a full-time doctor;
- (b) what arrangements there were to improve the Malindi Hospital in regard to more beds and other facilities.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister for Health, I beg to give the following reply.

(a) Because of shortage of doctors, it has not been possible to post a full-time doctor at Malindi.

It is hoped that the position will improve in the near future when it may be possible to post a full-time doctor.

(b) It is the intention of the Ministry to develop Malindi Hospital up to a maximum of 100 beds by 1974 if funds are available. At the moment, the out-patients' department is already being extended.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply to (a), when he talks in terms of the future, how long is this going to take? Will it take ten years before they can expect a doctor at Malindi, a full-time doctor? What arrangements is he making in view of the fact that there are so many doctors in town and he can use them to go to Malindi because there are some who employ boys to ask people in the streets if they are sick if they can be attended to?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): That is nonsense.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Attorney-General to shout loudly that what I am saying is nonsense?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is not in order.

Mr. Shikuku: Will he withdraw then?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members do not describe each other's efforts as nonsense.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member had been listening to what I was saying he would have heard me say that by 1974 we hope this hospital will have 100 beds. So he would obviously know that by that time, if funds are available, it will be possible for us to post a full-time doctor there. There is already a doctor, a qualified doctor, who attends to patients in this hospital on a part-time basis. As soon as funds are available and the hospital has been extended to 100 beds, it will not be long before we can post a qualified doctor to Malindi.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Omar's next question. You have authority, Mr. Shikuku?

REFUSAL OF TRADE LICENCES AT THE COAST

Mr. Shikuku, on behalf of Mr. Omar, asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House how many non-citizens had been refused licences in the following districts in 1969; Lamu, Tana River, Kilifi, Mombasa, Kwale and Taita-Taveta.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I doubt whether the hon. Member is authorized, I beg to reply.

The non-citizen traders that were refused licences in the Coast Province is as follows, by districts:—

|--------------------|----|
| Mombasa | 67 |
| Kilifi | 69 |
| Kwale | 20 |
| Taita | 15 |
| Lamu | 24 |

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from the figures given by the Minister, will he now tell the House whether any of these people who had been refused licences have later been given licences? How many of them?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is quite clear the hon. Member does not know enough about the question because the people who have been refused licences cannot again be given licences. I mean, Sir, there is confusion either in language or in thought.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, and knowing very well that my mother and father were not English people and I do not care what mistakes I make in English, is the Minister aware that among the figures he has given, those who had been refused licences have again been given licences on appeals or through other various ways?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member persists in—I will not go on. It used to be said that, ignorance was bliss.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, why does the hon. Member want to spread this gossip that people who were refused licences have now been given licences? In reply to an earlier question I explained that licences once refused, there is no review about this. On the other hand, Sir, people who have been given notices that they should terminate by a certain date—notices, as distinct from licences—these notices, in about five or six cases, have been extended for short periods of two to three months to allow the trader to wind up his business. I explained that this was a practical position in Mombasa, in the Coast Province, in all provinces, and this is what the hon. Member ought to accept as fact rather than asking us to believe what he pretends to be fact. He is not aware, Mr. Speaker, of the facts in this field. We could have given him these details if he had cared, particularly as Chief Whip, to get himself slightly better informed so as to do his job better.

Question No. 180

MAINTENANCE AND COST OF EXAMINATIONS' COMPUTER

Mr. Onsando, on behalf of Mr. Omweri, asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) what the cost was of the Ministry of Education computer machine used for marking examination papers. What were the maintenance and repair costs per year;
- (b) how much it did cost the Government to make the Certificate of Primary Education examination by the computer machine. How had this compared with hand marking.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The computer device used for marking examination papers is a part of the Treasury Computer. It is used on a rental basis only by us and the cost of this machine per year is as follows:—

- (i) Rental, KSh. 86,400.
- (ii) Maintenance and repair, KSh. 12,960.

As far as (b) is concerned,

- (i) it cost the Government KSh. 320,000 to mark the Certificate of Primary Education examination in 1968 by this machine for 160,000 students;

- (ii) it would have cost the Government KSh. 393,000 with hand marking in 1968.

I should add that this computer is also used by the Government for other purposes in addition to marking examinations and, therefore, it is not expected to sit idle until examination time.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Minister not aware that after the computer marking the papers, some more papers were marked by hand, and could he tell us how much time and money was spent to re-mark these papers by hand?

Dr. Kiano: As I explained last time, Mr. Speaker, some of the people who used the computer for the first time made mistakes. I have not calculated how much we paid, but these people are being trained and we hope these mistakes will not occur again.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Arising from the figures the Minister has given the House, is he not satisfied that it is most uneconomical for Kenya to use these machines since if people were paid the same amount of money they would spend it and, therefore, invigorate our economy?

Dr. Kiano: Economies can differ, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it looks to this House, from the figures the Minister has given us, that there was some sort of arrangement of trading between the Minister and the people who were producing the computer machines in England. Will he tell the House why he could not use local manpower instead of enabling someone overseas to make money by producing the computer?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not hear exactly what the hon. Member said in introducing his supplementary question. If I heard right, Sir, there is something that he may have to withdraw. I would like him to repeat his question properly.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did not hear it either. Will you repeat what you said, Mr. Kebaso?

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, I said, from the figures the Minister for Education has given to this House, it looks as if the money spent in getting these computers from England was much more than the money that would have been used to pay local manpower.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If it is now different, it amounts to a withdrawal of what he said before.

Dr. Kiano: I am grateful that the hon. Member has now stuck to his facts.

In any case, Sir, the amount is less, not more.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the point the hon. Member was trying to make at the end of it was the same as Mr. Okelo-Odongo. Should we not be using local manpower rather than paying rent to people abroad? That was really what he was getting at.

Dr. Kiano: The same answer applies, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

DEATHS FROM STARVATION IN WEST POKOT

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister of State in the President's Office the following Question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that already two persons have died of hunger in Lipkomo Location of West Pokot?
- (b) What immediate arrangements is the Government making to send famine relief food to the 400 families suffering from starvation.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my friend, the Minister of State, I beg to reply. We are not aware of the allegation in part (a), and as regards part (b), Government is aware that there was a food shortage, and so, some time ago, maize was sent to this area from the Kitale stores, and, therefore, there should be adequate relief from famine in the area.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, arising from part (a) of the question where the Minister said he was not aware of this, I can give him three names. As a matter of fact, the number has increased by three, it is now five. I will give him just three names. One person was known as Arosi, the second one, Chemochen wife of Madalem, and the third one was Chepokatap wife of Longole-toro. Is he aware of these?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can well believe the hon. Member that these three persons have died, but I said that we are not aware that they died of hunger, as the Member has alleged in the question. There was famine in the area, and in the last month maize and other foods have been sent to this place from the Kitale stores which are quite near. If the hon. Member is saying that the amount sent is not adequate, I would like to hear this, because we would like to be able to do something additional. In this country, as the hon. Minister for Agriculture has said, we have adequate foods in store to feed the whole nation for the coming two years.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Kibaki: This is true, Mr. Speaker, Sir, each day the hon. Member goes home, if he does go home, he passes by the new storage bins on the road towards his constituency, in Kitale, so he must have seen how much maize is stored in Kitale alone, and it is in other areas of the country as well. So when I say there is adequate food, there really is, and he knows it.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, and in view of the fact that the people of West Pokot are very grateful for what the Government has done previously, and in view of the fact that now there is a lot of trouble in West Pokot, would he consider this particular place, which the officer visited recently and saw with his own eyes that the people were hungry, and therefore steps should be taken now rather than telling us here that maize has been sent there?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is the kind of thing which all hon. Members in this House, all of us, should learn to refrain from doing. He claims he has not seen the maize which was sent. Only last week, at least 70 bags, I am advised, were sent to this area, and sent by the Administration. Now, there is adequate evidence that the maize was distributed. If the hon. Member says he has not seen it, either he has not been there, or he needs someone to check his eyes, I think.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have been to West Pokot, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Order! Order! You do not have a point of order.

Next question.

CANCELLATION OF KAKAMEGA'S TRADERS CONFERENCE

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of my friend, Mr. Muruli, I beg to ask the following Question by Private Notice:—

What reasons caused the District Commissioner for Kakamega to cancel a traders' conference on the 31st May 1969, at which all leaders of the district were to speak and for which he had been promised a licence?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I think the question might have been asked by the friend of the hon. Member, who is the Member for Butere. Mr. Speaker, I am told that the licence was not issued, because after the Member for Butere had applied for a licence to hold this meeting, in the constituency of another Member, that other Member objected to the meeting being held in his constituency without his knowledge and without being assured that he was going to participate himself. I am told then that plenty of the

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] local politicians made it clear to the Administration that no meeting was going to ensue, only confusion, and the two Members were given time to resolve this confusion and the licences would then be given.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that this was not a political meeting? It was a trade conference meeting, maendeleo in other words. Also there have been several licences issued by the same district commissioner for political purposes against the wishes of some of the Members, including the Member for Butere, on two occasions? This was in my area, and when I protested that no licence should be issued for political purposes, the same district officer still issued them. Is he also aware that in Nairobi I have been issued with maendeleo licences and collected money here without there being any objection from the district commissioner who believes in maendeleo, and that the District Commissioner for Kakamega does not believe in maendeleo?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are two parts to this question. The licence was not given for the reason I have just explained, that it appeared in the wisdom of the officer, whom we support, that the two Members, as hon. Members of this House— We have said this before, that when one Member wants to have a political meeting in the constituency of another Member, he should at least have the courtesy to consult and allow the other Member to have a say in such a meeting. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has even been agreed so in the Parliamentary Group.

As regards the second part of the question, I think the Member is quite false to try and accuse the district officer, or to try and bring the district officer into a political dispute between the politicians of Kakamega District, when the district officer is merely trying to carry out effective administration on behalf of the Republic, and is not himself involved in what the Members in that part are fighting over. In fact, he has no intention of standing in Butere.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: KAKAMEGA TRADERS' CONFERENCE

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the seriousness of this question, I wish to raise this matter on adjournment.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE THREATENED TEACHERS' STRIKE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Cheboiwo.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Education the following Question by Private Notice:—

(a) Is the Minister aware of the threat from the Kenya National Union of Teachers of a strike of teachers which is due to take place on the 10th June 1969?

An hon. Member: Tomorrow.

Mr. Cheboiwo:—

(b) If he is aware, what immediate action is he taking to see to it that this will not happen?

Hon. Members: Tell us.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): I will tell you. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, and before I do so, I would ask your indulgence because my reply is rather lengthy, but it will give the House the entire picture of the situation; and I am also glad that the acting Minister for Labour, Mr. Mwanjumba, is present in the House.

As the Minister for Education, I have noted through the Press media that the Kenya National Union of Teachers has called for a strike beginning on 10th June 1969. It will be recalled that in 1967, this House approved Sessional Paper No. 11, which, in fact, improved considerably the terms of service for teachers and, particularly, in respect of salaries. The Government, in that sessional paper, tried to equate the remuneration of teachers with their academic equals in the Civil Service, and in some categories, such as P.1 and S.1 teachers, their remuneration, financially speaking, somewhat exceeded that of clerical staff with equivalent academic training in the Civil Service. In the case of P.3 and P.2, the remuneration was not very good, but it was more or less equivalent to the junior clerical staff in the same Civil Service. This sessional paper was the third adjustment by the Government in respect of teachers' remuneration since 1962, and it is an indication of the great concern and sympathy that the Government is showing in this matter of teachers' conditions of service.

The sessional paper, to which I have just referred stated, among other things, that there would be set up a Teachers' Service Remuneration Review Committee, which from time to time would review the conditions of service for the teachers, and for this purpose, and in full consultation with the officials of the Kenya National Union of Teachers, a committee was set up late last year for the purpose of reviewing the salaries given to teachers. The Kenya National Union of Teachers earlier this year, therefore, prepared a memorandum in respect of teachers' salaries, and presented it to the reviewing committee at the committee's first meeting, which took place on the 22nd April 1969. The second meeting of the committee took place on the 23rd May 1969.

I would like to point out that the same committee, which includes the representatives of the Kenya National Union of Teachers and my Ministry, and also includes the Teachers' Service Commission, are meeting this very afternoon. It is expected that when the committee finalizes its findings, the report will then be presented to me as Minister for Education for consideration by the Government. As the committee has not finished its work, it cannot and has not given me any report. It is for the committee to work as fast as possible in accordance with the regulations under the Teachers' Service Commission Act No. 2 of 1967, section 14. It is, therefore, quite wrong and unfair for the Kenya National Union of Teachers to threaten to call a strike and thus by-pass the committee's work and the regulations of the Act, when the National Union of Teachers are members of that committee which is now meeting. I am happy that the Kenya National Union of Teachers have agreed to continue participating in the meetings of the committee which does indicate that they realize the importance of that committee and the relevant regulations in the settlement of this issue.

With regard to the Code of Regulations which, I understand, was another factor cited by the Kenya National Union of Teachers as a reason for strike—and as I say I learned of this only from the Press release, they have not contacted us—I am happy to say that the Teachers' Service Commission does not require any specific directive from me to meet with the National Union of Teachers for the purposes of discussing this or any other matter. The National Union of Teachers asked the Government for one employer, and the Government granted them this request by establishing the Teachers' Service Commission in my Ministry as their one employer. The Kenya National Union of Teachers is quite free to get in touch with the Teachers' Service Commission for any complaints they wish to raise. I am, in fact, informed by the Chairman of the Teachers' Service Commission that he and the leaders of the Kenya National Union of Teachers have already agreed to initiate discussions on this matter of the Code of Regulations, and the matter of staffing of schools.

I would like to point out that the figures given by the National Union of Teachers regarding under-staffing of schools are being investigated by the Teachers' Service Commission, which has already had preliminary contact with the National Union of Teachers on this issue.

Another matter raised by the National Union of Teachers has to do with the equipment of schools. I am happy to inform the House that the Minister for Works has undertaken to expedite this matter which does come under his portfolio, and which is now progressing very well.

The National Union of Teachers has also complained that I have insisted on appointing the Secretary of the Teachers' Service Commission as the Secretary to the Appeals Tribunal. The National Union of Teachers should do its homework in this regard, because even before I knew of their complaint, I had already directed that somebody else should be considered for the post of the Appeals Tribunal Secretary instead of the Secretary of the Teachers' Service Commission. I must point out, however, that the National Union of Teachers itself has a representative on the Appeals Tribunal, to which individual members of the National Union of Teachers make their appeals.

Thus, if the National Union of Teachers insist on being represented in the tribunal, while at the same time being the true spokesmen of the individual members, they should not complain too much if the Teachers' Service Commission is also represented on similar grounds.

So far, the Appeal Tribunal has been functioning very satisfactorily and I have not received any complaint either from the Teachers' Service Commission or the National Union of Teachers.

I would like to state, therefore, Mr. Speaker, that the Ministry is aware of the rights of the National Union of Teachers to make representations on behalf of the teachers regarding their conditions of service. The machinery to examine these recommendations has been established. At the same time, the National Union of Teachers must avoid making unjustifiable accusations against my Ministry, and myself in particular, when the Teachers' Service Commission, which is under my Ministry, is perfectly prepared to talk with them on any issue on behalf of the Ministry and of myself.

The purpose of establishing the Teachers' Service Commission, was to have ready a body which could deal directly with all the matters affecting teachers so that the Minister would be involved only when a deadlock has arisen. For the teachers to go on strike on the 10th of June 1969, will only make the work of the Salary Review Committee all the more complicated. The strike would also severely affect most adversely the education of our children who would be the chief sufferers as a result of the strike. The teachers, like parents, under the Government must have the welfare of the school children uppermost in their minds and behaviour, and whatever disagreement that may arise between the National Union of Teachers and the Teachers' Service Commission, as well as between myself, must continue to be settled through amicable discussion and not through strike action which will benefit no one, and will cause considerable damage to our education system.

Incidentally, Mr. Speaker, the Kenya National Union of Teachers' Memorandum, which they have presented to the committee and which has been referred to in the Press, calls for salary increases which, if implemented, would amount to approximately a £6 million increase for Primary Education alone. I leave it to the Members of the House to make judgment as to the availability of such money at such short notice, and I hope sincerely, that the threatened strike will not take place tomorrow and that sense and mutual understanding will prevail at the meeting which is taking place at this time.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that long and good answer, this committee which is meeting this afternoon, if they do not agree, that means that the teachers will go on strike tomorrow. What step will the Minister himself take to advise this Kenya National Union of Teachers not to go on strike as he has told us? What specific advice is he going to give to the National Union of Teachers?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not a magician and I do not think I can raise £6 million tonight, but I am happy to state that the Minister for Works who is the acting Minister of Labour, is in constant touch with the National Union of Teachers.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer which was given previously by the Minister, will the Minister agree with me that these teachers were frustrated and have been frustrated for two reasons: in the first part, this Parliament, when it passed that White Paper, gave the Ministry six months to review the teachers' salaries, which it never did; and further, just some time I think last week, the representatives from the Ministry could not avail themselves to go and meet the representatives of the Union of Teachers to discuss the problem and so avert the problem? Would he agree himself that these two reasons are the ones which have frustrated the teachers and are those which should be gone into and got rid of?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have examined the documents issued as the Press communique by the National Union of Teachers and the item called "frustration" does not appear there as one of the causes. Secondly, Sir, if I am not present at a meeting and if my Permanent Secretary is not present in the meeting, the hon. Member should realize that the Teachers' Service Commission is in my Ministry and represents the views of the Ministry.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister agree with me that even if the word "frustration" was not in that document, his own attitude towards the National Union of Teachers and his approach to their demand has actually provoked that situation which he is going to face tomorrow?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the shoe is on the other foot.

Mr. M. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that teachers in some schools in Thika have gone on strike today? Some schools in Thika have already gone on strike today and the children are not attending school.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if that is a fact, the teachers are breaking their service regulations.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since salaries is the major problem which compels teachers to go on strike, especially regarding the minimum salary, will the Minister consider recommending to this committee which is meeting this afternoon that P3 teachers should get a minimum salary of £300 per annum?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad to say that this National Union of Teachers and our Ministry agreed on the composition of the Salary Review Commission headed by the hon. Mr. Wariithi, and this is the place where the National Union of Teachers is making their case and when the case is closed and the work finished, the report will come. If the hon. Member for Hamisi, is considering that figure as the way to settle the issue, he could very well advise the National Union of Teachers accordingly.

Mr. Gikunju: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the explanation the Minister has given as to what is happening, would the Minister tell this House what he is going to do in case tomorrow the Union of Teachers will not pay heed to whatever the step the Ministry is taking?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will cross that bridge when I come to it, and right now I am hoping that sense will prevail.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that maybe this strike has been prompted by the news that the Ministers are going to get 20 per cent gratuity?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to remind the hon. Member that that is nonsense.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister agree with me that it is a failure of his Ministry to have failed to appoint this committee as soon as this House passed a resolution that demanded a review of the teachers salaries should take place every six months?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will not agree to that because it takes some time for the Ministry and the National Union of Teachers even to agree on who are going to be the members of the committee.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I came just after he had started giving reply to this question, but I have a question to ask the Minister. Is the Minister aware that all schools in Kenya are under staffed and for that reason, there is a shortage of 8,000 teachers and this has really frustrated all the teachers in Kenya and that is why they have decided to go on strike?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the first place, I do not accept that figure. Secondly, if there is a shortage of teaching staff in our schools, we do not improve it by making the shortage of all the work by those who are teaching going out of schools.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next Order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20

THREATENED TEACHERS' STRIKE

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this is a most important matter affecting the whole nation, and since by tomorrow, if the teachers go on strike, the whole country will be paralysed, may I be allowed to move the adjournment of the House to discuss this matter as a matter of national importance, so that I may advise the Minister what to do to avert the strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! The hon. Member is referring to Standing Order 20. It is obviously a definite and urgent matter of very considerable national importance, and I think I must allow it to be raised on adjournment, but only for a short time. One of the rules applying to this standing order is that you do not allow this particular procedure if there is any other early opportunity for discussion. We have had a certain amount of discussion on this question now, but hardly enough, perhaps, for hon. Members to express their own recommendations as to what should be done. Therefore, I will allow the matter to be raised by way of moving the adjournment of the House at 6 p.m. today. The only thing is that it was Mr. Cheboiwo's question, and I think he should have the first claim to move the adjournment. Do you wish to, Mr. Cheboiwo, or do you want Mr. Godia to?

Mr. Cheboiwo: I am prepared to move on the adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You would like to move the adjournment yourself?

Mr. Cheboiwo: Yes, Sir.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, I do not seek to question your ruling except that the committee is sitting and after they have finished the meeting they are going to meet the Minister for Labour and if this House recommends different things from what the committee discusses it could be making the situation rather worse.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That may or may not be unfortunate, but we cannot preclude this House discussing fully such an urgent matter. I trust that the advice tendered by the hon. Members will be of some use; anyhow, I think Government must hear it.

The matter, therefore, will be raised by Mr. Cheboiwo at 6 p.m. today.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): On a point of order, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that perhaps Mr. Mwanyumba is going to point out my mistake in not seeing how many Members support it. How many Members support?

(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There are more than the requisite minimum. Was that your point, Mr. Mwanyumba?

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, my point of order is this: since the committee is meeting now and since we have had this sort of meeting the whole day—this morning—in the Ministry of Labour, I think the committee should be given a chance to thrash out their differences and report back to Government before this Motion is debated today. I do think the debate here is going to prejudice the talk that is going on now.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Mwanyumba, you are raising again a point that I have already answered.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am trying to seek your guidance on the same point. All these commissions, the Teachers' Salaries' Commission and the Remuneration Commission, have been appointed under an Act of Parliament so that these commissions can listen to these cases, and we could prejudice the case if we discussed it here. Could this not be a case of sub judice?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Certainly not. Sub judice means sub judice, which means under consideration by a judge.

We will go on now.

MOTION

AMENDMENT TO S.O. 17—MONDAY SITTINGS

THAT Standing Order No. 17 be amended in paragraph (1) thereof, by deleting the word "Mondays" therefrom.

(The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei) on 5th June 1969)

1969*)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, you will see from the Supplementary Order Paper that we are continuing now the debate on the Motion that Standing Order No. 17 be amended in paragraph (1) by deleting the word "Mondays" therefrom. As it was Mr. Kariuki who successfully moved the adjournment of the debate, he has the right to continue speaking now if he desires to do so.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support this Motion because I think that the majority of Members now will agree to the exclusion of Mondays although the Parliamentary Group has not met.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is something which was unanimously agreed by the Parliamentary Group. All the Members who participated in that Parliamentary Group, by a show of hands agreed that Monday was not a good day for sitting.

This, Mr. Speaker, the President repeated three times and I was surprised to see some Members objecting to what they only a few days ago agreed to.

Mr. Speaker, without wasting a lot of time, because I am sure Members are unanimous on this, I wish to support the Motion.

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am completely surprised to hear from the hon. Member that the Parliamentary Group has met since the adjournment of the House while debating this Motion as it was agreed to amend.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I thought that the Parliamentary Group would meet tomorrow to discuss the matter. During the week-end there was no Parliamentary Group meeting in our constituencies. If one was held at which the Member was present, he should have told this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we still support the Motion as it was adjourned, to remain pending until tomorrow so that we can meet in a Parliamentary Group meeting and raise the matter before the President.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would you kindly remind the hon. Member, Sir, that the Parliamentary Group meeting I am talking about was last Tuesday and not tomorrow. He misunderstood me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a point of order, if Mr. Kariuki has been misunderstood. Will you continue, Mr. Tuwei.

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member should not be misunderstood any more because he was very clear as he stated, and I congratulate him for making it so clear.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore I wish that this Motion should be reinstated until we meet the President tomorrow so that we will have to bring it back for further discussion in this House, or else withdraw it completely and continue the original Motion as moved by the Leader of Government Business.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that we should be double-minded in this House sometimes. Therefore, Sir, I oppose what the misunderstood Member who has already spoken here, that we should wait until we meet tomorrow so that we can bring back what we agreed last week.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that we still wait for further discussion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I understand, Mr. Tuwei, that you are wishing to move the adjournment of the debate? Did I misunderstand you?

MOTION

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBATE: AMENDMENT TO
S.O. 17—MONDAY SITTINGS

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the adjournment of the debate until the Parliamentary Group meeting tomorrow.

The Speaker (Mr. Speaker): Order! I will have to consider whether I will allow a Motion of that kind, but since the House decided on an adjournment of the debate for the specific purpose of a Parliamentary Group meeting, and whether or not it was a good idea, I think I must allow hon. Members to consider whether they stand by that view. Therefore, I will allow a Motion for the adjournment of the debate if it is seconded. Is it seconded?

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we sat here last week and the hon. Member who has just spoken, the Member for Nyandarua, moved that the Motion should stand until we meet as a Parliament Group, and so I fail to understand whether it was technically or legally that something was left out, was it a date or time that was given as to when this Parliamentary Group should meet.

I must confess that I am confused here. I think that if someone says we have met he is more confused than myself. What I am saying is that someone stood here last week and asked for an adjournment of the debate until the Parliamentary

[Mr. J. K. arap Soi]

Group had met. Now, whether it was correct or not, that Parliamentary Group has not met. Why, therefore, should we have the same thing before that Parliamentary Group meeting and discuss it in this House? I think this is illogical.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second the Motion that was moved last week that we should wait until we meet in the Parliamentary Group. Whether it was wrong or right, the House actually agreed that we should suspend debate on this Motion until the Parliamentary Group meeting, which is tomorrow or the day after tomorrow—I do not know when because I am not supposed to know. Once we have met, as agreed by this House, then we can bring the Motion as it stands now and we can carry on debating the Motion moved by the Leader of Government Business.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, in the exercise of my discretion, it would be just as well if I put the question immediately.

(Question put and negatived)

MOTION

AMENDMENT TO S.O. 17—MONDAY SITTINGS

(Resumption of debate on Original Motion)

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have always said we must be frank and not have a half-hearted feeling.

Mr. Speaker, we were in the Parliamentary Group last week, and whoever suggested that we should have another Parliamentary Group meeting to confirm what we had first decided, to me, does not make sense; either vote against a Motion or you vote for it. Now, the point is that the Parliamentary Group met last week and we decided unanimously—and this is minuted—that this Motion be moved here and accepted that in future we should meet from Tuesday until Friday. Now, I was surprised to see that when Members came to this House, they changed their minds within so short a time. I think the only thing that changes is the British weather and it surprises me that this influences the minds of the hon. Members. I thank the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Jaramogi, for supporting such a move because if we are to do anything for our constituents we have to have this extra day. The only day as a working day is Monday, Mr. Speaker, because Saturday is a day for some people to go to church and Sunday is another day for other people to go to church. Now, Monday is a working day and this is the only day in which we can serve our constituents. His Excellency, the President, is always in his constituency serving his constituents and he has never failed to be in his constituency on a Monday. We want to rectify this position so that most of us, particularly those of us who are interested in serving our constituents, can have Mondays as a clear day to serve our constituents.

Mr. Speaker, if we are only thinking and talking here of Wananchi and not serving them, then I do not see why we should be having double talk. The Member for Nairobi East and the Member for Embakasi is always here in Nairobi and every day at 4 o'clock or at 6 o'clock he can go and see his constituents. However, he wants us to sit here all the time while he is working for his constituents throughout the week.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what connexion does the Member for Embakasi have with this Motion? Have I interrupted the speaker now speaking, what connexion do I have with this Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Quite obviously every hon. Member is connected with this Motion, because it is about whether or not it suits hon. Members to sit on Mondays.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): You rightly ruled him out, Mr. Speaker, because once a Motion on any subject is in this House it is the property of this House. The hon. Member for Embakasi is part of that property; he is the owner of that property.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, without labouring too much, I would like the Members to vote and see who is really for this and who is against; we should have a Division. There is no point in appearing in a Parliamentary Group meeting tomorrow and telling His Excellency the President that we voted against it because we did not hear what was said previously.

Mr. Speaker, I urge hon. Members to consider one thing and one thing only as I said before, namely that we should be allowed to serve our constituents on this very day, which is Monday.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I would like to support the original Motion.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since it is very clear that this has been discussed at a Parliamentary Group meeting I am now proposing the closure of this debate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we can allow that very soon, but I see Mr. Okelo-Odongo wants to speak, and so far only the Leader of the Opposition has spoken, and I think we should hear him, and then I will put the question of the closure.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

[Mr. Okelo-Odongo]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, sometimes people do the right thing for the wrong reason. This particular Motion is something which illustrates it. It is a good thing that we should have an extra day to see our constituencies, but I think the reason why the Government is doing this is not because of that, but because I think the Government wants this Parliament to meet as few times as possible. The Government has plenty of business and if we are going to meet according to the demands of the business, then we would have no time even to break for the rest of the year, even if we met on Mondays. I do not see how the Government is going to get through all the business. I have seen this in the Sessional Committee, and I am a Member of the Sessional Committee, Mr. Speaker, and I know how much business we have.

I think, Mr. Speaker, this should be pointed out, because as one of my hon. friends expressed the fear that there may be an idea that Bills and so on should just be passed through without much time being spent on them as we did with the Supplementary Estimates when everything was guillotined and I think the Government would like to guillotine all the Bills and pass them without having any discussions.

An hon. Member: Including gratuities.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion should be supported on condition that if work demands, then we must adjust ourselves. We must meet on Mondays and even on Saturdays if necessary if work demands, because that is what we are paid for here; to see that laws are properly passed. This is what we are paid for.

Our constituents already know us. They elected us, but what they want us to do is to see that the correct laws are passed and we have to inform the Government of what they think.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is one very important factor which should be pointed out to the Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like to have mandates to hold public meetings in our constituencies. This is the only way in which we can inform them. Members are not even allowed to hold public meetings, so how are we going to inform our constituencies of the Government programmes and so forth?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we of course, supported this Motion in good faith because we, as the Opposition, are the Members of the people, and we always like to stay with the people. It is on this point that we support the Motion, but I must point out to the Government that they just want to pass things and not to allow us to comment.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, may I move that the Mover be called on to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will put the question of the closure now.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to add anything because the hon. Members have seen the need to delete the Monday sitting, therefore reverting to the old Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday sittings

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and negated)

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to ask for a Division on this.

First Reading

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (NO. 2) BILL
(Order for First Reading read—Read the First Time—Ordered to be read the Second Time today by leave of the House)

Second Reading

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (NO. 2) BILL

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Supplementary Appropriation (No. 2) Bill of 1969 be now read a Second Time.

[The Assistant Minister for Finance]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is only a formal Bill which gives statutory approval to the financial provisions made in the Statements of Excesses of 1965/66, Supplementary Estimate of Expenditure No. 2 of 1968/69 (Recurrent Expenditure) and No. 1 Development which have been approved by the House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that since this is a formal Bill, there is nothing more to say on it and, therefore, I beg to move.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a committee of the whole House today by leave of the House)

REPORTS AND THIRD READINGS

THE SUPPLEMENTARY APPROPRIATION (NO. 2) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by the Committee of the whole House to report its consideration of the Supplementary Appropriation (No. 2) Bill, and its approval of the same without amendment.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Supplementary Appropriation (No. 2) Bill be now read a Third Time.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki) seconded.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to point out in the Third Reading of this Bill that in future we should not have the same mistakes as we have had in this Bill. I look forward to another Supplementary Bill, but it must be borne in mind by the Government that they must improve year after year. We cannot go on with this mistake of over-expenditures and so on, so that we only come here and have them agreed to with some warnings here and there.

It appears that there is lack of decision; some people are so permanent that they cannot be removed from where they are. However, how permanent they are, as far as public funds are concerned, is the thing I do not know. If one is permanent, he must be efficient to be permanent. If he is inefficient, but insists that he must be permanent, it is wrong. Therefore, I think that the Ministry of Finance—not solely the Ministry as such, but also the other Ministries concerned with this over-expenditure—seems to feel that if the present people were removed from where they are, Kenya will flop. May I let them know that Kenya belongs to no single person. It belongs to all the people and, therefore, let no Minister, Member of Parliament, Permanent Secretary or Under-Secretary think that he is indispensable. We have children in this country who are entitled to the same positions as anybody else, who can do these jobs, but if we continue to have this sort of leniency where people make errors and yet remain there because they are there, then it is wrong. We advocate Africanization, Mr. Speaker, but Africanization does not mean that continuous inefficiency should be perpetuated, without improvement.

I am making these remarks, Mr. Speaker, warning the Minister for Finance and, indeed, all Ministries, that have incurred excess expenditure to be more careful so that there may be only a small amount as over-expenditure next time.

[Mr. Shikuku]

We would like to have, in each Ministry, not more than £10 over-expenditure but not to run into thousands of pounds.

The Supplementary Estimate, Mr. Speaker, as you see here, is £180,164.10.05. This is what the error has cost us. The error has cost us that much. This over-expenditure, Mr. Speaker, which has come as a result of inefficiency, if you multiply it by 20, you will see that it is over £3 million.

I understand from the hon. Member that it is £3 million and over. This is money which has been lost through the errors of the civil servants. This money, Mr. Speaker, would have helped this country, but because of errors this money has been lost. Now, we hope that the next time the figure will only be £10, that mistakes will result in loss of only this small amount. Then we will know there has been improvement. However, I will be shocked if I find again that the loss runs into thousands of pounds. This is not the way in which we should run the Government.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I hope the Government will be more careful in future and will wake up from the drowsiness in which they are now. Probably this pride has been too long for them. They have become so permanent that they are not conscious of the feelings of the people. For seven years they have been in those posts; there has not been any change and, therefore, I think they are very tired.

Mr. Speaker, I hear the Minister telling me that I should not be too impatient. Sir, my patience cannot be challenged because I have tolerated these things for all this time, during these six years. Every year there have been these mistakes. Is that not patience? What patience does the Minister want? Does he want a patience of a saint? I am not a saint, Mr. Speaker, and, therefore, he should not demand any more patience from me. I am a very ordinary man, a human being. Therefore, those six years I have been patient and I hope there will be no further mistakes that will call on my patience because I will have no more patience.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to warn the Government and support.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, if you remember well, last year or early this year I questioned why Government did allow people working on the super-scale to have money in lieu of their leave. In my question I said that leave was a privilege and that it was not right for anybody to demand this. I am part of the Government machinery. If we are going to allow some people, a few of people, to use this money as they please, then we do not know where we stand.

Mr. Speaker, on page 4 of the Statement of Excesses 1965/66 there is a paragraph which states:—

“The Public Accounts Committee accepted the Accounting Officer’s explanation of the excess was caused by miscalculation of provision within the Ministry but warned that the Accounting Officer should exercise greater care in the future.”

This is vague. How did the miscalculation come about? During the time of the former Government if anybody lost money in this way he had to go to jail. Nowadays you hear that in the Ministry of Lands and Settlement some money is being lost. You hear that in the Ministry of Agriculture so much money has been lost. Yet you hear that the Ministers concerned have been lenient. When this money is being misused in this way, we should take into consideration the poor children, the Certificate of Primary Education school-leavers. When I drive from here to Kisii, every week I find the road along Nakuru full of school-leavers, people who want money, people who want something to eat. In my own constituency children take cattle from their own parents to sell because they have nothing to do, nothing to eat.

Mr. Speaker, if we are being asked every time to bless the losses by Government, that is wrong. To bring us Bills like this one and to say, “You give this your blessings. It was a mistake on the part of an accounting officer.”, then we expect that the Attorney-General will get hold of this accounting officer, in most cases the Permanent Secretary to a Ministry, and take him to court. However, to our surprise we find they are lenient.

The Administration Police or the Tribal Police are beating people every time at home. Last night, at about 6.30 p.m. at Solik Tea Company there were people being beaten by the Administration Police because they wanted the people to pay tax, to show receipts for the tax they—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are getting rather outside this Bill now, Mr. Kebaso. You can complain of the House being asked to approve such large over-expenditure or, in some cases, excesses, unauthorized excesses, but we cannot get on to all the other ways in which this money might have been better used. That is getting far too far outside this Bill.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, I obey your ruling however, this Statement of Excesses is always here—excess means money, and yet you do not want me to comment on money being lost. When we have had this money being spent in a year, that means that that expenditure is based on the Estimates which we passed; but this is above the Estimates that we authorized. When we had the Estimates for 1965-66, we approved so much money to be spent during that time, and this excess means that more money was used than the amount we approved in this House. So, when I show my regret on what has been going on, I want to show, at the same time, that this money comes from the hard-working farmers, the poor people in the reserves who are being molested and asked to pay the graduated personal tax. They must be told that the money they pay is being used properly. There is nothing wrong with that, Mr. Speaker. We encourage people to pay money, the money comes into the pocket of the Government and that is the time when we want the money to be used properly. There is nothing wrong with that.

[Mr. Kebaso]

Mr. Speaker, we do not know whether the hon. Minister for Finance is negligent. Either we must have somebody else appointed Minister for Finance or else— We do not expect the Minister for Finance to come to the House only once a year, at the time when he is making the Budget Speech, and not any more. We do not see him here except on that one occasion. We only see him once in 12 months.

Government wants me to tell the voters that they should pay graduated personal tax, income tax and so on. What about us Members of Parliament? We are asked to pay graduated personal tax, then Pay-As-You-Earn, something else—we pay a lot of money and there is almost nothing that is sent to our bankers. And then when we come here we are told that so much money has been lost, but you approve this because this was an unfortunate mistake, the accounting officer did not take care. How long is such a thing going to go on? Now this is No. 2 excess and we may get No. 3 and so on. All the time we are told there is excess, excess.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, while I do not agree that we should give our blessing to this excess—this has been passed now because we are presently at the Third Reading—I would like to say that since this money is paid by poor people, it should be spent carefully. We hope Government will stop, from now on, this over-expenditure, otherwise we will have to tell the people not to pay their graduated personal tax.

We must not give money to those who are on the super-scale. What if he dies tonight? Are we going to take him from the grave and make him —the Permanent Secretary—answer as accounting officer? Sir, you always hear them say that he cannot go on leave because there is nobody to replace him. What about when he dies? This is a very bad statement, to say there is nobody to replace one person. What about the Under-Secretaries? We want that while some person is on leave, the person next to him will replace him and learn his work, and the same thing should apply to the person who comes next in line. All these people who come one under others should understand the persons above them so that at some time or other they can act in the latter's place when necessary. This is how a Government should be run, how a country should be run. But we should not have such things as this, when people are short of money in the bank they say, "We want money in lieu of leave." I do not think we should have bank overdrafts—

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, while I hate to interrupt my good friend, do you not agree with me that he is repeating what he has said and even going outside the scope of the Bill?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, I do not know whether he is repeating what he said on the Second Reading because I do not know what he said on the Second Reading. However, he is tending, slightly, to wander away from the scope of the Bill.

Mr. Kebaso, I know you are trying to make suggestions about the improvement of the mechanism of the Civil Service, but do not go too far away though. You had better come to the subject of excess expenditure on this particular Bill.

Mr. Kebaso: Sir, when you allow shepherds to go on slaughtering goats, it is just like allowing these people to collect money and then spend it as they want. If you do not correct him, that man will not care.

I want to tell the accounting officers that this money is not theirs, it is public money. We collect this money even from the poor women who have very little or no money for themselves. So it is bad to use this money in the wrong way. We do not want to come here and have the Government tell us that so much money was lost and that we should write it off. That is a wrong statement. We do not want this.

I do not want to continue with this very unhappy report of talking and asking for excess expenditure. But since I am a Member of the Government, and any party Member can criticize party policy but at the time of voting he must leave his party policy, I will have to approve now.

With these few remarks, I support this excess.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): (Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I rise also to give views on the other side.

Excesses are not necessarily extravagancies. It has been said here that money has been misappropriated, money has been spent unwisely. However, what happens— For instance, one of the items that Members were asked to approve was over-expenditure in the Prisons. When there is a wave of crime and people have to be pushed in, extra numbers are involved that were not anticipated when the Bill was brought before this House. Are these people going to be left out? Are they not going to be maintained?

An hon. Member: Poor planning.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): We do not plan for crime, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

These are some of the things that are unexpected and they must be met from Supplementary Estimates and so on, such as we have here. All that excess, in that case, would mean, Sir, is that of the Vote that was originally brought to this House and approved, because of necessity the Ministry or the head of the department, has had to go over and above what was expected because of the unexpected occurrences. Let it not be taken that all the time the Ministries are extravagant or careless, or that all the accounting officers spend the money as if it was their money and not public money. They are extremely careful Sir, but there are circumstances when you cannot help spending money.

What happens when, as we have today, people talking about teachers? An increase comes in the middle of a financial year. Where does the Minister responsible get the money from? He has to come to this House and ask for extra money, for a supplementary amount of money. So this is the reason for the word "Excess" in this Bill. This must not be taken today as a reflection, on the part of the Government, of careless spending.

The Second Schedule that we approved at the Second Reading, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is also a clear reflection of the Government's efficiency in implementing the Development Plan in this country. Sometimes you have an order placed with a country for certain articles or objects required for a development project and these things do not arrive on time during that financial year. The Minister or the Government has to come to this House and say, "Such-and-such a sum approved during last year's financial estimates was not spent and we want to use it during this financial year. This money belongs to the previous year's Estimates, as already approved. Therefore, when the House is informed of this kind of thing, Members should not think that the Government is trying to spend any more money or is being careless in spending the money.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like only to correct what the Minister is trying to defend. What he is trying to defend is exactly what is happening. It is carelessness, sheer carelessness, on the part of accounting officers not to control their votes for which they are responsible. If they were controlling their votes, certainly they would know if they were overspending. I want him to listen to me carefully, because I have been dealing, in the Public Accounts Committee, with these accounting officers who overspent money, thus touching on money which is unauthorized in their votes. They go on spending, and when the auditors come they then find they have overspent their votes. They have used extra money from somewhere, which is not known, which is unauthorized, and this is what is worrying the Members here. The Members would like each Ministry and each accounting officer to be careful in controlling his Ministry's vote; before they overspend they must be able to make supplementary estimates in time. Normally, we do not quarrel with supplementary estimates. If they bring in supplementary estimates, they are approved in this House. There is no quarrel with them. The quarrel is about money which is used without authority, and we are now being asked to regularize matters. Now you can see that we are legalizing them after several years. When it is found that the Members are quarrelling with something like this, the Ministers must accept it and be very careful in dealing with their accounting officers and see that they are careful in future.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, at our last Public Accounts Committee meeting we gave a very serious warning to all accounting officers, and I would like it to be known in this House. We told them that if in future there was such carelessness in the expenditure of Government money or public money, which is not authorized by this House, we would recommend to this House the surcharge or refund of some of the money which is spent, and whoever is responsible should be made to refund this money to the public. If he goes on using money which has not been authorized, instead of asking the House to legalize the money, in future we should recommend to this House not to approve such expenditure, but to ask the respective officers who are responsible for it to be responsible also for the refund of such money. We also gave a serious warning that they must be careful in controlling their votes. There is always adequate time for passing the Supplementary Estimate No. 1 and No. 2. The accounting officers have enough time to do this, to come to this House, and then they will have enough money to pay. Even if there was an emergency in this country, they could still include the request for additional money in their supplementary estimate and bring the request to this House in time for approval.

However, if there were a special case, I am sure the House would consider it; but in many cases with which we have been confronted, we think the excess expenditure had been merely on the grounds that the accounting officers are careless in the control of the various votes.

As such, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have no more to add on this, but I want the House to understand what may confront them as far as recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee are concerned.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I stand to support the Bill, but at the same time I would like to disagree with some of the remarks made by the Minister, the hon. Nyagah, because I believe that if we left them to go unchallenged it would amount to condoning inefficiency in the Civil Service in Kenya.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have a lot of experience with the accounting systems both of the Government and also of local government, where I have been a member and responsible for making estimates for the last nine years. I can claim to have working knowledge. A state of excess expenditure usually arises as a result of the people preparing the budget or estimates having lack of foresight, as it is called, in that they do not see what they are going to do in the coming 12 months. They make their estimates, only to find that in the first four months something comes up which they were not prepared for, and therefore that calls for additional expenditure.

In this case, I think we have to advise the Government, and they in turn should advise the Civil Service, and this is particularly important for the various Ministries which normally formulate their budget requirements and then channel them to the Treasury. Each Ministry has to work out and know exactly what their requirements are going to be, not only for the coming 12 months but for the coming two years, so that we are not faced with a situation such as we have now where a Ministry brings in a requirement for so many thousand pounds. What I am asking is that the Government should work on the question of foresight, and also careful preparation in formulating our annual Budget.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the second point I would like to emphasize here is something on which to some extent I agree with the Leader of the Opposition, although normally I do not agree with him. However, on this one I think we do agree. We all come from Western Kenya, anyway. When a request is made for a supplementary estimate or budget, it should not be spent before permission is asked. First, a person should be able to see that a situation has arisen, and therefore he requires so much money. He should bring the supplementary estimate so that we can approve it before he goes ahead and does what he intends to do. As I have seen in some cases, something comes up, the money is spent and then the request comes here in a general form. This is a state of excess and so much money is required to cover the expenses up to, say, the end of June. Obviously, everything which we expected to do was debated here last June, and then a certain sum of money was voted. If the Government did not think of particular items, it is up to them to do something, because we pay them to be efficient. We do not pay them to overlook things.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, on such an occasion, normally we do not speak for very long, but I thought these two points were very vital. We have to point them out to the Government so that in turn, they go and advise their officers. I do not mind if they are a bit red-eyed in the Civil Service. After all, that is the way you get somebody to do something in independent Kenya.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Minister has been trying to defend an issue which it is impossible to defend, and in fact it was not wise to try and defend a warning, because normally it is a warning which is sounded in the Third Reading. There is no argument, in fact, he has invited argument and two Members have answered him. This is unfortunate. I refer to the Minister for Natural Resources, the hon. Nyagah. He invited an argument, and this is unfortunate. The thing is this—

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member for Nakuru to impute a motive which I did not have? I never defended anything, but I said that I was going to put another point of view, and I stated two cases where it is possible to incur excesses unexpectedly.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is a debatable question as to what one means by defending a thing. You were trying to explain certain eventualities where an excess expenditure might be necessary, but I think Mr. Mwithaga considered unfortunate this defence of expenditures which have already taken place. I do not think he is out of order, but you have made your point.

Mr. Mwithaga: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Fortunately, you are a lawyer, and the hon. Minister in not a lawyer. The view he was stating was actually a defence, because he said there was no carelessness, and denying it is defending it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, what I was trying to say was that the Government now must consider reducing the number of offices with A.I.E. Authority to Incur Expenditure. It is among this number that we find the excesses. There are so many, and they use that authority all over the country, and much money is spent. It is impossible to keep writing to them and telling them that their authority should only be used to a certain extent when it is needed in a given district. What they should do is try and centralize the places where such authority to incur expenditure is allowed to operate, and in that way there would only be a few centres of authority, rather than there being numerous centres.

Another point is that this issue is always a two-way traffic. On one hand, while we are warning the Government about such excess expenditure, we admit that our Government has been honest, because if it were not honest it would not have published this excess expenditure. It would have been hidden, something would have happened somewhere, it would have been written-off somewhere at a closed session and the people would not have learned anything about it. This honesty on the part of the Government is most welcome, and it is encouraging. Let the people know where you are wrong, let the people know where you are right. Therefore, I feel the Government should not be afraid to keep the public informed when they have overspent our money, so that when we ask for more graduated personal tax, or other money, they know what they are spending. Sometimes, we have to bear the blame, sometimes we have to swallow the pill, bitter as it is, and that is why we are the Government. That is why I feel that when we are to blame, we must also consider the aspect of honesty and dishonesty, because this is where many governments fail.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, while warning the Government against a lot of centres of A.I.E., I should also—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): What is A.I.E.?

Mr. Mwithaga: It is interesting the Attorney-General asking me that question, and yet he advised the Government legally to use A.I.E. A.I.E. for his information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is Authority to Incur Expenditure. I was once a civil servant.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with those few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think we all know that over-expenditure on something genuine is not a crime and that it is not uncommon, but I would have thought that after five years of independence, it was high time we started to learn what to expect. This has been happening twice or thrice a year, and I still do not see why, with the monetary experts we have in the Ministry of Finance, they cannot oversee this so that they put an element of this nature in our Budget. Unless something happens very suddenly to warrant these small internal budgets, it makes nonsense of our June Budget. We regard the June Budget as the real thing, and after the Budget in June, Ministries work hard day and night to try to anticipate what next year's expenditure will be. Now we are having these middle budgets where petrol might go up and supplementary approval are brought before us every so often, and these reduce the importance of the main Budget. Unfortunately, this is the last session. We will not test the Ministries again for some time, perhaps. No one can guarantee that we will have the same Ministers. However, we hope that this has left a small mark on his record that he is the only Minister who has brought in record Supplementary Estimates in this House, and we would like the officers to take care to see that at least we have only one supplementary budget in a year, rather than this off and on.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when some Members criticize certain items here, I think that they should be given time because when we are criticizing different heads, it is not with the intention of criticizing only. Some of these figures we quote in here, which are the amounts we say are too little, but the Minister always opposes the Members, saying that the estimate is correct. Sometimes it is too small. If they were to allow Members to go through the whole item and then take Members' advice, I think it would help save the unnecessary time we spend here in reapproving things we have already approved.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like us to discuss as many Ministries as possible after the Budget Speech so that we may be able to go through many Ministries and point out the shortcomings. I am sure that most of this is found in these Ministries that are never discussed during the Budget Speech. During the Budget Speech, we discuss a few Ministries and the rest go under the hammer of the Guillotine and I hope that this year, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we shall be allowed to discuss many Ministries, scrutinize them and give advice, because the country may be found without a Parliament to approve Supplementary Estimates between December and March next year when the whole country will be having a General Election.

[Mr. Jahazi]

Therefore, a Minister may require something to spend during this time but there will be no Parliament to approve that. This is perhaps thinking a loud, but I hope those will be the days when this will prove to be right.

With those few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, we will get one more chance, Mr. Okelo-Odongo; then after that we can put the closure, I think.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not think I have much to say on this since our Members have said most of the things I would like to have said.

There is only one very important thing here, on this question of Supplementary Estimates, and especially with the Ministry of Agriculture. There is so much more money being required—£343,000—that, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think the Ministry has no excuse at all because the Ministry should be quite aware of what it will need during the course of the year and there is no reason why it should be so off the point, by so many thousands of pounds, and especially when the expenditure involves things like personal emoluments and salaries. They should have the normal staff that they have with things like vaccines and so forth. I think this might amount to too much free-spending because so much extra money is being required. This matter was not discussed under the Supplementary Estimates because there was no time for that, but he should watch next year if the requirement for the Ministry of Agriculture will be as much as it is today. It seems that there is something definitely wrong there. We have all these items like marketing for livestock. Now, what we do not know is about the money that is being taken for marketing livestock; one expected that this should have come directly from the people who sell the cattle, or sell the stock. Now, if it is due to some other unforeseen reasons, is this money going to be refunded to the consolidated fund, and if so, when?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think the Ministry of Agriculture is extravagant and is spending too much money on too many things, the value of which is questionable.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will call upon the Mover to reply.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think that most of the points raised by hon. Members are almost the same as those that were raised when this particular matter was discussed when it was the subject of a Motion before this House.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do agree with the hon. Members' remarks and, particularly, those forwarded by the Leader of the Opposition, in his capacity as Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee when he said that accounting officers in the different Ministries should exercise control over expenditure of their respective votes. I would like to make it clear here that we, in the Treasury, share the same views and we appreciate the scrutiny and recommendations made by the Public Accounts Committee. I can safely say that we have taken such recommendations very seriously and we have acted accordingly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to remove some of the confusions perhaps prevailing in the minds of certain hon. Members in as far as expenditure of excesses are concerned. Some hon. Members think, perhaps, that the excesses that we have been asking the House to legalize were misappropriations or money lost, but I would like to make it clear here that the excesses of expenditure that we have been demanding legalization of in this House, are moneys spent by accounting officers of the different Ministries on matters that were perhaps not anticipated when they were presenting their Supplementary Estimates. I do agree that authority should have been sought before such expenditure and, in agreeing with the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee, we in the Treasury have gone to the extent of telling the accounting officers that, in future, if any money is spent without authority, then they will have to meet the money incurred. Therefore, I would like to assure the hon. Members that the recommendations of the Public Accounts Committee were implemented and, as such, Members are assured that in future such things will not crop up.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to assure the hon. Members that their views are noted. And with these few remarks, I beg to move.

THE AFRICAN ASSURANCE AND PROVIDENT CORPORATION LIMITED BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to report that a Committee of the whole House has considered the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill and approved the same without amendment.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the African Assurance and Provident Corporation Limited Bill be now read the Third Time.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have very few words on this. We debated the whole Bill and we understand it, but the Government must now start getting conscious of what may tend to be a habit, that is running to the rescue of some of these firms in the future. One thing is that we might have too many of these types of companies because we have Kenatco and we have this assurance company, and we do not know how many others we may have in future. The thing the Government should do now is find out immediately when a company is registered, what its capital shareholding is, and other economic viability—

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, are these matters which the hon. Member should mention at the Third Reading of the Bill?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We certainly do not want very much debate on a Third Reading, but it is open to hon. Members to discuss again, briefly, the principle of the Bill, as long as they do not repeat what has been said during the debate on the Second Reading.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Attorney-General was knocking about when I was speaking last time and I will not repeat a word I said last time. This is a mere warning, and I have said it is a warning. The Government must be warned, and even the Attorney-General must be warned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am trying to warn against is this issue becoming a habit; the resort to Government for rescue. We have two companies now and we do not know how many there are ahead. The statesmen will be involved and we will be asked to vote this money. Therefore, the Government must start having a strong control on somebody being established in the registers so that we know their financial and other positions before they can become a headache to the nation. We have got to be aware of such things, and that is why we are the Government.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has said the same thing all over again, like a gramophone, and he is not saying anything new.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I do not remember what the hon. Member said during the Second Reading, but you must not repeat what you said then, Mr. Mwithaga.

Mr. Mwithaga: I know what the Attorney-General wants: he just wants this Bill passed like that; and so, if that is what he wants, I can sit down and he can have it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that I was warning, and in fact I have warned—and for the Attorney-General's information—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Did you give this warning during the Second Reading?

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Yes.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it really correct for the Attorney-General to continue provoking me so that I cannot follow what I am trying to say? He should be controlled too.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I asked you a question, Mr. Mwithaga: did you give this warning on the Second Reading, because if so you must not repeat it?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not give any warning on the Second Reading; we debated the substance of the Bill without a warning. During the Third Reading all I am doing is warning.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope that warning will be taken seriously by the Attorney-General. In effect he will have these companies treating Government as a rescue boat and he will be responsible. That is why he should consider this very seriously, as his officers are the ones who are responsible in this matter.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, in the hope that the Attorney-General is going to over-work himself in scrutinizing the financial feasibilities of these companies before they become a headache, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If there is no other hon. Member wishing to speak, I will call on the Mover.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the views voiced by the hon. Member are noted and, therefore, I beg to move.

BILL

Second Reading

THE STATUTE LAW (MISCELLANEOUS
AMENDMENTS) BILL*(The Attorney-General on 5th June 1969)(Resumption of debate interrupted on 5th June 1969)*

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before resuming the debate on this Bill I would point out to hon. Members that the Attorney-General has now provided them with copies of all the sections of the existing laws which are affected by his proposed amendments, including the amendment which he wants to move to the Bill when we are in the Committee stage. Hon. Members will find them in their pigeon holes if they have not found them already.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, a copy of the main amendment to which the Attorney-General wanted us to pay attention only came to us this afternoon. As a matter of fact I got my copy in this Chamber, and therefore my homework was not done at all. That is in connexion with the amendment that he intends to move, and I think if I am right this is one of the main amendments.

Mr. Speaker, I have to listen to the Chair because it is the Chair which we address.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, now that you have brought it to our notice that the Attorney-General has just given us the main amendment, and before the reading of the Bill you also gave us notice that he would be doing that later, I would like to ask you that as some of us who spoke on that Bill without the material necessary for the discussion of the Bill, and I remember you calling me to order most of the time because I was going out most of the time because I did not have this material, would it be at your discretion to allow those people who spoke first of all to be given another chance to speak at this time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think I am right in saying that the only further copies of the existing law which were required from the Attorney-General were those relevant to the amendment of the Bill which he intends to move during the Committee stage. Therefore, it is only necessary to have that existing law before you when we come to the Committee stage, when you will have full opportunity to discuss this particular, very important amendment, introducing the death penalty for certain offences. As we stand, we should really be debating the Bill as it stands, and not that proposed amendment.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That communication from the Chair has made matters rather better for me because I was a little worried because I had not done my homework on the amendment, but I have done my homework on this Bill.

Mr. Speaker, may I draw your attention to the speech by the Attorney-General when he was moving this Miscellaneous Amendment Bill: he did touch on the question of the Registration of Businesses Act, and he did tell us that the present law is being amended because it is now required that the Registrar of Societies get evidence before registering anything. This I think is a very good move on the whole because we have had problems in the past, and even at the moment, where we have had several organizations registered somehow and some resolutions have been passed by a few individuals in a certain cottage, in a certain corner of Kenya, and they have altered various things.

Mr. Speaker, this is also taking me back to one of my maendeleo projects for my women in Butere who gathered themselves together and got themselves registered as maendeleo women, and they have been working very hard clearing bushes and weeding and building houses, putting mud on huts and so forth, and they raised something like Sh. 600. However, later some clever person went around and took the book from one of the treasurers and called a small meeting; that person has now taken the money from the poor women and they are still complaining. I have sent a letter to the Attorney-General's Chambers saying that we have had elections and that So-and-so and So-and-so are, in fact, office bearers.

Mr. Speaker, I agree that evidence must be produced because this has been going on, and that is why it is killing the spirit of maendeleo itself. Those women no longer meet. When I reported this matter, about which the women complained, to the police, the police just dilly-dallied and as of today they have done nothing about it. This is wrong and I think that in future evidence must be required in order to prove that this or that did really take place.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, I did not hear the Attorney-General say anything about the registration of societies. Let us take, for instance, the present confusion in Kanu where you have different group meetings and then you submit the names to the Registrar and he acknowledges the receipt of the names of those people, and then there is one group against another. This is causing a lot of chaos in this country. I think more evidence, also in this case, must be received from those who are applying and they must satisfy that the evidence they produce is the true evidence. This has caused a lot of problems, and those problems are not going to end until the Registrar's office wakes up and sees something is done. I realize, Mr. Speaker, it cannot be done until this Bill goes through and that is why I think this must be looked into very seriously. For example, you will find, in Butere itself, that some people were issued with licences to go and hold meetings with a few friends of theirs. This brings me to the problem of the district commissioners who are responsible for this confusion of this political chaos in this country, because they only give licences to their friends.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, I think you are under some misapprehension which another hon. Member suffered from earlier in the same debate. This Bill does not actually touch the Registration of Societies Act; it only touches the Registration of Business Names Act. The confusion arises from the fact that in introducing the Bill, the Attorney-General did refer, casually, to the Societies Act, and the hon. Members got the impression that the Bill actually deals with that Act, but it does not. I am afraid we have got to keep to the amendments proposed by the Bill.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Unfortunately, because of what was said by the Attorney-General, we rather wanted to touch on this Registration of Societies Act. I hope that in the near future he will bring an amendment to that one so that we will require evidence and we will dispense with this chaotic situation which now prevails. I support that idea, that evidence must be given.

Mr. Speaker, I come to the second point, which is about the Land Adjudication Act, on which the Attorney-General touched. He said that the payment of fees was not necessary unless a particular person wants to pay that fee for application for the purposes of having it for commercial reasons. I welcome this because the poor man in the countryside does not have the money to pay for this; some of them are very poor and they cannot afford it. I welcome this most wholeheartedly because it gives the ordinary man a chance to register his land in his name so that no one in the future will take it away from him. However, the question is this: how far is the Attorney-General going to have this propagated? I come from an adjudication area myself and the poor people do not know what is going on. Some of them have their land taken from them by some people who have a lot of money, and so forth. How is the Attorney-General going to stop this? I recommend that the Attorney-General should get in touch with the Administration and, as Shikuku, the Member for Butere, I will do the best on my part. It should be put over the radio, and also propagated everywhere, that the administration fees are not going to be there as far as this land adjudication business is concerned. This will help a great deal.

I would like to pass on, Sir, because I do not wish to dwell very much on some of these amendments. However there are some which are very nasty indeed, Sir, and I will come to them later. I am coming to this question of the age of girls, as to when they can get married and so forth; the age being pushed up from 14 to 16 years of age—I hope I got the Attorney-General right there—reduced from 16 to 14, is it? If that is the case, Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Find the actual amendment to which you are referring, or perhaps the Attorney-General can help you.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He says he will not help you.

Mr. Shikuku: I had my own Bill; the Bill I have here I borrowed from the Minister for Information. The Bill on which I did my homework was pinched by somebody and that is why I had to borrow the one of hon. Osogo. The Attorney-General does not seem to be very co-operative, but nevertheless, I think I am getting it right. I think it is the other way round, that is from 16 to 14— If this is so, I object seriously, because a girl at 14 is not grown up enough and I would not like the idea of reducing the age. As a matter of fact—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is referring to the Criminal Procedure Code, proposed amendment to section 186. That is what you are referring to.

Mr. Shikuku: The Criminal Procedure Code, Sir, says replace “16” with “14”.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is only the marginal note which is being altered and not the substance of the Act. It is not a very serious alteration.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I am really put off balance because of somebody stealing my Bill. Mr. Speaker, I know it is the marginal note but it says replace “16” with “14” on page 23. Does the amendment not mean that the age is now coming down from 16 to 14 years of age?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. If you are only amending a marginal note, it probably means that it ought to have been amended a long time ago because it is not consistent with the substance of the Act. You see, marginal notes are not actually part of the law, they are only just sign posts to people studying the law.

Mr. Shikuku: I see, Sir.

[Mr. Shikuku]

If it is just a question of a marginal note replacing "16" with "14"—I hope God will punish the person who stole my Bill.

Now, Sir, as far as the ages of girls in this country is concerned, I am of the opinion that the law should be amended according to the customs here, and not seriously taking into account the Western style of thinking. According to our customary laws and traditions, you find that in the olden days our girls could not get married unless they were over 23 years of age, or even 27 years; even men only married when they were over the age of 30 years. We had very reasonable men then, men of courage, men of principles, who knew what they were doing and they were not the vague sort of men which we have these days. The men these days are marrying very young and they produce children who are not useful to our society.

When a girl reaches a certain age, she may be attracted by men or men may be attracted to her, but we must limit when it will become offensive and when it will not become offensive. Personally, I think we should go according to our traditions, and we can even put the age up to 18, 20 or 22 years of age. By then, the girl can think for herself and she will be considered fit to face any matters that may confront her. I do not believe in this Western type of thing because we have a lot of things going wrong and the result, Mr. Speaker, is that the men and women we have these days are very weak, and even, Sir—For example, women cannot deliver unless they go to a maternity hospital.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Shikuku. I do not think any of this is touched by anything proposed in this Bill.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, Mr. Speaker. I am slightly off track there and I will come back. I know the Attorney-General is not experienced and so I am giving him a lecture—he does not have to pay me for it.

Now, Sir, I am coming to the question of currency offences. The Attorney-General told the House that the magistrates are now going to have power to try the small cases concerning amounts of money which are not very large indeed. I have been disappointed in the past, Mr. Speaker, when I have read in the Press that So-and-so was found fiddling with our currency but he is only sent to jail for two weeks, or for one month and so on. I think this is a very serious thing. Even for one cent, anybody contravening this law, the law as far as currency is concerned, that man should be sent in for one year. When you catch a thief, it is not the first time he is committing an offence. He has been doing it, and after his 40 days have elapsed, then that is the time you catch him. My submission, Mr. Speaker, is that I am of the opinion, although the Attorney-General says that cases involving small amounts of money should be tried by some magistrates to lessen the work at the top, I feel there is no question of a small amount. Even if it is five cents, that particular expatriate, or that particular citizen who is fiddling with the currency should be put in jail and also be given strokes to teach him a lesson. There is no question of a little money. If he stole, let us say, £2,000, this man should be put inside for life. He is sucking money from this country and we are fighting to retain money in this country. If somebody is fiddling, then I do not think that should be considered small as the Attorney-General would like us to believe. The magistrates must be more vigilant and deal with the people who are fiddling around with our money very, very seriously indeed.

Having said that, Mr. Speaker, I know the Attorney-General will consider it, and I think there should be some regulations given to these magistrates to give harsher punishment to these people who play about.

Section 47A, of which the Attorney-General informed the House, is in connexion with abuse of the court. This is about reports of criminal proceedings appearing in newspapers and so on, and he was trying to get the people from the court not to be involved before this, that and the other. Mr. Speaker, I am of the opinion that the public must be informed of the proceedings in the court. If any person is sent to court, for no matter how small an offence, then we should have exact reports of what goes on in the court. At the same time the people in the court, where the business has been conducted, and which has been reported by the newspapers, should be in a position to come and give evidence in the case of that newspaper being sued by the person being tried. The only thing is I would warn the newspapers not to be biased in their reporting, and I do not think many newspapers here are biased, and they should be reporting the exact things which go on and not try to lead the public, or anyone else, making him believe that a particular person is guilty before the case has been concluded, giving the impression that the person is not guilty at all.

I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker, that this clause should not be amended but should be left as it is whereby the newspapers can keep us informed about the trial of hon. Omwari, or hon. Shikuku, or hon. Munoko, so that we have actual reporting. This will enable us, although we are not judges, we are not pundas and can read between the lines—to know something about hon. Munoko or hon. Omweri. The fact that one is a lawyer does not mean he is an angel; he can make a mistake. We people who make the laws here, the majority of us are not lawyers at all. We are laymen but we have grey matter upstairs and we can easily know what is wrong and what is right. To assume that we are like pundas, we in this House, is very wrong. We are capable, some of us here, Mr. Speaker—I know we are not trained but if the Attorney-General gave us coaching for one year we may even surprise some of the lawyers in the country. We did not receive any training so we are bush lawyers.

I do not see the point, Mr. Speaker, of amending this section at all. I want it to stay as it is and let the newspapers report accurately, and when the worst comes to the worst the newspapers and the court could come together and give a report of what happened when that particular person sues the newspaper.

The Fugitive Act, Mr. Speaker, is one of the Acts that we have talked about here, and I welcome it very much. Mr. Speaker, may I warn the Attorney-General about the Fugitive Act? Things change and I believe in the Latin phrase which says Tempora mutantur et nos mutantur in illis, which means that as time changes we ought to change along with time. Things may go smoothly but there comes a time when things can go wrong, and this Fugitive Act could be used by certain individuals to have certain of their political enemies eliminated wherever they are. Mr. Speaker, as the Fugitive Act stands now, it is quite all right to catch the criminals, but the word "criminal" is sometimes interpreted in different ways.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, the amendments of this particular Act proposed by this Bill do not really touch the substance of the Act at all. I am afraid they do not give scope for discussing the merits of the Act itself. We have to confine ourselves to the actual amendments proposed here which, with regard to this Act, are purely formal amendments.

I have to tell you that on the previous occasion when you were referring to Section 186 of the Criminal Procedure Code, I learn that you were more relevant than appeared from the Bill, because the word "and" has been omitted from the Schedule by mistake, and the Schedule does purport actually to amend Section 186 as well as the marginal note. On the other hand, it is only following up in the Criminal Procedure Code a substantive amendment which has already been made in the Penal Code a short time ago. You are entitled to discuss that because the substance of the section is being amended. The Attorney-General will move a suitable amendment to put it right in the Committee Stage.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will come to that point later as I have something to say now that you have been very considerate and have pointed out to me that I can discuss it, I will leave the Fugitive Act as you have ruled, Mr. Speaker. I have a feeling that things can change but let us hope they will not change whereby we pursue our enemies and eliminate them wherever they are, which is wrong. If you eliminate, then you will also be eliminated in the long run.

Now, Sir, I am referring to the amendment of section 67, which is under the Prisons Act. Mr. Speaker, they say there "replace '18' years with '17' years". Mr. Speaker, when the Attorney-General was moving this amendment he gave the reason that we should have these people between 17 and 21 years of age going for Borstal training. I think I welcome this, Mr. Speaker, because many of our young men have become very bad. When they become mixed up with the professional criminals they come out and try to practice what they have learned from the professionals who are in prison.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to know one thing. I would like to know when the Borstal training is going to be established and also where it is going to be established. There is a tendency all the time to have everything in Nairobi. There are a lot of criminals in the Western Province, there are criminals in the Coast Province, criminals in the Eastern Province, and everywhere. I think when the Government comes to implement this they should establish the Borstal training schools for youths in every province so that we have all the criminals, the young men wherever they are, looked after and rehabilitated through this type of schools. I would like that point to be considered seriously.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is about females. The Attorney-General a very big advocate and a defender of females in this House, though he is a bachelor—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): What is wrong with that?

Mr. Shikuku: There is nothing wrong. I said that although you are a bachelor, probably you have a reason for defending women. However, I agree with the Attorney-General when he talks of females now to be working outside the prison compound like men. After all there is a talk, and

[Mr. Shikuku]

I think it is a loose talk, of equality of men and women. I think these women should also be felling trees as men do because they want equality.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Are you agreeing with the equality between men and women?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with it. However, if this is the talk, let them do it physically by working outside the camps like men. Let them feel the pinch by felling trees and let us see how far they can go. Personally, Mr. Speaker, I know that we cannot be equal to women because even the Bible itself does not say so. Jesus, when He was on earth, Mr. Speaker, appointed the 12 Apostles and none of them was a woman. If He knew that they were equal, He should have appointed one woman at least. It is a theory in the Western countries that women are equal to men. However, I do not believe in this. I believe in my Bible. Jesus can never make a mistake, and therefore He was right in not appointing any woman to be one of his Apostles.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having said that, this treatment of women—Mr. Speaker, Sir, nobody can answer that. Mr. Pandya is asking me to ask the Attorney-General to answer. He cannot answer that because none of the 12 Apostles was a woman. If they were equal, He would have appointed one. Therefore the treatment of prisoners should be the same, and I agree with the Attorney-General. Therefore women and men criminals, let us have the same treatment for them and there should be no discrimination.

An hon. Member: Go home and exercise your equality there.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I will probably go to my home. Nevertheless, unfortunately or fortunately on the part of the Attorney-General, my wife does not believe in equality between men and women. She agrees that she is my wife and I am the boss and chairman of everything all the time. So there is no problem in my home and he should not worry about it.

An hon. Member: What is he asking you?

Mr. Shikuku: He is asking me about my home. It is quite safe.

Mr. Pandya: Can you substantiate that you are the boss?

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, I am the boss, you can ask her; I am an African.

Now, Sir, I am going to section 38, on page 25, on which the Attorney-General gave an explanation—under “The Liquor Licensing Act”

(Cap. 121). It says: “Replace ‘Inspector’ with ‘Assistant Inspector’”.

Mr. Speaker, in his explanation he told us that it would not be necessary for an inspector to go round arresting people who break the Liquor Act, and that a policeman could go round instead. This Liquor Licensing becomes a big nuisance. Sometimes we have had people being unnecessarily interfered with. We have had a case in Bahati where an hon. Member was interfered with when he had bought a bottle of beer and a bit of meat and was taking them while in his car. The policemen were chasing him from where he had bought the bottle. However, they did not ask him where he had bought the meat. This is very interesting and I hope it is not going to be watered down to the extent where you will have so many constables going round merely in order to get a case to report. He has been on the beat and he has not had anything to report, and therefore goes round harassing people just because he wants to have something that he can report.

It is very interesting, Mr. Speaker, that when you go to a police station to report to them about liquor being taken somewhere, they will come at full speed. However, if you tell that people are fighting there or that someone has been killed somewhere, they will take the whole day before they appear on the scene. I hope this Amendment is not going to make these police more troublesome and make them find it easy to arrest people with liquor instead of arresting people who commit criminal offences. This is because when you call them they do not come quickly. However, if beer or liquor is being taken, they rush like nobody's business.

An hon. Member: They also want a bottle of beer.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I hear from an hon. Member that they also want a bottle of beer. In some cases they also get bottles of beer. This is very wrong. We should be just and not harass our people; we should let them drink. If somebody misbehaves, or is disorderly, let him be arrested. You find that some people, just because they smell beer, though they are not being disorderly, are arrested, sent in and fined. This is the place where I do not agree with this licensing law, where the policemen unnecessarily harass our people and they do not really go hunting for the criminals, but go for innocent people who are taking their drinks peacefully.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether this applies to the ordinary liquor which we have in the reserves. For example, in my place we have a drink called Busa, which is a very harmless drink, Mr. Speaker, and makes one fat and very sensible. After drinking it, any man can manage to find his way home. However, you find a policeman coming to harass the poor people who are taking that drink. The only thing which I do not support, and which I can support the police on when they harass the people is chang'aa for power. This is because it drives them out of their heads. When they have taken it they usually fall on their faces and they are even unable to lift their heads. Mr. Speaker, Sir, last year I rescued a man whom I found laying on the ground and he could not raise his head.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, does this affect the question whether you should replace "Inspector" by "Assistant Inspector"?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, why I say so is that I feel that the powers will be delegated to too low grade officers that there will be an abuse to the law.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, that is a relevant point, but you have already made it.

Mr. Shikuku: I feel there is a possibility of this being abused.

The other point I would like to make concerns page 24, the Administration Police Act, Cap. 85, section 4 (3). It says, "replace 'a magistrate' with 'an administrative officer'." I do not know why this amendment has been brought. If my memory serves me right, Mr. Speaker, there was one time when we had to appoint magistrates. We trained some at the Kenya Institute of Administration, who I understand are doing a good job; on one, so far, has been thrown into prison, and then we were trying to get powers for magistrates from administrators to deal with the cases of people. Why are we again, within this short period, replacing the magistrates? I was listening to the Attorney-General when he was speaking and I observed that he did not give a convincing reason why we should replace magistrate with "an administrative officer".

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our experience in the past has been that the magistrates or administrators were doing the job, but we were not happy. Now again they are getting the powers? I would like to get a reasonable reason—

An hon. Member: You are not following the amendment.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, if my English is right, the amendment says: "replace a magistrate with an administrative officer". The magistrate is to be replaced by an administrative officer.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Who said that?

Mr. Shikuku: Have I got the wrong Bill? Mr. Speaker, I do not disagree with the Bill I have here as it stands. In other words we are removing the powers of magistrates and giving these powers to administrative officers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Tell me where you are referring, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: I am referring to page 24; the Administration Police Act (Cap. 85) section 4 (3). It says: "replace 'a magistrate' with 'an administrative officer'." In other words, as I understand, they are removing a magistrate and replacing him by an administrative officer; which means a district officer, district commissioner, assistant district officer, district officer I and God knows what. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know why? If we removed the powers from them, why are we now returning these powers to them? We have had this so many times in the past, where administrative officers have been against politicians, after getting you into trouble he sits there and judges you. I have not been very much impressed by some of these administrative officers at all. I have not been very much impressed by some of them and if we give them this power—Sir, already they are giving us hell as far as the little power they have been given is concerned. When we fought the British colonialism for them and gave them this power we did not think they would turn against us as they are now doing. This is a wrong amendment to be made. I think it should be left as it is. If I have made a mistake, I go before a magistrate, as an independent man who has nothing against me, one who will judge me according to the law. These administrative officers, on the other hand, may differ with somebody over a bottle of beer, over a girl or something of the kind. This has been the case several times. Now you are giving him the powers to convict me or to preside over my case—this is something I do not agree with at all. It should be left in the hands of magistrates, and I do not see any reasonable reason why the Attorney-General should bring this law for amendment.

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call on Mr. Cheboiwo to move the adjournment of the House.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

THREATENED TEACHERS' STRIKE

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

[Mr. Cheboiwo]

I must thank you, Mr. Speaker, and the House for giving me the time to move this very important Motion.

Sir, this question of teachers is a matter which is well known to all of use in this House. The fact is that the teachers in this country play a great part in building the nation. We always talk about building the nation by improving our roads, tarmacking the roads, putting up nice health centres, schools and the rest of it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe the teachers in this country, and those in other parts of the world, are the proper builders of any nation, especially a growing nation like Kenya. Why is this? It is because, Sir, without the teachers teaching our future leaders there would be no good leaders for the future.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure that more than 75 per cent of the hon. Members in this House were teachers. While they were teachers I am sure they would not like to have been mistreated. I know one of them who taught in Nandi for 11 years and today he is a Member of this House. This is hon. Tsalwa. He did a very good job of teaching, he was very happy and I am sure he would not have liked to have been mistreated. I do not know what place he is a Member of, but I do know it is somewhere in the Western Province. Oh, I am told it is Kakamega.

We all know, Mr. Speaker, that leaders come and go, and I do not think any of us would believe that anybody who holds a good post, whether he be in the Government, the private sector or anywhere else was not educated properly to do a good job. The people who have educated them are the teachers.

To come to the real point which prompted me to move this Motion for the Adjournment this afternoon, Mr. Speaker, it is the approval of one Sessional Paper in this hon. House in 1967. When this Sessional Paper was brought to the House, we were all very happy because the teachers always complain to us when we go to our constituencies, when we hold public rallies, when we talk to them in private meetings, or any such discussions. They always complain. At one time they demanded one employer because they did not want to be employed by the different county councils, for example Central Rift, Baringo, Western Province and so on. This is because they were treated differently by the different county councils and they all wanted the same treatment under one employer. This was a very important demand. This was agreed to. They demanded an increment of their salaries, they wanted all sorts of things given to them as part of their service allowances and these requests were approved in this House. This was in 1967 and I am sure my friend, hon. Nyagah was the Minister for Education at that time.

Mr. Speaker, at that time we approved that the reviewing committees would meet after six months. I was very confident that they would do this, as it affected teachers, who are very important people in this country. However, I was surprised this afternoon when I heard the Minister for Education, hon. Dr. Kiano, say that the first meeting took place only on the 22nd of April this year. This means that this was only done more than 12 months later. What was his Ministry doing about this? The Minister said that the Kenya National Union of Teachers was unfair to call this strike tomorrow. I can assure the House—as far as I believe this—that the Kenya National Union of Teachers was 101 per cent correct in calling this strike. The teachers were very mistreated. The meeting was to take care of reviewing their salaries, see to the equipment and other things. If the Review Committee did sit as often as agreed in this House, then we would not have this problem at all. The teachers would have been happy but now, instead of looking into the case of the teachers the Ministers are bringing this question of 20 per cent gratuity of all the salary they have earned. They are forgetting the important things. I have nothing against the Ministers, there is no government which can be run without Ministers. This is quite all right.

Sir, I am sure that most of the Ministers here were teachers at one time, and when they were campaigning to come to this House—I remember attending several meeting in 1963 during the time of the general election—they promised the teachers that if they were voted to this House, then they would try to help them. Those who were teachers in 1963, when they were voted in, completely forgot about the teachers. They only thought of themselves.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious matter. We do not want to see these teachers going on strike tomorrow. We do not want to see our children suffer, we do not want to see some of these teachers joining the private sector because they want more pay to better their future. I know that is a good thing. I have met several of these teachers who have said that if the Government— They have said that they have confidence in the Government but there is always the use of the word “but” when saying that the Government has not looked into their affairs seriously. That is why they are joining other

[Mr. Cheboiwo]

Ministries in order to get good pay, in order to get good treatment, and such other things. If their affairs were looked after, they would certainly not have this problem today.

Mr. Speaker, I feel very strongly that something must be done forthwith. I noticed that the Minister looked very worried this afternoon. But this, I say, is too late to start working at this time, after the teachers have called a strike. What has that Ministry been doing since 1967? What about the Review Committee? Why did they not meet, why did they ignore these teachers? When the Sessional Paper was brought here, we all agreed on the recommendations that were made and certain things were resolved as I have said before. I do not want to repeat myself here, Sir. If you look at the meeting of the 22nd April this year, you will find that this only took place after 12 months.

I would like to appeal to the Ministry, and the Government as a whole, to see that they do something for the teachers. That is something that I would like the Government to do. It should call the Review Committees and discuss what has been suggested—as the Minister said this afternoon—in the recommendations of the Kenya National Union of Teachers. Let them agree—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it not be in order for me to say that the resolution was that the salaries could be increased within six months, and not after six months, because after six months means that the Minister is right. It was, however, to be within six months.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the correct record, yes.

Mr. Cheboiwo: I do not have a quarrel with my friend here, but the problem is with this committee which has not been meeting, Sir.

What I would like to do is to appeal to the Ministry, and the Government as a whole, is that the Ministry and the Government must take serious steps to see that these teachers are not allowed to go on strike tomorrow. When they do go on strike our children will suffer. Then, also, if the teachers go to different Ministries, different companies to work, it will be very, very complicated to bring them back.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I would say that the Motion is very clear and, therefore, I beg to move.

Mr. Munyi will second.

Mr. Munyi: To tell the truth, Mr. Speaker, what is important is that hon. Members will agree with me that the resolution which we are going to pass—

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since this question is a national issue, would it not be right that when we debate such an important and serious matter the Minister for Education should be here? If we just talk like parrots and the Minister is not there, then we are wasting our time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Minister has just arrived.

Mr. Munyi: All I want to say, Mr. Speaker, is that it is as clear as daylight that most of the Members in this House have been teachers. Even when you look at the other side, Sir, you will know that the Leader of the Opposition used to be a teacher. Very near me, here, I can see hon. Dr. Kiano who used to be a teacher. Therefore, I do not see the reason why every now and then we have been frustrating the teachers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers are people who form a part which is very important in our community and it is high time that the Government should do something to see to it that the conditions given to the teachers are better than the conditions given to people in the private sector and in other Government departments. Today we are talking of what is happening in the countryside. The teachers are the first people to know what is going on in the countryside and that is because they are with the people, they are there in the rural areas, and so I do not see the reason why the teachers should be told today, "This is going to happen", and then tomorrow they are told, "That is going to happen". In fact, nothing has been happening.

So, all what we are asking the Government to do is to agree—Every time there is a meeting between the Union of Teachers and the—

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister for Education is trying to take this matter very lightly, but this is not a light matter; it is a matter which is rather explosive. It is high time that the Ministry regarded this matter as a burning issue.

Today, Sir, we were told that people did not know that the teachers were going on strike. People were well informed. This was broadcast by Radio Uganda, Radio Tanzania and it was even broadcast by the international radios, that Kenya teachers were going on strike. Is the Minister not aware of that? So, to try to come here and convince us, to try to tell us that people are not aware of this, that the teachers are not going on strike, this is information which is incorrect, Mr. Speaker. Everyone knows that the teachers are going on strike. People get information from the radio and through very many other media. So, to come and tell us that whenever the teachers complain we should turn that down is wrong. It is high time that the Government should concentrate on this, the Government should comply with what was agreed. The Review Committee—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would you request the hon. Member to lower his voice so that we can hear what he is actually saying?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member would lower his voice a little, I would not have to raise mine quite so much.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that my good friend is trying to take this as a joke, but it is a very explosive matter.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Really, Mr. Munyi, it is a perfectly good point of order, because hon. Members do very often complain that you practically deafen them. Do try to moderate your voice a little. I know that you have a very strong voice.

Mr. Munyi: All that I am trying to say, Mr. Speaker, is this, and it is a fact. We want the Ministry to take immediate action. We should not be told that something is being done, but when you come to practical things you find that nothing is being done. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had the experience, as it was, only yesterday when I went to one of my schools. I have helped to build in Embu, a secondary school. I went there and found they had a shortage of more than six teachers, and for the last six months some of important subjects have not been taught. When you go to the Teachers' Commission you are told that teachers have been posted to Nairobi. Teachers have been posted to a school in Kakamega; they have been posted to a school in Mombasa, but this is not happening, Mr. Speaker. It is high time, Mr. Speaker, when the Minister—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must keep to the point of the threatened strike, and not discuss which schools are receiving more benefits than others.

Mr. Munyi: What I am trying to do, Mr. Speaker, is to concentrate on the facts. What is making the teachers go on strike, Mr. Speaker? It is because they are understaffed, and they are being overworked, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but you were getting away from the point when you said other schools were not understaffed and that this was all very unfair. That is getting away from the point.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, I was trying to give an example of one of the schools which I know, and the Minister knows this very well, Mr. Speaker, where the teachers are threatening to go on strike. This must be corrected. It is high time the Minister should correct these things.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say that the members of that particular service commission are inexperienced, but there is something wrong somewhere and we are asking the Minister today, this afternoon, this evening, to do something, because the machinery of the Teachers' Service Commission is the wrong machinery. According to the reports in the newspapers it is made very clear by the Teachers' Union that on many occasions they had been promised meetings, but when they went there they were not attended to. Nobody goes to attend these meetings, Mr. Speaker, does this not show that the machinery in the Teachers' Commission is wrong? Does it not show, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that there is inefficiency somewhere? This is all we ask the Minister to do. Whenever the Minister stands to answer questions in this House, he tells us teachers' complaints are being attended by officers of his Ministry. Mr. Speaker, Sir, whenever Members complain in this House, it should be the responsibility of the Minister himself to see to it that action is taken and things are corrected before they become worse.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to waste the time of the other Members. What I would like to emphasize, Mr. Speaker, is that I appeal to the Minister to change the machinery followed by the Teachers' Commission, and as soon as the machinery is changed, I am sure things will improve. If the Minister does not take action, our country will be under some kind of tension because this is the time when the pupils are due to sit for very important examination, and if the teachers go on strike then the pupils will not learn anything as they will not have teachers in their schools.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second very strongly, and I am appealing to the Minister to take action and see to it that he corrects the machinery of the Teachers' Service Commission.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Godia, I think you will have to limit yourself to five minutes, assuming the Minister needs five minutes in which to answer.

Mr. Godia: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me to speak on this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, the first thing I would like—

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is only a small thing. Is it not normal that you propose the Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes. Thank you very much, Mr. Kibuya.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry for my friend. I am not quite sure—but is it not a fact that in a Motion such as this, whose debate continues up to 7 o'clock, there is no need for proposing the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. This is not like a matter raised on the Adjournment in the ordinary way. This is a Motion for the Adjournment of the House while it is during the ordinary period of business, and this kind of Motion is interrupted at the ordinary time for interrupting business, which is half past six.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wanted to thank the Minister for recognizing need for one employer for the teachers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it appears the one employer does not have the power to deal with the problems of the teachers. The problems of the teachers are dealt with by the Minister himself, and that is why, Mr. Speaker, the one employer appears to be powerless.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can see that the reason for the teachers' strike, which is beginning tomorrow, is because their salaries have not been reviewed from time to time in accordance with what this House agreed in a resolution. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we agreed that every six months the salaries of the teachers should be reviewed to see what is required, and this has not been the case. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a letter which the Minister himself wrote to the teachers as a circular, No. 106, I think it is stipulated that each class should have one teacher, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers complain that there is a shortage of about 8,000 teachers. If they had 8,000 teachers all over the country, the staffing problem would have been overcome. This is a very important issue which I think the teachers are taking as a point, and I think the Minister should assure this House that he has already accepted their conditions.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that there has been no consultation on the Teachers' Code of Regulations, that is to say there have been no negotiations with the Teachers' Union and the commission, which is very unfair. I would like the Minister, when he comes to reply, to tell the House that provisions have now been made to see that their meetings for consultation over the Code of Regulations are going to continue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers do not approve of the Secretary of the Teachers' Service Commission Appeal Tribunal. The teachers would like the secretary to be an independent person and, in fact, the Minister did state here that he has already directed that an independent person be appointed to take up this position. I thought if this had been effected it would be all right, but it appears, Mr.

Speaker, Sir, that this is a direction from the Minister which has not yet reached the members of the commission. Therefore, I would appeal to the Minister now to stop the strike tomorrow and to promise the teachers that he is going to consider all their problems and satisfy them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we allow the strike to go on, starting tomorrow, this means that over 150,000 pupils will miss their education. That will cost a lot of money to the parents who pay the fees every year. I know the Minister would not like to see any of his students going to school without a teacher, and that applies to all of us.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, let us satisfy the teachers' problems by tomorrow so that they do not go on strike and their conditions are met. I would like the Minister to move that accordingly.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since the whole House is in your good hands, and you have already over-ruled another Member who asked you if you could extend the time, knowing that 150,000 children are going to be affected by this very serious matter, may I appeal to you on behalf of the House, to prolong the time from 6.30 o'clock to 7 o'clock? If you do that, you will enable us to show the Minister for Education that he is wrong in certain ways.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, I have no power to extend the period of the sitting of the House, except so far as I have very limited power to allow business to run on, perhaps for five minutes or so, or stop five minutes earlier, according to the convenience of Members. Otherwise, if it is a matter of exempting business from Standing Orders, including Standing Order 17 which fixes the hours, that can only be done on a Motion by a Minister which is carried by the House. Unless a Minister cares to move what you suggest, we will have to interrupt business very soon after 6.30.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when we have an Adjournment Motion, and the time expires when we are in the middle of debate, we normally leave the House without any resolution being passed. In this particular Motion, Sir, which we can say is of national importance, could we be given an assurance by the Minister, when he replies, that the question of the strike tomorrow is going to be looked into and arrangements made to stop the strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You will not be given any such assurance as a point of order.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a question was raised by Private Notice I spoke at length on this issue and, therefore, I will not keep the House waiting for still more ideas.

[The Minister for Education]

I would like to say that I, myself, as the hon. Member for Embu East is, am a former teacher, and I do not like any frustration by anyone. I would like to correct him when he said that nothing has been done for the teachers. This is not correct, as the House itself passed a Sessional Paper, and I hope that was not nothing.

In any case, Sir, due to the short time available to us, I would like to inform the House that the Committee on Salary Remuneration did meet this afternoon, and when they met they resolved to meet again and then they came to see the acting Minister for Labour and myself, and that is why, Sir, I was a little late when the debate started, because we were polishing up our English as to what to say to the country. I am happy to report to the House that the strike has been postponed. I would like to read the Press Statement which we have not even had time to type, Sir, but which has been signed both by the Government and the National Union of Teachers, who are present here, and I quote, Sir:—

“The Teachers Service Remuneration Committee met on the 9th June 1969 to discuss the matter of reviewing teachers' salaries and other matters connected with teachers' terms and conditions of service.

Thereafter, the Kenya National Union of Teachers met with the acting Minister for Labour, Mr. Dawson Mwanjumba, and the Minister for Education, Dr. J. G. Kiano, on these same matters. It was agreed that—

(a) the Teachers' Salaries Remuneration Committee will meet again on Tuesday, 21st

June 1969, at 2.30 p.m. to prepare the final report to be submitted to the Minister for Education.

(b) in view of the above the Kenya National Union of Teachers has postponed the strike scheduled for tomorrow, 10th June 1969, to 10th July unless a settlement has been reached by then.

(c) the Minister has undertaken to inform the Kenya National Union of Teachers of Government's decision on the report by the 10th July 1969.

Signed:

S. G. Kioni,
General-Secretary,
Kenya National Union of Teachers.

Signed:

J. K. Njoroge,
Permanent Secretary,
Ministry of Education,
on behalf of the Minister.

Witnessed by:

Dawson Mwanjumba,
Acting Minister for Labour.”
Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is just past time now for the interruption of business, so the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, 10th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty-two minutes past Six o'clock.

Tuesday, 10th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

ELECTRICITY FAILURE IN THE CHAMBER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, as you will see, there is some failure of electricity this afternoon. It will not disturb us very much, as long as the amplification of speech, especially for the reporters, is working. If it is working up there in the HANSARD box, all is well, I think.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS

ADMINISTRATION OF THE ELEM TRIANGLE

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Elem Triangle has been administered by our Government and the Sudan Government since 1931, this House urges the Kenya Government to negotiate with the Sudan Government so that the whole part is transferred to the Republic of Kenya.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE PRESS

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, this House, being aware of the responsible and constructive part the Press of this nation have played in nation building, and the stability of this progressive Republic, wishes to convey our thanks and gratitude to all concerned in running this noble institution.

TRADE LICENSING ACT: APPEALS PROCEDURE

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Trade Licensing Act is rather confusing to the public for the reasons that some non-citizens are being given their licences back and some are being refused, this House urges the Government for the better and fair-running of this Act to establish—

(a) a District Appeals Committee to determine all appeals lodged as a result of the notices served by the Ministry from which there is further appeal to;

(b) a Provincial Appeals Committee composed of members from every district in that province and the decision of the Provincial Appeals Committee will be final.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 196

FREQUENT RAIDS ON POKOT PEOPLE BY TURKANA

Mr. Kassa-Choon asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs to state—

(a) what measures the Government was taking to stop the frequent raids on Pokot tribesmen by armed Turkana and Ng'oroko;

(b) how many Pokot had been killed and how many cattle had been taken by the raiders during 1968/1969;

(c) if he would consider establishing police outposts at Lotongot, Orwa and Chesekon.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The Government is taking every possible step to prevent these raids. The recent establishment of two patrol bases in this area of Kenya Police/Administrative Police combined has helped to improve the security situation.

(b) The number of Pokot killed in 1968 was nine and in 1969 was four. The number of cattle stolen in 1968 was 1,575 and in 1969, 1,122.

(c) Two police patrol bases have already been established at Lotongot and Sigor and it is not intended to construct one at Chesekon or Orwa at this stage. The position is, however, being watched carefully.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I appreciate the steps which the Government is taking to prevent these raids, and the Assistant Minister has said that the Kenya Police and Administrative Police combined have helped to improve the security situation, but will he now assure this House that the police posts he is talking about at Lotongot and Sigor will be there permanently, because I understand they are only temporary? Will he assure the House that they will remain?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said earlier, the situation is being watched by the Government, and these police posts have been established to watch the situation and see how it goes on. If it is found necessary for them to be established there permanently, they will certainly be established permanently. However, if conditions improve in such a way that it is unnecessary for these police posts to remain there, then the Government may decide to do whatever they feel is fit.

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that some of these Pokot people who have been killed jumped into the Turkana District, and that is why they were killed?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to go as far as the hon. Member is trying to suggest, but, at the same time, I have said here many times that these tribal raids and conflicts are prevalent in this particular area. It is for the hon. Members to try to discourage their people from this type of activity.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 196:
RAIDS ON POKOT BY TURKANA

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I had no chance to ask the Minister a question, I wish to raise this matter on the adjournment, if the hon. Member will agree.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Agreed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 194

RAPID TRANSFER OF MURANG'A DISTRICT
COMMISSIONER

Mr. Wanjagi asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House—

(a) what emergencies had justified a short-notice transfer of a Senior District Commissioner, Mr. Jairus Akibaya, from Murang'a District; and

(b) whether any politician or politics had been involved.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Jairus Akibaya's transfer was effected in the normal way, like any other transfers that have taken place within the Civil Service. There was no emergency.

As to the question (b), the answer is, no, Sir.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House whether it is normal that a senior district commissioner should be transferred from his area after having been given 24 hours' notice; whether that is normal and whether that is not causing embarrassment to a senior civil servant?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not causing an embarrassment. Members of the Civil Service are always ready, and if they are transferred—on the question of when a quick transfer is necessary—it does not make for any embarrassment because it is reported and is known by them.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that senior civil servants should be treated fairly and, as far as transfers are concerned, they should be notified in good time, and only junior ones should have this embarrassment of very quick and very sudden transfers.

An hon. Member: Why discriminate?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Senior men are senior men!

An hon. Member: They are not.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe hon. Members will accept that all members of the Civil Service should be treated the same. We should not cater for some to be given certain treatment more than others.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that civil servants are transferable any time when necessity arises, and necessity does not give Government the chance?

Mr. M. Koinange: That is fact, Mr. Speaker,

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House whether the Provincial Commissioner of the Central Province was aware that this transfer was taking place or not?

Mr. M. Koinange: Members of the Civil Service in each province are under the Provincial Commissioner of each province; all are under the Provincial Commissioner.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister did not reply to what I asked. I asked: was the Provincial Commissioner of Central Province notified or was he aware that this transfer was being effected, and if not, why?

Hon. Members: Give us a direct answer.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the general routine of the Civil Service, takes the usual routine and the person who is above is always aware of that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 194:
TRANSFER OF MURANG'A DISTRICT COMMISSIONER

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I did raise the same question in this House and the Minister agreed that no civil servant would be transferred not judges, we are not pundas and can read between the lines—to know something about hon. Munoko or hon. Omweri. The fact that one is a lawyer does not mean he is an angel; he can make a mistake. We people who make the laws here, the majority of us are not lawyers at all. We are laymen but we have grey matter upstairs and we can easily know what is wrong and what is right. To assume that we are like pundas, we in this House, is very wrong. We are capable, some of us here, Mr. Speaker—I know we are not trained but if the Attorney-General gave us coaching for one year we may even surprise some of the lawyers in the country. We did not receive any training so we are bush lawyers.

I do not see the point, Mr. Speaker, of amending this section at all. I want it to stay as it is and let the newspapers report accurately, and when the worst comes to the worst the newspapers and the court could come together and give a report of what happened when that particular person sues the newspaper.

The Fugitive Act, Mr. Speaker, is one of the Acts that we have talked about here, and I welcome it very much. Mr. Speaker, may I warn the Attorney-General about the Fugitive Act? Things change and I believe in the Latin phrase which says Tempora mutantur et nos mutantur in illis, which means that as time changes we ought to change along with time. Things may go smoothly but there comes a time when things can go wrong, and this Fugitive Act could be used by certain individuals to have certain of their political enemies eliminated wherever they are. Mr. Speaker, as the Fugitive Act stands now, it is quite all right to catch the criminals, but the word “criminal” is sometimes interpreted in different ways.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, the amendments of this particular Act proposed by this Bill do not really touch the substance of the Act at all. I am afraid they do not give scope for discussing the merits of the Act itself. We have to confine ourselves to the actual amendments proposed here which, with regard to this Act, are purely formal amendments.

I have to tell you that on the previous occasion when you were referring to Section 186 of the Criminal Procedure Code, I learn that you were more relevant than appeared from the Bill, because the word “and” has been omitted from the Schedule by mistake, and the Schedule does purport actually to amend Section 186 as well as the marginal note. On the other hand, it is only following up in the Criminal Procedure Code a substantive amendment which has already been made in the Penal Code a short time ago. You are entitled to discuss that because the substance of the section is being amended. The Attorney-General will move a suitable amendment to put it right in the Committee Stage.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will come to that point later as I have something to say now that you have been very considerate and have pointed out to me that I can discuss it, I will leave the Fugitive Act as you have ruled, Mr. Speaker. I have a feeling that things can change but let us hope they will not change where-by we pursue our enemies and eliminate them wherever they are, which is wrong. If you eliminate, then you will also be eliminated in the long run.

Now, Sir, I am referring to the amendment of section 67, which is under the Prisons Act. Mr. Speaker, they say there “replace ‘18’ years with ‘17’ years”. Mr. Speaker, when the Attorney-General was moving this amendment he gave the reason that we should have these people between 17 and 21 years of age going for Borstal training. I think I welcome this, Mr. Speaker, because many of our young men have become very bad. When they become mixed up with the professional criminals they come out and try to practice what they have learned from the professionals who are in prison.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to know one thing. I would like to know when the Borstal training is going to be established and also where it is going to be established. There is a tendency all the time to have everything in Nairobi. There are a lot of criminals in the Western Province, there are criminals in the Coast Province, criminals in the Eastern Province, and everywhere. I think when the Government comes to implement this they should establish the Borstal training schools for youths in every province so that we have all the criminals, the young men wherever they are, looked after and rehabilitated through this type of schools. I would like that point to be considered seriously.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is about females. The Attorney-General a very big advocate and a defender of females in this House, though he is a bachelor—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): What is wrong with that?

Mr. Shikuku: There is nothing wrong. I said that although you are a bachelor, probably you have a reason for defending women. However, I agree with the Attorney-General when he talks of females now to be working outside the prison compound like men. After all there is a talk, and

[Mr. Shikuku]

I think it is a loose talk, of equality of men and women. I think these women should also be felling trees as men do because they want equality.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Are you agreeing with the equality between men and women?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with it. However, if this is the talk, let them do it physically by working outside the camps like men. Let them feel the pinch by felling trees and let us see how far they can go. Personally, Mr. Speaker, I know that we cannot be equal to women because even the Bible itself does not say so. Jesus, when He was on earth, Mr. Speaker, appointed the 12 Apostles and none of them was a woman. If He knew that they were equal, He should have appointed one woman at least. It is a theory in the Western countries that women are equal to men. However, I do not believe in this. I believe in my Bible. Jesus can never make a mistake, and therefore He was right in not appointing any woman to be one of his Apostles.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having said that, this treatment of women—Mr. Speaker, Sir, nobody can answer that. Mr. Pandya is asking me to ask the Attorney-General to answer. He cannot answer that because none of the 12 Apostles was a woman. If they were equal, He would have appointed one. Therefore the treatment of prisoners should be the same, and I agree with the Attorney-General. Therefore women and men criminals, let us have the same treatment for them and there should be no discrimination.

An hon. Member: Go home and exercise your equality there.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I will probably go to my home. Nevertheless, unfortunately or fortunately on the part of the Attorney-General, my wife does not believe in equality between men and women. She agrees that she is my wife and I am the boss and chairman of everything all the time. So there is no problem in my home and he should not worry about it.

An hon. Member: What is he asking you?

Mr. Shikuku: He is asking me about my home. It is quite safe.

Mr. Pandya: Can you substantiate that you are the boss?

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, I am the boss, you can ask her; I am an African.

Now, Sir, I am going to section 38, on page 25, on which the Attorney-General gave an explanation—under “The Liquor Licensing Act”

(Cap. 121). It says: “Replace ‘Inspector’ with ‘Assistant Inspector’”.

Mr. Speaker, in his explanation he told us that it would not be necessary for an inspector to go round arresting people who break the Liquor Act, and that a policeman could go round instead. This Liquor Licensing becomes a big nuisance. Sometimes we have had people being unnecessarily interfered with. We have had a case in Bahati where an hon. Member was interfered with when he had bought a bottle of beer and a bit of meat and was taking them while in his car. The policemen were chasing him from where he had bought the bottle. However, they did not ask him where he had bought the meat. This is very interesting and I hope it is not going to be watered down to the extent where you will have so many constables going round merely in order to get a case to report. He has been on the beat and he has not had anything to report, and therefore goes round harassing people just because he wants to have something that he can report.

It is very interesting, Mr. Speaker, that when you go to a police station to report to them about liquor being taken somewhere, they will come at full speed. However, if you tell that people are fighting there or that someone has been killed somewhere, they will take the whole day before they appear on the scene. I hope this Amendment is not going to make these police more troublesome and make them find it easy to arrest people with liquor instead of arresting people who commit criminal offences. This is because when you call them they do not come quickly. However, if beer or liquor is being taken, they rush like nobody's business.

An hon. Member: They also want a bottle of beer.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I hear from an hon. Member that they also want a bottle of beer. In some cases they also get bottles of beer. This is very wrong. We should be just and not harass our people; we should let them drink. If somebody misbehaves, or is disorderly, let him be arrested. You find that some people, just because they smell beer, though they are not being disorderly, are arrested, sent in and fined. This is the place where I do not agree with this licensing law, where the policemen unnecessarily harass our people and they do not really go hunting for the criminals, but go for innocent people who are taking their drinks peacefully.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether this applies to the ordinary liquor which we have in the reserves. For example, in my place we have a drink called Busa, which is a very harmless drink, Mr. Speaker, and makes one fat and very sensible. After drinking it, any man can manage to find his way home. However, you find a policeman coming to harass the poor people who are taking that drink. The only thing which I do not support, and which I can support the police on when they harass the people is chang'aa for power. This is because it drives them out of their heads. When they have taken it they usually fall on their faces and they are even unable to lift their heads. Mr. Speaker, Sir, last year I rescued a man whom I found laying on the ground and he could not raise his head.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, does this affect the question whether you should replace "Inspector" by "Assistant Inspector"?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, why I say so is that I feel that the powers will be delegated to too low grade officers that there will be an abuse to the law.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, that is a relevant point, but you have already made it.

Mr. Shikuku: I feel there is a possibility of this being abused.

The other point I would like to make concerns page 24, the Administration Police Act, Cap. 85, section 4 (3). It says, "replace 'a magistrate' with 'an administrative officer'." I do not know why this amendment has been brought. If my memory serves me right, Mr. Speaker, there was one time when we had to appoint magistrates. We trained some at the Kenya Institute of Administration, who I understand are doing a good job; on one, so far, has been thrown into prison, and then we were trying to get powers for magistrates from administrators to deal with the cases of people. Why are we again, within this short period, replacing the magistrates? I was listening to the Attorney-General when he was speaking and I observed that he did not give a convincing reason why we should replace magistrate with "an administrative officer".

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our experience in the past has been that the magistrates or administrators were doing the job, but we were not happy. Now again they are getting the powers? I would like to get a reasonable reason—

An hon. Member: You are not following the amendment.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, if my English is right, the amendment says: "replace a magistrate with an administrative officer". The magistrate is to be replaced by an administrative officer.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Who said that?

Mr. Shikuku: Have I got the wrong Bill? Mr. Speaker, I do not disagree with the Bill I have here as it stands. In other words we are removing the powers of magistrates and giving these powers to administrative officers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Tell me where you are referring, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: I am referring to page 24; the Administration Police Act (Cap. 85) section 4 (3). It says: "replace 'a magistrate' with 'an administrative officer'." In other words, as I understand, they are removing a magistrate and replacing him by an administrative officer; which means a district officer, district commissioner, assistant district officer, district officer I and God knows what. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know why? If we removed the powers from them, why are we now returning these powers to them? We have had this so many times in the past, where administrative officers have been against politicians, after getting you into trouble he sits there and judges you. I have not been very much impressed by some of these administrative officers at all. I have not been very much impressed by some of them and if we give them this power—Sir, already they are giving us hell as far as the little power they have been given is concerned. When we fought the British colonialism for them and gave them this power we did not think they would turn against us as they are now doing. This is a wrong amendment to be made. I think it should be left as it is. If I have made a mistake, I go before a magistrate, as an independent man who has nothing against me, one who will judge me according to the law. These administrative officers, on the other hand, may differ with somebody over a bottle of beer, over a girl or something of the kind. This has been the case several times. Now you are giving him the powers to convict me or to preside over my case—this is something I do not agree with at all. It should be left in the hands of magistrates, and I do not see any reasonable reason why the Attorney-General should bring this law for amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is this a good point to break off, Mr. Shikuku?

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call on Mr. Cheboiwo to move the adjournment of the House.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

THREATENED TEACHERS' STRIKE

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

[Mr. Cheboiwo]

I must thank you, Mr. Speaker, and the House for giving me the time to move this very important Motion.

Sir, this question of teachers is a matter which is well known to all of use in this House. The fact is that the teachers in this country play a great part in building the nation. We always talk about building the nation by improving our roads, tarmacking the roads, putting up nice health centres, schools and the rest of it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe the teachers in this country, and those in other parts of the world, are the proper builders of any nation, especially a growing nation like Kenya. Why is this? It is because, Sir, without the teachers teaching our future leaders there would be no good leaders for the future.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure that more than 75 per cent of the hon. Members in this House were teachers. While they were teachers I am sure they would not like to have been mistreated. I know one of them who taught in Nandi for 11 years and today he is a Member of this House. This is hon. Tsalwa. He did a very good job of teaching, he was very happy and I am sure he would not have liked to have been mistreated. I do not know what place he is a Member of, but I do know it is somewhere in the Western Province. Oh, I am told it is Kakamega.

We all know, Mr. Speaker, that leaders come and go, and I do not think any of us would believe that anybody who holds a good post, whether he be in the Government, the private sector or anywhere else was not educated properly to do a good job. The people who have educated them are the teachers.

To come to the real point which prompted me to move this Motion for the Adjournment this afternoon, Mr. Speaker, it is the approval of one Sessional Paper in this hon. House in 1967. When this Sessional Paper was brought to the House, we were all very happy because the teachers always complain to us when we go to our constituencies, when we hold public rallies, when we talk to them in private meetings, or any such discussions. They always complain. At one time they demanded one employer because they did not want to be employed by the different county councils, for example Central Rift, Baringo, Western Province and so on. This is because they were treated differently by the different county councils and they all wanted the same treatment under one employer. This was a very important demand. This was agreed to. They demanded an increment of their salaries, they wanted all sorts of things given to them as part of their service allowances and these requests were approved in this House. This was in 1967 and I am sure my friend, hon. Nyagah was the Minister for Education at that time.

Mr. Speaker, at that time we approved that the reviewing committees would meet after six months. I was very confident that they would do this, as it affected teachers, who are very important people in this country. However, I was surprised this afternoon when I heard the Minister for Education, hon. Dr. Kiano, say that the first meeting took place only on the 22nd of April this year. This means that this was only done more than 12 months later. What was his Ministry doing about this? The Minister said that the Kenya National Union of Teachers was unfair to call this strike tomorrow. I can assure the House—as far as I believe this—that the Kenya National Union of Teachers was 101 per cent correct in calling this strike. The teachers were very mistreated. The meeting was to take care of reviewing their salaries, see to the equipment and other things. If the Review Committee did sit as often as agreed in this House, then we would not have this problem at all. The teachers would have been happy but now, instead of looking into the case of the teachers the Ministers are bringing this question of 20 per cent gratuity of all the salary they have earned. They are forgetting the important things. I have nothing against the Ministers, there is no government which can be run without Ministers. This is quite all right.

Sir, I am sure that most of the Ministers here were teachers at one time, and when they were campaigning to come to this House—I remember attending several meeting in 1963 during the time of the general election—they promised the teachers that if they were voted to this House, then they would try to help them. Those who were teachers in 1963, when they were voted in, completely forgot about the teachers. They only thought of themselves.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious matter. We do not want to see these teachers going on strike tomorrow. We do not want to see our children suffer, we do not want to see some of these teachers joining the private sector because they want more pay to better their future. I know that is a good thing. I have met several of these teachers who have said that if the Government— They have said that they have confidence in the Government but there is always the use of the word "but" when saying that the Government has not looked into their affairs seriously. That is why they are joining other

[Mr. Cheboiwo]

Ministries in order to get good pay, in order to get good treatment, and such other things. If their affairs were looked after, they would certainly not have this problem today.

Mr. Speaker, I feel very strongly that something must be done forthwith. I noticed that the Minister looked very worried this afternoon. But this, I say, is too late to start working at this time, after the teachers have called a strike. What has that Ministry been doing since 1967? What about the Review Committee? Why did they not meet, why did they ignore these teachers? When the Sessional Paper was brought here, we all agreed on the recommendations that were made and certain things were resolved as I have said before. I do not want to repeat myself here, Sir. If you look at the meeting of the 22nd April this year, you will find that this only took place after 12 months.

I would like to appeal to the Ministry, and the Government as a whole, to see that they do something for the teachers. That is something that I would like the Government to do. It should call the Review Committees and discuss what has been suggested—as the Minister said this afternoon—in the recommendations of the Kenya National Union of Teachers. Let them agree—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it not be in order for me to say that the resolution was that the salaries could be increased within six months, and not after six months, because after six months means that the Minister is right. It was, however, to be within six months.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the correct record, yes.

Mr. Cheboiwo: I do not have a quarrel with my friend here, but the problem is with this committee which has not been meeting, Sir.

What I would like to do is to appeal to the Ministry, and the Government as a whole, is that the Ministry and the Government must take serious steps to see that these teachers are not allowed to go on strike tomorrow. When they do go on strike our children will suffer. Then, also, if the teachers go to different Ministries, different companies to work, it will be very, very complicated to bring them back.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I would say that the Motion is very clear and, therefore, I beg to move.

Mr. Munyi will second.

Mr. Munyi: To tell the truth, Mr. Speaker, what is important is that hon. Members will agree with me that the resolution which we are going to pass—

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since this question is a national issue, would it not be right that when we debate such an important and serious matter the Minister for Education should be here? If we just talk like parrots and the Minister is not there, then we are wasting our time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Minister has just arrived.

Mr. Munyi: All I want to say, Mr. Speaker, is that it is as clear as daylight that most of the Members in this House have been teachers. Even when you look at the other side, Sir, you will know that the Leader of the Opposition used to be a teacher. Very near me, here, I can see hon. Dr. Kiano who used to be a teacher. Therefore, I do not see the reason why every now and then we have been frustrating the teachers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers are people who form a part which is very important in our community and it is high time that the Government should do something to see to it that the conditions given to the teachers are better than the conditions given to people in the private sector and in other Government departments. Today we are talking of what is happening in the countryside. The teachers are the first people to know what is going on in the countryside and that is because they are with the people, they are there in the rural areas, and so I do not see the reason why the teachers should be told today, "This is going to happen", and then tomorrow they are told, "That is going to happen". In fact, nothing has been happening.

So, all what we are asking the Government to do is to agree—Every time there is a meeting between the Union of Teachers and the—

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister for Education is trying to take this matter very lightly, but this is not a light matter; it is a matter which is rather explosive. It is high time that the Ministry regarded this matter as a burning issue.

Today, Sir, we were told that people did not know that the teachers were going on strike. People were well informed. This was broadcast by Radio Uganda, Radio Tanzania and it was even broadcast by the international radios, that Kenya teachers were going on strike. Is the Minister not aware of that? So, to try to come here and convince us, to try to tell us that people are not aware of this, that the teachers are not going on strike, this is information which is incorrect, Mr. Speaker. Everyone knows that the teachers are going on strike. People get information from the radio and through very many other media. So, to come and tell us that whenever the teachers complain we should turn that down is wrong. It is high time that the Government should concentrate on this, the Government should comply with what was agreed. The Review Committee—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would you request the hon. Member to lower his voice so that we can hear what he is actually saying?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the hon. Member would lower his voice a little, I would not have to raise mine quite so much.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that my good friend is trying to take this as a joke, but it is a very explosive matter.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Really, Mr. Munyi, it is a perfectly good point of order, because hon. Members do very often complain that you practically deafen them. Do try to moderate your voice a little. I know that you have a very strong voice.

Mr. Munyi: All that I am trying to say, Mr. Speaker, is this, and it is a fact. We want the Ministry to take immediate action. We should not be told that something is being done, but when you come to practical things you find that nothing is being done. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had the experience, as it was, only yesterday when I went to one of my schools. I have helped to build in Embu, a secondary school. I went there and found they had a shortage of more than six teachers, and for the last six months some of important subjects have not been taught. When you go to the Teachers' Commission you are told that teachers have been posted to Nairobi. Teachers have been posted to a school in Kakamega; they have been posted to a school in Mombasa, but this is not happening, Mr. Speaker. It is high time, Mr. Speaker, when the Minister—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must keep to the point of the threatened strike, and not discuss which schools are receiving more benefits than others.

Mr. Munyi: What I am trying to do, Mr. Speaker, is to concentrate on the facts. What is making the teachers go on strike, Mr. Speaker? It is because they are understaffed, and they are being overworked, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, but you were getting away from the point when you said other schools were not understaffed and that this was all very unfair. That is getting away from the point.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, I was trying to give an example of one of the schools which I know, and the Minister knows this very well, Mr. Speaker, where the teachers are threatening to go on strike. This must be corrected. It is high time the Minister should correct these things.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say that the members of that particular service commission are inexperienced, but there is something wrong somewhere and we are asking the Minister today, this afternoon, this evening, to do something, because the machinery of the Teachers' Service Commission is the wrong machinery. According to the reports in the newspapers it is made very clear by the Teachers' Union that on many occasions they had been promised meetings, but when they went there they were not attended to. Nobody goes to attend these meetings, Mr. Speaker, does this not show that the machinery in the Teachers' Commission is wrong? Does it not show, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that there is inefficiency somewhere? This is all we ask the Minister to do. Whenever the Minister stands to answer questions in this House, he tells us teachers' complaints are being attended by officers of his Ministry. Mr. Speaker, Sir, whenever Members complain in this House, it should be the responsibility of the Minister himself to see to it that action is taken and things are corrected before they become worse.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to waste the time of the other Members. What I would like to emphasize, Mr. Speaker, is that I appeal to the Minister to change the machinery followed by the Teachers' Commission, and as soon as the machinery is changed, I am sure things will improve. If the Minister does not take action, our country will be under some kind of tension because this is the time when the pupils are due to sit for very important examination, and if the teachers go on strike then the pupils will not learn anything as they will not have teachers in their schools.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to second very strongly, and I am appealing to the Minister to take action and see to it that he corrects the machinery of the Teachers' Service Commission.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Godia, I think you will have to limit yourself to five minutes, assuming the Minister needs five minutes in which to answer.

Mr. Godia: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me to speak on this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, the first thing I would like—

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is only a small thing. Is it not normal that you propose the Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes. Thank you very much, Mr. Kibuya.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry for my friend. I am not quite sure—but is it not a fact that in a Motion such as this, whose debate continues up to 7 o'clock, there is no need for proposing the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. This is not like a matter raised on the Adjournment in the ordinary way. This is a Motion for the Adjournment of the House while it is during the ordinary period of business, and this kind of Motion is interrupted at the ordinary time for interrupting business, which is half past six.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wanted to thank the Minister for recognizing need for one employer for the teachers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it appears the one employer does not have the power to deal with the problems of the teachers. The problems of the teachers are dealt with by the Minister himself, and that is why, Mr. Speaker, the one employer appears to be powerless.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can see that the reason for the teachers' strike, which is beginning tomorrow, is because their salaries have not been reviewed from time to time in accordance with what this House agreed in a resolution. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we agreed that every six months the salaries of the teachers should be reviewed to see what is required, and this has not been the case. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a letter which the Minister himself wrote to the teachers as a circular, No. 106, I think it is stipulated that each class should have one teacher, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers complain that there is a shortage of about 8,000 teachers. If they had 8,000 teachers all over the country, the staffing problem would have been overcome. This is a very important issue which I think the teachers are taking as a point, and I think the Minister should assure this House that he has already accepted their conditions.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that there has been no consultation on the Teachers' Code of Regulations, that is to say there have been no negotiations between the Teachers' Union and the commission, which is very unfair. I would like the Minister, when he comes to reply, to tell the House that provisions have now been made to see that their meetings for consultation over the Code of Regulations are going to continue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers do not approve of the Secretary of the Teachers' Service Commission Appeal Tribunal. The teachers would like the secretary to be an independent person and, in fact, the Minister did state here that he has already directed that an independent person be appointed to take up this position. I thought if this had been effected it would be all right, but it appears, Mr.

Speaker, Sir, that this is a direction from the Minister which has not yet reached the members of the commission. Therefore, I would appeal to the Minister now to stop the strike tomorrow and to promise the teachers that he is going to consider all their problems and satisfy them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we allow the strike to go on, starting tomorrow, this means that over 150,000 pupils will miss their education. That will cost a lot of money to the parents who pay the fees every year. I know the Minister would not like to see any of his students going to school without a teacher, and that applies to all of us.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, let us satisfy the teachers' problems by tomorrow so that they do not go on strike and their conditions are met. I would like the Minister to move that accordingly.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since the whole House is in your good hands, and you have already over-ruled another Member who asked you if you could extend the time, knowing that 150,000 children are going to be affected by this very serious matter, may I appeal to you on behalf of the House, to prolong the time from 6.30 o'clock to 7 o'clock? If you do that, you will enable us to show the Minister for Education that he is wrong in certain ways.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, I have no power to extend the period of the sitting of the House, except so far as I have very limited power to allow business to run on, perhaps for five minutes or so, or stop five minutes earlier, according to the convenience of Members. Otherwise, if it is a matter of exempting business from Standing Orders, including Standing Order 17 which fixes the hours, that can only be done on a Motion by a Minister which is carried by the House. Unless a Minister cares to move what you suggest, we will have to interrupt business very soon after 6.30.

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, when we have an Adjournment Motion, and the time expires when we are in the middle of debate, we normally leave the House without any resolution being passed. In this particular Motion, Sir, which we can say is of national importance, could we be given an assurance by the Minister, when he replies, that the question of the strike tomorrow is going to be looked into and arrangements made to stop the strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You will not be given any such assurance as a point of order.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a question was raised by Private Notice I spoke at length on this issue and, therefore, I will not keep the House waiting for still more ideas.

[The Minister for Education]

I would like to say that I, myself, as the hon. Member for Embu East is, am a former teacher, and I do not like any frustration by anyone. I would like to correct him when he said that nothing has been done for the teachers. This is not correct, as the House itself passed a Sessional Paper, and I hope that was not nothing.

In any case, Sir, due to the short time available to us, I would like to inform the House that the Committee on Salary Remuneration did meet this afternoon, and when they met they resolved to meet again and then they came to see the acting Minister for Labour and myself, and that is why, Sir, I was a little late when the debate started, because we were polishing up our English as to what to say to the country. I am happy to report to the House that the strike has been postponed. I would like to read the Press Statement which we have not even had time to type, Sir, but which has been signed both by the Government and the National Union of Teachers, who are present here, and I quote, Sir:—

“The Teachers Service Remuneration Committee met on the 9th June 1969 to discuss the matter of reviewing teachers' salaries and other matters connected with teachers' terms and conditions of service.

Thereafter, the Kenya National Union of Teachers met with the acting Minister for Labour, Mr. Dawson Mwanyumba, and the Minister for Education, Dr. J. G. Kiano, on these same matters. It was agreed that—

(a) the Teachers' Salaries Remuneration Committee will meet again on Tuesday, 21st

June 1969, at 2.30 p.m. to prepare the final report to be submitted to the Minister for Education.

(b) in view of the above the Kenya National Union of Teachers has postponed the strike scheduled for tomorrow, 10th June 1969, to 10th July unless a settlement has been reached by then.

(c) the Minister has undertaken to inform the Kenya National Union of Teachers of Government's decision on the report by the 10th July 1969.

Signed :

S. G. Kioni,
General-Secretary,
Kenya National Union of Teachers.

Signed :

J. K. Njoroge,
Permanent Secretary,
Ministry of Education,
on behalf of the Minister.

Witnessed by :

Dawson Mwanyumba,
Acting Minister for Labour.”
Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is just past time now for the interruption of business, so the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, 10th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty-two minutes past Six o'clock.

Tuesday, 10th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

ELECTRICITY FAILURE IN THE CHAMBER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, as you will see, there is some failure of electricity this afternoon. It will not disturb us very much, as long as the amplification of speech, especially for the reporters, is working. If it is working up there in the HANSARD box, all is well, I think.

NOTICE OF MOTIONS

ADMINISTRATION OF THE ELEM TRIANGLE

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Elem Triangle has been administered by our Government and the Sudan Government since 1931, this House urges the Kenya Government to negotiate with the Sudan Government so that the whole part is transferred to the Republic of Kenya.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE PRESS

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, this House, being aware of the responsible and constructive part the Press of this nation have played in nation building, and the stability of this progressive Republic, wishes to convey our thanks and gratitude to all concerned in running this noble institution.

TRADE LICENSING ACT: APPEALS PROCEDURE

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Trade Licensing Act is rather confusing to the public for the reasons that some non-citizens are being given their licences back and some are being refused, this House urges the Government for the better and fair-running of this Act to establish—

(a) a District Appeals Committee to determine all appeals lodged as a result of the notices served by the Ministry from which there is further appeal to;

(b) a Provincial Appeals Committee composed of members from every district in that province and the decision of the Provincial Appeals Committee will be final.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 196

FREQUENT RAIDS ON POKOT PEOPLE BY TURKANA

Mr. Kassa-Choon asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs to state—

(a) what measures the Government was taking to stop the frequent raids on Pokot tribesmen by armed Turkana and Ng'oroko;

(b) how many Pokot had been killed and how many cattle had been taken by the raiders during 1968/1969;

(c) if he would consider establishing police outposts at Lotongot, Orwa and Chesekon.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The Government is taking every possible step to prevent these raids. The recent establishment of two patrol bases in this area of Kenya Police/Administrative Police combined has helped to improve the security situation.

(b) The number of Pokot killed in 1968 was nine and in 1969 was four. The number of cattle stolen in 1968 was 1,575 and in 1969, 1,122.

(c) Two police patrol bases have already been established at Lotongot and Sigor and it is not intended to construct one at Chesekon or Orwa at this stage. The position is, however, being watched carefully.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I appreciate the steps which the Government is taking to prevent these raids, and the Assistant Minister has said that the Kenya Police and Administrative Police combined have helped to improve the security situation, but will he now assure this House that the police posts he is talking about at Lotongot and Sigor will be there permanently, because I understand they are only temporary? Will he assure the House that they will remain?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said earlier, the situation is being watched by the Government, and these police posts have been established to watch the situation and see how it goes on. If it is found necessary for them to be established there permanently, they will certainly be established permanently. However, if conditions improve in such a way that it is unnecessary for these police posts to remain there, then the Government may decide to do whatever they feel is fit.

Mr. Areman: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that some of these Pokot people who have been killed jumped into the Turkana District, and that is why they were killed?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to go as far as the hon. Member is trying to suggest, but, at the same time, I have said here many times that these tribal raids and conflicts are prevalent in this particular area. It is for the hon. Members to try to discourage their people from this type of activity.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 196: RAIDS ON POKOT BY TURKANA

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I had no chance to ask the Minister a question, I wish to raise this matter on the adjournment, if the hon. Member will agree.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Agreed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 194

RAPID TRANSFER OF MURANG'A DISTRICT COMMISSIONER

Mr. Wanjagi asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House—

(a) what emergencies had justified a short-notice transfer of a Senior District Commissioner, Mr. Jairus Akibaya, from Murang'a District; and

(b) whether any politician or politics had been involved.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Jairus Akibaya's transfer was effected in the normal way, like any other transfers that have taken place within the Civil Service. There was no emergency.

As to the question (b), the answer is, no, Sir.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House whether it is normal that a senior district commissioner should be transferred from his area after having been given 24 hours' notice; whether that is normal and whether that is not causing embarrassment to a senior civil servant?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not causing an embarrassment. Members of the Civil Service are always ready, and if they are transferred—on the question of when a quick transfer is necessary—it does not make for any embarrassment because it is reported and is known by them.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister agree with me that senior civil servants should be treated fairly and, as far as transfers are concerned, they should be notified in good time, and only junior ones should have this embarrassment of very quick and very sudden transfers.

An hon. Member: Why discriminate?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Senior men are senior men!

An hon. Member: They are not.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe hon. Members will accept that all members of the Civil Service should be treated the same. We should not cater for some to be given certain treatment more than others.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that civil servants are transferable any time when necessity arises, and necessity does not give Government the chance?

Mr. M. Koinange: That is fact, Mr. Speaker,

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House whether the Provincial Commissioner of the Central Province was aware that this transfer was taking place or not?

Mr. M. Koinange: Members of the Civil Service in each province are under the Provincial Commissioner of each province; all are under the Provincial Commissioner.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister did not reply to what I asked. I asked: was the Provincial Commissioner of Central Province notified or was he aware that this transfer was being effected, and if not, why?

Hon. Members: Give us a direct answer.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the general routine of the Civil Service, takes the usual routine and the person who is above is always aware of that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 194: TRANSFER OF MURANG'A DISTRICT COMMISSIONER

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that I did raise the same question in this House and the Minister agreed that no civil servant would be transferred until he had completed two years, and the question has not been answered, may I pursue the question further, with the permission of the hon. questioner.

Mr. Wanjagi: I have no objection Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 166

AMOUNT OF MONEY OWED TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Finance if he would tell the House how much money Kenya Government owed to the following countries:—

- (a) Britain.
- (b) America.
- (c) West Germany.
- (d) Russia.
- (e) Italy.
- (f) France.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Kenya Government owes the following amounts of money to the respective countries as at 30th April 1969.

Britain, K£42,704,800. Much of this money is attached to settlement and general development; some of it is interest-free.

America, K£3,280,300. Much of this money goes to the making of the roads; the Tororo to Eldoret road and the Namanga to Athi River road. We also have some money from the American International Development for roads, the tea roads and so on.

West Germany, K£3,679,000. Much of this money is being spent on tourism, industrial estates, credit to farmers and also on the expansion of Mwea Rice Scheme.

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, K£162,900 which is still owing to the hospital in Kisumu.

China, nil; Italy, nil. France, nil.

The Government has negotiated a loan with the Government of Italy for the construction of the Nairobi-Addis Ababa road but the loan agreement on this has not been executed yet. I cannot, therefore, release details on this one at the moment.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Minister tell the House, or give the breakdown of the money borrowed by the colonial Government and that borrowed by independent Kenya.

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am extremely happy to say that we do not still carry any money borrowed by the United Kingdom during the colonial time. I would like to make it very clear, that we have borrowed money from Britain: the last borrowing was about K£18 million, much of which was interest-free. If you can tell me where else I could get interest-free money for our development, I would be grateful.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the answer from the Minister that the money borrowed was after independence, would the Minister tell the House, and the country, what happened to bodies like the Commonwealth Development Corporation which established estates like Nyambene Tea Company, and others in Kenya, through money from Britain, and whether such loans were free or renewed, or what happened to them?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must establish ourselves as men; a country that has a Government that lives up to its agreements. For the money that we had borrowed before, we continued to pay, and we have no legacy left from Britain. I would like to say—Sorry I forgot.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, if you allow me to repeat to the Minister what I wanted to say: we do know bodies—British bodies like the Commonwealth Development Corporation—which had already, before independence, given money to the so-called colonial government to establish businesses, or other things, like Nyambene Tea Company with British money, which I am sure has not been paid all over. Were such loans to Kenya at that time, renewed, freed or what happened to them?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just remembered when the hon. Member mentioned the Commonwealth Development Corporation. If we are to be grateful to anybody, of all people we should be happy that we have at the head of the Commonwealth Development Corporation a former Governor of this country. He has been extremely generous as far as we are concerned in lending us money. As a matter of fact, if you take all the tea factories that have been established in this country, we have been able to get the money because this particular ex-Governor is the Chairman of the Commonwealth Development Corporation and he has been extremely generous to us.

I would like to say, Sir, that this country ought to be extremely grateful that not only has he made this money available to put up factories, tea factories especially, but I feel that I ought to say this in this House that this country ought to be extremely grateful. One should not forget that it is after him that our President was described as the leader to death and darkness, and although the old man was put in prison during this Governor's time it is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that is relevant, Mr. Gichuru.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the amount of money we owe to Great Britain is staggering in that it is almost equivalent to our annual recurrent revenue, and in view of the fact that there is the possibility that at some time we might be quarreling with Britain, for instance over Rhodesia, and they might demand the money which means that the Government would be at a stand-still, would the Minister consider stopping borrowing any more money from Great Britain and try to borrow money from the Soviet Union and China at the same cost?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that the policy that I am following at the moment is that we should borrow less and less from any place and try to confine ourselves to spending our own money. However, I am extremely worried that a man of the calibre of the questioner, and a former Assistant Minister in my Ministry, and an extremely able economist, should make this suggestion because it is necessary that we have outside money to back our economy in this country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 166: AMOUNT OF MONEY OWNED TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Minister did not complete the whole thing, especially where borrowing is concerned, I would like to raise this on the Adjournment, with the permission of the Questioner, so that we can see why we cannot even borrow from South Africa.

Mr. Omar: I have no objection.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 182

DEVELOPMENT IN KERIO VALLEY

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House:—

(a) what the Government was doing over Kerio Valley development at the moment; and

(b) would the actual work start in the next financial year.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Provincial plans have been drawn for the development of the Kerio Valley; these were formulated by the Ministry of Agriculture, but it is apparent that the development of this area cannot take place without the involvement of several other Ministries. It is, therefore, necessary to draw up a programme for overall development for the Kerio Valley before any further action can be taken. Work has already started on developing an overall programme. When the various plans for the development of the Kerio Valley have been integrated together with the Ministry of Economic Planning, we will include it as one plan in the Development Plan, 1969/74, which will be published in October this year.

The hon. Member should therefore be patient and await full details when the Development Plan is ready.

(b) It was hoped, initially, that funds would be set aside in the next financial year for agricultural development. However, it is now expected that action will have to wait an overall development plan for the area, as agriculture cannot stimulate development without the assistance of roads and other essential features of infra-structure which do not exist at the present time.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Arising from that, Mr. Speaker, it seems to be a good answer, could the Assistant Minister for Agriculture tell this House that if this plan is published in October the work will follow as soon as possible?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I share the hon. Member's feelings, because I also come from the district in which he has his own constituency. I hope that when this plan comes we will be able to do something.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 192

CONTROL OF TEA GROWERS

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House whether Government controlled the tea planting by the big tea estates which were members of the Kenya Tea Board while controlling small African growers who were directly under the Kenya Tea Development Authority.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government, through the Tea Board of Kenya, controls the expansion of tea acreage both in the estate areas and in the smallholder areas. In the larger estate areas, the board issues licences after making sure that the applicants have made the necessary arrangements for processing facilities. In the smallholder areas, the control of the expansion is the responsibility of the Kenya Tea Development Authority. Control of expansion in this sector is necessary because, as most of the funds needed for expansion are obtained from outside sources in the form of loans, it is important that planned expansion is geared to the limited resources, both human and financial. It should be made clear that Government controls but does not restrict the expansion of tea both in large estates and in small-holding areas.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer, and the Assistant Minister having told the House that the Government controls this expansion of tea planting, would the Assistant Minister now tell the House what steps his Ministry is taking to control the planting of tea by these big estates instead of controlling the small growers, because at the present time planting by the big estates is continuous?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the estimate of the tea acreage in 1965 was as follows: estates, 53,800 acres and they are given an increase of 1,000 acres annually; Kenya Tea Development Authority and settlement schemes, 33,950 acres and they are given an increase of 6,000 acres annually. The smallholders are expanding their acreage much faster than the estates and by 1973 the position will be as follows: estates, 57,800 acres; Kenya Tea Development Authority and settlement, 66,380 acres.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 183

ELECTRICITY FOR KABARNET DISTRICT HOSPITAL

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House how soon he would advise the Ministry of Power and Communications to install electric lights in Kabarnet District Hospital, as the patients (especially in the maternity ward) were suffering.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this same question was asked in November last year by the same hon. Member, and I thought he was satisfied with the reply which we gave him. However, Mr. Speaker, I beg to give the following reply.

The Ministry provides adequate lighting in those hospitals which are not near the system mains electricity. In a hospital like Kabarnet, lighting is provided by pressure lamps and hurricane lamps, but it is not the policy of my Ministry to advise the Ministry of Power and Communications to install electricity in hospitals.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Arising from that answer Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister satisfied with these methods of using pressure lamps and hurricane lamps in these hospitals, with no other improvements?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Lorimo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister now advise the Ministry of Power and Communications to install lights in the mentioned places, because he has said that it is not his interest to know that?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said before that it is not for me to advise the Ministry of Power and Communications, because the Ministry has laid its own plans according to the needs.

Question No. 195

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT/MURANG'A COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. Wanjagi asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House whether the Government was satisfied with the present relationship between the Department of Community Development and the Murang'a County Council.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government is aware that the relationship between Murang'a County Council and the Department of the Community Development has been strained for the last few weeks.

Discussions have already been held between Government officials and the representatives of the Murang'a County Council with a view to establishing the cause of the misunderstanding and suggesting possible solutions. These discussions are to be continued.

Mr. Wanjagi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating the fact that the Ministry admits that there is confusion and misunderstanding between the County Council of Murang'a and the Community Development Department, what immediate steps will the Ministry take to ensure that the presents and the gifts by the Central Government which are supposed to be given by the Ministry of Social Services are not handed over to the members of the county council who use them for political purposes?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said in my previous answer, the reasons for the misunderstanding are under investigation, and until they are sorted out, I cannot give him any further answer.

Question No. 189

AMERICAN PEACE CORPS' EXPENSES ON SETTLEMENT SCHEMES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House—

- (a) why, in view of the burden already put on the small African farmers through loan repayments for lands purchased from former European settlers, the American Peace Corps travelling expenses while working in the settlement schemes were put on the farmers' bills;
- (b) why these volunteers were given unlimited mileage claims, privileges which were not extended to African Settlement Officers; and
- (c) why the Minister allowed these volunteers to carry on their personal Local Purchase Orders for purchases of petrol which even the Senior Settlement Officers were not allowed to check or question.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The travelling expenses incurred by the American Peace Corps Volunteers working in settlement schemes, other than schemes where water supply is being installed, are paid from the general administrative Settlement Fund Vote. Therefore, such financial burden is not put on the farmers' bills.

Travelling expenses incurred by the Peace Corps while carrying out duties on water projects are paid from the approved water development loans granted to co-operative societies.

(b) The Peace Corps do not own vehicles and, therefore, can lodge no mileage claims. They use Government vehicles.

(c) The Peace Corps working on water projects are allowed to use Local Purchase Order books for emergency requirements of sundry materials only. Such purchases are controlled by the Hydraulic Engineers.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister replies that such financial burdens are not put on the farmers' bills, and yet confirms that when the Peace Corps work on water projects the mileage claims are put on co-operative societies—knowing very well that co-operative societies means farmers—will the Assistant Minister tell the House how many miles these Peace Corps are allowed in a month? Again, since they are given Local Purchase Order books, and the fact that there should be a limitation of the number of miles allowed to them, will the Minister tell the House who checks the limitation of mileage and so on?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Peace Corps, as I said, do not own any vehicles. They use Government vehicles and the normal Government rate of mileage payment is calculated by the officers concerned, our settlement officers in the field.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I always think that an Assistant Minister gives the reply to the House which is true. It was only last week that I was told by a senior settlement officer from Sotik that they do not check these volunteers' mileages. Therefore, comparing the reply with the senior settlement officer's statement, this is completely untrue. Will the Assistant Minister, therefore, apologize for misleading the House?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not going to apologize for anything. I have made a statement and this is the position according to the Ministry. If the Member would like to believe the officer he was talking to, it is up to him, but I have given him the facts as they are laid down in my Ministry.

Question No. 165

UNDERSTAFFING OF ISAAK NYUNDO PRIMARY SCHOOL, RABAI

Mr. Omar asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) whether he was aware that the Isak Nyundo full Primary School at Rabai was understaffed; and

(b) if the answer was in the affirmative, what steps the Minister was taking to remedy the situation.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Isak Nyundo Full Primary School, Rabai, is not understaffed. The school has 15 teachers for 14 classes. Therefore, the second part of the question does not arise.

Mr. Omar: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that some of these 14 teachers are untrained, and therefore, they cannot teach certain subjects in some classes, and it is understaffed in that sense? What is he going to do to remedy the situation?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the fact is that the majority of these teachers are trained teachers. Only three or four are untrained for the lower classes. This situation prevails throughout Kenya.

Question No. 169

FORM V CLASSES FOR EMBU GIRLS' SCHOOLS

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) whether he was aware that in the whole of Embu District there was not a single girls' secondary school with a Form V class; and

[Mr. Munyi]

(b) when was Kyeni Girls' High School in Embu District, which had already a double stream, going to get a Form V class.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I do not know whether I should thank the hon. Member today, because I did that yesterday.

The hon. Member should be aware that Form V classes do not belong to the districts in which they are located. They belong to the nation as a whole. Students from all over Kenya compete for these schools. Therefore, the districts where Form V classes do not exist does not mean that the students from that particular district suffer any more than other districts.

Kyeni, therefore, will be considered along with other schools depending on funds and demand. There is a Form V for boys in Embu, I believe.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer from the Minister, and arising from the fact that Eastern Province is one of the Provinces in the Republic of Kenya which is lagging behind as far as Form V schools are concerned, and since this secondary school is right in the centre of Eastern Province, will the Minister then consider giving this school a Form V class by next year? This is reasonable, Mr. Speaker.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the demand for education in this country is reasonable, and therefore, I congratulate the hon. Member. He should be grateful for small gains, because as I said, at least he has a Form V school in his district, while there are some districts in the country which do not have any at all. He ought to realize that Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Mate: Arising from the Minister's answer, are we to understand that the question of more Form Vs in 1970 is under review and that Embu will be considered quite favourably because of the need and the necessity, and would he consider giving Embu some priority since even Embu has people who would like to sell their vegetables in a Form V class and to have other related benefits indirectly?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, I strongly admire the spirit of co-operation where the hon. Member for Meru is pleading for Embu, which is nice. I would, however, like to draw the attention of the House to the fact that it is not easy to classify Embu as one of the previously-forgotten districts.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that Form V classes, as the Minister has said, are national classes, would he now tell us how many girls from Embu went to Form V this year?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, quite frankly I did not anticipate that question. I think you will agree, Sir, that that was not very logical arising from the previous one, but should the hon. Member for Embu, and other hon. Members, too, wish to know the number I could provide it at three minutes' notice.

Question No. 170

FORM V CLASS FOR KEVOTE SECONDARY SCHOOL, EMBU

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) if the Minister was aware of the good school certificate results achieved by Kevote (St. Paul) Secondary School in Embu District;

(b) if the Minister would consider giving a Form V class to this school in 1970.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The reply to this question is very much like the previous one.

(a) I am aware of the satisfactory school certificate examination results in 1965 and 1966, and very satisfactory results in 1967 at St. Paul's Secondary School, Kevote, but in 1968, the results were not as good as those of previous years.

(b) School certificate results are not the only criterion for a school to get Higher School Certificate classes and, therefore, the question, again, does not arise. It is the second school for Form V I am being asked this afternoon by the hon. Member for the same area.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Minister aware and will he tell this House whether Kevote Secondary School was one of the first secondary schools in Eastern Province and for that matter it would have been an act of reasonableness for the Ministry of Education to give priority to this particular school because, at present, there many Embu pupils who did very well, but because there were no Form V places, they could not join Form V? Therefore, he should consider this school—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! That is enough question.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, again, I say I am very happy about the Member's deep concern for the need for further educational facilities in his district. He should not, however, keep on painting the picture for Eastern Province and then end up with Embu. If he is concerned with the Eastern Province, we shall talk about the entire Eastern Province. However, he just keeps on coming back to Embu.

Question No. 181

KISII RESULTS OF CERTIFICATE OF PRIMARY EDUCATION EXAMINATION

Mr. Omweri asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) of the Kisii Certificate of Primary Education candidates of 1968, how many pupils did the second examination and how many pupils failed to sit;
- (b) how many had been placed to Form I and actually took up these places in 1969.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) A total of 7,375 Certificate of Primary Education candidates were supposed to resit the examination in Gusii in January 1969. Of these I am sorry to say, Sir, that 1,276 boycotted the examination and did not show up.

(b) Form I places, however, were reserved in provincial and extra-provincial secondary schools for Gusii candidates and finally 670 pupils were selected and offered Form I places at the beginning of the year. All have taken their places.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell us and the country why the figure originally given, 880, has been reduced to 670 in Form I places?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not remember exactly, but I believe the figures we gave for the reserved places did not necessarily mean that they would be filled if the pupils did not pass satisfactorily.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the satisfactory pass, which is subject to argument— There are certain students who had good grades like "A", "B" but who have not been offered a place yet? These pupils are still at home.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware. However, if there are students like that it would have been the duty of the hon. Member to do what other Members have done, to draw our attention to it and we will then do our best to squeeze these pupils in. We have even raised the figures from 35 per class to 38 and in some places even to 40 pupils per class in order to accommodate those who have done well.

Question No. 190

BUILDING CONTRACTOR FOR GUSII AIDED SCHOOLS

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) in view of the fact that all citizens of this country participated in bringing Uhuru and self-government, why the contract of putting up buildings in all aided schools in Gusii was given to one Geoffrey Kamau who lived in Eldoret;
- (b) why it had been found necessary to import even those persons to build latrines and those mixing cement from Central Province, when in Gusii they had so many school leavers roaming about in town without means of feeding themselves.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Before I do so, Sir, I want to say that these are the kind of questions, as my reply will indicate, which are not based on fact.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question states that all aided schools in Gusii are being built by one person known as Geoffrey Kamau whose company is known as National Builders of Eldoret, indicating that all schools are under his authority.

The facts of the situation, Sir, are as follows. Schools to be aided by the Government, for capital development, are contracted for through the National Construction Corporation Limited, which is a Government company. This has sub-contractors, and for the information of the hon. Member who, whenever he sees a person from Central Province he begins to itch, Bishop Otunga School was built by Messrs. C. Odek of Sare, who is the subcontractor; Nduru: Messrs. C. Odek of Sare again, and we have had no complaint on that; Nyaburu: Messrs. C. Odek of Sare; Gekano: National Builders of Eldoret, and that is what the complaint is about; Kerere: this is being done by the school's own direct labour.

So out of the 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 schools, one has a Central Province person who is a subcontractor from Eldoret, and the others the hon. Member does not complain about. I think it is most unfair that whenever a person from Central Province wins a tender on equal basis with other people we are told there is tribalism.

Sir, in 1967/68 these are the schools—
Sameta: Messrs. Fadiar of Kisii; Nyamagua:
Messrs. Kisii Building Contractors, Kisii; Nya-bururu: Messrs. C. Odek Sare; Kareri: Messrs.
Chamber Building Contractors of Oyugis; Etierio:
Messrs. C. Odek of Sare.

If there was any complaint about monopoly, it should have been in regard to Messrs. C. Odek of Sare, not the National Building Contractors.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I am glad that the Minister has given me further information which I did not know, is it necessary that he should talk about labour, labour, labour, mainly small labour?

I repeat again, Sir, is it necessary, while agreeing with the Minister that certain contractors are local and some from South Nyanza, to bring somebody to mix the cement from other areas—importing them from other districts or provinces—when there are so many school leavers in this place?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is about time the hon. Member began doing some constituency work. If he had some people who needed work in his area, I am sure that Geoffrey Kamau or C. Odek are people who understand Swahili and English, if not Gusii, and he could have gone to them and said, "Please, don't bring anybody from Sare, don't bring anybody from Eldoret; please take my chaps from here, at home," and I am sure they would have done so instead of expecting Ministers to do their constituency work for him.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I agree with the Minister on his latter statement, would he tell the Member what power the Member has to decide who should get a contract, because the question arises as to why it was not necessary to award one contract to a Kisii company, such as some of the builders we have, Manga Young Builders, the Kisii contractors, who would have immediately employed youngsters from the area, rather than the people going to apply to new and foreign companies elsewhere?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not consider Eldoret a foreign territory. It is in Kenya. It so happens, Sir, that in Gekano, not Jambururu as originally said, where this fellow is working, only two persons tendered. Only two, and one was C. Odek and the other was Geoffrey Kamau. They were the only two. No Kisii gave a tender to the National Construction Corporation, and I think the National Corporation was getting tired of Odek who already had about four others, and decided to have a variation. The failure of the Kisii to tender should not be blamed on the Minister for Education.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In reference to this question, I must remind hon. Members that every hon. Member is responsible for the accuracy of facts he brings before this House. That applies just as much to facts implied by a question as to any other allegation of fact. It is very wrong of hon. Members to bring questions based on allegations of fact which they know to be false or they do not know to be true. I would ask hon. Members to be more careful in regard to their questions.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): On a point of order, I was just wondering, Mr. Speaker, in view of what you have said. This is a glaring example where the hon. Member, Mr. Kebaso, was not sure of his facts. Could he not be asked to withdraw, or at least give an assurance that his facts were wrong?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I thought in his second question, he was prepared to accept the Minister's denial of what he had alleged, so I do not think any further withdrawal is necessary, but I do hope this sort of thing is not going to happen too often.

Mr. Omweri: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, arising from your ruling about facts and Members bringing questions which do not contain clear facts, what power do we have to make the Ministers comply with the same ruling? According to the Minister's answer regarding Gekano School, that only two tenders were submitted, there was a letter from the provincial office, I did not read this letter, Mr. Speaker, what required five contractors—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Omweri, if you are suggesting that the Minister in his turn gave some untrue statement of fact to the House, then you know the way of dealing with that. I have described to hon. Members many ways. It is not by starting to argue in this House. You should talk to him outside, and if he acknowledges that it is untrue, he comes and corrects it in this House. If he does not acknowledge that it is untrue, you have to set about somehow trying to prove it to him. It is no good having a dispute as to fact in this House, because we cannot sit here as a jury and judges of fact.

Mr. Kebaso: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand strongly to protest about the remarks made by the hon. Attorney-General. If the Minister for Education has accepted that Geoffrey Kamau was building Gekano and other places in Kisii, what was wrong with what I said?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! No, Mr. Kebaso, it is no good trying to excuse yourself. Your question said, "Why was the contract of putting up buildings in all aided schools in Gusii given to one Geoffrey Kamau . . .". You have a clear reputation of your allegation. It is no good complaining of that refutation or criticism now of what you did. I hope you will remember this for next time.

Next question.

Question No. 191

GEOGRAPHY SYLLABUS FOR SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Education if he was preparing a new syllabus of geography subjects for classes I to VI to study local geography, instead of studying the old lands of Europe and the new lands of America which was too hard for the youngsters of the Republic.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Yes, Sir, my Ministry is already working on an improved geography syllabus for primary schools. In this new syllabus, a lot more local geography will be included. However, children should also learn about other countries, even at primary school level.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now that it has been proved that the teachers and pupils were using the wrong books, will the Minister take the matter up, because it is only the publishers who have received a lot of money since it has been proved that there were the wrong books? Will the Minister now take the matter up, so that he bans these books?

Dr. Kiano: No, Sir, because during the period since we have been independent, we have been modifying our curriculum, but if we were to ban all books today which are used, we would be left with very little because our local writers and my curriculum research and development centre cannot produce enough books suddenly. However, we shall do the necessary work as fast as possible to have proper and more up-to-date books in our schools.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, which books is the Ministry recommending to start with from now in the schools instead of the old lands and the new lands of America?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of curriculum revision and correction is not just for geography alone; we are doing the same for other subjects as well. If the hon. Member would like to know the list of the newly-accepted books, it is rather long and I could not really give it to the House now, but I could send him a letter.

Question No. 155

APPOINTMENT OF JURORS INSTEAD OF ASSESSORS

Mr. Karungaru asked the Attorney-General—

- (a) when the Government would amend the present Act which empowered the courts to appoint assessors instead of jurors to assist the judges in criminal cases;
- (b) when he would increase the allowance which assessors received each day of Sh. 7.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no intention of re-introducing the jury system in this country. I do not think the hon. Members, but there was strong agitation for the abolition of the jury system in this country about four years ago, and those who understand the working of the jury system as against assessors will know the jury system is not suitable for our country and our society.

Secondly, the assessors gives a service and does not receive a payment. He is assisting the court in the administration of justice. Assessors are paid out-of-pocket expenses, and I am sure those who work as assessors recognize it is sufficient.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Attorney-General not aware that if a person works as an assessor, he is bound to remain in the court, and he is also bound to excuse himself from his other office where he works, and therefore he should be accorded the same amount of payment that he earns at the place of his employment, rather than receiving only Sh. 7, fully knowing that perhaps he earns Sh. 50 per day? What right exists only to pay him Sh. 7?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, people who are called upon to do assessors' work are either people who have been retired as Government officers—and I might mention here that Members of Parliament are not called upon to do assessors' work—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Point of order, Mr. Karungaru.

Mr. Karungaru: Point of information—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A point of order is quite a different thing from a point of information.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Members of Parliament and civil servants, and indeed doctors and lawyers are exempt from doing this type of work. The people who are called upon to do assessors' work are either ex-chiefs or old senior civil servants—

Hon. Members: No, no.

Mr. C. Njonjo: There is a list, Mr. Speaker. I am not just guessing. There is a list of people who are called upon to do this type of work.

Mr. Chirchir: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Attorney-General aware that the Sh. 7 the assessors are paid is not sufficient for them even to have lunch or supper? Is he aware of that?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I said that people who are called upon to do assessors' work are paid out-of-pocket expenses. If they come by bus, train or air, their fares are paid for, and the court is entitled, if it thinks an assessor has incurred more expenses, to order that he be paid more. I have had no complaints from people who serve as assessors—

An hon. Member: They would not dare.

Mr. C. Njonjo: —and honestly I do not know where the hon. Member has got this information. If he can tell me which assessor is complaining that he is out of pocket, I am prepared to consider it.

Mr. Mathenge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as a matter of principle, why should the selection of assessors be restricted to ex-civil servants, ex-chiefs? Does this serve the purpose of having assessors in court? Why cannot any citizen, who would do his best in assessing a case, be considered?

Mr. C. Njonjo: This, Mr. Speaker, is precisely the point. If we were to call on Mr. Karungaru to do assessors' work, we would be told that we were wasting the time of Members of Parliament. If we included in the assessors' list doctors, lawyers or teachers, we would be told that we were calling upon people who had other duties to perform. The people who are doing assessors' work, by and large, are people who are not employed. If they are employed, I submit seriously, their employers will not deduct the allowance he should receive on that day. On top of that, on top of his salary, he will get Sh. 7, or whatever the court orders.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, arising from the Attorney-General's answer, since it is a principle that we have to do justice, it means we have to have the proper people who will exercise good judgment, so would the Attorney-General agree with me that by giving these people Sh. 7 per day, he is denying whoever is charged the right to be tried by proper assessors who would give out the best justice, since he has people who are only able to earn Sh. 7?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, assessors are not called upon by the accused person and the hon. Senator knows that very well because he has been a court clerk.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must first of all be allowed to repeat what I said: I did not say that they are called by the assessors, I said, "will we not"—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, you cannot be allowed to repeat what you said as a point of order, though you might be invited to do so; that is another matter. You had not finished, I think, Mr. Njonjo.

Mr. C. Njonjo: If my friend would have waited, I am not disagreeing with him, what I am saying is that the court has a roll of assessors numbering about 100 or 200. When a case comes up—and this only comes up on capital cases when a person is charged with murder and no other time, that is the only time assessors are used, when we have a capital case—the court calls, say, fifty people and the accused person is entitled to choose his own people. He is free to say that he does not want that person, that person and that person, he makes his own choice.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are being asked to introduce salaries in this matter—

Hon. Members: Not salaries, allowances; they are too low.

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I submit that the amount being paid today to the gentlemen who do this kind of work is reasonable for this type of work.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on now. I remind hon. Members that on the adjournment today, Mr. Godia is to raise the matter appearing on the Order Paper

POINT OF ORDER

TAKING OF A DIVISION IN ABSENCE OF QUORUM

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, on Friday last week, we had a Division in this House regarding an amendment to the prices of agricultural produce by the hon. Mr. Khaoya and it has come to my notice that we did not have a Quorum, in other words, we had the 16 Ayes, 10 Noes and three abstentions. I wonder whether this can be taken as a resolution of this House because we did not have the Quorum.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I find it a little hard to hear Mr. arap Soi from there, but I think you are suggesting that when we had a Division on a Private Member's Motion last Friday, there was no Quorum. I was a little worried about it myself, but I think there was a Quorum because I counted the Members in the Chamber before we went into Division and I made it exactly 30. It is true enough that when the Ayes and Noes and the

[The Speaker]

Members recorded as abstentions were added up, it only came to 29. I think there must have been some fault in the recording, rather than in my counting of the number of Members in the Chamber. I therefore think we can accept that there was a Quorum.

Mr. arap Soi: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Mathenge: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to be clear on that point. Under the Standing Orders, if no hon. Member rises to point out that there is no Quorum, it is assumed that there is a Quorum even if the number is less than 30; would that not be the case then, that is, even if there was a Division, it was a Quorum because nobody raised the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Mathenge, what you say is applicable to all ordinary proceedings of the House. The Speaker, takes no notice of the lack of Quorum unless some hon. Member actually objects that there is no Quorum. As regards Division, however, it is expressly laid down by Standing Orders that if, at the time of a Division, after closing the doors, the Speaker sees that there is no Quorum, he must then adjourn the Division till another day. It is a special provision with regard to Divisions. As I said, I think on that occasion we were all right, even if, from the final tally, it may look as if we were wrong.

BILLS

Second Reading

THE STATUTE LAW (MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS) BILL

(The Attorney-General on 9th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 9th June 1969)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku was speaking.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had drawn your attention to this provision on the Administration Police Act, Chapter 85, Section 4 (3), which reads: "Replace 'a magistrate' with an administrative officer". Here Mr. Speaker, Sir, I intend to bring an amendment during Committee Stage so that we should leave that law as it stands. I do not see any reasonable reason why we should change it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I touch on this Criminal Procedure Code on page 23, Chapter 75—and I have been reading it—you can see that we agreed in the past that it should be 16 years for somebody who fiddles about with any girl to be found guilty or not guilty; but now the Attorney-General has reduced it from 16 to 14. No reasonable reason was advanced by him as to why he thinks our girls are grown up at 14. I do not know which doctor he consulted and whether nature has changed within the short period I have been in this National Assembly—I do not know. All these questions have not been answered by the Attorney-General at all.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): We have changed it.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, he says we have changed it, but I do not know when we changed it. I would be glad if he would tell us who changed it, when he changed it, and for what reasons, because as far as I know, we have not changed anything as yet. I always sit on this seat of Butere from 2.30 to 7 p.m. and I do not know when and where this was changed—was it in the kitchen or somewhere in the bush?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Outside you.

Mr. Shikuku: Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if he said outside me, then he should be inside me in this House. I object very strongly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to allowing this age to go below 16. As a matter of fact I would have preferred that it goes as far as 18, 20 and even 21. I also intend to bring an amendment to curb the Attorney-General's eagerness because in the end he will tell us that a girl of 12 will be considered to be mature. This is a very dangerous proposal and particularly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a bachelor like him to go so far. We might as well doubt his sincerity. This is something which if we leave unchallenged in this House, we shall be failing in our duties.

Now, Sir, having said that—I am moving on pretty fast because I would like to give other Members a chance to say something about this Bill—I am now calling your attention to page 27 of the Bill, Chapter 406 where I find that it is in terms of five, the Attorney-General is increasing the figure five to seven years without reasonable reason being given. When you read the chapter, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you will find that the Minister has the power, again, to increase the period by two years. If we make it seven years, it will be about nine years because the Minister has the power to extend the period by two years; so, I do not see any reason for this. I think the figure five should remain so that the Minister can use his discretion at times and move it to seven years by adding two years. I therefore do not see any reasonable reason for having that increased from five to seven years.

[Mr. Shikuku]

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is about the estate duty. Personally, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must confess that I have never paid great attention to this estate duties business. Now, whether this is within the African Socialism or outside is the question I would like to find out from the Attorney-General. However, if it is the question of paying estate duty taxes, as I have read in Chapter 483, this should only apply to people in high-income brackets; but apparently this is not so since it applies to everybody. That is why, no wonder, Sir, I have met a lot of my constituents who say: "Well, my husband was working for railways, was working for the Government, and so forth, and since he died we have not been able to get even a single cent". By the time you get the single cent, after such a long period, it is so much reduced because of this tax.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must speak on the subject of the amendment, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Yes Sir, I am on the subject of the amendment because I am referring to Estate Duty, Chapter 483, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What you must refer to is not merely Estate Duty, but this particular amendment to the Estate Duty Act proposed here and that is all.

Mr. Shikuku: I am just coming to it because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, come to it.

Mr. Shikuku: I am coming to it because in this section which they are amending here, they say that this section shall not apply to Mzee Jomo Kenyatta as President and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Kenya. That is why I say that the Estate Duty Act, as such, I do not agree with, and also I am of the opinion that the President of the Republic should enjoy this privilege and should be exempted from this. It is not stated whether the future Presidents too, shall enjoy the same privilege, because here it specifically states "Mzee Jomo Kenyatta", and we know there will never be another Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. I do not object to the idea of his enjoying this exemption because I would like him to enjoy it so long as he is in the chair no one can sue him in court, and this is quite all right and I have no objection to it. However, it is specifically stated that it is him and that he is the first but there will never be another first who will enjoy being exempted from this. I think it is wrong. It should be the principle that the present President of the Republic of Kenya, and those who will hold that position in the future should be exempted from this, rather than specifically stating that only His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta as this is supposed to be the law of the land.

The most important thing is that it is the law of the land and not the law of Shikuku, or the law of Nyaberi, or the law of anyone else, it is the law of the land, and so we should go by the principle. It should be that the present President of this country, and the future Presidents of this country, shall be exempted from this. Any President should be exempted. I think the amendment should be: "His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, the first President, and other Presidents will be exempted from this rule of the land". We do not know whether the other Presidents will be wazees too, but they will be Presidents whether they are wazee or not.

Now, Sir, having made that remark I am of the opinion that some of these things we have heard here, which have been brought to us for amendment, are not sufficiently important to deserve introduction in this House. I am now drawing your attention, Mr. Speaker, to Section 67 (1) and I will read you what has been amended:—

"Notwithstanding the provisions of any other written law, where a person, who has attained the apparent age of eighteen years but has not attained the apparent age of twenty-one years, is convicted of an offence not punishable with death, the court may sentence such person to corrective training in a youth corrective training centre for a period of four months."

Mr. Speaker, I agree with this and I congratulate the Attorney-General who said that these people should be given training instead of being put together with the other thugs. Now, as regards the four months' period, Sir, the amendment which the Attorney-General is moving states that they will be going in for training, but he does not specify the period. If my memory serves me right, I know he did not specify the period; but in the amendments it is specified as a four months' training. In what the Attorney-General is amending here, Section 67, he does not state the period during which these young men and women would be given the training.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Are you referring to Borstal now?

Mr. Shikuku: Yes.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): The court will make the order.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I am told that the court will make the order, but I think it should be within our reach to suggest a period. Four months in the old law is not enough and the judges can decide for how long a youth can stay in this training in the Borstal schools to learn something. I think we should give them a general period, and personally I feel a year is enough, or at least it is a period which is quite reasonable and within which somebody can be given helpful lessons. Four months is not enough because there are some people with not very bright brains who will need a longer time. I think it is for the good of the youth that we extend this for a longer period so that they can be taught a lesson and turned into people who are useful to the society. Four months, or a period of six months, are not enough.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Which section is this?

Mr. Shikuku: This is Section 67 (1) which is being amended and here in the amendment you do not state the date, and you say that the court will do that. I am suggesting, Mr. Speaker, that the judges should give these youths something like a year or over, so that they stay in these Borstal schools and come out as useful specimens of humanity to help this nation.

Now, Sir, having said that, I am coming to the last point on this Bill, and that is about the amendment by the Attorney-General, which I have been looking at, where he is requesting the House to approve this death penalty for these thieves who steal with violence. This is quite all right theoretically, but as much as I denounce the thieves in this country, and as much as I support the idea that they must be eliminated—and by all means they should be eliminated because they are a menace to the society—I feel we must be a bit cautious here, Mr. Speaker. I know many people feel very strongly about this because many people have been robbed and they believe that everybody should work to get whatever he wants to get. However, when we talk in terms of the death penalty, it is quite in order, but the thieves are not fools and, as a matter of fact, many of them are quite smart, if not smarter than some of us in this House.

An hon. Member: Do you support them?

Mr. Shikuku: One Member is asking me if I support them; if he had been listening, he would have known that I do not. I denounce them and I shall continue to denounce them. The point is this, if we institute the death penalty, those thieves who go robbing with violence will also institute methods whereby you will not be able to give any evidence or prove that they are the ones who stole from you using violent means. They will chinja everybody in the area or in that particular house to make sure that nobody will come up to give evidence against them. It is normal when you go to the courts you have to produce evidence, and if you arrest him without evidence he will be acquitted by the court. If we institute the death penalty, they will also institute the death penalty to all the people in the area where they rob and there will be no evidence. Of course, we know that is what we do not like because nobody will be able to speak.

We may end up by finding these people becoming too smart for us. I recall the Attorney-General's speech the other day in this House when he said he did not agree very much with the question of the death penalty, but I think that now, because of the robberies which have been going on, and taking into account the serious view His Excellency the President of this Republic has taken in connexion with this thieving, he has brought this. This being the legislature, I am not opposing the idea of hanging these guys, but I am taking into account the effects of that hanging. Before you hang such a person you must have evidence, and I am wondering how we will get evidence because the thief will kill those who will possibly give us evidence. If that is the case, then I must think again and say that we should imprison these fellows for life. I suggested the other day—and I was told that it was good but it was not human—that we have their hands cut off; say the right-hand side is cut off the first time and then the second time we have the other one cut off, and then they end up somewhere like Mji wa Huruma in Nairobi where they will be a liability to the society because they can do nothing there with those remaining pieces of their hands and so they have to be fed.

Therefore, I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker, that while debating this drastic measure with all reasonable reason that it should be implemented, we should take into account seriously the evidence part of it because the thieves will murder everybody. May I suggest that these particular people should be sent in for, let us say, 50 years' imprisonment. The sentence should be increased so that we keep them there and make them work so that they work so hard in the prison—and there will be no question of eating meat four times a day because they live on vegetables there—for the rest of their lives. If somebody is caught at the age of 30, and is put in for 50 years, it is just the same as sentencing him to death. They should stay there and the public will be quite at home. If we have got to hang him, he is going to hang others to make sure that he is not hanged himself. Therefore, we should increase the sentence rather than hang them because we shall be the losers in the long run.

[Mr. Shikuku]

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that some of the thieves now, as I have read in the newspapers, are already confessing in response to the call by Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, and they are saying, "I am giving up, here I am and I would like to confess that I have been a notorious thief operating in such-and-such a corner and now I have decided to make up my mind to live as a good citizen", and then they get some shambas—I think this appeal is succeeding. However, I do not know how far those thieves in Butere have taken advantage of this. I think it will be in the interest of all the Members here, that I should call on the chiefs in Butere and ask them to call a meeting for all the thieves there and tell them that they will get bits of land like those who are surrendering in the Central Province. I know there were some in Central Province and in Mombasa, there were some people—but, of course, most of them will come from Central Province. These bad ones are around here and those of us at home can only afford to steal a blanket or a plate; but those here, in Central Province, are really quite smart.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, many times in this House I think you have ruled that it is offensive to utter words which might be detrimental to the good relationship existing between the tribes of this country. Now the hon. Member speaking seems to single out a province and he pretends that this is where all the thieves come from, and in that case it is likely to offend quite a big majority of the people concerned. Do you think, Mr. Speaker, it is in order to do that when, for example, Central Province caters for nearly half of Kenya's population? Do you not think that he should not do that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Sometimes, in the course of his duty, an hon. Member cannot help saying things which may hurt other people with reference to tribes or otherwise, but gratuitous attacks on a complete tribe, or complete community, I have said very many times is completely out of order. This seems to be quite gratuitous and I think you must withdraw it, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to withdraw it if I have mentioned any tribe in the Central Province. Central Province is made up of the Masai, Abaluhya, Luo—all the tribes are here. I did not specifically point out the Kikuyu for example. I said people from the Central Province, and I can substantiate that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Central Province is pretty well confined to one tribe, is it not? Please withdraw it. I do not think you have any case, so please withdraw it.

Mr. Shikuku: If I was implying a tribe I will withdraw it, but—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Carry on.

Mr. Shikuku: I will withdraw and leave it as it stands. I am of the opinion, Mr. Speaker—just for the debate my hon. friend has scored a point. May I ask one question, Sir? If I am of the opinion that I am in a position to substantiate, would I be in order to do so, Sir?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What exactly do you want to substantiate, if you really insist on doing this?

Mr. Shikuku: It is about the amount of theft which is going on. There is very little, I am comparing—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before you try to substantiate that it belongs to a particular province or tribe, can you show it is relevant to the matter we are discussing?

Mr. Mbogoh: It is irrelevant.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If it is irrelevant, I would leave it alone.

Mr. Shikuku: All right, Mr. Speaker, I will. My friend here seems to be emerging as a small speaker.

Now, Sir, having said that, I feel we should leave this question of hanging and concentrate on increasing sentences because hanging will be detrimental in the long run.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, much has been said about this Bill but I have just a few points which I would like to advance.

Page 22 of the Penal Code (Cap. 63) section 52, subsection 389 and 390, deals with attempts to commit offences. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have argued before, in this House, that punishing a person just because he is deemed, or has been deemed to have attempted to commit an offence, and sending him to jail for seven years, which I see here, "a period not exceeding seven years", I believe this is very unfair. I was of the opinion that the Attorney-General would have seen sense and listened to our arguments, in previous debates, about periods during which a person is to serve a sentence in jail, and for a given crime.

This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is referring to attempting to commit a felony, or a misdemeanour. My argument here is on the period, which is seven years, and I hope the Attorney-General, who is not here—I do not know who is going to listen for him because there are no Ministers, nobody at all. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is terrible.

Am I in order, Mr. Speaker, to move the adjournment of this debate until the Ministers are in this House? It is no use us talking to the empty Front Benches.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is only necessary to have one Minister here, that is to say the Attorney-General, for this particular debate. But I agree it is rather fruitless to debate it very long in his absence. Sometimes necessity, such as the demands of nature, enforce temporary absence, but if the absence continues very long I could not stop you from moving the adjournment of the debate.

QUORUM

Mr. Tuwei: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not think there is any quorum in the House at the moment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is so, Mr. Tuwei; but unless you actually object to the lack of quorum we will continue. If you object to the lack of quorum, then I will take the usual steps. Do you actually object?

Mr. Tuwei: I do object to there being no quorum in the House, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not usually take points of order when we are waiting for a quorum. What is yours, Mr. Mbogoh?

Mr. Mbogoh: Could I have the House for myself and address those who are present without the Speaker listening?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is nothing to stop you having a private conversation with one or two of them, but it will not be recorded in HANSARD.

We now have a quorum, please continue, Mr. Mwithaga.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have two points of order at the same time. The first one is very simple.

In this House we know very well that at about four o'clock tea is served in the lounge, and in many cases hon. Members go for tea; would it not be more courteous to ignore a point of order concerning a quorum in case people are taking their tea? We know there might be some hon. Members who are very interested in coming back. If that fails, then we can have a five-minute break for tea.

My second point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I had better deal with one at a time.

So far as that point goes, it is written in the Constitution that if an hon. Member objects to there being no quorum, then the Speaker has to take certain specified action. There is no way round that at all. If hon. Members feel they should not object during any particular period, then it is up to them; it is up to them and cannot be insisted on as a point of order.

With regards to the alternative, as to some sort of adjournment for tea, that would involve an amendment of the Standing Orders which could be achieved by a suitable Motion for that purpose. You have another point of order?

Mr. Mbogoh: My other point of order, Mr. Speaker, is when there is, let us say, a point of order like that one, when an hon. Member feels there are no Ministers or anybody to listen to their speech, is there anything—since it is a point of order that is being observed—to prevent the Speaker from ruling that somebody can continue talking on something else which is not on the Order Paper, since the point of order at issue is lack of quorum. During the lack of quorum, can somebody speak on something else which is of interest to himself and to those Members left in the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid it is rather hard to follow Mr. Mbogoh. If you are suggesting that any proceedings can continue after a Member has objected to a lack of quorum and before the quorum is recovered, the answer is “no”. One way of dealing with the previous point Mr. Mbogoh made is the way I remember one hon. Member dealing with it some time ago. He used to rise deliberately at 4 p.m., because he knew that hon. Members were not very much interested in listening to him, and said, “I am standing now in order that hon. Members may go and have their cup of tea”.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know all that was troubling the hon. Member was tea and he is now going.

Mr. Speaker, I was trying to advance a point, in the absence of the Attorney-General, and I am glad he has come back and I hope he is now going to sit here and listen— Oh, he has started going out again.

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that understanding the subsection being amended, I do not see any reason for establishing here, or trying to stipulate, that the period should be seven years' jail. My appeal, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and it has been my appeal before in this House, is that we should try to find out exactly what kind of crime deserves a longer period in jail. The reasons should be shown because if that person needs a long period for reformation, or if he might be dangerous, if he was only imprisoned for a short period only— If those reasons cannot be shown clearly, Mr. Speaker, I do not believe, and will not be made to believe, that long periods of imprisonment are reformatory at all, especially when an offence is a mere attempt.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a felony is committed, and proved in a court of law, then there is no argument. The question of attempt leaves a lot to be desired because you can never tell whether the attempt can really be established as being a true crime. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is my hope that the Attorney-General will see sense and reduce the period from at least seven years to five years. Although he shows that a person being sent to jail for seven years, or half the period he was going to serve is a person who has been attempting to commit a felony or a misdemeanour, that is understood. However, it should be specified here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when we are going to legislate clauses and punishments which are really useful for reformation purposes.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing is about the Criminal Procedure Code, Section 186. Without trying to repeat what my hon. friend said yesterday about changing years from 16 to 14, because it says, "Replace '16' with '14'." Mr. Speaker, Sir, as usual, we may find this Bill inadequate and blame the Attorney-General for not having taken note of all that has been said here, not having considered the advice given by hon. Members. So, the whole thing remains as it is here, as he wanted it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a situation like this one, Members find it difficult, even if they had very important points to advance. I feel that in reducing 16 years to 14, here the Attorney-General would be contradicting his usual statements in this House about women, in that he has been a self-styled champion on women affairs and now he is trying to increase the number of that womanhood by legislating that 14 years will entitle these young girls to be treated as grown-ups. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope the Attorney-General does not quarrel because he is a self-styled representative of women. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe that reducing the period of years from 16 to 14 is wrong, and some of these things need consultation. He should have consulted the National Council of Women, or the so-called Maendeleo ya Wanawake. He should have consulted all these women organizations because they normally invite him to address them. I do not know in what capacity he addresses them, whether it is in the capacity as the Attorney-General, or in the capacity as a man, or in the capacity as their representative, I do not know in what capacity. However, he should, Mr. Speaker, Sir, be consulting some of these organizations so that they can also give him their feelings based on experience. A champion on women affairs is a woman herself, and she knows the maturity age of the young girls more than a man can say. In fact, even the doctors find it, in most cases, difficult to say because some girls may reach maturity much earlier. However, even psychologically, treating a girl of 14 as a mature girl is wrong. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I am more experienced than the Attorney-General on this aspect because I am a social worker and I know where the problem lies. The Attorney-General is only concerned about the essence of the law, but I am concerned about both the essence of the law and the social aspect of it. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this should be amended to go back to 16. Reducing it further would create a tendency in these girls to grow into prostitutes and exceed the number we have now which is highly multiple.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of the girls roaming in the streets of Nairobi, are very young and legislating 14 years as the age of maturity would enable them to contest this even if it was in a court. They are mature, they are grown-up and you cannot harass them anyhow, not even by using the Vagrancy Act.

Mr. Lubembe: What do you want?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I want is the Attorney-General to go back, to this amendment, and delete the section as it stands right now. The problem of the hon. Lubembe is not my problem.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing is the Evidence Act, section 47. It says "Proof of guilt". When I read this section, I concluded that, as usual, we are made to believe, and we make other people believe, that the common man in the countryside understands the law. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to add here that we have the law implemented by forces of the law on the people who are ignorant of some of the consequences contained in some of the provisions of our law. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here, in "Proof of guilt" they say, if a person fails to appeal during the period provided in the law, that alone is taken conclusively as proving him guilty. Mr. Speaker, I have seen cases where a person is told, "All right, you have fourteen days' period within which you can appeal". However, what becomes difficult in most cases is that these people are remanded, and during the period of remand, until they are able to appeal within the fourteen days allowed to them within which to appeal. However, it is the facilities which are available—and I have seen this from personal experience when I was a prisoner. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in most cases, facilities are very scarce. Now, before a person can be proved guilty because he has failed, we should get the court, the judicial department, to instruct the magistrate to stress on these points of the period of appeal before a person leaves the court. In most cases, Mr. Speaker, Sir, a person is only told, "You have been sentenced for such-and-such a period of time", or perhaps he is fined and is told that he has a period of 14 days within which to appeal. Now, this must be explained to the person, exactly how he is going to do it. Either the police take the problem as their own, or the prosecution, the State Counsel or the magistrate explains this before the person leaves the court, so that if he or she does not appeal within such period, he or she will be fully conscious of the consequences of failing to do that. If this is not done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and we take it for granted that they will understand just because we have a refuge in this law, it is wrong. It is high time we took the trouble to educate our people by all means available, establish some institutions like schools and others. When a person is told he is guilty of this or that crime, the magistrate should take some trouble to explain further some of these things in order that people know what the law requires them to do.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the question of the Liquor Licensing Act, that is section 27, page 24. Now, Mr. Speaker, I agree with the subsection that immediately follows subsection two concerning renewal of licences. Here is the problem. A person who has been refused the renewal of the licence is told that he can pay a fee, he can take out the licence for the time he has appealed and continue to trade. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have also seen cases in this connexion when once the police know—because most of the Liquor Licensing courts includes a police officer—immediately a person is refused the renewal of the licence, the police go and order the surrender of the current or existing licence. Once the original licence is taken away, the trader cannot operate. If that is surrendered, and he is told that the mere paying of fees required for the licence would enable him to continue to trade, then I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it is embarrassing, because if the court has decided to refuse the licence and the period of appeal is a short one, and one takes a licence for the whole year, and after that when the appeal is heard it fails, what will happen? The man has already taken his licence for the year—because normally they are one-year licences—and his appeal fails, what will then happen? Is that not an embarrassment? It is creating a deliberate embarrassment. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that point is of no use here. What should be done is that the original licence should be allowed to be extended to cover the period during which a person can appeal until that appeal is heard and is disposed of.

If that is put back, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then it is not going to be technical for the licensee to understand that all he will do is to extend the licence to that given period. But asking him to go and take another licence, the appropriate licence, would eventually mean him taking out a licence for the whole year, which is normally done.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Attorney-General who, again, is not here—My Lord!

Hon. Members: Why do you want him?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must confess—for the information of the hon. Members—that I need the Attorney-General because the Speaker will not amend these clauses. It is the duty of the Attorney-General, he is paid for it. That is why he should sit here. In any case, let me talk to the empty benches.

An hon. Member: Inform the Attorney-General.

Mr. Mwithaga: Yes, he will be informed, I know. I hope hon. Gatuguta will do that because he is also a lawyer.

Mr. Speaker, there was this question of the Survey Act, Sec. 22—I hope the hon. Member will have a point when he starts talking—where they say, "Replace 'the Land Adjudication Act' with 'the Land Consolidation Act or the Land Adjudication Act 1968'."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, here the House might need your guidance because I remember we amended the Land Consolidation Act and in its place we took the Land Adjudication Act. Now the section that is included here says, "Replace 'the Land Adjudication Act, with 'the Land Consolidation Act or the Land Adjudication Act 1968'." Mr. Speaker, Sir, here we need an explanation and perhaps you might be able to give us some light. What does it actually imply? Does it imply that we go to the original Act which is the Land Consolidation Act, which is not effective at the moment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Mwithaga, that the explanation of this is that the original Land Adjudication Act was repealed and replaced by two Acts: the Land Consolidation Act, which dealt with the actual procedure of land consolidation, and the Land Adjudication Act 1968, which dealt with the actual allocation of ownership of land. So in actually referring to the original Land Adjudication Act, you have to substitute those two Acts to get the same results. I think it is purely formal.

Mr. Mwithaga: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir. In fact, this was worrying me because to an extent I believe that the laws we make must not confuse the public, and especially land issues which are very sensitive, because this is where we normally find problems.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that I have more to say apart from only one point on the registration of business names, Sir. The others are all nearly self-explanatory.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, section 17 (e) says, "which in the opinion of the Registrar is undesirable". I know one problem here is that most people who submit business names' applications to the Registrar, and if a name of a business is similar to the name of an already existing business, in most cases the Registrar does not register such business in that given name. But, Mr. Speaker, the problem here is that the Registrar might think that that kind of business name being used is undesirable, yet most of the names in use today signify the new era, the political situation and the African names which have not been in existence before. Moreover, the people do not know, Mr. Speaker, which names are actually existing in business, because these names are publicized in the Kenya Gazette and the people in the countryside do not seem to know. The Attorney-General and the Registrar of Companies should start using the press media so that people can know which names exist and those which do not exist. That will stop embarrassing the people who come out with new businesses because by the time one is told that one's business name has not been approved, and one is obliged to find another name, it will have costed him time and money. Mr. Speaker, Sir, some of the lawyers who help in registering some of these business names are obviously charging fees. The lawyer tells you that because that name has not been accepted by the Registrar—and the name is termed undesirable—the best thing for you to do is to find another name. People have to pay more money to the lawyer. In fact, we are encouraging more spending of money by our people for no reason of their own.

What should be done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to publish all the existing names in the local papers.

The Kenya Gazette is meant for the élite, the well-to-do and the official circles. How many people in the countryside buy the Kenya Gazette? Hardly any, Mr. Speaker.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

This Gazette is not meant for the people in the countryside as the Attorney-General believes. The local papers should be used. If we cannot use the local papers, the office of the Registrar of Companies should normally print a special issue, in the form of a leaflet, which can be used by the people in the countryside. This will help in avoiding embarrassment and unnecessary expenditure of money by our people.

With those few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there are a lot of amendments here and one cannot really speak on all because it will require a lot of work—

An hon. Member: Speak for the whole day.

Mr. Lubembe: Well there are some things are not necessary for my constituency.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is this question of filing appeals from the lower court to the High Court. Here it is stated that the period will be 30 days and will exclude certified judgment from the magistrate, from the day that it was prepared and so on. I have witnessed in many cases that when a conviction takes place, a person is convicted, the magistrate says that the person has 30 days or 14 days within which to appeal. I am wondering, Sir, whether there has been another law which could be used if there was a need for having the appeal period shortened or for helping somebody who felt he needed a longer time. I feel that this should be explained so that we know what normally happens, since the existing law does not contain anything on this question of certified judgment.

I feel that if there is this amendment there will be time for the application of the certified copies after it has been decided. This must be done because some lawyers want certified copies of the judgments and this costs a lot of money. It involves the expenditure of a lot of money for the appellant in a given case.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it says here:—

"79G. Every appeal from a subordinate court to the High Court shall be filed within a period of thirty days from the date of the decree or order appealed against, excluding from such period any time which the lower court may certify as having been requisite for the preparation and delivery to the appellant of a copy of the decree or order”.

My submission here is that the Attorney-General should make arrangement with the Judiciary that once judgment is delivered the preparation of the certified copies should be arranged so that the lawyers do not charge too much money. The more money the lawyers demand to get this, the more the clients have to pay, and that appellant who is in difficulty will have to pay more when he cannot afford it. Therefore, we should assist and make it easier, so that the certified copies can be made ready as soon as application is made for them.

Coming to another point, we have this question of, “Replace ‘President’ with ‘Minister’ throughout”. This comes under the Asian Officers’ Family Pensions’ Act. I feel that this also needs some explanation where we have to replace “President” with “Minister”. It should be explained to us why the powers should be removed from the President and given to the Minister.

We now come to Chapter 234, the Trade Disputes Act, where it reads:—

“Immediately following the words, ‘This Act applies to trade disputes’, insert the words ‘in which’.”

I feel that the question of the Trades Disputes Act should not have come in this amendment. This should have been brought with the Trades Disputes Act itself so that other parts of that Act, which also require amendment, could also be discussed. If we amend this bit by bit, then it will be difficult to amend everything we may want to amend in that particular Act. Although this particular Bill deals with general amendments and the interpretation of certain laws in the country, I feel there are other laws which may require amendment.

I would like to support the Member for Butere on this question of Estate Duty where there is mention of His Excellency the President. In this, only the present President has been named here and, therefore there is no principle that is being followed. It is a question of trying to personalize the matter and make it a matter for the President only who is to be exempted. I do not think this will help very much from the point of view of publicity and the people who may support this Bill. Instead of naming our President, and mentioning his name, we should just say, “President” or “any President”. Whoever comes into power, we know, or whoever will be there in years to come—maybe ten or 20 years— if he belongs to a party that has won, then he will have to get the same privilege. I support the argument that the Head of State should be above the law of the land because he has to see that the law is properly administered. When this applies to him, he can easily try to feel something else, but if he is above the law, then he has to see that everybody administers the law properly.

When it comes to the question of Estate Duty, I do not think we should mention the President’s name as we have done. We should leave it as “President” so that it is the principle that is accepted and we should not take it that it is His Excellency as a person. Now that we are mentioning his name, we are moving away from the principle and trying to say that it is no longer the principle but respect for our present President, which we all know he has from the people. The President has the respect of every single citizen; we know that he even enjoys the respect of those Members who hide in that little corner there, called by the name of KPU. They do respect His Excellency the—

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it respectful for a Member to say, “. . . those who are hiding in the corner”? Is that parliamentary language?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not know. I think he was merely trying to say that that naming a particular person might seem, or might appear to give him a certain privilege. I think that is what he is saying, I do not know.

Anyway, I do not see anything unparliamentary there.

Mr. Lubembe: Sir, I did not really mean that the hon. Members of the KPU are hiding, I meant that they are sitting in the corner and there are very few of them and so nobody can see them clearly. That is what I meant.

Anyway, the hon. Member should realize that he is hiding alone there since there is nobody else in that part of the Chamber.

I now come to the question of the registration of societies. I do not want to appear to be jumping from here to there but want to mention something on this Act. I am glad the Attorney-General was corrected on this because in his speech he said things which were different to what is written here. I was happy that the hon. Mr. Wariithi corrected this, and I was also pleased that the Attorney-General accepted the correction because registering a name is a different thing from registering a company. Some are called companies, others are called corporations, and some of these corporations may be on an East African basis while others may not be. I am glad this has been corrected.

I want to ask the Attorney-General to get our laws amended; where the word "colony" still appears, this word should be deleted. I am sorry that this has come so late. I would like to say to the Attorney-General that, if he has difficulty as regards staff, he should re-fill that post of Solicitor-General so that we know who are the draftsmen there. Up till now we do not know who is responsible for the draftsmen. Where the words "Queen" and "colony" appear in any law, they should be deleted immediately. However, the point is that these words cannot be deleted unless the amendment has been brought to this House. Nobody can sit in the Attorney-General's Chambers and just delete these words. That is why I am asking the Attorney-General to bring the particular law—it may be the General Interpretation Act—in which these words "Queen" or "colony" appear to this House for amendment. We are now a sovereign state, we are part of the Commonwealth, and if we want we can gang up against the Commonwealth and expel Britain from the Commonwealth. We want to see that the question of colonies does not arise. Why I am saying this, Sir, is because of a recent experience. The whole of the central area is my constituency. One day I went to have a drink in a bar and met a British man who started talking to me. He said, "When I came to this colony . . .", and he was thinking that this place was still a colony. He was trying to tell me how he came to this colony. Instead he should have said, "When I came here . . .", or "When I came to Kenya . . .". This is because we still have some books which have this word "colony"; we still have laws in which this word "colony" appears. The sooner we remove this the better.

Coming to the question raised by hon. Mr. Wariithi, the question of the title "Queen's Counsel" I have to say this. I saw an argument in the paper the other day and there were some people defending it. We feel that this title of "Queen's Counsel" should be done away with and should not be used in Kenya. It was only the other day that the Attorney-General whispered to me that they were going to delete this title and were no longer going to use it. You cannot say that you have removed "Queen's Counsel" when the Queen's Counsels in Kenya are still charging the same fees as the Queen's Counsels charge in England. They charge something like 500 guineas, and this is exactly the same fee that is charged in England.

Mr. Khaoya: What is a guinea anyway?

Mr. Lubembe: A guinea is Sh. 21, so they pay more because a guinea is more than a pound.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Speak to the Bill.

Mr. Lubembe: Maybe, Sir, the guinea was never devalued.

I am trying to build up this particular point, Sir, and I am asking the Attorney-General again, and I did ask him this last year, whether he is trying his best to bring a proper title for Kenyans. We have some good lawyers in Kenya who have done good work and I do not think they should be called Queen's Counsels. If they continue to charge the same fees as the England Queen's Counsels charge, then it means that we have not removed this title from the Act.

I also feel that on this question of other titles which we do not have here—I mentioned this the other day, when I was speaking on another matter—the titles which have no relation with Kenya should be removed. I am saying this because here I am talking of removing the word "colony", the words "Queen's Counsel" and other such things. I thought the Attorney-General would have included all these titles in this Amendment Bill so that we could have them all removed now. We do not even have, in this country, a Lady So-and-so. You find such titles in England.

Mr. Gatuguta: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since there is a considerable amount of repetition on this Bill, I would like to move that the Mover be now called on to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No. I think this is a very important Bill. In fact it involves a number of different statutes. I think hon. Members must be allowed to discuss it further.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not know why the hon. Member is trying to cut me off. He is my friend but today he appears to want to see that I do not speak any more on this good Bill. I am very sorry about this. I am sure the Attorney-General did not persuade him to do this.

An hon. Member: He is a doctor.

Mr. Lubembe: He is not a doctor, he is a lawyer.

Now I am lost, I do not know what points I was making, because of the hon. Member's unnecessary interruption.

I have already dealt with some of the questions which were causing difficulty. There is only one point which I would like the Attorney-General to deal with. I want an explanation here where it says, "Replace 'Governor in Council of Ministers' with 'Minister'." I do not know about this question, whether the powers which the Governor in Council of Ministers used in repealing certain things or appointing commissions of inquiry have now been completely transferred to our Ministers so that they can decide on anything within their portfolios and then make an order which applies throughout the country.

Because my throat is not good, I will not say more. I do not want to be sick tomorrow.

I beg to support.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to make a few points on this Bill. I shall begin with the Penal Code, Cap. 63, sub-section 389, as shown in the Bill. I would like to quote only a small part of it: "Any person who attempts to commit a felony . . ." We should understand that. "Any person who attempts to commit a felony . . ." We are living in the world of politics now. Kenya is governed politically, and anyone within the Government can accuse a political rival of having attempted to commit a felony. Therefore, that man can easily be accused of having done this. I would like to ask the Attorney-General, and generally the courts of law which are going to be in charge of the administration of justice, to make sure that anybody who is suspected—Anybody can be suspected of having done such-and-such a thing, and yet that person may not have done it. When such a man is taken to the court of law, he might not be able to protect himself fully, because a good number of our people today are not able, financially, to employ lawyers to defend them in the court of law. Therefore, they cannot fully defend themselves without the assistance of someone of that calibre. I would like to warn the Attorney-General very strongly about these parts, especially when we have political wrangles here and there. Tomorrow I might be suspected of having done something, and I will be in prison for three years; yet I never had any intention of committing the crime. I hope that is clear in the Attorney-General's mind.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, moving on to the Evidence Act, Cap. 80, 47A, I would like the Attorney-General to clarify this when he comes to reply. It reads: "A final judgment of a competent court in any criminal proceedings which declares any person to be guilty of a criminal offence shall . . .", and so on. I would like to ask the Attorney-General to explain to me and to the House whether there is any court in Kenya today which is classified as incompetent. If there is any court which is incompetent, then that court should not be in existence. We should qualify all courts as competent, otherwise this should have been "high court".

Mr. Lubembe: You have councillors and Members of Parliament.

Mr. arap Biy: Ngoja, brother. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am sorry that my hon. friend, the Member for Starehe, is trying to interfere with my trend of thought. I would request him to keep silent.

I do not think we are a court, as we are here. Our proceedings are different from those of a court of law. This is only the supreme authority where laws are made, but we cannot, when the hon. G. G. Kariuki has committed an offence, have him brought here and we charge and then sentence him to three or four years in jail. We cannot do that.

Mr. Khaoya: You have sentenced somebody for three days here. You know that.

Mr. arap Biy: Thank you for that information. Now you keep silent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would request the Attorney-General—probably he will have to bring other amendments—to amend this to read "high court", instead of "competent court". All courts are competent.

An hon. Member: Are you sure?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, continuing, I would like to say a few words on the Liquor Licensing Act, section 27 (2). "If the renewal of a licence is refused and the licensee appeals under section 18 of this Act . . .", and so on, the Minister will have to decide on that appeal. Usually, appeals take so many days or months. How long will a poor man in the countryside have to wait, when his licence has been refused by, say, the district commissioner with his liquor licensing court? When they refuse to renew his licence, that gentleman has to appeal. The appeal will take, say, three months before the Minister has time to look into the appeal. Usually, Ministers in the political Government are bound to move out of their offices, and some of them tour overseas countries such as Britain, where their old friends are, and therefore they take a long time to come back. On this one, I would like to sound a note of warning to the Minister concerned.

An hon. Member: It is the Assistant Minister.

Mr. arap Biy: Usually, Assistant Ministers have no power to do it. They bring in somebody else, another Minister, to sit in the office, because the Assistant Ministers might not be—

An hon. Member: Trusted.

Mr. arap Biy: —all that competent, and therefore they are there but have no power.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want to dwell on that point, because I only wanted to bring it to the notice of the Ministry concerned.

Moving on, I would like to say a few words on the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Cap. 360, section 1A. Sir, this is a warning that once the Bill has been passed, these things will be very cruel to the people of this country. For example, when you are found with a trophy, either all or part of it, you are sent to the court of law. Usually, when there are big ceremonies in Parliament, or similar occasions elsewhere, you see Members of Parliament dressed in very queer clothes, such as animal skins. I am one of them. Probably the Minister for Tourism, or the Minister for Natural Resources for that matter, might interfere with my freedom of dressing, and therefore I will be committed to a court of law because of having that without a licence. Therefore, they should look into that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, before I sit down, I would like to thank the Attorney-General for all the work he is doing, and I would like to appeal to him to bring more Statute Bills of this sort so that we can amend and bring up to date all the outdated laws which are not in keeping with the conditions of this country today. We are ashamed to see words such as "Colony" in our law books now. We are ashamed to see "His or Her Majesty"; we are ashamed to see many other queer colonial words. I hope the Attorney-General will look into this and will bring more Bills to the House amending these laws and bringing them up to date.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, before I sit down, I would like to make one more point.

An hon. Member: Continue.

Mr. Lubembe: Don't you sit down.

Mr. arap Biy: Yes, if you bring me a glass of beer— water, I will continue.

Mr. Khaoya: You are a Masai: You should take milk.

Mr. arap Biy: I am sorry, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I said a glass of beer. I meant a glass of water. I think there is a very critical point here.

QUORUM

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in view of the fact that we are having so much repetition, and there is no quorum, I beg to call upon the Mover to reply.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will first see if there is a quorum. No, we do not have a quorum. Please ring the Division Bell.

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Assistant Minister indicated that there is no quorum in the House. If that is the case, why is he at the same time calling for the Mover to reply?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are dealing with the first point.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): I moved the closure of the Bill, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I thought I heard you say that in fact there was no quorum.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): I was moving the closure.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are now asking for a quorum.

(The Division Bell was rung)

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have nearly finished—

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I move the closure of the debate on the Bill. The reason, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that Members who have spoken have kept on repeating what has been said and also no new suggestions are being given. That is why I stood up for the closure.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Masori-Itumbo, I do not think I can quite agree with you. There has been a little repetition perhaps, but also each Member rising to his feet is making, some new points. This Bill does cover a great many statutory amendments, some of them indeed very small, some not so small. I do not think I ought to hurry the House over this. Perhaps we could consider the closure in another half-an-hour's time, but not before that.

Mr. arap Biy: My time was not finished, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and I do not see the reason why the Assistant Minister was panicking about this closure.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only wanted to mention about the Estate Duty Act, Cap. 483, section 72 and I quote: "This section shall not apply to his Excellency, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, First President and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Kenya." I am not against this section, Mr. Speaker, but I think the Attorney-General should have made it for the President, any President, but not to mention specifically—

[Mr. arap Biy]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That point has been made by at least two other Members. Is that all you want to say?

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you for your directive, but next time I hope things will be brought in the order which we want. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had not spoken on that point, so I was making it my last point as far as this Bill is concerned.

With these few remarks, I beg to support.

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am grateful to you for giving me this opportunity to speak. I was not really intending to speak, but I think there were one or two points that I should make.

The first thing is that I think we should at last have come to an end with the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill. We have been for the last five years trying to bring the Laws of our Kenya into line with an independent Kenya, and I did not think that it looked as it would ever finish. I suggest that we now have a committee that goes through all the laws and removes any anomalies like the word "colonies", or whatever it is, and once and for all bring these in incidental amendments to an end. Now, the danger, of course, of bringing such omnibus amendments is that sometimes we may pass amendments in Bills of which we are not fully conscious; something may slip by without having drawn our attention to the facts very clearly.

There are two or more points, Mr. Speaker, in this Bill, that I myself was advised to read very carefully, but the thing that worries me most is the part of the Bill which is not, in fact, in the Bill, namely the amendment the Government has given notice of, which is not in the Bill, which is that the Attorney-General is going to introduce the death penalty for robbery with violence, albeit with grievous bodily harm. Now, this is an amendment which is coming into this Bill which is not even printed, so it shows that it is obviously a very large last-minute decision which has not given most Members time to digest, consider, and reflect the consequences of it. I heard the Attorney-General, about three months ago in a very eloquent speech, telling us the dangers of introducing the death penalty for robbery with violence, and I must say he was eloquent, and so brilliant, and spoke with so much authority and logic that I was fully convinced; in fact I was convinced even before he spoke, but I was even more convinced when he did speak. He told the House that it is a solution that they are driven to, and very easily driven to, that we should take very strong punishment, or strong action, against criminals by sending them to the gallows. However, he reminded us, quite rightly I think, that if a person is in danger of being hanged for having committed a particular offence, there will be a temptation, indeed almost an imperative duty on his part, to save his neck by killing all the people around that might be witnesses.

Now, I thought that the Bill that we have introduced the amendment to, introduces the capital punishment only in cases where there is robbery with violence and grievous bodily harm. For that qualification I think there is something for it, I think that he has taken some care. However, I still wonder if his arguments and logic are not still valid. Is it not still a point that if a man or a gang goes to rob a house, and if one of them, shall we say, slices somebody with a panga or cuts his head or something like that, causing grievous bodily harm, and there are about four or five persons in the house, might they not feel it their duty to protect themselves, to kill every single man, woman and child in that house because otherwise they will all be hanged, and compulsorily according to this?

This is something, Sir, I think we must consider very carefully because I repeat what the Attorney-General said last time, that it is a very easy and obvious reason to increase punishment. However, I think many penologists and persons who conducted research into punishment have found that increasing punishment time and again, while it eases the solution, in fact never has any effect. I can draw attention to the fact that it was only a few months ago when we increased the punishment for robbery with violence to 14 years, not less than 14 years and not more than 20 years. I do not think that has had any effect. All we do is to increase the amount of punishment. This time we say it is the death sentence, and perhaps in about one year's time we will say that the death sentence is not enough and we should cut the fellow's hands off in addition. I am told that in the Congo, or some parts of the Yemen, there are thousands of people who go around the towns with one hand or both hands cut off because they stole a loaf of bread or something like that. There is a danger in increasing sentences for their own sake, because they do not always dissuade people from committing crimes. I appeal, Sir, that this requires more research. I am not an authority on this and I do not profess to be an authority. However, I do say that increasing penalties and making death sentences mandatory is not going to solve the problems. Indeed, it is likely to aggravate the problems. We are likely to have a case, as I said earlier, where a gang of thieves burst into a house, probably with the idea of stealing and then one of the members does something a little more than he meant to do and then they end up by murdering everybody. Whereas, as the law stands, perhaps they would have left it at that and run the risk of going to jail. I think that this is something that should be given consideration and I would request the Attorney-General not to proceed with this particular section but to appoint a commission, or an inquiry by a Select Committee, to consider the problems in a very impartial manner and to discuss this in a way in which we have experts who will go into this problem. I am not saying this in a manner to disagree with him because I am not very happy about it and I am sure he is not very happy either. I am quite sure in my own mind that he, as a good lawyer, will understand the dangers of this and I am sure he must have been pressurized by a number of people who believe that this is the best immediate solution to abolishing the crime wave or the burglaries or the robberies with violence. I know that there are a lot of people who say, "Send them to the gallows and hang them.", and I am sure that he is not convinced that by doing this we will achieve anything.

I do respectfully suggest, Sir, that the Government should reconsider this particular amendment and, as I say, appoint a panel of experts who would go into the problem in a very scientific and dispassionate manner and decide what is the right penalty. We should not rush into these things, especially not with a cyclo-styled piece of paper a few hours before this Bill is going to come, because it will have very far-reaching effects on the Penal Law and the general methods of punishment in this country.

This is the only point I want to make although there are one or two other points that I feel one could make. One of these is the question, for example, that I notice that shopkeepers are not going to get any protection from prohibited literature. At one time everybody was subject to the charge on prohibited literature except shopkeepers, but now shopkeepers, or persons selling these books, are equally liable. I think this was part of the old Libel Law when a person selling books was not liable for libel unless he knew what was involved in the books he was selling.

I do feel, Sir, that there is a point which should be made here: the Government should publicize more clearly for the average person—perhaps even at airports and in our aeroplanes—exactly what is prohibited and what is not prohibited. I am afraid that even I do not know myself what is prohibited literature. Hon. Members are aware that we get lots of pamphlets in our pigeon-holes and in the post and many of them are in German, and God knows what languages, which I do not read. I normally put them in the waste-paper basket, but I dread to think what might happen if before they go into the waste-paper basket somebody raided my office and they did turn out to be some periodical or pamphlet which is supposed to be prohibited. I do think that Members and the public should be more informed and better informed, and the shopkeepers should be informed as well, as to what is prohibited. This is one of the things that naturally arises when we bring an omnibus Bill to amend a large number of statutes which we cannot really do in such a way.

With these few words, Sir, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will call on the Mover to reply.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all if I may make comments on what my learned and hon. friend has been saying about sending out cyclo-styled documents. These papers, Mr. Speaker, were circulated some time ago and it is not as if they were circulated yesterday. I do not apologize for bringing this amendment because this matter has been discussed in the countryside and the public opinion has demanded that something must be done about the people who are committing these serious offences of robbery with violence. I know that there are two theories about this, two schools of thought; there are some who say that perhaps if a criminal knows that if he is caught, what will happen to him is that he will be hung what he will do, and what he must do, is to eliminate eye witnesses. There are others who feel that if this amendment is introduced, it can act as a deterrent.

Mr. Speaker, my duty is not to come here and theorize as to the pros and cons of this legislation. My instructions are to introduce this amendment and I think the hon. Members in this House do know the problem that we are having in this country and it is no use our comparing or theorizing about what legislation they have in the United Kingdom, England, America or in China. The problem that we have here is serious. Only two weeks' ago a European was attacked at Kabete and I have no doubt in my mind that that man was prepared to kill that European if only to complete what he wanted to do—in other words, to rob him. These are the people we aim at with this amendment. I can defend it. My hon. learned friend knows that there are always two sides to a story; I can make an appealing and moving speech and he, as a defence lawyer, can make a similar moving and inspiring speech. It is a matter for this House to decide whether this legislation is necessary or not.

Mr. Speaker, let us not cheat ourselves—there is a serious problem. There are very few people in this country who are professional criminals and they are known, and I am certain that if this legislation is introduced they will be caught and perhaps they will be eliminated from our society.

We are arguing about this legislation here, and if one wants to mention other countries, only recently Uganda introduced this similar legislation that we are talking about. We have only introduced the capital sentence for those who want to carry out robbery and they use arms or a pistol, in other words, armed robbery. That is all. In Uganda they have gone the whole hog and quite a number of offences are covered and, as a result, if a person is convicted he is bound to be sentenced to death.

An hon. Member: How?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): There are methods of executing these people once they are convicted, but, Mr. Speaker, all I tell this House is that I am not going to argue the pros and cons of this amendment, but what I am telling this House is that we have a serious problem in this country and unless something is done things will get worse. Even my hon. friend who is talking and quarreling about this matter—I do not want to predict—maybe one day he will be having dinner in his own house, in the lounge, and he will find these fellows and they will have no mercy on him. These are the people we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, this is, of course, a matter which we will discuss at the Committee Stage and the hon. Member will have the opportunity of discussing the merits and otherwise of this matter.

Now, Mr. Speaker, some points were mentioned by my friend the hon. Shikuku about the words “magistrate”. This section, in effect, does exactly what the hon. Member was complaining about. In the old law a district commissioner used to have judicial functions because he was a magistrate. What we are trying to do is—as a result of the amendment we have introduced into this House—to remove the district commissioner in his capacity as a magistrate and leave that matter to be dealt with by magistrates and not by the administration officers. Those functions which are purely administrative will be done by the administration; the functions which are judicial will be performed by magistrates. That is all that this amendment is doing. I want to assure this House that as a result of the amendment which we have introduced into this House, there will not be a single member of the administration who will be performing judicial functions; they will all be done by magistrates, from the High Court right down to a Resident Magistrate.

The other point that the hon. Member was making, Mr. Speaker, was about these ages of 14 and 16. Memories are very short in some hon. Members. The hon. Shikuku, when we were talking about defilement and rape, was the strongest supporter of this amendment that we reduce it from 16 to 14. We did that in the Penal Code and all we are doing here is the consequential amendment in the Criminal Procedure Code so that they are uniform. That is all.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could the hon. Attorney-General substantiate that I spoke for the age to be reduced from 16 to 14 which he is stating now? My memory is not as short as the Attorney-General imagines, and I do not recall any day that I advocated that that age should be reduced to 14. Could he substantiate that? I did not.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I remember, Mr. Shikuku, you spoke for quite a long time on this proposed amendment. I think the Attorney-General might reasonably have thought that you were objecting to it, because I do not know why you should speak so long about it otherwise. Mr. Mwithaga definitely did, and perhaps he has confused the two of you.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Mr. Ngala-Abok to say that the hon. Member for Butere is the best chameleon in this House? Is that Parliamentary?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, obviously that is a very offensive remark, and if it is loud enough for many hon. Members to hear it would be very much out of order. The casual remarks of Members to each other on the same bench we usually try not to hear.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, if I heard you correctly you, from the Chair, tried to put the hon. Attorney-General right when he referred to the hon. Shikuku, and you said that I referred to this question of age when we were discussing defilement, and so, Mr. Speaker, Sir, am I not in the difficult position of asking you to substantiate, because I do not remember having said that I was against it socially?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I remember very clearly your argument because it was a most interesting one; you said that this implies that you are treating girls as grown-ups when they are 14, and you do not think that is right and, therefore, you opposed it.

Mr. Mwithaga: That is not what he has said.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Therefore, Mr. Speaker, all I am saying as far as this point which was raised by my friend the hon. Shikuku is concerned, is that we are not changing the substantive law; all we are bringing is a consequential amendment.

With regard to the Pensions Act, no change is being introduced and it is only in the required minimum age of admittance.

With regard to the Trade Disputes Act, there was a clerical error of two words in the printing of the previous order when the East Africa Treaty provisions came into force. This is what is being amended.

Now, the Civil Procedure Act, Section 796: the times of appeals are set out in Section 799, which embodies a discretion. It is impossible to say how long preparation of paper work will take and this is why this amendment is introduced.

Mr. Speaker, I think those are the main points which have been raised by hon. Members, and with these few remarks, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading ✓

THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, may I say the formal words that I am required to say and say that I beg to move that the Affiliation (Repeal) Bill be now read a Second Time.

Mr. Speaker, I speak with a very heavy heart in introducing this Bill. Some of us, and I remember I was a young student fresh from the United Kingdom when I came back in 1955, when I made a lot of agitation for the introduction of this legislation, and the purpose of it was to protect our young children, and in particular the children who are born out of wedlock.

Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this legislation was not to provide money for unmarried mothers. The legislation was aimed at—I know Mr.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): As hon. Members in this House they are entitled to have an interest in this legislation, and all I ask them is that they consider the repeal of this legislation very seriously.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I think the Attorney-General has generally made it known and submitted that so many people have got an interest in this Bill, and especially in this House, and should I be in order at this juncture to ask the Attorney-General to declare his interest in the whole matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the worst possible thing we can do on an occasion like this, or on any other occasion for that matter, to get involved in personalities. We are concerned with the principle here. As the Attorney-General says, there will be many members of the public who have a personal interest in this law and, in fact, most members of the public have some kind of personal interest in most laws. Let us consider this abstractly as a matter of principle.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): When I say there are many people interested, hon. Members have received numerous letters being circulated all over the place by some women's organizations. I have a letter here from the National Christian Council of Kenya telling me that this legislation should not be passed and the matter should be deferred and so on. We heard on Sunday a sermon by the Reverend Gatu of the Presbyterian Church, speaking about the same legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I think hon. Members have been reading the Press and have been reading the documents which are being circulated by the women in this country, and they are, therefore, familiar with what our women folk are saying. All I am saying, Mr. Speaker, is what we must try and think is about the children who are here as a result of an association between a man and a woman. Now, Mr. Speaker, I am the last person to be defending the repeal of this legislation. I am not married and I have no responsibility to a wife. Quite a number of hon. Members in this House are married and they have children, and nobody can stand outside this House and say that perhaps these unfortunate incidents are unlikely to happen to their daughters.

This is what I ask this House to consider. If this legislation is passed, which means that all the protection which children born out of wedlock had under this Act are all repealed, and the orders

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo) seconded.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to support this Bill without any reservation.

Mr. Speaker, it was on the 22nd April 1959, or rather on the afternoon of that day, when the Bill was passed and, Mr. Speaker, I noted it was very nice reading when I was reading the HANSARD reports on the debate which took place on that important Bill, which today we have the honour to repeal. I notice, Mr. Speaker, some problems were raised then, and I must be very grateful to you, Mr. Speaker, yourself, for being one of those who foresaw some of the dangers, and, in fact, you advised the then Parliament that they should not apply some of the provisions to the African population. I think you were right.

Ten years after we come to support the advice which you gave at that time, although I have some reservations say, to the then Minister for Local Government, Health and Town Planning, by the name of hon. Havelock, and a Mr. Webb, who supported him. I think you did us a good service in advising the course which we now support.

Mr. Speaker, I also note that ten years ago hon. Amalemba talked about the runaway women who were coming from the rural areas to the city, and that such a Bill would have encouraged them. I fully agree with the remarks he made because ten years' experience has supported his stand. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also noted that the hon. John Muchura had his points on exploitation of the Bill by the prostitutes, and I think today we can confirm that whatever he said was right.

Mr. Speaker, ten years ago hon. Lieutenant-Colonel Bruce McKenzie mentioned his doubts on the case of single women, especially so far as African women were concerned, and I think I also have the honour to agree with him that he was right. He foresaw some difficulty in defining who would be a single woman. As I can see today, who is a single woman? What time of day is she single? I think that is the question one should ask.

have been put in my pigeon-hole; one is a green one and I will lay it on the Table if necessary. Mr. Speaker, it is addressed to the Government and the Republic of Kenya, it is not signed by anybody. I am lucky, Mr. Speaker, in that when these papers were being brought here, I met two ladies who had carried them so I am in a position to know who they were. One was Miss Margaret Kenyatta, and the other one was Miss Nolega. I met them, Mr. Speaker, in the lounge where I was handed this. I then asked them if they were married or not.

An hon. Member: They have children have they not?

Mr. Khaoya: One of them told me she had children but she had no husband. I think, Mr. Speaker, Kenya is drifting into a very dangerous situation. A daughter of our President should set an example to Kenya—

An hon. Member: No. Do not go as far as that.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, I think I will ignore this green paper and also the contents, especially paragraph four where it says it was because of the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act had high-lighted the need to protect illegitimate children and young innocent women. How can a woman be innocent if she has children without a father? I leave it there, Mr. Speaker.

I now come to another White Paper, Mr. Speaker, which is from the Kenya Association of Social Workers, P.O. Box 9742, Nairobi, which is also unsigned. I do not know who brought this one, Mr. Speaker. Paragraph two of this unsigned White Paper from the Kenya Association of Social Workers, P.O. Box 9742, Nairobi, deals with the question of our not passing this Bill until the Government has consulted fully and has thought very carefully before passing it.

Mr. Speaker, for the last ten years anybody who has lived in Kenya must have been thinking of the implications and difficulties, the merits and demerits of the Act as it was existing, so it is too late for somebody now to make an eleventh hour appeal as if they are hurrying from Apollo 10 from the moon. We are not coming from the moon, but we are right here and we have been seeing them, and it is only right that we should reject this White Paper.

are treating girls as grown-ups when they are 14, and you do not think that is right and, therefore, you opposed it.

Mr. Mwithaga: That is not what he has said.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Therefore, Mr. Speaker, all I am saying as far as this point which was raised by my friend the hon. Shikuku is concerned, is that we are not changing the substantive law; all we are bringing is a consequential amendment.

With regard to the Pensions Act, no change is being introduced and it is only in the required minimum age of admittance.

With regard to the Trade Disputes Act, there was a clerical error of two words in the printing of the previous order when the East Africa Treaty provisions came into force. This is what is being amended.

Now, the Civil Procedure Act, Section 796: the times of appeals are set out in Section 799, which embodies a discretion. It is impossible to say how long preparation of paper work will take and this is why this amendment is introduced.

Mr. Speaker, I think those are the main points which have been raised by hon. Members, and with these few remarks, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading ✓

THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, may I say the formal words that I am required to say and say that I beg to move that the Affiliation (Repeal) Bill be now read a Second Time.

Mr. Speaker, I speak with a very heavy heart in introducing this Bill. Some of us, and I remember I was a young student fresh from the United Kingdom when I came back in 1955, when I made a lot of agitation for the introduction of this legislation, and the purpose of it was to protect our young children, and in particular the children who are born out of wedlock.

Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this legislation was not to provide money for unmarried mothers. The legislation was aimed at—I know, Mr. Speaker, as I am speaking that a lot of people have got a personal interest in this legislation.

An hon. Member: You are one.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): As hon. Members in this House they are entitled to have an interest in this legislation, and all I ask them is that they consider the repeal of this legislation very seriously.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I think the Attorney-General has generally made it known and submitted that so many people have got an interest in this Bill, and especially in this House, and should I be in order at this juncture to ask the Attorney-General to declare his interest in the whole matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the worst possible thing we can do on an occasion like this, or on any other occasion for that matter, to get involved in personalities. We are concerned with the principle here. As the Attorney-General says, there will be many members of the public who have a personal interest in this law and, in fact, most members of the public have some kind of personal interest in most laws. Let us consider this abstractly as a matter of principle.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): When I say there are many people interested, hon. Members have received numerous letters being circulated all over the place by some women's organizations. This is what I ask this House to consider. If this legislation is passed, which means that all the protection which children born out of wedlock had under this Act are all repealed, and the orders which have been made by the courts will be abolished, then my only appeal is to our women-folk, and I ask them to be beware of men when they meet them, and I also say this. Our girls should be very careful and not be friendly with men and should not have any association with men, unless the man takes her first of all to the altar and she becomes a wife to him.

Mr. Speaker, as I said before, I speak with a very heavy heart on this legislation, and all I can do is to commend it to the wisdom of this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to support this Bill without any reservation.

He foresaw some difficulty in defining who would be a single woman. As I can see today, who is a single woman? What time of day is she single? I think that is the question one should ask.

Mr. Speaker, when we discuss this, especially after the recent passing of the Vagrancy Bill, I think it is only fair that this Bill should come now so that we can clear some of these anomalies. I have the feeling, Mr. Speaker, that for ten years the Bill has created a lot of havoc amongst the population of Kenya, and it is only right that today we kill it.

I have seen, Mr. Speaker, two papers which have been put in my pigeon-hole; one is a green one and I will lay it on the Table if necessary. Mr. Speaker, it is addressed to the Government and the Republic of Kenya, it is not signed by anybody. I am lucky, Mr. Speaker, in that when these papers were being brought here, I met two ladies who had carried them so I am in a position to know who they were. We are not coming from the moon, but we are right here and we have been seeing them, and it is only right that we should reject this White Paper.

[Mr. Khaoya]

Mr. Speaker, my only worry, and this I have already mentioned to the Attorney-General, is that perhaps by repealing this we might have let loose the hell of men going to our school children, especially girls, and, Mr. Speaker, because of that worry, I would like to ask the Government to take immediate steps to draft another Bill solely to cater for the school children. We are all fathers and we have daughters. In the rural areas, Mr. Speaker, we have case after case where a school master has made a school girl pregnant, we have heard of these cases. We have heard of cases where a county council clerk, or a district commissioner's clerk, or the district commissioner himself, have made school girls pregnant. I think we have a big danger there because without some form of protection we might regret this later on.

Mr. Speaker, while I agree entirely today that we should very honourably kill this Bill, at the same time, I would like the Government, especially the Attorney-General, to look into the aspect of school children who might be victims.

My other point, Mr. Speaker, is in connexion with the warning which we have just now received from the Attorney-General when he was warning the women to be aware of men. I think that is very bad advice. This is a problem which is as old as the first scene with Adam and Eve, and I do not think any advice from the Attorney-General will be taken seriously. If anything, I would say we should follow the Bible. You have your wife, and if you are like David, you have one thousand wives and you have your house of course and you can always do it. David had one thousand wives and a house. The Quran which I read frequently does not frown on polygamy so we could go ahead. I do not agree with the Attorney-General with his advice when he was telling our women to beware of men. If that is the case, then who would be their friends?

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words on this Bill.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that since 1960 when I started practising as a member of the Kenya Bar, I have had a lot of experience with the working of the Affiliation Act, and there is no doubt that this Act has been very badly abused in its implementation. No doubt, the intention as the Attorney-General, my learned friend, said earlier, was to protect children born out of wedlock and not to provide money for unmarried mothers. Unfortunately the contrary has happened, in that the unmarried mothers, many of them, have taken advantage of this Bill and have enriched themselves. This was not the intention of the law.

At the same time, I would like the House to consider that the question of the protection of children born out of wedlock is not going to end by repealing this law. As a matter of fact, I would like to say, and I have taken the trouble to discuss this with a number of Members of Parliament, about the customs of our people even before the coming of the white man. I am told by those who are senior in age to myself, particularly the Abaluhya where my friend comes from, that the practice was that if a man made a woman pregnant, it was provided under customary practice that he would take that child and keep it after, let us say, after it had been weaned from the mother. In other words, even in our customs, there was a provision whereby the interests of the child were considered, in that the child had come to this earth and had no proper father, nobody to take care of this child, and then it was thought fit that whoever was responsible, so that the child did not suffer, and it had something to eat, somewhere to live and probably was to be given education; the father was to be responsible for the maintenance of that child after it was able to live away from the mother.

Let us not think that the idea of protecting children is a foreign idea. It has been there and there is nothing foreign in the idea. When we consider the future of that child who has come to this world through no fault of its own—as a matter of fact hon. Members in this House know, and maybe some of them have the experience, that when the two meet, the girl and the boy, they have no intention of bringing forth a child. In many cases, this is by accident. Let us not blame anybody.

My contribution to this Bill would be that it is quite true that the Act, as it is in its present form, has not achieved its purpose. I support the idea strongly of repealing the present law as it is, but I feel we would be failing in our duty as Members of Parliament, as the leaders in this country, if we were to repeal the law and not have something to take care of these children.

Much has been said, Mr. Speaker, about the mothers who are given money for maintenance, not spending this money for the welfare of the child. It is true this happens. My view is this. What do we expect the Government to do? Not that I agree with the memorandum circulated or the papers, I think the Government should find out the shortcomings of the Bill and what can be done to repeal, or to remove the shortcomings. In other words, if the money ordered by the court to be paid to the mother of the child, if the mother is misusing that money what stops our Government from amending the law and provide that the money does not go to the mother, but goes either to a Government department or goes to charitable organization, or such like organizations? I am trying to argue—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would the hon. Members please be more orderly, because there is so much conversation and noise. It is very hard to hear the hon. Member who is talking.

Mr. Wariithi: If the argument is that unmarried mothers when they get this money use it for their own purposes, I think a possibility of safeguarding that loophole, to see that the money is utilized for the child, you can provide that the money is not paid to the mother.

The other point of having one woman having several orders, for instance, affiliation on two or three men and getting money for this maintenance, I have got a proposal. You can provide that—

An hon. Member: No, this Bill must be repealed.

Mr. Wariithi: No, I am speaking my own mind. So, Mr. Speaker, in the Act or Bill to take the place of the present Act, it can be provided that a woman who has been married before, or has been separated from her husband, or has had a child, will not be covered by the Bill. As such, we will provide for a situation like the hon. Chief Whip was saying, of a young girl from school, or a young girl from a home, who has never been married, never been divorced, and never had a child. So, in other words, it could be provided that that single girl, once she applies for one maintenance order, or affiliation order, if she gets a second child she cannot come to court and apply for an affiliation order on another man. In other words, the possibility of one woman having two or three affiliation orders is removed, in other words a girl can come to court only once in her life.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

If subsequently she becomes pregnant, she is barred because it is quite clear that maybe she wants to make it a habit, or make it a money earning affair. So what I am trying to say, Mr. Speaker, is that I agree that the present law is bad, but after having repealed it, I feel very strongly, that we must consider what should take its place. I am saying this because we ourselves, in our African customs, accept the principle that a child when it comes into this world must be taken care of. What I am proposing either in the form of an amendment or in the form of new legislation, will take care of the child who, after all has to eat, to be fed, to go to school, and such things.

My last point, Mr. Speaker, is that the question of the degree, of proving that the law requires to determine who is the father of the child, is a very difficult problem—the present law as it is—there are many cases where you are not sure who it is, and even the women themselves may not know. So if the proposal I was putting forward were to be considered, I would go further and say it should be necessary for legislation to make it more strict and to require a higher degree of proof that “x” was the father who was responsible. Mr. Speaker, as I say, I have had experience of such cases, defending even the so-called unmarried mothers when they try to get affiliation orders on men. I know of cases where they have paid the money and then the fathers complain that the money has not been used properly and as such I have got some experience.

As to the question of some Members having interest in the Affiliation Act or may be the members of the public, I would like to say that what is important is for us to consider those innocent young girls who, through no fault of their own—and in fact some of us who are Members of Parliament, or people outside, some may take advantage of the innocent and get them into trouble—but the main thing to consider is that child—in fact the hon. Attorney-General—is concerned with Doctor Barnardo’s Home. He knows the cases which are there, and in fact unless there is protection of some kind, that number will grow and if it grows it will cause more trouble than we have at present. So let us take it as a needy affair and the question of men and women not mixing—women to keep away from men, this is not possible and it is very unnatural. So Mr. Speaker, I support the repeal of the Act, but strongly advise and recommend the Government to consider seriously putting forward new legislation removing all the loopholes, all the abuses which we now know of from the experience we have had from the present Act.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to make a few comments on the repeal of this notorious Act. I very much wish to hear the Attorney-General in his reply, giving us an assurance on some specific points. There are today very many such loose girls who come to seek employment in Nairobi or who are in schools whose aim is deliberately to exploit men. They are very willing, or one might—Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are going to repeal this—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Speak behind the microphone Mr. Muliro, we might be able to hear better.

Mr. Muliro: I know my stand here and I am always right. If we have to repeal this Bill, well and good, because some unscrupulous women have overplayed their game, because one single girl might be making children year after year by different men, in order to claim more than one affiliation order. This, Sir, is an abuse. When this Bill was first enacted, I supported it.

An hon. Member: Were you here?

Mr. Muliro: I was in this House before the hon. Member dreamed that he could be in this House, so when it was enacted I was there. Mr. Speaker, today we have homes where these helpless people are being taken. But unfortunately, some mothers get the money and this money does not find its way to Dr. Barnardo's Home or the Christian Social Centres and all these places. This is what we feel is wrong.

An hon. Member: They buy wigs.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, I am very capable of speaking my own mind. Mr. Speaker, I definitely think that the first offender should be given some assistance. In other words, if a school girl commits the first mistake, the girl should be protected. If she goes in for the second time, all she should call herself is an old hand at the game. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to say that when the Attorney-General replies, he should tell us how best he is going to look after these unfortunate children. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am speaking as a parent of two daughters and three sons.

Hon. Member: You are unfortunate.

Mr. Muliro: My sons may commit these offences and my daughters may be in trouble elsewhere. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we must be very serious. We should never be carried away by emotion. The deliberations of the Members in this House should be in the best interest of the people of this country, of the unfortunate and the fortunate as well. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I find it would be fair and just for us, while repealing this Act, to get another document, another Act in this House, in the shortest possible time pointing out how best we are going to protect some of these children.

We have laws to deal with cruelty towards animals in this country. We do not want to have no means of protecting unfortunate children. Though the hon. Members talk about African customary law, the African customary law in Kenya today is not worth the paper on which it can ever be written. Mr. Speaker, the problem as far as the African customary law is concerned, is that it is not even codified. There is another point for those who talk about African customary law. According to the Abaluhya customary law, when a girl conceives, the man responsible pays one ng'ombe. Today Sir, there are no ng'ombe to be paid and, therefore, money is the answer. For this reason I find in modern development that as we advance, the customary law must also give way to the statute law.

Hon. Member: We shall codify it.

Mr. Muliro: We are doing that. Even if we feel we should codify the African customary law, they are so contradictory from place to place that we would never make sense out of them. In Turkana, if a married woman tries to commit adultery, the man so involved is put to death by way of spearing him. Is that the type of law you want? Mr. Deputy Speaker, such a law is out of place. I do not want any information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. I feel we should not have customary law when we know that it is valueless and impracticable. There are many children who are born and brought up here in Nairobi who, unfortunately, know nothing about customary law.

Mr. Shikuku: It is the stupidity of their parents which is to blame if they do not know.

Mr. Muliro: The hon. Member says that they are stupid. His children are all being brought up in Nairobi, and so he is stupid as well.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, all that I would like to say is that the hon. Members and the Government should think how best we can repeal this law and create another law which will remove the abuse inherent in the Affiliation Act, but, at the same time, protect the children of Kenya.

With this, Sir, I beg to support the Bill.

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is a very serious matter. I am afraid that some men in this House are beginning to tackle this problem from the point of view of looking down on women who happen, unfortunately, to have illegitimate children. I would like to ask the House to move away from the idea of discussing the women who have these children. They should, instead, come back to the children themselves. If I am asked how one gets children, I would like to ask hon. Members this question in turn: what woman has ever had a child without a man? I have a feeling that some men are eager to go and get a free feasting from the time we repeal this Bill. They believe that now that the law is not going to apply, they can have a free feasting. However, what I am interested in myself is the plight of the child. I hope it is the child that the Members in this House will be concerned about.

[Dr. Waiyaki]

It is true, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that this law has been misused by some loose women. They have commercialized the law. However, it is not the children who have commercialized the law. It is the women who have done so. So, it is essential that we find a way of looking after those children. Mark my words—the children, but not the mothers. Although it is not the fault of every woman who becomes pregnant out of wedlock there have been cases, even cases of rape where young women become pregnant by unscrupulous men and I have not heard anybody speak for those. There are some people in this city who have been handed children from the various parts of this country to look after. Then, some men who have lovely cars take these women every other night. If you follow them to night, you will find them doing it again. They are the ones who make women pregnant but, unfortunately, they are not speaking of them now. I would warn that we would be encouraging illegal abortion if we repeal this Bill and do nothing about any possible consequence. It is not possible in Kenya in 1969 to prevent intercourse outside marriage and this will continue to go on. Some men who are married are the ones who are responsible for the pregnancy of these young women. Maybe some are here. It may be the large mouthed lot are the ones who are concerned. Mr. Speaker, I wish we could have X-ray eyes and follow each Member tonight. If we had X-ray eyes, we could penetrate some of the cars and some of the walls.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order!

Mr. Shikuku: Is the hon. Member not on the verge of imputing improper motives to the hon. Members here that we should be followed at night?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! He is not yet imputing improper motives, but he is very near it, I agree. He is, however, skipping around it but he has been quite careful so far.

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think I am quite adept at the art of brinkmanship. I had not dropped down yet, but I nearly did so. The Members should then have been more concerned than they are at present. I was saying that if we would follow these men tonight, they would be after these young women who are helpless when they are handled by people who are experienced. I would not call them innocent, for if they were they should not have gone out with them. They are young women who cannot defend themselves mentally because the men have a lovely tongue when they are in need of these women. It is a pity that after they have convinced them, that they abandon them. I think that a man who goes to a woman once, twice, thrice, surely must like that woman. If you read the Swahili newspaper reports of the Makadara court cases you will find they say "Tulionana kimwili siku fulani". "Tukaonana kimwili tena". "Siku fulani, tukaonana tena", and so on. People are Onana kimwili with these women many times, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Why are they ashamed either to marry the women or at least to support the children that this "onanaring" kimwili gets? I, myself, cannot understand this kind of attitude because, Sir, a woman whom you go to when you have had a Tusker bottle too many and you are feeling more of a man than you were before you took the bottle, does not take you to court because she does not even have a clue who you are. The women in my constituency that the Members here talk about very freely, in Eastleigh, do not take anybody to court.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order—

I do not think I have a point of order now, Sir, because the hon. Member who was making a noise here has just left.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Well there is a lot of noise going on in the House, I do not think it is only confined to him. I hope the noise gets less because we are discussing a very serious Bill.

Dr. Waiyaki: Mr. Deputy Speaker, we are not talking of those women who have decided to make a profession out of their bodies— They have many children. If you go to the Mathari Valley, you will find many children there. These women do not take the men to court. It is these other women, the likes of some of the girls in our offices, who do take men to court.

All the same, whether they are right or wrong, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the child is born. What we are trying to say about these women now is that they will either practise abortion illegally or they will abandon the children once they are born. Why do you want to have the fun and have nothing to do with the duties that come after that? When these Members are much older, the ones that are laughing at me—

I have only two small daughters and mine are not likely, for the next ten years, to be interfered with. So it is not from a personal interest that I am speaking. My girls are very small, thank you. There are Members here who have grown-up daughters and, maybe, they can think of the immediate consequences that will come. I am talking nationally here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, would the Attorney-General tell us, because I was listening very carefully when he was moving the Bill, what will, in fact, follow immediately the repeal of this Bill?

[Dr. Waiyaki]

And what will happen, in fact, to those people who are already paying as the result of a man being taken to court under this Affiliation Act? Are these things going to be abrogated and repealed? And what is going to happen to the children who are born tonight and tomorrow out of wedlock? Are they going to be put in the dustbins for the municipality to take to Embakasi or somewhere?

Mr. Shikuku: Why not take them to their fathers?

Dr. Waiyaki: Well, if the hon. Member for Butere is prepared to take the kids, I am quite happy. You can have all of them.

Mr. Shikuku: I will only take my own.

Dr. Waiyaki: Sir, there is another problem. It is becoming quite a common practice these days for men to define themselves as African socialists when they take more than one wife. Some of these women they do not even marry and they abandon them at the slightest quarrel and leave them with the children. What is going to happen to those children who are born as a result of deceit, because that is what I call it? You take a woman, you are not married to her, and once you quarrel with her you abandon her. What happens to those children that are born? Dr. Barnardo's Home is completely full as well as all other such homes. It is not good enough to laugh at the National Christian Council of Kenya. They are the type of people who are concerned with these children and their problems; they are dealing with the problem as it is now. It is not even good enough to laugh at the Kenya Council of Women. It is easy for a man to draw out a woman who happens to lead the Kenya Council of Women and say that she had children illegally out of wedlock and, therefore, the whole thing must be condemned. I do not look at it that way. These children, Sir, must be provided for, and when the Attorney-General comes to reply to the debate, he should tell us exactly what is going to happen to these children.

Sir, I must warn Members that, as of tonight, I am warning the women of my constituency to kick them when they see them. If they see you, they will kick you because you are busy trying to destroy them.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when I stand here to speak I intend to approach this Bill with candid reasonableness and seriousness, too.

Sir, a Member says, "So what?", but I would like to tell him that it is no good being emotional on an issue that is so national.

We have to be considerate because—

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, can you order the Minister for Information to go to the Front Bench?

An hon. Member: You are lucky because you are short.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is it in order for an hon. Member to describe the hon. Member on the Floor that he is lucky because he is short? Is that parliamentary language?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! Order, Mr. Lubembe.

I do not think it is unparliamentary to describe an hon. Member as "short".

However, I would say that this is a very serious Bill and there has been so much of laughter and joking, and almost screaming going on that one would have thought we were having fun and games. I think Members should take this a little more seriously. This is a matter that affects the lives of many people. I think it would be better to treat this issue more seriously than we are doing at the moment.

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am sorry, but if that is the case, that it is not parliamentary language, that the hon. Member be asked to withdraw and apologize at the same time. We know who he is.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think you misunderstood me, Mr. Tsalwa. I said it was not unparliamentary to call an hon. Member "short". It is, perhaps, not in good taste but it certainly is not abusive.

Let us carry on with the debate.

Mr. Mwithaga: After all, Sir, the Minister for Information is only jealous of my stature because shorter people are normally stronger.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Do carry on with the debate.

Mr. Mwithaga: Now, Sir, what we must understand first is where the affiliation issue emanated from. To this country the essence of this and the way it was enacted, and the way in which it has been implemented, is a foreign idea. It is easy to say in one language that we are against a certain foreign idea and, on the other side, to say that we want the other foreign idea. Are we not confused? It is absolutely un-African, it is completely un-African to use the Affiliation Act the way it has been used during the last ten years. If we are proud of our own heritage we must go on being African.

Sir, we must be completely conscious of some of the feelings being infused in our people, in Members here by the so-called circulars which are coming to us from interested organizations with vested interests. I have proof on what I am talking about.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): These are respectable women.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if the Attorney-General is serious in his statement, then there is much to be admired!

There is no question of making jokes out of this issue. We are aware that there are children who will be affected. That is not a new theory, it is not a new thought, it is not a matter that should be made a fact for us to know. We know it.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember that I was the only Member who drafted a Motion to call for the repeal of this law. Yes, Mr. Speaker. I had reasons for that, and that is why I said I wanted to treat this matter seriously.

We are hearing today that this law is unfortunate because it is going to affect children and, therefore, we must forget what the mothers are doing by commercializing this law. Now, Sir, there cannot be a child without a mother; that is impossible. Also, there cannot be a child without a father and a mother. It is physically and naturally impossible.

An hon. Member: That is not relevant.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, it is relevant because I know what I am driving at.

Today, it happens that children are starting to belong to their mothers and not to their fathers. This, is what I am saying is absolutely un-African. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if the foreignness of this idea, of transferring children from their African heritage, whereby children belong to their fathers and should now belong to their mothers, and thereby we should not repeal the law, makes a nonsense of the whole issue.

Mr. Shikuku: Makes nonsense of our tradition.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, a Member, whom I know is married, asks whether I can look after them. If I have gone astray it means that I am in a position to look after them. If he cannot, that is not my fault.

Therefore, the women who have been using this Affiliation Act have only failed to understand that there are two laws in this country which cater for the whole matter. We have the Affiliation Act and the Matrimonial Causes Act. The Matrimonial Causes Act provides for conjugal rights and that law alone solves the whole problem without this Affiliation Act. Why it solves the whole problem is because under the Matrimonial Causes Act children born in wedlock are covered. But this Affiliation Act which was also intended for the same purpose have now turned from the question of wedlock to children who are born out of wedlock, at times, Sir, those children born out of wedlock, for whom some mothers have been trying to fight in the courts, like the courts in Makadara and other courts, you find most of them are in towns.

Sir, a Member asks what is wrong with that. Why they are found to be in towns is because most women work in towns; some parents who have lived here for long, their children have lived in this town—the girls—and they have not actually known the real meaning and seriousness of marriage. In towns is where you find most of the broken marriages; and in towns is where you find most girls not wanting to marry.

Hon. Members: But they want children.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, this is natural. I must say, from a very African approach, that a girl who has never had a child feels herself an outcast in society. The Attorney-General says that is not true. I believe he is not an African if he says that is not true.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): At that point of disagreement it might be a good moment for you to break off, Mr. Mwithaga. You can resume your speech when we resume the debate.

It is time for interruption of business, but before interrupting business I would like to say that there is a Motion for the Adjournment and would also like to correct something.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I am entitled to correct one statement of fact which was made with reference to me personally by Mr. Khaoya, who said that, studying HANSARD on the debate for the Bill for introduction of this Act ten years ago, he finds that I opposed the Bill. Perhaps I misunderstood him. He would in fact, find that I was a very strong supporter of the Bill.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

SHORTAGE OF SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would a Minister please move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo) seconded.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in proposing the Motion for the Adjournment I would like to say that it comes as a result of a Question which was Tabled by the hon. Member for Embakasi, hon. Karungaru. The Question read, and I quote:

“Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister if he would tell the House if it was true that some of the other schools on chalk exercise books answer was in the affirmative, how soon would the Minister remedy this.”

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister replied, and I quote: “Yes. Before 1969, the system of distributing books and equipment to primary schools was that the local authorities issued tenders to local suppliers who then delivered the books and other equipment as directed.

Unfortunately, the Central Government then discovered a lot of irregularities and, possibly, bribery and corruption had taken place in handling of these tenders.

It was, therefore, decided rather late, in 1968, that the distribution of these books and equipment should be handled by the Central Government. Because of the fact that this decision was taken close to the end of the year, entirely new machinery for handling the purchasing and distribution of those books and equipment had to be set up in the Ministry of Works, it was not possible to deliver the books and equipment to all schools in time.”

Now, Sir, the Minister further stated that all schools will have received books and equipment before June 2nd 1969. What he meant by that was, in a week's time. The Minister extended his apology—

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I never gave a specific date and did not say, “In a week's time”. What I said was, “In a few weeks' time.”

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will accept that correction perhaps, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: I do accept the correction. Mr. Speaker.

The Minister expressed apologies to the parents and teachers, as well as pupils, for their concern, for the lateness in getting the equipment. This means therefore, that the Minister has been satisfied, up to this moment, that the supply of equipment to schools this year has been very, very unsatisfactory. This system, Sir, is the subject of this debate.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I advise the Minister to direct the local authorities to invite tenders, including the Minister of Works, at the district level, and if the Ministry of Works' tender is accepted by any local authority, that should be all right. The local authorities ought to be free to choose who they consider can supply the schools in the quickest possible time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not fair to force the local authorities to wait for the supplies from Nairobi, because even now, as I shall tell the House, some of the schools have not received their equipment as of this date, and this is six months after the year started. In a few months' time the pupils will be sitting their Certificate of Primary Education and what can we expect the results to be like when, up to date, they have not had supplies of the equipment required?

An hon. Member: They will all fail.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, I think the Minister for Education should go into this matter and consider this matter very favourably because I know he is a very efficient and able man and this is not hard for him. I am asking him to consider this.

I have the following proof, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to show that this year's supply of equipment to the schools has been very unsatisfactory. Therefore, I would ask the Minister to ask each authority to make its own order, rather than forcing them to order from Nairobi.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to put down examples to prove that the supply of equipment to schools has been poor. In Kiambu District, there has been a partial supply of equipment to some schools only. Here I am informed that Ndeekei School in Kiambu has had no equipment at all. I have also been informed that the school of the East African Bag and Cordage Company, at Juja has had only partial equipment delivered, so that in a class of 40 where pupils are reading the New English Approach, two pupils are sharing a book, an English reader. This is an appalling state of affairs and that is why I am asking the Minister to consider the matter seriously.

In West Elgeyo-Marakwet, there are no registers, Mr. Speaker, Sir. In the Kiambu schools, the County Education Officer is reported to have told all headmasters to buy hard-covered note-books for use as registers because registers cannot be found. In Meru, the Minister for Education has allowed Sh. 1 to be used per child to be spent on books while awaiting for the equipment to come from Nairobi. In Kakamega District, the Minister for Health is reported to have intervened to get supplies sent there. What happens to a place where there is no Minister?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Kiambu does not have a Minister?

~~Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not~~ answer that.

Mr. Speaker, in some schools they do not have any equipment. I am told that some schools have received only coloured chalk and no white chalk, and that is an appalling state of affairs. I am told in another district the school received chalk boxes which were full of sawdust and they were meant to be chalk.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Will you prove this?

Mr. Godia: I think the Minister wants to interject. I can prove this for him tomorrow.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Will you bring the sawdust?

Mr. Godia: I will prove it by getting more information from that district.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers in Narok are reported to be sharpening cassava for use as chalk on the blackboards, and this is bad.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, since Mzee ordered lorries to go out from Nairobi to deliver equipment to the schools, many schools have not received their supplies. I know that the Ministry of Education is responsible for the standards in our schools and it is also responsible for the collection of materials which should be given to the schools.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): I am not responsible for the delivery.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister here is saying that he is not responsible for delivery, and that is why I am saying that the Minister should recommend to the local authorities so that the local authorities are responsible for the delivery of equipment to their own local schools.

Here, in Nairobi City Council, the City Council has had a very excellent way of supplying to its schools, and I do not see the reason why the Minister for Education did not allow the City Council of Nairobi to stick to their own means of getting equipment to their own schools. This is very unfair and I think something should be done.

The Minister, Sir, also said in his reply that there was some corruption and instances of bribery over the issue of equipment to schools. I would be very grateful to know if any action was taken to bring the people concerned to court, and if any were taken to court we would like to know if these cases involved school teachers or what. We want to know. It appears now that the whole nation has been punished because of the mistakes of one individual. That is unfair.

I am briefly asking the Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to reconsider the decision and allow the local authorities to be responsible for the supply of Works is interested, it should also submit tenders to the local authorities and they should be allowed to accept the tenders from the Ministry or accept any other tenders as they see fit, without being compelled from Nairobi to accept the Ministry of Works' tender.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words I move the adjournment of the House.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to be very brief on this one because I know how serious it is. The Member who moved the adjournment of the House has already established a case, and I do not have any doubts that the Minister for Education has understood him.

Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Education has time and again been telling this House as to his Ministry's intentions to supply school equipment. Why should the Minister for Education, of whom we have a very high regard, come into this House time and again and tell us that he is going to fulfil this, only to find that the promise he has given is quite void? In the final analysis, we have come to know that if we are true representatives in this House, we have to tell the truth. This question of school equipment has not started just this year; it started even last year and nothing has been done about it. We know that up to now they are schools which have not got their equipment, and in which month are we now? Is this not June, Mr. Speaker, Sir? This is the middle of 1969 and yet we know that some of the schools, up to the moment, have not got this school equipment. Is it not a shame? What will be the results of the Certificate of Primary Education? Maybe the Minister has his own reason why he is doing this, and I am now going to accuse him in this House so that he may come forward and tell us that my accusation is unfounded or is founded. Mr. Speaker, maybe the Minister has knowledge of what will happen in the results of the Certificate of Primary Education this year, because last year the students who sat for this examination did not all get places in the high schools, the secondary schools. Maybe he has a plan to reduce this number in advance so that we do not come across the same problem that—

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member making an accusation of ulterior motives, that the delay of the books is based on some ulterior motive, and if so I would like him to substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That seems to be the implication of what you are saying, that the Minister has some diabolical plan of depriving students of equipment, so that there will be less of them qualifying for secondary schools. I am sure you do not mean that, and you will withdraw any suggestion of it.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I do not really mean that, what I am doing is to give the general opinion—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. No. What is the general opinion? That the Minister has this diabolical plan? You must withdraw allegations of this kind, general opinion or not. Please withdraw any imputation against the Minister that he is deliberately depriving school children of equipment in order to achieve some nefarious ends.

Mr. Karungaru: That general opinion can be withdrawn, and I have done so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not can be but is, and I think with an apology too.

Mr. Karungaru: I do apologize.

Mr. Speaker, although this has been happening is it not true that the Minister for Education is the man who has been a scholar? A man who has a record of education, and knows the benefit of education? Why has a man of such high calibre not see fit to give the proper equipment in time? I know the Minister for Education is very capable in argument. He may come here and brush off whatever we have established. That is known.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the truth is whether he is coming to this House and tries to dodge the idea or not, the case has been established. The lack of supply to schools is the case.

Mr. Speaker, because I know other Members are also very bitter on this particular subject, I would like to give them the opportunity to say a few words, and with these few remarks, Mr. Sir, I give the Member for Hamisi my blessing for raising this Motion on Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Chillo, assuming the Minister wants ten minutes to reply, there is only three minutes available to you I am afraid.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I think this is a serious occasion.

I remember when the Minister was answering this Question, he told the House it was not his responsibility to see that supplies were made. I thought it should have been the Minister for Works who should have come to the House to answer this.

This is very serious, Mr. Speaker, and I am speaking as an ex-teacher, and I know a school cannot be run without books, without chalk and so on, and I am also speaking as a father. I know when I go back home my children come to me and ask for Sh. 1 for exercise books, and so on, this is very serious. I feel that if the Minister says that what has hapened is not right, then what he should do is to see that the school fees for this year are reduced. In Central Nyanza where we pay Sh. 90 per annum, we should only pay Sh. 60, because this is what is paid in other districts. This is a serious situation and I do not know why a plan was not made beforehand when the Central Government was taking over the tenders. I do not know where the failure lies. The people and the country at large, are very bitter over what is happening and I hope the Minister will see the schools are supplied with books immediately. This is a great failure which should not be tolerated.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There would only be one minute for you, Mr. Shikuku.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): I would rather give the minute now rather than later on after my reply.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Education shelved this responsibility the other day when he said it was not his business to look after the books. Surely it is his business to make sure that the children in this country are educated. They can never be educated unless there are books and so on. For him to say it is not his responsibility is completely irresponsible.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, the question of the failure of books has come about because they have centralized everything. We do not want this centralization; let the books be handled as they were handled in the past, in the provinces so that we ensure that the books reach the children in time. If we are to pay our fees and then we are not given the equipment, the Government and the Minister for Education, must accept the fact that it is robbing the people of their money without their being given the services. I think this is a very bad accusation, but I think the Minister should bear with this. We want the books to be distributed on a provincial basis, and this question of centralization should be forgotten once and for all, and we have paid the school fees for nothing, and the results this year may be very, very bad as a result of the lack of the equipment.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I hope the Minister will take it very seriously and let us have these things done as they were done in the past to ensure efficiency and good results.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am happy that it was possible for the Chief Whip to whip me in one minute.

[The Minister for Education]

I do not think there is any major disagreement between myself and the Members of the House in establishing a case, which has already been admitted, that there has been difficulties in distributing the books to all primary schools. I do not think there is any argument on that. In my reply, which the Mover of the Motion quoted very faithfully, except in one place, this was admitted. I could inform the seconder of the Motion that it was not a question of establishing a case as to whether schools have suffered or not because that has been admitted as it did happen. As I tried to point out when I was answering this question, I said that although the hon. Member for Butere assessed the situation wrongly, but what happened is that the machinery of the centralized form of distribution was started late in the year. For this reason, they were not able to catch up with the demands for books on time. It is no use the hon. Member for Embakasi trying to assume that I am not interested in the children being properly educated, by not giving them the books on time. This is rather a poor accusation if I may say so. In addition to being the Minister for Education myself, I am the father of six children, four of whom are in school, and one of whom will take her Certificate of Primary Education examination this year. I really could not have any diabolical plot to make sure the children fail at the end of the year. I am really surprised that an hon. Member could have such a dishonourable thought in his mind.

There could also be a case, if I may say so, of too many cooks spoiling the broth. This is something which the hon. Members could argue about without making accusations which cannot stand any argument. What did happen, as I said, is that the Central Tender Board in the Ministry of Works, undertook to supply these books which my Ministry indicated were wanted in schools. To have the necessary personnel, to have the necessary equipment, and to have people to pack them and deliver them was not an easy task because this was started from scratch. It has been suggested by the hon. Mover and also by the hon. Member for Butere, that perhaps decentralization may be the answer. I am not going to say whether it is the answer or not, but the hon. Mover and the hon. Member for Butere should realize they will not be putting me on the carpet if that happened, but it would be the local authorities. I am not trying to run away from the responsibility which I was accused of by the hon. Member for Butere. Even the proposition he is putting forward again takes the matter of distribution away from my Ministry. In both the present and the one he proposes, in both cases, it is he who is trying to kick me out of this particular job. To be very serious, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have done a number of things which we hope will improve the situation.

First of all, as I said the last time, the Ministry of Defence has given us additional vehicles. Secondly we have a committee of officers from the Ministry of Local Government, the Minister of Works and from my Ministry to review every week where the books have not yet arrived. We have also now put one officer, whom we transferred from Nakuru to our Headquarters, to be fully in charge of this checking, to make sure the books which are delivered to a given district are delivered to the schools immediately they arrived there. That has also been one of the bottlenecks whereby some of the books have been delivered to some areas, but from there to the particular schools there has been some bottleneck there.

We have this officer full time there just checking because we do not want to see this ever repeated again in our educational system. We think it has been a very tragic situation where some teachers have had to make do with very little equipment. I am sure the people handling this, that is the three Ministries involved, my Ministry selecting the material, the Ministry of Local Government and the Ministry of Works helping us to deliver them to the places, is something we do not want repeated as I said earlier.

It was an attempt to correct a wrong practice which necessitated the change from the highly decentralized system to a centralized one, which caused this situation. It is one which I believe, with practice and the experience we have gained this year, that we will learn from our mistakes and we will be able to streamline the arrangements more effectively in the future.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one of the difficulties in my Ministry is that practically every Member of the House is an expert on how to run education. Every week and every day I am being given additional suggestions, which I do not in any way resent, but which I do appreciate because the suggestions, are made not from a point of view of political allegations, but because the country wants to make sure that the standard of education is first rate. The absence of books for four, five or six months is, in itself, a deprivation of pupils and the teachers.

Having accepted this has happened in an attempt to put right what was even a worse mistake previously, we can only now hope that the additional personnel who have been put there, and the new arrangement for a full time officer for this purpose, and the additional transport which we have been given, will ensure that the mistakes do not recur. This is a matter which I was discussing yesterday with the leaders of the National Union of Teachers in the presence of the Minister for Works, hon. Dawson Mwanyumba. They helped us a lot yesterday afternoon in pointing out some of the places where these bottlenecks may have arisen, and, in fact, we invited them to go to the Ministry of Works with an officer from my Ministry, and an officer from the Ministry of Local Government to examine the system and see if we have improved it since I answered this question, and if the improvements and the attempts to streamline the system are not satisfactory to give suggestions as to how to make it more efficient. They agreed to do this and we are waiting for their suggestions. I am sure, when they go to examine the system, they will find we have done a lot to streamline the whole thing.

I hope very much, as a parent, that this difficulty will not rise again. I am not too sure that returning to the old system will correct the situation because the system which has prevailed for a long time ended up in being extremely corrupt. I think we had better improve the new system rather than return to the sinful way of yesterday.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members we have had our half hour so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 11th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Wednesday, 11th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERSCOMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR*CHANGE IN THE ORDER OF BUSINESS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I have an informal Communication to make with reference to the business on the Order Paper today. You see that we have down on the Order Paper as Order No. 5 the Committee of the Whole House to deal with The Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendment) Bill, but also there is notice of several more amendments of the Bill to be introduced in the Committee Stage, which in effect involve further amendment of further laws. In accordance with our Standing Orders, we cannot deal with these further amendments of further laws without hon. Members having copies of the laws concerned as they now stand, and a little time to study them. So we shall not take this on the Order Paper today. I think it would be better, in fact, if it waited until next Tuesday, so that Members have time to see and study the existing laws concerned. Moreover, there is a little confusion, I think, as to the exact amendments proposed, and we would like a little time to sort them out.

Therefore, when we come to Business, we shall proceed immediately to Order No. 6, which is the continuation of the debate on the Affiliation (Repeal) Bill.

NOTICES OF MOTIONSREPEAL OF THE OUTLYING AND SPECIAL DISTRICTS ACTS

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that colonial rules as contained in Kenya Statute Books Chapter 104 and 105, namely the Outlying Districts Act and the Special Districts (Administration) Act with amendments thereto hinder freedom of political organizations throughout the country as provided by the Republic Constitution, this House urges the Government to repeal these laws in as far as they affect the movement of party officials and agents.

HONOURING AND REMEMBERING THE FREEDOM FIGHTERS

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that during our struggle for independence many people were detained, others imprisoned, many were in the forest and others were engaged in political activities demanding the release of His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta and his followers, this House urges the Government—

- (a) to make provision to enable these people during the Madaraka Day Parade to display themselves in the march past in memory of their activities during the whole struggle, wearing whatever uniforms they used to wear at that time; and
- (b) to appoint a commission of inquiry to investigate and report all existing grievances of these people or their widows or children in respect of what they have suffered as a result of the emergency in Kenya, and to decide what compensation they should now receive.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Order! Your Question, Mr. Kassa-Choon.

*Question No. 197INCREASE IN THE ADMINISTRATION POLICE FORCE, WEST POKOT

Mr. Kassa-Choon asked the Minister of State, President's Office, whether—

- (a) in view of the crime statistics for West Pokot District, the Minister would increase the present number of Administration Police from 51 to 100, and station half at Sigor Administration Centre;
- (b) the Minister would also promise that in the remote areas like West Pokot where sources of employment were rare, he would recruit bright young men from that area.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) No, Sir. (b) No, Sir.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply of "No, Sir", and in view of the fact that yesterday in this House the Minister for Home Affairs told us that in Pokot last year, nine people were killed and there have been four killed this year—and, at the same time, about 2,700 head of cattle were stolen by Turkana raiders along the border—this is what I am basing my argument on, Mr. Speaker—will the Minister elaborate more and tell the House why he says "No, Sir", to these two questions?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the moment, there are enough Administrative Police in the West Pokot district, and together with the Kenya Police Officers, they are doing what should be done to cope with crime in that particular district.

[Mr. M. Koinange]

As to the question of recruiting young men for the Administrative Police from West Pokot, that does not arise because of the existing efficient people. If there is any need for such recruitment, it should not be the demand of the hon. Member that they be exclusively recruited from that particular place. Recruitment should be on the basis of efficiency throughout the country.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies, where the Minister said that there were enough Administrative Police in the area, is he aware that at Sigor Administrative Centre there are only four policemen and they cannot cope with the situation there? This number should be increased.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there has not been crime sufficient to suggest that those people, including the police and other facilities, such as the army, have failed in that area.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, arising from the answers "No, Sir, No, Sir", will the Minister tell me if he is aware that there was an Administrative Police Force at Sigor previously, and when they were removed from the area a lot of trouble developed, and that is why there is a lot of crime in West Pokot, and that therefore the Minister should make sure that we have more Administrative policemen?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry to hear that the hon. Member, instead of actually asking for fewer police so that he and the Members and the administration could appeal to the people, is almost appealing to make the area a police state. This is very wrong. What he should do is to co-operate, at this moment, with the administration so that tranquility comes to the area.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Minister verify that statement, where he says that the hon. Member wants that area to be a police state because we already know that Kenya is a police state and it is no use refuting it.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I emphatically oppose the remark from the Member that Kenya is a police state.

NOTICE OF THE MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 197: INCREASE IN THE ADMINISTRATION POLICE FORCE, WEST POKOT

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order. If the hon. Member will agree, may I raise this matter as a Motion on the Adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Any objection?

Mr. Kassa-Choon: No objection.

Question No. 185

BARINGO FARMERS' TRAINING CENTRE

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what was hindering the start on the Baringo Farmers' Training Centre which had been proposed at Sabatia.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. We are unable to proceed with the Baringo Farmers' Training Centre at Sabatia due to the lack of funds.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer that he is unable to start this Farmers' Training Centre, Mr. Speaker, could the Assistant Minister tell the House what steps his Ministry is taking to see that this Farmers' Training Centre is started soon?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have applied to the World Bank for a loan of £84,900 and it is expected that the funds will be available in October 1969, after the final negotiations in Washington in September.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question, Mr. Kassa-Choon.

Question No. 198

DEVELOPMENT OF POKOT AGRICULTURAL LAND

Mr. Kassa-Choon asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House—

- (a) whether the Minister was aware that large parts of Kara-Pokot, South of Turkana, and East Pokot (Baringo) were looking to Sigor Division for their food supply; and
- (b) if the answer was yes, what plans had he to survey with a view to making economic use of that vast land between Marich-Pass and Chesekon which was at present lying idle.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer to part (a) of the Question is, yes, Sir. On (b), actions are already in hand to survey this area with a view to developing it agriculturally.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell us what development is earmarked for this area because we would like to know about it and when it is likely to start?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not aware of any large tracts of land between Marich-Pass and Chesekon, but the area covering these two places, which are 20 miles apart, is suitable for range development. There are also possibilities of minor irrigation schemes which could be established for crops like onions and cotton.

Most of the difficulties encountered in developing this area are due to the reluctance, and I repeat, reluctance of the local people to sell their livestock and agree to change their traditional land-use customs and land rights. It must be understood that if this area is to be developed, the people must agree to sell their cattle which will not only give them cash to purchase things like flour, sugar, tea, and so on, but will free land for agricultural use in the Sigor Division.

Other steps will be taken which could include the use of improved bulls, to give better animals and the construction of dips.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 200

MERU WATER SCHEMES

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House whether he would do something to save the Kianjai and Akithii water scheme in Meru whose pipe had been laid on a self-help basis in 1963 at a cost of about Sh. 200,000 and which was now in a poor state of repair and which unless it was purified, would become dangerous to health.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Kianjai piping scheme was initiated by the County Council of Meru in 1960. They allocated funds from their own resources which were supplemented by a Government grant on a pound for pound basis.

The scheme was installed with the assistance of the water development officials but was handed over to the County of Meru on completion. The county council is responsible for the satisfactory operation and maintenance of this installation. The water is taken from a flowing river and is not treated. If the installation is in a state which needs repair, as the hon. Member suggests, the first step should be to press the County Council of Meru who should discharge their responsibility efficiently.

If the Government were to intervene by taking over this project and bringing it to a state of good repair, the scheme would have to be gazetted and water charges would have to be raised. The Ministry is currently giving consideration to the proposal that schemes initiated by county councils, which do not operate satisfactorily, should be taken over by the water development division and the policy is expected to be finalized within the next few months. On this basis I think it may well be possible for the water development division to take over the Kianjai water scheme.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer and knowing that this water scheme involves a population of over 30,000 people, and that the amount which was initially spent by the local people through self-help to bring about the installation of this water scheme was so much, would the Minister, or his Ministry, take this as a special case? The Minister says that this water is tapped from a river, but in fact it is tapped from a swamp where there is no purification system of the water and, knowing the danger to the health of the people, would the Minister take this water scheme as a special case and help these people, because, if he does not, there is a danger of some of the waterborne diseases breaking out in the area?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what we do not want to do is to rob people of their own initiative. If the county council is willing to ask my Ministry to take over, it must start from Meru.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 200:
MERU WATER SCHEMES

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to raise this Question No. 200 on the Adjournment. I am not satisfied.

Question No. 201

PROPER PLANNING FOR MITUNTU SETTLEMENT SCHEME

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what the Ministry was doing to investigate and improve the conditions of Mituntu Settlement Scheme in Meru by advising the farmers on which was the best crop suited for that area and introducing proper farm planning in the scheme.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Ministry has been helping by advising the farmers in establishing cotton as a cash crop and maize and beans as the subsistence crop. Under the scheme of strip cultivation, it is possible to provide machinery if the farmers pay for the services. Agriculturally, Mituntu is ranked as a part of Nyambeni Division where there is one Assistant Agricultural Officer, one Divisional Agricultural

[Mr. Murgor]

Instructor, one Agricultural Assistant and two junior Agricultural Assistants. The two junior Agricultural Assistants work mainly in the scheme under the guidance of the senior staff. For the small schemes, such as Mituntu, much of the staffing is very general.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer that the Ministry is trying to advise these farmers, would the Minister—because I do not agree that the Ministry is trying to advise the farmers—try and establish experimental plots in the area where various crops would be grown in order to find out which ones suit the area? Moreover, would the Ministry help the farmers in the area by bringing Government tractors to try and establish block or strip cultivation of cotton to find out if it would save this scheme which is in a neglected situation?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Mituntu Settlement Scheme is in Nyambeni Division of Meru District, and the size of the scheme is 2,809 acres divided into lots of 15 to 18 acres. Since 1965, 170 families have been settling on the scheme. There is some coffee grown in the area and there are other crops grown, including bananas, beans and the cash crop is cotton. Miraa is also grown without much support from us.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this scheme was over-staffed in the first instance and I am satisfied that, if the people of this Mituntu scheme are willing to pay for the services of machinery, my Ministry is willing to send some tractors.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, is the Assistant Minister aware that in 1967 the Ministry promised the farmers in that area that they would bring tractors to experiment on blocks of cultivation of cotton, which they did not bring, and that there is no proper farm planning officer to look after that area?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said earlier, if the people are willing to pay for this service of machinery, we are willing to do something and, of course, it is our prime duty to look after the people of Nyambeni who are always welcome. As I said today, if they are willing to pay for the services, we are willing to send out tractors.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply from the Assistant Minister to the effect that he is helping these people to grow cotton, can he tell the House how much cotton was planted last year and how much money was made out of it?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the hon. Member speak louder.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you repeat the question, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of one of the replies from the Assistant Minister when he said that cotton was one of the cash crops grow in that area, could he tell the House how much cotton was grown last year and how much money the settlers made out of it?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, I did not say that it is the best crop, but I said that it is one of the cash crops which is anticipated will give a good living for the people.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 184

ROAD DEVELOPMENT IN KERIO VALLEY

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House—

- (a) if he could confirm that construction of a road was planned to start from Nakuru through Mogotio, Marigat, Kampi-ya-Samaki, Loruk, Nginyang, Kinyach and other centres in Kerio Valley to Mogorwo through Cheplock etc., and, if so;
- (b) was work on it due to start during this next financial year.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

No, Sir, I cannot confirm this. The financing of this project is still under discussion, and there is considerable doubt about the economic justification necessary before international financing agencies are prepared to enter into a loan agreement.

It is probable that a Squadron of Royal Engineers will be available next financial year to carry out some work on this road as part of their training programme.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, may I know the reason why the Minister is doubting the economic justification, as he said, and yet we have plenty of fish at Kampi-ya-Samaki, and we have plenty of fish at Lake Rudolph, and livestock, cattle and timber from the forests which are along this road, and yet he says that he is not yet satisfied.

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, plenty of fish in the area does not justify the construction of a road. I have said that we are still discussing this matter and we are still trying to convince donors from overseas, but we are doubtful whether they will accept this as an economic justification.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 216MAINTENANCE OF ROADS IN NYAKACH

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House why the following roads in Nyakach were being neglected:—

- (a) Katito-Nyakwere;
- (b) Kusa-Nyabondo; and
- (c) Onyuongo-Gabsarch.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can leave it and come back to it, Mr. Mwanyumba.

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, I seem to be confused with my papers, so can I leave it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will leave it for the moment and come back to it after you have sorted out your papers. Does the same apply for the next two questions, Mr. Mwanyumba?

Mr. Mwanyumba: No, I have those.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right. Mr. Chillo, your next question then.

Question No. 217OPENING OF NYAKWERE BRIDGE AT MIRUI

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House—

- (a) when the Nyakwere Bridge at Mirui was going to be officially opened; and
- (b) why had the construction work on the bridge been stopped for the last five months.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

This question has come up in this House several times, Mr. Speaker, and we have tried to give an answer to the hon. Member, but this does not seem to have satisfied him.

I would like to tell the hon. Member that this work is due for completion within some 12 months from now. The reason for the delay has been due to the necessity of redesigning the bridge; and this has caused the delay on construction work.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer where the answer I am given in (a) and (b), he says that there are two reasons which necessitated the stoppage of work. Namely, to allow for redesign of the bridge and, secondly, tree trunks, and large boulders, etc.; could the Minister tell the House which is which and which actually made the work stop, because here I am given two reasons and, in fact, the Minister only mentioned one?

An hon. Member: What is the matter with him this afternoon?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, the main reason is, as I said before, it became necessary to make new designs because of the constitution of the river bed. The engineers could not sink foundations there because of the boulders in the river bed. I would like to take this opportunity, Mr. Speaker, to assure the hon. Member that we are more anxious to construct this bridge than perhaps he is, and I have personally sent engineers there to investigate on the spot as to what is holding up the construction of this bridge. I am quite satisfied that it is not anybody's fault that the construction work has been delayed. We are trying to push ahead as fast as possible. We want to construct a permanent bridge which will not be washed away by the rains and we cannot, therefore, be pushed by the hon. Member merely because he wants to make it a sort of election propaganda.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, while this bridge is not in my constituency but is between the two districts, is the hon. Minister not actually insinuating an improper motive to me as far as an electioneering campaign is concerned? This is not in my constituency.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think it helps if, during the remaining months of the life of this Parliament, every effort made by every Member in this House is attributed to electioneering. It may be that, with the impending dissolution of this House, Members get a little bit more active than before in the interest of their constituents, but I would ask hon. Members to refrain from this sort of regular imputation of electioneering, particularly when the hon. Member says he is raising a matter which is not in his own constituency. You have a further question Mr. Chillo?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from the Minister's answer Mr. Speaker, here it is said that there will be a re-design for a single span bridge. Does it mean that the bridge is going to be constructed at a different spot or will it be a continuation of the present bridge where it is being constructed?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, design work and investigations are still going on, and, until the engineers finish their work, I cannot tell whether it will be exactly on the same spot or in a slightly different place.

*Question No. 218EFFECT OF HEAVY VEHICLES ON KENYA ROADS

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House—

- (a) was it not true that Kenya Roads had not been constructed to withstand the extraordinary long and heavy vehicles now using the roads;
- (b) what remedial measures was the Government taking;
- (c) whether, by allowing such vehicles on the roads, this did not constitute a breach of the terms under which loans for road development were normally given to the country.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is true that not all Kenya roads constructed in the past were constructed to carry vehicles up to the limits set forth in the Traffic Act.

The Government is taking measures to enforce the provisions of the Traffic Act. Until overweight vehicles are modified to conform to the law, they are permitted to carry only a reduced payload.

This is so. However, I should make it clear that International Financing Agencies are fully satisfied with the action the Government has taken to enforce the law, and that there is no question of the Government being in default on its agreement with those agencies for road development financing.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, and since the Government knew that the vehicles, which actually are the size of a train, were so huge and that their weight was so much that our roads could not carry them, what induced the Government to give licences to these big vehicles? Why, and who imported them?

Mr. Mwanyumba: It is true that some vehicles were exempt from this Traffic Act some time back in 1967/68, but that was a mistake which has since been rectified. Therefore, we have to stick to the present Act, and we are glad to say that transport operators are sticking to the law.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from some of the replies from the Minister, could the Minister tell us exactly why certain vehicles were exempt from the provisions in question?

Mr. Khaoya: Answer that my dear. Is it because of any inducement or what?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry is not responsible for the licensing of vehicles and, therefore, I cannot, at this juncture, give any reason why some were exempt from the provisions of this Act. But I have said that this matter has been rectified and every operator who—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister not misleading the House by trying to absolve his Ministry from that joint responsibility of the Government over any function of the Government by saying that his Ministry was not responsible for the licensing of the vehicles?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is desirable, when a question is asked, that the Minister whose main responsibility is to answer should try to answer every question likely to arise, including those belonging to other Ministries. Of course, question on licensing were likely to arise in this question. If the Minister has not, as it were, had his brief from the other Ministry concerned, it may be he just cannot answer today. Has the Minister finished speaking?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Mwalwa: Would the Minister not agree with the House that what is now needed is to get improvements to these vehicles, now that most of the transporters are Africans? May I repeat the question? In view of the fact that most of the transporters are Africans, and in view of the fact that we want to Africanize all the businesses, what is required now is to get these vehicles improved rather than stopping transporters using these main roads.

Mr. Mwanyumba: The transporters have not been refused from operating these vehicles provided they can conform to the law. The Government has required that all transporters—without regard to whether they are Africans or otherwise—have to conform to the provisions of the Traffic Act and, as I have said, we are glad to note that many have already adhered to the requirement of this Act.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Godia.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 218: EFFECT OF HEAVY VEHICLES ON KENYA ROADS

Mr. Kibuga: May I raise this on a Motion for the adjournment with the permission of the Questioner?

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, I will object on the ground that I will be raising it myself.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the only ground on which you could object.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

*Question No. 222*WIDENING OF BRIDGES: ELDORET-SOY-HOEY'S BRIDGE-KITALE

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House if he would consider widening these bridges:—

(a) Eldoret-Soy Bridge;

(b) Hoey's Bridge-Kitale Bridge.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised to get this Question from the hon. Member asking about these bridges, because I should have felt that the hon. Member, being interested in what is being done, would have seen the work already being done on these bridges.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply from the Minister, could he tell the House what progress is going on as regards widening these bridges?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, would I be in order to ask the hon. Member to go and see for himself what is being done by the Government on these bridges.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, where the Minister insists that the Member should go and see what is being done, is he aware that I was there last week—and now I am referring to (b) Hoey's Bridge-Kitale Bridge—and I saw nothing being done?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with the hon. Member.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now that the construction, or widening of this bridge is being done by the Government, will the Minister tell us when the work is going to be completed?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, this work is being done, and it will be finished when it is finished.

*Question No. 173*EDUCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS FOR HOTEL EMPLOYEES

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House—

(a) if the Minister was aware that some hotels had advertised staff vacancies for candidates with secondary school education;

(b) whether he did not consider, as a matter of policy, that the minimum educational qualifications for waiters should be at the Certificate of Primary Education level.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

(a) There is no legislation that prohibits employers from advertising vacancies of from setting whatever requirements they wish to attach to each post. This being the case, it does not surprise me to hear that hotel owners have advertised jobs and have also stated the qualifications they require. However, all private firms have been urged, through the Federation of Kenya Employers, not to advertise jobs that can go to secondary school leavers and to use the Kenya-ization of Personnel Bureau instead.

If all recruitment for secondary school leavers was centralized, the present wastage of training facilities and the endless migration from one employer to another would be stopped.

(b) I am not aware of any hotel owner who requires secondary school education for a waiter's job. I do know, however, that in recent months, various hotel owners have been looking for trainees with secondary school education for sponsorship in management courses now being offered by the Kenya Polytechnic, and for which secondary education is a reasonable requirement.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers given by the Assistant Minister, and arising from the fact that the Assistant Minister is not aware of what is going on, is the Assistant Minister aware that in the hotel which is opposite, or next to Parliament, people who are at present serving as waiters are those who qualified with a Second Division of the East African School Certificate? In fact, there are also those who obtained a First Division who are also working there as waiters.

Therefore, it is high time that this should be reviewed because he is saying that they are being taken on management courses, whereas it is high time they—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, as I have said, after considerable persuasion, hotel owners have now agreed to sponsor citizens for management training with a view to offering them management posts in the hotel industry. The first courses have now begun at the Kenya Polytechnic for this kind of work. Secondary school education is a reasonable requirement for this.

Indeed, in many countries today, Sir, a degree or its equivalent is required for the top posts in sophisticated hotels and Kenya, with its interest in tourism, must aim at the highest standards possible in its hotels.

[Mr. Kubai]

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as most of the hotels would like to have a high standard of service, it is also agreed that such trainees must be given practical training in all aspects of hotel work, including kitchen and table-waiting.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister not tell the House that this demand for higher qualifications for such low jobs is a method applied by those in the industry in order to keep away the Africans from going up to the managerial posts? Is that not why they want to keep them as low as possible? Is he not supporting that you can be a waiter without having a Cambridge School Certificate? Some of us have travelled around and we know. We know that some fools can even be waiters.

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, to go back to the Inter-Continental Hotel, this is not really a requirement by the hotel to have such educational standards. It is the workers themselves who wanted to be employed as such.

They are training to take over other jobs and it is good for them to do what they are doing now, because, eventually, they will rise to high executive posts in the hotels.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister ensure that this type of hotel and other institutions recruit their employees either from the Kenyanization Bureau or the Ministry of Labour in order to avoid brotherization and tribalism in these hotels?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question. In fact, it is the same as another question which is coming up, I believe.

Question No. 171

AMENDMENT TO THE MINING ACT TO HELP AFRICANS

Mr. Munyi asked the Minister for Natural Resources if he would tell the House—

(a) when a Bill would be brought to the House in order to amend some clauses in the Mining Act which discouraged citizens from prospecting for minerals freely;

(b) what plans were already under way to help Africans take an active part in the mining industry.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply My Ministry, in conjunction with the Office of the Attorney-General, is currently engaged in an exercise to revise Kenya's mineral legislation to bring it in line with the Constitution. As soon as this exercise is completed, the necessary amending legislation will be laid before this House.

In so far as prospecting is concerned, the Cabinet has, in fact, authorized the drafting of a disc claim clause to be added to the Mining Act to facilitate certain prospecting rights and this is now in the hands of the Attorney-General. I would like to point out, however, that freedom of prospecting is not entirely governed by the provisions of the Mining Act.

(b) With regards to Africans, they are participating in the mining industry, and I am pleased to say that there is already a very active participation in this. The industry currently employs 5,000 Africans in mining and quarrying, and some 30 wholly owned African companies and partnerships are engaged in prospecting and the development of the mining locations.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers given by the Minister, is he aware that because of this colonially orientated law, that, at present, Kenya does not have minerals of any importance, and if this law was eliminated, then Kenya would today have already have been in a position to produce minerals of importance which would have given us financial support which would have been higher than what we get from agricultural products? Therefore, it is high time that the Minister, in agreement with the Office of the Attorney-General, should do something to bring an amendment to this House rather than telling us that he will bring this in future. He should tell us when this will be, if it will be tomorrow or in the future. He should tell us when because if it is tomorrow, then that is better for the prospectors, and the better for the industry of this country, and the Minister should tell us today.

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know how to treat that: whether it is question or an oratory exposition.

However, whatever it is, Sir, I still would like to know what is meant by "minerals of importance"; whether these are one of the rare minerals that the world has, which is considered to be a mineral of importance or whether it is the quantity, I am not sure.

If it is a question of one of the rare minerals in the world, we have one and we have people working on it. They have only just started. We have just started this and hope that in due course the country will reap the benefits of this.

If it is a question of working with the Attorney-General's Office, I have already said that the matter is being worked out between the Attorney-General's Office and my office. A complete portion of it is with the Attorney-General's Office. If it is a question of telling the Minister what to do, I am indeed surprised that the hon. Member brings this matter to the House when he was in my office less than a fortnight ago, and I thought I had satisfied him that we were moving in the right direction.

Question No. 221

INCLUSION OF SWAHILI IN HIGHER SCHOOL
CERTIFICATE SYLLABUS

Mr. Omweri asked the Minister for Education why Swahili was not included in the Higher School Certificate Syllabus as a subject.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Swahili has not been included in the Higher School Certificate syllabus yet because the examining body—that is, the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate—does not have it on its syllabus. However, the newly-formed East African Examinations Council is already working on a Swahili syllabus for Higher School Certificate.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House when the syllabus being worked on by the East African Examinations Council will be introduced? Is it this year or next year, and will he assure the House that the same council is doing this work also for Bachelors' Degrees, for those who want to do literature?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member will agree with me it will not be possible to do Swahili at Higher School Certificate before the syllabus is ready for the teachers to use it. However, if it is finished this year, the syllabus will be started next year, and in two years' time the work will have been completed.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the last part of my question was: would the Assistant Minister tell this House whether the same council is preparing a syllabus to help those doing literature at degree level?

Mr. Khasakhala: That is a university matter, and it will be looked into differently.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We come back to Mr. Chillo's first question.

Question No. 216

MAINTENANCE OF ROADS IN NYAKACH

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Works to state why the following roads in Nyakach were being neglected: Katito/Nyakwere; Kusa/Nyobondo; Onyuongo/Gab-sarch.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reply is simple, because all the roads mentioned by the hon. Member are the responsibility of the local authority, and if the hon. Member would like to see them improved, I suggest that he sees the local authority concerned.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, if the Minister is not responsible for answering the question, why was it not answered by the Minister for Local Government who is responsible for such county councils, because people cannot be asked to pay graduated personal tax if the services are not implemented.

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of maintaining roads—I have said this many times—is being re-examined by the Government, and until we reach some conclusion, it is difficult for us to give half-hearted answers to hon. Members which arise from time to time in different places.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will come back to Mr. Nyaberi's Question.

Question No. 193

DIGGING OF TRENCHES: SOTIK SETTLEMENT SCHEMES

Mr. Makone, on behalf of Mr. Nyaberi, asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement why plotters in some settlement schemes in Sotik had to labour themselves in order to construct trenches for water systems to their homes, while in other schemes those labour charges were being paid by his Ministry.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The cost of water reticulation is met by the co-operative society of a particular scheme, and not the Ministry. To keep the cost of construction of water reticulation in a particular scheme to the minimum, my Ministry encourages settlers to dig trenches on a self-help basis in the spirit of Harambee. This saves a lot of money—

An hon. Member: Whose money?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): This saves a lot of money for the co-operative society of that particular scheme.

In a scheme where the settlers do not agree to dig trenches on a self-help basis, an approved contractor is given the work of digging trenches, and the charges for such digging are debited to the co-operative society of that scheme.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that he has not told the House where the money comes from? Does it come from the produce sold by the co-operative, or does the Ministry pay on behalf of the co-operative society and then the co-operative society pays it back?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we give loans to settlement co-operative societies for this purpose, and any work which is done for money is debited to that account, and the money is taken out of the loan which has been approved for the particular co-operative society.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House what he is doing to see that all the societies in the Sotik Settlement Schemes are given the loan to which he has referred, because the Isoge Scheme has not had any loan for water reticulation.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, I think that question is slightly different, because the hon. Member is asking for a loan for a co-operative society which has not approached my Ministry, and which has not had water reticulation plans approved by the hydraulic engineers.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

GRANT TO SOUTH NYANZA COUNTY COUNCIL FOR TEACHERS' SALARIES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Now we come to the Question by Private Notice.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to ask the Minister for Local Government the following Question by Private Notice:—

Why can the Government not give any remaining grant to the County Council of South Nyanza in order to help pay the teachers' salaries which are long overdue and which are now causing a great deal of suffering to the teachers.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The South Nyanza County Council has already been paid all grants due to it up to and including the 31st May 1969. The council had only a balance of £14,000 due to it as Government grants for the month of June 1969, and this sum has already been despatched.

It must be pointed out, however, that the council owes Government between £32,000 and £35,000 in respect of school equipment, and about £37,000 as reimbursement for health services and seconded staff. It also owes £185,945 as temporary loans due to the Local Government Loans Authority. There is also £12,750 due from the council in respect of loan charges to the Local Government Loans Authority to the 30th June 1969.

My Ministry, Sir, is informed, though, that the prementioned sum of £14,000 recently made available to the council is inadequate to meet the teachers' salaries bill for the month of May which amounts to over £30,000. At the end of May 1969, my Ministry applied to the Treasury for consent to make an advance to the Teachers' Service Commission under section 17 (3) of the Teachers' Service Commission Act, in order that the teachers' salaries at South Nyanza would be paid. This application to the Treasury is still being considered.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that teachers have been placed in a position throughout Kenya more or less like that of civil servants, and therefore their salaries should be paid directly by the Central Government? They should not be connected with the county councils, because this is causing frustration.

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, the employer of the teachers is the Teachers' Service Commission. The local councils act as agents merely to pay them.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether the council, as the agent of the Teachers' Service Commission, is authorized to discharge teachers who are not their employees?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I do not think any teachers have been discharged of late because there is provision that teachers will not be discharged.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister assure the House that all the same, regardless of all the difficulties, the teachers in South Nyanza will get their salaries immediately for the month of May, whether there is delay in the Finance Ministry in replying to the letter asking for more money or not? Will the teachers get their salaries immediately, because it is not the teachers' fault?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers will get their money when it is available.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from the Minister's answer, could he tell the House why it was not felt possible for the Ministry to make prior arrangements, bearing in mind that the South Nyanza County Council was in financial difficulties, so that the money which is now being requested from the Treasury, would be released in time, and then the teachers would be paid promptly?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, as I said, my Ministry has already made £14,000 available to the South Nyanza County Council to pay its teachers, but the other amount which we are asking the Treasury to approve is a last resort, and could not be taken earlier than this.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's answer, would he tell this House why the Government has money to pay on top of the Ministers' salaries, when the teachers cannot be paid?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, no, that is not relevant.

Mr. Sijeyo: Why is it Ministers first?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That may be discussed some other time, but it is not relevant to this question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

DISCRIMINATION OF OPERATORS OF TRADE LICENSING ACT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I would remind you that on the Adjournment today, Mr. Pandya is to raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

POINT OF ORDER

CRITICISM OF JUDGES: CAN ONLY BE RAISED BY SUBSTANTIVE MOTION—NOT RAISED UNDER S.O. 20

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, under Standing Order 20, I would like to raise a matter of national importance, which has enraged not only the hon. Members in this House, but also the entire public. The point is the sentence which has been given to the most notorious killer, John Ashworth, who was only sentenced to five-and-a-half years imprisonment, when he should have been sentenced to death. This is a very serious matter, Mr. Speaker, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Munyi is seeking to raise under Standing Order No. 20 something that he cannot raise at all, except by substantive Motion, and that is criticism of the actions of Judges on the Bench. There is no question of it being raised under Standing Order No. 20; it can only be raised by substantive Motion.

Mr. Munyi: Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No more on that.

Hon. Members: Bring a Motion.

BILL

Second Reading

THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

(Attorney-General on 10th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 10th June 1969)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwithaga was speaking, but he is not here. Mr. Mboya.

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance as to whether Ministers should not wait and speak after Members have spoken to give their opinion on this particular issue. This is a crucial matter.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is entirely at the discretion of the Speaker as to who catches his eye and at what stage, and it is not usual to challenge that discretion.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would I be in order to ask the hon. Minister who is going to speak on this Bill, whether he is going to speak as a Minister, or as the Member for Kamukunji?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member who has just sat down knows that I am the last person to be confused in what I say in this House, except in his case maybe.

Mr. Speaker, the Bill before the House, has evoked a lot of interest in the country, and I fully understand the reason for some of the debates that have been taking place in the newspapers, and also the reaction that I noticed was apparent in the House yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that, in my view, some of the debates that have been taking place, have been misplaced and irrelevant. The question is not whether we are for or against the women, nor is it a question of whether we defend the men. The real issue here, and essential point of concern, is the children. This is what I would like to concentrate on, rather than on some of the points that have been made in the newspapers and some of the issues that have been raised elsewhere.

This House, and I think the country at large, believes that Government is right in repealing the Affiliation Act. The repeal of the Act, I think it should be explained, does not imply that Government does not now recognize the need for an Act which would protect, and only protect, the children. There is need, Mr. Speaker, for an Act that should protect the children, and I think it is unfortunate that in repealing the Bill, we are not able simultaneously to introduce another Act, a new Act to take its place. I do hope, however, that the work that is being done—because perhaps the hon. Members are not aware of this, and when the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services speaks later, maybe he will have more to say on this—on a new Bill to take the place of the Bill which is being repealed, will be expedited, because my fear is that if there is too long a period between the repeal of this Bill and introduction of a new one, that we might create new problems, and which may have serious consequences on the situation that we are trying to deal with.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, very briefly, the reasons that leads us to support the repeal of the Affiliation Act as it stands today, is that it has a number of obvious weaknesses, and it has not, in its application, functioned as originally intended. One aspect of the weaknesses, is that the Act has in its application in the Courts, tended to concentrate—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is it in order for that door to be opened as it is opened now?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It should not be allowed but I should not interrupt on it as a point of order.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member would have done a great service by going to close it instead of raising it on a point of order.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point I was making before I was interrupted, was that the Act, as it stands now, in its application, has tended to imply that in every case, where a woman has an illegitimate child, that the guilty party is always a man, and it has always been the case that the men are taken to court. This may be quite correct in a number of cases, but the assumption moves us away from the real intention of the law: that is for protecting the child, and leads us to an area which is very doubtful, and that is of punishing the man. The idea that we must have in mind, is not so much punishing the man, but providing for the child. The arguments that we find in most of the court cases, are so far only dealing with the punitive aspect of the men involved. Arising from this, Mr. Speaker, the Act has failed to recognize the part played by the women, nor has it sufficiently recognized the responsibility of the women where a child is concerned. It is necessary in the new Bill to ensure that the responsibility is equitably distributed to those concerned—the man and the woman—so that in dealing with the protection of the child, it should be provided in future, that the man concerned has a responsibility as well as the woman concerned. Where a woman has a salary or other means, she is equally required to provide for the maintenance of the child. This should, Mr. Speaker, really bring this matter to where it belongs, which is concerned with the child, and not merely with awarding punishment, or judging the guilt or otherwise of the persons concerned.

The second weakness of the present Act, is that by its construction and application, at the moment it seems to assume that in every case, custody of the child must be with the mother, so that the man although called upon to pay for the maintenance of the child, say, for 16 years, merely helps to support the child, but the mother has custody of the child. This again raises a number of questions. Firstly, whether it is right, in the first place to assume in every case that the mother must have custody of the child, and, secondly, whether it is right, to assume in every case, that the function of the man is merely to maintain the child, so that the woman will reap the benefit when the child is a grown up person. This, Mr. Speaker, is a very questionable principle, and one which must be put right in any future legislation. If we were to apply most of the tribal traditions to this problem, it will be found that in the majority of cases, the assumption will always be that in a case such as this custody of the child would lie with the father and not the mother. If a man is required to maintain a child for 16 or 17 years, then surely there is a right for the man to expect, at least, some equity in determining custody of the child. This, Mr. Speaker, is a point which would need to be decided and provided for in the new legislation.

The third point that needs to be taken into account, is the present state of affairs where relatives and so-called guardians of the woman are permitted to bring cases to court against the man. This may be right where the woman, or the girl, has no parents, but it is becoming increasingly clear that in many cases some of the girls who have parents and who have stable homes but live with relations, say, in Nairobi, or some other part of the country, have been exploited to the point that relatives bring up cases on their behalf, bringing them in as witnesses, and in some cases without the knowledge of their parents. Something needs to be done to ensure that the kind of exploitation, or obvious misuse or abuse of the Act, will not take place in the future. Everything possible should be done, except for cases where minors are involved, to remove this aspect of relations, whose relationship with a woman is sometimes very doubtful, being allowed to take up cases on behalf, or in the name of the girl or woman concerned. The parents have a right in these matters and they should be recognized by law; but to what extent relations should be recognized, and how distant that relationship should be, is a matter that must be properly defined, because it can lead—and it has, in fact, in some cases, led—to serious doubts being expressed in the application of the law.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

The fourth point, Mr. Speaker, is on the nature and the size of the award that is given by the courts. In most cases we find that the precedent has been created in the courts today to award costs in terms of monthly payments. You find a person who is committed by the courts to pay, say, Sh. 100 or Sh. 60 per month for the next 16 years. Now, Mr. Speaker, there are two weaknesses in this approach. The first one is that the value of money cannot remain the same for the next 16 years. Therefore, what is Sh. 60 today would, in fact, perhaps be Sh. 30 in 16 years' time. This is not provided for in the law. The second point is that it is very doubtful that there is equity in providing for this kind of cost payment where we cannot be assured that the person concerned will have steady employment or source of income for the next 16 years. If a person fails to continue in employment during this period, he runs into difficulties and maybe he defaults; and when he defaults, then he is held in contempt of court. This is an aspect which needs to be gone into.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are all anxious to provide for the children but it must be, I think recognized, that we must not have a situation in which a person, for example, who has his own family, maybe with six children of his own, has to pay more from his salary for a child—for this kind of child—than he has left to use for his own children. This creates the situation where the illegitimate child is much better off than children who are born in natural homes. That is a weakness in the Act which needs to be put right. We should be concerned with protecting the children and we should try to find an arrangement, or a new provision, which will cover this particular aspect of the situation.

Now, Sir, my other point is the question of jurisdiction. At the moment most of these cases are left to what used to be the African courts and what today are lay-magistrates' courts. It is, I think, for consideration whether this is the right jurisdiction for all these types of cases. There are, I think, good arguments for considering putting these kind of cases under different jurisdiction, perhaps a higher jurisdiction so that some of the legal and technical questions can be dealt with, perhaps, more effectively and more properly.

Mr. Speaker, these various points that I have made are some of the reasons why one would feel justified that the Act, as it exists in its present form, needs to be repealed or, at any rate, needs to be very drastically amended.

Now, it is, Mr. Speaker, as I have said, necessary, in thinking about replacing the Act—as I have already indicated there is, in my view, a sense of urgency in bringing us immediately a new Act to replace this one, and we must think of the children. In trying to do this I have, I hope, indicated the lines of thought which we might bring into the new Act on which we are now working.

Mr. Speaker, we should look at some of the traditional approaches to the problems of children in this type of situation. We must recognize that although the urban population is articulate, and although we might be discussing this very much with the influence of what happens in Nairobi in our minds, that only 8 per cent of our population live in the urban areas; the majority are still in the rural areas. In the new Act it is necessary to take this fact seriously into consideration. We should not merely aim at a law that is based on solving the problems in the context of urban conditions. In fact, what I would like to see done is to apply more of the traditional approach to this problem.

I am aware, Sir, that there are certain problems with regard to carrying on some of our traditional approaches to this problem. I am aware that there is a changing situation and that we cannot expect, for many years to come, families to take in children and look after them as they did in the past because of changing conditions. However, I feel that there is a possibility of modernizing some of our traditional approaches to fit into the problem. For example, the question of the custody of the child should be looked at more from the traditional point of view. If women who have had children insist on the custody of those children, then they must also accept the responsibility for those children; but if they are not willing to accept the responsibility of those children, then they must not insist on the custody of the children.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. M'boya): I hope, Sir, that this applause means that the hon. Members are agreeing that in the new Act, in every case where a woman files—

An hon. Member: Which Act?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. M'boya): Which is coming—the men responsible will be prepared—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Minister has been talking of a new Act just now. Yesterday when the Mover moved this Bill, he never mentioned anything like a new Act; now do we take the words of the present Member speaking or do we take the words of the Mover of the Bill?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Our Constitution provides for collective responsibility of Ministers, which means that the whole of Government accepts responsibility for anything which any Minister says on matters of policy.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of your ruling, and in view of the fact that there is collective responsibility on the part of our Ministers, what happens when one Minister gives the House an assumption on one given issue and then another Minister gives us a definition? What happens? He defines it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! If there is any apparent conflict between Ministers as to the policy of Government, no doubt it will be ironed out before the end of the debate.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I thought you gave a ruling some time ago in this House that it is not in order for somebody to anticipate debate on a Bill to come; is it in order for the Member now speaking to anticipate the debate on a Bill to come?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What Mr. Shikuku is referring to is anticipating a debate which is going to occur in the immediate future because of notice of Motion already given. We have no Bill yet even published which would be anticipated in this debate.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would have thought that the hon. Members would at least have been appreciative of one point, or two, one is that it is necessary, and I think the House would require it, that when the Bill comes before the House for the repeal of an Act they should have full reasons why this is being done and when we know there are so many questions about what happens next, they should be given every opportunity to know what our thinking is on what happens next. That is all I am trying to do.

The Attorney-General in his speech yesterday did not say anything which is in conflict with what I have said. In fact, I am reaffirming some of the forward thinking which has been made by Government since yesterday, and which we are defining more quickly today.

Mr. Speaker, another reason is that it would help us greatly to have the reactions of both the House and the public on some of the ideas we are putting forward so that on this very sensitive question when we come up finally with the draft new Bill we will have had at least this advantage of having the reactions of the Members of this House and of the public in general. I do not feel that is encroaching on the rights of the Members in any sense at all.

Mr. Speaker, I had just made the point that this question of the traditional approach needs to be injected into any new measure which we bring in the future.

The second point, which is the weakness at present, Mr. Speaker, is that there seems to be no real agency which is responsible for ensuring that the children in this case are taken care of and looked after as provided for in the award of the court. In other words, all that happens is that the court says the man will pay Sh. 60, but it seems to stop there. There is need, quite obviously, where an award is made and in our future approach, we feel the award should be made jointly in respect of the woman as well as the man. In respect of the woman if she is working and has means of her own then she too should make a contribution. We should not stop there. We should go further to ensure that the money provided for is actually applied in looking after the child. One of the main criticisms of the present Act, and which the Members here have voiced from time to time, is that there is now doubt whether the money is actually used for the child and not for the mother. It is necessary to devise a system by which we can be sure that the money will be used for the child, and maybe here we need to think of a new agency which would be given not only the responsibility, but also the powers if necessary, to ensure that this is done, of inspection.

Mr. ole Kipury: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as the Minister is continuing to talk about a Bill which he anticipates will come, am I in order not to speak about this unless he can lay it on the Table? This is by way of substantiation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is quite in order for the hon. Member to describe to the House some future legislation which the Government has in mind. He cannot table something which is not yet on paper.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, I do not understand the problem of some of the hon. Members.

Hon. Members: Show us the new Bill!

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): When the hon. Members have finished shouting I will continue.

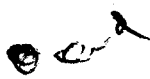

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, now the Minister has made this very important point of another Bill coming to replace this one, would I be in order to move that the debate on this Bill be adjourned until another Bill has been published?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. That particular kind of Motion cannot be raised as a point of order. It can be put forward by any hon. Member who has the Floor in the ordinary course of debate. If an hon. Member, after hearing Mr. Mboya, catches my eye and feels like moving that Motion, it will be in order for him to do so.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, in conclusion I would like to take this opportunity firstly to express appreciation to many members of the public who I know are very much concerned with some of the social problems in our society. Especially, those who I know are concerned with the problems of children. It is not often recognized, or realized, how many people spend so much time, and even some of their own money, in support of some of the needy children in our society. What needs to be said, having said this about our appreciation of what they have done, is the amount of work there is to be done in this field, and the need there is for even more support from members of the public, and from hon. Members of this House.

The organizations which are involved with the care of children require the support of all of us. I think if more of us could take a personal interest it would go a long way to meet the very critical problems which we are faced with. This is not the kind of problem which can always be met exclusively from Government sources, or by Government legislation and supervision. It has to devolve on society. I sincerely hope, Mr. Speaker, that hon. Members will at least give a little bit of their time and thought to the problems of children, not only here in Nairobi, but even in the rural areas where there are many new problems coming up.

Mr. Speaker, I have tried to indicate to hon. Members the thinking we have and I do this essentially because I do not want people to be left with the impression that Government has merely decided to repeal this Act and have no ideas on what should be done or that they have ignored the existence of a problem. A problem does exist and we have to accept that we will need to do something, and do it pretty soon, to take care of the new problem after the Act is repealed. I can only assure the House that in this we will act with all speed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a very few words on this Bill, because hon. Members have, I think, supported the idea of repealing this Bill.

When the Bill was first introduced, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was intended to take care of the children, but I am afraid that this Bill, and the application of it, have been a little abused. A lot of the money decided on in courts to support and care for the children has not been spent on the children. It has been spent on other things by the mothers, or the women, and this has been very disturbing to my Ministry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must be very specific in these matters because I am responsible partly for the care of the children. There are some women, or girls, who after getting children in this way have not looked after the children well, although they have been given some money through decisions from the court and so on. In some cases I have known of children sent home to their grandmothers, and the mothers have stayed away from the children looking for more men and not caring for the children. I think this is a very serious thing. I think Members here should think about the welfare of the child, and this is why we place a great deal of importance on the fact that whatever money is made available, through the court, should be spent on the children.

I have known some women who have too many boy friends, and they try to get deductions from various boy friends, and this totals up to quite a bit of money. All this money does not go to the child or the children. The money is spent by the woman in looking for more boy friends. I think this is a very serious position, because when the mother produces a child she must be responsible enough to look after the child. She cannot produce a child and leave the child in the cold without any care, and be selfish and not really give the food which is required by the child, or shelter or clothes which are required by the child.

The Members should not take this matter very lightly. This is a very serious matter, and my Ministry takes this matter very seriously indeed. It is a question which concerns the looking after of the children. It is a question which is a matter of life and death for young children who must have somebody to look after them. I am very glad that my colleague, the Minister who has just sat down, has congratulated, and shown gratitude on behalf of the Government, the various organizations which have assisted us in the welfare of the children. I would like to endorse this very strongly because there are many generous organizations which are concerned with the welfare of the children in the country who have come in to help us. I would like to thank them and show, on behalf of the Government, that the Kenya Government is very grateful.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the provisions of this Bill have been abused, I think it is right that the Bill should be repealed. I think another point should be considered. The whole problem, Mr. Speaker, is becoming bigger and bigger every day. The problem of getting these children is the different ways in which we get them. I think it is becoming bigger and bigger because married men are getting children, in many cases, outside wedlock. It is getting bigger and bigger because married women also are doing so. It is getting bigger and bigger because bachelors and spinsters are out doing the same thing; therefore, I would like to draw the attention of the Members of this House to the fact that this problem should not be taken lightly, but should be taken as a serious problem, and it should not be taken as a small problem as it is becoming bigger and bigger every day and every week in the country. Well, I cannot say who is doing it, but I can see the children. Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, there must be a consideration of a new law which, in the due course, will look after the welfare of the child. There must also be a general recognition by the people in the country of their responsibility in looking after such children. My Ministry does not have sufficient accommodation in the different places where Government Institutions are situated to look after these children, and it would indeed be improper for us—unless they are very, very needy cases. Otherwise, those persons who produce the children must always be responsible for the children. If people produce children, they must be responsible for looking after those children, and this must be the policy on which the new legislation must be based. If one produces a child, he must be responsible for the child because he cannot produce a child and expect Government to look after the child. That is what the principle will have to be based on. If you have a child, it is yours and you have to look after the child and Government will make certain that there is sufficient compulsion for the people to look after their children.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our modern Kenya must produce another law which will cater for the welfare of the child. The African tradition has to be modified in such way that it will fit in with the situation in the towns, the urban areas, and also fit in with situation in the rural areas because African tradition, as practised in the past, cannot be suitable because of the progress and advancement that our people have made, but I think if it is modified it could be applicable in many forms. Now, there are problems, Mr. Speaker, Sir—of course, if we were an ideal society we would not worry because we would think that things could go on very well without any bother, but unfortunately or fortunately we are not an ideal society—since things went wrong at the garden of Eden between Adam and Eve, we must begin to think along these lines in practical terms.

The second point is the problem of the implementation of this Act. Whichever way we try to do this thing, we start a new social problem. Some people say that the child must belong to the father because it is the African tradition. If you give the child to the father automatically, you will start rows with the other family or the other home, because in these modern days no modern wife will like to keep a child of another wife. Therefore, this is another problem; you may ignore it but you cannot forget it when it is a realistic social problem in the country. Therefore, ways must be considered very carefully so that we do not attempt to solve one social problem and then start many other social problems, and this is why a careful consideration must be given. Some people might say the child should belong to the mother automatically. Again you create another problem because there are so many girls who are mothers who cannot look after their children. They get children, either unfortunately, accidentally, willingly or unwillingly, but they cannot look after the children. Therefore, we have to consider very carefully what to do in such circumstances so that the child's welfare is looked after and so safeguard the child's future.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I have been listening very attentively to the speech being delivered by the Minister, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the course of his speech he mentioned that by repealing this Act we are going to solve one social problem, and after solving that social problem we are going to create many more social problems. Could the Minister, Mr. Speaker, Sir, substantiate on what he means by saying that we are going—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. hon. Members must distinguish between substantiation of statement of fact and expressions of opinion. I thought they did by now.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): (Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not say what the hon. Member is saying. I have indeed agreed with the repeal of the Act but I am pointing out that when you attempt to solve one social problem you may create two other social problems. Therefore, the need is for the Government to consider whatever new ideas they may have to formulate, the future pattern we should take. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in my view the hon. Member has not been listening very carefully. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think generally the child should belong to the father. I think generally, the child should belong to the father for this is a basic African tradition which will have to be considered very carefully in the new pattern.

Secondly, the child must be looked after by both people, the two people who have brought the child into the world—you might find that the father is incapable of looking after the child but the mother is also wealthy and can look after the child—even in such a case the mother and father must assist because they are both responsible. The old African tradition of thinking, that it is only the father who is wrong and the girl is always right—that tradition must go. The girl must also be brought in to be responsible enough and share the responsibilities of whatever pleasures or difficulties that might arise afterwards.

Thirdly, I think if there is to be any punishment on the part of the man, the punishment must be very light, very light—a lump sum of money, I think punishing the man for 16 years is too cruel, and therefore, we shall have to think of providing something which will be brief in a lump sum form—when I say a lump sum, I do not mean five head of cattle, so many thousands shillings or so many thousands rupees as a lump sum but something light which can be experienced, for a short time because this is how African tradition used to deal with this sort of thing. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of asking me which “which African custom——” If you belong to one of the tribes in Kenya, surely you must know this; and if you are a student of social studies, you must know it. I am sure that the hon. Member is aware of a custom which is being used in connexion with this matter. For example, in some African tribes, when something like this happened, there was a fine of three head of cattle and two calabashes of pombe. This settled the whole matter, and everything was forgotten—and the child was given to the father.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I want to emphasize that, since we have modern times, the question of an agency which will specifically look after the welfare of the child is important and this will have to be borne in mind. The question of protecting the child is also very important because we must protect the child. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that we have a big social problem in this matter. I know that many people, have been saying that they—or, perhaps, women—do not want the Act to be repealed. I would like to assure, not only women but the whole country that we are very aware of what should be done to suit Kenya. We are going to introduce a pattern in future which, we hope, will make provisions for both sides to be consulted; women and men alike. The whole country will be consulted to find out a way which will be convenient for our country.

I would like to end by saying that if we are all careful, and take the right responsibility in this matter, the more we reduce cases of this kind, through carefulness and regard of the need to have only the necessary children who will be looked after properly, the more we shall avoid troubles of this kind. However, I am fully aware of the fact that we are human beings and that we are bound to face these social problems. We cater for them. Despite these facts, the repeal of this Act should not be taken as reflecting the Government's ignorance of what is needed in our country, or Government's disinterest in what should be done to help correct this problem. We are going ahead to do this. One Member has asked whether we shall be quick enough in doing so. In fact, I am in the middle of drafting the ideas. I am putting them together, and after that I shall be able to go to my colleague, the Attorney-General, so that we may put these ideas into something effective. We shall have this done as quickly as possible so that it may replace the present Act and cater for the situation as required.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to assure the House that everything is under control.

Mr. Mathenge: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you very much for this opportunity.

I think that somebody is begging the question, and that somebody is the Minister for Social Services and the Minister for Economic Planning. However, Mr. Speaker, it is very rare that we do get an opportunity to debate a Bill in this House that touches almost every individual citizen of this country—this Bill is one of them.

I was glad to note, when I was down in the library, that you yourself, as far back as 1932—before I was born—were interested in drafting laws dealing with children born out of wedlock. You had this interest up to the time when this Affiliation Act was passed in 1959, because you thought it was right to regard these children, who were also human beings, like others.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is easy for us to come here and talk about those who are abusing this Act or those benefiting from it and so on. However, I think that we must go back so that the consideration of this Bill is transferred from this

[Mr. Mathenge]

House right to the people in the village where the mothers are living—mothers whose daughters are pregnant and mothers of the boys who have made the girls pregnant. In so doing, you will look at the mothers and the two offenders. Then look at the children who are born out of wedlock. Mr. Speaker, you cannot discuss this kind of matter in a loose manner: you must have charity when thinking about this matter; but this happens, and that is why a law may be passed that may create serious hardships and suffering for many people for a long time. You never know if you will be responsible for having done that. So, Mr. Speaker, I think there was hastiness in the Government to bring this Bill to repeal the Affiliation Act. We may share argument and we may understand arguments from both sides for repealing or changing it and so on, but I think there was haste and proper consideration had not been made. I believe it is not good for this House to pass a Bill like this one or repeal the present Act without very careful consideration first.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you were the Chairman of the Commission of Law on Succession. There is another Commission on the Law of Marriage and Divorce. We have read the reports of these commissions and the drafted legislation. It was necessary for commissions like these to go round the country to find out that people think before any legislation was made. It was equally necessary on a question like this one, to have a very careful study as was done to the previous ones.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point is that laws are made by man for himself but he should also, or the Legislature, not make laws for the purpose of just making a law. It must be for our own society that laws should be made. The society is very complex, Mr. Speaker. When this Bill was passed, the communities in this country at that time were not as integrated as they are now. They lived separately. Today, Sir, our experiments in nation-building brings us into changing circumstances every day. That is why laws must reflect the society to which they are applied. They cannot be absolute in themselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am trying to say here is that it was hasty to bring the repeal of this Act. I understood and very much supported some of the Members who said that the Act has been very much misused by girls, women, and so on—but, at the same time it is the children we are concerned with every Minister who stood up to speak spoke about the children—who are not getting any benefit from that Act. We are still insisting on them getting some benefit, but if we repeal this Act, if we decide today that we repeal this Act, then I am not certain that the Government has thought seriously about this matter, that they will bring the new legislation they are talking about as quickly as they said here they would. I would, therefore, ask the House to agree with me so that we may have a condition that we shall not repeal this Act until the Government has brought another one with which we shall replace the present one when it will be repealed. After this we shall be able to discuss this matter logically knowing what is going to happen.

MOTION

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBATE: THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

Mr. Mathenge: Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move formally that the debate on this question be adjourned until the new legislation regarding the care of unborn children is brought to the House so that we take both Bills together. I hope that will be within the two weeks that the Minister for Social Services spoke about.

I beg to move.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very grateful that you have given me the Floor of this House in order to say a few things in seconding the Motion for adjournment of this debate.

Mr. Speaker, one thing is clear.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Member for Butere speaks, we all respect him and listen to him; now he should also listen when other Members speak.

Mr. Speaker, one thing was clear when I listened to the two Ministers who spoke. The Minister for Economic Planning and the Minister for Social Services have indicated very, very clearly indeed that drafting of this Bill was done hurriedly. I am not underrating or underestimating the representative responsibilities of the Members here. All I am saying is that a lot of concern has been shown in the countryside by the religious organizations which we attack when talking here. They have expressed concern in that the repeal of this Act is too premature. It will be a good thing, for the just government of men and the welfare of society, the society which is composed of men and women—and the children too, in whom we are particularly interested—if repeal of this Act is postponed so that the Government can come in the normal way, after consulting the social organizations, the churches of different denominations, the social workers, and other people.

Mr. Speaker, may I say this: if this Government acted wisely, if it was never in a hurry, if it did things in the normal way, if it sought public opinion, then the course open would be to ask the people outside what they thought. Then the Government could then bring suggestions to the Kanu Parliamentary Group Meeting. At that time we could give our opinion and the opinion of the people, of the majority of our people who are in the countryside.

Mr. Speaker, last week, for example, there was a conference of officials of all the Kanu sub-branches in my constituency, comprised of three locations, and the general opinion was that they did not want, without any replacement, the repeal of this present law.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support my hon. friend, Mr. Mathenge, that this debate on the Bill, now before the House, be adjourned until the Government brings the new Bill to the Parliamentary Group Meeting, or holds discussions with the people connected with the various organizations to get in a smooth-running kind of law which will be in line with the traditions of this country.

I am sure Members will not lose anything by adjourning the debate on this Bill so that we can have normal consultations with our constituents, and other people concerned, in order that we have no conflict with the general public which we are here to serve.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I support the adjournment of the debate, now before the House, in the name of the Republic.

(Question proposed)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The question is just that: That the debate be now adjourned. Though Members have expressed that the debate should be adjourned until the new Bill comes in, that is the purpose of the debate, of the Motion, but not part of the Motion itself.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I stand—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Sir, it seems that today the eye of the Speaker has ignored this side. It looks as if everything is coming from that side. So may I—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! Mr. Mbogoh, please sit down.

You know very well by now that you cannot challenge the choice by the Speaker of speakers, and an experienced Member like you should not try to do that. After all, Mr. Makone was not really speaking from this side of the House. You should not try and get priority by rising on frivolous points of order. So do not do that again.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think you have dealt with that very quickly without first of all listening to me. I think it would have been fair if you had listened to me because I was merely praying that I be given a chance to speak, not ordering the Speaker to do anything. So you replied too quickly.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid that even your prayers are quite unnecessary.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I feel a bit disturbed by some hon. Members' remarks because when any Member of this House stands to speak he knows what he is speaking on.

Sir, in the first place, I had made up my mind to move the adjournment of this debate on the Affiliation Bill, but when the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services spoke I was fully convinced that the Government is going to bring a Bill to replace the very one which we are now repealing. Sir, we must take the Government in confidence. If the Government wants to play with this hon. House, then we will not allow that. Usually, however, when any Minister of the Government speaks for the Government, we take that very seriously. So I am convinced, Sir, that this is the reason why this Bill should be repealed, and in a few days to come we should have another Bill. If there is no Bill that is to come, then I am ready to bring a Motion to urge the Government—to demand actually—to bring a Bill here to this effect.

I am very convinced, Sir, that there is no need for adjourning the debate on this Bill, there is no need for this. If we are to take the Government seriously, there is no need for this. However, if this Government is merely flattering us in this very hon. House, then we are also grown up, we are reasonable and, hence, next time when they bring any request here we will reject it entirely.

Here I am giving the Government this one serious warning, and also supporting that debate on this Bill should continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to oppose the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Omweri: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move that the question be now put.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): The question of whether the debate should be adjourned or not is a very vital question because very much of it hinges on the question of the Bill itself. So we will allow, and the Speaker suggested the same thing, a little longer debate on this Motion for adjournment of the debate on this Bill, more than one would normally allow.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am totally opposed to the repeal of this Act on the grounds that I am going to give the House.

Sir, when other Members are speaking their minds, is it right for the hon. Member for Butere to keep on shouting and yet when he is speaking we do not interrupt him? It is high time, therefore, you controlled him.

I have grounds for objecting to the repeal of this Bill. We must not take it for granted that the Government will bring another Bill here for debate. It is normally the practice of this House that when the Attorney-General brings a Bill, and it has to be amended, that is the end of that. Where is this other one? This is just mere talking. We are told that Government will not incur any expenditure in the enactment of this other Bill; so, where is this other Bill?

Some of the Members of Parliament have taken interest in this matter, they have taken this Bill very seriously. It is my submission that the House should ask that there should be set up a Commission of Inquiry—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member seems to be speaking on the main Bill but not on the adjournment of the debate on the Bill.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think he is in order so far. He still has to give reasons for supporting or opposing an adjournment. Going very briefly into the merits of a Bill is all right, but not at length.

Mr. Munyasia: Sir, if that is the case, I feel it is my submission that this Bill be put off for six months—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! There is a difference there. What we are now doing is to debate the Motion now before the House, which is that the debate on the Bill be now adjourned. What you are trying to propose, Mr. Munyasia, is that the Bill be read a Second Time six months hence—which is, in fact, killing the Bill. That is a different matter.

Here you should be supporting or opposing the present Motion, which you have to do, but you are obviously supporting something different. You appear as though you are speaking against the Bill. If that is so, then I am afraid you are out of order, and Mr. Mbogoh is right.

Mr. Munyasia: You are right to correct me on this, Sir.

At this juncture, therefore, I think I support the adjournment of the debate on this Bill for the present, until it can be discussed further, either at the Parliamentary Group meeting or elsewhere.

So I reserve my consideration until the debate on this Bill is adjourned, when I will talk more about this.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think we have to clarify a few points. I would like to express the Government's position on this idea of adjourning the debate.

Sir, this House discusses one Bill at a time, normally, and even if the Government had two Bills ready at one time, the House would still only have to consider one at a time. The House cannot discuss two Bills concurrently. This is so because one Bill has to come first and the other, and that is why Government is not wrong in bringing one Bill here to us to dispose of first before it brings the second Bill.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Minister not misleading the House, seriously speaking, that this House has never discussed the repeal of a law and replacement by another at the same time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Makone is right, in fact. There are many times when a new Bill is introduced and at the end of the Bill you find a clause which says that the Bill so-and-so or such-and-such is hereby repealed.

While Mr. Ngala is entitled to make the debating point, for what it is worth, Mr. Makone is right, that there is nothing in Standing Orders forbidding us having a new Bill and repealing the previous or existing statute one at the end of it.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was making the point that Government has deemed it right that we should have one Bill at a time and, therefore, we should repeal this Bill. I think it is important that the weaknesses of this Bill, which we are now seeking to kill, should be fully explained to the House. Although we could have a situation, like the one you have referred to, Sir, these two issues are so important that they could not just be explained by a reference at the bottom of one Bill. It is for this reason that we thought there should be a full explanation as to why we repeal this Bill. Then we should have a second Bill to come here in its own time and in its own terms, a Bill in which we will explain fully the new pattern for the future.

If the Members are, in fact, saying that Government should indicate their ideas and suggestions for the future, the Government has already done so. I would like to appeal to the House to realize that when the Ministers say that this is what the Government is going to do, or is thinking of doing, and it will come to the House without any delay, we seriously mean it. If we delay, it is open to Members of this House to move whatever they want to move. However, we see that if we repeal this Bill, there will be a gap, a vacuum, on a very urgent matter. Therefore, we would like to make sure that we have given the idea.

The hon. Munyasia has said that perhaps it is good to have these ideas discussed first, as to what Government thinks, and so on. I have told the House that we are in fact now drafting and putting the ideas forward. If the hon. Member has a contribution to make and wants to give me some ideas, he is quite welcome to come to me and do so, and we shall incorporate those ideas in the draft before the Bill is brought here.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we shall not delay, and we shall not waste time over these important issues. In fact, if the House allowed us to repeal this now, it would mean going faster to the second step.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is very encouraging to the Government— It has been clear to the Government that Members are not taking this question lightly, they are taking it very seriously. We in the Government do not think there is any reason why there should be fear of delay because we understand the seriousness of the matter. Whatever ideas are to be given have already been given to this House, and I hope the House will understand the Government and allow it to repeal this to enable it to put forward the second step.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it seems that by now everybody has decided what to do and what not to do. Since the Government has already responded to the Motion, I wish to move that the question of the adjournment be now put.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order; I think I will have two more speakers, and then I will agree to put the closure.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am one of those Members who strictly oppose the adjournment of this Motion. Some hon. Members here have been saying that the debate on the Bill should be adjourned to allow us to form a commission which will go outside and inquire into public opinion. However, my question is this: when the Affiliation Bill was brought before the House, during the colonial days, was there any commission?

Hon. Members: No, not at all.

Mr. Mwamzandi: There was no commission. Our Government has seen fit to repeal this Bill simply because it does not suit our customs.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would be prepared to take all the blame from my constituents, and decide this Bill without consulting them. In fact, I would like this Bill to be repealed today. The Affiliation Act has discouraged our girls in this country from getting married.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, now that the Member is making a very important contribution to this Bill, is it in order for the hon. Karungaru, and others over there, to make a hell of a noise? Would you bring them to order?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think they are quiet now. Carry on, Mr. Mwamzandi.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, we want the immediate repeal of this Bill, because of the fact that our girls have been encouraged to go out with other people, taking into account—

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Mwamzandi: —that whatever happens, they are going to earn some money from the courts. We have seen this. Perhaps some hon. Members here have daughters who earn money from the courts as a result of this Affiliation Act, and that is why they are making such a noise.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Mwamzandi. You must withdraw that. That is a very improper and serious imputation on the motives of hon. Members, to say that they have daughters who are earning money as a result of this Bill and therefore they are opposing its repeal. Please withdraw.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I withdraw that, but—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, the House is in chaos. We can hardly hear the speaker even. It comes from that side.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Shikuku, you are contributing to it by standing up. Do not worry, I will look after it. Carry on Mr. Mwamzandi.

Mr. Mwamzandi: I made that remark simply because I thought it would make some hon. Members to keep quiet. Anyway, I have withdrawn it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have heard what some hon. Members, particularly those who represent towns or cities, have said on this Bill, because they are worried about their constituents. This Bill works mainly in cities and towns, and that is why girls from the reserves are coming into towns. We want to discourage this habit of prostitution. Hon. Members can check and find out that there is not a single affiliation case in this country from a poor man, from a man who does not have anything—affiliation cases mainly come from those people who have a lot of money, and the girls are very clever in choosing whom they will take to court.

Mr. Gikunju: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, could the hon. Member speaking substantiate that affiliation orders—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): There is too much talking.

Mr. Gikunju: —that affiliation orders do not come from poor people, they just come from rich people. Can he substantiate that?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am afraid this is not the type of allegation which requires substantiation. It is a matter of opinion as to who is rich and who is poor, and what class of people this Affiliation Act applies to most. It is not the type of allegation which requires substantiation.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker. We want to discourage prostitution, and we want to repeal this Act immediately. I am not going to worry the Government and say they must bring another Act to replace this one. I do not want any Act. If a girl conceives an illegitimate child, then she must be dealt with according to customary law, not through an Act like this.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have had enough on this adjournment Motion, and it looks as if we are wasting our time. Can the question now be put so that we may know the position, because otherwise we will waste a lot of time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): We are not wasting time.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to support the adjournment of this Bill.

Hon. Members: No, no.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: No amount of shouting will deter me from saying what I want to say.

Hon. Members: Shame, shame.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: I want to say that obviously, this has shown this afternoon that the Government was not decided on this repeal. This has been quite obvious, because when the Attorney-General moved the repeal, he never raised the points which have been raised by the Minister for Economic Planning and Development or the Minister for Social Services. This shows obviously that the Government is having second thoughts on this repeal.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is as well that the Government is having second thoughts on this repeal, because although Members were laughing yesterday, there are various organizations which have been trying to put forward suggestions on this repeal, such as the Christian Council of Kenya and others, and Members of this House should consider the opinions of such organizations very seriously.

It is unfortunate that our Government, at this late hour, is bringing a controversial repeal like this when we are just about to face an election.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Although the Members might shout "Question", we must not think about a few people in the towns, but we must consider the opinion of the people we represent. I do not know how many Members went home over the weekend and consulted their electors on this Bill. The Members shouting might end up making this House look as if it were un-Christian. Even if Members keep shouting, I said that nothing would deter me from saying what I wanted to say.

Hon. Members: Carry on.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: It is a known fact—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want your ruling as to whether the statement made by the hon. Member that Members shouting make this House seem un-Christian. In fact, what he is saying is that by wanting to repeal this Bill, the House is being un-Christian. Is he not imputing bad motives to the Attorney-General and the Ministers who have brought this Bill?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I think that is carrying the words "imputing" and "improper motives" too far. I do not really know what the word "un-Christian" means, but I do not think we should worry ourselves too much about it. I think the right answer would be to have a little less shouting, and then he can be heard more clearly and is allowed to make his points.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the hon. Chief Whip is saying that Christianity has nothing to do with it. That might be the case, but I am only trying to say why I support the adjournment until we think again, because the Government has shown that it is having second thought. Therefore, the Members also should start thinking again. The basis on which Members are urging this repeal is that the Act has been abused. If we are to follow that line of argument, that every time an Act is abused we just scrap it, we would finish up with very few Acts. This is not the only Act which has been abused. Many others have been abused, but when an Act is abused it should be amended, it should not be scrapped. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have various things like public orders or something like that which have been abused by administrative orders or something else—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Are you speaking for the adjournment of the debate or suggesting that the Bill should be amended?

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: For the adjournment.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I thought you were now asking for an amendment of this Act.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: No.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Therefore, you must make yourself clear. Carry on.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, my line of argument is this: We should repeal this Act very quickly. That is all the hon. Members are saying. My argument is that we should not, and that we should have second thoughts and oppose what is proposed by the Government. We should have second thoughts because the argument to repeal it quickly is based on that it has been abused, and I say that if every time an Act was abused we started repealing it, then we would start scrapping almost all our Acts, because many of them have been abused many times and all we do is to amend, and maybe, by adjourning the debate, and I myself having second thoughts, will end up in amending and not repealing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, like the previous Members who spoke, I say hon. Members are speaking about various people who have abused this Act, so, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want any explanation because I know the facts. All that I am saying is that I support the adjournment of the debate for the time being, and the reason, as I said, the main reason, although I am actually against repeal of the Bill, because, obviously, from what the two Ministers have said, it is clear that the Government itself is having second thoughts on this repeal.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You have made that point.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Well, Mr. Speaker, I am repeating it because various Members are rising to give me more information, but let me expand on that point, why I support the adjournment. This is because the specialized bodies which have advanced several opinions will be consulted.

Hon. Members: Why?

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Is the hon. Member speaking now not repeating what he has said already, about such specialized bodies, say like churches and so on, a few minutes ago?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It means he is tending to repeat himself, but if he does not stick to the point, I will ask him to sit down. Do not repeat yourself, Mr. Kaunyangi. This is a very simple Motion, and the question is whether the debate be now adjourned or not. We do not have to go too much into the merits of the Bill, and I say one can briefly touch on it in argument for or against the adjournment. We do not have to go through it in great detail. You have in fact, already made your points I think, but there is no need to repeat them again because many other persons would like to speak. If the Motion of debate is not going to be adjourned, then we might as well proceed with the debate. We do not want to spend too much time on the Motion to adjourn the debate.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Members standing on points of order are only making me take longer, and so long as I have the Floor, and so long as I am relevant to the Motion, I will keep on speaking.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, even if the hon. Members keep interrupting me until the end of the day, I will keep making my points. What I meant to say Mr. Deputy Speaker—I mentioned various organizations but I never said why I was mentioning them because they kept interrupting me, and if the interruptions continue, and as you are wasting time, I will only continue talking, Mr. Deputy Speaker. All that I am saying is this—

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. arap Kerich): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like the question put now.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think we are reaching the stage where there are no new points coming up in the Motion. I will put the question.

(Question, that the question be now put, put and agreed to)

(Question of the adjournment of debate put and negated)

(Resumption of debate on original Motion for Second Reading of Bill)

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am very glad to have the opportunity to make a few points on this Bill. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I find that some people in this House—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Would you please instruct the new Member to refer to us as hon. Members.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, he has corrected himself before this.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I understand that some of the hon. Members have been trying to escape or trying to stop the repeal of this Bill in this House, but I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is high time that the Bill or the law was repealed, because according to African customary laws, we have many points in African customs and particularly, in Luo customs, as I am a Luo, and not only for Luos. Even in Luhyas, and Kalenjins, this particular law was against our wishes and our peoples' wishes. Mr. Deputy Speaker, at this juncture, it is time that the laws made during the colonial days, though the hon. President of the Opposition and the hon. Ngala were in the House, people are doubting whether these were passed with votes or with majority in the House or they were very few, and the laws were passed without their willingness, or without their consent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think it is high time that this law is repealed and allow our customary laws in every part of the country to continue and if there is any change, this change should come in the way that the Africans of this Republic are willing to follow, instead of putting something into the people which they are not for. Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I remember, there are people in our country, and particularly in Kikuyuland, that we find in Makadara and Kandara courts. Many people are being accused there. Many people are being brought before the courts because these women—many of them are after money, not because they were divorced unwillingly, but some of them try to run away or to divorce themselves in order to get more money, and after they have got this money, all the judgment is made in the courts, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you will find a woman who is being paid is not feeding the child. She is also not looking after the child; she is only after money; and for example, Mr. Deputy Speaker, one, I understand who is being paid a quarter of the salary of a certain person in our country is abroad in school and yet the money is being paid to her.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think if such a law was to suit our country, the money being paid to these women or to these prostitutes should be paid directly to Government and Government should take care of all the children who have no fathers and no proper mothers. In African laws or customs we find that the children belong to the fathers, unlike in today's Acts where you find a woman claiming that the children belong to her. Instead of feeding them, or taking care of them, you find that she is running here and there trying to get the more money. Again, when she has got the money, she does not take care of the child.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, in our country, if there is a law or a Bill to come, I ask the Attorney-General that the law which is to be brought in this House should also cater for some of the hon. Members, and other members of this Republic, who earn fat salaries and remain bachelors for years and years while our children are starving. We cannot allow this in an African society. We have to see that this starts with hon. Members, Ministers and other people who are earning fat salaries in this country, who are unmarried and yet they are hunting for women. These are the people who encourage the prostitutes in the country.

Mr. Speaker, in African customary law there is no man or woman who is allowed to go about unmarried, and that was shameful to a State or to a society. We would like to see that our Government puts a law that will provide in some of its sections that a grown-up person should marry. In this House, where many people earn fat salaries, some have even big businesses, you find who are unmarried, we would like to know where their money goes. At the same time, Sir, it is high time that we found that unmarried women should also report to the Government as to why they are not married. I find that you become a leader, but we find that some of our Ministers, tomorrow they may be presidents of the Republic and things—

An hon. Member: You may, too.

Mr. Sijeyo: I am married and I have not only one wife.

Hon. Members: How many?

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, it is high time that our Government encouraged those people with enough money and food to feed those who starve in this our great country. If they do not want to marry, their salaries should be reduced to about three-quarters and the rest should be paid to the Government to be used in feeding the children who are starving in this country.

Mr. Speaker, I find that the Attorney-General is happy and I am sure that next year he is going to have a honeymoon somewhere.

Mr. Speaker, it is also time that many Members feel that if there is a Bill coming on top of this, this Bill should be stopped from being passed. I want this Bill to be passed now and then later on, a Bill should be brought to stop men from remaining unmarried in our society, and it should also stop any women from going around hunting for men. This should especially apply to the men with big salaries because the ladies are very clever and they go hunting for the men with big salaries and with wealth. Those are the men they hunt for.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that the Bill that is to be brought in this House should also protect the younger girls in school. The young girls in school should also be protected because I am sure that people who refuse to marry, or those who pretend to be monogamists, are the ones who encourage all these evil things in this country.

Mr. Lubembe: Who are they?

Mr. Sijeyo: You know them, Mr. Senator.

Mr. Lubembe: Address the Chair.

Mr. Sijeyo: I am addressing the Chair, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, it is also time that a man in our society, who is to become a leader, should not go around hunting for school girls. This is a shame on our society. If you have to hunt for her, you have to marry her if she is accidentally pregnant. If you say that you are not responsible and wait to be taken to the Makadara court, when you are called there you should not refuse to go and say that you are a big man and you cannot go there. Why can you not marry her and come to a compromise before you are taken to the court?

Mr. Lubembe: That is what they are doing.

Mr. Sijeyo: Thank you very much, Mr. Senator, you are a good man.

Mr. Speaker, the next time the Attorney-General brings a Bill, not just a portion of it should be brought; we would like it to be put in a clear and convincing way so that when we study it we find the reasons for it as well as many other points. Mr. Speaker, because this Bill is vital and we know what we want to say about it, this is the reason why we should have the materials for it.

Mr. Speaker, in ending my speech, I feel very strongly that if this Bill is passed, the Government has to take care of the women floating about in Nairobi and see that they are registered and their children are registered—names and places—and the Government has to take care of their education and their lives. Also, Mr. Speaker, it is for the Government to bring us an Act that will enable Government to order persons who do not want to marry and persons who feel—

An hon. Member: You are repeating.

Mr. Sijeyo: You do not know what I am going to say and I am not repeating. I am merely saying that if they cannot marry, their salaries should be deducted to feed these starving children and their mothers.

With these few points, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this House is making one of the blackest marks in the history of its time by debating this important Bill this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it very clear right from the beginning that I am totally against the repeal of this Bill so that nobody misunderstands me, should I, maybe, forget to make this statement again during the course of my speech; everybody will have heard what my intention is.

Mr. Speaker, while we were debating the adjournment of the debate, the Government told us that they were contemplating, when this Bill has been repealed, to enact another one to take care of what the present one is doing. I can only say this: we have had, time and again, such promises from the Government that this is or that will be done, without having any results coming from the promises. One of the best examples of this are the Motions that we pass here every Friday. How many of them have been implemented? None.

Mr. Speaker, if the Government really want to repeal this Act, I think what it should have done is to publish this other Bill that they have in mind—even though it was said that we cannot debate the Bills simultaneously—so that we could at least see what the other Bill is talking about. However, just to accept the words which have been said here, after seeing the opposition which has been here against this Bill from outside, I think is very wrong.

Mr. Speaker, something is better than nothing. Some of our hon. Members have supported the Government in its intention of bringing this other

[Mr. Kago]

Bill. In other words, Mr. Speaker, all the hon. Members who have supported this move seem to agree that we should not leave these children out without any support of some sort or without, at least, any legal backing as far as they are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, I think that where the hon. Members who are supporting this Bill have gone wrong is to forget that we are not all that concerned about the mothers, so to speak—the ones that they are calling the prostitutes. We are interested in the children who have been brought into life not on their own mistake, and not, in many cases, on the mistakes of their mothers, but, in many cases, the mistakes of their fathers. Why should we be told that when I am a father of a girl and my girl happens to be made pregnant by someone, I should be held responsible for educating this child, for feeding this child and also for clothing this child? This is not my responsibility. This responsibility should fall on the person who was responsible for bringing this child to life.

Mr. Speaker, according to the African customs, what the Bill intends to enforce is that any child which is born, unless the mother is married, is left in the care of the father. This is very out of date and it is very wrong and, therefore, anything to promote this kind of thing should be totally opposed. We must move with the times. Economically speaking, we have our own families, our children, and we cannot, under any circumstances, be able to accommodate even one child that would be brought to us as an addition.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure that if we do not give any warning of this kind—knowing how many there are—we are going to harass so many of our young girls and we will end up in spoiling them.

I listened very attentively to my hon. old colleague from Nakuru speaking of how girls, especially in school, are being forced to leave school because of this kind of activity. We have quite a number of them despite the fact that we have this Act in operation. Supposing we did not have an Act of this kind, how many of these cases would we have at the moment? I am sure we would have them not in hundreds, but I should think in thousands.

An hon. Member: In millions.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, education has become a very expensive affair and after paying several thousand shillings yearly that the fathers are paying today to educate their children, they will be very unhappy if that investment is going to be disrupted because the girls cannot complete their education and be useful citizens of the country. I think this is wrong. That is why, Mr. Speaker, I would very strongly support the retention of this Act. If the Government thinks that there is something missing in it and wants to repeal it, let us have something, let us have something to take the place of this. When we have that something, then we can repeal it; but as long as it means that we are going to have a vacuum in these matters, I do not think we are going to achieve very much. Because of this, Mr. Speaker, and because Government has always spoken but it has not shown in words that it really wants to act, I oppose this. We still have time because if Government wants to have this drafted Bill published even tomorrow, we know they can do this because they have done it before. I am intending to move an amendment to this Motion. I say they have time to do this because we have, several times, been able to be supplied with Bills that have been drafted and printed, sometimes, within something like 12 hours. I can give an example of when we were debating about those Members who would cross the Floor without dissolving the Parliament.

If the Government really intends to take care of those children, they should bring a Bill here so that when we have seen what is contained in it we can then repeal this one. Because this is not there, as I have said, I am asking for the permission of the House to move an amendment to this Motion. The Motion being “that this Bill should be read a Second Time”. Mr. Speaker, I have given notice and this says I would like to see that this Bill is not read a Second Time now, but I would like to see it being read a Second Time six months from now.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like to move that the word “now” be deleted from the Motion and in place thereof we should substitute the words “be read six months from today”. With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you seconding, Mr. Munyasia?

Mr. Kago: Mr. Wariithi is seconding.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid Mr. Munyasia caught my eye. Mr. Wariithi has in any case spoken in the debate. This is a Motion to reject the Bill for the time being, and he could not speak again, I am afraid.

Mr. Mwamzandi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. In view of the fact that a Motion to adjourn the debate on the Bill has been defeated, does it mean that any subsequent Motion—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, this is quite different. We have, I know, had a Motion for the adjournment of the debate, which has been defeated. This is a Motion for the amendment of the original question, that the Bill should now be read a Second Time. The effect of it, if it is carried, is that the Bill cannot be touched again for six months, and normally that means the end of the Bill.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if an hon. Member speaks on this Motion now on the Bill being read a Second Time six months hence, and if it is defeated, has he the right to speak again on the main Bill?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, this is part of the debate on the main Bill. When I propose the question of the amendment, I will say we will regard it as being combined with debate on the main question. In effect, it is a sort of negative.

Mr. Munyasia: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this time to support the Motion—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance here. Only a few minutes ago hon. Munyasia was speaking on this same Motion, the Motion on adjournment of the debate, and I do not know whether he is allowed to speak again, or if it cuts him out automatically.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was not here at the time but I assume Mr. Munyasia was speaking on the Motion for adjournment of the debate. It is in order for him to speak on the main question of the debate because, presumably, only the matter of adjournment was discussed then.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, supposing this Motion is passed, that the Bill is to be read six months hence, in the intermediary stage, could the Government introduce another Bill, a new one, or will they have to wait until the six months have expired?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If this was carried, it would be open to Government to introduce another Bill, other than the Repeal of the Affiliation Act, of course, at any time. It would also be open to the House, with the permission of the Speaker, to consider revocation of today's resolution if good grounds were shown, such as the appearance of another Bill which included repeal of this Bill.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, why I am sending this Motion of deferring the Bill for six months is because I feel it is wrong to repeal the Bill and leave us in a vacuum.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have taken a keen interest in this Bill and there are some elements which must be considered, and the public must be made aware of these. Mr. Speaker, Sir, you find when a Motion of this kind is brought there must be something following to replace it. This today, Mr. Speaker, is an exception and this is why we are moving a Motion for deferring it for six months, until the Government thinks twice.

Mr. Shikuku: Have you thought twice?

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, the Member for Butere is asking me if I have thought twice. Yes, I have.

Mr. Speaker, you will remember that the Member for Butere has sometimes claimed to be the president of the poor. Today is an exception, and I am wondering what he has to say. He has no interest in the public. We are talking about the care of the child and ignoring the mother. There are two aspects to be considered, Mr. Speaker, Sir. We are concerned with the welfare of the child, but how does a child come on earth? It is because of two people coming together through willingness; there is no force. Therefore, they should both care for the child. According to traditional customs, some Members expressed the opinion that the father should take care of the child. This may apply to some tribes, but according to the Akamba customary law the man does not accept the child. The mother accepts the child, and if you love the child, then you also love the mother. We differ from the Abaluhya and Luo, and the Kikuyu the same. The child is left in the custody of the mother and not the father.

According to the new proposed law, which the Government is now trying to bring, I do not know how this will work because we differ traditionally.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am pressing for a commission of inquiry to be set up to inquire into details as to whether or not some Members of Parliament are concerned with this Bill. This is the first point. The second point is whether the members of the public and the civil servants are not concerned with this Bill. This is very important. Mr. Speaker, Sir, for your information, some Members are shouting why? There is no point, Mr. Speaker. I wanted the Attorney-General but he is not here. If you go to Doctor Barnardo's Home, or Edelvale Home or the Starehe Boys Centre, the House would like to know who are the fathers of those neglected children? They must have fathers.

An hon. Member: Some of them are Members.

Mr. Munyasia: Some of them, Mr. Speaker, are Members of this Parliament.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has categorically stated that some of the Members of this House are the fathers of those children in Edelvale Home and Starehe Centre and other such places; may I demand substantiation, Sir?

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, I would like your guidance here. The hon. Members of the House, if I mention some names here, will surely feel ashamed of themselves. This is serious.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You must substantiate what you said.

Mr. Munyasia: For the information of the hon. House I will quote two or three names of Members of Parliament who have affiliation orders against them. The first one is the hon. Asiba—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I did not catch what you said.

Mr. Munyasia: Hon. Asiba has an affiliation order against him, the second one with an affiliation order against him is hon. Ochwada. Mr. Speaker, I think these two are enough. There are many more but I do not want to quote the list. If you could give me a day, then I could bring you a list, and that is why I do not want to ashame the House. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is serious issue, and we appear to be taking it very lightly—

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it not out of order for the hon. Member to mention the names of two Members who are not here to defend themselves? I believe if they were here they would object to what he says.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. If what the hon. Member says it true, he is not prevented from saying it merely because the person concerned is not here, although it may be unfortunate that the person concerned is not here. No doubt, the person concerned will read what has been said and will challenge it if it is untrue.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it strictly an Act of Affiliation where somebody divorces his wife and is forced by a certain law, I do not know if it is the one in question, to keep the children, because one of the gentlemen he has mentioned was married and has been divorced? So, does having children in such a case come within the meaning of affiliation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think Mr. Makone is quite right, that the implication of what Mr. Munyasia said originally and what he was asked to substantiate, was that some Members of Parliament are the fathers of illegitimate children in Dr. Barnardo's homes. One of the Members you have mentioned is the legitimate father I think. So that is not relevant. The other Member you referred to is the father of an illegitimate child.

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could we ask the hon. Member who has given the names of two hon. Members to substantiate how he knows about the cases which he is referring to?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He can be asked that.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know why the Members are worried. I said earlier on, Mr. Speaker, that if you wanted, and the House demands, I will bring you a list tomorrow, of those hon. Members plus some of the Ministers who are involved.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We certainly do not want any more. It is very unfortunate that you have brought this up at all, I think, Mr. Munyasia, because it is not really relevant to the debate. But you have, and now you are asked to substantiate, and part of your substantiation with regard to the one Member you have named, and I think it is quite enough because we do not want any more names, is how you know that particular Member is the father of an illegitimate child in Dr. Barnardo's Home.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would I be in order, through your guidance, if you would give me time to bring details.

An hon. Member: No. Give the details now.

Mr. Munyasia: I am asking the Speaker. You are not the Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members, we deal with points of order in silence. It is the Speaker who answers them.

No, Mr. Munyasia; it is not the sort of thing one can allow time for substantiation. You should never have suggested it without being quite certain of your facts; therefore, you can tell us now how you know. You cannot turn round and look for the evidence afterwards. You must tell us now or withdraw with a very humble apology.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I know, and why I am seeking your guidance, is that she is a Kikuyu girl and that is why I want the correct name. I am certain she is a Kikuyu girl, and the man who was responsible is hon. Asiba. The case was heard at Makadara. I wanted your ruling in order for me to obtain the correct name, because there are a lot of names Wanjiku, Njeri, Njoki and so on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! If hon. Members will continue to interrupt points of order, they will have to leave the Chamber. I cannot have this.

[The Speaker]

No, Mr. Munyasia, you are not being asked the name of the girl but how you know these things. What is your source of information.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the gentleman in question was sued in court and the case was heard and an affiliation order was issued against him.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): How do you know that?

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I took the trouble, as an elected Member, to go to the court at Makadara, and when the case was being heard I was there.

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance on more clarification because he has said he was in the court when the case was heard, but he did not say how he came to know that the child was in Dr. Barnardo's Home.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether the child is in Dr. Barnardo's Home, or Starehe Boys Centre or Edelvale Home, the fact remains that the gentleman in question was responsible and he is still paying under the affiliation order. The child may be at one of the three centres, but it is not my concern to know where the child went.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is all right, Mr. Munyasia. You can withdraw the part of your allegation which referred to Dr. Barnardo's Home. It is not a very important part of it. You have given your substantiation for the rest.

Mr. Munyasia: Thank you, Sir, and that part is withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one thing I am opposed to is that I would not like to see this Bill supporting the women. Although we are trying to see the child is maintained by the man, the woman should not be allowed to run away or go about with two men. She should be affiliated to one man. If, through her own will, she is in touch with a second person, then I think the second person should go without any affiliation order against him.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stick to the fact that the first person who interferes with a girl should be responsible for the maintenance of the child. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the fact remains that men from time to time have given themselves the credit of always being and pretend that they cannot go wrong. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not remember anywhere in history where a woman has seduced a man—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, would it not be in order for me to suggest the Member is being irrelevant? He merely gives examples and also repeats what was said on the Motion for adjourning the debate—he merely goes from one example to another, Mr. Speaker. Would I not be in order to ask you to direct that the Member is irrelevant and should sit down if he has no material?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! It would be in order if the hon. Member was being irrelevant but I have not noticed it yet, I am afraid.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know why the hon. Member for Homa Bay is worried.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I was saying is this. According to the Bill, we see that one woman goes about with three or four men, and then the three gentlemen are affiliated to the same woman. My argument is that the first man who went about with the lady should be responsible for the maintenance of the first child; but if she produces a second child by a different father, then the affiliation order should be cancelled. This is my argument.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was saying that I do not remember anywhere in history where a woman has seduced a man. It is only men who approach women, and then we say women are at fault. They are not at fault. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is only we men who interfere with women. When you interfere with someone, you are responsible for the outcome. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would suggest that the father of the first child should be responsible for its maintenance, its education and clothing. Why I say this is—the hon. Kago did put the question rightly—that this little girl was educated—I am surprised to see the Vice-President laughing, yet he is the father of some children, what would happen?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is very keen in making allegations. What have I done wrong by happening to smile? Was he really in order to use my name when I am innocent?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think it is in order for hon. Members to object when they see other Members laughing at what they believe to be a serious matter, and certainly in referring to Mr. arap Moi the hon. Member was not making any derogatory reference, he was only honouring Mr. arap Moi for being the father of children. Quite legitimately.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with due respect to the Vice-President, I did not mean to annoy him but to make him more attentive. This is a serious matter and we must consider it very seriously because we are all affected.

[Mr. Munyasia]

If I support this Bill, then it affects the Kikuyu in majority. I am not supporting the Bill. Mr. Speaker, my worry is about the life of that child. The child does not come on this earth on the will of one person, it must be a connexion of the two, and the two people in question are the ones responsible for the maintenance of the child.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support hon. Kago on what he has said, that we as fathers bring up children, educate them, clothe them, feed them until the age of 16 years. The girl might go up to secondary education. If at the age of 16 years someone interferes with the girl, her education is cut off. I was surprised yesterday when I heard the hon. Member for Nakuru saying that the existing law is a colonial law. It is not a colonial law because in 1964—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, is it in order for the Member to speak emotionally and refer to what I said yesterday as calling this "colonial law", when HANSARD can prove me right that I never said that, I said it was a "foreign idea".

Mr. Munyasia: It makes no difference.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I cannot remember exactly what Mr. Mwithaga said, but I had in mind that he had referred to colonial law. I could be wrong and Mr. Munyasia could be wrong. Let us not worry about it.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can we not be helped by the Chair? Is the Member really speaking on the Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, hon. Members must understand the nature of this amendment; it is in effect direct opposition to the Bill, temporarily anyhow, and so he speaks on all the merits of the Bill. It is not merely like a Motion for adjournment of debate. This is a Motion that, in effect, the Bill be rejected, for the time being anyhow.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you. The hon. Member for Nakuru is insisting on whether he referred to this law as a colonial law. He said, Mr. Speaker, "We want African law", and I was drawing your attention back to 1964—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Member to persist, when you have ruled, Mr. Speaker, emotionally still, when I can produce HANSARD here to prove that I never said that? He is misquoting me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did say we had better accept Mr. Mwithaga's correction of what he said, and do not let us have things which give rise to such frequent points of order.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there was a lot of interjections. If this House is being requested to repeal the Bill and in the middle there will be left a big gap, it does not bring something immediately to show that it will replace this one. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, with this I feel that the Bill must be put off completely so that Government redrafts it so that we can propose the amendments. We cannot do anything unless we can see what has been put here as a replacement.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to oppose the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Munyasia, you are seconding the amendment actually are you not?

Mr. Munyasia: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will propose question of the amendment. The question now before the House is that the word "now" be left out of the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi.

Hon. Members: He spoke.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I spoke on another amendment—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Have you spoken on the main debate, Mr. Kaunyangi?

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I spoke on another amendment, and not this one.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Any hon. Member who spoke on the main question cannot speak again on this.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, I did not speak on the main question, but I spoke on the adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can speak in that case. You can speak now.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support this Motion. The only reason which can make one support this Motion is the question whether there is need for consultation, or whether there is need for further investigation, or whether there is a need to listen to various opinions from the public. Mr. Speaker, I think in this case, there is a need to consult various bodies, there is need to consult amongst ourselves—

On a point of order Mr. Speaker, there is a lot of noise.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Let us have a little less noise.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, suppose Members are dissatisfied with what is going on, are they not to be allowed to walk out in protest?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! If hon. Members made a little-less noise there will be no need for all this. Please continue, Mr. Kaunyangi.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope this time you will protect me from all this noise.

An hon. Member: We shall defeat you.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, an hon. Member is saying that they will defeat me but still they should allow me time to put forward my views. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am putting the same views which I had put before—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, this is one of the things, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Some of us have been here from 2.30, and have been hearing the same thing, because he has been given several chances to speak. Are we to allow that?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Shikuku, you cannot say that, the hon. Member has spoken twice. However, he did speak earlier on, I know, on the adjournment, and he is now being called to speak on the main Motion. That is perfectly in order. He is perfectly entitled to speak. Perhaps if he was given little chance to speak—because of this noise that is going on he cannot continue—he might be able to speak a little bit quicker. The only thing, Mr. Kaunyangi, there is no need to repeat what you have already said. You are now speaking on the main Bill, previously you were speaking on the adjournment of debate. Please understand this.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I know I spoke yesterday and I have no interest to speak. I am seeking your guidance as to whether, an issue like this which affects the whole nation with a lot of sensitivity, should be treated or viewed from a smaller angle or a wider scope?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): What is your point of order? Is that a point of order? Surely you should have known by now that that is not a point of order.

Mr. Mwithaga: I was seeking your guidance, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, no. Do not interrupt on a point of order which, in fact is not a point of order.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, when an hon. Member stands up and says that he is going to repeat all that he had said before, is there any necessity for the House to have to listen?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Lubembe, just now I have dealt with another point of order like this one. Carry on, Mr. Kaunyangi.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am not challenging your ruling, but you said that I was speaking on the main Motion, which was not the case.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it seems that this amendment is very unpopular and the hon. Member speaking is very unpopular, so can the question of the amendment now be put?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No. Please continue Mr. Kaunyangi. What is your point of order Mr. Gikunju?

Mr. Gikunju: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. The hon. Member who interrupted said that the hon. Member speaking was unpopular. Could he substantiate how unpopular he is?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not understand this whether an amendment or any move to beat the Bill is unpopular, or popular is quite irrelevant. The point is that every hon. Member is entitled to speak, even if he is in a very small minority. In fact, one of the purposes of the Speaker's power to disallow the closure is to ensure that every party or every group, whatever their opinion might be, has a chance to speak. That is what I am doing. The fact that he is unpopular makes no difference. He is still entitled to speak. It is not a ground to have a quick closure because he is unpopular.

Please, let us have no more dilatory or frivolous points of order. We should get on with the motion. It is quite obvious, and I can see what the feeling of the House is, but every person should have the chance to express his point of view, and this is what I am trying to see he has.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when the House becomes so noisy, so rude and so unruly, is there any way—or would I be in order to move that the House be adjourned until tomorrow?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I would not accept that, but the only thing is that if there are some hon. Members who appear to be unruly, I will ask them to leave the Chamber. Carry on Mr. Kaunyangi.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I hope now the House has settled down.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of the existing confusion, would I be in order to move that the Question of the amendment be now put?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not know whether you heard Mr. Ngala-Abok moving this just about ten seconds ago and my refusing to put it. There is, therefore, no need to put it again, and the question of confusion or unpopularity is totally irrelevant. It is a question of allowing every side to express its opinion even if it is a small minority. Please let us not have these unnecessary points of order.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I seek your guidance on this. What happens—I know the Speaker, has the right to rule that the debate should continue. But what happens in the case where the majority of Members are against it?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You have already heard me many times, Mr. Shikuku. You just accept it.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that there has been a lot of points of order, is there any way whereby, Mr. Speaker, can curtail these points of order so that we can continue with the debate?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, by sending these people out of the House, if they raise unnecessary points of order.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I hope the House has now settled down, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was supporting this Motion because we know that there are children, for example, who are benefiting from the Act. Some of them are at school, and the others are somewhere else. We know that if we repealed this Act today, tomorrow those children would be left unprotected. Even if they are few—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the Member to mislead the House by saying that, if we pass this Bill, then those already affiliated will be discontinued?

Hon. Members: Yes. Yes.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): If you have the Bill, Mr. Ngala-Abok, you will know what it means. It does say that the affiliation orders will be cancelled. It is quite clear from the Bill, and the Attorney-General can correct me if I am wrong, but from what I can see, all the affiliation orders will automatically cease to exist. That is quite right.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was saying we know that there are some children—although they are few, and although the Act might have been abused—we know there are some children who might be in various schools, or who might be benefiting even if it were only for their daily bread. We know that if this Act is to be repealed, unless there is another Act tomorrow, these children are going to be left unprotected.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this very statement has been repeated in the first amendment, and now he is repeating it again. Is that in order?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): There is no need to rise on a point of order every time. There is repetition, I agree, but there is no need for you to rise every time. Carry on Mr. Kaunyi.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have been sitting in the House throughout the debate and I have not heard this repeated as the hon. Member has said.

Hon. Members: It has.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi: As I am saying, even if it has Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am speaking on this Motion and I have the right to speak the way I feel.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, even though the noise is going on, what I mean is that why we should give a second thought to this repeal is because it will affect these children's life. It affects even that daily bread. There are children whose mothers cannot afford either food or education for them. These children, Mr. Deputy Speaker, have been benefiting from the previous Act. That is why I say—although I am not quite a doubting Thomas—although the Government has said it will introduce another Act to protect these children, this will affect these children even if it be for only one or two weeks. If for example, these children are in private schools or in the town where they need to buy their daily bread every day, then these children will be taken away from their family with nothing—nothing to rely on when these allowances disappear. That is why I said, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that Members should ask themselves, "What is the hurry"?

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. I have been too attentive and I would like to know what happens when a Member repeats exactly the same words which he—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Munyi, please do not rise on a point of order. Give him a chance to express his point of view. Any more points of order like this will mean the Member going out of this Chamber. Carry on Mr. Kaunyangi.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it was on behalf of those children that I wanted to request the House to give those families time to adjust themselves to living without these allowances.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, many Members know that if they had a sort of income for somewhere, and this income is suddenly terminated, then they will be confused and some of them might starve. Therefore, I would like to ask the Members to consider these children's cases and think of what would happen to them, so that they allow the other Bill to be brought to the House before we repeal this one.

In spite of all these interruptions, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support, very much, the amendment to the Motion.

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Sir, in view of the fact that the speaker has already finished what he was saying, and in view of the fact that the House wants the question of the amendment put, may I ask you, Sir, to put the question of the amendment?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! No. I do not think we must be steam-rolled into this. We must continue with the debate.

Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I—

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, may I know whether there is special consideration here, because some Members have spoken more than twice on this Bill and some have not even spoken once?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I have just told you that— That is a very frivolous point of order, Mr. Oduya. Please leave the Chamber. I have already explained many times that a Member cannot rise on a point of order to challenge the Speaker's choice of a person or, putting it the other way round, whoever catches the Speaker's eye.

So, please leave the Chamber, Mr. Oduya.

(Mr. Oduya withdrew from the Chamber)

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not wish to—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Sir, as far as I am concerned, the Member speaking has spoken on the main Bill at length and now he is being allowed to speak again.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Ngala-Abok, you, too, please leave the Chamber. (Mr. Ngala-Abok withdrew from the Chamber)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have not spoken in this debate, since yesterday up until now. This is the first time. I did not even speak on the Motion as amended.

Right at the outset, Sir, may I say that I completely disagree with all those who have spoken supporting the idea of postponing or killing this Bill by having it read a Second Time six months hence. If it is a question of Christianity, I am a Christian. We must remember that we are also the representatives of the pagans in this country.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I seek your guidance here. Under Standing Order 75, what would happen if a Member speaking has an interest in this Bill and does not declare it before speaking but later it is found he does have an interest?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, any hon. Member who has an interest in the Bill he is speaking on must, according to Standing Orders, declare his interest. This is quite clear. It would be a breach of the Standing Orders of this House for any Member who is speaking not to declare his interest if he has one.

However, we do not want to go into this now. I am sure hon. Members are aware of Standing Orders, and if they have an interest they should declare it.

Mr. Shikuku: Really, Sir, I have no interest to declare. The interest I have is that this question of using children as a means to get money out of the men should stop.

Now, Sir, why I support the Bill and oppose the adjournment of the debate on this Bill for six months is as follows.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this arises from the previous point of order. If it is found that the Member speaking is "affiliated", would that be counted for the purposes of Standing Order 75?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes.

Mr. Shikuku: Sir, I am not worried, I am not "affiliated". If he is, then that is too bad, and it is not my fault.

Now, Sir—

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, is it in order really for the hon. Members instead of speaking for or against in the normal way on this issue to go down into minor matters which are not as serious as the matter of this Bill? I think it would help us to save the dignity of the House if we speak on those matters which are of grave importance to the nation.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I think the Vice-President is very correct. One should avoid personalities, and even a direct or indirect reference to personalities.

However, Mr. Kaunyangi is also correct in that, if an hon. Member—I do not know whether this is the case now—speaking has an interest, he should declare it. I assume, of course, that every hon. Member who has spoken, and has not declared an interest, does not have an interest. Otherwise, perhaps, hon. Members would be better advised not to speak if they do not want to declare an interest. I am quite sure that, so far, those hon. Members who have spoken have done so quite freely and frankly.

Mr. Shikuku: Sir, why I support the Bill, and the fact that it must be read now, and not six months hence, is this. First of all we are concerned about the welfare of the children. That is all. We are not concerned with the mothers nor the fathers. It is just the children. We who support the Bill are out to get the child delivered to the man, and the man to take care of the child. It is wrong for those who are opposing this Bill to imagine that we are such fools to repeal the law and leave the children in the streets. That is not what we are here for. We are here, Sir, to—even the new Bill will show—and this has been outlined—that the man is responsible for this. He shall be responsible for bringing up the child plus the mother if she is not economically sound to bring up the child. So we are not going to throw the children into the dustbins at all.

The other thing, the defect of the present Bill, is that it has encouraged more of home-breaking. These days when you quarrel just a little bit with your wife, she gives up and says, "I am leaving and you will be paying for these children anyway while I will be enjoying my life." This has made life even more difficult than it was before.

Another reason why I disagree with the present Bill is that it is a sort of mrija, a mrija for women. This is what is going on. You have a girl who is pregnant, and she has about ten boy friends. She goes to the first one and tells him, "Big man, look, I am now pregnant. I will take you to Makadara." Then the big man, because he wants to preserve his name says, "Come here, take this but do not mention this thing. I will take the baby." That is the first man. I the same way, she goes to the second man, the third man, the fourth man right up to the tenth man. Then she makes up her mind about the one man of these ten who she will take to Makadara. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we have to stop this; we have to stop this through thick and thin. The only way to stop this is to repeal the damn law and get something else in its place.

Then we come to the question of the commission for inquiry which has been touched on. What inquiry do you want? What do you want to inquire into? You know when a woman is pregnant; you do not need a commission of inquiry to find out if and when she is pregnant. Is it not a fact, Sir, that children are being produced day and night? What do we need to inquire then? Why waste the money of the public on inquiries? This is useless. We know these things happen and we also know there is no country in the world which does not have this problem. The problem started with Adam and Eve and it will go on. There is no medicine to stop this. The only thing we have to do is to arrange things so that there is no destruction of the young men and women who come into this world.

According to our African society—this is the point: we are Africans and so we shall remain—things are different. We have had western civilization. There are things in the western civilization which are good and there are things, also, which are bad. One of the bad things is this question of affiliation. So we must get rid of it.

There is another law in the western civilization which stipulates or states that it is wrong to get a second wife if you are married at the district commissioner's office, and if you do that it is bigamy. This question of bigamy must go also. The Attorney-General must bring a provision here to do away with bigamy, for the simple reason that this is not in keeping with the African traditions and customs at all. It is the problem of the European; let it remain with the European. Why should be bring it here to this land of Africa? These are the bad things in this law which we do not want.

Another dangerous thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for which this Bill must be repealed is this, and I will give my reasons for that. This is the real danger. We, as Africans, in this country—and even on the Continent of Africa—believe that a man is in charge of the family. The child belongs to the father. Even on the identity cards of these hon. Members—as well as the people outside—it states "Mr. So-and-so, the son of So-and-so"; they do not write the mother's name at all. So this idea of affiliation is encouraging the idea that the son or the daughter belongs to the woman. This is wrong. Where did we get this idea from? Even in the Bible, Jesus is not quoted as being the son of Mary. He always referred to Himself as being the Son of Man, not of woman. Where did you get this idea from?

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

By accepting the Affiliation Bill, we are discharging our responsibilities and we are interfering even with Jesus Himself because he is the Son of Man and not of woman. This is the most serious part of the whole Affiliation Bill.

These women, and well-to-do women insist these days that, "The child is mine". If you insist that the child is yours why ask for affiliation? It is yours. We pay the affiliation fee and yet the child may be somebody else's. Why should we pay that fee? Are we going out of our minds? Mr. Speaker, I believe we are not. We are still clear in our thinking. Western civilization has not quite demoralized us. We can overcome this threat from the women to try and own children instead of letting us own them.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, now that we have heard enough from hon. Members on this Bill, I would like to move that the question of the amendment be now put.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should allow Mr. Shikuku just to finish off his main points and then, I agree, it would not be premature to do so.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I was just about to finish.

It is in the interests of the people of this country and the children that we are doing this. We are going to have a Bill where I hope it will be clearly stated that when you impregnate a girl you shall first of all, if it is proved that it is your child, give the child a name, and then the child will go back to the mother, stay with her until the age of two or three, during which time you are also paying for the maintenance of that child, and then after that you will get the child to yourself. This is the only way things can be done. This will solve a lot of problems. For example, my friends here, those in Kiambu, according to this law they take all the babies there. We want all those babies back; we will take care of them. We would like to have those babies back. It should be the policy of this House—

Mr. Gikunju: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance on what the hon. Member speaking mentioned, thus misleading the House, that the present Act, the Affiliation Act, entitles the mother to have the children, not the man.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Gikunju is quite correct, of course.

Hon. Members who describe what the Act contains must describe it correctly, and there is nothing at all in this present Bill to give effect to what Mr. Shikuku suggests.

However, I think what Mr. Shikuku means is, that if we repeal this, we must then look for another law which will give effect to his principles.

Mr. Shikuku: Having said that, Sir, I do not think we should dwell on this. The Bill should be repealed.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the repeal of the Affiliation Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now put the question of the closure on the question of the amendment.

(Question, that the question of the amendment be now put. put and agreed to)

(Question of the first part of the amendment that the word to be left out be left out, put and negated)

(Debate to be continued on original Motion)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Debate will, therefore, continue on the question as originally proposed which is, that the Bill be now read the Second Time.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

DISCRIMINATION IN OPERATION OF TRADE LICENSING ACT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is a matter to be moved on the adjournment. Would a Minister please move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth now adjourn.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am raising this matter on the adjournment to get the views of the Government on a fundamental matter of equality of citizens and also to enable the Government to clarify what their policy is regarding the issue of trade licences to citizens irrespective of race.

Now, Sir, the Ministers of this Government have often proclaimed their firm resolve to uphold the rights of citizens in this country and accord them equal treatment. I would like now to quote from the statement of no less a person than His Excellency the Vice-President who said on the 21st May in this House that: "It was not the policy of this Government to discriminate against citizens, whether they were Asian or European Kenya citizens". Further, he said: "Kenya Asians or Europeans were treated exactly the same as anyone else".

Sir, the hon. Mr. Mboya, Minister for Economic Planning and Development, said this in London when he was attending the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference, and I quote,

"The citizens who may have been affected can, in fact, appeal and the position will be put right. They can go to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, and in the final analysis they have the right to appeal to the courts. In such a major operation, there is a possibility of mistakes by those who were sorting out the notices."

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Kibe, the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry was quoted as saying this in the Daily Nation of Saturday, 11th January:

"Mr. Kibe explained that all citizens appealing must prove their citizenship and indicate who their shareholders are. If the majority of shareholders are citizens, then they must be reissued with licences immediately."

Hon. Members need not be reminded, also, of the reply that was given by the Attorney-General in this House, on behalf of the Minister for Commerce and Industry, on the 26th of May, that some "Quit Notices" had been served on Kenya citizens by mistake.

Mr. Speaker, let us look at the facts against the assurances that have been given by the Ministers of this Government.

The first example is, Market Mobile Service Limited of Koinange Street were originally given notice to quit and they appealed against the decision of the licensing officer. I am sure the Appeals Tribunal, in their wisdom, considered this matter favourably but the Minister rejected the appeal. In fact, Sir, this firm has now been given time until 30th June to cease operations. I would like to emphasize that all the five directors of this firm are Kenya citizens and, 100 per cent of the shareholding is held by Kenya citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to lay these papers with photostat copies of the passports on the Table for the Minister to see, to prove my point.

(The hon. Mr. Pandya laid the documents and the passports on the Table)

Mr. Speaker, the other case is that of Hirji Maya Shah of Nairobi who was treated in the same way as the case I have already quoted and this appeal was rejected by the Minister.

Now, Sir, the firm is controlled to the extent of 80 per cent by Kenya citizens and all the evidence is available to prove this fact. I lay on the Table, Mr. Speaker, the Notice to Quit that was served by the Ministry.

(The hon. Mr. Pandya laid the "Quit Notice" on the Table)

I can give the third instance of Lakhmidas and Sons of River Road, plot No. 138/21. This firm is controlled by 75 per cent of Kenya citizens.

In fact, Sir, I have several names here before me, but I do not want to labour on this point because the Minister will see that I have brought facts to this House to prove the points that I am making.

Mr. Speaker, the situation really becomes intolerable when one notes that non-citizens are allowed to trade within the same vicinity and area and, in fact, have been granted licences, while citizen companies have been denied what I firmly and strongly believe is their right.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may say so, this attitude of the Ministry is really making a mockery of citizenship and, in fact, is subjecting these people who have opted to taking citizenship of this country to a ridiculous position.

Mr. Speaker, let us look at some of the peculiar practices of this Ministry. 100 per cent non-citizen firms have been given permission to deal in specified goods while there are citizen companies which have been denied this right and I believe this is a right which is justified and they should have been the people who were given permission to deal in specified goods. What does the Ministry do? It gives 100 per cent non-citizen companies the right to deal in specified goods. Let me give you another example of what this Ministry is doing: a firm, of which 45 per cent control is in the hands of citizens, has been given notice to quit while, Mr. Speaker, the firm next door is a 100 per cent non-citizen company and they were granted a trading licence for this year. I cannot see anything more ridiculous than the practice of this Government when they discriminate so much against the citizens of this country as against the non-citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I put it to the hon. Members if this is what the Government policy should be? I hope that they, in their wisdom, will reject whatever the Minister may have to say on this point.

[Mr. Pandya]

Mr. Speaker, these companies which I have said are citizen companies are, in fact, suffering considerable hardship as they have been asked to cease operations and such pressure has been put on them that they are unable to collect their outstanding debts to enable them to carry on their other activities. Representations have been made to the Minister but, Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to say that so far no action whatsoever to redress the genuine grievances of the citizens of this country has been taken by the Minister.

I also hear of cases, and this is very important, where some of the officers of the Trade Licensing Office are bringing pressure to bear on these merchants and, in fact, trying to victimize these people to transfer their leases to those people recommended by the officers. Mr. Speaker, this I believe is really against the concepts of equality and justice in this country.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to interrupt the hon. Member but he made an allegation that officers of the Ministry have victimized certain individuals and tried to get them to transfer leases to people recommended by those officers. Has he facts to substantiate this?

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Minister knows that I am always a man with facts. The allegation that I have made, although I think it is very serious, I cannot substantiate it at this stage, but in consultation with you, if you require a substantiation, I am sure I can get it, and if I cannot get a substantiation, I will apologize to this House. I do not know what the procedure is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Pandya, if you were meaning to say a thing like that when you were preparing to raise a matter you should have come armed with the facts. However, it is such a broad matter that I think here you should be allowed 24 hours in which to substantiate. Can you substantiate not later than Friday?

Mr. Pandya: Mr. Speaker, in that case may I withdraw the allegation. I will in the meantime try to see—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Withdraw if you cannot substantiate.

Mr. Pandya: I withdraw that, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that when the Minister replies, he will not advance the argument to this House that partnerships are to be treated differently from limited companies because I think it would be a lame excuse to carry on this practice of discrimination. As I understand it, the Trade Licensing Act is very clear in clauses 2 and 5 and this could in fact, be a matter for legal argument in a court of law.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make one point very clear as to why I am raising this matter here. I did make representations to the Minister, but some considerable time has elapsed and I am sorry to say that no opportunity was taken to explain the position to me. I do feel that the country is entitled to know what position is about these citizen firms. My main purpose is to get a clear statement so that citizens are aware of their rights and of the policy of this Government. So far, some of the statements of fair play and justice are not backed by actions and I am afraid they are contrary to the fundamental rights of citizens.

Mr. Speaker, it is in the spirit of giving the opportunity to Government to make a statement to this House that I beg to move.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seconding this Motion with the understanding that, in fact, we have a Constitution. All of us here have sworn to uphold and defend that Constitution. The Constitution provides the position of the citizen, irrespective of his country of origin, colour, creed or anything else. Justice cannot be tampered with when a country has decided to uphold justice.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I represent a town where similar cases are to be found. In fact, I have had individuals coming to me complaining that they have had their licences issued in this manner or that and yet they are citizens. I am saying, what was the use of providing citizenship in the Constitution of this country, if that is not going to be respected? As a representative, I am having difficulties in trying to explain this and defend the Government on an issue like that when the Government itself has put the whole situation in a mess.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister says right now that there are Constitutional rights whereby citizens, irrespective of their country of origin or colour, enjoy full rights as a citizen, and he confirms that, let him tell us now. If this is not going to be upheld, he must tell us and we will amend the Constitution so that we can deny citizenship to non-Africans.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, justice is justice and I remember that when the President was delivering his speech on Madaraka Day, he gave an example to all of us when he referred to one of his Ministers and said that despite his colour he is an African at heart, he is a true African and he is a Cabinet Minister. If the ordinary man in the street is going to be mistreated, what will happen tomorrow? Those citizens being maltreated have a right to sue the Government under the Constitution, they have the right, and if they take legal action they will defeat the Minister and that would mean defeating the Government.

Mr. Speaker, I think the gentlemen involved have been too patient and I think they have been too tolerant, even to the extent of avoiding a show-down with Government, a show-down which would actually be in their favour. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we all believe in Africanization as we have said, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this House has not said this should be to the detriment of the citizen because of colour. This Government, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has spoken against colour prejudices in other countries like America, in South Africa, and in fact has supported war being waged against those countries where racialism is being emphasized.

What is our position when we treat our own citizens with similar measures of discrimination? Are we not making a mockery of the whole issue? Are we not actually abusing our position, nationally and otherwise, when we talk of the Trade Licensing Act, and the Trade Licensing Act we passed here provides that citizens will be allowed to trade in all the goods the non-citizens cannot trade in? Why should we allow non-citizens to trade in those goods which is denied the citizen next door, as if we want to shame him that by becoming a citizen this has nothing to do with us, and your neighbour can go ahead.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very ridiculous and, in fact, Mr. Speaker, those non-citizens who are now carrying on trade in our towns where our citizens are not allowed to carry on a similar trade, are boasting in the bars that they only have to come to Nairobi and talk to the big people and their trade is all right. We have said this in the House here. If this practice is to continue, Mr. Speaker, however respectful we may be to the Minister himself, he will not be able to defend the Government and he will find himself being accused of condoning the allegations.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in seconding this Motion, I do it from a clear conscience and on the understanding that justice must be done even if the heavens fall.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think before my friends are carried away with the usual emotions there are certain matters—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I thought the question should be proposed?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have already proposed the question of the adjournment. Hon. Members become a little confused sometimes. In these matters, a Minister moves the adjournment of the House, it is seconded without argument, and the question is proposed immediately; and then the hon. Member who speaks is not actually moving anything. He is just really saying "do not adjourn until you have heard what I have to say". It is different from the Standing Order 20 adjournment.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will be brief. The Mover of the Motion says he moves it because he would like the Government to make a statement on the equality of citizens. Mr. Speaker, we do not need to make a statement on the equality of citizens on each occasion. For the obvious reason, Sir, that this Government has a proper record to be proud of. There can be seen to be equality of citizens in all fields, in the public service and elsewhere. Mr. Speaker, in matters of commerce, this is also the criteria we have applied.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to be quite clear. It is true that the Member for Mombasa Central did come to the Ministry about some cases. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not true for him to say no action has been taken. The cases he brought forward have been investigated and one of them, which he is laying documents for here, action has been taken on it and the people were given licences, for the very simple reason that the true facts were established. I would like to make sure that Members in this House accept one big problem which we have in this country, particularly the Member for Mombasa Central must serve this nation by talking to his friends and colleagues. We have this problem, and this is why we have the cases which have to be investigated slowly. After the notices were given to companies, many of us—including the Member who is moving this Motion—knew of them as being foreign companies, there has been in at least 90 per cent of the cases we are now hearing about, a deliberate move to change what was supposed to have been the structure then to that of a partnership.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member himself is aware that, in so many of these cases, partnerships have been declared to be dissolved, new ones constituted in which young people—one of them was a little boy born in 1964—are supposed to have a majority shareholding in the new partnership, and we are then told this is the same company trading under a new name or it is the old company but the shares of the partnership have been redistributed. Therefore, we should consider it as a citizen company. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have these details—

Mr. Pandya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it right for the Minister to mislead the House by quoting other cases, or his general impressions when I can quote one name which I gave here? The one name, Mr. Speaker, is Hirji Maya Shah, and I can see this on the certificate of the accountant. In fact this company in 1966—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do not think you have a point of order there, Mr. Pandya. You cannot start arguing the facts you know. If you are challenging what the hon. Minister says, then you can ask him to substantiate something. That is different from your getting up and telling a story on a point of order.

Mr. Jamal: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it not true that when some people make an appeal, it is based on annual returns which were submitted last year? The appeals are made on the strength of last year?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No point of order.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope it is this time, because we cannot have points of argument raised as points of order.

Mr. Omar: It is a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has said there was a company where one of the shareholders was born in 1964, can he substantiate?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, we have this list but I did not bring the file here. These facts have been brought to me from the Appeals Tribunal, and I am willing to lay the file here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You will do it tomorrow?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): I will.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not at all that we are disputing on matters of principle with the hon. Members. What I am saying, and as I said I am not disputing the fact the hon. Member has good intentions, the fact is that we have had a very difficult job of investigating partnerships which, at the time the notices were issued, were known quite clearly from the records to be non-citizen in their shareholding. After three months, this was changed. Mr. Speaker, when the appeals are brought, it is our job—and we would be failing in our duty if we did not do so—to investigate how it comes it has been changed, that now there is claim for full citizenship. One of the companies which is a typical example and which the hon. Member brought up here, which is in River Road. We have investigated this. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member himself knows how many changes there have been in the ownership of the company within a very short period of time.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one has to know because there was a company before; then the company was in some difficulties and a new one was registered in the name of one lady and one young son, who was in Europe, as having shares in it; and then, Mr. Speaker, the whole structure of that company we gave notice to was changed. We therefore have to investigate afresh as to whether we are right or not. When we have found the change is a genuine one, then, Mr. Speaker, we have issued licences. Mr. Speaker, this is the principle we follow. We have issued licences to any company we have investigated and found the changes claimed to have taken place in the ownership of the shares, have been genuine changes to citizens.

Mr. Speaker, I would really like to appeal to this House to appreciate we are dealing with a very complicated problem where there have been deliberate efforts to mislead the officers in the field by changes in the so-called partnerships. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we will, we hope, bring an amendment here to strengthen the hand of the Government in dealing with these matters. This is because where there is a public company, Sir, the details of the company are supplied to the Registrar of Companies; the ownership of the shares is known; and there is an annual return which is required by law; then the facts are definite. Where it is a partnership, genuine or otherwise, under the present law, one does not require these people to file any details, except of course, the usual tax returns which are not easily accessible to our officers. We have this major problem in checking if the changes which take place after notice has been given are genuine ones.

I would like the Members in this House to bear with the officers who are trying to do a job of work. I would like to deny here the allegation by the Member for Mombasa Central—I think it is not becoming for him because he has a lot of respect in the community—to suggest that some officers in the Ministry are victimizing some individuals. I, myself, would be the first person to see to it that we expose and deal with any officer who uses his position to obtain favours for any particular person. Mr. Speaker, all of us want to deal with that kind of problem, but if there is nothing which has actually happened, and we go by gossip, then we are destroying the morale of the people who we, ourselves, as a Government, depend on for effective administration of the laws we pass in this House.

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry]

Mr. Speaker, there has been mention of the trade in specified goods. It is true, nobody is hiding it and I do not see why anybody should stand here and pretend he has made a major discovery to shout about, that some non-citizens are trading in specified goods. The law itself says, in some instances where there may not be local citizen companies to handle specified goods, then we should be allowed to make exceptions and we have done so in various towns in this country. We are not pretending it is wrong. We are not pretending it is a secret, and I do not know why we have to shout about it. What I would like to hear an hon. Member, like the Member for Nakuru Central, saying is that, in a given area with regard to certain goods, he has some local citizen companies to deal with them and they have been denied the opportunity to do so. This would be meaningful, but not to make a generalized commentary which really does not lead to anything.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no question of mockery of citizenship. People did not take up citizenship in this country in order to manufacture money out of it. People took up citizenship of Kenya because they are committed to living here and to facing facts, to facing problems, and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no discrimination I want to regret—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kibaki, it is the end of your time.

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would just like to make one point clear. I am glad the Minister has reiterated there will be no discrimination between citizens. This is important, because however much we hear it, very often one wonders. It is very important for us to restate this because it is very essential and a vital part of our Constitution.

I will come to the point. We know, and accept, it is difficult to check on the proportion of ownership in different shops, but, the Minister did appoint a very good committee, an Appeals Tribunal headed by a very able lawyer, Mr. Samuel Waruhiu, and another gentleman, Sir Derek Erskine, who has been a Member of Parliament and a very able Kanu member, and Mr. Mohindra and a few others. They went into great detail and took evidence, into the ownership of these shops. In fact, they allowed some of these appeals. What I would like to know is why were the appeals which they allowed, why were the recommendations they made, summarily rejected without any reason being given either to them or to us?

The Minister is aware that the Appeals Tribunal is more or less on strike today. They have refused to function because, after all the trouble they took to check and verify the citizenship, and the ownership of different shops, they were treated in a very shabby manner, and all that happened was that their own secretary issued cyclostyled notices in the name of the Minister, and I am quite confident no one went to check up in greater detail than they did, saying the Minister had rejected the appeal. Why was this done? Why should we have an Appeals Tribunal if we are going to ignore the recommendations? What is the point of appointing eminent citizens of this country to go and listen to the facts and then totally ignore them?

I believe, Sir, if we have an Appeals Tribunal, we must abide by their recommendations and decisions, and I do appeal to the Minister here, as I have done before, to reconsider the situation and to abide by the recommendations of the Appeals Tribunal who are honest, sincere men, headed by a very able and sincere chairman.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the end of our time so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 12th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Thursday, 12th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 202

PERMANENT HOUSING FOR POLICE FORCE

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Vice-President and the Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House when the Minister would make sure that all grass-thatched police quarters were replaced by permanent or semi-permanent-houses.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The replacement of grass-thatched police quarters with permanent housing depends on the availability of development funds. However, because of the number of quarters, and the expense involved, it has been necessary to phase a programme for a number of years. Although I do appreciate the seriousness of this social problem, the hon. Member will realize that my Ministry can only tackle it if sufficient funds are provided. The Government, however, allocates its limited funds on priorities.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether in this coming financial year he has estimated for the replacing of these grass-thatched houses? The House will be prepared to approve the additional expenditure.

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have already said that we are doing it according to the phasing programme that we have determined in the Ministry and this process is going on as funds are available.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister right in saying that they have a phased programme for improving the conditions of housing for the police, when actually Kenya has been independent for the last six years and yet throughout the Republic, most of the police houses are made of mud and wattle. The Kenya Government is still wasting 20 per cent to pay Ministers their gratuities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is not a relevant matter.

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I object very strongly when the hon. Member says that the Government has done nothing to improve the conditions of the police housing. There has been a lot of improvement. There are some quarters—permanent quarters—which have been built for the policemen. What I am trying to say is the phased programme for building permanent quarters for the police all over the country cannot be completed in a day.

Mr. arap Too: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that most of these grass-thatched houses, are built together, is the Minister not aware that one day, they will catch fire and will destroy all the secret and confidential Government files?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not rule out the possibility of accidents, but this we hope will not happen. If we go as far as that, we can say that even this Parliament can catch on fire.

Question No. 174

LIFTING BAN ON MR. GIKOMBE'S GRAMOPHONE RECORDS

Mr. Munyi asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs if he would tell the House when he was going to lift the ban on the gramophone records which were produced by a leading African musician, Mr. Cinda Gikombe, and which were banned by the Colonial Government.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Mr. Cinda Gikombe's various records are played regularly by the Voice of Kenya. Any ban that might have been imposed against them is no longer valid.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers from the Assistant Minister, and arising from the fact that the Assistant Minister knows that these records are being played by the Voice of Kenya, is the Assistant Minister aware that, if today, for instance, I want to reproduce records of Cinda Gikombe, who is the leading African musician in the whole continent of Africa, I would not be allowed to do so? Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is high time when the Government should give—

[Mr. Munyi]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are two things which are being confused by the hon. Member. One is whether the ban is there or not. Another thing is whether the companies will be able to reproduce these records or not. Now, the question of the ban being there, I have already stated that the ban is not there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 186

CERTIFICATES FOR G.P.T. EXEMPTIONS

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister of State, President's Office if he would tell the House whether he was aware that people who were exempted from paying graduated personal tax had not been issued with certificates so that when the police, and Administration Police were checking for tax defaulters, the exempted ones were not interfered with.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

I am not aware, and I do not think that the allegation is true. Exemption means that the person exempted is issued with an exemption certificate immediately.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to tell the Minister that this is not true. For example, in North Baringo which I represent, there is no single person having this exemption certificate. Is the Minister aware of this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is your question, Mr. Cheboiwo?

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, I am just asking the Minister whether he is aware of this, because I have never seen one myself, even in my own constituency when I was there.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Member, or any other Member, has any specific situation in mind, he should report it for investigation.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember last year asking the same question and the Minister promised the House that he was going to investigate or instruct his Provincial Administrative Officers to see that these certificates were issued. All the people who are exempted—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! You have a right to ask a question, Mr. Cheboiwo, but not to make a speech.

Mr. Cheboiwo: The question here, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Sit down, Mr. Lorimo, I am asking you to sit down.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, the question here is, the Minister told the House last year that he was going to investigate this or he would instruct his provincial officer to do this, has he done this or not?

An hon. Member: You are right.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, investigation cannot be made for the sake of investigation. The issue is that if he knew any specific case and reported it to the proper officers, and saw whether that was investigated or not, that was the proper method.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has said that there are certificates; we say that there are no certificates. Can the Minister tell the House what colour, blue, red or green, these certificate are, because they are not there. What colour has he, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not deny that exemption does exist. What I stated is that when such exemptions exist, then people are issued with certificates of exemption and then that constitutes the exemption.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members are asking what colour these certificates are?

Mr. M. Koinange: The question of colour, Mr. Speaker, Sir, does not come, because exemption is in the form of papers.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been one of those cases where a Minister answers a question without actually knowing the material of his answer. Now that the Minister has said that there is something called an exemption certificate, can I demand now that today, tomorrow, or on a date given, he may lay that kind of certificate on this Table? It does not exist.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think that as a matter of order, you can require that kind of document to be laid on the Table; but you are entitled to ask the Minister, by way of question, if he would be prepared to produce a specimen, if you would like to do that.

Mr. Mbogoh: Through you, Sir, I ask him to do so, for the House.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I still stand on one particular point: that when there are exemptions, if there are exemptions, the person to be exempted from paying taxes, then that person is issued with an exemption certificate. If there is not, then the person is not exempted. That is the point I have in mind.

Now the question is that I will not promise here, I will go to the office, and get that person, if there is such person with exemption, then the certificate must be issued for the exemption.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order. I think the Minister is twisting my words in such a way that he wants to get away with it. He says that he does not want to get an exempted person from the office and bring him here, but I did not ask for an exempted person; it is the exemption certificate itself that I want.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Mbogoh, you know that unsatisfactory answer does not give you a point of order. Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 186: CERTIFICATES FOR G.P.T. EXEMPTIONS

Mr. Cheboiwo: On a point of order, I wish to raise this on adjournment, because I am not satisfied.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 240

EMPLOYMENT OF FEMALES IN GOVERNMENT

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House whether he was satisfied that the number of girls employed in Ministries and Government Departments had enough work to justify their monthly salaries.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Yes, Sir.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question is: is the Minister satisfied that the present number of girls employed in Ministries and Government Departments have enough work to justify their monthly salaries—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Less noise please!

Mr. Kebaso: Just to say yes, is not satisfactory. Is he not aware that some secretaries are too many in offices, and are doing nothing?

Mr. M. Koinange: (Mr. Speaker, Sir, the questioner raised one question—"is the Minister satisfied that the present number of girls employed in Ministries and Government Departments have enough work to justify monthly salaries?" I said, yes, Sir, I am satisfied.

Mr. Kimumai arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House what basic salaries are given to the secretaries?

Mr. M. Koinange: That is a different question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not quite different, I think.

Next question.

Question No. 243

CHIEFS' HELP FOR SELF-HELP PROJECTS

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister of State, President's Office if he would tell the House how he ascertained that chiefs and sub-chiefs give response and maximum co-operation to self-help projects being carried out by the general public of their respective localities.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

From the reports that we have received from members of the Administration in the field, I am satisfied that chiefs and sub-chiefs give response and maximum co-operation to self-help projects which are carried out by the general public in their respective areas.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, and in view of the fact that the district commissioners sit on the district planning committees, would the Minister see to it that, as a matter of necessity the chiefs sit on the planning committees in their localities?

Mr. M. Koinange: That, Mr. Speaker, is a different request which did not come within this question.

Mr. Nyaberi: On a point of order, my question here is that how does the Minister make sure that the chiefs give response to these projects? How does it differ when I am asking if they can sit on the committees?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I agree that the question is how does the Minister ascertain that the chiefs co-operate in these efforts; I think that a question suggesting how they might co-operate is not irrelevant. You may not feel like answering it, Mr. Koinange.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, if the Member could say—I must, first of all really object to the word "chiefs" because it is collective throughout Kenya and unless one takes a census one should not collectively say that chiefs and sub-chiefs do this. When he says that chiefs and the district officers should take the chairs, Mr. Speaker, I think that that is a different thing. Co-operation exists but it cannot come through unless these chiefs, district commissioners and sub-chiefs and the public take part as they have been doing.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, is the Minister aware, if he wants to talk of specific chiefs, that I have a chief in my constituency who is not interested and, as a matter of fact, discourages self-help projects by telling ~~to going to by with $10,000 money they are paying~~

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, every Member of this House knows the proper place to report this sort of thing that the hon. Member has said, and if he says that when he reported to the proper place in the Administration and failed, then he can bring it here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 199

AID FOR COMPLETION OF KABIBICH SELF-HELP HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Kassa-Choon asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) if anyone from his Ministry had visited Kabibich self-help health centre since it was erected; and
- (b) was he prepared to grant Sh. 20,000 to assist in its completion as he has done to some other health centres in the Republic.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The answer to (a) is, yes, Sir.

The answer to (b) is, no, Sir.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the answer to (a) is yes, Sir, would he tell this House who was the Minister who visited that area?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question says anyone from his Ministry, and anyone from my Ministry is one of the officers. The Medical Officer of Health who is working for the Sirikwa County Council and the Acting Chief Health Inspector have been there.

The question presupposes that we know of the existence of Kabibich self-help health centre. As far as money is concerned, we do not deal with cases which have not been notified to us by the county councils, so although our officers have been there we have not been asked to give financial assistance. Therefore, if an application for financial assistance is received we shall consider the matter.

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, now that the Minister has made it clear that if the county council applies for this amount he will grant this money, will he promise the House that this will take place because I know that just now the Sirikwa County Council is doing this and I am sure that in a few months' time the Minister will receive our application? Will he now promise the House that this will be paid this year instead of in 1970?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the condition of financial assistance is that the county council should confirm that that health centre, which is built by self-help, will be adopted by the county council. If they write to that effect they will get assistance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 203

TRADE TESTING FACILITIES

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House what he was doing to make sure that Trade Testing facilities were made easily available to those interested.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Oselu-Nyalick): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

My Ministry, in conjunction with other Government Ministries, has ensured a steady rate of growth in the number of skills or trades for which applicants can be tested. This has, in effect, meant the increasing of staff and equipment at the National Industrial Vocational Training Centre in Nairobi, to a level that can cope with the increasing number of applicants for trade tests which rose from 2,178 in 1963 to 4,588, with a corresponding increase of passes from 990 or 45 per cent in all trades in 1963, to 2,532 or 55 per cent passes in 1968. At the moment, the centre has trade testing facilities for an average of 100 applicants per week, and if the demand for trade tests increases, arrangements will be made to increase the trade test facilities.

The National Industrial Vocational Training Centre has been expanding and it has been evident that at least two other centres in outlying major towns of the country should have similar but smaller institutions to cater for the applicants living within those areas. Arrangements are in hand to ensure that such institutions could be established within the next few years. Meanwhile, a team of Inspectors of Apprenticeship and Trade Testing has been making regular visits to larger towns with major industrial set-ups far from Nairobi, such as Mombasa, Nakuru and Kisumu, where workers who have applied for trade tests have been tested at their places of work.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating that reply, and knowing that very many school leavers are learning various trades on their own, and knowing that these tests are only available in the bigger towns, would the Minister, in order to reduce the expense for various students who might want to take these tests and who might be forced to suffer the expense of coming from, say, Meru to Nairobi, make sure that in places where the Ministry of Education has established technical schools, trade testing centres will be established in the rural areas, so that the expense of coming to be tested is reduced?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the moment, I do not think that there is any necessity for establishing industrial tests throughout the country, but as I have said, my Ministry is at work carrying out investigations in the major towns and nearby where facilities are available for those interested. When my officers are out on the circuit they can give these people tests if they are interested; I think those who are—whether they are in Meru or anywhere—are catered for.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 204

LABOUR OFFICE FOR MERU

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House when the Ministry was going to open a Labour Office in Meru, since employment problems were increasing in Meru.

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Oselu-Nyalick): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

At the present time, an officer stationed at Embu makes regular visits to Meru to deal with labour matters arising in Meru District. Such visits, which last one week, are made at least once a month, but it has become increasingly evident that labour problems in Meru seem to be increasing, though not at a steady rate.

My Ministry has been carrying out investigations into all aspects of labour matters requiring the attention of a Labour Officer stationed in Meru District, and if the investigations reveal that there is sufficient work to justify the establishment of an office in Meru, arrangements will be made to open an office there, subject to the availability of funds.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of that reply where the Assistant Minister accepts that employment problems are increasing in Meru, and where he says that investigations are being carried out, would he give an indication as to how long his investigations will take, and if the results are that a labour officer will be required, how soon will that labour officer be stationed there?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, I think the reply is simple, that we have seen that there is an increase of labour matters in Meru, although it is not at a steady rate and, as a result of this, there are a number of factors to go into and my officers are now investigating the possibilities of establishing a station at Meru. Once the results of the investigation are handed back to my Ministry, it will be from that report that we will decide to establish a labour office there or not soon. Therefore, it is not yet for me, Sir, to say the date exactly, but it depends on the result we are going to get since we have agreed that there is a need.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Assistant Minister is talking about labour and we in Meru could have a Labour Officer from Bungoma, from Loitokitok, Nakuru, Malindi or Kikuyu. Is the Minister suggesting that we in Meru want to offer something on the question of a labour office and that he will not recruit a Luo to come to this labour office? Quality matters and how can you qualify quality without officers?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a bit difficult to follow my hon. friend, but if at all he meant that when the office is established in Meru, we should not put in anybody, whether he is Kikuyu or anybody else, I would like to say that the Government is not concerned with who goes to Meru; it is only concerned that it gets a man from Kikuyu, Masai or anywhere who is a capable man and keen to carry out the work in Meru, so, if Government finds such a man, this man will go to Meru.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 239

EMPLOYMENT THROUGH NAIROBI LABOUR EXCHANGES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House how many persons of each sex had been employed by Government and by the City Council of Nairobi through the Government Labour Exchanges in Nairobi during each of the previous three years?

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Kubai): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The following persons of each sex were employed by Government and by the City Council of Nairobi through Government Labour Exchanges in Nairobi during each of the last three years.

[Mr. Kubai]

Males of all grades employed by Kenya Government were:—

| Year | No. |
|---------------|-----|
| 1968 | 40 |
| 1967 | 72 |
| 1966 | 57 |
| Total | 169 |

City Council of Nairobi employed only 2 male workers in 1968 but none in the previous years.

Females of all grades employed by the Kenya Government were:—

| Year | No. |
|---------------|-----|
| 1968 | 64 |
| 1967 | 97 |
| 1966 | 46 |
| Total | 208 |

Females of all grades employed by City Council of Nairobi were:—

| Year | No. |
|---------------|-----|
| 1968 | 7 |
| 1967 | 9 |
| 1966 | 5 |

My Ministry has been trying to encourage not only the Government Departments and local authorities but also employers in the private sector to recruit their labour through the country's labour exchanges and it is hoped that the exchanges will be more utilized by employers of labour than they are at the moment.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is astonishing that such a very small number of Government departments are using Government labour exchange. This shows that the labour exchange, both for men and women, is mainly used by private firms and the Government is only using nepotism in order to get whatever material they need in the offices.

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree with the hon. Member.

Mr. Lubembe: Arising from the answer, in view of the fact that all of us are aware that for the last three years Government has employed a lot of people, what machinery was the Government using to employ all the people in Government instead of through the labour exchange. What machinery was Government using?

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, whenever there were new jobs in Government, they were advertised in the papers, and all the job-seekers went to the offices where they were employed for these jobs.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell this House whether his Ministry has not been receiving complaints from various sources concerning the present machinery that is being used in giving posts to various people? Therefore it is high time when his Ministry should change the present machinery. It should be altered Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Kubai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not really follow the question of the hon. Member, but all that we have is that we do not and we cannot make it compulsory for the would-be employers to use the labour exchanges.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from one of the replies that the Minister has given to the House this afternoon, is it not true that even labourers are still being recruited in the Ministries without the question of referring them to the labour exchange, and that it is high time for the Ministry of Labour to abolish these labour exchange because they are meaningless.

Mr. Kubai: I do not agree with the hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Shikuku.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 239: EMPLOYMENT THROUGH NAIROBI LABOUR EXCHANGES

Mr. Karungaru: With the permission of the hon. Member who had asked this question, I would like to raise it on a Motion of adjournment.

Mr. Kebaso: With all my blessing, I would like him to do it as quickly as possible to propose this question.

Question No. 237

NON-CITIZEN TRADERS IN KAKAMEGA TOWN

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House:—

- How many non-citizen traders had been served with notice to quit in Kakamega Town.
- Were there any non-citizen traders who were still trading in Kakamega; if so, how many.
- Should the answer to (b) had been in the affirmative, why.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Eleven traders were served with notices to wind up their businesses in Kakamega Town.

(b) Yes, there are 50 non-citizen traders still trading in Kakamega. (c) The reason for the gradual change, Mr. Speaker, is to ensure that the services provided to the public will not be disrupted by the programme of Africanization.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, will the Minister tell the House the type of quit notices which were given to what type of Asians. Is it not to some of the very poor useless traders they were given, but the real big businesses, which could go to the Africans, are still being held by the non-citizens?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, let me say this. If we gave notices to traders who were holding the businesses which were obviously within the reach of the local traders who would not be available to take them over, then I would like to assure the Member that this programme has not come to an end. That is the first phase and we shall move to the second phase fairly shortly.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that there are traders in Kakamega District who are willing—and that is why I called a conference the other day—to take up all the trade in Kakamega District on a partnership basis. This is not being encouraged by the civil servants there, particularly the district commissioner?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of the gossip which the Member is trying to insinuate—I call it gossip, Mr. Speaker, because the hon. Member has not substantiated it. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in Kakamega, how should I say, I did not mention the district commissioner when I made my reply.

Mr. Shikuku: Is the Member in order to call my statement gossip when I can substantiate? Is it not time I substantiated that it is not gossip and that there are traders who can take up this trade? Would he give me that chance to give him figures and facts now?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is quite a good point of order. You can actually deny a Member's statement as untrue, but otherwise it is not a bad thing to ask you to substantiate. Do you deny it is untrue, you do?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that the 11 notices were given in Kakamega Town not in Kakamega District. There were many more notices given in Kakamega District as a whole. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we still have to have these traders to take up these 11 opportunities created in Kakamega, and if the facts were what the hon. Member for Butere would like us to believe they are, it is quite clear that these 11 traders should have been taken over by now.

Mr. Lawi: Arising from the answer, Mr. Speaker, as it is known that only 11 Asians were given notices and 50 were left, is the Minister satisfied that the Act we passed here is helping people in Kakamega?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am satisfied that this rate of change is what the people whom the Member is speaking for, are proving able to absorb. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would be failing in our duty as the Government, and particularly in the administration of the law if we were to close up all these shops without enough people being available at once to take them over. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have had experiments in other places where our own people, the farmer, the ordinary man in the street, has been afraid to complain where the services have been disrupted. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is fair that the administration of the Act should be viewed without too much emotion.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that even the names of the 11 Asians who have been given notices to quit have not been notified to the people and that the administrators in Kakamega Town are trying to hide all these names so that they may take over this business.

Mr. Shikuku: Yes! Yes! And some of them have already been taken.

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like with your permission to ask the hon. Member to substantiate this very vicious allegation, that the administration is not informing the people, but rather that the administration is itself hiding and trying to take over the businesses. Mr. Speaker, we have had too much of these kinds of allegations against the Civil Service, and with your permission I should ask the Member to substantiate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you substantiate Mr. Muruli?

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Provincial Trade Officer has taken over a bar in Amalemba Estate.

Mr. Shikuku: What have they got to say?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! That does not appear to me to be substantiation of what you alleged, that the administration are deliberately concealing from the local people the opportunities they have for taking over businesses. Can you really substantiate that?

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the shops were taken over by the Government, the Trade Officer has not called any meeting of the Kakamega traders to tell them that such-and-such an Asian has been taken over, or that So-and-so has been taken over, and so come forward. The whole thing has been hidden and no one knows what has been taken over or what has happened, and since one of the trade officers has taken over one of the shops, people are suspicious that they did not want to sell them off.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All you have been able to tell us Mr. Muruli may amount to evidence that the administration is not being as efficient or active as it might be in the work, but to allege deliberate concealment, I do not find justified by your statement. I think you have to withdraw that. I think you have to withdraw any allegation of deliberate concealment.

Mr. Muruli: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know whether I have not substantiated enough, but the fact is that the officers have not called the people on any day, nor at any time have they been told what trade has been taken over by the Government. Is it not a fact that they have hidden the whole thing and do not want to reveal it to the people?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think you have substantiated this allegation of deliberate misconduct. So you had better withdraw it.

Mr. Muruli: I have to withdraw it, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. Since you had ruled some time ago that members of the Government, or members working with the Civil Service, civil servants are not allowed to participate in trade—and you had given a ruling to this effect—is it not correct—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Munyi. I cannot recollect my giving any such ruling nor have I any right to do so.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, here is a case where a Member is being asked to substantiate. Suppose another Member, like me, who comes from the same district, is prepared to substantiate would I be allowed to do this, Sir?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No. Hon. Members are responsible for the accuracy of what they allege in this House, and they must be prepared, themselves, to show that they themselves knew that what they were alleging was true. That is the meaning of substantiation, and it cannot be done for them by somebody else who may know more than the Member concerned.

Question No. 242

INVESTMENTS IN STANDARD BANK LTD.

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would tell the House—

(a) how much capital investment from South Africa the former Standard Bank of South Africa, now known as the Standard Bank, had in Kenya;

(b) how much now still remained with the same bank with the new name.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Standard Bank Limited is a public company registered in the United Kingdom, and its branches in Kenya are controlled by the parent company in the United Kingdom. Therefore, Sir, it does not have any connexions, other than those I have just mentioned, with the Standard Bank of South Africa.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is it not true that although this bank is registered in the United Kingdom, and the branches are controlled from there, that formerly South Africa had a much larger share of capital investment in the former Standard Bank of South Africa Limited which now has changed its name to the Standard Bank Limited? Is it not true that there is still South African money in this bank?

Mr. Kibaki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the hon. Member is misinformed by whoever gave him this history.

The Standard Bank Limited is a company incorporated in London, in the United Kingdom. It has branches all over the world. It has a branch in South Africa.

When the Member says that the Standard Bank in Kenya has South African money, he is wrong. The Standard Bank in Kenya is registered here and invests money in this country, either from the parent company in London or from the deposits which maybe the hon. Member and other people in this country put there.

That is what there is to it.

Question No. 149

ALLOCATION OF HOUSES IN KIBERA HOUSING SCHEME

Mr. Karungaru asked the Minister for Housing if he would tell the House—

(a) what the reason was for the refund of Nairobi residents' deposit of Sh. 500 paid on the self-help housing schemes at Kibera;

[Mr. Karungaru]

(b) if the Minister was satisfied with the present exercise of allocating the houses in the scheme in question.

The Assistant Minister for Housing (Mr. Rurumban): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Before applications were invited for this housing scheme, it was agreed that only applicants within a certain income group would be considered to participate in the scheme. Those whose money was returned were the applicants who were not within the agreed income group. It should also be noted that there were 1,900 applications for the 200 houses advertised.

(b) The system of allocating houses in the scheme was thoroughly discussed by officials of my Ministry and of the corporation, and is the best that could be devised in handling such a large number of applicants. I am satisfied with this exercise.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I want to ask one question before I ask the other.

Sir, is it not true that the Ministry was aware, before it received money in the form of deposits from the people who advanced this money, that they were not in a credit-worthy position and their money should not have been accepted by the Ministry? What made the Ministry receive the money and keep it for some time before returning it, if there was nothing fishy here?

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, there was nothing wrong in the Ministry advertising the scheme. Anybody who was able to meet the required amount was eligible for it.

It is true, at the same time, Mr. Speaker, that due to a great shortage of houses in the country at present, whenever there is any advertisement for houses, well we get a much larger number of applicants than we require for the scheme.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister specifically tell this House how long this money was lying with the Ministry before it was refunded?

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether this is not a separate question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I think it is a different question.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, what I am demanding to know from the Assistant Minister is to tell the House why the Ministry received the money, and how long this money was with the Ministry before it was refunded? Was this money refunded with interest?

Mr. Rurumban: Mr. Speaker, in order to make the hon. Member understand the position better I will give him this information.

The National Housing Corporation has several schemes which meet the needs of various income groups. For example, some schemes have houses selling for more than £5,000. Woodley Phase I is one of such schemes. There are also medium-cost houses, such as Moi Estate and Woodley Phase II which sell for between £2,200 and £4,000. There are also schemes such as Otiende/Kibera Tenant Purchase and Kibera Self-help Scheme, where houses cost between £600 and £1,500.

The present policy which the Government pursues, Sir, is to encourage people to buy the houses which they can afford. For example, if a person earns about £2,000 or more and he applies for a house in a self-help scheme, his application is unlikely to succeed. People who have such incomes will find that their applications for houses in these schemes will not be successful.

As far as this particular question is concerned, if the hon. Member has grievances, as he indicates, well, I would ask him to come to my office and I will investigate.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, now that the Assistant Minister has given such a clear indication of his Ministry's intention, is it not true that when a question comes to this House it is public property and we should not be told to come to the Minister's office when we have asked the question for it to be answered in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have told hon. Members so many times during the past six years that they cannot, as a matter of order, insist on any particular quality of answer to a question, or even any answer at all. They may be dissatisfied, but it does not give them a point of order.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am trying to seek your guidance here. Many times we are told by the Ministers, when we ask questions, that if we have any grievances we should see them in their offices. Is that really in order? They refer us to their own offices for discussions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have told you that an answer, however unsatisfactory, is still in order. I know hon. Members do not like this kind of answer, and they register their dissatisfaction in various ways; but not as a point of order.

Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 149: ALLOCATION OF HOUSES IN KIBERA HOUSING SCHEME

Mr. Mury: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I have been listening very attentively. Therefore, if the hon. Member who tabled the question can allow me, I would like to raise it as a Motion on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Karungaru.

Mr. Karungaru: I will give it my blessing.

Question No. 224

COST OF PROPOSED FREE PRIMARY EDUCATION

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education to tell the House if the Ministry had calculated what the cost of free primary education in Kenya would be and by what year the Kenya Government might reach the target.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Free primary education is one of the very cherished aims of the country and, therefore, Mr. Speaker, with your permission, I will give a rather lengthy reply to the question in order to give the House the full picture of how much it would cost and why we cannot, at present, put it into effect.

It is estimated, Sir, that it would cost the Government £20 million each year for recurrent costs and £14 million for capital costs if free education were to be provided. The following details show how we arrive at these figures.

Recurrent Expenditure.—(a) On the present basis, there is an aggregate enrolment of 1,292,100 pupils in our primary schools. Since only about 68 per cent of the primary school age children are now enrolled in schools, it can be assumed that should there be free and compulsory primary education, there would be a total enrolment of about 1,800,000 pupils in schools, that is nearly two million children.

(b) On the basis of fee revenue of an average of £3 per pupil which is the present average, this will mean that a total of £5,400,000 will be collected as fee revenue. If there is to be free education, this sum will then be required as additional grant to the Ministry of Local Government and county councils to enable them to run the schools, in place of the fees which now they collect.

(c) On the basis of present ratio, which we try to utilize for development, which is approximately one teacher for 32 pupils, it is considered that on student population of 1,800,000, at total of 56,250 teaching staff will be required. The salary cost of these teachers roughly has been estimated to be £13,350,000.

The total recurrent cost on the basis of the foregoing will be:—

| | £ |
|---------------------------|-------------|
| Loss of fee revenue .. | 5,400,000 |
| Teachers' salaries .. | 13,000,000 |
| School equipment .. | 1,350,000 |
| Miscellaneous expenses .. | 250,000 |
| Total .. | £20,000,000 |

Capital Costs.—On the increase of pupil enrolment to 1,800,000, it is reckoned that another 2,000 classes each year will be required. If each school of seven classes with ancillary facilities can cost about £5,000, then the additional capital cost will be about £14 million.

Therefore, Sir, we have calculated the costs and we find that the recurrent cost is £20 million and the capital cost £14 million.

I should then add that in terms of the teachers, even in the present situation, we are using about one-third of our teaching staff at the primary school level, those persons who are untrained teachers. So we are even short of teachers at this present stage.

That is the situation, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Godia: Arising out of that satisfactory reply of the Minister, will he consider incorporating within the next Development Plan provision for free primary education up to Standard VII?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would hate to give false promises. It would mean such heavy taxation to raise £20 million just like that and that is why it is a matter on which I would not like to promise anything. It is a matter for the Government to keep on considering and not for one Minister to decide on as an empty promise.

Mr. Gikunju: This being the estimates of the expenses required for free education in primary schools, what steps is the Government taking to see that these calculations, these figures can be reached in order that we can provide free primary education?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should explain one thing in relation to what the hon. Member has said. This House, I think, has said several times that first things come first. I think the biggest problem we have today is not so much about primary education but secondary places for those who finish primary education. Most of the amount of money given to my Ministry goes for the expansion of secondary schools because that is where the crisis is actually at present.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Godia.

Question No. 223

EX-M.P.S SEEKING RE-ELECTION

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the wording of this question is very different from my original question, may I please be allowed to withdraw the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did not hear you. Did you say you wanted to raise your own question on the adjournment?

Mr. Godia: No, Sir, I said the question here was differently worded and, therefore, the meaning would also, probably, be different. In view of that, I would like your leave to withdraw the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

(Question No. 223 was withdrawn)

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 224:
COST OF PROPOSED FREE PRIMARY EDUCATION

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Sir, in view of the fact that our people would like to see that there is free education at the Standard I and Standard II level, I would like to raise this on an adjournment in order to let the Minister know the position.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can give me notice of your desire to raise it on adjournment, yes.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

DENIAL OF ALLEGATIONS OF AFFILIATION ORDER

Mr. Asiba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday, during the debate on the Affiliation Act, in my absence, hon. Munyasia took advantage of my absence and made wild and serious allegations against my person.

He alleged that I and other Members of Parliament as well as Ministers of the Government have shown interest in this Bill—supported it—because we have been affiliated.

He further alleged that I was in the court at Makadara, in his presence, and that an Affiliation Order was issued against me.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! I am very surprised hon. Members are finding this an occasion for laughter. I do not believe, when an allegation of this kind has been made against them, whether true or untrue, they think it very funny. Let us treat this matter with respect, please.

Mr. Asiba: I was saying that he further alleged that I and other Members of Parliament, as well as Ministers of this Government, were supporting this Bill—this outgoing Act—because we have been affiliated.

Then he said that I was at Makadara Court and an Affiliation Order was made against me, and that I was still paying under this order.

He then went on to allege that he knew of children in my name in Dr. Barnardo's Home, Starehe Boys' Home and such other places, Edelvale, and so on. He said I was paying for these children who had my name.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious allegation, in fact, Sir, all of them are, because, to the best of my knowledge, I have never been in any court of law to defend myself or to sue somebody else for that matter, for somebody having interfered with a lady I was connected with.

I am also not paying any money to anybody, nor am I paying money for maintenance for anybody in any of the homes.

I say this is serious because it could lead to serious disruption of a family.

Now what I am asking, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is for the Member to substantiate by giving the name of the lady involved or ladies for that matter. He should also give the name of the child or children who were born as a result of that. He should quote the case number and the date on which it was held, plus the name of the magistrate who actually attended the case. He should clarify this for the House to know whether I have actually committed this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am not going to invite Mr. Munyasia to give all those further particulars in this House. I am first of all going to ask him whether, in view of Mr. Asiba's statement, he acknowledges that what he said yesterday was untrue, that is to say that he was present in court when an Affiliation Order was made against Mr. Asiba.

Mr. Munyasia: Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when you ask for trouble, you have it. Is it not true, according to the statement made by the hon. Asiba, that he—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not asking you to ask questions, I am asking you to say whether you still persist in your allegation that you were present in court when Mr. Asiba was made the subject of an Affiliation Order at Makadara.

Mr. Munyasia: Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I was there the case was withdrawn and I was going to go further and give the name of the lady and also the father of the lady and so on.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Only one thing I want to have absolutely clear: Do you still persist in what you said yesterday, that you were present in court when an order was made against Mr. Asiba or do you not?

Mr. Munyasia: I withdraw that part of being present, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members, we have had enough and too much of these disgraceful allegations completely unfounded. I have to name Mr. Munyasia for gross misconduct.

Order. Will a Minister please move that Mr. Munyasia be suspended from the service of the House.

Mr. Ochwada: On a point of order, Mr. Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Ochwada, no point of order at this moment, I am too busy with a point of order. Will you move please, Mr. Kibaki.

MOTION

SUSPENSION OF HON. MEMBER FROM THE SERVICE OF THE HOUSE

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the procedure of this House, I beg to move that the hon. Mr. Munyasia be suspended from the service of this House.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange) seconded.

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will put the question which is that Mr. Munyasia be suspended from the service of this House.

(Question put and agreed to)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Munyasia, you are suspended from the service of this House for three days, that is three sitting days including today. You may not, therefore, return to the precincts of the Assembly until next Wednesday, 18th of June 1969.

Order. Please go now Mr. Munyasia.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20.

SOUTH NYANZA TEACHERS' SIT-DOWN STRIKE

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order 20, with your permission, Sir, I would like to raise a matter of national importance regarding the go-slow or sit-down strike of teachers in South Nyanza which started eight days ago, and the children, all over the whole district are not getting any education. First of all, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister for Local Government revealed that, although they have sent £14,000 to the County Council of South Nyanza, this is not going to be enough to pay the teachers. Applications were made for more money to be granted to Local Government to pay the teachers but because these applications were not attended to, there is no money available for these teachers for the next unknown number of days. Mr. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Secretary of the National Union of Teachers has also—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I know you are seeking to raise this matter under Standing Order 20, but that does not enable you to raise it now. You want to raise it under Standing Order 20?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Yes, Sir. Thank you.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, as you are aware, we can only allow this procedure of adjournment of the House under Standing Order 20 on matters of extreme urgency. There is no doubt about the definite nature of the matter here although I have got a little doubt about the degree of urgency, but, if as Mr. Ngala-Abok assures me, a large number of teachers are already engaged in a semi-strike in this district, then I think it is of sufficient urgency to justify this procedure. If, therefore, 15 or more Members think it to be of sufficient national importance to justify it, I will allow him to move the adjournment.

(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Yes, Mr. Ngala-Abok, you may move the adjournment of the House at about 6 p.m. today.

Order! Order. Mr. Kibaki.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

SUBSTANTIATION OF ALLEGATION: MINORS BEING SHAREHOLDERS

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise on a point of order to substantiate a remark I made yesterday

[The Minister for Commerce and Industry] which was then challenged by the Member for Mombasa South, Mr. Omar, regarding the fact that some companies had alleged that a child born only four years ago was a majority shareholder in a company and he said that I should substantiate. I would like to give the facts now.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the company in question is situated in Machakos on Syokimau Avenue and it is called Amratlal Vasanji. In their appeal—because Mr. Speaker, Sir, the matter arose in connexion with appeals—the ground for appeal is that the majority shareholding is held by a Kenya citizen and therefore the licence should not be refused. I am not going to repeat what I said that these things were changed fairly recently; but the names of shareholders as given on this appeal form are as follows: (i) Amratlal Vasanji who is a British citizen, (ii) Kantagauri Amratlal Vasanji who is a British citizen and (iii) Lata Aratlal Vasanji who is a Kenya citizen according to the statement here.

The trade officers had then to get further facts regarding the shareholding of these partners and it was stated in this written document from the company that the two first-named persons held 20 per cent of the shares each and that Lata Vasanji held 60 per cent of the shares. He, therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, wanted further evidence on why Lata Vasanji was said to be a citizen. It was said that she is an automatic citizen because she was born in Kenya and it became necessary to seek evidence to show that she was born in Kenya. We were, therefore, supplied with a birth certificate of which we have a photostat copy here. This is Certificate No. 259973 and in it is shown that this child was born in Machakos, Eastern Province, on the 9th day of November 1965.

Hon. Members: How is that? You said 1964.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Now, Mr. Speaker—1965—in fact I erred a little because I had said it was 1964.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not, by introducing this, want to imply in any way that this is a common practice of all traders. I only want to confirm that we have had cases which have increased our suspicions regarding the nature and constitution of the shareholding in these partnerships which are claimed to be citizens. That is all that I was saying. I am not making general allegation against traders as such, but we have these problems and that is why we have been so critical, because we wanted to be thorough in the investigations regarding the appeals. Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that we would not like to lay on the Table the whole of this file, and I have not had time to take photostat copies, could I give it to the Clerk who could photostat the relevant parts and give me back the rest of the file?

Hon. Members: Why?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You have actually laid on the Table this Birth Certificate?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the only paper you have actually laid on the Table?

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): That is right.

(The hon. Minister laid the paper on the Table)

BILLS

Second Reading

THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

(The Attorney-General on 10th June 1969)

(Resumption of Debate interrupted on 11th June 1969)

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am glad that you have allowed me to speak on this Bill which has raised a lot of interest in the country.

You know this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that during these last two days when this Bill has been debated, the galleries have been full because of the interest people have taken in this Bill. The interest, of course, is that there are some people who support the Bill for their own reason, and others feel that this Bill should not be repealed.

I rise, Sir, in full support of the repeal of this Bill.

An hon. Member: You are a good lawyer.

Mr. Gatuguta: However good this law may be in another country, I think it is not good for an African society. The intention of the Bill at the beginning, Mr. Speaker, Sir, was to deter the male sex from interfering with the female sex which resulted in pregnancies and the birth of children. Now that has failed through experience. The legislature in those days must have had very good intentions about this; but experience now shows that it has failed; that you cannot solve this very crucial social problem by legislation of this nature. We must continue to live the way we used to live in the olden days, where the African society used to control their children, males and females alike, in such a manner that there was no immorality as it has come about today.

[Mr. Gatuguta]

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, legislation cannot solve this social problem. What is required, Sir, is character, and also morality. This can only come about if the parents of these children look after their children when they are born. After educating them, say, they must also look after them in the city where they go to look for employment and so forth. It is not a question of legislation. This law has been abused more than any other law in this country. The women have blackmailed men everywhere because of this legislation, particularly in the city. We cannot allow women to commercialize our society by legislation of this nature. I know that certain women feel very strongly about it because they think that this law protects women but, in fact, it does not protect women. What it does is merely to encourage them to go after men in order to get more money. I would appeal to these women who are opposed to the repeal of the Affiliation Act to understand that it has spoilt more women; it has done more harm to women than good. What we should think about, Sir, is the question of the children who are born.

We know that women should always expect to get married and that in this respect, they are protected by the Law of Contract already. According to the Law of Contract, if there is an understanding between a man and a female that they are going to get married, and finally the man deserts her, there is a breach of contract, and according to the existing law, the female can always get a remedy. Therefore, women should not feel that before the Affiliation Act was passed they had no protection; they have always been protected.

I think what we must consider, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the point that has been raised by other speakers here of cases where an accident takes place and a child is born. What is to be done about it? Sir, we all feel, and I think very many people will support this one, that the Government must devise a method where such children will be protected by the Government, by our society, but it should not be a question of saying that a woman has a right to go to a court of law and get judgment in her favour to get so much money and so forth. That is not good. What I think we must think about is how to protect the children. When a child is born in a society, any society whatever, it has a right to be protected by the Government, by the State, and to grow to manhood like anybody else. Therefore, the State has a grave responsibility to look after those children.

Now, the Minister for Social Services did mention that something is being done or something is going to be done in this matter. I would like to emphasize that this is very important. This can be done in various ways: we have community development officers all over the country, social workers all over the country and these are the people who should build some institutions in those areas where the children who have been born in this manner can be looked after by the State, not by their mothers. The State then—the Government if you like, if you do not understand what I mean by the State—should be able to look after those children and actually, physically feed them instead of giving money to the mother of the child because some of this money has been misappropriated. They should physically feed those children; either the mother is given food to go and give to the children, or the children are put in institutions in various districts where they are centred. If we do that then, the children will be looked after properly; they will be educated by the State, and the women will be left alone because the more they suffer, the more they will think of getting married. These days, some women get money from men, some get from five to ten men, they do not think of marrying, they think of being independent all the time. I think the time has come for this legislation to be repealed. I know and I have heard of some cases where women have been getting money from four to five people at the same time because of blackmail. If we go on like this, Sir, we shall merely continue to make men slaves of the women; we do not want to make anybody a slave of anybody in this country. We want everybody to lead a free life. When this inducement is removed from the female sex, they will learn to lead an independent life, without depending on men; they will try to work hard to earn their own living by their own ability, and they will learn to look for men to whom they can get married and lead a family life.

This legislation has made a lot of women in the city look like—I do not know what—anyway the point is, they live a very comfortable life here in the city; they have no families; they have no worries about their children because their children are being educated by men; they do not think of working or looking for jobs; they do not pay taxes; all these things, Sir. Now, is this a method of creating a stable society? It is not. We would like to see our women living in the city in the way they live in the reserve. They lead decent lives there and a girl only goes out when she is looking for a man to marry. No doubt, they exist here also, but the normal thing in the reserve, in the countryside, is that girls are decent; they only go out to look for men for marriage reasons. Here in the cities it is not to look for a man to get married, it is for something else, it is for the purpose of seeking men and so on. I would like to say that, personally, I have never been affected by this Affiliation Act and so nobody can say that I have any interest at all. I am only interested in, "the welfare of society and the just government of men".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That does include women you know.

Mr. Gatuguta: Yes, it does.

Mr. Shikuku: In view of your remarks, Mr. Speaker, that this is for "the welfare of society and the just government of men", and you said that it includes women, is it not time that we made an amendment to the writing on the wall so that it includes women?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, I think that all hon. Members understand that the word "men" is used in the generic sense, it means mankind which includes the weaker sex.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, having said these things, I would urge the Government very, very strongly, particularly the Ministries concerned, to introduce legislation in this House as soon as possible to protect the children. I think this House will agree with me that the welfare of the children is the most important thing, but the method which is being used now under the Affiliation laws is wrong because it does not protect the children at all. A Bill to protect the children should be brought to this House immediately, before the end of this session, so that we can also debate it and eliminate the fears which are there among a certain section of our community—that the children will be left unprotected. Now, the question may be asked as to where is the Government going to get the money to look after these children. I would not mind myself if the Act which it is proposed to be introduced into this House legislates that if it is established beyond any doubt that a man has been responsible for the birth of a child, he should pay a certain amount of money to the Government for the welfare of this child. That is necessary because if a man commits this sort of thing then, of course, he should be held responsible for it.

Again, Sir, it is also important to know that this kind of offence is never committed by only one side of the party; it is a two-party activity and, therefore, if the question of the welfare of the children comes in, the two parties concerned must be made to pay for the expense of maintaining the children.

Therefore, Sir, with those few remarks, I wish to support the Bill as it is.

Mr. Tsalawa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although this Affiliation Act has been brought to this House at the wrong time, when the National Assembly is to be dissolved between now and 1970—

An hon. Member: Who said that?

An hon. Member: Can you substantiate that?

Mr. Tsalwa: I think the hon. Members should be patient and hear what I am going to say. We have been assured through the Head of State's statement made in this House, and also in the Press, and also in our Parliamentary Group meetings, about the dissolution of the National Assembly of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, I should like to be protected from these people here.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member who has been in this House for a long time to refer to these hon. Members as "these people here"?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not in order, but he had some excuse I think.

Mr. Tsalwa: He is a man of four wives and so he should keep quiet.

Mr. Speaker, I said that this was a controversial Bill to be brought to this House at this time, because it is going to frustrate, if it is going to be passed, all the women, particularly those who took part in fighting against the colonial régime who went as far as trying to get armaments from those people, particularly those whites who were in this country, you know, by selling their sacred bodies.

Mr. Speaker, while saying that this is a controversial Bill to be brought here, I strongly support it. While supporting it, I would like to say that there are seven provinces in this country and possibly there are two provinces from which these women come to live in Nairobi, Mombasa, Kisumu and other towns in the country. You know very well that men are attracted to go to them and they ask for money and that is why these children have been born.

Mr. Speaker, while I support the Bill, I would like to make some points which I have in mind. If this Affiliation Act is going to be abolished, and I think three-quarters of the House are in favour of its being abolished, the Government of the country should bear the following in mind. They should see that no more abortions are going to be done by those unlucky women and girls who are going to conceive from men who live in the towns. In fact, before this Act was enacted, very many, many women conceived and they aborted many children. This is completely against the African way of life. A child should be born and be brought up to live and serve the country.

Mr. Speaker, the second point I would like, while abolishing this Act, is that many children are going to be thrown into latrines, lavatories, bushes and drains and along the streets, as they used to be. I would like the Government to consider this so that these children are not destroyed. I know it is a very serious offence to throw away a child or kill it and do such things, because most of the women—particularly those girls from school—do not like it to be known that they have children and so they usually tend to destroy them so that they look good so that they are followed by men.

Also, Mr. Speaker, we would not like the country to have children who have no guardians. We will be asking for trouble if the Government does not think of another way in which this Act can be replaced, as some of the hon. Members have expressed themselves in this House.

Mr. Speaker, this Act was enacted during the colonial régime and the reason was to safeguard the European women in this country. Now that we have our own Government, and a greater number of our girls and women are in these towns which I have already mentioned a few minutes ago, I do not think—

Mr. ole Kipury: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member speaking has alleged that this Act was enacted during the colonial days to safeguard the European women, how far is that true and could he substantiate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think we must regard that as an expression of opinion.

Mr. Tsalwa: I say this because I was one of the commissioners on the committee on the law of marriage and divorce which took place throughout the country, and even in his district, and this was expressed, particularly by the chairman of that commission. This is why this Act was made.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like to bring it to the notice of the House that it would be much better if some homes were established on a provincial or district level so that any expectant, unmarried woman could be kept in these places, and as soon as she has given birth to her child then immediately the Government should take over the looking after of the child until it grows into a big man.

An hon. Member: Where is the money for that?

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, it is not a waste at all because if you go on breeding children who have no fathers and mothers, for that matter, you are asking for more trouble. The Government should make a law that women that expect to give birth to children by mistake, should go into some homes so that the Government could spend a certain amount of money in order to save the lives of the children.

Mr. Speaker, I know very well that last year we passed a vital Bill in this House, but this one has not been very effective at all over the country because we still have these women floating here and there, and these are the women who go on dropping children here and there in the big towns.

I think the Attorney-General should think always of seeing that these women are stamped out completely from our big towns.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: How, how?

Mr. Tsalwa: Well, someone is asking me, Mr. Speaker, how. It is some of these people—I do not know who they are—who go out asking for these women. You remember that Dr. Hastings Banda at one time warned his Government officials, and Members of Parliament, not to use their big positions and cars for exploiting girls and women in his country. It is men who first go to these women.

Mr. Shikuku: How about yourself?

Mr. Tsalwa: No, someone asks about myself. I am completely written off.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to say a few words in support of this very important Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill is very, very important because it touches on a social problem which this Government had to face within the present outlook. We inherited this Bill from the former Government and we did not know the intentions, and the reasons behind this legislation were not clear to us, after seeing the implementation of this Bill in various courts in the country, especially in Makadara. Makadara today is famous—not for the place itself—but for the type of cases which come under this legislation. Mr. Speaker, I find it has served its purpose, because although we are told the intention was to support the children who are born by mistake, Mr. Speaker, the people it was intended to benefit are not benefiting from this Bill.

I do not want to say anything about the Bill being abused by the various women who are the recipients of the contributions the men are doling out in support of the children. I have a lot of sympathy with the women's organizations for the concern they appear to feel, but the ladies who are leading most of the women's organizations, although their intentions are correct that the children must be protected, I will agree with them but they have not gone very far to see that each child who is supposed to receive this money which the men are paying, are actually receiving the money. They have circulated a paper here, but this paper is empty. There is nothing in it to show there are so many children in Nairobi who are receiving these amounts, so much money is going to these children and where the children are. There is nothing in the paper apart from an appeal that we should not abolish the Bill but should delay it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know very well that this kind of appeal does not help at all. Therefore, it is not that we do not realize the children must be protected, but the women's organizations have failed totally to convince us they are protecting the children who are today supposed to receive this money. We know some of the women are our sisters, and some of the men who are paying this monthly instalments to support their children know very well the money is not going there. The money which is paid goes into buying wigs, or Ambi and all this funny stuff and the children are not receiving anything. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if this Bill was designed to protect children, it is not serving its purpose. We must have a new look altogether as to how these children can be protected.

There is no other way of doing so except to kill this ineffective Bill. If the ladies who are behind the women's organizations have any suggestions, then this is the right time to come forward with them as to how we can protect these children in a new Bill. We should not hang on to this Bill which benefits their own sex more by exploiting the men and the children. We, as people who are legislating, cannot allow this to continue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a few suggestions to make to the Attorney-General. We know the children who are the subject of this discussion, are the children who are not wanted. When two people meet and do whatever they do which results in the birth of a child, neither the man nor the woman was prepared to go into this act to have children. They just go for pleasure and this results in children. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, from the day the child is born, it is unwanted. This poor child is unfortunate because he comes into a world where he is not wanted. This is the principle and is where any Bill must be realistic. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know the Government now is spending a lot of money in giving out free birth control pills; there are birth control clinics, there are birth control whatever they are, and, Mr. Speaker, there are new methods coming out every day through the doctors on effective ways of stopping unwanted children, either in the homes where you are told to space your children or if you do not want to have them at all, there are ways by which you can stop that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I encourage this. Anyone who does not want children should not be forced to have them if he can afford to maintain them. Having money does not necessarily mean you like children. There are people who have a lot of money but who prefer to have dogs or cats instead of children. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if these children are not wanted, then I feel they should not be born at all. One suggestion I would make to the Attorney-General is that when two parties have made a mistake, and one turns on the other saying there is an Affiliation Bill and the man will be forced to pay to maintain the child who even the mother does not want, instead of that, I would like the Attorney-General to come out with a law which would legalize abortion. If birth control pills have failed and the mistake has become bigger, and the mother has conceived then the law should be there so that if she does not want the child it need not be brought into the world where it is not wanted. Therefore, abortion must be legalized.

I do not see how the Members can say birth control is all right because it prevents the formation of a baby, but cannot agree on abortion because the two things are the same. Once we agree on birth control, then we have already agreed on the principle of preventing babies from coming to this world and, therefore, it is a question of method. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say much because this is a biological fact. We cannot say just because the Affiliation Act has been abolished there will be no more pregnancies. These are continuing; even now as we talk, things are happening somewhere. The abolition of this Act is not the medicine. If we do not want babies to be brought into this world where nobody wants them, not even the Government because they have no money to say everybody can go, it is free for all the babies should be brought to the Government who will maintain them. No Government would give such approval.

Mr. Speaker, this is very serious and I do not see why if we agree the babies should not be protected, they should be brought into the world. I agree this particular legislation is wrong, but if the intention we have is not to bring unwanted babies into the world then we must help them not to come here. Mr. Speaker, even if we say the Government should establish homes, I would like to know of any Member here who is proud to be in this world without knowing he has a father and without being proud of his father. Even if you place them in golden castles, even if the Government houses them in the best places, if these gentlemen do not have a father to be proud of, or they cannot point a finger and say So-and-so is the father, Mr. Speaker, then I do not think they are fit human beings. We should not bring these babies into the world and call them institution babies. Every father and mother must be proud of the child, and I do not see any reason why even Members should suggest mothers should have babies and then the Government should take them over. Mr. Speaker, up to now it is only a question of economics. I cannot see any African who is really the father of the baby rejecting the boy, or ignoring the boy if he has the means to maintain him or allow him to be put in Barnardo's Home. I have not met any man of that calibre. Anyone who has a child is proud of it; they may ignore it for two or three months, but after some time he will one day go and claim his child. This is why adoption in Kenya, or East Africa, is not working. No mother will allow her child to go and be adopted and be told never to go to the place, and never claim the baby; they have to sign a paper to say the baby is no longer theirs. One day she will go there and create a lot of trouble saying the child belongs to her. No stroke of a pen can make that child not to belong to her.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what we are trying to say about all these homes, Dr. Barnardo's or Jahazi's or what, none of these will solve the problem. The laws should be made in such a way that only those who want children, who are ready to maintain them, should bring children into this world. Those who do not want children should not be forced to have them. The law should be made flexible. Science has helped and there are now so many ways with which to avoid babies. We have already on the principle of avoiding unwanted babies; in our homes, wives are taking birth control pills and the Government is spending a lot of money to prevent babies from being born. Doctors are devising methods everywhere so that babies will not be brought into the world, so we should be bolder. We are bold but we should be bolder and introduce an abortion law which will help our daughters. I am not speaking as a man who has no experience, as I am the father of daughters. Without this law—

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, what can we do when a Member keeps on repeating? Do we allow him to repeat or do we order him to sit down and let other Members speak?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You do not do anything because the Speaker will look after him.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, if the Member has some points and if he has not spoken, he is lucky because as he says I am repeating, then I am leaving more points for him to speak on. He should give me my rights and let me enjoy them on this floor.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, mine is a bold suggestion which must be met if we are to solve the problem of unwanted babies. I am not talking about something on the moon, or about something which is not practised elsewhere. The law of abortion is very progressive and many countries are adopting this law and it is working wonderfully well. Unless we intensify our birth control machinery, and unless we intensify the education of preventing our daughters from becoming pregnant, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we will be faced with this problem every now and then.

Let the Members try my way and then there will be no Barnardo's Home, or any other type of home, and our daughters and sons will enjoy themselves without a single case going to court, and we will not need any kind of legislation because there will be no more unwanted babies coming into this world.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Mbogoh: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

To start with I would very much like to congratulate the mover of this Bill because he showed in himself he has some sense of duty, although he can divorce that from his sense of humour.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is true the money which is awarded by the courts to mothers who are pregnant by some people has been misused. But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is not the most important reason why this Bill should be repealed. It is true this money is doing a wonderful job in this country, and if our Government went, first of all, through the files and checked the cases where men have been affiliated and then followed up the matter of those children they would have found there are some children who are receiving a wonderful education through the money, and now they are going to be deprived of it. They would have found some of the children are living better lives than even the children of some of our Ministers or Members of our Parliament here.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am not against the repeal of the Bill, but this should have been taken into consideration, and instead of bringing it here in a hurry, there should have been instituted a commission of inquiry into the use of this money. In fact, Mr. Deputy Speaker, when this Bill was introduced here, many people in the country wondered whether there were many people in top posts—whether permanent secretaries, or Ministers or even Members of Parliament—who were involved and who wanted it to go through quickly so they could get rid of this business quickly.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this suspicion is in the minds of the people and it is now for our Government to clear it from the minds of our people as to whether they were bringing the Bill here in a hurry so as to get the money back. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am very worried about this Bill because to start with the mover never offered anything in place of the Bill. He only stood up and read the repeal of the Bill but offered nothing in its place. We now have a vacuum. Only one or two Ministers came to woo the Members here by telling them there would be another Bill prepared. What I know here, is when a Bill is to be repealed, there is always another Bill which comes and then it is tabled and at the bottom they write a Memorandum and say the contents of such and such Bill are herewith withdrawn. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not know if in 1969 the change is so drastic that a Bill comes and is withdrawn and nothing takes its place. I am not against the repeal of this Act, but we must have something else. We must have something, something to take the place of this one.

Mr. Mwithaga: It is coming next week.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, while I am on this point, I feel, and I feel very seriously, that the repeal of this Act is because of the selfishness of man. This selfishness must be ended immediately. This Act has been protecting women against ruthless men—

An hon. Member: Why?

Mr. Mbogoh: —but now somebody has decided to leave those women undefended.

An hon. Member: Declare your interest.

Mr. Mbogoh: I do not care about the rats squeaking in the roof. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I shall continue to speak.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am here now to—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the hon. Member really in order—while he speaks so emotionally—to refer to interjections as “from rats squeaking in the roof” which implies that he refers to hon. Members of Parliament?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He was not implying that really.

An hon. Member: Rats squeaking.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I heard it, but I do not think he was implying any hon. Member.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, if the hon. Member feels that that description fits him, I give it to him.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, now do we understand that he actually meant what I asked, by his inference?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think up to the time he had gone at first, he did not draw an inference, he left it rather vague, but now I think he has gone much further. I think you will withdraw that, Mr. Mbogoh.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I never referred to anybody as a rat.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You will withdraw what you said.

Mr. Mbogoh: I only told the hon. Member that—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Withdraw what you said.

Mr. Mbogoh: Does he fit it?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Mbogoh. We do not want to go into circles around that. You did say that if it fits him, that was all right. This is, in fact, more or less imputing to say that it applies to him. Please withdraw that and go ahead.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have no intention of calling the hon. Member a rat. So I do not need it.

Hon. Members: Withdraw.

Mr. Mbogoh: It has been withdrawn very easily.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this being what I call a selfish attitude of man—

Hon. Members: He is afraid to withdraw.

Mr. Mbogoh: I was saying that is the selfish attitude of man which makes him to try to dispose of his responsibilities although he is in the position to legislate for other people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we in this Parliament are in a position to legislate in favour of ourselves and in favour of other people and against ourselves as well as against other people. This is one of the most discriminatory pieces of legislation that we have ever made against other people while we favour ourselves as men. That is why, I think, that every now and again women claim that there is no woman in this Parliament and that is why some of these things go unchallenged like this. I agree with them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, no woman would sit in this Parliament to repeal an Act like this, and that is why, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that it is a selfish attitude in man that makes us want to repeal this Act. We should not have repealed this Act to make sure that we are free to do what we want for ourselves.

An hon. Member: Do you represent your wife?

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other day—in fact, it is not long ago, it was only two or three days ago—somebody was trying to bring legislation here to lower the maturity age of girls, from 16 to 14. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this is also another way of exposing these young girls to these wolves. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is true that a man is a strong bull, like many of them I know around. He will get a 14-year-old girl into trouble without her consent.

Mr. Mwithaga: That is raping.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, although it could be raping, I know a bull like the one shouting—

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want to continue.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is the hon. Member in order to call hon. Members “bulls” when he knows that “bulls” are in the other corner?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No. I do not think he is in order. I do not think he was being derogatory; in fact, I think he was referring to their power as men, but I think that is not correct. I certainly do not think you should say this, Mr. Mbogoh. I have said so often that we should try and avoid, as far as possible, being personal in our interjections or in our speeches. It is better not to refer to an individual person. Generalize and speak on a general platform rather than if somebody interjects, then you feel the next best thing you can do is to accuse him or say something nasty about him. It is better to treat it with a certain sense of humour and perhaps contempt, if necessary, but do not resort to this. Please, withdraw this.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it would have been better to refer to them as jogoos than bulls, if that is the case.

An hon. Member: But you were referring to KPU.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You will withdraw it.

Mr. Mbogoh: But, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you need to help me in my trouble.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Please sit down. If, when I ask you to withdraw, you start making a speech, next time I will ask you to sit down. I will not allow you to continue with your speech when you are trying to evade a ruling by coming with something very intelligent like, you should have said, jogoo. Either you withdraw or sit down, but not that one.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is not difficult to withdraw, but also will you support me—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Please sit down. Sit down, Mr. Mbogoh.

Mr. Mbogoh: I say I withdraw. I withdraw.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I find that this is one of those times that the Speaker finds it difficult to control himself against emotions. I think that you should have—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will not have any point of order of that nature. Please sit down.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I very much protest and will leave the Chamber in protest.

(The hon. Member withdrew from the Chamber)

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): It is a pity that you gave me permission to speak in the heat of the moment when my friend just decides to be rude to the Chair. But I shall not be as emotional as he has been.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, having got my voice back, I stand to support this Bill. In supporting it I would like to join my colleagues who promised in this House— And at this moment there is a Cabinet Committee working on the drafting of the new Bill to replace this Act. The Bill will not come very early to this House, simply because the Government has to consult the bodies that have been taking care of these illegitimate children and also to consult other people that are interested in this matter, like the hon. Member for Mombasa Island, the hon. Omar. He is being consulted, too, to give us his views about what should happen to the children that are born outside wedlock.

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think that the present Act that we are repealing has been very discriminatory in that it has been working— Shall I, Mr. Deputy Speaker, appeal to you to see that the Front Bench here keeps quiet a little?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes. Order. I think there is too much of speaking there.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was saying that this Act we are repealing has been discriminatory in that it has not been applying to people in the rural areas. The girls in the rural areas have several times gone to court but they have been judged according to native law, of paying the girls back. But the clever ones in towns go to court and use the Affiliation Act in filing their cases and they have it. I hardly remember any of those in poor rural areas using this Act in filing their cases. It has been in this manner very discriminatory; so much so that, Mr. Deputy Speaker, it has tended to entice girls in the rural areas to come to towns to take advantage of this law. They have thought this law operates in towns only and not in the rural areas. This is one of the reasons why we find this law to be not clearly or very fairly used. The other reason, Mr. Deputy Speaker, with your permission, I will now give the story which happened to a young man when he was accused in a Kiambu court, for affiliation. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this gentleman defeated the case in Kiambu court, and the girl seeing that she had been defeated, ran to Nairobi, got hold of another man for the same pregnancy and sent this particular man to court at Makadara. This man, Mr. Deputy Speaker, going to Kiambu—which may have been his home—found out that this girl had run away from there and that she had taken a certain gentleman to a Kiambu court for the same pregnancy. This man came back to Nairobi, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and asked for the adjournment of the case for him to produce more evidence in court, and the magistrate was kind enough and allowed the postponement of the case and when this man went and collected a file from Kiambu court, he brought it to a Nairobi court and won the case against this girl. What this girl did the next time was to run to Nakuru and get another man in Nakuru on the same pregnancy and took him to court. Now this is the kind of thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that men are subjected to by women who are really ruthless and it is not a question of being discriminatory, Mr. Deputy Speaker. It is not the question because I am the Minister for Information.

An hon. Member: How do you know?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): An hon. Member is asking me how I know about it but he is forgetting that I am the Minister for Information.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this kind of thing could not be isolated. It could happen to anybody, and it may be happening many times more. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we consider it quite unfair for this kind of thing to happen when we sit aside and see it happen, so we thought it should be replaced. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it was just yesterday when I was talking to a lady outside this Parliament or somewhere, when she asked me what was going to happen to children who are already being financed from this Act because the Act is being repealed and those who are already paying now are not going to pay any more. I told the lady that the fathers of these children are known because these fathers are paying a little money, so the only solution is to take these children back to their fathers. I am sure that those fathers will call back their children to have them with them and put them in their own families. This lady was doubtful and she asked whether the wives of these gentlemen would accept these children. I told her that that is what should happen. That is what we are trying to encourage. These are children for these men and they are responsible for them and their wives must accept them when they come to their families. So, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the lady I was speaking to was satisfied and if she is heading any organization of any kind, that is keeping this kind of children, she would now go ahead and appeal to the fathers of these children to come and collect their children, and look after them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other thing is this. If the case goes to court in the normal way according to the African custom, especially in my own tribe, a girl taking a man to court for defilement, or for being responsible for her pregnancy, he normally pays, say, two cows for having defiled the girl. Then afterwards, it is clearly known right from the outset when the judgment is given, that the child will belong to the man, and when the child is weaned, or when he is about five, custom permits the man to go and collect the child and take him to school. This is what should happen. We think this is what should be incorporated in the new law, so that the normal course taken is that children go to the father who should take care of them. I am sure men will be afraid of—as the hon.

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] Attorney-General warned women to be careful—I am sure the leopards will be more careful than the goats, than anything else because they know that they will be adding more to their problems by having to feed children and to take care of them.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support this Bill.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it has become a custom of some hon. Members in this House to be cowards in speaking the truth. I have never been one. There is no one in this country who does not know the harm which the existing Act has caused to our country and the damage that it has caused. This Affiliation Act, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, was not an Act but an Ordinance. Immediately after the attainment of our Government, this was among those other Statutory Laws which were adopted to become Acts. But Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have heard some hon. Members asking to allow this matter to be referred to the public in the form of a referendum. I fail to understand the logic behind it, because I do not know who consulted us when this law was enacted. Who went to seek for a referendum? What time are we going to the public to get a referendum so that we may pass a law in this House? I fail to understand the logic behind it, and there is no premise of argument on this law.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, people are afraid of telling the truth. We know that the existing law has encouraged so many women to become very loose in their morals and, as a result of which, they get money which they do not give to the children affected. They keep on buying mini-skirts, they keep on buying all the substances and they do not care about the children. We must face the truth if we want to save this nation. We do not want children who have no fathers in this nation. We do not, at the same time, want to become cowards or copiers of the British Empire or imperialists by imitating them as if they were the only champions to tell us what to do in our nation; that we should have no say in a nation like this of ours. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I fail to understand why some hon. Members are trying to dodge the truth. They know the truth, and the truth, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is that there are many children whose mothers, have affiliated men. These mothers are not channelling the funds they get to the children involved. That is just the truth. We do not want such a kind of exercise. We would like the children affected to enjoy the things which this Act has been seeking, but, Mr. Speaker, this is not happening now. Now, some other Members are saying that this law has been very discriminatory in that it has only been in the favour of women. I tend to agree with those Members who are saying so, because, this is a game of two people. You may find that a man is not earning and is followed up to pay for the child, whereas the woman is earning very fat money and that woman is ignoring that child. Whose child is that? That child did not come into this world alone, that child came to this world through two persons who should be responsible for that child. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this has come to be a great menace in this country, in that many girls nowadays do not want to marry. They want to live their single way of life and they are girls who have been educated by fathers. They just want to remain unmarried and go about with more than ten to 15 boyfriends. Who can afford all this? This kind of thing is a shame to a nation like ours. If any Member of this House is forced to tell the truth, I would ask him not to stay here and speak to defend only a section of the people. That is why I say I am here to speak on behalf of the nation, not a section of the people.

Mr. Lubembe: That is your constituency.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, the people of my constituency are men and women. I do not have just women, nor do I have just men. I hate to hear that it is only a woman who can benefit. I would also like a man to benefit.

If a man has had a child through a particular woman, and he can afford to bring up that child, and he is affiliated, I do not understand why that child should not be in the house of that man. Is there any shame in that? If I have a child by any woman, then I would like that child to come to my house. What is wrong with that? What is it that is anti-social in the thing that I have done?

Everyone knows that we have to go with women if we are men. Every woman also knows that she has to go with men. This is logical, and logic must be accepted. It must be approved and accepted. It is in accordance with the law of nature and you cannot change the law of nature. If today you say that as a woman you do not want to get in contact with a man, then you are cheating yourself. If you are a man and you say that you do not want to get in contact with a woman, then you are cheating yourself. You cannot avoid the law of nature. Mr. Speaker, it is the law of nature which brought about mankind. If there was no law of nature such as this, then we would not have a Parliament like the one we have now. Therefore, I fail to understand why we should not speak the truth.

[Mr. Karungaru]

Mr. Speaker, now that I have answered a few of the Members who were trying to avoid the truth, I feel I have made them understand it. If they take this Act in any other different way, then I have this also to say—

I must thank the Minister for Information for giving me this glass of water; it will help me to say more on this subject. It also shows that the Minister approves of what I am saying, he supports me.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, now that the nation has already seen the danger of this law, and I know of children who have been born in this way— Here I do not want to implicate the Attorney-General because he is the Chairman of Dr. Barnardo's Home, and I do know that some of the children born in this unfortunate way are there. Even in my area there is a place known as Edelvale where there are some of these unfortunate children. The other day when the hon. Dr. Waiyaki was speaking he referred to the case of that school, and I fail to understand why he did so. I take care of some of these children in my area. I have a natural love for children.

However, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have a quarrel here, that some women are not properly brought up when they are in their parents' houses. I want to take this opportunity to blame the parents. Parents in this country have become very loose. They do not take care of their children. You cannot tell me that when you have a wife you do not know what type of children you will have. You will have boys and girls. So you cannot discriminate here and say that the girl should be given the opportunity to exploit the boys. I fail to understand that remark made by an hon. Member. Whether they are boys or girls, Sir, they are mine. I would not like the women to take the side of the boy, neither would I like her to take the side of the girl.

First, Sir, God created man, and that is why there it says, "For the welfare of society and the just government of men." Women are not included there at all. It is known that a woman came second. We want the first place to be for the man, not the woman.

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want to interrupt the hon. Member speaking because I support what he is saying, but would you correct him that the meaning of the saying he has just quoted, what is written at the entrance to the Chamber, does not exclude the women.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think he was trying to make a debating point, for what it is worth. I do not think it is worth very much.

It is quite correct, Mr. Karungaru, that, as the Speaker has explained, the word "man" is a generic term which includes men, women, Children, everybody, mankind really.

Mr. Karungaru: Sir, time and again I have failed to understand what other hon. Members in this House do. They try to interrupt so that time is wasted.

If the man who wrote that saying was not wise enough, then he would also have included the women. We know very well, Sir, that we only have "mankind", we do not have "woman-kind". That is logic. It is on this that I am basing my argument. Sir, I do not want any Member to doubt me on this.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, this Bill appears to have the support of most Members of this House and, indeed, if you read the Taifa Leo you will see that the members of the public are congratulating the Attorney-General for the Bill. Members of this House should not look askance at me when I say this because it is really what the members of the public are saying.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since the hon. Member has exhausted most of his points, I wonder whether this would be the appropriate time for the Mover to be called on to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! I think we have reached the time when the House should consider the closure. Out of courtesy to the hon. Member we should let him finish his sentence, I think.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, thank you for having this wisdom. In fact, Sir, I was almost finishing.

I will now appeal to hon. Members to see the sense in repealing this Act. I would also like the Government to bring in another Bill to take care of the children. We are not interested in taking care of the women who are grown-up, neither are we interested in the men who are grown-up, but, definitely, we are concerned for the children who cannot take care of themselves.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now put the question of the closure.

(Question, that the Mover be now called on to reply, put and agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said when I moved this Bill—I said that it is a matter entirely for the decision of this House. I have had no instructions from anybody and the matter is entirely for this House to decide.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are certain people who are paying lip service at this late hour, about this legislation. However, the truth is, if one were to gauge the feelings of this House, it would be apparent that this legislation is unpopular.

What we shall have to do later on is to sit down, unemotionally and seriously, in association with other people who are interested in child welfare in this country to work out a legislation which would protect the children of this country.

It is all very well for the hon. Member, like a parrot to keep on saying "Question?", Mr. Speaker, but he spoke and he has an opportunity, in this House, to convince his friends in this House, but he has failed dismally.

It is not for me to try to influence Members in this House. My work is to bring legislation to this House so that Members can pass it.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

Second Reading

THE ENGINEERS REGISTRATION BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Minister for Works not here?

Perhaps we had better go on to the next Order.

Second Reading

THE FENCING BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Minister for Agriculture?

We will have to go on to the next Order.

Second Reading

THE DEFAMATION BILL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Attorney-General, are you ready or are you rather taken by surprise?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am afraid I have been taken by surprise. I was hoping that the other Ministers would be here. I do not have my brief with me and I am afraid I cannot introduce this legislation. Otherwise I shall not be able to explain all the points to the hon. Members.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since I am aware that hon. Mr. Mwanyumba is in the building, either watching television or on telephone, would it be in order for me to call him in?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think Ministers should be here, ready to deal with their Bills.

However, for the convenience of the House I think we might wait a couple of minutes in the hope that he can be summoned in time.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like your guidance here, as to what happens if a question is put when there is no quorum, like what happened when the question of the Second Reading of the previous Bill was put and carried?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Unless an hon. Member has objected to the absence of quorum at the time when the question is put, the Speaker takes no notice. It is only when we have a Division that the Speaker has an obligation to ensure that there is a quorum.

Mr. Mwanyumba, you appear to have arrived with some sponsors!

We will come back now to Order 6.

Second Reading

THE ENGINEERS REGISTRATION BILL

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, first I must apologize if I have been late.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Engineers Registration Bill be now read a Second Time.

For a long time in the past this country had depended on engineering institutions in the United Kingdom to assess engineering qualifications here. This was all right during that time as Great Britain then was the administering power. However, this practice has become undesirable at present since Kenya attained her independence. Therefore, it is not in keeping with the dignity of a sovereign state to continue depending on a foreign power to assess such qualifications as those for the engineers who have to work for us.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, conditions in the United Kingdom are very different from our own conditions here and, therefore, shortly after Kenya became independent, talks began as to what should be done in order to substitute the foreign institutions with local institutions to assess the qualifications of engineers. In fact, this kind of talk was carried out by the three East African countries, Tanzania, Uganda and ourselves, with a view to having a uniform sort of standard for assessing our engineers. This was, however, not possible because as sovereign states every country wanted to have its own institution and already Tanzania has gone ahead and enacted legislation on this very matter. I am informed that Uganda is also on its way to introducing this similar legislation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Engineers Registration Bill seeks to solve two specific problems. The first one is to standardize on engineering qualifications from various countries, broadly using the University College of Nairobi as the yardstick. It is necessary to have a uniform academic standard applicable to all engineers who practise in the country. Hon. Members will know that we have a problem here, in that we have a number of our own young men who have gone to very many countries in the world and who are, from year to year, coming back to this country to serve us as engineers. It is difficult, on the part of the Government, to be able to assess properly, qualifications attained by these students overseas. You know of many notorious universities such as those we see in the United States, in India, and many other countries, and it is difficult also today to be able to assess properly the type of qualification that a student has gained in the eastern countries, and this kind of thing.

Mr. Speaker, this Bill, if enacted, will be able to deal with such a situation.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to our own students who are coming back from overseas, we also have a number of engineers from other countries who come to work here either for Government, or who come to work in the private sector. It is this kind of engineer who has to be registered in the country in order to allow him to practise here. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, we also have other agencies, like the United Nations, who have people working, sometimes temporarily, in the country and all these types of people need to have their names registered before they can practise their profession in the country.

Mr. Speaker, I must say that we have to use our University College, Nairobi, as a yardstick because the college has attained a very high international standard and we are very proud of it.

The second specific problem, Mr. Speaker, is related to the standards of practical training necessary before an engineer can be deemed to have attained professional status and to be in a position to practise engineering as a fully qualified, professional engineer. It is important that after the attainment of an academic degree as an engineer, that that engineer should spend some time, which we think should be two or three years, doing some practical work in the field in order to polish up, or in order to make himself acquainted with what is going on in the field. A mere academic qualification, by itself, is considered not sufficient to qualify somebody to be able to carry out undertakings as an engineer. Therefore, this sort of training is considered extremely important and essential if a person has to be qualified as an engineer.

This sort of legislation is not the first that has come to this House because we have had similar legislation which covers, let us say, nurses and doctors, and also architects and quantity surveyors. There was a loophole somehow, Mr. Speaker, and this one is designed to cover such engineers as we call civil engineers, mechanical engineers and electrical engineers.

In the Bill, therefore, Mr. Speaker, you will find that there is provision for a board to be formed which will look after this Act, and the function of the board will be that it will have to register all those people who apply to be registered as engineers. There is provision that if an applicant is grieved by the board, or is not satisfied with the decision of the board, he can send his queries to the High Court; that is to appeal to the High Court.

The work of this board will be to establish, every year, a list of all the engineers who are working, either temporarily or permanently, in the country. Therefore, it will be easy for any person or private firm to be able to know that this man is an engineer, and has been approved as an engineer, by looking at the list which will be published and revised every year.

Another important aspect of the Bill, Mr. Speaker, will be that there are many people who have posed themselves as engineers. Now, this board will deal with such persons who pose themselves as engineers. This has been a problem in the past, not only in the private sector but also in Government. We have seen people saying that they have come from such-and-such a country and they have a long list of letters which they call degrees, which actually do not mean very much. Engineering is a noble profession and in a young, developing country, such as ours, we need to have the right type of person to work for us—in Government or in the private sector—who is actually an engineer. To design construction work of the size which is carried out today needs a person of that calibre.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, there is really nothing very new that the board is being asked to do—which will be formed by the provisions of this Bill—except that we want to standardize the engineering profession; we want all engineers to be registered, whether working temporarily or not, and we want anybody who calls himself an engineer to be a registered engineer.

Mr. Speaker, the Bill, as published, is written in very simple and clear language, and I hope that hon. Members have gone through it. There is provision as to how the board will be formed and there is also, in the Bill, the qualifications of engineers and what has to be done in order to get such engineers registered as engineers. There is provision also made in the Bill for those who may perhaps be guilty of professional misconduct or something like that. Everything has been taken care of.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, as I said a little earlier, it is desirable that we have this register to cover these other engineers who are not covered in the other Acts.

Mr. Speaker, with these few words, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko) seconded.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the Bill is self-explanatory and the Minister has outlined the reasons for establishing this legislation and I am sure that the House will accept it. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that as an independent country we should be independent in more than one sense. It is no use being independent and then relying on other countries for important people like engineers. Each country must aim at high standards and when we come to things like engineering it is very important that we retain high standards. When the Minister introduced this Bill, I am sure he had in mind the raising of standards of engineering in this country.

Mr. Speaker, there have been appalling examples of people who pretend to be engineers, as the Minister said, and went on constructing buildings and then within a short time we found these buildings with big cracks—in the end people spend a lot of money putting them right. They are not sure as to what kind of soil it is, and what kind of construction is fit for such-and-such a place, and these things can cost the public a lot of money. It may even cost a lot of money on the side of the Government, Mr. Speaker, when it comes to the construction of things like bridges. Bridges where people pass, or trains, or motor cars, then we must be sure the bridge can hold the people, or the vehicles which are passing over it. If we allow people who call themselves engineers to construct these bridges, and public houses, then, Mr. Speaker, we are asking for trouble.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I support the Minister in introducing this legislation to try and bring about standards in this country where we will be able to rely on our own people. I would appeal to the Minister that the board which is going to be selected should be a board of people who know what they are talking about. There is a danger, Mr. Speaker, of appointing people who think they know when they do not know. I am sure the Minister will look into this to see we have people who know what they are talking about, people who will not be prejudiced. When I talk of people being prejudiced, Mr. Speaker, it is because there is a danger whereby we try to have experts to judge these people from one country only. Because they come from one particular country, they may be prejudiced against another country. Therefore, I hope the Minister will use his wise offices in the selection of the people to sit on the board, who will not be prejudiced. Prejudiced because they come from a different country, or because they come from a different country, professing a different ideology.

These things, Mr. Speaker, can easily affect the quality of the work of the board. Mr. Speaker, we all support it and I hope the Minister will go into it very, very carefully so we can establish our own standards.

Mr. Speaker, I can see a lot of goodness in appointing people who are experienced in the type of climate we live in, the type of soil we have, and I believe that all these things matter. An engineer who is well qualified in perhaps Britain, or other countries in Europe, may be qualified on paper, but when he comes out here he may have to learn local conditions and how to deal with them. This is important, and there are times when an engineer who is trained in another country outside Kenya, or Africa for that matter, may have to spend some time in studying the climatic conditions, the composition of the soil here, and the local conditions, local labour, and all these things matter a lot. When an engineer is employed, he is not only engaged in the drawing on the paper, but it may be necessary for him to assess the costs, and when assessing the costs, Mr. Speaker, he may have to take into consideration the people who are going to undertake the work. This may involve the temperament of those people. He may be coming from a country where the temperament of the people is different from that of our people here. The output of the people here may be different. All these things matter. They may appear irrelevant but they all add up to the same thing, to make a good engineer.

[Mr. Matano]

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, all these things are important and I have mentioned them because they can easily be overlooked when deciding the composition of the board which is to decide who is to qualify as a good engineer worthy of being put on the roll.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to point out to the Minister that standards should not be lowered. This is very, very important. We are all very keen to see local people taking a keen interest and being given opportunities to advance, but it should not be done at the expense of lowering the standards. Standards must be maintained, and even improved, all the time so that the name of Kenya will remain high. We do not want a reputation where our engineers, who are qualified here in Kenya, and are on the roll here in Kenya, may not obtain a job outside Kenya. We would like to have an engineer who comes from Kenya, and who has been put on the roll here in Kenya, who will be acceptable not only in Kenya itself but all over the world. I feel this is very, very important indeed, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I would not like Kenya to drag behind. The Minister has already told us that Tanzania has taken action, and Uganda is on the way. Mr. Speaker, I feel the time has come when Kenya should forge ahead. We should not be frightened by the responsibility laid on us, but we should forge ahead and try to have the board formed, and have the roll put right and start immediately. We do not want to be lagging behind because we have not decided what action to take.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to dwell much on this Bill, and therefore I congratulate the Minister for bringing it. If there are any other legislations which need to be put right, they should be put right immediately because we have been independent for the last six years and see no reason, whatsoever, why we should be consulting other countries for this, that or the other. I think it is time we learnt to stand on our own two feet.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Bill and say the Government has taken proper measures at the right time, because the country has almost become fed up with the kind of engineers here, some of whom have been very much doubted because nobody seems to understand how much they know and where they were actually trained.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel it proper for such a Bill to come to the House to establish a board for various reasons. Some young men who have been abroad to study have been discriminated against, and if it were possible to lay men on the Table of the House, I would go out and pick up some of them and lay them on the Table. It is legally impossible to do so.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen for myself the people who have been trained, especially in eastern countries, who have gone to college for years and years and when they come back the Minister for Works has no recognition of their training at all, nor any consideration of what they can be used to do in this country. I feel it is time a board should be established, such as this, where they can go and prove they have been trained. I know the people who have been kept in the Ministry to try and scrutinize the validity of some diplomas or degrees have found it difficult sometimes to tell what kind of degree a person holds because of the language problem.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been an experience, and for the information of the Minister I have checked on some of the diplomas and seen that now the eastern countries are trying to print their diplomas in English, French, and the local language, be it Bulgarian, Russian or any Slav language. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know who actually advises the Government on the validity of these diplomas, whether it is the United Nations Education Council, or whether it is local brains who decide on who is actually qualified to be entitled to a certain degree and at what level in comparison with the degrees of other countries.

Mr. Speaker, a Member says there is a council—but that council is almost defunct, it is a defunct council, if it ever existed, because students have had to go to the ambassadors representing the countries where the students were trained, for them to advise the Ministry of Education on categorizing the diplomas and degrees. If the council is in existence, it is absolutely unworthy and should be rejected from statutory instruments.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the establishment of this board. The composition of the board is a matter for serious consideration. The Minister was just whispering to me here, when I tried to examine his brain, as to what he had in mind in connexion with the establishment of the board and the constitution of it, and also the composition. He says—I am sorry it is top secret. The impression he gave me is that those who will be on the board will be professional men. I agree with this. If the Minister is not careful, he is going to be given the usual advice on who is suitable for inclusion on the board, be he professional or otherwise, by his usual advisors and eventually we will end in having, as one of the Assistant Ministers said, a prejudiced board. This would be very serious.

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Mr. Speaker, the Minister must use all his wisdom to mix the whole cream. Let them have a brand of people trained in various countries. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of trying to find people who are only conversant with our local conditions at this moment is very difficult. Our colleges have not actually produced the type of engineers we would like to have, in the five years since independence. We have the Nairobi University College which was the Royal Technical College in those days training some technicians and engineers. We have the Kenya Polytechnic training some engineers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what are the syllabuses? These are dependent on the syllabuses of colleges overseas, and we do not have any for local conditions. If there is an intention to readjust the syllabuses in order to enable those registered engineers to acquaint themselves with local conditions, then we should do so now.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point at dispute here is of giving these boards judicial powers. There may be other boards having similar powers, but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a board is going to interpret and apply clauses stipulated or provided for in our Criminal Procedure Code. Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the same time these professional men are not conversant with the law, apart from the professional regulations—I think this is a mistake. How do you give a person the powers of a trained magistrate, a judge, when he is not a professional man so far as the law is concerned? Interpreting and applying the conditions of the law may create some difficulties to the board and, eventually, when they impose the fines provided by this Bill—we find that a person is liable to a fine of Sh. 10,000 for a certain offence and another one for giving false information can be fined Sh. 5,000, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the limitation is Sh. 10,000 and the other one Sh. 5,000, this is how the board is empowered to impose the fine.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, a fine without an option, because the only option I can see in the Bill is to appeal to the High Court, and this implies the board has powers similar to those of the resident magistrate's court, whereby one can only appeal to the High Court. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a way of usurping the powers of our courts and I dispute this. What should be done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is to leave the courts where they are as we believe our Judiciary is independent. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these people should be left to appeal to the courts, be they resident magistrates' courts or the other ones. It is those courts that should be given powers under his Bill to be able to try for these boards and on behalf of those people aggrieved and not the board itself, unless we are assured here that the board will have a judicial panel composed of people conversant with our law, professional men like some Members here, and of other lawyers outside. If this is going to be added, then I think the Minister will have done some service, otherwise this should not apply.

Mere appealing to the High Court, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is not the solution. If the board cannot give an option, that unless a man fails to pay Sh. 10,000, then the alternative would be such and such—what happens if he fails to pay the Sh. 10,000? If he cannot afford it? Where does he go? Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister agrees with me that there is a loophole there; I can see him nodding his head. Mr. Speaker, I cannot remember the page I want but I have read the whole Bill. I feel this is something for the Minister to act on.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the question of temporary registration. The Bill says that persons working here for a given period, a short time, will be entitled to register as engineers during the period they will be working in Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this conflicts with the intentions of the Minister to have our own registered engineers, because that person, if he is only going to be registered in order to operate in Kenya, if this is the only reason for his being registered here, and yet he might have graduated from an engineering college somewhere, or university, what does it imply, Mr. Speaker? Does it mean the board will not recognize registration elsewhere, or what does it imply? Mr. Speaker, if a person has come from the Royal Technical College in London, or somewhere else, he is fully recognized and registered there. We are a Commonwealth country, so do we have to register this person again? What I thought the Minister should do is to see a list of such people is kept and they are authorized to operate in Kenya without having to be scrutinized by a board when they already have adequate training and registration elsewhere. This is unnecessary, Mr. Speaker—after all they are only here temporarily.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that the Bill provides it is individuals—on this is the impression I obtained from the Bill: that it is the individuals who apply for registration. What about a body corporate like engineering companies of some sort, and other bodies which are already registered under the Companies Act? They have a common field. They have powers to sue and to be sued as individuals. Why, Mr. Speaker, Sir, did the Minister not see fit to refer to such companies so that they are able to apply as individuals in a similar manner as is applied to a single man? This should be included, Mr. Speaker. This would mean, if they cannot register as such, each member of the particular company would apply for registration as an individual whereas the company is already registered as such. Mr. Speaker, the Minister must be able to see sense in this and try to sort it out before the Bill goes through so it can be included here. There is no point in bothering our companies, which are registered under the Registration of Companies Act, because they are already established as qualified and registered engineers in the sense of the law.

Mr. Speaker, leaving that out would mean complicating the whole issue again, whereby the companies will have to apply to the Minister for new recognition of their individual members of their company, and there is no need to insist on this. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I support the Bill provided the Minister is going to see sense in using his good wisdom to ensure that this board is going to work without prejudice and completely free from interference from any influences which the Minister knows very well normally disturb our boards.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also caution him to remember the question of interpreting the degrees and emphasize degrees from Eastern countries, to stop our students from being— They normally come and stand outside here asking Members if they can help the students to see a certain Minister. Nobody seems to help them, and, therefore, they must all be called on to register. Mr. Speaker, there was a time when we had the then Minister for Labour, Dr. Kiano, when he said in this House, and told the whole nation, that all skilled labour should report to the Ministry of Works to be registered in order that the Government may be able to account for them and help them in obtaining employment after they had registered. Mr. Speaker, Sir, despite going to the Ministry of Works' offices, they are still outside here; they have not been able to find employment and they were promised that through being registered as skilled labour as far as the Ministry of Works was concerned, they would be given consideration.

If our engineers are to be registered only to be kept in this country bearing the name of "Hon. Mwithaga, Registered Engineer; Member of Parliament", and no job can be found for them, then there is no need to register him at all. We must register them in understanding that we are shouldering responsibility. Some of them are trying this and that. If you prove yourself worth the degree you hold then he will consider you for further promotion or through recognition of their diplomas. Mr. Speaker, Sir, those are merely delaying tactics to keep that person there. It will serve an interest which the employer, perhaps, has in mind. This should be stopped forthwith. Immediately a person has been registered with this board he should be given his true recognition and should also be given a real job. If he himself fails, we shall not have mercy on him at all. However, if it is a question of trying a person, trying to play with his intelligence and temper with his education, it is extremely wrong.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, with those few observations and remarks, I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would not like to be very long on this Bill. This is because the points which have been put forward by the Member for Nakuru have shown the Minister that there is, in fact, something to be done.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Minister for being the first Minister in the Kenya Government to remember that there are professional men who really need to be put in a kind of organization which is recognized by the Government, and also have a law-backing in the country so that they may regulate their affairs.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fully agree with the Minister, especially where he says that he will leave wide scope of freedom to the board. I am sure, and I think it has been said, that the board will be constituted by professional people who will be responsible for deciding who should be registered and who should not. We should not take very lightly the case of professional people. This is because we have heard often cases of people who roam about claiming that they are qualified in such-and-such field, only to find later that these people are not qualified at all. Not only they are not qualified but they are far from any qualification. Mr. Speaker, Sir, professional bodies must be left alone to decide who should be members of their professions.

I would like to stress a point concerning discrimination of students and, of course, graduates from the two main parts of the world. Also with such a point in view, I would like to congratulate the Minister for establishing such a board. What the hon. Mr. Mwithaga has said is true. Today, it is only the Ministry of Education which is left to decide whether a certain degree or a certain diploma should be recognized in Kenya or not. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have had this problem myself. Not that I was discriminated against, but my people from Nyandarua who had gone for studies to countries, like Hungary and Bulgaria, have been subjected to discrimination. Recently, some people who came from such places as Russia, have had to face a lot of problems. I want to move a Motion here to discredit the Education Ministry because of the discriminatory way in which it is handling the problem of deciding whether to recognize this degree and that or not.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, every Ministry, of this Government, which needs highly trained technicians should have a board of this nature which will not consider the appearance of a person, whether the person in question is handsome, ugly, thin or fat but will consider his qualifications. If we had something of this nature, I think we would be on the correct line.

What has been worrying us is that the people who have been in charge of interpreting these degrees or diplomas in the Ministry of Education do not themselves hold degrees. They are only executives. Executives may be of third or second grade. How can a person of that standard correctly interpret whether or not a certain degree is recognized? How can they say for sure that So-and-so did not acquire the correct standard of education? What is more worrying is to see a person going to eastern countries, staying there for more than five years—sometimes having finished his secondary education and qualifying in the School Certificate Examination here in Kenya—only to return here in Kenya to be told, “Oh, we can only recognize you as a person either who has been in Egerton College or Kenya Polytechnic. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know that the people who go either to Kenya Polytechnic or Egerton College are people who have a very low educational standard compared with a University standard. What is surprising is that when a person goes to a country like the United States of America and stays there, for example, for a period of three years, and in some cases such person has had no secondary school education, yet when he returns with a degree he is given a job before he lands at the airport.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are to be fair to our people, we must be broad-minded. If we are really non-aligned as we claim to be, we must not disqualify people simply because they happen to come from such-and-such a place.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a typical example. The present Provincial Engineer in the Coast Province was for some time totally rejected by the Kenya Government. He was employed by the Ministry and given a job somewhere. The job was to survey the main road going to Kampala. When he had surveyed it for half the cost and it was quite satisfactory, they said he was wrong and, therefore, they could not have him. However, he was found to be economical. Notwithstanding this, the adviser who was in the Ministry said he could not be employed. Instead he was given leave to go home. However, later on when he was accepted—I can see the Minister trying to reject, yet this is a fact. When the Ministry came to its senses and really investigated the facts, they found that that man is not only good but one of the best chaps in Kenya today. That is why they made him a provincial engineer, responsible for all the engineering activities in the province. This just shows how we sometimes can misuse material that we have in Kenya, how we are at times misadvised on account of the gains of some individuals. Let us be fair to everybody. If a person feels that he is qualified in this or that, let us test him. If he proves incapable, then, all right, let us send him home; but, if on the other hand, he proves capable, then let us use him. Otherwise we will continue speaking and hearing all about this very sweet tune of there not being enough manpower, of us being in the area where there is no manpower. Sir, most of our manpower is being wasted all over the country.

I think this is very important and I am glad that today we have quite a number of Ministers here. Mr. Speaker, once we have these very highly-educated people not being employed, not being used— We must not forget the famous English saying, which is very important, “Satan uses idle hands.” These fellows are very highly educated; some of them have been trained in what we call nuclear physics, others hold very high degrees as a result of very long and high education. If we cannot put these useful citizens—these useful intellectual brains—to good use, what will happen is that instead of hearing now and again—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, whereas I agree with most of the stuff being dished out by the hon. Member, could he tell this House who are these students we have who are studying nuclear physics and such techniques?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not see a point of order there.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, this only shows, when this hon. Member tells us that he does his homework, that he does not do it.

In 1963 when I went to Russia with my friend, the hon. Assistant Minister for Works, we found one very bright chap who was studying at the Moscow University, Physics Engineering. This man finished his education there and is now in Kenya. I am not very sure whether he is employed or not. So if the Minister can agree with me, that we have people of that calibre, well and good; this is only one. I happen to know of this case because he used to come to our hotel and he told us what he was studying. What about those others we know nothing about?

We have people who can man, maybe not very well, but practically all of the projects that we have in this country. It will not be surprising if one of these days, when we have money, we have engineers on projects that will take us to the moon. We have engineers who can do this kind of thing. All I am saying is that we should not forget these well trained and intelligent people, we must make use of them. We cannot benefit from these brains by denying them the chances to prove their capability, to prove that they can do something. We must not deny them the chances to develop this country and play their part in building the nation.

That is why I think the Minister has a bright idea in trying to form this board which I am sure, immediately it is formed, is going to put advertisements in the papers so that any person who thinks he is an engineer will present himself, have an interview, and if he passes will be registered. Thus all these people will have the chance to try their luck, if it is employment or anything of the kind, to see how they succeed.

Along with that I would like to ask the Minister to use his good offices and influence, as well as knowledge, to advise the other Ministries on this matter so that we will be able to sort out which is good material and which is not.

Failing that, Sir, I would advise the Government to have a national board which will be comprised of all kinds of professional people with knowledge of different branches so that they will be able to process such applications as may come in. In this way we will know for sure that trained. Those we find useful, we will make use of.

Otherwise, Mr. Speaker, our people will complain from time to time that they do not have jobs, that the jobs are only going to one side—

An hon. Member: Which side is that?

Mr. Kago: This is well known, it is evident. All jobs go to the people who are trained in Western countries. This is not a secret.

[Mr. Speaker, when we have these educated people at large, without employment, we do not know what they will organize.

At this time, Sir, when we want to Africanize as many posts as possible, we will not be able to Africanize them unless we make an effort to use all the available material. We must give them chance to gain experience so that when the time comes to replace So-and-so we will have the man ready. As long as we do not do that, we will continue to import labour, we will continue to claim that we do not have trained people when all the time we do have the right material at our disposal.

With these few remarks, Sir—which I hope have been of educational value to the Government and the Ministry—I beg to support this Bill trusting that it is going to be used for the benefit of our engineers and that it is going to serve as an example to other Ministries so that they can also have some way of sorting out people and thus have these very learned gentlemen in places where they can put their knowledge to use.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

SOUTH NYANZA TEACHERS' SIT-DOWN STRIKE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the time appointed for Mr. Ngala-Abok to move the adjournment of the House. So I will call on him.

Mr. Ngala-Abok.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn in order to allow me to bring home to this country, to the Government and the Members of Parliament here that we have a problem now in South Nyanza, a problem which needs a solution right now. It needs a solution right now and not in two days' time. The problem needs a solution right now, this evening, now while I am speaking.

In saying this, Sir, I know pretty well that our Government has tried very much to help all those county councils that are broke; but it is also well known that South Nyanza County Council is broke because they inherited a system through the Majimbo constitution whereby the people in that area could not get money in good time to use in paying bills.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member for Butere must take me seriously. This is my own story, he can tell us his.

Mr. Speaker, I have proper explanation as to why we ran into debt and I would like to be very quick on this. When the present Clerk to Council and the county council officials took over from those who went away last time, because they were also in difficulties at that time, there was a debt of about Sh. 12 million. They have tried to pay off this debt through all the revenues that they collected and they now still have about Sh. 3 million to pay. This means that they have worked pretty hard and succeeded in paying about Sh. 9 million. They will complete paying this debt off very shortly.

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

Here I would like to ask the Government to pay the teachers their salaries because the teachers are the innocent victims of this situation. The teachers started a sit-down strike, or a go-slow strike, on the first of this month and it is about eight days now that our children are not getting any education. This sit-down strike is injuring the future of our children as far as the Certificate of Primary Education examination is concerned, and these children that are now being punished are innocent. The teachers who have not yet been given their salaries are innocent. The fact that the county council is broke is not a matter of the present councillors' making. They are broke for reasons which are well known to the Ministry of Local Government. If this money had been stolen, whoever was responsible would have been imprisoned. So the question of being broke is not the fault of any county council official.

Mr. Speaker, all I am now saying is that the statement made by the Assistant Minister the other day is very alarming indeed. Although it was a true statement on the situation—and I thank the Assistant Minister for that—I feel he should use his good offices to try and settle this problem immediately. He said that he had already given £14,000 to South Nyanza to be used in paying the teachers and that we need £30,000 in order to pay all the salaries. This means that we still need more money.

There is a statement in today's newspapers saying that the teachers are continuing to stage a sit-down strike in South Nyanza until they are paid. By the 16th of this month there will be a more serious strike at Homa Bay. This will involve the whole lot of them, 2,000 teachers.

The Ministry of Local Government has already sent in an application for some money to the Ministry of Finance and asking that this money should be given immediately.

There is another point I would like to mention: why should the teachers find themselves without salaries when it was known very well that the county council was broke and that there was no grant given, and that the teachers consequently were not going to get their pay? Now we find ourselves, on the 12th June having no money to pay the teachers. Why should the teachers be penalized? Why should the children be penalized? Why should a situation which was inherited penalize the whole of the public of South Nyanza?

I must say that the Government must plan properly for us, they must improve on this. The other day the Minister for Education was very quick. He jumped on the situation and said that the teachers should refrain from joining politics and should be regarded as civil servants. All right. We created the Teachers Service Commission, which I believe to be a statutory organization, and gave them the responsibility of seeing that teachers we paid. The Government should pay teachers their salaries without relying on the county councils.

The Assistant Minister also told me—as frank as he always is—that the county councils are merely paying—agents for the commission and that they do not employ the teachers. Very good; but then, why not pay the money direct to the teachers? In fact, the teachers are doing very good work and they should not be the people made to suffer.

Mr. Speaker, this Government has declared that the country is going to a General Election but I feel, very seriously too, that if they do not handle the public more carefully at this particular time, we are going to find ourselves in a situation where we will have nothing to explain. You may get the Police in order to get a voter to come and vote for you, but that is not right. Why should teachers go on strike at this particular time? There is money, £4 million will be given to the Ministers. The money is there; so, why can it not be channelled to South Nyanza to pay the teachers? I am not denying that the Government has done is best but, at the same time, I say very definitely that our children must not suffer. The question of the council being broke is not due to the fault of the officials of the council. Therefore, the Government has to think very, very carefully.

I agree that the Minister who is going to reply knows that this is a genuine matter. It is a matter where he council is in the red. It is the Government which can rescue the situation. In this way the teachers can go back to work and the children will not continue to suffer.

Mr. Speaker, the other day I spoke to the chairman of the county council concerned and he told me, "If the Government can only write-off the present debt, then start giving us money and watching over our collection of graduated personal tax, we will do well." Some Members remarked outside here, and the Member for Butere is one of them, "If your county council is broke what is the use of bringing this kind of Motion to the House?" It is also for us, as a district, to see why we are broke. It is up to the planners to explore any financial resources, and resources that will enable the South Nyanza people build up a reserve, make money. People are there to be told what to do, we have to plan for them, see what crops they can grow to enable them to have money. We have very few resources from which we get money. We have cash crops which just do not do well. It is not like in other parts of Kenya where there are good crops. We must, therefore, be advised to a great extent by Government on how to get this money, how to keep it. It is no good blaming us all the time because that will not help anybody. The mere fact that we are being blamed for being broke does not mean that we are not going to remain in Kenya. We will remain in Kenya and we will continue to be a problem.

So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is up to the Government to take care of this particular area, consider its resources, make sure that that area can earn through the means available there and not pin itself down to planning for a given area. We are not going to remain behind. However much people may say that the teachers are not going to get their salaries, the teachers will get it. Otherwise it will be just too bad. I, as a representative of that district, am not going to be questioned by the teachers when they are on strike. We do not want to see our children wandering about the school compound. This is not fair when a lot of money is being dished out elsewhere. Mr. Speaker, we are part and parcel of this country and I am sure that in such a situation Members are going to sympathize with me.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Minister to tell me that these teachers will be paid. As to whether the debt will be made good is another matter. Let the Assistant Minister rise, speak his mind and exhaust his resources.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this House should take this issue very seriously. First of all, it must be noted that this is not a South Nyanza problem, it is a national problem and it was moved as a matter of national importance. Therefore, anybody trying to minimize the importance of the issue is just trying to go beyond the question; and we must know that our responsibility as a national House, responsible for the people of this country, is ensure that every place is well looked after by our Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our Government has erred a little here. The other day the Assistant Minister for Local Government said that they had made application to the Treasury for £50,000 but the Treasury had not given them this money. Why can the Treasury not give this money so that the teachers in South Nyanza can be paid and be able to work? We cannot be told that it is a question of a South Nyanza problem; it has gone to the Treasury of this country and it is not a question of the Treasury of the Local Government in Homa Bay, it is the Treasury here in Nairobi.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it should be noted that nobody would like to work for nothing. Even the hon. Member, Mr. Shikuku, will not delay in going to claim for his sitting allowance. We must know that these teachers will not work for 30 days when they have not received the previous month's salary; they must be paid.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not see why the leaders of South Nyanza County Council, the clerk of the council and the chairman, came to Nairobi to make sure that this money was paid so that they could go back to pay their teachers, only to be told that this money could not be released because the Treasury has not finalized the normal arrangements for this claim. How long should it take for these counties to negotiate with the Treasury so that the Treasury pays out the money? Does it take one week, three weeks, or how long? Does the Treasury not know that these people were going to be paid at the end of the month, and so they did not do the formalities beforehand so that they could release the money as soon as the month ended? This makes us wonder whether our Government is active and is concerned with the welfare of our people, particularly the youngsters whose minds have not yet been polluted and they do not know what is going on; they think that everything is normal, only to find that their teachers have not come to teach them.

Mr. Speaker, we feel that the Treasury must do something tonight, and I hope the Minister who is going to reply is going to assure this House that the South Nyanza money has already left Nairobi for the county council to pay them tomorrow. Should this fall short, Mr. Speaker, the Government will only aggravate the situation and I do not think they will help it, because very soon it might go out of their hands.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our problem—and I am glad the hon. Mover mentioned it—which is very, very vital, is the problem of the children. The teachers have worked for a week now, or 12 days, without their pay, but our children have missed education for more or less the whole of this term and last term. The teachers have put this claim to the Government and here we are told that the equipment has been moved to various areas, but the South Nyanza teachers want the equipment as well to reach their schools. They have been in their schools and the equipment is not there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Omweri, that is not what I allowed to be raised under Standing Order 20.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point I want to raise here is that this issue is connected with their sit-down. I would emphasize on the finance concerned with the teachers and say that if there is any problem that the Government is facing now in releasing that money, we should be told here. According to what we were told last week, there is no problem except that the Treasury is sitting on the application.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one point which I want to mention is that if this situation continues, and the children are left to suffer for a long time, then it should be possible for us to demand that the children, especially those in Standard VII, who should have been preparing themselves, during this time, so as to be ready for the examination next term should not be made to suffer. The certificate of Primary Education examination should be postponed so as to compensate for the days lost. In this case, Mr. Speaker, the Government should take the matter very seriously because we cannot have the children suffering under the disguise that it is the responsibility of the South Nyanza taxpayers. It is not a question of tax. If you go and get the records, you will see that these people have paid their comparative share. The percentage paid, if the Government had to match that, they would not have a problem in May; they might probably have a problem in September but not so early. This we want the Government to match and therefore make it possible for the county council to run its affairs and make our children, and the public at large, enjoy the facilities given by the Government rather than deny these people through the refusal to pay this money from Nairobi.

If there is no grant—I see the Minister for Finance looking at me—I suggest that we give them a loan so that we assist them. The money is here; we saw in the Estimates that there is plenty of money. Therefore, we had better give them a loan, if this is possible.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support very strongly, and second.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I share the anxiety of the hon. Member who has moved this Motion about the children who are now not getting their education, as they have already paid their fees and the rest of it. However, Mr. Speaker, as I said yesterday, the grants payable to the South Nyanza County Council for 1969 are £199,150. Out of this they have already been paid the amount due to them for the first half of this year, which is £99,575. The grants which are due and payable to this council, as at present, are already paid and the Council cannot, at this juncture, say that they had any money outstanding which should be paid by the Government.

Mr. Speaker, on the contrary, the council has a debt to the Government to the tune of nearly £270,000. Between £32,000 and £35,000 is in the form of school equipment which has been supplied and the council has yet to pay for it. The other amount is £37,000, which is in respect of reimbursements for health staff, together with other staff which have been seconded. On top of that there is £12,750 which is due to the Government in the form of loan charges which should have been paid but which have not been paid. On top of that the Government has made loan grants from the Local Government Loans Authority to the tune of £185,945.

An hon. Member: Too many loans.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member may say too many loans, but this is one of the points which has been made by one of the hon. Members—I think it was the hon. Mr. Omweri—who said that they should be given a loan if there are no grants to be given. However, the hon. Member should realize that a loan is not a gift and it has to be repaid. The main sources of revenue open to most of the local councils can be classified into three categories. The first one is in the form of graduated personal tax, and as far as South Nyanza County Council is concerned, it has estimated a revenue of £140,000, of which only £30,000 has been collected as at the 31st May 1969.

Mr. Shikuku: They want free things, that is all.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the next item of revenue is school fees. In their estimates they have £156,000, out of this £103,000 has been collected leaving a balance of £53,000 to be collected.

Mr. Speaker, the third source of revenue is Government grants, and, as I have already indicated, the full amount has already been paid. Mr. Speaker, the best way which is now open to South Nyanza County Council to obtain revenue is for them to collect the graduated personal tax which is still outstanding and, also, Mr. Speaker, they should collect the fees. In this respect, Mr. Speaker, I must be quite fair to the county council, the administration is responsible for the collection of graduated personal tax, and I would very much like to see the Administration tighten up on ways by which it can have this money collected as soon as possible in order to remedy this situation.

Mr. Speaker, the only other way now open, in which perhaps the Government could help, and I am sure it is going to help, is as laid down in section 17 of the Teachers' Service Commission

[Mr. Munoko]

Act. Under this Act, Mr. Speaker, section 17 (2), it lays down quite clearly that it empowers the commission to pay salaries on default of the local authorities, and such payments to be recovered from the local authorities by the Minister for Local Government.

The second part under section 17 (3) empowers the Minister for Local Government from time to time to make advances to the commission in order to ensure the commission is able to discharge its responsibilities as an employer of teachers. In this connexion, Mr. Speaker, the consent of the Treasury is required. I am sure this is the one aspect which the hon. Members have been referring to when saying that the Treasury is sitting on the consent. This matter is now being gone into. Mr. Speaker, hon. Members will recollect it was only yesterday when I said this matter was being discussed, and up to now the matter is still under discussion and we hope it will soon be finalized.

Mr. Speaker, the county council has to try and do its best to see all the services which they embark on are supported by the resources which they are able to muster. They cannot, Mr. Speaker, go round and make a lot of fuss about matters which they ought, legally, to look into on the spot.

I know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the grants payable to the local authorities have been reduced. So far as South Nyanza is concerned, for 1968 it was £215,000; but this has been reduced to £199,000. This is true of all other local authorities.

Mr. Speaker, the matter is now being looked into and I hope something will be done to save the situation.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only stand to support what the Assistant Minister has said.

If I were to try and find money when county councils go in default it would mean taxing people who are already properly taxed, who are honest and who pay their taxes. If a district refuses to pay tax, this is very unfortunate. My ambition has always been for the country to be taxed leniently, and just try and collect the money which we actually need. Whatever we can collect we should try and distribute evenly. I understand, as the Assistant Minister has just said, money has not been paid. Graduated personal tax is not being paid. I am glad to hear the school fees have done pretty well. They are only short of about £50,000, but that is quite a lot of money.

My feeling is that the Assistant Minister has definitely promised this question is being looked into, and in looking into the question all the other things must play a part. It is in this way we could be looked upon as being fair.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appreciate what the Assistant Minister has said, and also the Minister for Finance, that the South Nyanza County Council has to pay the graduated personal tax properly. I agree with this, but what we are now concerned with is the question of our teachers and the children. In the Teachers' Service Commission Bill, which has now become an Act, it was promised in giving the teachers one employer the purpose was to see the teachers were paid their monthly salaries at the right time. We now find that the teachers in South Nyanza have not been paid.

If the citizens of South Nyanza refuse to pay their graduated personal tax, then the people to be punished should not be the teachers but the people themselves, and not the children. I would suggest that instead of the Ministry of Local Government waiting until one county council is in difficulties, and then going to the Treasury to look for this money, there should be a ready fund whereby when it comes to the question of paying teachers, the teachers would be paid immediately and then the county council would be followed up. If the South Nyanza people refuse to pay their graduated personal tax properly, at the beginning of the year some of the services should be cut. Instead of refusing to pay the teachers some of the teachers should be transferred to other counties which are paying their teachers properly, or who are raising their taxes properly.

To leave the teachers and the children to suffer is very bad indeed. So far the Assistant Minister has not told us what will happen. The teachers are on a sit-down strike, and this is serious. The Minister and Assistant Minister have not told us what they are going to do about this. If they were to tell the people of South Nyanza that because they have failed to pay their graduated personal tax the teachers will be taken away, that would be a different position. The children of South Nyanza have to be educated.

In finishing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would appeal to the hon. Member who has raised this question, hon. Ngala-Abok, together with the other Members from South Nyanza, and all the councillors there, to go round the county area talking to the citizens and persuading them to pay their graduated personal tax properly. I would not like all the money to go to South Nyanza, but I would like some to come to Kirinyaga, and to other

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 241

UTILIZATION OF NGATA FARM HOUSE

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister of State to the President's Office if he would tell the House if the Minister would consider, at his earliest convenience, taking over the Ngata Farm House, at Njoro and turning it into a State Lodge.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The answer is, "No, Sir," the reason being that we have a State Lodge in Nakuru and there is no need to have another State Lodge there. Furthermore, Ngata Farm House is a private property and we cannot acquire the property of any individual and make it immediately a State Lodge.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since that house contains 58 rooms and we, in Kenya, lack many schools for our children, will the Minister encourage African private companies, and assist them through the Agricultural Finance Corporation, to buy that farm and the house so that it can be turned into a college or technical college for school leavers?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a different question.

Next question.

Question No. 226

TAKE-OVER OF BANYA HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House if the Minister would take over Banya Health Centre which had been built by the people's own efforts so that this could be owned or aided by the Government.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The administration of health centres is a local government responsibility and the hon. Member might like to raise this with the local authority concerned.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since I have raised this matter with the local authority and since this local authority would wish to get a recommendation from the Government, would the Minister consider sending his blessing to this request?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it works exactly the other way round. If the local authority decides to take over the health centre but has no fund, it might ask Government for its assistance. Then, we might consider the matter.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

VICE-PRESIDENT'S SPEECH IN NAKURU TO TEACHERS AND PARENTS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs the following Question by Private Notice.

- (a) Is it true, as reported in the Press that the Vice-President Mr. arap Moi, on Sunday, 8th June 1969, at Afraha Stadium, Nakuru, told the people that teachers and members of boards of governors of schools should ensure that pupils were brought up as Kanu supporters?
- (b) If so, are teachers now free to talk politics in schools to pupils, and also to take an active part in politics?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The actual words stated by the Vice-President at the meeting were that teachers and members of the boards of governors of various schools should use their influence to ensure that pupils grow up to be good citizens, to be co-operative and that they should support the Government which is the ruling party, Kanu.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, do I understand from the Vice-President that he was misreported in the Press, and if that was so, why did he not actually refute the report, since it was reported that he told them that teachers and members of boards of governors should ensure that pupils are taught Kanu politics in the school?

Why did you not refute that?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, I normally do not want to refute what I have said. However, I said they must be good citizens, and to be good citizens they must follow, exactly, the policies of the Government in power. If anything contrary is taught, it is against that Government. Therefore, any sensible Government which is governing through the party, must see to it that the entire nation helps to build the nation, uses the words that Government uses, Kanu ya njenga nchi. If it does not, then, definitely, there must be something wrong.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like this to be made very clear by the Vice-President because he is making a very silly statement. I want places; but now, since we have this problem, I think it should be the duty of the Government to do something for the teachers and the children. In future, they should have a definite plan laid down for all the county councils, so that where they fail to meet the services due to them, then the services should be taken away at the beginning of the year. Punishing teachers and children is wrong.

If the South Nyanza people refuse to pay their taxes properly, then perhaps some of the schools might close at the beginning of the year, and the teachers transferred and the people would then have to send the children away from the county council.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! It is time now for the adjournment, and so the House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, 13th June, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Six o'clock.

[Mr. Odinga]

to know from him: does he take it that a person who belongs to the Opposition party is not a good citizen of this country?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not saying that. I said they must be taught to be good citizens. I am not saying that some KPU members may not be good citizens; they may be good citizens. However, I am saying that we must be careful how we choose words. Supposing a teacher teaches in a school that we must free things, that we must have all those buildings free, that we must have free education, without knowing—

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I seek your guidance whether the Vice-President is right in saying that some people, especially the leaders of the Opposition want free things, and yet—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! He has not said that. He has just been hypothetical as to what teachers might say.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member is a new Member and he should—

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said "they may be", and the hon. Member should listen very carefully.

Supposing somebody teaches school children that we must have a Government which gives free things, definitely that is contrary to the policy of Government. This is the very thing which the Member is uttering now. Sir, one must have these things put up in the proper way. Therefore, Sir, that is why I said that children and people should see to it that people are brought up as good citizens. If the KPU would like to be brought up as good citizens, then that is a good thing, there is nothing wrong in that.

WITHDRAWAL OF A.S.K. SUPPORT FROM DISTRICT SHOWS

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to ask the Minister for Agriculture the following Question by Private Notice.

Can the Minister tell the House the circumstances that led the Agricultural Society of Kenya to issue a statement declaring the withdrawal of its support from any showgrounds except Nakuru, Nairobi and Mombasa?

The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. McKenzie): Mr. Speaker, Sir, at the time of independence, the Agricultural Society of Kenya, which is a voluntary society of farmers, was asked by the Government to help and develop the aspect of holding shows in various parts of Kenya and also to help in mounting at least one show in each province.

Over and above this, we requested them to help in demonstration days and field days which is part of their job under their Articles of Association and Articles of their society. They responded extremely well to this request and, in fact, Mr. Speaker, have been the driving force behind a great number of not only provincial shows but also of district shows.

At the same time, in our opinion, wisely, they have reduced their membership subscription to Sh. 60 allowing more farmers to become members and allowing members to be able to attend all the shows wherever the shows may be held. But even so, Mr. Speaker, by this reduction, they have over-spent their finances.

Now, the Nairobi, Nakuru and Mombasa shows operate jointly between the three of them as a financial success. The money which the society had in reserve and also the profits from these shows had to be used in mounting these other shows. Part of the problem, in the early stages, was that not enough volunteers came forward to help in district and provincial shows. This, now, I am pleased to say has changed and we are getting a great number of volunteers coming forward. However, in the whole of this exercise has now put the Agricultural Society of Kenya into financial difficulties and, at this moment, they owe between £40,000 and £50,000.

At this stage, they have put up a proposition to Government and this proposition is being looked into both by my Ministry and the Treasury who help the society so that they will be able to continue to do the valuable work which they are doing for the country. I sincerely hope that the hon. Member who has asked this question will give support to the idea that Government should help the society financially.

Mr. Godia: Arising from the reply by the Minister, will the Minister consider, since many small-scale farmers would like to become members of the society, would it be possible for the Minister to consider lowering the membership fee from Sh. 60 to Sh. 30 in order to bring in very many small-scale farmer who want to be members of the society?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think that lowering the subscription will alter the financial plight of the agricultural society. However, Mr. Speaker, I know that the society are at this moment looking at an idea of membership at the district level at a very much lower figures than the figure of Sh. 30. But I would like to warn the hon. Members that this still does not solve the problem because the more members you have, the more money they have the more outlay they have to take care of those members. The facilities which are given to members, costs the society, per year, more than the subscription; so, in fact, the more members you have the more money it costs to run the society because of certain facilities which are given to members. It is the intention of the society, with the support of Government, that we do not want to lower the level of the standard of any of these shows. I think Mr. Speaker, any hon. Members who are not members of the society should give consideration to joining.

I am sure that hon. Members who had the opportunity of visiting shows such as Kwale, Voi, Embu, Kisumu or any of the other shows other than the three major ones, will know that in no other country in Africa are there such shows spread all the way around the country.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Government must have taken very serious consideration before requesting the society to assist in the organization of these shows in all provinces, what was the purpose for which the Government requested the society to assist? Is the Government satisfied that this purpose has been met? If not, apart from appealing to us to join the society, what else is the Government doing to assist the society to continue holding the shows in all provinces?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, obviously, the hon. Member must have come in after I had started answering the question, but for his benefit, Mr. Speaker, what I said was that we, as a Government, have judged the whole operation as highly successful. Any hon. Member who has been to these shows will see the value of these shows, and we, as a Government, have accepted that this is something that must stay. I also explained that a proposition has been put to us by the society and, at the present moment, this is being looked at and discussed jointly by the Treasury, Economic Planning and my own Ministry. I hope that the results of Government discussions with the Agricultural Society will help them over this problem, because as a policy we have accepted that these shows must continue.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, taking into account the statement expressed by the Minister when he was opening the show at Nakuru, and also he has repeated just now, that the society is running short of money, and knowing very well that most of the people go to these shows, say, in Nairobi and elsewhere, and quite a lot of money is being raised, may we know from the Minister why the books of account of this society are not available for the members of the public to inspect in order to know exactly how much is the expenditure and what is the total revenue, and what shortage there is and for what reasons?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member wants to know the accounts of this society, there is one very simple way in which he can find it without worrying me, or worrying this House, or worrying anybody else, and that is by becoming a member of this society. Especially, as he represents an agricultural constituency, I would have thought that he would have been a member long ago. In fact, I am really surprised that he is not a member and I will see that in Monday's post he gets an enrolment form to become a member.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to know from the Minister whether the Government does not consider that these shows are very important for the development of agriculture in this country and, as such, the Government should take immediate steps to subsidize even the societies when there are shortages because that will go a longer way to help the agriculture industry?

Mr. McKenzie: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the hon. Member for having put forward this suggestion; I agree with him, and I know that at times when I have been meeting him at Kisumu shows we have spoken about this value. I sincerely hope that if ever his party does come into power many years ahead he, himself, will continue to take the same view on behalf of agriculture.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: A.S.K. SUPPORT OF DISTRICT SHOWS

Mr. Oduya: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that this question is very important and the Minister has not satisfied the House, I would like to raise this on adjournment with the permission of the Questioner.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you agree, Mr. Godia?

Mr. Godia: Yes, he has my permission, Mr. Speaker.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE FOR MISSION HOSPITALS

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Health the following Question by Private Notice.

(a) Is the Minister aware that 16 rural church hospitals which give excellent services to the majority of patients in the countryside are likely to be crippled or closed down altogether unless additional financial support is given immediately?

- (b) What immediate financial action is the Government taking to assist these five Protestant and 11 Catholic Hospitals?

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. ole Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry has been informed of increasing financial difficulties being experienced by many church hospitals. We have also been notified that 16 of these hospitals, may have to be closed if additional financial support is not forthcoming within the near future.

(b) My Ministry has made special representation to the Treasury to raise this year's grant to the hospital vote to £120,000. This is considered the minimum financial support that should be provided by the Government.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, and arising from the fact that these hospitals namely Kaimosi, Maseno, Maua, Kakamega and Ravine—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not need the names, Mr. Munyi.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Assistant Minister is aware that all the Members of this important House are going to approve that amount of money, will the Assistant Minister tell us what financial precautionary action is the Ministry going to take to assist these hospitals before the Budget is brought to the House?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, I think that the hon. Member knows very well that these hospitals have been built a long time ago, very early, without the knowledge of the Government, except that they approved the applications for the hospitals which the missionaries said that they were going to build. These hospitals, for quite a long time, have been aided, but the aid which we have been giving to them is not enough. Therefore, since these hospitals were not under the Government, and when they were built, the Government did not commit itself. I have told the hon. Member that my Ministry is negotiating to get a bigger vote to bring the amount to £120,000 to enable these hospitals not to be closed.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, for last two years the Ministry of Health has been considering ways and means of trying to take over the management of some of these hospitals. What progress has been made by the Ministry to see to it that a Bill is brought to this House after which, some of the management of these hospitals will partly lie with the Government and partly with the missions concerned?

Mr. ole Konchellah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry and the Government are willing to take over these hospitals, but they cannot take them all at once. I would like to inform the House that it is a long-term project and the Government is working out a way of how to take over these hospitals. On the other hand, if the hon. Member would also like to help— These hospitals, I believe, cannot run because there has been a lot of pressure for free medicine even in the missionary hospitals, but if they could be allowed to raise their fees when they treat people, then I am sure they will get more money to run the hospitals.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE: GOVERNMENT SUPPORT FOR MISSION HOSPITALS

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, with the permission of the Questioner, this matter being very important, could I be allowed to raise this as a Motion on adjournment.

Mr. Munyi: I give 100 per cent support, Mr. Speaker, so that we shall give more information.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

THREATENED STRIKE BY MEMBERS OF THE KENYA DOMESTIC AND HOTEL WORKERS' UNION

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Labour the following question by Private Notice.

What instantaneous action is the Ministry taking to avoid the general strike advocated by the Kenya Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union as a result of the Visa Oshwal School Management's refusal to negotiate with the union on behalf of its 60 members now on strike since 3rd June 1969?

The Assistant Minister for Labour (Mr. Oselu-Nyalick): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. The Ministry of Labour is doing all it can to resolve the dispute between the Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union and Visa Oshwal's School's Management and if this materializes, then, automatically, the threatened strike will be averted.

It is true that for some time that Visa Oshwal School's Management has refused to recognize the Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union, but it is hoped that better counsel will prevail. If any strike takes place, it will be dealt with in accordance with the Trade Disputes Act.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that story, and having already known the intention of the Ministry, and as a result of the reply now before the House, is the Minister now helping the workers when a community like that shows a negative attitude towards the workers?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry is still trying to persuade the community to recognize the union, but as the Trade Union Act of 1965 does not allow for sympathy strikes, it is hoped that no such strike will take place.

Mr. Lubembe: Since the Assistant Minister has mentioned that any strike will be dealt with in accordance with the Trade Disputes Act, and since many schools in Kenya now have recognized the Domestic and Hotel Workers' Union, why is the Ministry not using section 20 of Trade Disputes Act to compel this school to recognize this union, since there is already a recognition agreement existing with the other schools and there is a law to compel this?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just said that my Ministry is doing all it can to see that this strike is averted. By that I mean, that there is no certainty of these people going on strike. The discussion is going on up to now about this.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the statement tends to imply that the Minister of Labour can make an order to tell any industry, which is within another industry, which has recognized such a union— My question is, if there is such a law, why does the Ministry not use section 20, to compel these schools to recognize the union in accordance with the law? Why?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have just said that my Ministry is doing all it can to see that these schools comply with the section the gentleman is telling us about. In other words, there is a dispute. If there is a dispute going on, then these people are negotiating with my Ministry and they are doing exactly what they are supposed to do, since they are complying with the regulations laid down under the Act.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Government is here to protect the people in this country and in this case the Government has already now shown a negative attitude, since these people went on strike on 3rd June and today is 13th June, this was ten days ago. These people are still on strike. Does it mean that the Ministry is also trying to discriminate against the workers as against the employers?

Mr. Oselu-Nyalick: It is a blank no, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on now.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order No. 20, I would like to raise this matter as a matter of national importance because now, Mr. Speaker, workers are on strike and also the Ministry should have taken action, Mr. Speaker. I am sure that the hon. Members will agree that this, being a matter of national importance, should be discussed, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no doubt that it is a definite matter and an urgent matter. However, as I said the other day, we can only use the procedure of adjourning under Standing Order 20 if we have no other adequate opportunity of discussion. We have had discussion of this question by Private Notice just now, and it does strike me that, whatever conflicting views there may be, there is not very much to be said on this. This being so, I do not think it is a proper case for me to allow the matter to be followed up on this same day, under Standing Order 20.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: THREATENED STRIKE BY MEMBERS OF THE DOMESTIC AND HOTEL WORKERS' UNION

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, since I am not satisfied in the reply which the Assistant Minister has given this morning, could I follow it in a Motion for the Adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, I am sorry that I do not see any possibility of helping this issue by pressing the Ministry to do something because the Motion for the Adjournment may not help. This strike is coming on Monday and since you have ruled, we have only discussed, and there is no way to press further. What could we do to get the Ministry to do something today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you have done all you can do. This is why I do not think it worthwhile moving the Adjournment today.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE KALENJIN AT BURNT FOREST SETTLEMENT SCHEME

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Chemjor? Mr. Chemjor not here? Mr. Chemjor did inform me he did not wish to pursue this question. I am not quite clear whether he does not want to pursue it at all, or whether he merely wanted it to be a question for oral reply. However, that we can ascertain from him.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, Mr. Chemjor told me that he is willing to postpone this question until, may be, Wednesday next week, with your permission.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not quite understand that. If it is a question by Private Notice, it has to be answered within two days. If it has not got to be answered within these two days, I do not see why it should be a question by Private Notice any more. I think we had better have it treated, now, as an ordinary question for oral reply, and you can answer it within the 10 days if you particularly want to, Mr. Malinda.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Yes.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

RAIDS ON POKOT PEOPLE BY TURKANA

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, as regards matters to be raised on the Adjournment next week, on Tuesday, 17th June, on the Adjournment, Mr. Kassa-Choon will pursue his Question No. 196 concerning frequent raids on Pokot tribesmen by armed Turkana and Ngoroko.

HOLDING OF ILLEGAL COURTS BY SUB-CHIEF

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On Wednesday, 18th June, on the Adjournment, Mr. Munyasia will pursue his question by Private Notice concerning the alleged holding of illegal courts by a sub-chief.

POINT OF ORDER

OBJECTION TO PAPERS LAID—DEVELOPMENT ESTIMATES

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to seek your guidance that yesterday, three important documents were laid on the Table of this House. I feel that some of these documents should be rewritten. What can a Member do to prevent these documents from being debated in this House until they are completely rewritten, especially this one, Development Estimates, because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot quite get your point, Mr. Kariuki. You are referring to the Estimate?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I rise to ask for your guidance, that yesterday, three important documents were laid on the Table.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I want to know what you are talking about.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance whether a Member can object, or what procedure a Member can follow in order to object to these documents being debated in this House until they are properly written?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! What documents are these?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: The documents are: Economic Survey, Recurrent Expenditure, 1969/70 and the other one is Development Estimate 1970.

An hon. Member: What is wrong?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! What is that you want? I have not got it clear, I am afraid.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: I am objecting to these documents being allowed to be debated in this House until they have been rewritten.

An hon. Member: What is wrong?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: There are some mistakes. These documents tend to show that money is going to be spent on one particular area while other areas are neglected.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I still find it very hard to understand, Mr. Kariuki. These Estimates will be debated. They have to be laid on the Table before they are debated. I do not follow the point, I am afraid.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I think there—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I find it hard to understand the point.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point is, now that some Members of this House are not happy with these documents—Development Estimates—is there any way that a Member can object to these documents being debated in this House before further consultation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You want to prevent the debate on these Estimates?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Yes.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. There is no way of preventing the debate on the Estimates. I am rather surprised at the suggestion. If you do not like them, the thing is to debate them.

Mr. Lawi: On a point of order, my point of order is this, Mr. Speaker, last Friday we had hon. Godia's Motion which we left unfinished and referring to the Order Paper, I see it is Order No. 6 while it should be Order No. 5 because the Motion by Okelo-Odongo—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is because today is the day on which Opposition Group Motions take precedence.

MOTION

REPEAL OF THE OUTLYING DISTRICTS AND SPECIAL DISTRICTS ACTS

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that colonial rules as contained in Kenya Statute Books, Chapter 104, namely the Outlying Districts Act and the Special Districts (Administration) Act with amendments thereto hinder freedom of political organizations throughout the country as provided by the Republic Constitution; this House urges the Government to repeal these laws in as far as they affect the movement of party officials and agents.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know how many people realize in Kenya today that in the independent Kenya almost half of the 42 districts that we have are closed districts. Closed districts mean that those districts are not supposed to be visited by Kenyans coming from other districts without permits. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know even how many people realize that places, for instance, like Kitui, Embu, Meru, Nyeri, Fort Hall and even Kiambu are supposed to be closed districts, which should not be visited or cannot be visited by other Kenyans without having permits from the administration officers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, of course, people have been to these places and nothing has happened, but the thing is that they do not know. When one goes to Kiambu or goes to Fort Hall, what one does not know is that one is committing an offence and that one is likely to be punished by the Government, and also likely to be thrown out by the administrative officers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this happened in some places about two years ago. A foreign journalist was arrested in Baringo and was fined and I remember at one time in Meru town, one night, a raid was made in one of the important hotels there and several citizens of the country were inconveniently taken into custody because they were in Meru without permits. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we people who have visited these places have suffered a lot of these inconveniences. I remember also that the hon. Member, Mr. Omweri, when he was moving a Motion in this House, which was similar to this one, cited certain incidents where people pursuing lost cattle or things like that, had to stop at the neighbouring boundary just because the district happened to be closed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the closed districts, if the Members would like to know, are Turkana, Wajir, Mandera, Marsabit, Isiolo, Meru, Embu, Kiambu, Fort Hall, Nyeri, Narok, Kajiado, Kitui, West Pokot, Elgeyo-Marakwet, Baringo, Laikipia (what used to be called Nanyuki) and Tana River. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a long list of Kenya districts which are still supposed to be closed districts under the Acts which I have just mentioned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these districts, in our minds, maybe, are considered as untouchable districts among the other districts of Kenya because many of them are considered, or some of them are considered, to be backward districts and, therefore, must be restricted from being visited by people from other districts. Some of the districts, of course, are considered—especially those that were declared closed during the emergency—to be infested with criminals and evil men and other people from other districts were not encouraged to go to these districts because it was thought that they would be contaminated and become bad people if they visited the areas.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the most ironical fact is that, both the President and the Vice-President of the Republic come from closed districts. It would appear that it is a mistake to have these gentlemen in our midst because their districts are closed and they are supposed to be untouchables. I know that there are people in this country who still support these laws, and who still maintain that these laws that affect closed districts should be supported. I think they do it for different reasons. Firstly, there is a group that think that these districts have got handsome people, handsome Masai Morans and Samburu Morans, who should not be spoilt; they have a romantic view that these people should be left like that. As a matter of fact, Mr. Speaker, what they are recommending is some kind of a human zoo.

Hon. Members: Shame.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: It would be a shame for people in Kenya to support anything like that because the Masai, Samburu and anybody else, are just as much Kenya citizens as anybody else in the country. I think that I agree, in this case, entirely with President Nyerere who has said that the Masai people should be made to wear trousers. The world is changing and we cannot stick to old traditions, whether we like it or not. If anybody is a friend of the Masai or the Samburu, he would support that they should catch up with the rest of the Kenya people and develop because otherwise they stand open to exploitation in a very short time.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, these laws try to keep these areas as zoos so that tourists and other people can come and see how the Masai look, and so forth, with their bodies smeared with red ochre and things like that. These are nice things, of course, but I do not think they should be forced to be kept there because things go on changing, and the Masai too must change. These things can be kept for ceremonial purposes but not for every-day wear.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, some other people are concerned about these laws for the good reason of protection. I believe that many of the Members who come from these areas, in Nairobi, in this House and in the country, say that these areas should be protected, otherwise maybe some clever people will go there and buy all the land. This is what the Attorney-General, himself, said when he was answering this Motion, that if these districts were opened, then some clever people could go there and buy all the land. This was also the concern which was expressed by the hon. Member, ole Oloitipitip: that these places must remain closed because otherwise the unscrupulous people would go there and buy all the land and the Masai people should be allowed to come up so that they catch up with the rest of the people.

Mr. ole Lemein: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. Is the hon. Member talking about Masai land or Masai people, or is he speaking about the Motion on outlying districts, because he is now speaking about the Masai only?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is, at present, speaking only about the Masai, but it is relevant, I think, to the question of outlying districts.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the reason why I mention Masai is because it was mainly the Masai in this House who strongly objected to Omweri's Motion which wanted this law to be repealed. This is why I referred to that. I was speaking to one of the hon. Members yesterday from one of these outlying districts and he told me that he did not want this law to be repealed because he was afraid that people coming from other places, and especially the Kikuyus, would go there and flood the whole area. This, I think, is the main fear in people's minds about this, and this was also the thing that was expressed by the Attorney-General himself.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when one reads the Motion that we have moved, one will see that we are not interested in taking the land away from the Masai, the Samburu, the Turkana, or from any person, and all we are saying here—and this is what the Motion mentions particularly—is that we want freedom of political movement in these areas. Our Constitution clearly says that there will be freedom of movement and there will be freedom of association, and we have accepted in this country a Parliamentary democracy where we have two parties and one would think, logically, that in order for us to be able to organize our political parties there must be freedom of movement throughout the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have mentioned nearly half of the districts which, at the moment, are considered closed districts. If we are going to have General Elections, for instance like we are going to have soon, and if the KPU Party is not allowed to organize in these districts, then whatever comes out of the results of the election would be unfair and would be some kind of swindle by the ruling party because they would not have allowed the Opposition to function freely in these districts.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember when we were trying to organize for the county council elections which took place last year, we found out—myself and my hon. friend here, Mr. Sijeyo—that when we tried to go to Turkana, to Baringo, to other places—we were stopped from going to Turkana, and we were also stopped from going to Baringo; we were not allowed to visit West Pokot, and we were not allowed to visit Elgeyo-Marakwet. We were stopped from going to Kajjado, Narok, Isiolo and all the other places. If the same thing were to be repeated before the General Election, it would amount to political corruption because it would be that Kanu was allowed to organize in these large areas while the KPU were not allowed to visit those areas.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these are facts that are there, and if the Kanu Government is really sincere in protecting Parliamentary democracy in this country, then this is one of the things that must be rectified. As I have made it clear, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not moving a Motion here that people should be allowed to go and settle in these areas, or that they should be allowed to go and open dukas and shops in these areas; all we are saying is that for the purposes of democracy, and for the purpose of allowing the parties to organize freely in the country, as provided by the Constitution, there must be freedom of movement, and particularly for the party officials. Unless this is done, then whatever will be done will be corruption and swindle. I do hope that the Government will see the importance of this and take action. I do believe that the hon. Members in this House will also see the importance of this and support this Motion, because I think it is a dark thing in our laws and we must get rid of it.

We all know, Mr. Speaker, that we are here by the virtue of being in Parliament and this is a very important institution for our country, and we do know how we need to progress. We also know that it is very important that there must be peace and harmony in the country so that we can get this progress that we want for our people. Unless there is peace, and unless we can work together, we shall not be able to improve the standard of living of our people. We did not come here just to sit; we came here as leaders to see that we protect those institutions that are necessary for our people's progress. Parliamentary democracy is one of these institutions which this country has accepted, and which we are dedicated to maintain.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that people never learn from experience, but if you just look over the borders of Kenya you will see that there is a big war going on now in Nigeria. The thing that caused that war, and the reason why so many people have been killed there, is merely because the people who were elected to power did not work to establish those institutions that would encourage peace: things like political justice and political freedom. I think that we would be failing in our responsibility if this point was not taken seriously, and if the Members in this House did not use their position here to make sure that this kind of thing is preserved, and to make sure that the Parliamentary democracy that we are working on is secure and that we establish an atmosphere where we can go on living together and working together.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, a very unfortunate thing has happened in this country; and that is that although we have had independence for nearly six years, because of divide and rule, you still find that we have not established one harmonious nation; we have not established one homogeneous nation because everybody is suspicious of everybody else. Even if you take it amongst us the Africans, you find that tribalism is still encouraged, and you find that one member of one tribe is never at home in a group of members of another tribe. If they are in the same country, how is this going to help?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we are going to live as a nation, not only are we going to mix with the Europeans and the Asians who have made this country their country, but we Africans must also give an example of living together. The Africans are trying to blame the Europeans and blame the Asians, when they themselves are unable to live together. I understand that the fear here is what I said before, that some people are afraid. A friend of mine was telling me yesterday that if you open the districts there will be an influx of Kikuyus who will take all the land. However, when I talked to a second man he told me that, in any case, the Kikuyus are there anyway, and he told me if you go to Kajiado, if you go to Narok, if you go to Isiolo, if you go to Lodwar, you will find that the dukas are all being run by the Kikuyus or the Merus. Therefore, that protection is not even there.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the work to develop our country economically, politically and socially, we must start with these laws and we must remove these laws that declare certain districts closed. I remember one time we went to organize efforts in Meru and we were given three hours to leave the town and we were Members of Parliament, and we were in Kenya, one country, and it was most strange. Yet, you can go to Tanzania and you can go to Uganda and no one asks you to leave there within any period of time; you can stay there as long as you like; but if you go to a part of Kenya, you are told you must get out. This is a big shame and it is in the way of our development and it is in the way of our creating friendship amongst ourselves and getting to know each other. We should go to Mandera and know how the people there live. We should be able to visit Lodwar freely to know how our friends the Turkanas live, and we should be able to go through the whole of Masailand and see how the Masai live, and to Tana River and to Lamu. We should see the kind of life they are living and then we can consider ourselves as one people and one nation. If we keep these things separate, as we have done, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we will not be doing any work. I hope that the Government will see the need for this and, without any further delay, repeal these laws.

In any case, Sir, in the coming General Elections we, on this side of the House, are not going to consider these elections as fair if our officials and our agents are not going to be allowed to visit these areas freely. Mr. Speaker, Sir, our agents must go to these places, and unless that is done we are not going to consider these elections as fair and we want the country to know that, because in the other way it cannot work. We must be allowed to visit these places.

When the Attorney-General was answering this Motion, he did not say that there was any difficulty. All the Attorney-General said was that they would continue to examine the necessity for the continuance of this law. How long are they going to continue to examine this necessity? This Motion was moved about two years' ago and by now the Government ought to have done something about these laws. If it is necessary to protect the people from economical exploitation or from land exploitation—there cannot be any political exploitation, only economical exploitation—then they should make such laws and such regulations not to allow Kikuyus to get permits to trade in Lodwar and these other places, and not allow any person that they do not want to get a permit. They should make it difficult for such a person to get a permit to go to these areas. However, to these things in our legislation is a big mistake. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the matter is very clear and our position here is very clear. We are demanding this because some of this legislation is as old as 1902, when the first move was to separate these places. As the reasons for this are some of the things that we cannot support, like having human zoos, which is really out of date, an anachronism in our society, we must get rid of this law. Mr. Speaker, since it is our purpose to uphold democracy and to have peace in this country, we must get rid of this law so that there is peace and progress for the nation of Kenya.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very pleased to be able to second the Motion.

I have been in Rift Valley and from experience I have learned that in the so-called closed districts there is nothing being done by this independent Government of Kenya. During the colonial days, before independence was achieved, we used to get permits very easily to enter these closed districts, for example, Baringo and Kabarnet. When I was in the Rift Valley, in Nakuru, we used to operate in all parts of the Rift Valley without any difficulties.

I remember that in 1966, when I was a candidate for Nakuru, I went to Mogotio where my voters were registered. I had to make arrangements for polling day. I was put in custody by the administration officer there and I was accused of being there, entering a closed district. Yet my voters were there. The purpose for this was to hinder my party from succeeding, it was to hinder the voters, my voters from voting me in.

Mr. Speaker, if the Government of today is here to plan to undermine other Members of Parliament, or to undermine the registered party, KPU, from operating in this country, this should be made known to the world. The world should note that the Kenya Government, the Kenya independent Government, is doing worse things than the colonialist government was doing in this country. Mr. Speaker, I was sent to court and, although it takes quite a long time, about six months, to be tried in the Nakuru court, no evidence was brought against me and later on I was released. However, when I tried to go to that closed district again, I and the others who were with me found that the gates were completely closed and here were askaris guarding the place of entry. We were asked to produce permits to enter.

As Mr. Tom Okelo-Odongo has mentioned here, we went to Samburu and that was all right. However, when we started our journey to the Vice-President's home, we found that the Vice-President had gone around threatening people and asking where we were and where we had visited. So some people were transferred from some places to other places when they were charged as people who had had KPU members in the area, who had helped to organize KPU in the area. Some of them were our brothers from home. We were debarred from visiting our brothers and friends in those parts of the country. If this is to continue in our country, it seems as if the Kanu Government is the worst type of colonial government in the country and in Africa as a whole. We have never heard of any country in the African continent where you find that they are independent and yet there are certain areas called Closed Districts. This is shameful and, as my friend has said, it seems as if this has been kept for the American Peace Corps and the British Peace Corps to come and photograph, to take pictures of our people and send them abroad so that these pictures can be shown in the cinemas. They want to show that these are the people ruling Kenya, these are the naked people ruling an independent nation.

I have never heard of such a thing as the President's area being a closed district. I am sure I will be caught if I go there to visit my friend Mr. Koinange or Waira Kamau. They are Kanu but because we were together during the colonial days, when we were suffering and fighting for independence, I have to visit them. I am surprised to find that our leaders, the President and the Vice-President live in closed districts. That is why they are afraid even to visit Nyanza which is part of the country they are ruling. They are afraid of visiting Nyanza because they think there might be witchdoctors there who will put a spell on them or undermine them in any other way. It is high time that the President and Vice-President of this Republic set the example that will show the people that we are a united Kenya, that we have one Government, that we have people who form one nation to live and work together in unity. There is no point having certain people who are denied their rights.

Mr. Speaker, these people in the closed district— When I went to Samburu I saw some things. Mr. Speaker, we have to show our people how to move with the wind of change. In Samburu we saw the carcasses of people being dragged away by hyenas. If we still have such things taking place, then when visitors come here, they take photographs of these things and send them abroad to show that these are the areas where the hon. Mr. Ngala comes from, or the areas the hon. Mr. arap Moi comes from. They take pictures to show the Rift Valley where Vice-President comes from, pictures to show where the President comes from.

For these reasons I am sure the Attorney-General will take the initiative to see that this law is repealed immediately so that we can find a way in which to organize our party. Kanu says, in the Press and on the radio, that they are the supreme party. If that is so, why can they not allow us to move all over the country and organize ourselves? We have people in Masailand who come and visit us at our place, elders, in big groups, who come to Kisumu to visit the President of our party; there are many people from Lodwar who come from their part of the country to visit our party's President. They want to be organized and know what is going on in the country.

Mr. Speaker, it seems as if Kanu is pretending to be a national party while it is not. It is operating through the radio and the Press and even ordering the Press to put out what they do not want to be known.

Mr. Mate: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I was wondering whether Kanu are pretending? Is the hon. Member in order to talk about Kanu pretending?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry I did not hear you.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, I was wondering whether it was in order for the new hon. Member of Parliament to say that Kanu is pretending? I may be out of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Seaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, I cannot get the point, but I do think the hon. Member is in order.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is trying to waste my time for nothing. I am sure that he would not like to see that the law included his area. In view of that, I am sure he will support this Motion in order to enable the Attorney-General to repeal the existing law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we want to be free in our country. Once again we are telling the Attorney-General that if this law is not repealed, then the forthcoming General Elections will not be recognized by our party. If he is not going to repeal the law, then he should allow our people to move about freely in that part of the country.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to second.

(Question proposed)

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sure my colleague will reply on behalf of the Government, but I would like to say a few words on this Motion.

As the Motion stands now, it is very difficult for Government to accept it. As worded, the Motion is in the interest of only one political organization without any regard to the interest of the people in the country. If these districts are to be free for entry generally, then we should consider giving a chance to all the people, not only political leaders and their agents. If there is any good reason for opening the districts, then they should be opened to all. So for the hon. Members of the KPU to ask the Government to open these areas for them only is selfishness. If the KPU party has followers in Samburu, Kajiado or Isiolo, why can the people there, the indigenous people of the area, not organize things? Why is it necessary to plan, to send agents there? It should be possible for the people of that area, if they love you so much, to organize themselves. Mr. Speaker, I understand they are not loved too much there. However, the point I wanted to make is that it is selfishness to put forward a Motion of this nature which is only asking for politicians or their agents to be allowed to visit these closed districts, for these special people to be allowed to come from other areas to these specific districts. If we are really speaking in the interests of the country, we should ask the Government to review the position in the interest of everybody—all the people who go there. The Mover, my good friend, suggests that the idea is to create one nation and oneness—you do not create oneness, unity and harmony, just by allowing a few KPU officers and a few KPU agents to go to that place. This has not satisfied them at all and I think it would be very difficult for Government to accept a Motion which is intended just for political campaign purposes.

An hon. Member: Who told you?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): I see it, and I do not need to be told. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other point I would like to make is that the Motion, as it stands now, defeats its own purposes. It is not asking for everybody, the nation as whole and Members of different areas and districts to be given a chance to go into those areas. It is only asking for the Members of the political party and their agents to be allowed to go there. I do not see the reason why agents should go there if people there do not like them. They will be beaten and will wish that the whole area was closed for their own security.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you addressing the Chair, Mr. Ngala?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am trying to tell the Opposition that it is for their own interest and security—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You should do it in the third person, then.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): If Government was careless enough as to leave these areas wide open, and these people go there without the knowledge of the Government—we have just heard an hon. Member saying that some of them would be circumcised. How do we know whether they are going to be circumcised or not? The Government must look at the interest and, therefore, must be very careful for security reasons.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to say that we are not contravening the Constitution by this Act because the Constitution allows movements of people within the country because we do give permits. I, myself was a Leader of an Opposition and I used to go to these areas and preached my policies as much as possible in those areas by just getting a permit from the Government so that the Government knew where I was for my own security. I did this for my own security. Mr. Speaker, Sir, hon. Members will understand that this Motion is worded insufficiently, inadequately and very selfishly for political reasons only. The people in Masailand are very happy without the KPU. The people in Samburu, we hear are very happy without the KPU, and people in other places—Kilifi is not a closed district and people there are very happy; but even though it is not closed, if you come there, utapata cha metema kuri.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words I beg to caution that the Motion is very badly worded.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion, as the hon. speaker who has just sat down has said, is very selfishly worded. I would like, first of all, to say that the contents and intentions, as far as it effects the citizens of this country are most welcome because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the inconveniences travellers from other areas in the country suffer are so great that they demand the repeal of these two particular laws. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have asked a question in this House regarding these outlying districts; and in addition I have had a Motion in this House on this question. Still no promise for repeal of this law has been given and we have not been told how many reviews have been there and the position at present. Mr. Speaker, we would like that, rather than wait for these promises of reviews as the hon. Minister has said, which will never materialize. It is high time this House felt that it is proper that laws, which have no meaning, should be repealed, because if they were brought up to date, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then we would be able to have one country with one law. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the way the laws are administered, sometimes is very discriminatory because you will find that when travellers from outlying districts move to other districts they are treated in a different way from the way you would be treated if you moved to the same district. Why should it be so when we are all Kenyans? Why should I be required to have a permit if I want to go to Kajiado, when a man from Kajiado needs no permit to come to Nairobi? This is the question, Mr. Speaker, Sir, my own feelings are that we would rather make this Motion to affect the entire population rather than it is worded here. Therefore, I want to speak on an amendment which I feel will embrace every citizen. My own amendment will suggest that in the fourth line we should delete the words "political organization" and in the place thereof we insert the words "freedom of movement", and in the last line, we delete all the words after the word "of" that is "party official and agents"—because we are not talking about party agents but about the citizens of the country—and in the place thereof we insert the word "citizens".

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this would mean that the Motion would be in the interests of the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this way it will conform with the word referred there as "Republic Constitution" because this Constitution affects the entire population—not only party organizations and party agents. We feel that it is high time we thought in a wider way than the KPU think. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that we should think more broadly and talk as representatives of our people, who want the administration of this law to be repealed so that they can enjoy themselves on what they are now missing. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think hon. Members of this House feel that we are failing the districts which are now closed. I do not know why and by whom these people were taught that if the districts are closed, then they are at peace. What we see even today are cattle-raids, cattle thieving which is continuing. The other day we saw border clashes. All these things are aggravated because of these restrictions of movement. If you try to restrict anybody— If you try to restrict anybody's movement, you create curiosity, and therefore anxiety exists for those who are restricted, and they are likely to feel that there must be something else they would like to go and see. So, rather than create these anxieties and ill-feelings, it is high time Government thought at once, after all, Kanu advocated oneness and, therefore, we should feel that we are one country, rather than segregate ourselves and create unnecessary boundaries, which at the moment are inconveniencing everybody.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services said something about exploitation. It is actually, putting this into the minds of people who do not even know what that means. Nobody is going to mind about, say, Kajiado or Narok Districts, and take away their cattle, or deprive them of their land. Mr. Speaker, if these districts are open, it will only mean that these people will be educationally advanced, and commercially, and this is why we support the idea of repealing these laws.

I think the Attorney-General should consider bringing amendments so that these laws are amended, and this will indicate that the review is there and constant; but the review which is negative, and through which no action is taken, shows that nobody is interested in seeing these laws amended. Therefore, my own suggestion is that we should now agree with the Motion as I have amended it, so that our country remains one, and the treatment which each citizen receives in the administration is the same, rather than have these various treatments where you are so much inconvenienced.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one experience I have, which looked very nasty, was that, the other day the Minister for Defence flew somewhere in Turkana, and he was saying that we want to make Turkana a big tourist attraction centre. How are you going to subject tourists to come here from Nairobi? It would be quite cumbersome. We would think if you want to make attraction centres in these closed districts—the best way is to open the district fast, so that each district has free movement, but you cannot have them closed and then when a tourist wants to go to this attraction, he queues up with the citizens who want to get permits to go to these areas.

My own experience has been, when I wanted to go to Kapenguria, that I had to wait at Kitale, at the district officer's office, for two hours, and at the end I put it off until the following day. Being a Member of Parliament, imagine what other people are subjected to, sometimes weeks. It must be put to our own Members of this House, including the hon. Members who come from closed districts, that the question of fear being infiltrated into their minds, that they would be exploited, is the wrong idea, and it is high time they came up and we fought together. If it is a problem, we should bring it here so that we fight it openly and see what we can do; but you cannot say that you are going to be exploited, and you should not support the idea of oneness, while at the same time you are told that Kanu stands for unity. What unity, if you are making other people fear the others? We should not fear any person in this country, or the question of land exploitation, Mr. Speaker. The hon. Members must know that even if you restrict the Kikuyus, they are already settled in Kajiado, and they are even owning shops in Narok. It seems that this law is only affecting other tribes, but not the Kikuyus.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kipury, you second the amendment?

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Karungaru.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this morning a Motion has been moved in this House, and has been taken by this House as a party Motion, and, fortunately, a very wise hon. Member from the Government side has just managed to amend the Motion, so that the Motion benefits the nation, and not a political party. Mr. Speaker, I have been listening when the Mover was moving the Motion, but I failed to understand why he worded the Motion in such a way that it was only going to benefit the KPU officials and agents. Here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is where we fail to understand where the KPU is heading to, because when KPU talks, it talks about itself. You should talk about the nation, rather than talk about yourself. This is a big lesson, Mr. Speaker, for the nation, because KPU has already shown that it is not for the nation but for the diversity of tribes, and we do not believe that such an organization should exist.

Mr. Speaker, the reason why I am seconding the amendment of the Motion, by hon. Omweri, is this: if Government has allowed the tourists from abroad to come into this country, I think the Government has one fault in this one. That is, these people come here so that they can show other people how they live in their own country. I always hear it said in this House that the

[Mr. Karungaru]

Kikuyu people are dominating everything. I do not speak for the Kikuyu people because I am not qualified. I am not representing the Kikuyu people in any way. I am a Member representing an urban area, and I have no concern with the Kikuyu people at all: but here, Mr. Speaker, is a challenge. If some of the hon. Members who are now going to oppose this Motion do not see the danger, one day they will realize it. They always say that Kikuyu people are highly educated, rich, and that and that, but they fail to understand where the Kikuyu people learnt all this knowledge. Where did the Kikuyu people get this knowledge? The knowledge is within you people; but if you do not want to use it, it is up to you.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I understand from the Members who represent the rural areas, particularly the very remote areas, that they are going to oppose this Motion. It is to their own disadvantage if they oppose this Motion because they will never benefit from the tribes who have advanced. If you are Masai, you will be displaying whatever you are displaying there, and you do not want people from Kenya to know, but you would like to see people from Britain, Russia, and people from America to see what you are, and you do not want us to see what you are, so that we may treat you properly—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Karungaru, are you addressing the Chair?

Mr. Karungaru: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is all this “you”? Is it me?

Mr. Karungaru: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I am addressing the Chair.

Mr. Speaker, I am supporting the amendment of this Motion because I feel that we in this House have a duty, and we have to decide about it. The duty is to teach those who are not of our standard, and there is no other way of teaching these people if we do not have a free movement, to move around the country, talk with people and show them what they do not know so that they may also catch up. If we are not going to do this, then we will be failing in calling the spirit of Harambee, because the spirit of Harambee means togetherness. How can we get together with these people if they want to live in isolated districts of their own which they do not want other people to visit?

I would have opposed this Motion if it had not been amended; but since it has been amended, I am strongly supporting it, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to second the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will combine debate on that with the debate on the main question.

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Speaker, I am rising to oppose the original Motion as well as the amended Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from what the hon. Mover of the Motion said, in the first place he said he wanted to come into Masailand because he is more civilized and that he wants to teach the Masai how to wear clothes, just like the Tanzanian Government did. I wonder whether he can really advise the Masai on how to wear clothes before he teaches the Luos themselves. Only the educated Luos are wearing clothes, but I have been to Kisumu and I have been to the interior part of their country and have seen quite a number, thousands and thousands of Luos, walking naked. This man has never even convinced his own people on the necessity of wearing clothes.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: You are lying. On a point of order, is the hon. Member not actually misleading the House in saying that the Luo people walk naked? If I take him there tomorrow we shall meet none. Is he not actually misleading the House? Is it right for an hon. Member like himself to mislead the House with such a statement?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is not a question that one can substantiate because I do not think anybody can go around checking up, but it is a matter of opinion and I am sure you will correct him if he is wrong. You are not allowed to say, Mr. Chillo, that, “You are lying”, that is quite out of order and you must withdraw it. Please withdraw the words “You are lying”.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I withdraw that the Luo people are walking naked; that I withdraw.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Chillo—

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I withdraw.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You do withdraw, unconditionally?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I will give him time to refute that.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Unconditionally?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Pardon?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You withdraw unconditionally?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I withdraw—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Unconditionally?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: —according to your instructions.

Mr. Kago: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it not sufficient substantiation that what my friend has alleged is true because even the hon. Member is not properly dressed?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Kago, do not do that again or I will send you out of the House. You are not going to be allowed to try to be funny at the expense of Standing Orders.

We will proceed with the debate. Any other points of order?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Sir, I think that the hon. Member is misrepresenting me because I did not say that my idea was to go to Masailand to teach them how to wear clothes; I only expressed an opinion that one should support that they should wear clothes.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You can always correct him, as to what you said, when you are replying.

Mr. ole Kipury: That was one of the reasons why the hon. Mover of the Motion wanted to come to Masai, because the Masai are, as he alleges, walking naked, and I am objecting to this.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must thank the Government very, very much indeed for the wisdom it has had in preserving these laws up to this moment. It is because of this wisdom that the country is now stable. There are thousands and thousands of people from other tribes living in Masailand, living in these so-called isolated districts. There are many of them and there is no trouble whatsoever and nobody has created trouble against them. It is only a matter of going to the district commissioner's office and asking for a permit, which costs nothing, and you are given it and you can live in that particular area for as long as you wish. The people who are in favour of abolishing this law are those who would like to come at night and inspect where the cattle are—and also where the good land is so that they may go back and bring their brothers and sisters and settle there. This is what we do not want, and the Government itself does not want this.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon Member has stated categorically that the people who are moving this Motion for repealing this law want to get time to come at night to see where the cattle are and see where everything else is and take them; now, is this not imputing a bad motive against the Member who moved this Motion?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, yes, it certainly is. Mr. Kipury, you should know by now that you must respect other hon. Members and their motives, just as much as you want them to respect you and your motives. It is totally out of order. I am sorry that I was not listening because I was talking to the Clerk at that particular second, but you must withdraw and apologize.

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Deputy Speaker, there must have been some motive behind this.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! You are withdrawing and apologizing?

Mr. ole Kipury: I withdraw, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): And apologize.

Mr. ole Kipury: Yes, Sir.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, another point that the Mover also mentioned was that these tribes, especially the Masai, Samburu and others, are fearing the Kikuyus. For his information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have thousands of Kikuyus and other tribes in Masailand and we do not fear them, we welcome them because they are really very helpful to us. They are far more helpful than a Luo would be because these people have developed minds and they are very, very hard workers; and if you give them shambas they really work for the development of the country—they are very useful to us. Despite the law, these people are coming in. There is no point in saying that we should abolish the law. If the Government would like to abolish it with no embarrassment to anybody, I will ask the Government probably to appoint a committee to go into it and visit these places and get the views from the people concerned and get the proper information. Out of that information, if necessary, get something to replace this because these people must be protected from economic exploitation and their lands must be protected. They are citizens of this country and there is nowhere else where these people can go, I cannot go to, say, Kiambu, and get a [Mr. ole Kipury] piece of land there; I cannot go to Machakos and get a piece of land there because it is all taken and filled up. Why should you come to me and demand land or anything else because you have seen further than I have done and you want to exploit me? This is why I am telling the Government that I think these people should be protected, and I thank them for doing so up to this moment.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to oppose.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think Mr. Njonjo wants to speak now and he is coming in a second and I think we should wait for him because if he does not speak now there will be no time for the Government to reply to this debate. Here he is now.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to ask the House not to debate in this House with emotions, but to consider the purpose why these legislations were enacted. If one was to look at the history of these two legislations, namely the Special Districts (Administration) Act and the Outlying Districts Act, one would see that the purpose of these two Acts was to protect the people who live in these areas. Unfortunately, and there is nobody to blame here except history and those who were ruling this country, the progress of these people has been left behind. Therefore, I urged the House not to ask for these areas to be opened up to unscrupulous people, to people whose intentions we do not know, people from outside. If one were to look at the intentions of the Motion itself, in my submission it is sinister, it is misconceived and—

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, can the Attorney-General substantiate the intention of the Motion being sinister when it is for the protection of democracy for which he is supposed to be working here?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Well, I do not think he is drawing any imputations on your personal motive, but I think he believes sending party political organizations into these areas is sinister. I think that is what he refers to, but, in any case, you will have time to reply, Mr. Okelo-Odongo.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Any intelligent person, Mr. Deputy Speaker, would only have to read the Motion. It says that these areas should be opened because it is hindering political organization, and the other bit says that the law as it at the moment does affect the movements of party officials and agents. Are we being told that there are no political organizations in Masailand today, or in the Turkana area? I am not talking about any political organization; all I am saying is that I know for a fact that there are political organizations, registered in my office, in the areas which are affected by this legislation. I am not familiar with the political organization of the Opposition and I do not know whether they have political organizations in those areas; it is for them to tell us whether they have any organized politics.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when we had Kadu in this country, Kadu had political organization in the areas which we are talking about, but the party organization there was grounded in the area; they did not operate from Nairobi or from another area. The Minister spoke here and he said that whenever he went to those areas he went during the day and he had a permit to go there. Why not? The trouble is that one does not want to disclose the truth about this proposed Motion. Our friends do not want to go to these areas during the day. I have had cases of their deputy leader going to Meru, or parts of Meru which are closed, and instead of going during the day he chose to go during the night. Mr. Kaggia and, I think, my friend—if I am not mistaken and I am subject to correction—was with him. Unfortunately, they did not have the permits and they were turned back by the Administration. If I want to go to Meru or Kajiado, all I need do is go to the District Commissioner here in Nairobi, get a permit and then I can go.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the hon. Attorney-General in order to mislead the House that if you want to go to Meru all you have to do is go to the District Commissioner and get a permit when that is not the case? The procedure is that the District Commissioner, Nairobi, has to wire the District Commissioner, Meru, and then consult the President's Office.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You can speak when it is your turn, Mr. Okelo-Odongo.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): That is a false point of order and the hon. Member has been in this House long enough to know that you cannot stand and argue with another speaker on a false point of order.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Let us not have more points of order, I do not think they are relevant.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Yes. Since the Attorney-General has alleged that to go to Meru he has to get a permit, and this means that he has actually referred to a document which he had at some time, could he actually produce a copy of that document and lay it on the Table, to show the House that he has got one.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, that is not a point of order.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): What is wrong with the hon. Members? Why do you not raise a valid point of order for once?

Now, the position is this—and I know some Members did talk about tourists and that they get into difficulties and they are inconvenienced. Tourists in this country are not inconvenienced when trying to go to these areas. First of all, they go during the day because you must get to Keekorok before 6 p.m., and this is not only because they are suspected, as some other people are suspected, but because there is game in the area and you must get to Keekorok before 6 p.m. I think there are some other people who want to get there at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the position of the Government is that we reject this Motion in toto. We also reject the amendment which was introduced by my friend, Mr. Omweri, from Kisii. I say this because the hon. Member knows of the very sensitive position which at the moment exists between the Kisii and the Masai on their border. This is the worst thing that we can do at the moment in trying to solve this serious situation that exists today between these two peoples on the border. If this boundary were to be opened, and there was to be freedom of movement between the two countries, some people have ideas of stealing other people's cattle, and they plan how to travel during the day so as to see where the cattle bomas are so that they can operate during the night knowing exactly where the animals or the other tribe is.

This will not help our people and it is not, in effect, bringing unity within the country. What I think we should all try and do in this House—

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: What are you talking about?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): I am talking about unity which my friend is not interested in. I am talking about unity where people will meet during the day so that they can face each other, face to face, and see what they look like and then discuss the problems they have in hand.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I say, what we should do in this House is try and help our fellow countrymen so that they come up and catch up with us, and not to try and open the door for some clever people, especially my friend who is now wearing a Pakistani hat, to go and buy the land in Masailand so that they can go there with a lot of money and cheat illiterate Masai people and buy their land. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are illiterate people in the whole of the country, there are illiterate people in Kisumu, in Kiambu, at the Coast and in Nairobi; but there is a degree of illiteracy. There is also a degree of progress; but what we should try and do is to help every part of our country, every section of our people, to come up and catch up with the others who have had the advantage of the developments. We want to help the people in Masailand, in Turkana and in other areas which were left behind by the Colonial Government. These people must be given the chance to catch up with us.

As I said, Sir, this Motion is not meant to help in this development. I urge that if any political organization wants to organize things in the country, all they have to do is to organize within those districts—not by remote control but by having supporters in the districts in which they want to establish an organization.

I have had discussions with my friend, Mr. Odinga, on questions of registration. We have had difficulties over registration of some of these branches because when we examine the Post Office box number, when we examine the plot numbers, these do not exist. If they do exist, they belong to some person who is not a follower of that party.

As I say, I strongly, and in the interest of our people in these areas, oppose the Motion.

Mr. Lenayiarra: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I oppose the Motion very strongly.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): You will only have three minutes.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Sir, in view of the fact that we have heard enough about the amendment, I wish to move that the question of the amendment be now put.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will put the question at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Lenayiarra: I fail to see the reason why some Members in this House want this law to be repeated because, Sir, in Samburu, where I come from, I have seen people of different tribes. There is a large number of Kikuyu, there are so many Luo, and so many people of other tribes. So, I want to say that this law has not denied any people the right of going anywhere they want.

Last year, Sir, the hon. Mover of this Motion, as well as the Seconder, visited Samburu District and had no difficulties at all. All they required was a permit. If people want to go for a good purpose, why do they not want to get a permit? These permits are available in the district commissioner's office. If any people want to go from Nairobi to Samburu, or any other place, all they have to do is to go to the district commissioner's office and get a permit.

As we know, Sir, in Samburu we have a game reserve and we have a beautiful lodge where tourists do visit very often. These people do not find any difficulties visiting this place.

When I was listening to the speeches of the Members, I did not notice any good reason for demanding the repeal of this Act.

I strongly oppose the Motion.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): As it is now time to call on the Mover to reply, I will put the question of the amendment.

(Question of the first part of the amendment that the words to be left out be left out, put and negatived)

(Debate on the original Motion as resumed)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I now call on the Mover to reply. Mr. Okelo-Odongo.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is a great shame for this House and for the Attorney-General of this country, who is supposed to be in charge of one of our fundamental institutions, namely, the Judiciary, to demonstrate quite openly that they are not prepared to protect the instruments of democracy in this country. The Attorney-General said that there was some kind of sinister motive in this Motion, and I beg to submit that the Attorney-General has a sinister motive in his mind and that is why he has opposed this Motion. I think that what he wants is not to protect the Masai people because they do not need protection. The Masai people are supposed to be warriors; and if they are warriors, they should come out and meet the people of Kenya. Where are these morans that we used to talk about? Sir, if these people need protection from the Attorney-General, I am sorry to tell them that that protection will not last very long. If it is for protection, then I do not see why there is concentration on the Samburu areas and so forth. What about the Meru people? Do the Meru people need any protection? What about Kiambu and Nyeri? Are these people not people who fought the colonialists during the Mau Mau time? Do they need any protection from the Attorney-General? So, why does the Attorney-General keep Meru as a closed district? It is only because they want to divide the people of Kenya and, therefore, it is sinister. This kind of thing will have to be removed completely.

I think the hon. Members of the Masai and Samburu areas— My hon. friend says that we visited those areas; and it was with great difficulty. The only way to do things, if the hon. Members are interested in the development of their own people, is to have their districts declared open; otherwise they are going to remain weak and in 50 years' time they will not exist, they will go completely out of existence; they will be extinct. The hon. Member should go to the United States and find out what happened to the Red Indians. They were put in closed areas and they do not exist any more. This race is dying out and this is what is going to happen to the people of Samburu and the people of Masailand if they support this kind of organization. If they are interested in the people of their areas, they must come out, learn and keep up with things and fight for what is theirs so that they can be on an equal footing with the rest of the community.

There was nothing political about this Motion. A Motion had been moved by Mr. Omwari which was asking for movement, in the same way as he amended the Motion today. This is why we wanted to be specific, we wanted to do this for a healthy, democratic atmosphere in Kenya. Since the General Elections are coming shortly, we must have freedom of movement. This is one of the most important aspects. The Attorney-General told us that we could organize in these areas, we could get permits, and so on. I have already said, when moving the Motion, that we were not allowed to visit Baringo, we were not allowed to visit Elgeyo-Marakwet, Turkana, Pokot and, as a matter of fact, we only arrived at Maralal by some kind of mistake. Later on when we tried to get back to Maralal we were not allowed. I would like to warn the Attorney-General and the Government that if they are going to interfere with free political organization in this country, they are inviting trouble, the end of which no one knows.

I have already said that we do not learn from history. I asked my hon. friend, Mr. Ngei, who was the former staunch leader of the African People's Party— We even allowed him to come to Kisumu and he had one of his candidates, I think, from Kisumu. Now he is here, sitting down and saying that his area should be a closed area and that no one should go there because he wants to dominate the Akamba people. The Akamba people will rise up and get rid of him.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): On a point of information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Opposition Member there, the one who is shouting so much—

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: I do not want any information; there is no time for that. I think we are going to find out where Malu is. We might do something along these lines.

Seriously speaking, one can only interpret the rejection of this Motion as a very bad move because when the Attorney-General spoke on the Motion that was raised by Mr. Omweri along the same lines, he did not reject that Motion at that time. He said that he was going to examine the need for the continuance of the legislation. However, today, he is rejecting the Motion, and we must say that he is rejecting it for political reasons. By doing so it means they do not want the KPU to be organized in this area and in this way get away with the next General Election. If that is the case, I do not think there will be success on that.

I also think that the Government is trying to hide its weakness because it knows that in these areas there is a great deal of backwardness, there is no education, there is no food. The other day the hon. Member from West Pokot moved here that people died of hunger, of starvation, in West Pokot. Now this is what the Government is hiding, they do not want us to go and see how people are dying of hunger in West Pokot? Is that what a Government can call, helping the people?

Sir, if you go to these areas, you see some terrible things, yet these terrible things, as my hon. friend has said, are open to the foreigners who come to see and go and tell this to the people in their own countries. I have heard of our students rebelling against this; even our Ambassador in West Germany at one time was objecting to some kind of a movie that was shown there because it did not represent what was seen here in Kenya but only in a little part of Kenya which was closed even to the Kenya people. This is most unfair; and if the Government is trying to hide this poverty, backwardness in these areas, it is not doing anybody any good because, as we have said, if there is disease and we keep on hiding that disease, hoping that one day it will disappear, that disease will kill you.

I am very sorry that the Government chose to oppose the Motion. I appeal to the hon. Members of this House, who should be above petty things, who should be able to fight their political opponents bravely, who would like to preserve this House and democracy in this country, to be brave enough and vote for this Motion so that the Government is urged to change and repeal the present legislation which is not doing the country any good.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and negatived)

MOTION

SEPARATE EDUCATION VOTES IN LOCAL AUTHORITIES

THAT, while appreciating the most excellent efforts being undertaken by the Minister for Local Government to save the local authorities from collapsing financially, this House recommends that the Education Vote in all local authorities be kept under a separate vote in order to save education from becoming the victim of any local financial embarrassment.

(Mr. Godia on 6th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 6th June 1969)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I believe Mr. Omweri was speaking at the time of interruption of business and has one minute more to go, if he wants to continue.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Deputy Speaker, last Friday I said that teachers were being subjected to unnecessary harassment because of financial difficulties the county councils face. I also said it is high time the Government should unify all educational utilities under one Vote in each county council so that it would be possible to ensure that our education would not be interfered with because of lack of finance. We referred to the present situation where we find that county councils do not pay their teachers, and where we also find, in certain areas, that equipment is inadequate because the county council cannot give adequate supply. For these reasons we felt it should be the responsibility of the Central Government to make sure that the educational system in the country is not hampered because the county councils cannot raise sufficient funds.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have pledged that education is the responsibility of the Central Government and, therefore, it is high time that the Government made sure that this is not tampered with in any way. This is the main reason why this Vote, this one Vote under the local authorities, catering for education, was brought here by the hon. Mover for debate. There is no quarrel at all here. This Motion is merely asking the Government to make sure that the educational system is looked after, and that all children who go to school do not have drawbacks due to financial failures in various counties.

This was the main point and I suggest that the Government accepts the Motion and instructs all local authorities to make sure that there is a vote for education in each area.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not quite sure whether the Deputy Speaker informed hon. Members that we have 50 minutes left for this debate, which means that the Mover will have to reply at ten minutes to Twelve o'clock.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the hon. Mover, the hon. Stanley Godia, for bringing this important Motion to this House. It does give the Government a chance to state its position and to say what it is doing about it.

Sir, the power to carry out functions relating to primary education has been vested by the Ministry of Education in the local authorities, that is the county councils and the municipal councils. As the law stands at present, local authorities have to keep the funds which are to be expended on education as part of the general fund of the councils. So the councils have to do that to keep within the law.

Education expenditure cannot be met from the school fees and the equipment fees alone. Much of it has to come from the money which is paid in the form of tax, graduated personal tax, as well as the general grants which are made available by the Government. So it is important that the education expenditure, as it stands today, stands part of the general fund of the local authorities. Very often local authorities have found themselves in financial difficulties. This, very often, has been due to failure to collect all the graduated personal tax or to collect the fees which accrue to these local authorities in order to finance their services. However, as soon as this is discovered, it is always necessary for every local authority to effect economies, and as the expenditure on education in many of the local authorities forms about 70 per cent of the total expenditure, it is actually affected by such economies; very often to a greater extent than the others. However, of late, Mr. Speaker, with the passing of the Teachers' Service Commission Act, no teachers, so to speak, have been dismissed from their services. Nevertheless, it is important, Sir, that the matter should be looked at afresh in view of what has gone on in the past. There is also one other aspect which has to be considered very seriously at present before a move is taken to place the education expenditure separately, and that is in relation to the staff which many of the local authorities have. If we were to increase the volume—and indeed the complexity—of the work which they have to undertake we may find ourselves, or the local authority may find itself, in even greater chaos. Therefore, it is important that this aspect has to be examined and ways found to overcome it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, perhaps, at this juncture, I may pay tribute to the staff of the municipal councils who, up to now, have done their work very well and very conscientiously indeed. Mr. Speaker, I think that this is due to the fact that the staff which are recruited by the municipalities are very carefully considered so that only those who are able are taken on to serve the councils. However, Mr. Speaker, this is not the case with the majority of county councils whose staff do not, at present, do their work as perfectly as they ought to do. There are also cases where some of the senior staff of county councils go on duty late and even some of them leave their duties either on time or earlier. I have worked with a local authority and I know, for certain, that it is impossible to complete any work of an organization such as a county council without giving a little more time, very often during the time after the official end of work. Therefore the local authorities' staff must do their work much more conscientiously than they are doing at present.

The other point, Mr. Speaker, is that many local authorities, especially the county councillors, decide to undertake certain development projects without considering the financial implications in every case. This has led to a lot of financial problems in many councils.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may, I will now turn to the gist of the Motion which is before us now, that this House recommends the Education Vote in all local authorities to be placed under a separate Vote. I have no quarrel and the Government has no quarrel with this Motion at all and, in fact, Mr. Speaker, hon. Members will recollect that before independence, we had District Education Boards which used to look after educational affairs in each of the county councils. At present, Sir, the Government is looking into this complex matter and I do hope that this aspect, as recommended in this Motion, will be examined with a view to putting forward something on this similar line.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, after the experience of five to six years, it appears quite clearly that there is something which should be looked at. There are certain shortcomings which must be overcome in the present system of financing education. It looks as if a system has to be worked out whereby all school fees and equipment fees, plus half graduated personal tax and half the grants which are paid to local authorities from the Central Government, are put in a separate bank account to finance education. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this is done, I hope it will go a long way to removing some of the problems of education which we have at present. I also say, Mr. Speaker, that the Government is currently looking into this matter.

In moving this Motion, the hon. Mover said that it was obvious that the Expatriate Financial Officers were responsible for the mess that is there today and that this was due to the fact that they did not consider themselves part of this community of Kenya. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not agree with this statement, and I must, at this juncture, say very strongly that it is most unfair for the hon. Member to say that the people we have as financial advisers are responsible for this because, these people Mr. Speaker, are being—

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating what the Assistant Minister is saying, is it not out of order for him to say that I had said here, when moving this Motion, that the expatriates were responsible, when, in fact, I said that they were present when the mess took place? I did not say they were responsible for the mess, but I said they were in employment when the councils were collapsing; that is what I said.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you accept the correction, Mr. Munoko?

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, I might have got it wrong there, but I have a note here which states that you said that they were not interested in the development of the country. However, I might have got this one wrong and, therefore, I would like to thank him for having not made it.

The financial advisers, or the people we have in the Ministry who deal with the financial aspect of the Ministry and local authorities, are doing a magnificent job. We, as Government, depend on them because we cannot get other officers who can man these services. If we let them go we will find ourselves in a greater mess than the present one. These people must be given credit for staying longer to see us battle through some of the difficult time which has past, and we hope that the training facilities which we are making available will enable more of our own people to join these services so that they can carry on from the present officers.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that most county councils—in fact all councils including municipalities—have Africans as clerks to those councils. Therefore, if there was anything going amiss, these clerks should be able to look at it and correct it straight away, because, after all, clerks are the chief officers of councils and that they are the people who are held responsible when anything goes wrong. The financial advisers are only there to advise them and their advice can either be accepted or rejected. Councillors have also to consider very seriously whatever they make in the way of decisions and the financial implications, as I have already said. They must be ready to take any blame for such messes.

Having said all this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I now conclude by saying that the Government accepts this Motion.

Mr. Warlithi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by thanking the Member who moved this Motion and also to thank the Government for having accepted the Motion. We are aware, Mr. Speaker, that the county councils in this country are very important in that we have given them a lot of things to do, and unless their financial position is controlled, and watched carefully, much of the work they are supposed to do cannot be done. If you look at this Motion, the first part of it, talks of what the Ministry of Local Government is doing to save the local authorities from collapsing financially, and I would like to say here that from what I have seen from my own county council, the Ministry of Local Government is doing a lot in sending officers to the county councils to check on the financial position and to advise them on how they should spend their money, and I would say that the Ministry should continue to increase their officers to see that the control on expenditure is done. It is not a very healthy position when we hear now and then, that certain county councils cannot continue with their affairs; they are taken over by the Central Government; or that certain services have to be curtailed, because the county councils, as I have said, have got to take care of the people right down in the field. They are in charge of education, roads, health services and many other things which affect the citizens very closely. Therefore, I will say here that the Government should reconsider that instead of giving the local authorities so many responsibilities without sufficient finances to carry out such responsibilities; it is unfair. In fact, I remember in this House, some time this year, we passed a Motion where we requested the Ministry of Works to take away all the secondary roads from the local authorities so that they can cope with the rest of the work.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, my supporting this Motion is based on this question of education, whereby, as the Minister has said, 70 per cent of the money to county councils goes to education, and that means other services are bound to suffer. I have got one or two proposals which I would like the Minister to consider. I am glad he has accepted that the Vote should be separate so that there is no need, at any given time, for teachers not to be paid or any such other big occurrence.

I wonder, Mr. Speaker, whether it is wise for the Central Government to grant money to the county councils and give this money to the county councils. I would have thought it would be more advisable—because all county councils have to get grants from the Central Government as they cannot run the services they are supposed to from their own resources, from graduated personal tax, from fees, from other licences and other sources of revenue. They are not able to run the services and they have to get grants from the Central Government. They may get a grant for education, a grant for roads, a grant for other things. Why should it not be possible for the Central Government, or the Ministry of Local Government for that matter, to keep this money in their Votes? Instead of sending it to the county councils, to keep it in the Local Government Vote, and whenever it is required by the various county councils to be paid directly by the Ministry of Local Government.

I say this because we know that certain local authorities, when they get a grant from the Central Government, for roads or other services, instead of using that money for that particular service, they do not do so. For instance, it may be that there is a shortage in education, which takes the largest amount and then because they want to pay the teachers or buy equipment, they spend that grant which was meant for roads on education. Therefore, what I propose is that instead of sending the money to the county councils, any grant, whether for roads, education or for any other purpose, should be kept in a Vote in the Ministry and when the county councils want the money, or if they have done some work, then the Ministry could pay direct and that will remove the possibility of the county councils spending the money on a project for which the money was not meant. The county councils would raise their money in the normal way—on graduated personal tax, on fees and on other things—and they would be able to meet the costs of whatever they have to do. Whatever is required on top, as I have said, should come from a central Vote in the grants given to local authorities.

The other thing Mr. Speaker, which is also very important is that the staff of the various county councils, particularly those who are in charge of finance, should be people who are properly qualified. It is known for certain, that certain county councils cannot control their expenditure because they do not employ sufficiently qualified people. I speak from experience. In my own county council of Nyeri right now, it is in a very bad financial position simply because some officers who were employed were given very important posts, like that of Treasurer or to control finance, and were not sufficiently qualified. This is not because there are no people in the country who are qualified; it is because of certain influences which interfere with the proper appointment of the proper officers, and I would like the Ministry here to consider, seriously, employing people who are qualified, so that they can advise the councils on how to spend their money and also check when they see that there is overexpenditure.

The last point Mr. Speaker, is that there are up to now county councils which for the last three to four years have not had their estimates approved, and one wonders how they continue to spend money, how they estimate, how they know how much they have spent and how much they should spend, which is very, very unfortunate. We have been told quite often by the Minister in this House that there is a shortage of personnel. Now, even if there is, it cannot continue forever. One would expect an improvement. May be when we started at beginning, there was a shortage of personnel but one would like to see some efforts being made by the Ministry to train people or to recruit people who are able and who know how to help the county councils in preparing their estimates and checking their expenditure.

The Minister, having accepted this Motion, I would only hope that this is not going to be like other Motions which are accepted by the Government in this House and nothing is done about them because we do not want to see county councils, like the situation in Kisii where the teachers have not been paid and now we had a Motion yesterday on this—I do not want to repeat—and there was a promise that something was being done. I would here, Mr. Speaker, like to express very grave concern; we were assured by the Ministry of Local Government in this House, when we were passing the Bill dealing with one employer for teachers, that at no time would the teachers fail to be paid because the local authorities have no money. The very purpose of the teachers fighting for one employer, which the Government accepted, was to see that they were paid like any other civil servant and that they did not have to wait or to be told that the local authority was broke. The position in Kisii now is contrary to the promises which were given. Why does the Central Government not step in, pay the money to teachers and then they can sort out the affairs with the county councils? The position is very delicate. Somebody works for a whole month and has no other source of income; he expects to live on the salary, but at the end of the month no money; and up to the 13th of the month no money. One wonders how this man is living.

I say Mr. Speaker, it is very important that this Vote should be kept separate and that the teachers, the children and everybody connected with education do not suffer.

With this, I support.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wanted to move an amendment to this Motion but since the Minister has come out openly in support of the Motion, I think I had better drop my amendment and carry on with the main issue of the Motion.

I think, Sir, the position here is very clear and it is clear in this sense that this country should not play about with the teachers. The teachers are the builders of the nation. All of us here, Sir, would not have been here if we had never been through the hands of a teacher, and any debate that concerns the teachers in this Chamber, I think the Members should take it most seriously. I am glad this morning and last week Members have shown great concern in this respect.

Sir, may I come to the main point of the Motion: we have financial advisers in the local authorities and we expect these people to advise the local authorities to the best of their ability, but this has not proved successful, but I do not think they are to blame to a large extent. The blame comes from inheritance. By this I mean that we have inherited the system of local government from the system that works in Great Britain. In Great Britain, however, the local authorities are able to finance their services. Out here, Sir, our local authorities are unable to finance their services because the sources of income are limited, and therefore instead of our financial advisers being able to advise the local authorities to the best of their ability, they seem to tend to follow what is happening in Great Britain. However, as I said, in Great Britain and other developed countries, the local authorities are able to finance their own services because of their different and many sources of income.

Therefore, Sir, I feel that it is high time we changed the system of financing our local authorities. To this end, I feel that the only simple way to relieve the teachers' problem is to make the Teachers' Service Commission take on its own responsibilities. When we passed this Act for the Teachers' Service Commission in the House, we expected that it should be entirely responsible for the service and everything to do with the teachers. However, I feel that that is not what is happening now because some of the teachers who work in the countryside are paid by the local authorities from the grants from the Central Government, and this is what is causing all the trouble now. We know that our local authorities are always in financial difficulties. Therefore, I feel the best thing for us to do now is not to make a mockery of the Teachers' Service Commission, but to make it a full authority in charge of the teachers, because our intention, as the hon. Wariithi said, in passing the Teachers' Service Commission Act, was to make the teachers have only one employer; to make the teachers have only one employer, just like the civil servants. The teachers accepted this move and they thought that they should have one employer but that is not what is happening now. We have even had cases where the Teachers' Service Commission employs some teachers and then somebody else—the Minister—comes up and says that they have no authority to do that and that such-and-such a person should not work here. I remember that the Minister said at one time that he was the final authority and that the Teachers' Service Commission had no power to act on certain items. Therefore, Sir, what I feel is this, that the Teachers' Service Commission should take up the whole responsibility of looking after the teachers, otherwise we shall continue having the problem of teachers going on strike and not being paid and this will cause things like what happened last night and other things during the past few days.

What I am trying to say, Sir, is this, that I feel that the Teachers' Service Commission has not been given power to operate as it should be. It is no use having to keep separate accounts and separate votes within the local authorities for this and that; this is not going to help. I see no use in keeping separate accounts. This is very simple because what is required is to make the Teachers' Service Commission as the sole employer of the teachers and then we should let the Government give money to this commission so that the commission works fully effectively in looking after the teachers. I do not see any reason for keeping the vote here and there because we are giving the local authorities more than they can chew. They have not got the qualified staff, they have not got the financial know-how; and, therefore, it is no good burdening the county councils with all this. The simplest thing for this House and the Government to do is to allow the

[Mr. Mwalwa]

Teachers' Service Commission to operate fully with all the powers given by the Act that we passed in this House.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that that is the only solution for the teachers' problems.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, this is a very sensible Motion and it is no wonder the Member is very keen and always brings a very good Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want really to say much, but I would like to make a few points and, of course, show something on the side of the Government as the Assistant Minister has done when accepting this Motion.

I think it is known pretty well that after attaining our independence the Government was concerned in preparing our people for greater responsibility, and, of course, in responsibility for running the services in the local authorities which matters quite a lot. In doing so, it did not make any mistakes at all. The Government believed that any person who was to be able to attain managerial ability of any institution, be it Government or private, must, first of all, be given the opportunity to show that he can execute something. This is the basis where the Government had to let most of our young men and, of course, all the other people in the local authorities, continue in order to learn responsibility by working. I will repeat that: in pre-independence many things were said about the indigenous people, or the citizens of Kenya, not being able to do certain work. The reasons were, of course, that they were not given the opportunity to show that they could do it by doing it. That is why we let some of our people run the services in local authorities, such as education, health and the rest, and the management had to have a lower output rather than perhaps sink. However, this does not mean that the case is now the same. Management has gone up intensively and I think we have seen local authorities manned by the local officers and they are doing their work pretty well. In certain cases, of course, we have been let down a bit. Therefore, it is our firm belief that by execution of duty and knowing the ability, one has to be given the opportunity to run these things coherently.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have agreed—or the Government has agreed—that the education vote should be under the responsibility of the Minister himself. In support of this, I would like to say that it is the first seven years that matter, of a child or of anything. Even if you plant a tree, it is the first years of growth that matter and that really show the healthiness of that particular plant or that particular child. That is why it is important that—this is the fundamental fact—the first seven years matter a lot, because it is here where we have to prepare our people, our young generation, to have a strong and healthy foundation for their future and, of course, their welfare and the welfare of our country. Therefore, I urge very strongly that the Minister concerned and the Government, see that the education vote is taken over by the Ministry.

Many things have been said about the teachers and I am not going to repeat that because the Government's case has been made very clear. There is no doubt that Members are aware what the trend is. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I am sure that the Government is going to take over the responsibility to see that the education vote—and not only the education vote alone, but the schools and the rest which matter, from standard I to standard VII, or whatever it is—foundation which has to be laid is firm and good. I will take the example of one of my sons, Mr. Speaker, because I do not want to be beating around the bush. A son of mine was learning in a local school and I transferred him over here and I could see that he was far behind by 2½ years; he was almost illiterate as compared with the class in which he was supposed to be in the place in my own constituency where he was going to school. This is one thing. He was far behind and when he came here he found the education standard was high. Of course, I know that there are other environmental experiences one gets here. Let us say, for example, that a child living in the hon. Godia's constituency may not be able to see a television, but a child in Nairobi here may see television because it is in his father's house and therefore he will learn more from seeing the television than the child who stays in the rural areas. I have a firm belief that the educational foundations is the most important thing if we have to bring up our standards.

Mr. Speaker, I want to quote an example: the other day the hon. Members who go home early, who take the trouble to read books and so on and do not just stay here in Parliament Buildings, would have seen two days' ago on the television two schools debating, the Aga Khan and Alliance High Schools. We saw a very high standard of debate which was well-thought out and had very good thinking. This is because these schools are looked after well and they do not suffer as a result of financial embarrassment. I think this is a Motion which is well meant and the Government is going to accept it with all its heart and I hope the Minister concerned will see to it that things go ahead.

[The Minister for Housing]

I also want to say one more thing, Mr. Speaker, It is not necessary to be highly educated and I think it is high time that we stood firm without fear and, of course, within our bounds of reason. It has been said that you must be highly educated in order to be able to execute things. We have seen a lot of people with degrees just lingering around with calabash of liquor in the villages and forgetting to educate their children. Therefore, our people must be challenged and they should not come here all the time and say they want the education vote increased because they want higher salaries as they want to teach. What about the other aspects of this; of telling the teachers to teach well? You find teachers going to teach children in the morning when they are half asleep because they have got hangovers as they have been drinking up to 3 o'clock. How will he prepare his lessons and also be fit to do a geometrical problem which the children want to be explained properly? I think we have been buttering up the teachers too much and I think it is high time that somebody stood up also and said that we expect them to show some responsibility and teach our children because they are being paid for it. Somebody in this country must be firm and tell these teachers that this country has had enough, and Government is listening to all this about their salaries; there is no question about this. I am not bothering about the condition of their salaries. However it is high time, as a parent, that if I pay the fees of my children, would like to see that they are educated properly and that they are not taught by a teacher who has been drinking up to four o'clock in the evening. I think the Government will also take firm action to see that those teachers who go on drinking are dismissed. It is high time Members of this House, also, made this known to teachers in their constituencies: that we expect some service and not all the time to have delegations and memorandums about their salaries. Mr. Speaker, when a father like me pays fees from my little money to see that my children are educated, find they are semi-illiterate because of a drunken teacher.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the Mover to reply.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am indeed very happy in the manner that Government has taken this Motion. I must thank Government for their cordial understanding of the problems and the material contained in this Motion. I must also thank the other speakers who have taken part in this Motion.

I assure the Minister for Housing that the warning he has given about the teachers who are not working well and hard, and teachers whose standards are not high enough, has gone out to these teachers and I hope that they will do their best to carry out their duties properly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, while thanking the Minister for Local Government and the Government as a whole for accepting this Motion, I have taken note, and I think the House has also taken note, of all what he has said. Of course, previously, under the Act, local authorities were empowered to look after the matters regarding education, Certain aspects of education were recommended to be looked after by local authorities.

However, the matter regarding payment of salaries to teachers has caused a lot of embarrassment in many local authorities. This was because many local authorities have not been very careful in looking after their funds and, as a result, they decided to close schools or to dismiss teachers simply because they had no money. Yet the children whom those teachers were teaching, their fathers had paid the fees. That is why we think it is necessary for this regulation to be amended so that every child whose parents have paid fees those fees do not go to any other service but education.

I do thank the Minister for accepting this and I hope that each local authority, as from now, will be advised by the Minister how they will do this sort of thing. I think that the education standards should continue and that there should be no embarrassment in matters regarding to education.

As a result of this Motion, I know there will be no more cases like the ones we have in South Nyanza, where 200 teachers are still on strike because they do not have money. I want to assure the House that these people must be paid money because, for the children they have been teaching, parents have paid fees. This money instead, has been used to pay salaries of clerks to county council, market masters, or some people who work on the roads, or those who work in health centres in South Nyanza. Those people have been paid, but the teachers have been sacked. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister should know that in a district like South Nyanza, the other work of the county council is going on and it is only education that has come to a standstill. This is a very sad affair, but these things, I know will not happen again as a result of this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree with the speaker, who said that the Teachers' Service Commission should actually take over the responsibility of paying teachers' salaries. I am of the opinion that if a local authority has set aside money for paying teachers, it has done so as an agent for the Teachers' Service Commission. Therefore, the Teachers' Service Commission should send money to a place, let us say, a place like South Nyanza, where teachers have had no salary. That is the work of the Teachers' Service Commission, but if the Commission does not act and keeps quiet, we tend to think that it is the Commission which is actually ineffective. Therefore, I hope the Teachers' Service Commission will reconsider its position and the Minister should give it more power in matters regarding payment of salaries to teachers so that all those who work in local authorities act as agents of the Teachers' Service Commission.

Mr. Speaker, since this Motion has gone on well and since Government is going to plan ways and means of getting the Motion implemented as from next year, 1970, I urge the Minister to begin now working on his plans for 1970.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Motion is straightforward, and as it has been accepted, I see no need for keeping the House longer than this Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE TO NORTHERN KENYA RESIDENTS

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the people of Northern Kenya have suffered a great loss both at the hands of Government and those of shifta through the three years of the shifta menace, which made everybody in that area very poor, this House urges the Government—

- (a) to give the county council enough aid and grant, so that poor families could be remitted from tax paying; and
- (b) to give free education to primary school scholars for a few years so as to decrease the families' burden.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Motion is very clear and self-explanatory in that no one in this House and, for that matter, in the entire country, who does not know the trouble that had existed in Northern Kenya in the three years of the shifta menace. It is very well known that the shifta have always visited our people, and taken away their animals to go and buy themselves bundukis from Somalia, and other countries to come and fight in Kenya and we lost most of our animals to them.

Maybe few people will doubt as to why I have said that we have suffered under the hands of the Government, but Mr. Speaker, I would like to make it clear to this House that we have suffered, even under the hands of the Government because our animals, which were very many, were confiscated during the time of emergency. In the year 1966, animals worth Sh. 422,165 were sold from Isiolo District only. This does not include any other district of the province in question. In fact, if we include those which were lost in Gariso, Mandera, Wajir, that is the North-Eastern Province, it would be something far over five or six million shillings in Kenya currency.

On top of this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, Isiolo District alone we had 1,081 head of cattle confiscated in the year 1967; and 1,241 sheep and goats confiscated in the same year, having excluded other parts of the province. In fact they have suffered under the hands of the Government. These numbers of animals were confiscated, sold and the money was put into the Government funds somewhere.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, when I stand to ask for free education or for more aids and grants to the county councils, I think the Government will not object to this, because it has got six million or seven or even up to ten million shillings from this particular areas, which came from their confiscated animals and was put in the Treasury. Even if this might prove a great expense to the Government, it is really a matter of giving back this money which had been collected as a result of these confiscated animals.

There were also thousands of cattle which were shot and killed in this area. Some of the animals were killed because of security, especially animals like camels and donkeys. They were all killed because it was said that they were used to carry mines. That left the entire area with nothing compared to what we had during the colonial time.

No one has ever said that that area in the Northern Kenya is poor at all, at any one time in history. Every one—and even today, most of the people having known that those areas have been rich, and thinking that nothing has been done by the shifta and the Government, say that we are very rich people. I would ask some of these people to visit these particular areas and see exactly what there is today. You will see that thousands and thousands of children and women going around with plates and debes, asking for coffee, tea, and even clothing—today it is being supplied to these people. We cannot get any food unless it is supplied by the Government.

[Mr. Wario]

At this juncture, I would like to thank the Christian Council of Kenya for helping in clothing, and giving food to these people. I would also like to thank the Government for the same.

In fact, it is high time that these people should be helped educationally. Mr. Speaker, Sir, a nation cannot be called educated nor can it be called a nation, if there is a part of the community which has been completely neglected. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is known that we have been left behind for quite a time, and it is now time the Government should help our people. The only problem is that, the Government does not understand that we cannot pay school fees now. In my area in Isiolo District, we have a Boran Educational Voluntary Fund, which used to pay for all Boran boys in the area. This fund which has several million shillings has no money today. We therefore, cannot pay fees for anybody.

How then, do you expect these people to be educated when they have nothing? When is the Government going to help these people who cannot help themselves, because they are even fed and clothed by the Government? How can a person who is given food and clothes by the Government and the missionaries be able to pay for fees? They cannot even pay their kodi. Thousands and thousands of those people who are in prisons today because of the graduated personal tax, are people from the North. This is because they are unable to pay, and that is known. I recently asked the district commissioners to allow them to pay their kodi in instalments—the kodi which the Government is concerned with. Two shillings for those who pay Sh. 24; because even the two shillings have become a problem. We have tried all we can to see to it that our country and our people do not suffer but it has been all in vain—it does not help. This is why I ask the Government to give aid and grants to the county councils.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this area having suffered so much, the County Council of Isiolo—and most others in this part of country—have no money. Just a few months ago, the County Council of Isiolo, because they were not even given their grants—these areas which have been in trouble—which is known to have no money, have not been given the grants for 1967, 1968, and we do not know whether we will get any this year.

When the shifta problem started, we had Sh. 6,000,000 in the county council's deposit. Now, all this has been used and the only amount that we have only Sh. 360,000. This cannot even pay the teachers' salaries for this month. These are cases which I would like to put forward. Mr. Speaker, Sir, a county council which is now the main body to serve the people by maintaining the roads, hospitals, giving out medicine, supplying the schools with most of the things, cannot work if it cannot get kodi from the people. Due to the various reasons which I have explained to the House, this county council has been unable to get any kodi. Our collections in the County Council of Isiolo were Sh. 137,561 in the year 1965. In 1966—Sh. 191,778, 1967, only Sh. 34,461; and in 1968, Sh. 16,412. You can now see that we, in that county council have no money. We do not get money from kodi at all. We used to sell our animals for the payment of cess. Thousands and thousands of head of cattle used to be brought to Kenya Meat Commission for sale. From this we used to pay Sh. 5 to the county council, Sh. 5 for the export fee, which made a total of Sh. 10 and Sh. 15 to the Boran Voluntary Contribution Fund. This went to the education fund which relieved our people from paying fees; but now we have no such funds and even those who are working do not have enough money, because we are supporting very big families. I am not only supporting my family, but all those who are around me. I have to support them, because I cannot leave them to die.

If today you ask me whether I have any money, I would say no, because when I go home, I have to give out to these poor people who are dying. They can die in front of you, and you can do nothing because you yourself, are suffering from the same problem. They cannot feed themselves unless somebody comes from outside to help them. The Christian Council of Kenya has been making a collection to give aid to our men. I congratulate them for being so humane as to help us.

It is high time that this Government went out to help, and see how much they can give to the Council to give to these people, and how much they can give for education to see that these people are educated.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have various institutions in this country; like Starehe Boys Centre, Dr. Barnardo's Home and others. The Government has not, at any time, taken any boy or girl—some orphans who are two to three years old. The Government has never taken heed to take them to these places which are meant for real orphans—motherless and fatherless, and the reason why they are motherless and fatherless is known to the Government. It is because of the menace which they have gone through all these years.

[Mr. Wario]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, such institutions could help to create a place for a hundred boys and a hundred girls to be having at least some food and education. They have failed even in this, in the already existing institutions. Instead of helping these people who are in trouble, these people who cannot help themselves in any way unless they are helped by the Government, the Government has been collecting children from the city whose fathers can pay for their fees. It is very unfair to see that a lot of these places like the Starehe Boys' Centre and so on do not even have one boy from my area. This is the area that has suffered most and cannot pay. The parents cannot pay the school fees for the children. So it would appear that we are in just the same position as we were before. Although we have tried our level best to advance, we cannot. We have put up self-help secondary schools with the last coin that was left in our pockets; we have put up self-help centres, also with the last coin we had in our pockets. We cannot run these centres and schools at all; we just cannot. We have failed. Only last week we sent a delegation to the Ministry of Education asking the Ministry to take over these schools. Our local authorities have failed because they have no money. We sympathize with them. We know very well what their position is, that they have no money. What can we do, Mr. Speaker? It is now for the Government to see which are the orphans and take them over to be placed in these institutions which do exist for such children. What is the use of having a Government that is yours, a Government in which you believe, yet it is a Government that cannot help you in such circumstances when you are completely unable to do anything for yourself? It seems as though we are going back to the colonial days when we had no schools. Today we have schools; we have built these schools ourselves; others have been put up by the councils; but what is the use of having buildings when the boys go there but the following day are sent home because they are unable to pay their fees? We have no money with which to pay the fees. We know that if the children do not pay their fees they will not be accepted in the schools. That is common knowledge. No one at any one time has gone to school free.

Since we, in the Kanu Manifesto, have a policy that free primary education will come to the country at some stage, now that we have had six years of independence, why can we not start off with these areas, which are comprised of only six districts, with a total of 3,000 boys and girls at school? Only 3,000 boys and girls at school. The average fee is Sh. 60 per year. If you calculate the total you will find that it is less than Sh. 18,000 which is needed to educate all those children in Northern Kenya free.

We will soon be having this Bill which is going to give the Ministers a £1 million and something per year for so many years. Why can we not spend this £1 million on education in these areas? This £1 million will educate our boys and girls for about ten years. Only Sh. 180,000 is required for one year and, therefore, the £1 million will last for about ten years. Yet this big amount of money is going to be distributed only among the Ministers of this Government, an amount which could help the masses of Northern Kenya for years.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Motion is very important and I do not think that any hon. Member of the Government can oppose it, because this is the only way in which, at this moment, this Government can help these poor people of these areas in the north. I cannot say that the Government has not done anything for that area; it has done something. But that is not enough.

All these years nothing was done on the roads and that was because of the shifta problem. We were told there was no money because it was being used on the shifta menace, to try and put a stop to it. When we used to ask for other developments, during the time of the shifta menace, we used to be told that nothing could be done. The same reason was always given us: "for security reasons." So I am sure that during all these years, we have accumulated pounds and pounds which would have been used during those three years for the development of our areas. Now that there is no shifta problem, I will ask the Government to do something. That is why this Motion is here, to see that those pounds and pounds which were not used during the three years—because of the shifta menace—are now used.

Mr. Speaker, we have also made a contribution to all this money. I say this because, as I said earlier, about five or six million shillings of our money is in the Special District Fund. This amount was collected as a result of the sale of the animals which were ours and which were confiscated and sold. So, what I am asking is very fair. Half of it, or even three-quarters of it will be our own money, the money that has come from us, the money that has come from our people. The animals that were sold were ours. The money collected from the sale of these animals has gone to the Government. That is why it is fair that when we are in troubles and need money that the Government should come out and help us. If the Government did this, our people would be very happy.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to second this Motion and in doing so I would say that I second it in all good faith. The hon. Mover of this Motion has assured me that he has been approached by a number of Members who told him that the Motion was not wide enough. In view of this he told me that he does not object to it being made wider to cover a larger area and wider ideas. Therefore, I support it and second it hoping that in the course of the debate a Member will come forward with an amendment that will have the effect of making this Motion wider and of making the Government open its eyes to the problems that we are facing in different parts of Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a fact that in Northern Kenya, the area affected by shifta, is the area where there was considerable movement of shifta and people wishing to secede to Somalia. Some people stood very firm and supported the Government of Kenya and said they did not want to go to Somalia. During this period, those who were supporting the Government, suffered a great deal. In many cases, when it came to the question of confiscating property, some of the animals and so on were taken away, people were mistreated; at the same time, Mr. Speaker, it is true some of the affected people were innocent.

Mr. Speaker, it is well known that during a war a lot of mistakes are made. This happened during the time of our emergency. When these mistakes are made it is easy to say, "Well, after all, what we are concerned with as the fight against the shifta, against secession, so if mistakes are made that does not matter". However, Sir, now that the shifta problem is over, that we no longer have to deal with this question of secession, the Government has a duty to look into the cases of mistakes which were made during the shifta period.

After this one, the Government should go into the problem and see to those people who supported the Government, who served the Government, because the Government has a duty to care for its citizens. These people in the northern part of Kenya are citizens of Kenya. We appreciate that the Government cannot do everything because it does not have the resources to support all the projects that are needed throughout the country, but then we want to know what efforts the Government is making.

Mr. Speaker, people took risks by supporting the Government during those days and this meant that the shifta came along and attacked people. Some fathers died, some mothers died, some relatives died and a lot of orphans were left there, and so we would like to know what the Government has done, or is doing, to see that those who suffered during that period are cared for. The Government has to show appreciation of the support that it was given during this period.

Mr. Speaker, I would also say in passing that northern Kenya was affected by the shifta and people suffered during this time of the emergency in the northern part of Kenya, and this is what also happened during the emergency in the central part of Kenya. Many times Motions have been brought in this House asking the Government to look after the orphans, look after the disabled and all the rest; the Government merely says that everybody fought for Uhuru. This is true, everybody fought for Uhuru, everybody fought to see that secession did not come. However, what about those people who took risks to save the Government? This is where we need to know what the Government is doing. We would appreciate it if the Government, for example, appointed a commission of inquiry, or appointed an officer, to go into the problems in the northern part of Kenya and in other areas which suffered during the war.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, just as the hon. Mover has said, it is only last week when a Bill was published to give Ministers gratuities. This amount of money is a lot, although previously the Ministers denied that they were given any money, but it is true that when they found that they had no alternative they wanted us to legalize something spent illegally. Is this not shameful when citizens are suffering in different parts of Kenya? This is where, when the Government comes to reply, I would like to know what effort is being made. I know roads have been made to the northern parts of Kenya and some other developments have taken place, but, in many cases, it is in the areas of those who wished to secede, the Somalis, where the projects are being carried out, but the other areas, Turkana, etc., where there are loyal citizens, are being neglected. Mr. Speaker, Sir, does it show that the Government merely wants to support those people to appease them? This Government must not be a Government of appeasement; it must be a Government who supports its citizens. For example, in Isiolo there were people who were very loyal to the Government and who worked very hard, but once the shifta menace was over, the Government kept quiet.

[Mr. Wario]

I do not mean that we should go to northern Kenya and give free primary education to everybody who is there, and I hope the hon. Members will appreciate this, but there are certain families who suffered and these families who suffered must be helped. The Government must show some appreciation and be a friend. A true friend is a friend in need and not somebody who is a friend when you are happy and when you are eating together and so on, but when the good times are over he goes and looks after himself and forgets you. What has the Government done for the loyal tribes in northern Kenya? What has the Government done in other areas of the country for those people who fought for freedom and to see that our African Ministers are on the front benches? Our civil servants are controlling the country because of those who fought for freedom. However, this is an idea which is misleading and it is an idea which is probably colonial. This is our Government, the Government of the people, the Government elected by the people, and the Government has to look after the citizens.

We have the example of Algeria. In Algeria, which was formerly a French colony, the Algerians won their independence and those people who fought very hard for their independence were helped. What has our Government done here? There is no good in telling the people to go back to the land and that they must work hard when we allow the Ministers to have gratuities.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): What is wrong with that?

Mr. Kibuga: I see, the hon. Minister for Housing, Mr. Ngei, asks what is wrong with Ministers getting gratuities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kibuga, I think if we discuss gratuities for Ministers we are anticipating a debate on a Bill which is coming very soon.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I very much appreciate your submission and I hope that the Minister will see that we elected Members here—Ministers, Assistant Ministers, and Back-benchers—are citizens of this country and the question of selfishness must not come in.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I merely want to draw the attention of the Government to see that the citizens of the country are cared for. When the Government comes to reply, we want to know what efforts the Government is making.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to second.

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is hardly worthwhile, Mr. Ngei, your starting, as it is only two minutes before the time for interruption. Is it a point of order your have on another Motion?

The Minister of Housing (Mr. Ngei): No, Sir, there are some corrections I want to make on this Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All right, if you would like to speak for two minutes.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on this Motion. I know the hon. Member had good intentions in asking the Government to speed up the development in the northern part of Kenya and as such I have no objection, but as the Motion stands—although the Minister will be replying after unearthing some information that has been given by the hon. Members—I would like to say that it is, financially and in practice, impractical, in the sense that you cannot have special treatment for special citizens of a special area. This is impossible. This hon. gentleman is asking for remittances of taxes, which the Government needs, but at the same time, he says that the northern part of Kenya is rich. We know it is rich because it has livestock and perhaps very soon it will have some minerals, because you never know. To say that these people be given special treatment, Mr. Speaker, is to ignore what I call the price of war. The hon. Member knows pretty well that the people down there asked for secession and they also created trouble because they wanted to take part of Kenya away, and therefore they have to earn what I call the price of war; whenever you go to war you must be prepared to earn the consequences of a war. At the same time, the Government has taken a very lenient view and they have forgotten the war and they are, at the moment, taking some constructive programmes, which include opening up the north of Kenya by putting in a £1 million road project, so that people are about to go into this area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am, therefore, rejecting the suggestion in (a); and in paragraph (b) the Government has made the statement that it is thinking of primary education. We know that we cannot give it free financially and no other state in Africa can do this. I think we all read the speech by Mr. Julius Nyerere, the President of Tanzania, saying that he does not see in the foreseeable future free education.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, as time is over, I would like to continue again and tell the hon. Member that this Motion, as it stands, is financially impracticable.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the interruption of business now and so the House is adjourned until Tuesday, 17th June, at 2.30 p.m.

*The House rose at thirty minutes
past Twelve o'clock.*

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 4

BREAKDOWN OF I.C.D.C. LOANS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Commerce and Industry if he would give a breakdown and the value of the I.C.D.C. loans which had been given to the various districts of Kenya since the beginning.

The Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kibaki): The loans given to each district under

PRAYERS

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 245

KENYA PROTECTED DISTRICTS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I see that as the first question on the Order Paper, we have a question from Mr. Nyaberi concerning Protected Districts. As that was the subject of a full debate only last Friday, the question is now out of order as referring to a matter which has already been answered. So we have to pass on to the next question.

(Question withdrawn)

Question No. 246

LAND REGISTRATION AND CONSOLIDATION, KITUI DISTRICT

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement to state what was delaying the Ministry in starting land registration and consolidation in Kitui District?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There has been no delay in starting land adjudication work in Kitui District because no undertaking has ever been given to start work there.

The only delay there has been is that of the Kitui people in asking for the work to be started in their district.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister aware that the Kitui people also wish to gain the benefits of land consolidation and registration in the same way as other areas where this programme has been carried out, and therefore they should move to Kitui and do something?

Mr. Gachago: Well, Mr. Speaker, Sir, unless the hon. Member wishes to make me a liar, I am not aware of this yet. In accordance with section 3 of the Land Adjudication Act, the Ministry of Lands and Settlement can only apply the Act to areas of Trust Land under certain conditions, and one of the conditions is that the county council concerned, the county council of that area, makes a request for adjudication work to be commenced. So far, Mr. Speaker, no such request has been received from the Kitui County Council, and I would like to appeal to the hon. Member to approach the county council to make a formal request, and it will be considered like other requests.

Question No. 267

LAND ADJUDICATION, MACHAKOS DISTRICT

Mr. Nthula asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement to state—

- (a) if he was aware that all the recorders, measurers and labourers in land adjudication in Machakos had been imported from Central Province;
- (b) if he was aware that those non-Kambas did not know the Kamba traditional land ownership and therefore were incapable of giving proper judgment on a land dispute;
- (c) if there were no Kambas who could be employed in those jobs including labourers.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer to section (a) of the question is no, Sir.

(b) According to the Land Adjudication Act, 1968, it is not the duty of recorders, measurers and labourers to give judgment on land disputes.

(c) The Director of Land Adjudication recruits local staff required for non-technical or professional duties where possible, so that benefit from the employment provided by the work of adjudication in their district goes to these people. This is what has been done in Machakos, as it has been done in other areas.

Mr. Nthula: Arising from the answer to (a), Mr. Speaker, does the Assistant Minister know that those people, the indigenous of the area, know the boundaries, they know who was there and who was at the other end, and therefore does he think the recorders can do their work correctly, because they do not know who was the owner and who is bordering on the land at the other hand?

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member knows that the recorders record what they are told, and mainly by the adjudication committees. The existence of the adjudication committees is provided for by the provisions of the Land Adjudication Act, and until these recorders and measurers are given what to measure by the members of the committee and the representatives of the area, they can not do any work. They only do it when the committees have decided what is to be done. These are merely technical people who do what is required after a decision has been reached by the committee.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the first part of the answer, no, Sir, can the Minister therefore tell the House how many recorders, measurers, and so on, come from Ukambani?

An hon. Member: Particularly the area of the hon. Member.

Mr. Gachago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the knowledge of this House that people are not recruited into the service of the Government according to tribes.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Gachago: Therefore, Mr. Speaker, we are not very keen to keep records of these people according to tribes, but for the information of the hon. Member I would like to give the following breakdown of the labour force for land adjudication units in Machakos District. There is one senior recorder from Machakos, there are 18 recorders, 11 of whom are from Machakos and only seven are from Central Province. There are 21 measures, 17 of whom are from Machakos, and only four are from the Central Province. There are 73 labourers, and out of 73, 69 are from Machakos District and only four are from Central Province. Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Members want information they have to get it in silence.

Mr. Speaker, the few from Central Province have been employed there because of their many years of experience in this work and they are—and I am saying this very seriously, Mr. Speaker—intended to assist the employees and labourers from Machakos District, in understanding land adjudication work. Everybody knows, Mr. Speaker, that fortunately, the adjudication work was started in Central Province and you find more experienced people are from the tribes of the Central Province.

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have a point of order?

Mr. Godia: I withdraw.

Question No. 208

RURAL HOUSING

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Housing if he would tell the House what the Ministry was doing to improve houses in rural areas.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. As I explained to the House in an answer to a similar question from the hon. Karungaru last week, I have issued a policy directive which is now being implemented by the National Housing Corporation for the improvement of housing in the rural areas. Any Kenya citizen wishing to improve or build a better house in a rural area can now apply for assistance from the National Housing Corporation, but each application will have to be considered on its own merit.

As Members will observe in the Development Estimates which have been tabled by the Minister for Finance, the Government is proposing to allocate substantial funds for the promotion of better housing in the rural areas.

An hon. Member: How much?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, I am asked how much. It is £200,000, and it is hoped that the House will approve this Vote. Considerable effort, of which I have already told the House, is already being made in this field, in conjunction with the departments of health and Community Development and county councils. I am convinced that, as the earning capacity of the people improves in the rural areas, they will be able, with the advice of the officers in the field, to continue to build better houses using local materials, such as dressed stone, sun-dried or baked bricks, stabilized earth, timber or even makuti for roofing purposes. The officers of the Ministry of Housing, in collaboration with the other departments in the field, will continue to demonstrate better-type plans and simple but improved methods of building, so that the people can use their resources to the best possible advantage.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I agree that this question was answered and discussed in a very recent debate on the adjournment. It is really out of order to have it now and so we will pass on.

Question No. 187

COMPLETION OF OLORUKOTI Harambee SECONDARY SCHOOL

Mr. ole Lemein asked the Minister for Housing if he would tell the House—

(a) whether he was aware that Olorukoti Harambee Secondary School had been opened this year; that some buildings were not completed and that the building contractors wanted to leave at the end of the month; and

(b) if the answer was affirmative, whether he would approve Sh. 50,000 so that the Narok County Council could give the money to the said school to complete their buildings.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware that the Olorukoti Harambee Secondary School has been opened this year and that some buildings are not yet complete. In fact, as far as my Ministry is concerned, the school has not been registered and if it is in existence, it is functioning as an illegal school and if it continues to run without getting registered, I will take the necessary legal action against the managers for that.

(b) Unless a school is selected to be maintained by Government in accordance with the country's development plan, no funds can be used from the Ministry of Education for building such a school. As far as the county councils are concerned, secondary education is not their responsibility financially, and they cannot get authority from the Government to spend money on building secondary schools when they have not been able to put up proper buildings for primary schools in that area.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since that is the first Harambee secondary school in Narok District, would the Minister find ways and means of helping that school so that it can be run properly, because it is the first in the district to be by Harambee.

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the first thing that the hon. Member should do is to make sure that the managers are not prosecuted. He should return there today or tomorrow and advise them to apply for registration. If he delays any further, we will have to close up the school and lock up the people.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, knowing too well that Masailand is one area where education activities are still lacking, and in view of the fact that the Minister is also aware that the school was started but was not registered, and since the Member from the area has brought this matter to the House, and now that the Minister is aware of this, can he not make the necessary arrangements to make sure that the school is registered, and secondly approve this sum of Sh. 50,000 forthwith because we are interested in helping the Masai and not the illegalities of the school's existence?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want the hon. Members to create any feeling that we are not sympathetic to problems of the Masai people as far as education is concerned. We are very interested indeed, but there is no excuse, for doing this the wrong way. In the first place, a county council has the responsibility for primary education in Masai country and in any other part of this nation. Secondly, the school must be registered and then, and only after that time, can the people in that area apply for the Government to give assistance from the Ministry of Education for the institution. The question is so wrongly worded because we cannot use the money of the Ministry of Local Government to assist secondary schools.

Question No. 206EMPLOYMENT OF SCHOOL CERTIFICATE SCHOOL-LEAVERS

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a small typing error in the following Question. It is Form IV not Form VI, and the examination is the East African Certificate of Education.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) how many Form IV school-leavers who had sat for the East African Certificate of Education last year had been fixed in various institutions.

(b) how many of them had not been fixed anywhere.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If the question went into the Minister like this and he has come prepared to answer that question, he is probably not able to answer a question referring to Form IV. I do not know how you stand on this, Dr. Kiano?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): I think I assumed that the hon. Member meant Form IV, and if the answer does not satisfy the hon. Member, he may be given another chance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It may just have been a misprint on the Order Paper.

Dr. Kiano: I beg to reply.

Of the 17,086 candidates who sat for the East African Certificate of Education Examination in December 1968, a total of 3,676 were found places in institutions of higher learning and further training under the Ministry of Education. 2,302 of these were admitted to Form V, while 1,374 were admitted to teachers' colleges for training as S.1, P.1 or P.2 teachers. I am unable to say how many were admitted to the various other institutions of training in other Ministries.

(b) It is not possible for me to say how many Form IV school-leavers have not been fixed up anywhere until figures of those admitted to other institutions not under my Ministry are available.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, knowing that our secondary school education is expanding at a very high rate, would the Minister make sure that the training institutions, such as teachers' training colleges, are expanding in proportion to the expansion of secondary schools, because even now we are short of very many teachers?

Dr. Kiano: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I entirely agree with the hon. Member and towards that we are expanding the teacher training colleges and eliminating the very small uneconomic ones and combining them with the others to make them

[The Minister for Education] into larger institutions that will be able to produce at least as many as 500 teacher trainees, instead of the small number of 200 or 250. I agree with the hon. Member.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, that he does not know how many children have been placed in other schools or in other Ministries, could the Minister consider including in the syllabus some commercial courses for Form IV leavers, so that, by the time the children leave, they will be equipped to do some clerical duties rather than hanging around the streets of Nairobi?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yes, Sir. Furthermore, as I indicated in a reply I gave to this House only last week, some schools have already received this kind of equipment for commercial training, and I gave even the names of such schools in one of my replies last week.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 225

REVIEW OF TEACHERS' SALARIES

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what progress was being made in respect of review of P.2, P.3 and P.4 teachers' salaries every six months as agreed by Parliament in Sessional Paper No. 10 of 1968.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the hon. Member is fully aware, due to the very hot debate we had last week, this matter is now under extremely active consideration.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This is another matter which has already been discussed recently, and we must move on.

Question No. 260

EXAMINATION FEES FOR SECONDARY SCHOOL STUDENTS

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) why were the examination fees for both the East African Competitive Examination (School Certificate) and Higher School Certificate Examination being raised yearly;
- (b) under what authority of Parliament did this extra money get collected from the public;
- (c) how much money was paid to the syndicate of Cambridge University every year as a part of collected examination fees; and

(d) why were the examination fees per subject doubled from Sh. 10 to Sh. 20.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The entry fees for School Certificate and Higher School Certificate examinations have not been raised since 1965.

The charges remain as follows.

(a) The Cambridge School Certificate Examination fees are not raised annually.

Mr. Shikuku: How much?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): I said, they have not been raised annually.

Mr. Shikuku: But, how much?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): If the hon. Member will wait I will give him all these figures.

First, Sir, I should say that the Education Act for 1968 (Cap. 211), has empowered the Minister for Education to regulate examination fees for all examinations. The Minister publishes his decision in this regard under the appropriate Legal Notices.

The breakdown is as follows.

The minimum charge per candidate at the School Certificate examination level is Sh. 40, that is Sh. 30 entry fee and Sh. 10 per subject, the maximum being Sh. 120; that means that even if you take more subjects than that you will not pay more than Sh. 120, but the minimum is Sh. 40. The total amount paid to the Cambridge Syndicate, therefore, depends very much on the total number of candidates. In 1968, we remitted Sh. 1,717,414/30 to the Cambridge Syndicate.

(d) The examination fees per subject have not been doubled from Sh. 10 to Sh. 20. The facts are that the pupils from the regularly Government-maintained schools pay Sh. 10 per subject, and the private candidate pays Sh. 20.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, would the Minister tell the House how much the charges for Higher School Certificate were in 1965, and what it is now, in 1968?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would have assumed that these figures are correct, but if the hon. Member has some doubt I will be very willing to check and inform him. I would rather not be entangled in an argument when I do not have all the statistical information in my hands.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that, Sir, if he does not have the statistical information in his hands now, how does he know that the fees have not increased?

Dr. Kiano: Because the facts are that they have not been increased.

Mr. Nthula: Arising from the answer, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that last month I paid for my son Sh. 180 for the School Certificate?

Dr. Kiano: That is extremely good information, Sir, and I will check that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 261

CLOSING DATES FOR EXAMINATION ENTRY FORMS

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) what the main reasons were which led the Minister to change the closing date for the East African Certificate of Education and Higher School Certificate examinations' entry forms from May to 19th April 1969, without proper publicity to the public in this country; and
- (b) could 30th April be fixed as the standard date of the closure.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I reply I would like to thank the hon. Member for Butere because I was expecting him to raise a point of order, but he has accepted my suggestion that I will give him more statistical information regarding the previous question.

Regarding this question, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) Due to the increased numbers of candidates in all the East African Certificate of Education and Higher School Certificate examinations, the Cambridge Syndicate advanced the closing date by which the entries should reach them. This, again, will help us not to be delayed and so on. As a result of this, the Ministry of Education had to advance the closing date by the same period.

The closing date was published in the normal way. Circulars were issued to the provincial education officers who were expected to send this information to all secondary schools.

It is not possible to have a fixed registration closing date now because the closing date is determined by a number of factors which I will take into consideration.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Sir, and taking into account, for example, Kenya, where communications are rather awkward at times, particularly in remote areas, would it not be in the interests of the students in this country, if a well-known date—as suggested here, 30th April—be the closing date so that everybody knows the closing date because if it changes all the time some of the places may get into trouble because the information communications are very, very bad?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, I think that is a very practical suggestion and I will plan to have a permanent date so that everybody knows without changing from year to year. I think this would be much more convenient to everybody.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, will the Minister assure us that when some matters like this come up, especially for West Pokot, where there are no communications, he will make sure that each and everybody will get it?

Dr. Kiano: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I expect the Provincial Education Officer in that area to do his job and make sure that every person involved is informed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We come back to Mr. Mwamzandi's question. Mr. Mwamzandi. Any hon. Member authorized? Mr. Omar.

Question No. 268

PROMISED WATER FOR MSAMBWENI PEOPLE

Mr. Omar, on behalf of Mr. Mwamzandi, asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House—

- (a) whether the Minister was aware of the agreement reached between the Medical Officer of Health, Msambweni and the Mwaembe people who gave land for the Msambweni Water pump house free on condition that they got a tap and water free; and
- (b) if the answer was in the affirmative, why had the tap been cut.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. J. M. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

No, to part (a) and secondly, my Ministry is not aware of this tap-cutting.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply of, no, how does the Assistant Minister know that the tap was not cut when actually, it was cut?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all I can say is that before this water supply became a supply, the people of Msambweni were permitted to draw water from another tap in the hospital compound. Since the water supply became a public one, however, the hospital, like any other consumer, had to pay for the water. Therefore, the tap was closed but not cut off to public use. I understand that, at the moment the county council of the area is considering operating a water kiosk for the people to draw water by use of debes, and I suggest that the hon. Member should inform his constituents that this is in progress.

Question No. 247KISASI/MBITINI WATER PIPE-LINE PROJECT

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House how much money and technical aid the Ministry had given to Kitui County Council towards Kisasi/Mbitini Water Pipe-line project.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The Government made available in 1968 the sum of a £5,000 grant towards completion of the Kisasi/Mbitini Pipe-line Water Projects.

Also last year, the Government gave approval to the said council to accept, without any strings attached, the sum of £3,721 to be made available by GORTA, the Freedom from Hunger Council of Ireland, as foreign aid.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating the assistance the Government has given to Kitui County Council on this project, would the Assistant Minister consider giving a further grant to the Kitui County Council in order to extend this project beyond Mbitini, so as to serve other thirsty areas?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Kitui County Council has already prepared three schemes for piped water supply. The first one which the hon. Member had asked about is now nearing completion. The other two will be undertaken as soon as the Kitui County Council is ready. Therefore, if the Member wants further extension, then it is up to him to put it up to the county council.

Question No. 219RAILWAYS VERSUS ROAD TRANSPORT COMPETITION

Mr. Khaoya asked the Minister for Power and Communications if he would tell the House what effect the continued road usage by transport vehicles had had on the existence of the East African Railways and Harbours' transport business.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The road operators have taken quite a big fraction of the more remunerative traffic, mainly the transportation of petroleum products and imported goods, leaving the Railways to carry the balance at sub-economic rates. In other words, the differential charging system hitherto practised by the Railways has been thrown temporarily out of balance. As a result, the Railways have operated at a deficit during the past two years.

In an effort to halt this trend, the East African Governments have commissioned a transport study for the whole of East Africa, which is currently in progress, with United Nations' assistance, in search of a lasting solution to the problem. In the meantime, the Railways have lowered their charges for transportation of petroleum products so as to attract this traffic from road operators.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, especially where he said that the road operators have taken a big fraction of the business, Mr. Speaker, since the three Governments must have known that by increasing vehicles on the roads they were going to interfere with the operation of the Railways, why did the three Governments then give transport licences to these vehicles?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the policy of my Ministry to encourage the Africans to get into transport business.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear!

Mr. Nyamweya: All I am interested to do, Sir, is to see that we strike a happy medium, whereby the transporters who are coming into this business can make a profit, as well as maintaining East African Railways running on a profitable basis.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister agree with this House that, business is not business unless there is competition and, therefore, the Railway and the road transporters should compete?

Mr. Nyamweya: These are the views I share with the hon. Member, though I would have liked him to declare his interest.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a part of his reply, the Minister has stated that a transport study is being undertaken with a view to striking a balance somewhere. Mr. Speaker, does the Minister not agree with me that all this problem has been brought about by the increased numbers of road vehicles, and that to clear this problem is just a question of restricting allocation of transport licences on the road, and that is all? It does not require any study at all.

Mr. Nyamweya: I have, in fact, Mr. Speaker, with the co-operation of my learned hon. friend, the Chairman of the Transport Licensing Board, Mr. Gatuguta, restricted the issue of licences on certain roads where we think that the traffic is sufficiently heavy. This situation has already been taken care of.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the hon. Minister not agree with me that one of the reasons why the road transport has taken a big share of this traffic is because the Railways traffic system has proved very inefficient?

Mr. Nyamweya: I would like to discuss this allegation with the hon. friend opposite, but I deny his allegation very emphatically, unless he can prove it to me outside the Chamber.

Mr. Abubakar-Madhbuti: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the replies, when he said that his Ministry was encouraging African transporters, then why should the Railways discriminate against African transporters by distributing goods only to Kenatco?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Kenatco is a Government-supported, or sponsored company. For that reason, the Government has every reason to see that Kenatco gets business. This, of course, does not mean that if the hon. Member, or any other transporter who wants business cannot get it from East African Railways.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister not agree with me that the Railways have lost business because Kenatco, being a Government organization, the Government uses its influence, probably, to give business to the Kenatco rather than to the East African Railways which is the responsibility of the three Governments?

Mr. Nyamweya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not wish to agree with the purpose of the question, or the meaning contained in that question. Whatever Governmental pressure of influence is applied to the East African Railways is, in my view, a proper one because the Government has a stake in Kenatco.

Mr. Khaoya: Bearing in mind the importance of the Railways system in any country, particularly for the economic development of a country, could the Government—bearing that in mind—review their position with a view to giving, say, the Railways their proper share in East Africa?

Mr. Nyamweya: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I agree with the hon. Member and that is why there is this transport study. As soon as the recommendations have been studied by the East African Governments, measures will be taken to help the East African Railways.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Nyaberi.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 219:
RAILWAYS VERSUS ROAD TRANSPORT

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment if the hon. Questioner allows me to do so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Question No. 244

TITLE-DEEDS FOR LOAN REPAYMENTS

Mr. Nyaberi asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement if he would tell the House why it was difficult to obtain a title-deed for a plot-holder in a settlement scheme who could afford to pay off all his loan repayment for land instead of continuing for 30 years as laid down.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am grateful to the hon. Member for raising this question. I crave the indulgence of the House to allow me to reply fairly fully.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, before a title-deed can be issued, each parcel of land must be planned and demarcated. It is extremely expensive for the Department of Survey to carry out survey on the ground of individual plots demarcated.

My Ministry has, therefore, accepted the cheaper method of survey of plots on settlement schemes by air. The plots are surveyed by air as and when all the settlers in a particular scheme have perimeter fenced their plots according to the boundary lines shown on the ground by a plough line and agreed by and between the settlement officer and the plot-holder.

When such aerial survey is completed, the Director of Surveys prepares deed plans for each plot and thereafter the Commissioner of Lands issues a title-deed annexing the deed plan showing the exact area and boundary of the plot-holder.

It is not practicable to put the above policy into effect because most of the settlers have not perimeter fenced their plots which would not show on the map.

In the circumstances, therefore, even if a plot-holder in a settlement scheme can afford to pay off his loan for land instead of continuing repaying for 30 years as laid down, the Settlement Fund Trustees cannot issue a title-deed to such a plot-holder until his settlement scheme can be treated as a whole unit.

However, in schemes where the plot-holders have completed perimeter fencing an aerial survey has been carried out, deed plans have been prepared and the Commissioner of Lands is in the process of issuing title documents, subject to charges being entered in favour of the Settlement Fund Trustees in the register under the Registered Land Act 1963, to replace the temporary Letters of Allotment already issued.

Any plot-holder who wishes to pay off his land loan in full is always welcome to do so, and can save interest for the remaining period of his loan.

[Mr. Malinda]

After such payment, he is given an explanatory letter cancelling all the charges contained in the Letter of Allotment and removing any encumbrances registered against the plot. The Letter is acceptable as good security for raising loans from commercial banks.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, arising from that lengthy reply, and arising also from the answer, that unless some of these plots are properly fenced the Settlement Fund Trustees cannot issue a title-deed, would the Assistant Minister now tell the House, since settlement schemes started in the Republic, of any area, any single settlement scheme where such fencing has been done and there has been issue of title-deeds?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, yes, Sir. Fencing does not necessarily mean wire fencing. If a plot-holder puts in a hedge which it is possible to photograph from the air by the aircraft when they are doing the aerial survey, that is a good enough boundary line which can be shown on the map and this would enable the plot-holder to get his title-deed.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what is the Ministry planning to do in areas where we grow sugar-cane in the settlement schemes, where there is no fencing? What is the Ministry planning to do in such cases because you cannot have aerial photographs to show the fences in sugar-cane schemes? What are you going to do about the issue of title-deeds in these areas?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, well, as soon as the plot-holders have paid off all their loans, they will be issued with title-deeds, subject, of course, to survey being carried out on the ground, on the strength of the settlers having paid off their loans.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the original answer, and remembering very well that it was only, I think, a month ago when some of the settlers in Nyandarua District were asked to sign for their title-deeds, would the Assistant Minister indicate to this House when we can expect these title-deeds because we need them very badly?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it must be appreciated that the preparation of these title-deeds is a fairly lengthy process, and for the settlers in Nyandarua Settlement Scheme I can only say that if they wait a little longer they will be able to get their title-deeds. Sir, it takes quite a lot of time to prepare these and enter the charges under the Registered Land Act in the Registrar of Lands' office.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since getting title-deeds is a means of enabling the farmers to get loans, would the Minister take into account that if the farmers wish to get extra loans—more than the ones usually given—things will be accelerated for them to get their title-deeds? Will you make provision for a farmer to get extra loans other than the one usually given?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know whether the Member wants my Ministry to be asked to give more loans than those that have been approved for particular settlement schemes. If that is what he is saying, I can only say that is not practical.

However, if he is asking me to allow the settlers to raise loans elsewhere on the strength of the Letter of Allotment which they have been issued, then this is beyond my control, it is a matter between the settlers and the financing institutions which the settler wishes to raise the money from. If a given financial institution agrees to take a second mortgage on the land, fair enough, it is open to him to do so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is really another question.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

FIGHTING FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE QUARANTINE: SOUTH NYANZA

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Agriculture the following Question by Private Notice.

Since South Nyanza County Council is experiencing financial difficulties because of poor collection of school fees and graduated personal tax, and since the council had set June 30th 1969 as the last date for the payment of school fees, would the Minister lift the quarantine for Foot-and-Mouth disease which is now preventing people from taking animals to the markets for sale in this district?

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Kariuki): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am afraid the answer to this question is, "No".

While my Minister appreciates the financial difficulties of the South Nyanza County Council, we cannot agree to lift the quarantine which has been imposed to prevent the spread of Foot-and-Mouth disease not only just around Nyanza Province but also to other districts in Kenya.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, is the Assistant Minister aware that this quarantine has been in effect for the last four to five months—from the date it was enforced—in South Nyanza and it is time it was lifted?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, the position is not the question of duration but how long it takes to control the spread of this disease throughout the district. It has actually been established that since we imposed the quarantine on 29th of March this year, there are still a lot of signs of this and, therefore, we do not feel that it is absolutely necessary for us to lift the ban, not until such time as the Ministry is absolutely sure that there will be no other threat to the cattle in South Nyanza and other surrounding districts.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us what treatment has been taken to South Nyanza for the sick animals so that we can get rid of this problem in the area, and also in the other areas to which he is referring? What treatment is there?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, the officers of my Ministry who are in the field now are continuing treating the animals which are affected by Foot-and-Mouth disease, but hon. Members should know that Foot-and-Mouth disease is not something whereby we can go and tell the people that this is what we call Foot-and-Mouth disease. The officers in charge of treating the disease have told the Ministry that the germs are still in the area and the quarantine must continue until such time that the officers feel there is no threat to the animals, not only in South Nyanza alone but also in other districts around South Nyanza.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that Foot-and-Mouth disease has no proper treatment, and that the disease has now passed from one animal to another and we in the district know that it is now over and the quarantine should be lifted?

Mr. J. M. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, we would be very impressed if we had a lot of capable veterinarians in South Nyanza telling us that the disease was over, but according to our experts, who have real qualifications—not bush qualifications—the disease is not over yet.

ADMISSION TO TENGES Harambee SECONDARY SCHOOL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Cheboiwo, I understand you want to withdraw this question?

Mr. Cheboiwo: Yes, Sir, for the time being.
(Question by Private Notice withdrawn)

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 187—CORRECT
NAME OF OLORUKOTI Harambee SCHOOL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You had a statement to make, I think, Dr. Kiano?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is just in reference to Question 187.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Lemein's question?

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano): That is correct, Sir. I find that after further study of this question, I want to make it easier for the hon. Member. The school which he calls Olorukoti Harambee Secondary School is not registered as such, but there is a school called Kilgoris Harambee Secondary School, and if that is the one he is referring to, that one is registered. If, however, he wishes to have the name changed from Kilgoris to Olorukoti, then what he has to do is to make formal application to the Ministry. Kilgoris Secondary School is registered, and we have nothing on our books about this other Olorukoti, and I believe he means the same thing.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

RENTING OF SHOPS BY CITIZENS IN INTER-CONTINENTAL HOTEL

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Dr. De Souza, you have a personal statement?

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the debate on the Vice-President's Motion, I made the point that trade licences in all new buildings, such as the Hilton and the Inter-Continental, should be given to Africans and citizens only, and I thought the Inter-Continental had all non-citizen shops. I am happy to inform the House that my friend, the hon. Mr. Jan Mohamed, who is the Chairman of the Inter-Continental Hotel, has told me that, in fact, he took great care of this, and insisted that these shops be rented to citizens only. He informed me that except for one shop, which is rented to a bank, all are rented by citizens or citizen companies.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am happy to stand corrected in regard to the Inter-Continental Hotel, and I hope the same policy will be followed in regard to all new commercial buildings in Nairobi and elsewhere in Kenya.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

FREQUENT RAIDS BY TURKANA ON POKOT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members that on the adjournment today, Mr. Kassa-Choon is to raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

POINT OF ORDER

REASON FOR QUESTION BECOMING OUT OF ORDER—ALREADY ANSWERED

Mr. Nyaberi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I apologize that I was not in the House at the time, but I do not know whether my first Question, No. 245, was answered.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Nyaberi. I explained to the House before you came in that we have a rule that questions should not be asked if they have already been answered during the same session. Now, at the time you put this question in, it was in order, but it was answered fully in the course of a debate on a Private Members' Motion last Friday, and so it became out of order.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE HOUSE

(Order for Committee read)

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

IN THE COMMITTEE

[The Chairman (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

THE STATUTE LAW (MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS) BILL

(Clause 2 agreed to)

Schedule

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Chairman, I beg to move:—

THAT, the Schedule to the Bill be amended by inserting immediately after the item relating to the Streets Adoption Act (Cap. 406) of the following new item:—

The Export Duty Act—(Cap. 482)

s. 6A.—Insert a new section as follows:—

Commencement.—6A. This Act shall be deemed to have come into operation on 1st May 1964, and it is hereby declared that any export duty or purported export duty raised, levied, collected or paid in respect of any exportation of sisal or coffee on or after the said date shall for all purposes deemed to have been validly and lawfully raised, levied, collected or paid under the provisions of this Act relating thereto.

Mr. Chairman, we passed a resolution in this House before the amalgamation of the two Houses, namely the Senate and the Lower House; that is, we passed the resolution in this House, but when I moved the amendment in the Senate, there were some difficulties and delay and, as a result, the resolution which had been passed in this House was time-barred. Therefore, some sisal and coffee people were claiming that the duty was not lawful. This is merely to cover that point. We should have been covered but for the delay in the Senate.

(Question of the amendment that the words to be added be added proposed put and agreed to)

(New Clause read the First Time)

(Question that the new Clause be read a Second Time proposed put and agreed to)

(Clause 6A read a Second Time)

(Question that new Clause 6A be added to the Bill proposed put and agreed to)

(Schedule as amended proposed)

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Chairman, I wish to move that the Schedule of the Bill be amended by deleting the whole subsection relevant to the Estate Duty Act. Section 7 reads: "Insert a new subsection as follows—(a) This section shall not apply to His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, First President and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Kenya."

Mr. Chairman, my reason for moving an amendment that this section be deleted is this: do I understand that all future Presidents will be called Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, or what will they be called? Any Constitution of the country is not enacted for any particular person. Anybody who has the feeling that I am quarreling or criticizing the person of the President Mzee Jomo Kenyatta is wrong. In fact, the person who might have inserted his name here is the one who should take the blame. We believe that the present President will be there for a time, but he will not be there for ever. In the future, there will be other Presidents whose names will not be Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, but if it is believed that future Presidents will inherit this name of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, there is reason for inserting this particular clause. However, if future Presidents are not going to be called by the same name, then this clause is being enacted to suit the present President, which means that when the present President has gone, then this clause will have to be amended accordingly. This is wrong, Mr. Chairman.

The President always talks about building the nation. How do we do that? We build the nation through taxation. If all the wealthy people are exempted from paying taxes, how shall we build our nation?

An hon. Member: Terrible.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Are we building our nation with words? No. We build our nation with the taxes we pay, and the person who should lead in this respect should be the President. In fact, at present he is not being taxed according to his salary. He is exempted. With the wealth which might have been derived as a result of this exemption of taxation, what would be wrong in passing over whatever the President had after his death?

Mr. Chairman, this is a developing country, and as such everyone should be ready to contribute, and this is what we call contribution. This would be a substantial contribution. I am not convinced as to why this particular clause should be inserted just to suit an individual. This is wrong, and if this is passed, eventually we shall have another clause for the Attorney-General; then we shall have one for the Ministers; there will follow one for the Assistant Ministers and after that there will be one for the Members of Parliament. This is wrong, and if we are genuine in what we say, if we are genuine in abusing others who want free things, we should realize that this is a place where someone can escape with things freely. This is wrong.

Mr. Chairman, at the same time, a Constitution should not refer to a person particularly. This is wrong. I have always said that the Constitution of the country should guide our country, even when we have gone, even when we are dead. The Constitution should help others in the future. It should not be a Constitution which is in existence for one year, and then the following year it is amended to suit Ondiek-Chillo, the following year it is amended to suit the hon. Munoko. That is not right.

I feel that this is very wrong. I do not have any personal grudge with the President at present, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, as far as this is concerned, I feel he should show the lead in this respect. As far as I know, the President is very wealthy—

Hon. Members: How do you know?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: All this wealth should be taxed so that we build the nation financially, so that we build the nation with all the means at our disposal.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Where is this?

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Chairman, on page 34 it explains what will happen as far as Estate Duties are concerned, and the ordinary man—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Yes, but you are referring to the tax on estate duty. We are now discussing other things.

I am not discussing other things. What I am discussing is that it would be a good idea when the President is dead, that all the estate duty is imposed on him as it is done to others, because the "golden rule" says, "Do unto others what you would like them to do unto you." If the President would not like his estate to be taxed after his death, then other persons' estates should not be taxed when they are dead, because they will be leaving their families who should be cared for. This is not actually taking all that the President might leave after his death; this is just taxing a bit of the wealth that he might be having.

Mr. Chairman, I feel that, if I do not go long into this, it would be very ideal if this particular clause were deleted, but if the Members should not agree, that this particular clause should be deleted as such, according to my amendment, then it is obvious that a future Government will have to amend this. This is obvious because, the future President will not be Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, and this is why this particular clause should be deleted.

Mr. Chairman, I beg to move that this particular clause, be amended by deleting the whole clause.

(Question of the further amendment proposed)

Mr. Bala: Mr. Chairman, I fully agree with my colleague, Mr. Chillo. In fact, Mr. Chairman, what we are discussing here is not the salary of His Excellency the President, it is all that he might have as a human being, including his shamba, or any building he might have which may be earning revenue. Mr. Chairman, to say that he should be exempted from paying estate duty, and when we know very well that His Excellency the President is an African socialist according to Sessional Paper No. 10, is very wrong. Now, Mr. Chairman, if African Socialism is according to Sessional Paper No. 10, why should he not be treated like other socialists? Why should he give an impression that he is the only socialist in Kenya, when he is a big capitalist, according to the impression he is giving to the whole world?

Mr. Chairman, this is a very wrong assumption, and if our President, is a leader of Kanu as a party, which has a big bible called Sessional Paper No. 10 on African Socialism, he should serve as an example. It is no use, Mr. Chairman, of giving people lip service by pretending to be a socialist when you do not mean what you are talking about. Therefore, I think, even the President himself would be offended very much by somebody trying to give him free estate duty, when his policy, in fact, is not for all these free things, Mr. Chairman. We have been accused in KPU that we want free things, while here is a case where the head of Kanu as a party, is being forced to have some free estate duty. This is, Mr. Chairman, something which is so ridiculous that if, in the countryside, the people happen to hear that the head of Kanu as a party advocating a free gift, this is very wrong, and I think the Attorney-General will see sense. Such a thing should not actually have precedent in this Chamber because, as it said, he is the first President, and so he should be the first to give a good example as President, with no precedents to make in this country for advocating free estate duty, free duty for his farm, and free duty for all his income.

Mr. Chairman, this is very wrong, so, I beg to support my colleague.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): I beg to move that the question of the amendment be now put .

(Question of the further amendment that the words to be left out be left out put and negated)

(Question of the Schedule as originally amended proposed and put)

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I think we should have a Division, just in case of any doubt; I will put the question again. Hon. Members must realize that I have to try and gauge the voice vote accurately, and I will do it again this time, but not again.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Chairman, I want to ask this to be clarified. I want to know from this House, and from here, whether President Kenyatta asked that he wanted to have free estate duty, that that should be included.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Odinga, we have already passed that.

Mr. Odinga: I think it should be explained, because this is a very serious thing. We are not going to—

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry I cannot do that now. You had a chance to speak, but you did not speak.

Mr. Odinga: I had a chance, but, you know, you went on very quickly for it is a very important thing.

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): No, I am trying to be fair and give everybody a chance. You can raise it on the Third Reading if you want to. I will put the question again.

(Question of the Schedule as originally amended put and agreed to)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Chairman, why was the question put for the second time?

The Chairman (Dr. De Souza): Well, I put it because I thought there was probably some misunderstanding and, therefore, it could not be fully understood.

REPORT

THE STATUTE LAW (MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by the Committee of the whole House to report its consideration of the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill and its approval thereof with amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is only one small rather non-contentious amendment. Would you like to move the consideration of the Report now?

CONSIDERATION OF REPORT AND THIRD READING

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano) seconded.

(Question proposed)
(Question put and agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill be now read the Third Time.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Ondiek-Chilo: Mr. Speaker, I just stand to warn any person who is in charge of drafting this amendment, that any Constitution which is amended to suit an individual will be a wrong Constitution. I am standing to warn that such amendments will not lead the country to stability. For example, the one which has just been passed of bringing an amendment that one particular person be exempted from paying estate duty, whereas the rest of the people in the country would be subject to paying this. This is wrong, and I just stand so that it should be put on record and this is wrong, and it is a very wrong way of dealing with the affair.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to register my greatest protest to these amendments in this Bill, because we have been very worried about corruption in this country. If it is that this House appears as if it is trying to corrupt those people who are in high positions, like the President, by giving them what they call precedence, or something which is a precedent, which will be subject to criticism later on by people when they come here, I do want to make my position very clear that I do not—and those who think like me—support this exemption of the President from paying death duties or any charges on his estate after his death. I do not support it and those who later on may challenge this will meet with my approval and I will support them very strongly.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know that the Bill is now going through its Third Reading, but I did hint to the Attorney-General, in the course of the debate on the Second Reading of this Bill, that I intended—and I think I was the first person to make the point about this precedent—to move an amendment. I made it very clear that I have nothing against the present President, but I think that it should be that all the Presidents should be exempted from this. This is a question of principle and not a question of what is there now, or what I feel like now, but it is what the future generation will think about future Presidents. I made this very clear and I thought that I would have time to move an amendment. Unfortunately, Sir, there was a Parliamentary Group meeting on this morning which lasted up to some minutes past one o'clock, and I was late to submit an amendment that this should apply to future Presidents as well as the present President. However, it is never too late, and for those Opposition Members who are now shouting at the top of their voices, this is all I can say, that I look forward to an amendment in future, because this is not the final amendment to this Bill, which will incorporate this. If you look back in history you will find that the hon. Rapondi moved in this National Assembly.

An hon. Member: Who is Rapondi?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Oginga Odinga Rapondi moved things in this National Assembly when we were in the other Chamber and whenever we opposed this or that were actually frustrated. He stuck on because he was the man of the day. He should know that the world changes and sometimes it may so change that he will no longer be in this House.

Now, Sir, I only hope that the Minister concerned will bring a future amendment so that we have all the Presidents in future be exempted from this. I can see him nodding in agreement to this. In this spirit, Mr. Speaker, let us not look at the present, but let us look further to the future, to our future generations rather than to ourselves.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I would only like to submit very strongly to the Minister that by having so many miscellaneous things we get completely confused. We had these amendments to the Kenya Constitution and which were coming in piecemeal, and we ended up in not knowing what the Constitution was, despite the fact that some of us took part in drafting the Constitution. We were at sea, but I am glad now that the Constitution is in one piece. I do not know when we are going to get those copies; I do not know when, and I hope the Attorney-General will tell us when he will give us the whole Constitution.

These piecemeal amendments are very difficult, Mr. Speaker. One thing is that they are very cumbersome to study and very many Members have a hell of a time. It requires about three hours to go through all these amendments because they come in piecemeal; we have to go to the library and refer to one book after the other, and some Members just prefer not to worry about it. There are very dangerous clauses in these miscellaneous amendments; delete that or do that or the other, to which we do not pay very great attention. We will live to regret this at some later date when the clauses are finally put together and we find that we have passed terrible things and I hope we will regret that. I do not think the Attorney-General should be the architect of such misfortune. He should bring in all these miscellaneous amendments and then give us a lot of time to study them and pass them so that we do not pass laws that will hurt our future generations.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, in actual fact, I do not want to say much but what I want to say is to give my blessing to these amendments because when you compare the other countries in East Africa, namely Tanzania and Uganda, you see that we are ahead of those other countries in East Africa. Therefore, all I would like to say is to pay tribute to our very dynamic Attorney-General who took action to see to it that he brought these amendments at the right time. These amendments, Mr. Speaker, Sir, were brought at a time when the people throughout the country were waiting for such amendments.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, to come to another point, I very fully disagree with the hon. Shikuku when he says that he should have brought an amendment so that it included future Presidents. What can happen if tomorrow an imposter comes and says that he is the President of this country? We should have already committed ourselves. Therefore, that does not arise because it is likely—as it has been happening in other countries—that a monster will be the future President of this country. This shows that such a monster will not have any mandate from the members of the public, from the masses. Therefore, Sir, all that I want to say is that the amendment, as it stands, is the correct amendment. Our country is a very young country but we have already demonstrated, in no uncertain terms, that we are a democratic institution about which Kenya is teaching other countries in Africa, for that matter in the world, and we are an institution which will be followed by other countries, even advanced countries in Europe and America, and even the Asian countries. We must be proud of this and we must stand very firmly to demonstrate to the world that the only thing we can give to them is not only harambee or our traditional and customary institutions, but we can give them an example in very many other fields: in the field of law, in the field of amendments to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are getting rather far away from the point now, Mr. Munyi.

Mr. Munyi: Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to labour much on this but all I want to say is that in the past we were always having arguments and I was threatening as to what might happen if an amendment is moved in this House, but at the present I am very happy and in future I hope that we will follow the same procedure. That is the procedure which we were following in accordance with the harambee spirit, and this harambee spirit can be applied in all fields, and we have already applied this. Even the Members of the Opposition—my good friends—are very much in support of these amendments; that is the good Leader of the Opposition because even when he spoke he did not speak against this, he spoke for this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I am appealing to even the Leader of the Opposition to join our side, Kanu, so that we shall build a very strong and dynamic nation—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is very irrelevant, Mr. Munyi.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support very fully and to give 100 per cent blessing and I think it will also get a blessing from heaven and from God.

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say how happy I was at the Committee Stage to see that the Government is not proceeding, at this moment at least, with the extension of the death penalty in cases of robbery with violence. For those of us who take part in debates in this House, it is very heartening to note that Government Ministers are so aware of the feeling of the House, and of people outside, that they are willing to listen to people when they speak and they are willing to make amendments accordingly.

I am sure the Attorney-General is reconsidering this matter very actively and I would like to recommend to him what I did earlier on: that is to appoint a commission to inquire into the whole question of penalties and the death penalty. We have had two very successful commissions recently: one on marriage and divorce and the other one on the law of succession. They have done a wonderful job on this and I think their reports will be discussed very shortly. I would like to recommend to him that this is one question to which this might be applied because, after all, the lives and deaths of individuals will depend on this, and the question of law and order is very vital to us as well. I would very strongly recommend to him to consider this question of a commission—perhaps with very few people—to go into this very fully and to come out with a report that we can all consider and support.

I thank him again very much, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will call on the Mover to reply.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, first of all may I say that I do not have any apology for introducing this amendment as far as our President is concerned. I do not think this nation can pay enough tribute for the work that our President has done to our country. Only the other day we passed a piece of legislation in this House giving a small pension to a civil servant by the name, I think, of Odongo, who had done some work in this country, and we only did this in recognition of what he has done. I see absolutely nothing wrong with making this concession as far as our President is concerned. There is no use in some Members confusing this legislation with corruption; there is nothing corrupt about this. This legislation is being passed by this House in daylight this afternoon. Where does corruption come in? Everybody seems to think of corruption in his own bedroom.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Corruption by legislation.

The Attorney-General (Mr. C. Njonjo): Well, Sir, if it is corruption by legislation, this House has passed it and, as I say, I am satisfied that there is nothing wrong with this legislation. We have made similar enactments now and again to pass legislation in recognition of individual's service. I have accepted what the hon. Shikuku said and this matter can be reviewed later on. For hon. Members, particularly in the Opposition just to condemn and ask where we have authority to introduce it, is wrong. When I bring legislation here, it is not me personally who is bringing the legislation here; it is a matter which has been considered by the Government and my friend, the hon. Oginga Odinga, should know this because he was a Member of the Cabinet at one time and he has moved Bills in this House. I am sure my friend will not say that he was moving them here in his own personal capacity. I am merely a pipe, as it were, to pass on rules and legislation which have the backing of the Government.

As far as my learned and hon. friend, Dr. De Souza, is concerned, I am not satisfied that there is any necessity for creating a commission. We know what the problem is. We know about the panga gangs, and I am sure they do not organize a commission before they go out to attack people during the day and rob them. This is a problem which is well known and all we have to do is to think how it can be eradicated. I am, myself, satisfied that capital punishment is a deterrent, and I am sure if these thugs know if they commit these offences they are going to be sent to the gallows I am sure there will be less offences of this nature.

I have withdrawn the amendment in this particular legislation because I wanted to give more time to the Members to think about it. I have not withdrawn it because I am thinking of a commission. I think a commission could not do any work which I and hon. Members in this House cannot do.

I beg to support.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read the Third Time and passed)

REPORT AND THIRD READING

THE AFFILIATION (REPEAL) BILL

Dr. De Souza: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am directed by a Committee of the whole House to report its consideration of the Affiliation (Repeal) Bill and its approval thereof without amendment.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House doth agree with the Committee in the said Report.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine) seconded.

(Question proposed)

(Question put and agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Affiliation (Repeal) Bill be now read the Third Time.

The Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Angaine) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to comment on this controversial Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am going to do this afternoon is to appeal to the womenfolk in the Republic of Kenya that a general election is coming and it is high time women should come forward in order to be represented in this House, Mr. Speaker, they will be in a position to defend their own affairs. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been trying to defend the affairs of women in this House but it is a foregone conclusion that if we had a good number of women in this House they would be fully defended.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point is I would like to comment on what other Members have already said, in that it is a known fact, and one which is as clear as daylight, Mr. Speaker, that this Bill is going to be law. When it becomes law it is going to help Members of the House who have been raising many questions in the House as to what can happen.

To come to another point, Mr. Speaker, I hope by passing this particular Bill the industry which was a sort of illegal industry—the prostitution industry, Mr. Speaker, is coming to an end. This was an industry which had no licence, and which had no permit. It is true there are some girls in this city, or in Nakuru, Mombasa, Eldoret, Kitale, Kisumu, who thought that by establishing a new industry they could now succeed. They started misusing the Act in existence before, and which is going to be abolished today, and they started an industry of their own. I think this industry will not continue, Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Members: What kind of industry?

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, they are asking me what kind of industry this is, and I am telling them it is the industry of prostitution. No one needed a licence for this particular industry.

Mr. Speaker, I met some tourists on one occasion who had come to this country, and they told me when they went to Nairobi, or Mombasa they would find some girls and the tourists would then contribute something towards the particular industry. By repealing this Bill, Mr. Speaker, I am sure this industry is coming to an end. The sooner it comes to an end, the better. I do not know, it is only the Minister for Commerce and Industry who could tell us how much we used to receive from this particular industry every year. No one knows. No one has the statistics. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if a person was in a position to tell us what we used to receive from the industry we could consider this man for a medal. This information is not available, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we should not attempt to be even a little selfish for one single minute. Mr. Speaker, if we are not selfish then I am sure, and I would like to give an example, if we had at least two women members in this House, neither of them would have agreed to repeal this Bill. I know this for a fact, Mr. Speaker. The other day the women were parading themselves. I hear they have started concentrating their forces to see to it that during the coming General Election they will move forward with all their forces behind them. I am sure, Mr. Speaker, and I ask the hon. Attorney-General the other day, if he knew that more than half of the people who had the vote in this country were women? The answer the Attorney-General gave me was that it is true; they are more than half. What would happen, Mr. Speaker, if they organized themselves in order to return at least one quarter of the Members to this House, or half?

I know something has started. I think in the constituency of hon. Lubembe, Starehe, hon. Njonjo mentioned that one woman should stand there. I would like to appeal to the women to have as many seats as possible so that when they come to this House they can exchange views with us, and we will all then speak in the mutual language of understanding. I am sure they are going to succeed, Mr. Speaker.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Don't forget Yatta.

Mr. Munyi: My good friend the hon. Member for Yatta knows if a woman stands then she will stand somewhere in Yatta. Mr. Speaker, Sir, their forces are concentrated in the big towns, and I am a man from the rural areas, I think the hon. Member should be aware of this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I should like to tell the hon. Member is that first of all the operation should start in the big towns, and having started there, then it should be extended to rural areas.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, Mr. Munyi, we are becoming irrelevant now. You have a relevant point, I think, that, in discussing a Bill of this kind where women have a particularly strong view, and probably their own interests, it is very desirable that they should be represented in this House. You have made that point very clear, and we will not now discuss just how they are going to be represented.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, I know they are now organizing themselves and I would like— Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know you are a man of democratic views and ideas and you will even support them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will even come forward and support them. I will support at least one quarter of women Members coming to this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Munyi, you can leave that point I think. You have made it very clearly, and it is going to become irrelevant or repetitive if you talk any more about it.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

What I would like to say is to give my blessing to this particular Bill, and I know it has become rather controversial but it does not matter whether something is controversial or not, but what matters, Mr. Speaker, is that it is something which has been approved by the majority of the Members, and the support has included the Member from Butere. I know the other day I saw him outside and I know he is a man who always would like to apply democratic ideas and views, and I am sure he will not oppose the idea of having women members in this House.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give my blessing to this Bill.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by saying it was very unfortunate that I did not catch Mr. Speaker's eye during the Second Reading of the Bill. If I had, Mr. Speaker, then I would have opposed this Bill because the reasons given by the Mover, who was the Attorney-General, were not satisfactory at all.

[Mr. Omar]

He, himself, Mr. Speaker, said that in 1955 he did try to canvass for this Bill to be introduced in the House and it was done. Then some Ministers spoke and all the Members who spoke in favour of the Bill based their argument on the record of this type of case from the Makadara Court. None of them, Mr. Speaker, gave any statistics of this kind of case. They blamed the women for having commercialized things. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, they also forgot the children who are involved in these cases and who will suffer greatly after we pass this Bill. There is no alternative means of providing them with food, clothing and for their welfare in general.

Mr. Speaker, I think this House has a responsibility to society as a whole, and although the Bill has been passed in the Second Time, and it is most likely it is now going to be read a Third Time, but we must think what is going to happen to the children. The mothers of these children have been looking after them with the money they have been receiving as a result of these cases. I would like to suggest that, as soon as we pass this Bill, then the Attorney-General and the Ministers should establish a national fund whose aim would be to care for the children who are involved. Without doing so, Mr. Speaker, these children will have nobody to look after them, and tomorrow we might find them on the streets showing people where to park their cars and so on. There is the Vagrants Bill which says they must be taken to their various districts, but I do not think this is the solution, Mr. Speaker.

These boys or girls will one day grow up and if they are not looked after properly they will become vagabonds and they will become a problem to the country as a whole. I would suggest to the Government that they should start a national fund in the Harambee spirit and the money would be spent on the welfare of the children involved.

I would also appeal, Mr. Speaker, to the men who have been convicted under the Affiliation Bill that although this law is being repealed, they should continue to pay what they have been paying for their children since they were convicted, or since the affiliation orders were enforced on them. The parents of these children should know they are the parents in blood and in flesh, and, therefore, they should try to look after their children.

Mr. Speaker, as my colleague hon. Munyi has said, and I quite agree with him that if there were any women members in this House then I am sure they would strongly have opposed this Bill, because the main purpose of the Bill is relieve those people who have been convicted under the Affiliation Bill and to create a heavy burden on the women. It is the women and the children who are going to be victims of this Bill if it is repealed, and it is going to give freedom to those men who have been convicted under the Affiliation Bill because they will not be paying any more money for the children. I hope the people who are concerned, the men throughout the country, will have humane feelings and will continue to pay what they had been paying for the children as before. As the Government promised to bring a Bill in this House to protect children born from parents who are not married, I hope they will do that very soon, because the men who are interested, will take advantage of the repeal of this Bill, in that they will seduce the women or girls, make them pregnant and get children knowing that there is no law which will force them to look after those children. Women, being poor characters, cannot avoid this and nature, of course, will force them to do such things, thus the women are the ones who will suffer. Therefore, I hope that Government will soon bring an alternative Bill, in order to protect our women and those children who will be born under those circumstances.

With these few words Mr. Speaker, I want to make it clear again that, I strongly oppose this Bill because it is a Bill which does not protect the rights of women and children.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I should start, first of all, by making it known to the last speaker and the one who spoke before him, that I am married and have three daughters. Therefore, when I pass this Bill I have something to lose. However, we are talking of the principle. The principle here has been wrong; the Bill has been abused. I do not know how many daughters he has so I speak authoritatively because I have three daughters and three boys.

Mr. Speaker, I speak as a parent and I would like—

Hon. Members: How old are they?

Mr. Shikuku: Now, Sir, I speak as a parent and I would like to tell my friend that he has nothing to fear. According to the procedure, Mr. Speaker, once you pass a Bill in this House, it does not become law the following day. There is a period during which it has to go through other channels to reach the President for his assent. It is only after his assent that the Bill becomes law. Therefore during the time, after we have passed this Bill, and the time the President will be giving his assent, and I am sure the President of the Republic of this country is not going to give his assent to this Bill until such time as have the new Bill introduced in this House, so that he gives his assent to that one and we have another one to operate. It is just a question of commonsense. Therefore, those who are affiliated will go on paying that amount until this Bill is assented to by the President of the Republic of this country. I have the greatest honour and the greatest respect for that old man; he is not going to give his assent to this Bill, which we are repealing today, until such a time as the Attorney-General brings in another Bill on the lines we have already discussed in the Second Reading.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

[Mr. Shikuku]

As far as the women are concerned, Mr. Speaker, they have had a nice ride, and as usual in this world, if hon. Omar will agree with me, there is an end to everything. There is a beginning and an end. They have had a nice ride and the ride has come to an end and there is no question about it. They can shed their crocodile tears, for that I do not care, but the point is that the Bill is being repealed. Mr. Speaker, to those who have been trading in children; and even those whom we are paying for affiliation are the ones we see in streets here directing the traffic, showing you the parking places. The mother is affiliated but does not use the money to feed them, she tells them to go and wander in the streets and say that they are children of the poor, when the mother has been given the affiliation fees. This must now be stopped.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, now at the Third Reading I would like to tell the Attorney-General one thing. When the new law comes in, Mr. Speaker, it must have the African outlook, the African tradition, the African way of living. For those women who are refusing and particularly my friend somewhere here, who refused on the children so that they use them as means of earning a living, this is being blocked today.

The African way means the child belongs to the father. That is the law which we are going to pass here, the new one which is going to come. I can see hon. Mr. Ochwada agreeing with me because he has totally lost on this issue. This is a relief to my hon. friend because he has suffered for many years. All the children, Mr. Deputy Speaker, according to the African tradition, always belong to their father. For the information of the hon. Member, he who would have a baby, one day from the day when it is born, should baptise the baby and give it the name of the father's clan. This is the law we want to pass—

Hon. Members: Which one? Where is it?

The father should be responsible for the maintenance of that baby.

Mr. Munyi: Point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can the hon. Member speaking substantiate that we are going to pass that Bill? Has it been brought by the Attorney-General or is he going to bring that Bill? We want to know, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): That is not a point of order, you know that.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you Mr. Deputy Speaker. The hon. Member, Mr. Deputy Speaker, should be married first so that he knows what we are talking about, but when he is just enjoying himself like that, he does not know what we are talking about. We are fathers here and we speak as parents here.

What we want to do is that once a man has made a girl pregnant, he should be responsible for the baby until the baby is four years old then he takes the baby and leaves the mother if he is not interested in her. In that way, the African tradition will be there. I would like to tell the hon. 'Bachelor' here that this is the order of the day.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order for the hon. Member to keep on referring to the Member of Embu East as a hon. 'Bachelor', unmarried, and all sorts of things; can he substantiate that the hon. Member for Embu East is unmarried?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not know how a person can substantiate a negative but, of course, if Mr. Munyi denies that he is a bachelor am sure he will accept it, but Mr. Munyi is there right next to him, I do not know if it necessary for you to do so.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Mr. Munyi: The hon. Member does not know what is African Socialism. Therefore he does not know that by African Socialism and by African traditionalism, we have our own traditions; it is not the question of— Therefore he is completely incorrect, Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! That is certainly not a point of order. I do not know what you are standing up and saying that the hon. Member does not know what is African Socialism. That is quite irrelevant to this. If you want to stand on a point of order it must be a point of order. I cannot understand what point of order is involved in that. Quite fictitious, do not do it again.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is in this spirit, Mr. Speaker, that we are doing this. We are not killing the women, the children will be taken care of until this new Bill is passed. Therefore the question of the fear that the children will not be catered for now or that their mothers will not be looked after is completely untrue and we are doing this in the interest of our Africans. Even if there is any blame at all it is the women to blame.

Now, as far as the representation of women in this House, I support. They will have to campaign, just as anybody else, to come to this National Assembly. For those who are purporting to be speaking for the women here, must realize that we who are elected are also speaking for the women. If I am not speaking for women, then I do not know whom I am speaking for. Therefore, anybody standing up and purporting to be speaking for women is not really telling us anything new because we represent women also. We were not elected by men only; we represent both men and women. Those who stand up and say "Oh, women have been turned down. There are no women here". But they are represented here. The children of those women are the same children of men. That is all. Jesus himself—I repeat it, Mr. Deputy Speaker—is never, in the Bible, quoted as the son of woman. He is quoted as having said that he was Jesus the Son of Man, not woman. Therefore, those who stand up and say that children must have mothers—These women have been owning the children, and this they have done against the laws of the land, that is against African tradition, and also against the Commandments of God because God says that He is the Father who is in charge of any family. Therefore, the hon. Gentlemen who stand up and tell us fairy stories about women must be careful because we also know about women and, perhaps, much better than they do. When we speak in this House we speak for them and are interested that they should get married. This idea discourages them from demanding children and also from refusing to get married because women think that they can make more money by not being married because of the Affiliation Act.

Any Member who supports that women should own children because they are women has something wrong with him, but if not wrong with him, then he has been induced to do so. I do not want to impute improper motives, Mr. Deputy Speaker. There must be something wrong in his head, and they are, therefore—

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, can the hon. Member substantiate that those Members who have spoken against this Bill have been induced by women?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think he withdrew that, I am not quite sure.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you very much Sir. I said I do not want to impute—I withdrew that. I said I do not want to impute improper motives—I do not know why he is so very sensitive. However, the Englishmen say if the hat fits you wear it.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Shikuku, after withdrawing it, you restated it by saying that if the hat fits you wear it—You are, in fact, imputing an improper motive. Please withdraw.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I withdraw, but the hon. Member is very sensitive about it.

Now, Sir, speaking seriously, I know that hon. Members may have different views, but this is something we must commend the Government for. We must commend the Government for having brought this Bill. We must congratulate the Government for having seen further, and I hope, Mr. Deputy Speaker—I repeat again, Mr. Deputy Speaker—I hope that the Attorney-General, in the name of the African Socialism, will bring another law, one of these days, based on the African tradition, and that is about bigamy which is unlawful here. We are not Europeans. The law prohibiting bigamy must also be brought in and repealed. A man should marry as many women as he can, so the question of bigamy is out and I look forward for that amendment to be brought by the Attorney-General so that we may marry as many women as we can.

I beg to support the Bill.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, thank you for this opportunity. I would like to oppose one or two things.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think that the need for the repeal of this Act is a very unfortunate one today because it became a law at a time when, in Kenya, we had different customs; European customs, Asian customs, and many other customs. Today, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we find ourselves in a dilemma with many problems we cannot solve.

[Mr. Mate]

Sir, against the background of the law we are discussing now, we have Meru customs, Kikuyu customs, Luo customs, Abaluhya customs which are slightly different, in that, I understand, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in some tribes, the children born of man and woman belong to their father and in other places they belong to their mother.

It is very true, Mr. Deputy Speaker, today that there are some women—who are fortunate women to have children—who look after them on their own merit. This is happening, Sir. We do have women who have children and they have the means of looking after them and maintaining them. However, this is an interference with the old African customs. The problem here I feel, is that the Attorney-General, with all his wisdom, and with all the advice at his disposal, should, when he brings the new Law of Marriage and Divorce, and so on, into this House, see whether he can incorporate the kind of ideas we have in Kenya today to make sure where the responsibility of looking after the child lies.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I may take the Meru customs as an example: the child always belongs to the father. At the same time, the father has a responsibility to the mother. These things go together, Mr. Deputy Speaker. You cannot separate the two from each other and this is where the problem is, Mr. Speaker—

An hon. Member: Where?

Mr. Mate: In the House here and outside in the Republic we discover that the child and the mother are two separate issues. This is, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because of what I might call career women of today, the career women of today who are able to get jobs because of education, which is a good thing, or because of other reasons, which is also a good thing, they want to remain alone and so become a danger to men. At the same time, the European ideas up to now have made it that the traditional family responsibilities have been forgotten. All I would appeal for, Mr. Deputy Speaker, much as we talk of abolition of the Affiliation Act—which I thought was primarily meant to assist the child and the mother—was that we should meet today, to find a way to delegate responsibility for the welfare of the child and the mother and how the traditional family way can be maintained. However, I think that this is almost impossible because of the changed conditions. I would like to appeal to the Attorney-General to bring into this House, as soon as possible, the new draft law of marriage and divorce, so that we can find a way of tidying up this situation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we know that people in this country, people of European ideas, European origin—because of people of, say, Asian origin,

Arab origin, and any other origins—are we going to stick on this, with all the different laws and ignoring the deep roots of African traditions and customary law and think that and repeal of the Affiliation Act solves every question and every problem? Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that we are leaving a very big gap. I feel we are leaving a big gap at this particular stage and it is time the Attorney-General changed this and the House commends him to bring another new law to touch up the situation since we are going to be faced with this problem—much as we may like not to face it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am only standing here to appeal to the Attorney-General to fill the gap as soon as possible so that we can have substitutes to make sure that child welfare bodies, like Dr. Barnardo's Home, or the Child Welfare Society of Kenya, or any other body that cares for destitutes, even children, will not be guided by cases where the father could have supported the child without all this hurly burly of saying, "I do not know whose child this is". I would appeal to him to separate the two issues and bring the new law as soon as possible because I do feel that we are leaving an unnecessary gap in our society and we are going to trust these problems to the welfare societies which cannot cope with them.

With these remarks, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the basic worry here is section 3 of the Bill which is being repealed, where it is very clearly stated that on the commencement of this Act, whatever Affiliation Orders were in force will lapse. Hon. Members may say, "Good idea", but, basically, the children have been benefiting. There are unscrupulous mothers no doubt, but there are, definitely, some genuine, hard cases which have been assisted. Therefore, it would only be fair that those children who are getting some benefit from these Affiliation Orders should get something in place of this as soon as possible.

Since the assent to all Bills lies at the discretion of the President, if the Attorney-General could hurry up and draw a new document and shelve the assent to this Bill for some time, until the other document comes before the House, that will be good.

Here, Sir, I only wish the Attorney-General would have the interest of the children in mind so that—The hon. Member there says that the Attorney-General has no children. I think the Attorney-General, being the Chairman of Dr. Barnardo's Home, has more children under his care than the hon. Member for Busia has.

With these few remarks, Sir, I pray that the Attorney-General does something for the children who are in genuine need of this help.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I rise to support the Third Reading of this Bill very strongly. Unfortunately, Sir, I did not get a chance to speak on the Second Reading of the Bill, nor did I get a chance to speak during the wranglings. Here, then, is an opportunity for me to air my views as well.

Now, Sir, the law, I think, has been very loose as far as women are concerned. I want to advise the Attorney-General that when he brings a Bill to this House to take the place of the Bill that we are now repealing, he should make it a bit tighter on the side of women; he should make it tight so that women can be forced to be closing doors of their houses and not leaving them as if they were toilets.

Of course, some hon. Members who have spoken have put the whole blame on the man; but they forget that we have in this country a law which is against rape, and very few women have produced children as a result of rape. It has been a union of consent between the two parties, and it is no use placing the blame on the man and leaving the woman to go scot free. I would like the Attorney-General to introduce a Bill in this House which will also— Some hon. Members are asking me who approaches the other. I would tell them that at the present moment if you go to Ofafa Maringo, Ofafa Jericho, Ofafa Jerusalem, Eastleigh, Woodley, all over the place, you find women having their own houses. This is where the whole trouble starts. In fact, if it is a question of approaching—I would say they attract men. You see, they have introduced a sort of a way of attracting, and it is this attraction that brings about the danger. It is not a question of a man approaching a woman all the time; it is natural that when you them well done up with jogoo, a little kimbo, and ginger on top of that, which change their colour, you get attracted. This is how they attract the man. They should also be regarded as guilty in this respect.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, this question has been fully discussed and, therefore, would I be in order to move that the Mover be now called on to reply?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think that is quite fair, but I also think we will let Mr. Ochwada finish.

However, I do hope it is only another two or three minutes, Mr. Ochwada.

Mr. Ochwada: Sir, another point is this. When other hon. Members spoke in this House, they intended to imply that anything African is terrible, and everything foreign is excellent—wonderful. This is quite wrong. We are in an African country and we are Africans. This is where we belong and anyone who wants to live with us here must conform to our traditions. I do not, therefore, see why we should copy everything foreign. If foreigners have accepted to live here, they should conform to our customary laws. I am sure that most of the Members here, although they do not know anything about customary laws—I am sure those who have been shouting against the repeal of this Bill have not taken the trouble of looking into our customary laws—will find there is very little difference between a given tribe's customary laws and another tribe's customary laws. They are more or less the same. It is only a question of trying to put them into black and white and you will find that they can work throughout the country.

It was hinted here by an hon. Member that if we took, for example, the Abaluhya or the Kikuyu customary law, it would fit the other tribes very well. I have been reading the Marriage and Divorce proposed recommendation and I am surprised, Sir, that in that report anything African is terrible, everything foreign is excellent. These are the things which tend to mislead us. We get misled by foreigners who sit on our committees to look into our own affairs. In future we should make sure that on all important committees we have our own people being appointed chairmen of such committees because this will help us. Even in the drafting of our Bills we should have our own people to look into the Bills. Let the Attorney-General send his men out into the countryside to try and do a bit of research so that whatever is included in the laws should be African in outlook and in accordance with the African customs rather than having to introduce everything foreign into our laws. We are now an independent African state and we have to show our own way of life. We are working in accordance with Sessional Paper No. 10, our economic development is based on that, so is our social development, and even our political aspirations are also based on that, on African Socialism. If we are going to make this a success, we have to introduce everything African. I do not see any reason why people should be afraid and say, "Oh, if this law is repealed, the children who are being taken care of by the Affiliation Orders are going to suffer. Do they not have fathers? In fact, most of these children who have been covered by Affiliation Orders have been known to be the sons and daughters of So-and-so who has been paying the affiliation. If there are some hon. Members who have been paying secretly and are afraid of it being known that they have been paying affiliation secretly, it is their own shauri because they should not have done this secretly. They are now going to be exposed. This is the time that we should make everything clear.

Sir, there will be no child who will suffer as a result of the repeal of this Bill, to my own way of thinking. Even if the Attorney-General brings another Bill, or he does not bring another Bill, the children that have been getting benefits from Affiliation Orders should be given back to their fathers so that their fathers can take care of them. Let the mothers be made to understand that the children belong to the fathers, and if they bear any more children, those children will be given to their fathers.

The Minister for Power and Communications

(Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Sir, can the hon. Member speaking declare his interest?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order!

Yes. I think, Mr. Ochwada, you should, in fact, declare your interest if you have one. Otherwise you would be speaking— According to Standing Orders, if you have an interest you must declare it; it is compulsory to do so.

Mr. Ochwada: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not know what interest the hon. Mr. Nyamweya is asking me to declare because I am not affiliated. I have eight children, all of whom are legitimate and not illegitimate. I am paying affiliation to nobody.

An hon. Member: Are you sure?

Mr. Ochwada: I do not know what the Attorney-General is asking.

This is where we go wrong. They introduce so many foreign languages, such as “out of wedlock”. What exactly is wedlock in Kikuyu language? What is wedlock in Gusii language? We do not have such a word in Baluhya language; it does not exist. It does not exist in our vocabulary. This question of introducing some foreign vocabulary into our vocabulary is going to mislead us and mislead us forever. We must be Africans and remain Africans, we do not want to be semi-Africans or sub-Africans. We are no projection of Britain or even America. We are Africans and we will remain in Africa with our customary laws. My children are my children and they are going to remain my children, unless God comes from heaven and tells me that they are not my children. He will have to prove that they are not my children because I did not have union with that woman. As far as I am concerned, according to African custom the children are the man's children, not the woman's children. If she wants to go elsewhere and get some more they will remain where she goes.

What I wanted to emphasize, Sir, and what I wanted to draw the attention of the Attorney-General to, is that if we must introduce another Bill into this House it must be African, we do not want it to be foreign as most of the laws which have been introduced in this House have been. It must show African outlook, African custom and African tradition, and it must also have some element which will restrict the women in their present free movement. They must also be curbed. We do not want women to go blaming the men for their own faults—

Mr. Mate: For their own waywardness.

Mr. Ochwada: —for their own weaknesses. There is no question of saying, “Oh, because the man approaches the woman, then man is always at fault”. If I approach a woman and the woman does not want me, we will never have a union, Sir.

I beg to support the Third Reading of this Bill.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I will propose the question of the closure as was moved by Mr. Kariuki a few minutes ago.

(Question, that the Mover be called on to reply, put and agreed to)

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I can summarize what I would like to say in a few words, namely, that I think from today our women should beware. If one wants to use poetical language, then one can say that, today, as far as the women who are touched by this legislation are concerned, this is their swan songs. This is a big warning to our girls, particularly the unmarried girls, that they should be careful. That is the only appeal that I can make to them. I am sure that if our women are careful, then there will be no need for all these difficulties that have been mentioned during this debate.

All that the woman will have to say is, “I am not going with you until you take me to the altar.” If during 1969 and the following years women can use and carry this motto. “No, unless you take me to the altar”, I am sure there will be no problem.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was accordingly read the Third Time and passed)

BILLS

Second Reading

THE ENGINEERS REGISTRATION BILL

(The Minister for Works on 12th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 12th June 1969)

Mr. Omar: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a few words about this Bill. In my opinion this Bill has been long overdue. It is overdue because I feel that it should have been introduced at the time when, or before the work permits were introduced.

I have seen that people working in garages, non-citizens working in garages, claim to be engineers when in actual fact they are only mechanics. They have described themselves as engineers because they knew that the engineers were exempted from the work permits. That is why they labelled themselves as engineers, in order that they could work in garages as engineers and not be required to have work permits. This is something agreed to between such non-citizens and their employers. That is why I said that this Bill is long overdue. It should have been introduced before the work permits came into effect.

I think, however, that now, the Minister concerned, should, after this Bill has been passed, take the trouble to send circulars to all the garages and motor dealers to ask them to submit the names of those people who claim to be engineers in their respective industries. As is laid down in the Bill they must also produce certificates from recognized institutions to prove that they are engineers, as required under the present Bill. When the Minister does that, I am sure that many motor-car dealers and garages will not be able to produce certificates for their mechanics and, in this way, employment opportunities will be made available to Kenya citizens. Today, we have a number of Kenya citizens who are mechanics, others are electrical engineers, but they cannot get jobs because such jobs have already been filled by non-citizens who claim to be engineers, when in actual fact they have merely learnt the work of mechanics or engineers through experience. They do not have certificates from recognized institutes of engineers. Therefore, if the Minister will take the trouble to find out about those people who are working in garages and in motor industries, and see whether they are engineers or not, I am sure he will find that many of them are not real engineers. They will probably have to apply for work permits—which they will not get because we have many mechanics, and so on, who are skilled but cannot find jobs because non-citizens have taken all these jobs.

I support this Bill, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in the spirit that once it has been introduced, the Minister will take the trouble to find out whether these people, non-citizens, who are working in different garages are really engineers or not.

This is not only the case of engineers in garages, but also in the building industry. There are many people who claim to be engineers, when in actual fact they are mere masons.

In the Bill, it says it is the East African Institute of Engineers which will determine whether one has a certificate from a recognized institution. However, I would like the Minister to tell us what is going to happen in regard to some engineering institutions, especially in India. I understand that the standard of engineering in the institutions in India is lower than that of the western countries. Although their standards are lower, sometimes their services are suitable and demanded in this country. We would like the Minister to tell us whether those people who qualified as radio engineers, building engineers or mechanical engineers, in India, will be recognized or not, especially those who qualified after India attained its independence.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Cheruiyot: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not have very much to contribute on this Bill, since a good number of Members have already spoken on it. However, Sir, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the Minister for at last coming round to recognizing the importance of registering engineers. As we know, members of all other professions which are functioning in Kenya have to register. For example, doctors, lawyers, and so on, have to register before they are allowed to earn their living in that manner. However, I do not know—I am no lawyer—but I have gone through this Bill to see whether we are not actually enacting a law for a voluntary organization. Looking all the way through, I have not seen a clause which specifies clearly that under no circumstances will anybody be allowed to earn his living as an engineer if he is not registered. I do not know, maybe it is hidden somewhere, but I am sure the hon. Minister, when answering, will inform the House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when this board is set up, I hope it will not be used as a means of eliminating rivals. This profession is very tricky, and to date Africans have found it very difficult to practise as engineers. This profession in most cases requires a very large amount of capital before a person can do anything, and although the Government has tried hard in one way or another, there have been loopholes whereby young engineers—African engineers—have been frustrated. In the first place, after graduation, they have not been able to get the chance to undergo proper training which a person should have before he is allowed to practise. In most cases, this has been because this industry has always been in the hands of foreigners. I am not saying that the Government has done nothing at all; they have tried hard: but they have not actually gone the whole way in trying to see that our engineers get their due rights in this case.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we realize in this Bill that for an engineer to practise, he has to undergo a test and become registered. However, I would like to suggest to the Minister that there should be provision for an intermediate period, a specified period, let us say, two years, where a young engineer, a graduate engineer, coming directly out of school should be licensed as a learner or a graduate engineer. In just the same way, you have an "L" plate for a few months before you go for a test, and I think it is very necessary for engineers, when they leave college, to be registered somehow in anticipation of the examination of the board. I think this is very important, because if it is set out properly, and all the people practising engineering would co-operate with the Government, that would be a very good period in which to polish and create good engineering. I would suggest again, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because I know it can be done, that the Government should use their influence to pressure the existing firms—whether they are Government or private—to participate in a training scheme of some sort. This could be arranged, if the Government asked these firms to do it. I know of at least one firm which is doing it now, and in fact I think I would be very unfair if I did not congratulate them for the efforts they are making. This is the East African Consultant Engineers. They are doing a very good job of training young engineers, and I am sure if the Government would pressure other companies, such as the East African Power and Lighting, and all other companies which deal with engineering, they would agree to train these engineers. This period of two years would assist the engineer and avail him of experience of any of the possibilities which would be likely to arise during his lifetime as a professional engineer. If an organization was set up by the Government, and charged with responsibility of establishing the guide-lines and standards for these companies which are going to train the engineers, it would in the end produce a very good system which I am sure would serve Kenya best.

We know, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that at this period in Kenya we are a young country, we are far behind other countries, and we have to go as fast as we can in order to catch up with other people. Engineers play a very important role because whatever you consider, no development will progress without the assistance of an engineer, be it a hospital, a firm, whatever it is. There is not one which does not require an engineer. Therefore, I feel the Government, or the Minister, should take in my suggestion, and have a go at it, because I am sure these firms would be very willing to help such people, and maybe train them, if the Government pressed them a little.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, one other thing I would like to say is that once these engineers are registered, the Government should protect them, or their title and their functions. There are so many things which could happen if we did not take due care. We take all the precautions as far as doctors are concerned because it would be fatal if an unlicensed doctor were allowed to practise on a patient, but we are totally blind to the fact that allowing unlicensed or incapable person to practise as an engineer, you are endangering more than one life.

We take an example of a building, however small it may be. It could easily kill several people if it was not done properly. Take a bridge, it can easily kill or damage a good number of people, if it was not done properly. I think we are blind to this fact, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because we are allowing, or we have been allowing, people who are not actually engineers to call themselves engineers and to act as engineers. Therefore, I support one hon. Member who said that this is long overdue, and add on top of it that it should be stricter than that one of doctors because, as I have just said, it is not a matter of endangering only one life, it is a matter of endangering more than one life.

As you go down River Road, or whatever other streets we have in the town, immediately you see automobile engineer, you think that you have come to engineers who will answer your problems as far as your automobile is concerned. However, really, when you go in, you find that it is just a mechanic who is trying to make a living and he would not tell you that he does not know what is wrong with your vehicle. He would not admit that he would just tell you: "All right, you leave your vehicle here, come at a half past five and you will find it ready". He will fiddle around with it, trying his best to put this and that together and in the end you may lose the vehicle or, by luck, he might just hit on something that will make the vehicle go.

Now, you can see the danger, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if such a vehicle is allowed to go, it might have been impaired to an extent that it becomes unroadworthy, or very dangerous, without the knowledge of that person because he is not actually an automobile engineer; he just happens to be a mechanic who calls himself an automobile engineer. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the public should be protected against people of this kind. All these self-styled engineers should be struck-off completely and disallowed from using such a high-sounding name that is not worthy of themselves.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, several Members have talked about recognition of degrees from outside. Personally, I think, since we have accepted the fact that the University of East Africa should be the yard-stick, I am of the opinion that we should leave that to the university. Surely, it is very easy for them to know which university should be recognized. If it is America or India or anywhere, they are the people who are in a much better position to know which university should be registered and which one should not be registered.

That is not actually a very big problem and I think it is easy to leave it, it is straightforward and we might just as well leave it for the University of East Africa to tell us which degrees they will recognize and which ones they will not.

In the past, I am afraid, Mr. Deputy Speaker, things like these have been misused, and just because you do not like the word "Russia", or because you hate Communism, you say that a degree from Russia is no good, and then after a few days you hear that Russians have sent up a Sputnik so how could they have done this if their standards were so low? In different countries we have universities of varying standards and our university should and is capable of telling us which are the universities we should recognize.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Once again, Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Minister or before I go to that one, I would like to congratulate the Ministry of Education for seeing that science should be stressed in our country. This is a scientific world and whatever we do now has to be done scientifically; even family planning, nowadays, is being done scientifically. Therefore, you can see that the world is becoming so scientific that before you do anything, you have to apply science. Well, I think the Ministry of Education deserves congratulation in that. Science is actually our language, the language of engineers, and if we have many people who can speak that language, then chances are we will have more young men joining us in the engineering profession.

For a long time engineering has been left as a sacred type of profession and not very many Africans have gone into it; only a few did try; and the few that are left practising now have gone through all sorts of frustrations because of some selfish people who had the money but did not want an African to become an engineer. However, since the Government is now in our hands, we should pay a little more attention to our young engineers and realize that they have problems, and in their case it is very difficult to establish their professions without a lot of funds.

At this juncture, Mr. Speaker, I would like to urge the engineers, realizing now that, at least, the Ministry is turning round to recognizing their existence, that they do not spare any minute but work and use their imaginations. In most cases we have been only copying, but I think it is time we, the engineers, do some original thinking, and in most cases use our local materials as far as possible, because by so doing we can save a lot of foreign exchange. It would be a good idea for us to try and use what we have here, as much as possible, without importing anything because the engineer actually determines how much we are going to spend on a project and we have so many projects. If we could save, in all these projects, I am sure we could be saving a lot of foreign exchange.

Mr. Speaker, as I was just going to say, I did not have much to say on this. All I would like to say is that we realize this is a young nation, we realize that we need to build it and we need to go fast; and we also realize that we should not lower our standards under any circumstances. I would ask the Minister to go a little bit further and make sure this Bill is a success by pointing out clearly that under no circumstances should anybody be allowed to practice, unless he is registered. The qualifications that are going to be used as guide-lines should be looked into very carefully and the board should be selected very carefully to make sure that we are not going to bring about a stumbling block that can be used to stop other engineers from coming into being, because we already have enough stumbling blocks; as I said before, such as finance, etc.

Before I sit down, Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Minister again for thinking of this, and ask him to keep in mind the few suggestions that I have given him.

With these few remarks, Sir, I support.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I have very little to say on this Bill and, on the whole, it is welcome. I would like to draw your attention to page 45, clause 4, under the heading of Limitation of Liability of Members:—

“No member of the board shall be personally liable to any act or default of the board done or omitted in good faith in the course of carrying out the responsibilities and functions of, or exercising the powers conferred upon the board.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, this is a normal clause, but I have one question to pose here. Such clauses apply to every type of board which is established, but there is one trouble. This is something for which the board could be held responsible. Let us say that they have approved and registered a given engineer and he is in charge of the construction of a certain road from point X to point B, and then something goes wrong—yet they are not going to be held responsible for having passed this type of man. I do not see anywhere where this man—I have read the Bill—will be held responsible for whatever he has done. For example, the construction of the road from Londiani to Kericho: somebody must have misused his knowledge, or probably he did it using poor materials so that he could make a hell of a lot of money, only to find that the road is of no use. Whom should we hold responsible for this? Is it the engineer?

An hon. Member: It is the Minister.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I do not agree that it should be the Minister because the Minister knows nothing about engineering, if I may so submit. He is a politician and merely because he is in charge of the Ministry of Works does not mean that he is an engineer at all. I think the Board should be held responsible for having passed this type of man, or that particular person should be sued for messing up that road, because money has been spent on that and I do not know who is going to pay for it. Even if it is the fault of the Ministry, say, through violation of their agreement with the United Nations Organization on the type of vehicles which should be passing on that road, and so forth, who is actually going to be blamed? I think that this board should be responsible enough to register people with the proper qualifications and, above all, be liable to be sued when that particular individual, having gone through this board, is also connected. They should not give him that type of protection to a person who is so bure.

Mr. Speaker, I know that we have very few engineers, and it is up to the Minister, himself, to get as many students as possible to study engineering so that they can come and help us here. As far as the board, itself, Mr. Speaker, is concerned, I see in the Schedule that it shall be made up as follows:—

“The board shall consist of seven members who shall be persons eligible for registration under this Act and, where practicable, resident in Kenya.”

Mr. Speaker, these words “where practicable”, show that there is a loophole for the Minister to import as many as he likes on this board. This is where we stand the risk of having many people imported from one direction and being facilitated to formulate a policy to suit themselves and thereby make sure that they bar people from other parts of the world from coming here. I agree that we are an independent nation, a sovereign nation, and we should not confine ourselves to west or east or central; we should get everybody who is an engineer from any corner of the world. There has been a bad practice in that past, Mr. Speaker, and we have had some problems in the Central Selection Board. We get scholarships from all over the world, but when we send these students to Russia—I am a member of the Central Selection Board—Bulgaria or any other part (we are given these scholarships after they have been approved by the Government and we give them to our boys and girls who then go to those countries), and after their qualification they just come here and start wandering about because somebody on the board does not believe in the east, he believes in the west. This is wrong. We have said this, it has been repeated in this House, and I think it is time the Minister woke up and did something about this sort of discrimination. There is no point in the Member for Butere and other Members who are on the Central Selection Board wasting his time interviewing students who want to go to the east while when they come back they remain unemployed. This is stupid because we spend money on the students and the other governments spend money on the students, and yet when they come here they do not get a job. We say that we are short of manpower—that is true but we should know that this is because we are still looking for somebody from the United States, somebody from Britain, or somebody from Canada. This is wrong. What we want is development but development cannot be achieved if some of the people coming from developed countries sit here on this board and decide our future, thereby imposing their own friends, their own brothers, their own kith and kin—some from Rhodesia—to come here and work in this country when our own sons and daughters are lingering around without a job. We do not have to repeat that and I hope this will be the last time.

[Mr. Shikuku]

Now, Sir, on the same Schedule I am drawing your attention to page 54, under the heading "Vacancies":

"The validity of any proceedings of the board shall not be affected by any vacancy among the membership, or by any defect in the appointment of a member."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very interesting because this is a board of seven members: four persons appointed by the Minister and three persons appointed by the East African Institution of Engineers. If this membership does not mean anything, suppose five of those fellows never turn up, then the validity of this will not be affected. I am not a lawyer, but I think the Minister should explain. It says that: "The validity of any proceedings of the board shall not be affected by any vacancy . . ." Mr. Speaker, he should explain that when he stands up, but as I read it here I know there is a quorum, but in this place it speaks about the validity of any proceedings or decisions taken. The Minister is not a lawyer, he is just like the Member for Butere; the Member for Butere is a bush lawyer.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is on page 49, clause 15, under Power to Suspend Registration, etc.:—

"If a registered engineer is convicted of an offence under this Act, or is, after due inquiry held by the board, found to have been guilty of an act or omission amounting to improper or disgraceful conduct in a professional respect, the board may—

- (a) caution or censure such registered engineer;
- (b) direct that, during such period as the board may specify, his registration shall not have effect."

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have had experience in the past—even the late Argwings-Kodhek—was struck off the list of lawyers, and because the members of that Bar were Queen's Counsel, and goodness knows what were there—what is the Queen's interest in this country?—they did not pay any attention and they did not care a hoot what happened to the late Argwings-Kodhek. It was a question of them meeting and saying, "Bill, look, this guy is no good and I think we should get him off." and so he was put off.

The question I am posing here to the Minister is how long will this suspension last? Some of the people on the Board may not like a certain engineer, probably because he is too bright, and they fear that he is doing very well, and so they suspend him for a small mistake and they suspend him for such a long time that the poor man gets completely out of pocket and he cannot support his family, he cannot support himself, he looks a complete disgrace, and probably starts drinking too much to try and get rid of his worries. I want to know the maximum period for which this Board can suspend somebody. There should be a period, perhaps one week or two weeks, or one month; a decision must be taken. It should be specified why the Board is given such wide powers. This being a small Board where friends can gang up and cause a lot of havoc. I think an amendment to this effect would be very welcome and I do not think the Minister will object to this at all. The time must be specified, during which if somebody is suspended then a decision must be reached. I see the Minister is shaking his head, but this is something which I feel very strongly about. The period must be specified, that a person is suspended for so long and during which time a decision will be reached, but it should not be indefinitely or as the Board may feel. I think this is wrong because if he has made any mistake, then he should be brought to justice and it should then be finished with, rather than let him hang around suffering, and with his family suffering, and so on.

Now, Sir, having said that I am sure we will have to amend it and specify the time in order to safeguard the interests of our people, and also the interests of the few people of high learning of this country, so that they do not fall prey to machinations by some people in this country who are enjoying the freedom of this country after having blocked it for some time, and they can still block it through such bodies as this. We must not allow this at all.

As far as the qualifications are concerned under section 11 this has been touched on, but personally, Mr. Speaker, I feel that if you go to Greece and study engineering, and study it in Greek, or if you go to Britain and study it in English, or America and study it in English, or go to Russia and study it in Russian, an engineer is an engineer. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Gachamba, who is making Kenya I—I am not quite sure what his qualifications are or to which institution of high learning he went—but if he has gone to any institution of high learning and he has any certificates to the effect that he attended such a place, and showing the period he was there, then he should be given his right place. If that is not there, Mr. Speaker, and one calls himself an engineer, then it is wrong.

[Mr. Shikuku]

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, is that it goes on and says:—

“(a) The members of the board shall be—

(a) four persons appointed by the Minister;

(b) three persons appointed by the East African Institution of Engineers.”

Mr. Speaker, Sir, here it does not state what type of persons these three will be; will they be, by profession, engineers, or will they be just friends of the Minister, or some people who have come along, as friends of some Government officials, and asked to be appointed on this board? We would like to know what type of qualifications these people will have. I agree, Mr. Speaker, that to be on the Board of Engineers you must have some idea about engineering. However, at the same time, Mr. Speaker, although I am not an engineer, I am legislating a law here affecting the engineers. How is it that a Member of the National Assembly cannot be a member of this board? When they talk on technical matters, he would leave them alone, but when they talk on the policy, surely one can decide a policy without being an engineer. We are deciding the policy here without being engineers and we are passing the law without being engineers. Therefore, I do not think that it should be 100 per cent restricted to the professionals; latitude must be there, whereby we get some people on the board who are not engineers and who are there to advise on policy matters. The engineers on the board should only decide on technical matters, particularly when it comes to the qualifications and so forth. When it comes to the policy, these three people, in my opinion—since it is not stipulated what type of fellows these should be—I would suggest very strongly to the Minister, they should be people with high integrity, people who are impartial and cannot be swayed by east or west, people who call a spade a spade and not a big spoon. These are the types of people who should be on this board, but if the Minister is going to choose some other fellows who are just going there to dominate the board and thereby get their brothers in there to get a job, I think it is entirely wrong.

Mr. Speaker, as far as the East African Institution of Engineers is concerned, I do not know who the members of this board are and I do not know what type of qualifications are required before one can qualify to be a member of this East African Institution of Engineers—but I am sure that by now they must all be expatriates. I hope the hon. Cheruiyot is one of them; and if he is, I will be very much obliged, but there should be somebody like Cheruiyot who is also an engineer.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba):
He is not.

Mr. Shikuku: I am told he is not and so I think he should be appointed forthwith to guard against this outside influence in this board of ours. I think that since he is an engineer, Mr. Speaker, Cheruiyot should be appointed straight-away to this board. If the qualification is that they should be engineers, Cheruiyot is an engineer; I am not and I do not think I will ever be anyway. Therefore, we should accept that we have a political figure and somebody with interest, and if it is a question of qualifications, I think it is only fair that we have our people to represent us on this board so that we safeguard ourselves against outside interest and domination.

We have had the same thing in our universities here, and other institutions of high learning, because the policy of running the whole thing is almost entirely in the hands of the expatriates. As much as I realize the fact that we have very few personnel to man those positions now being held by expatriates, I believe that some of our people who are there should be able to be promoted or be sent to represent us on this board so that we do not have a foreigner—although he may have come to teach us and for which we are grateful—deciding the policy of this country. We should have people who should go and decide the policy of this country, and that expatriate should follow up that policy. If we leave them there, we will find that they will make the conditions so difficult that to get our chaps qualified and enabled to come and help us will be so difficult because they will twist and make restrictive measures in order to make things very difficult for our students to qualify, and then they run away before the students are qualified. For example, in veterinary, I have been told that the students have been asked, “How many of you have qualified?” and the students answer that there are 17, 12 or something, and then they say, “Oh, well, you still have a long way to go”. These people want to stay here indefinitely. So there must be somebody to make the policy, and to tell these people who teach that they must get these boys through with no maneno about it.

Therefore, I feel that this board is very important—but if we do not watch out we will find that it will draw policies that will hinder and frustrate our own students in order to enable these expatriate fellows to stay here. That is something we must not allow at all. I hope that the Minister, being an elected person like myself, will not lose sight of that. If he is not careful, he will go in for the high jump, one of these days, because next year we are all going before our bosses and we will have to explain everything before we are allowed to come back here.

[Mr. Shikuku]

What I am confining myself to is the qualifications. Anybody going anywhere, to a high institution, not a secondary school—It is no good, somebody going to the Polytechnic here, and then when he comes out he says he has been there and he is now an engineer. This is nonsense, Mr. Speaker. The Polytechnic is not a high institution of learning. If he graduates in a university in India, in Moscow, or in Bulgaria, then, when he comes back and goes to the University College in Nairobi, or Makerere, or Dar es Salaam, his qualifications must be recognized. It is not necessary for him to come from Britain.

An interesting thing is this, Mr. Speaker, I understand that qualifications of some of our students who went to the University College, Dar es Salaam, to study law are not being recognized here. This is serious. I met three of them who wanted to see me about it. They told me they had spent their time and money there, and my money has been paid to educate those people, and when they came back here they cannot find any employment. I know one has been taken on by a company in Dar es Salaam. Mr. Speaker, we say we have no lawyers to Africanize posts and so on. On the one side we say they are from Dar es Salaam and they cannot be accepted here. What nonsense is this? I hope the same thing will not apply to engineers here. Of course, this is a hope and we are only hoping against hope. How long are people going to hope against hope because of failures of our own Government?

I think it is very, very wrong, Mr. Speaker, to have things as they are: that if you are from Britain, then everything is all right. This is a clear manifestation, Mr. Speaker, of our inferiority complex. Anything the British say is good. It was believed during those days, Mr. Speaker, that the mzungu was never wrong. As a matter of fact, when some of us were small children, when somebody said "Haki ya nani?", you said, "Haki ya mzungu", because we believed mzungu always spoke the truth. We did not know they were liars. This is the thing which the Ministers in the Government are still believing, that because somebody is qualified in the United Kingdom, then he is a better engineer. Some of these wazungu may have only attended grammar schools. This is wrong. The Minister should take this very seriously. If you go to a grammar school in Britain, and then come back here, you are all right; but if you go to a university in India, or Moscow, then you are not qualified.

The very people who were prejudiced against qualifications from eastern countries are still here, and that is why we are not progressing much enough. Mr. Speaker, I think the time has come when some of our leaders should be brainwashed and they should understand the mzungu is not the only perfect man and we are even more perfect. This should be driven into the heads of the Ministers especially so they understand this. This is suffering from an inferiority complex; that is all it amounts to, Mr. Speaker. It is even affecting their wives. You see them straightening their hair and painting their faces to look like a mzungu. This shows how they are not quite up to date. They still think their wives must paint their faces to look like a mzungu, and that their hair must look like a mzungu's hair. The Minister looks on and his wife is messing herself up. If a person is from Britain, then everything is all right; but if he is from any other place, then everything is no good. We must have a rehabilitation centre for our leaders to realize—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: That is irrelevant.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member for Homa Bay says it is irrelevant. Mr. Speaker, I believe it is relevant and the Member for Homa Bay is one of the fellow Members I am referring to who are still suffering from an inferiority complex.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to talk about straightening hair, applying lipstick, when in fact we are talking about engineers? Is it correct for him to say he is referring to me when I am not a Minister? He has been talking about the Ministers' wives, and I have never been a Minister.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I thought the hon. Member had been relevant so far, but I may have missed a point or two. I think when you interjected he turned on you and said you were one of the people whom he was trying to educate. That is fair enough by way of answer to an interjection.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

What I am emphasizing is that we should not be biased. Sometimes we are accused by the Leader of the Opposition, hon. Rapondi that we lean too much to the West and that we should come to the middle. I think he had a small point there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have made that point at considerable length.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I do my homework and do not just speak off the cuff; I always draw your attention to a clause and then elaborate on it.

[Mr. Shikuku]

I am now coming to the next clause, which is clause 12, on temporary registration, and I quote:—

(1) Where a person satisfies the Board—

- (a) that he is not ordinarily resident in Kenya;
- (b) that he is or intends to be present in Kenya in the capacity of an engineer for the express purpose of carrying out specific work for which he has been engaged; and
- (c) that he is, or immediately before entering Kenya was, in practice as an engineer in such a capacity as to satisfy the Board of his fitness to serve the public as a registered engineer, the Board may, if it thinks fit, direct that such person shall be registered either for a period not exceeding one year or for the duration of any specific work.

Mr. Speaker, under this temporary business, you may have a lot of people coming here and feel there is a big loophole here. They say that “such person shall be registered for a period not exceeding one year or for the duration of any specific work.” Mr. Speaker, somebody may be an engineer, and he come here with the proper qualifications and he would like to have a temporary job, or to be registered as an engineer, he might be a spy at the same time he wants to be here for one year during which time he will have covered whatever he was asked to cover, and at the same time there is a chance he will have as many of these people coming here and this will be going against our Immigration Act. The Immigration Act may be very much violated by this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku, you are getting away from the Bill here. All the restrictions on immigration are not affected by this Bill at all. It is simply a question of whether, assuming he is not a prohibited immigrant, he is to be allowed to operate as an engineer. It is the concern of the Ministry of Home Affairs which you are getting onto now, which is quite a different affair.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I agree with you that it is a different affair; but what I was trying to elaborate on is that if he comes in as an engineer, and he is given temporary registration, and he works under this temporary registration—I am not talking about the prohibited immigrants but I feel that this is a way through which we can have a lot of expatriates coming in.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, what you are talking about is the man who should be prohibited as an immigrant, and that is nothing to do with the Ministry of Works or this Bill.

Mr. Shikuku: Well, Mr. Speaker, I will leave that and come to my last point which concerns the removal of somebody from the list of registered engineers.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say something on the removal of the name of any engineer who is registered here from the Boards Register. I do not want to be discriminative, but I think I am forced by circumstances to say that in view of the that we have so few registered engineers, people with the qualification of an engineer, I think the Board must make sure it is only a very serious, a very terrible mistake, which would necessitate the removal of one of the few engineers who are citizens of this country, particularly the black citizens. This is why I felt the composition of the Board must be made up of people who have the interest of this country at heart, not only by profession, but people who are of high integrity and people who can safeguard against any misuse of powers of this Board so as to get rid of our engineers for any small, trivial mistake they may make and the poor man is struck off from the list.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, I would appeal to those engineers of ours, the few engineers, and the few lawyers we have here, to stick to their profession and be strict with themselves and live within their means so that they do not become a laughing-stock. Mr. Speaker, I am usually very disappointed when I hear of any African who has taken so many years before going through a certain course and then after a few months' practice his name is struck off from the list of his fellow professionals. It is not only absurd on his part, but it is absurd for the the country because he lets us down. Some of them may engage themselves in too much drinking and become useless and cannot make out their right hand from their left and so on. I do not know why this is so.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, our future engineers and any professional people in this country will work with the mind that they must promote the African

[The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Maiti) took the Chair] interest in this country and will live within their means so they do not become embarrassing creatures here, and they do not give the chance to such boards to eliminate them so easily so as to have the expatriates staying in this country for ever and a day. This is the appeal I am making to our professional people here, the lawyers, the engineers, and so on, to be really themselves and to avoid the most dangerous tendency of trying to live beyond one's means. He becomes so big-headed as an engineer and he wants to push his way round and he gets into a lot of debt and people sue him in court and then he starts drinking excessively and he ends up by being struck from the list and this is the end of him. This is a shame on this country, and a shame on the professional people.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, the same thing applies to us here, we hon. Members of this House. We should behave as hon. Members in and outside this House, and we should even be hon. Members in our own houses. This is the example we should set to the young men who are coming here, so that we do not become scandalous to the young men and women who are seeing us in our present position.

With these few remarks, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, let me hope this Bill will be in the interest of the Africans of this country and will not be used as a means to eliminate and discredit our own few professionals in this country.

I beg to support.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker.

In actual fact the hon. Member who has just sat down has been trying to labour a lot on a point which was pointless.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, what the Member should have suggested to the Minister for Works, and I would like the Minister for Works to be very attentive—I am trying to give examples to the hon. Minister and it is high time he listened to ideas and opinions which we are going to give him.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, one of the suggestions I would like to put to the Minister concerns our honoured and very popular engineer—not only an engineer but he has become a manufacturer and an inventor in this country, Sir, and that is Maurice Gachamba. I feel he should be given a place on this list of registered engineers. It is a known fact because it was only two weeks ago when the hon. Assistant Minister for Power accompanied me and other hon. Members to Karatina to see the plane which has been manufactured by Mr. Gachamba, who is an engineer and an inventor. This man, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, has followed the line which was followed by George Stephenson. Mr. George Stephenson, a Briton, was a man who had only very old ideas of inventing and manufacturing the plane of that time. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, he was not of such high calibre as Gachamba whom we have today at Karatina, because he is a genius. We must be told of such people who have given us examples, who are inventors in the second half of the 20th century because they have invented an aeroplane. This man has never gone to any factory where aeroplanes are manufactured as the hon. Mwithaga knows very well for he has gone there.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): On a point of order, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member who is speaking to mislead the House by saying that Mr. Gachamba has invented an aeroplane when he has not, but has borrowed engines from other places?

The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati): I think Mr. Munyi had a bit of difficulty in using the correct word. He said “invent” but I suppose he meant to say “made” or “manufactured” as he had said before.

Mr. Munyi: Your wisdom, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, is like that of Solomon the Great because all that I have said is that Mr. Gachamba, the engineer, has manufactured an aeroplane. It is manufactured as we saw when we went there and, in addition, we have been reading in the newspapers, like Taifa Leo, Daily Nation, East African Standard, Baraza and other newspapers—even the German newspapers. The hon. Assistant Minister, who is representing us in the East African Community also knows, since he has been reading newspapers in Tanzania and Uganda, that praise of Gachamba has gone beyond the frontiers of Kenya and East Africa. It is reported that this man, since he is a manufacturer, should be included in the list and registered as the first aeroplane engineer. This is the man who brought us fame. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, this man was learning in the same institution where George Stephenson learnt. The institution in which George Stephenson, the inventor, was learning, is the same institution that Mr. Gachamba attended; and for the information of the hon. Members, I know that he is a genius. When George Stephenson invented the first plane, he was paid more than £5 million because of the good work he did for the people of Britain. My friend is an engineer, not a bush engineer—Hon. Cheruiyot is an engineer and might have learnt the history of manufacturing, and the history of industrial revolution, and as such he ought to have known that because this is a fact. Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, my suggestion is this—

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, this is the information I want to pass on to the hon. Member so that he can convey it to the other hon. Members who want to know where Gachamba went to train as a manufacturer. The institution is similar to the one in which George Stephenson was trained; it was in a kitchen, where kettles and boilers were used.

Mr. Munyi: It is very true, and I think that is the formula and the reanalysis of manufacturing. If you want to become an engineer, you must learn something about such people. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, in future we shall be learning much about the good work which has been done by Mr. Gachamba. Every time we read, "Germany has gone there" and "America has gone there". Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I would like to suggest to the Minister that people with qualifications, including people who are locally or self-trained, like Maurice Gachamba who has trained himself to become a manufacturer, should have a place. Otherwise, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, by passing this Bill we shall create a barrier, against people who have been trained in countries like China, Germany and Japan and they will not be allowed by the members of the board to register. When you bring a person with a colonial mentality, a colonial-minded person, he will never register anyone from Germany or Japan because he will say that these people speak languages which cannot be understood. What has a language got to do with engineering and advancement? Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, Germany is now going ahead of Britain in engineering and general advancement. In engineering, Japan is ahead of Britain and, therefore, we should not create a barrier against Japan. The Minister should know that I am aware of the fact because, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I have the information. In his Ministry I know an engineer who said, in 1965, that our country would take 15 more years before it can produce an African Engineer-in-Chief. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, is it not the same Minister, the present Minister who appointed our present Engineer-in-Chief? Did it take more than three years? That alone has proved the statement to be completely wrong, and a colonial mentality.

Every time, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I have been telling this House that we can have our own African Deputy Commissioner of Geology, but do we have any today? We are told by the same people who are the members of that board that all Africans are incapable of becoming Commissioner of Geology. This is wrong, and all this is happening. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I know that there is a very great difference. Several times I have visited the Kenya Polytechnic. When you go there you see that if a person comes from, let us say, Germany, Russia or Japan, his certificate and diplomas are misinterpreted. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, when you look at clause 11 (2), you see diplomas and even university degrees. Do you know these people who will be members, especially the man who is going to be responsible on that board? I know the chairman will be a British. He will say that you are from Japan, Russia or Germany, and that is where you had your degree—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, the Member has just alleged that he knows that the man who is going to head this board is a Briton. Could he substantiate, in view of the fact that the Bill does not disclose anybody, and the Minister did not inform the House of any particular personality.

The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati): Mr. Munyi, could you say how you know who will be the chairman of this board.

Mr. Munyi: In any case, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, all that I was trying—

The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati): Order! Would you tell us how you know that or if you do not know, will you withdraw it.

Mr. Munyi: In actual fact Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Minister will tell us but I was just assuming that he might be a Briton. In any case, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, if the Minister gives us an assurance that he will be a Kenyan, an African, I will be happy. We have a good number of engineers, this was just an assumption, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker.

The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati): All right, do continue.

Mr. Munyi: Thank you very much, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir. In actual fact I was assuming. Now I want an assurance from the Minister that the man who is going to head this board, or the members of the board will be Kenyans. It does not matter whether it is Father Christmas who has a minimum knowledge of engineering or another Member of Parliament, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker. It will be quite reasonable because we are proving that we always discuss technical matters, and that does not necessarily mean that we are technicians. This is what I want, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir—a guarantee. We have a few engineers in this country; some have been embarrassed, and some, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, have been put in a position where they cannot turn their heads because the people who are ahead of them are trying to undermine them. Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, we would like all these engineers who have gone underground to come out. The Minister should do something to bring forward these people so that they can take responsible posts in the engineering sector and help in the economic advancement of this country. That is all what we want, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker.

[Mr. Munyi]

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am very happy with countries which are giving us scholarships or bursaries for our young people to go and train in technological and engineering fields. Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, during the colonial period, I know even our Engineer-in-Chief—the Minister is my witness—fought his own way to find education; he ran away to South Africa, and from there he flew and went to India, and later he went to Canada. The then Colonial Government did not want people to study engineering either in Britain or any other country. That is why, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, some of our young people who had a chance of going to Russia, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and any other country, when they came back, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, they were being discriminated against. At present, when they go there and study on coming back their certificates are misinterpreted and they are told to go and see somebody at the University College, Nairobi, who has no knowledge or engineering. When they go there, they are told; “We do not know your certificates”. This is happening.

Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is high time—I know our Minister is a far-sighted man and I know he has done a bit of work in that Ministry and, therefore, we would like to appeal to the Minister that in future, he should be forming a group of advisers drawn from hon. Members. As soon as he does that, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, he will be regarded as one of the most dynamic Ministers we have in our Cabinet; and the sooner he becomes the most dynamic the better for us because the Ministry he is heading is a very important Ministry.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, now to come to another point. I would like also to mention to the Minister that he has given us examples of university college in Kenya, or university college either in Tanzania or in any other country, but, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, all what the Minister should do henceforth, is try not to follow blindly any reports which is given by the expatriates because they can mislead him. When they find that a person, hon. Cheruiyot, hon. Kariuki, or hon. Kassa-Choon is good, or any other person, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, they tell him, “So-and-so, you know Mr. Minister, is not good; he does not like you, and therefore you must disqualify that man. His name must be removed from that list of registered engineers”. This is wrong, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, and therefore, it would be better, in future, if the Minister followed his own conviction. Whatever report he is given by the expatriate officer, for they have one leg in Kenya and the other one in Britain—some have one leg in India, others have one leg in Pakistan. If you follow that man's advice and allow him to deceive you, then he will take your leg to Pakistan or to Britain and you will never know what you are doing and people will laugh at you. When we have expatriate advisers, although we should follow their advice, we should be very firm, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker. The engineering field is a very important field and I very fully agree with my good friend hon. Cheruiyot. We sent him as our Assistant Minister and I think that he has been performing his duties successfully, and we like him because he commented and said that he knows of people who have done very well in other countries, but when they come back they are told that they do not have qualifications of any importance and that they should go and do another examination.

Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, you imagine saying that to a person who has already graduated in a university, asking him to go to another university which is inferior to the university where that particular person was studying, and expect him to get a good report from the man in charge of that university. This will never happen, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir. I know, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, how many times I have gone to the Ministry of Agriculture, I know there was a time, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, when a Government delegation went to foreign countries to recruit people to come and take over responsible posts in engineering, technology and other fields which deal with technical know-how. That delegation, led by the head of the Directorate of Personnel, went to countries like Britain, went to America, went to India, went to Yugoslavia, went to Czechoslovakia, went to Russia, went to Italy and they also went to Germany, and recruited people. These people were told that when they came to Kenya they would start working. Do you know what happened, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir? When some of the students came back, they were told that there was no work because they were trained in Eastern countries. Those who were recruited in Britain, when they came back, were given appointments the very day they arrived back in Kenya; but those who returned from Eastern countries, including Germany and Sweden— You know the Britons or these experts never wanted anyone who was trained either in Sweden or any other country because they considered them inferior and lagging behind other countries in manufacturing and in engineering fields. They told them that they must do another examination. They stayed here and every time they went to the Directorate of Personnel they were told a different story. They went to Water Development Department and they were told to wait, some have been waiting whereas they had been told that they had succeeded. Later, some were told that they must go to University College of Nairobi to do another examination. You imagine, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir—our university college is only a very minor institution and that it is only in 1970 when it will be a full university. When you take a person there, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, Sir, he is disqualified because these people are selfish and they do not want our fellow Africans to take over their positions, even G. G. Kariuki knows this very well. Do you expect a person who has been feasting on honey to leave you some without tasting more honey?

[Mr. Munyi]

Therefore, Mr. Acting Deputy Speaker, I am not repeating but I am telling the truth.

[The Acting Deputy Speaker (Mr. Mati) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Since our good Minister has now agreed to put in a clause so that our great manufacturer, Maurice Gachamba will be recognized, I do not have any quarrel with him any more. But if he is not going to do that, then I am sure the nation will go to the Minister and ask him the reason why he did not register Mr. Gachamba yet he is one of the leading engineers in Kenya.

Now I come to clause 22 which has to do with the function of the Board (a) says:—

“the conduct of the business of the Board and the procedure to be followed by the Board in any inquiry under this Act;”.

All that I am asking the Minister to do is to see to it that at the time of appointing members to this Board he should not only appoint people of his own choice, people who will be recommended by, say, the Permanent Secretary or by other advisers in his Ministry, but he should get people from outside. It does not matter whether they are engineers or they are not. A lawyer can very well work on that Board. Any other hon. Member of this House, Omweri, Theuri can do very well on that Board. Thus the Board will get views and ideas from outside to know what the people think about this. If the Minister does not do this, then he will find that the people who have been appointed are just members who know nothing about our tradition, who know nothing about the problems our country is facing, who know nothing about the good work that is being done by people who are working on the field. People like the Gachamba, as I have said, should be taken note of. Mr. Speaker, the people should go and see his plane. There is a recommendation and this should be taken note of; it is not only the question of reading about this in the newspapers. Every time we are told by the East African Standard what is happening. It is high time that the Minister should take a trip to Karatina and see the work that is being done by that man who is a prominent engineer. It is not good for the Minister to rely on reports in the East African Standard, in the Daily Nation and in the Taifa Leo. The newspapers are doing their work all right, but when the Minister reads this in the papers, he reads something that has caught the attention of the masses in Kenya. The Minister should take a trip to see for himself. Mr. Speaker, I would like it if the Minister can accompany me one day so that he can go to the place and see the good work which is being done by that engineer. Now he is told, “You see, that is not true.”, or “this is happening in this way.”, and he does not know what the true position is. Karatina is not far away; hon. Wariithi comes from Karatina. I am sure we will also say that the Minister is welcome at any time to see the good work that our engineer is doing in Karatina.

Mr. Speaker, we read in history all about Stevenson, but we do not read the history of our people who have become manufacturers, engineers in the real sense of the word. This is the reason why this Bill was brought to the House, so that we can register our own people.

I do not want to labour much on this Bill, Sir, All I want to do now is to give my blessing to this Bill which is very important. We have been waiting for it for a long time. Now that the Bill has come to the House, I am sure it is going to be approved. I want the Minister to take seriously the opinions, ideas and suggestions we have put forward. I do not have anything else to say; and I have no quarrel whatsoever with any other clause in the Bill.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to give my blessing to this Bill on condition that Maurice Gachamba, the African engineer in Kenya, will be recognized and registered.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Bill because the Minister has brought it here in good time.

The only warning I would like to give the Minister is that when he selects the person who, is going to be chairman of this Board, he should take into account that some of our students who come from countries other than western countries have also been very well trained in this direction. This has been a problem to our students because when they come to look for jobs they find themselves in trouble. They are told, "You have not been trained in a country that we know." Sometimes they are told that their degrees are different and cannot even be read by people who make the decision. I think the Minister will take this point very seriously and make sure that all our engineers who are trained in eastern countries will be accepted by the Board and that there will be no further complication. Sir, even today, when America is fighting hard to get to the moon, the Soviet Union is doing the same. Nobody can question the knowledge of this latter country. So, Sir, I am sure the hon. Minister, who is a very able Minister, will do his best to consider these people without bearing any ill feelings towards them.

The other point, Sir, is the point which my friend was talking about during almost the whole of his speech, repeating about Gachamba. What we should do here is to ask the Minister, kindly to take an interest in helping Gachamba in his business. It is a great shame to this nation when such a person like Gachamba is ridiculed by people talking in public about him, while Government does not take any interest in helping this man. This man lives only about a quarter of a mile from the Nairobi-Nyeri road.

He is in the town of Karatina and the Minister should make a point of seeing this gentleman. Recently the Assistant Minister went there. I do not know if he went there with full authority because the newspaper reports were contradictory. The statement issued was reported differently by Taifa Leo and the East African Standard, and we were confused as to whether this Assistant Minister was actually representing the Government or he went there on his own, just to show off his beard in that place. I think it is high time the Minister went there and saw this man for himself because he is a man who is very useful to our nation. Although some people have described him as a bush engineer, the Minister should take no note of that; he should go and find out for himself, whether this man is a bush engineer or a person to be relied upon.

Now I come to the question of local engineers. There is a boy from Nyanza Province who is making his own radio sets. I think this boy, and others like him, should be encouraged by the Minister. If they are not highly trained, they should be sent to courses in order that they can become good engineers. It is no good this Board merely expecting people to come from overseas or from our local university to recruit them to this Board. The Board must take interest in the students who have a little knowledge and want to improve their knowledge of engineering. If the Minister does that, then the Board will be useful to our nation.

Since it is the general feeling of the Members that this Bill is a very useful one, I think we should not waste any more time debating it; we should merely pass it right away.

I beg to support.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also stand to associate myself with my colleagues who have supported the Minister who moved the Bill. The Bill is timely and we should pass it right away.

I would like to say a few words regarding the engineering profession. At present it should be possible for the Minister for Education to plan with the Minister concerned to arrange a syllabus so that engineering education is started in some secondary schools. We want to have some secondary school pupils continuing with this study of engineering to the degree level. In this way it will be possible for us to get most of the material we need locally. There are many young men and women who can be trained for engineering work; these are the people we can train locally. You find often that there is no provision for this in schools and colleges; and so the Minister for Education and the Minister for Works should work out a scheme whereby every year there will be a number of young men taking up the engineering profession from the time they are in secondary school.

I also support other colleagues, including Mr. Munyi and G. G. Kariuki, in appealing to the Minister to help this young man who is very famous. We do not know where he is at present. I know some Ministers have gone to see his work. If some Ministers have gone to see his work, why is it not possible for him to come here so that we can see what he can do. Maybe God can use this man to help him do great work for and in Kenya. Let us use him if possible. If there are any other young men in Kisumu or other places who are interested in taking up studies in special branches of engineering, let us help them.

I would also like the Minister to tell the House, when he replies, what are the activities— According to section 3 of the Bill it says:—

"There is hereby established a board, to be known as the Engineers Registration Board, which shall have responsibility for regulating the activities and conduct of registered engineers. . . ."

These young men who are in schools need to know what these activities are and what the conduct is that is expected of them. I understand these two things will be qualifications for registration.

[Mr. Godia]

Under section 6 of the same Bill, those who practise engineering are supposed to be registered and to be in possession of a certificate to indicate that they are of a certain standard. I would like to know from the Minister where he places the engineers who are trained at Sigalagala, Kabete and other technical schools, whether we have had any product from those places who would form part of these people who are registered.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Godia, is this a convenient moment for you to break off? It is time now for the interruption of business. You can speak again when we resume the debate.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

FREQUENT RAIDS BY TURKANA ON POKOT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will ask a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, first of all, I want to say that I am very grateful for this opportunity to speak. During this short time of, say, ten minutes which I am given I will explain some of things which I feel hurt the people of Pokot.

I want to say, right from the beginning, that the answer which was given by the Assistant Minister was unsatisfactory. The answer, to some extent, was good except that I expected the Assistant Minister to go further than the information he gave the House that day. The question was about the number of cattle taken by the Turkana raiders, and there was something about the establishment of police posts in the district. The answer I was given was that the Government was taking every possible steps to prevent these raids. As to the second part of the answer, it was that two police patrol bases had already been established at Lotongot and Sigor and it was not intended to construct one at Chesegor or Lodwar at this stage. He went further and said that the position was, however, being watched carefully.

Mr. Speaker, I want to refer to part (b) which refers to the number of cattle stolen during 1968; I think I had better explain this now because it will enlighten the House. In 1968, nine Pokot were killed and 1,575 cattle were stolen by the Turkana and Ngoroko. This year, four persons were killed and 1,122 cattle taken away by the Turkana raiders.

What made me raise this matter on adjournment is that the Assistant Minister did not tell the House what steps the Government was taking to recover the animals: 2,697 of them. We were not told either what sort of compensation was going to be given to the families of the 13 people who were killed by the Turkana. We were not told, also, whether the patrol bases at Sigor, which the Assistant Minister mentioned in his reply and Lotongot were permanent ones or just temporary. In my supplementary question, I asked the Assistant Minister whether this was going to be permanent and he said there was no need for this. The Government was watching the situation. This made me feel dissatisfied and that is why I decided to raise the matter on the adjournment so that I could tell the Assistant Minister that the situation in that area was not good at all. The Pokot are demanding that these 2,697 head of cattle should be returned and compensation paid to the families of those who were killed. Let the Government take any possible steps to do something rather than merely say, "We are watching the situation". The situation there is very ugly just now. The Pokot are planning to take revenge, something of that kind, for the simple reason that they cannot sit back and watch things moving in the wrong direction.

This attack took place last year and it is now one-and-a-half years since the Turkana and Ngoroko crossed the border, attacked the Pokot manyattas and took away these head of cattle. The Government has done nothing to recover these animals. I want to hear today from the Assistant Minister what he has to say. He may be in a position to tell us, when replying, what kind of action— Perhaps at that time he was not able to give us more information but today he may be able to give us some more information about the steps his Ministry is taking to recover the stolen animals.

Also, it is surprising because Turkana District is part of our Kenya—it is rather astonishing to see members of one tribe crossing the border and attacking other tribes, when the Government is merely watching the situation. Why can the police not go into this district and show the Turkana people that this is their Government? We are always talking about the efficiency of our police and we do feel that they do a lot of work; they work day and night to see that there is peace in the country. However, you see in this part of the country—I do not know whether it is because it is very remote—why should they be given that opportunity to go to other places to kill people, rob other people's property and get away with things like that? This is the question I am asking.

[Mr. Kassa-Choon]

The other day, Mr. Speaker, when I was asking this question, one hon. Member from that area said that 138 Pokot were killed when they crossed the border and entered Turkana. Sir, there is no logic in that because how can the Pokot cross into Turkana with their animals? It is obvious and you can see from the statistics which the Minister gave me, that it is the Turkana who came into Pokot District and killed a lot of defenceless people because they had rifles and they got away with these animals. Therefore, it is obvious that it is these people on the other side who come and attack the Pokot.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I just want to tell the Minister now that the tension there is very high. I wish to say that when I was in Pokot last week I heard what they have to say and that is that if they cannot be given an assurance from the Government as to what will happen next they will, perhaps, have to take the law into their own hands and cross the border into Turkana and take whatever they can. We must avoid this, Mr. Speaker, and, to avoid this, we must show the Government that things are not good there. Steps must be taken so that the situation is brought under some kind of agreeable solution.

Mr. Speaker, therefore, I did not want to say a lot, except that I want to ask the Assistant Minister that his officers in that district should be taken to task because you cannot hide these things. Where do the raiders hide cattle? Turkana District is a semi-arid area and there are no thick forests; only manyattas. So, how can these animals just disappear like that without being recovered?

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say much. I have just brought this kind of situation to the House to tell the Minister that some kind of remedy should be found so that we stay in peace. We have some Turkana who live in West Pokot and we do not want to kick them out, and we would like this kind of situation to be settled so that we stay together as brothers. There are some Pokot in Turkana but there are very few who live with them.

Mr. Speaker, unless we settle this, I do not think there will be any peace in that part of the country, and that is why I have come to this House to plead with the Assistant Minister, and the Government, that the situation there should be watched very carefully. Also, they should establish more police posts along the border. The police posts, he said the other day, were only temporary; if they are only temporary, those Turkana living on the other side are just watching until they are taken away, and when they pull out they will certainly attack again.

Mr. Speaker, with those few words I beg to move.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say much and I will be short.

Mr. Speaker, I am thanking the hon. Member for having brought this question. This question has given us headaches. I am a Pokot, Mr. Speaker, and as a Pokot when I see my people being killed sometimes I am annoyed. One thing has been said and that is that blood is thicker than water. If blood is thicker than water, Mr. Speaker, when I see my people being killed—when I see Pokot being killed by Turkana—it means that I am annoyed, and that means that all the Pokot are annoyed.

Mr. Speaker, I am very sorry and I wish the Turkana Members were here to hear what I have to tell them. When they come, Mr. Speaker, I wish to ask you, Mr. Speaker, that tomorrow, when the Turkana Members come in here, you will tell them that all the people of Pokot at home are annoyed.

Mr. Speaker, West Pokot, especially West Pokot, has more than 17 tribes there, including Turkana. If Turkana kill Pokot in one end, what will be the reaction? Supposing we in the central part say, "All right, we do not want you Turkana", I am sure, Mr. Speaker, even Areman here, even Ekitella, will find—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): They are your honours' friends, Mr. Lorimo.

Mr. Lorimo: My hon. friends. Supposing we say that we do not want the Turkana to step on to Pokot land, what will the hon. Areman say, what will the hon. Ekitella say? The Pokot people are feeding the Turkana; they come for mahindi and for other things, but supposing we tell them they cannot have them, what will happen? If the Turkana start killing the Pokot now, we shall react, as the hon. Member said. If the Government is not very careful, Mr. Speaker, things will be very bad between the Pokot and the Turkana.

Mr. Speaker, I am warning the Minister for Home Affairs and the Vice-President, that unless he takes steps to settle this, there will be an emergency.

May I ask the Vice-President and the Minister for Home Affairs where the Turkana got these arms? I am asking the Vice-President where the Turkana got these arms to kill the Pokot. These 13 people who were killed, I think it was by shooting with guns. Where were these guns obtained from? Why have the Pokot got no guns? Why does not the Ministry of Home Affairs find out where the Turkana obtain the firearms from? I am a Member of Parliament and if I go to the Ministry of Home Affairs and ask for a firearm, I will not be given one. They will want to know why I want a firearm, so where do the Turkana obtain the firearms from? I understand you have to be registered to own a firearm; I understand they do not know at the Criminal Investigation Department, I understand there are so many Turkana owning firearms, which is nonsense. Why cannot they find out where do the Turkana obtain these firearms?

Mr. Speaker, I am told the people in West Pokot are called Ngoroko, they are Turkana, and when the Government tells us they are Ngoroko, what do they mean by Ngoroko? Why do they come to West Pokot? One day, Mr. Speaker, we had a border meeting between the Turkana and the Karamajong at a place called Murogogoi. The Vice-President will know this place.

..... (Inaudible.)
the Member of Parliament for West Pokot a long time ago, and when we held this meeting we were told by the District Commissioner, Lodwar—I was there personally together with my friend hon. Kassa-Choon—that those Karamajong are not Turkana but Ngoroko are Turkana. What is this Ngoroko. I do not understand what Ngoroko is.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask the Government to find out from where the Turkana obtain their firearms. I know, Mr. Speaker, and I have tried my very best, doing my homework, to find out where they obtain them from. I cannot give the results, otherwise, If I do so, I will be going against some kind of thing. If the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs would like me to tell him then I will do so sometime privately.

The next thing I am asking, Mr. Speaker, is that the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs will— One day I personally asked in this House if there could be a meeting between the Members of Parliament for Turkana, Pokot and for Baringo to be held at a place to be suggested by the Vice-President himself, and I, as a Member for the Pokot, would be there. I am asking the Vice-President now to convene the meeting so that this matter can be solved. Let us hold a meeting of wazee—“wazee” means old men; let them meet together and they can tell these lorimo—lorimo is a young boy—that they are going too far; this is our traditional African way of life, or African way of doing things.

I am asking the Vice-President to convene the meeting which should consist of the Members of Parliament from Baringo, the Members from West Pokot, and also the Members from Turkana to be held at a place somewhere in the middle, and the meeting should also be attended by the wazee from Turkana, from Marakwet, from West Pokot and from somewhere else, so that all of us together sit down and try to sort out our differences.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, that in Uganda now the Pokot there and the Karamajong there have tried to compromise, and settle their differences.

Mr. Speaker, my last point is that when the Government answered the question originally, they said they were taking all possible steps to prevent this. This is nonsense, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, I personally have asked many questions here about an increase in police, of the administrative police, but when will this take place?

Secondly, Mr. Speaker, I have asked something about the tribal raids and raids on cattle, and I was told by the Vice-President that the position was being watched carefully. What do they mean by the position being watched carefully? If they say things are being watched carefully then it is all nonsense. I would like the Minister who is going to answer the question to tell me for how long the position is going to be watched carefully.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to say much, but I will go back to the cattle raids. Mr. Speaker, it is almost—and the Government knows—1,578 head of cattle were stolen by the Turkana. There were 1,122 stolen in 1969. Mr. Speaker, when you see your belongings being stolen, then surely you have to defend yourself? The Pokot are very faithful, they are as faithful as a dog. If the Pokot are as faithful as a dog, Mr. Speaker, and the Government do not do anything, then we will react, and, when we react, Mr. Speaker, then I do not want the Government of Kenya to come and ask me why the Pokot are doing these things.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is always easy to be emotional in this House, and blame the Government for all the dirty things which are being done everywhere and not to make constructive criticism and constructive suggestions.

It is true, Mr. Speaker, that raids by the Turkana on the Pokot tribesmen have caused considerable concern to the police and administration, although they are not so serious, perhaps, as the Member for Pokot, Mr. Kassa-Choon, suggests. Four incidents of attacks by the Turkana on the Pokot have taken place since the beginning of 1968, and the details are as follows.

[The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs]

On the 26th February 1968, a party of Turkana raided a Pokot manyatta near Kongelai. The Turkana killed 19 Pokot tribesmen during the raid, and injured five others. 4,000 head of cattle are also alleged to have been stolen. A major battle between the two tribes was averted by the police and the administration police and the situation was later calmed down by the Deputy Provincial Commissioner who held barazas on the border.

Secondly, on the 18th March 1968, a gang of about 20 Turkana, some armed with rifles, raided a Pokot manyatta east of Kapenguria and stole 500 head of cattle and 80 donkeys. Three Pokot were killed in the raid. Kenya Police and administration police followed the raiders and recovered all the stolen stock.

On the 11th February 1969, a gang of Turkana attacked a Pokot manyatta near Lasaroli village and killed four Pokot men and one woman. Some 700 head of cattle, 500 goats and 150 sheep were also stolen.

On the 13th March 1969, a gang of Turkana carried out a raid in West Pokot near Sigor and killed four Pokot tribesmen, and two Turkana were killed by the Pokot in retaliation during the raid.

In addition to the above, Pokot and Suk tribesmen from East and West Pokot carried out the following raids on the Turkana.

On the 15th April 1968, a party of Pokot armed with spears and bows and arrows attacked a Turkana manyatta 12 miles north of Karpedcto. Two Turkana were killed and two wounded but no stock was stolen.

On the 19th September 1968, south of Murogogi, Suk believed to come from West Pokot, raided a Turkana manyatta and killed three Turkana women, four young boys and one girl aged two months. Two Turkana men were also injured.

On the 7th November 1968, a party of Suk from East Pokot attacked a Turkana manyatta near Kalossia and speared one Turkana youth. In retaliation, the Turkana killed one Suk.

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, they were Suk but they were not Pokot.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You cannot interrupt on a point of order. You can ask for substantiation of a fact if you like.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): It will be seen the Turkana are not always the guilty party—

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since we do not have a tribe called the Suk, could the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs tell us who the Suk are?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, he can answer that.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): He knows, Mr. Speaker, in books, in maps, this name is mentioned. Until these things are cleared the hon. Member should know who they are. When he talks about the problems of the Pokot, he should not be in the position which he is in now.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said before, although it will be seen the Turkana are not always the guilty party, although they generally appear to take the initiative in instigating raids. Of course, they have the advantage that some of them are armed.

I would like, Mr. Speaker, and the hon. Member did ask from where the Turkana obtain their firearms. It is known, if he would only use his common sense, that the Turkana go towards Ethiopia and they raid Ethiopian Merille, and they collect these firearms. The Government, for a number of years, have disarmed the Turkana and from time to time they recover these firearms by arresting the Turkana who possess them. Therefore, when the Government is doing its best the hon. Member comes here and accuses the Government. He should himself talk to the Pokot in his own area and talk to the Members who live on the border. Although he asks me to go and hold barazas, how often can I hold them to make the hon. Members see sense to talk to their constituents?

Another point, Mr. Speaker, I know the area and I would ask the hon. Member how often does he visit these areas? How many times has he contacted, for instance, Mr. Ekitella, the Member for Turkana South, or Mr. Areman, and discussed the problems of this area?

I have always said the solution to curbing tribal clashes or raids is not to build police posts all over the place. The solution to the problem is for the hon. Members to talk to the people and not to incite people. The hon. Member was at his best as far as emotion is concerned, in talking about retaliation and not saying how best they can solve the problem.

Mr. Speaker, I know I will be visiting the area soon. I am going to his area on Sunday for a different purpose, but I would like to assure him that the Government has always done its best. We have done our best to maintain border control and I would like also the Members for Turkana to assist the Government in getting the Turkana to surrender their firearms to the Government. Recently, the police, together with the General Service Unit, combed most areas in Turkana and managed to recover a lot of the cattle which had been stolen, and many Turkana are very appreciative and they are doing everything possible to see people should maintain law and order.

I assure the House, Mr. Speaker, that, so far as my Ministry is concerned it has done its best and will continue to do so with the co-operation of the hon. Member if he can control himself. If he cannot control himself then how can he control his Pokot men?

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the end of our time so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, 18th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Wednesday, 18th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERSPAPERS LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—
Vote on Account—Financial Year 1969/70.

Estimate showing the several services for which a Vote on Account is required for the year ending 30th June 1970.

(By the Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru))

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS*Question No. 270SIAYA DISTRICT HEADQUARTERS

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister of State President's Office to state how long it would take the Government to build the headquarters of Siaya District.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. At present, a contractor has been appointed, and has already started preliminary work on the site where the headquarters building at Siaya is going to be. If things go well, it is estimated that the work will be finished by the middle of 1970.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is he sure that the work has been started there, because if you go to the place at Siaya, nobody is working there? When did they start work?

Mr. M. Koinange: After the contractor has been appointed, then work on the site takes place in the form of surveys, and other routine work in the office, and if the hon. Member is not there every day he may not see the people. Sometimes he may go there and find no one about, and at other times he may be there and find someone.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Could we hear from the Minister the name of the contractor who has been offered this work?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should know that we are not bringing a story here. This is a name I will not disclose.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, is the Minister in order to refuse to give the House the name of the contractor?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes. Yes, he is in order.

*Question No. 271TEMPORARY D.O.S IN UKWALA

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister of State, President's Office if he would consider handing over the responsibilities of the District Officer for Ukwala to the district commissioner because the district officers sent there were temporary.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I do not agree with the hon. Member's allegation that the district officers posted to Ukwala Division are temporary. He uses the word "temporary". They are either on probationary or permanent and pensionable terms. In view of this, that question does not arise.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, the Minister has understood my question differently from the way I intended it. Is the Minister not aware that all the district officers in Ukwala seldom stay for more than one month without being transferred? How is the area being developed if the district officers are just temporary in Ukwala Division?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is definitely a different question.

Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Odero-Sar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, was my supplementary question different from what has been put in the question on the Order Paper?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry, but I missed it. I was otherwise engaged. Would you ask it again, and I will tell you.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since 1966, until this year—

Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Since 1966, the district officers who have been sent there to develop the area have stayed there for not more than one month. Why is it that the district officers sent there are just temporary? The area cannot be developed because of these transfers ever so often. That is why I wanted the Minister to assure me that the district commissioner, who is there permanently, would get the responsibility to develop the area.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that is part of the same question.

Hon. Members: Yes, yes.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, I heard him say "1966, this year". I do not know how I can answer "1966, this year". Which is which?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member made it clear what he meant. "This year" was a slip. He was referring to the very temporary service of district officers over the last three years.

An hon. Member: The Member is confused.

Mr. M. Koinange: There is a district officer who is in charge of Ukwala Division, and there is no need to hand over the responsibility to the district commissioner. The transfer of administrative officers, who have been posted to Ukwala Division, has been effected in the normal way, and that very fact is not intended to embarrass the Member at all, because transfers are part of the administrative work and should not worry the Member at all.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that the district officer who is now in Ukwala came just after the district officer who had been there was transferred? How did he hand over the responsibility of the division?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the administration has to be done according to the administration, and the work of the area has not been affected by that at all. If the Member could point out what deficiency of the work has been actually taking place because of this transfer, then that is a different thing.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not think the Minister has replied. If the district officer who is there now took over the office which was vacant after the district officer who was there was transferred, who handed over to him? How did the hand-over take place?

Mr. M. Koinange: There is nothing wrong with that, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Question No. 265

CLOSURE OF DEALINGS WITH U.D.C.

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Finance if he would tell the House—

- (a) what had been the reason for Government's transferring the financial dealings for hire purchase of vehicles from the United Dominions Corporation to Central Bank of Kenya;
- (b) why had it been necessary to raise the loan interest from the former 5 per cent to 8½ per cent; and
- (c) why had it been necessary to abolish dealings with the United Dominions Corporation and to continue to borrow money from Commonwealth Development Corporation, both being British institutions.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The Government has not transferred the new hire-purchase business of the civil servants and Members of the National Assembly from the United Dominions Corporation to the Central Bank of Kenya, but to the National Bank of Kenya Limited.

The main reason for transferring the business was that the National Bank of Kenya is a fully Government-owned financial institution and if it could handle the business in a better and cheaper way, it was considered it should do so.

(c) It is not correct, Sir, that the interest charged by the United Dominions Corporation was 5 per cent and again that which is charged by the National Bank of Kenya is 8½ per cent. The interest rate used by the United Dominions Corporation was 5½ per cent flat. For the information of the House, the flat rate of interest increases total interest paid in financial—in money—terms considerably and, depending on the length of the period of loan, the effective rate charged by the United Dominions Corporation worked out to as much as 10 per cent per annum. The rate by the National Bank of Kenya is 8 per cent per annum on reducing balance and thus there is a reduction of net interest costs on these loans. It has been estimated that under the new arrangements, the Members of the National Assembly and the civil servants would save approximately K£20,000 per annum in interest costs.

(c) I have already explained the reasons why the hire-purchase scheme was transferred to the National Bank of Kenya. However, I should like to state we borrow money from any source, provided its terms and conditions are satisfactory and conducive to our own economic growth.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Government was taking over the business from the private sources, it was doing so in the interests of people of this country, but when we find that — Will the Minister tell the House what we gain—this K£20,000—Members and civil servants can make after the increase of 3½ per cent from 5 per cent to 8½ per cent?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, I think you heard the answer. The Minister has told you that the net result is that the rate of interest is less, and that, consequently, a lot of money is being saved for the benefit of those who deal in hire-purchase.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not true that we make a profit; our own money is saved, because individual members or civil servants are not bound only to put their money in the National

[Mr. Kebaso]

Bank of Kenya, but they can put it in any other private fund. That is why we are not getting any benefit from this because we bank our money in any private bank; we are not bound to put our money into Kenya National Bank Limited.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question, Mr. Kebaso.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister agree with me that by transferring this project to the Central Bank, he has assisted all the people who have had trouble with the United Dominions Corporation and he should expand it to more people taking an interest in it? Can you do that?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to correct my friend, the hon. Mr. Lubembe, that this money has not been transferred to the Central Bank; it is with the National Bank of Kenya Limited. In this way, if I may answer the previous question, this is our National Bank. If this particular person, the hon. Member from North Mugirango, feels that we ought to deal with the foreign banks and not use our own bank, I would like to know the reason why?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, now that we are dealing with the Kenya Bank, would the Minister use his influence to see that we get a four-year loan instead of 36 months which is embarrassing Members of Parliament?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I consider this as another different question, I feel definitely that the hon. Members ought to exercise caution in borrowing, because borrowing is just borrowing. If they want to buy a Mercedes Benz, well they will have to foot the bill. The point is this, if the hon. Member went out this afternoon, he would find that I am running a little Fiat car, and I was driving it myself yesterday. I would like to advise many hon. Members who are running into a shortage of money to exercise a little care in finance.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, could he tell me and this House, whether this change of hire-purchase agreement from the United Dominion Corporation to the Kenya National Bank Limited has affected the hire-purchase agreements which are already in force with the United Dominion Corporation or whether it is going to affect the new undertaking of hire-purchase agreement?

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, it is definitely going to affect in one way or another the new ones, but it will not affect the existing arrangements.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 229

SALE OF TEA PLANTS AND CUTTINGS—KAKAMEGA

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister would consider extending the time for selling vegetative propagation units in Kakamega District to one year in order to enable as many tea growers as possible to purchase these units.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The period for the sale of vegetative propagation cuttings has been extended to the 15th July 1969, to enable those districts which have not bought all their allocation to do so. The extension of this period was necessitated by the very slow progress in the sale of cuttings in certain districts, including Kakamega District. It is not practical to extend the selling period for one year. The plants require a minimum of six months before they are ready for planting in the field. The plants which will be planted in April next year will have to be in the nurseries by August this year at the latest.

The other point is that the distribution of cuttings to the districts is a mammoth job calling for very careful organization. The authority must know the requirements of each district long before the actual distribution takes place.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Will hon. Members please make less noise in their private conversations.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply from the Assistant Minister, is the Assistant Minister not aware that it is the wish of Kakamega that the selling of vegetative propagation cuttings be extended to one year, and if that is so why can he not comply with the wish of the people?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the wish of Kakamega is one wish, but we have so many wishes from all over the country. Sir, we are considering the whole of Kenya and not just one district and, in this particular case, I think the time given to Kakamega District is enough if they really mean business with this planting.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 262

ASSISTANCE TO AFRICAN-GROWN TEA MARKETS

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House what action the Ministry was taking to assist African tea growers with the acreage of 10-20 medium sized tea farms produce to be processed by the large-scale farmers for the purpose of getting higher market prices rather than the 40 cents per pound for green leaf tea which was normally paid by the Kenya Tea Development Authority on an uneconomic basis.

[Mr. Shikuku]

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this will be a rather long reply, but I will try my best to make it short.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The African tea growers, with the acreage mentioned by the hon. Member, seem to be outside the Kenya Tea Development Authority area of operation, since the average acreage of Kenya Tea Development Authority growers is much smaller than this. In the circumstances, Sir, these growers must comply with the condition on their licences from the Tea Board to provide their own processing facilities or make an agreement with the nearest plantation tea factory to process their leaf.

It is not true to say that the plantation tea factory areas are getting higher market prices than factories under the Kenya Tea Development Authority. All the tea produced in Kenya is either sold on the local auction in Nairobi or on the London auction mart where tea fetches a price in accordance with its quality and demand for it. Some of the Kenya Tea Development Authority factories produce tea which is of the highest quality and fetches the highest price.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the reply from the Assistant Minister, can the Assistant Minister do anything to get Kenya tea marketed in West Germany?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, I think this is a different question altogether.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply where the Assistant Minister has given me a forest of words which have boiled down to nothing, could he tell the House, Sir, how much a farmer gets—a small-scale farmer—as a price on the local market? Is it not true that they get 23 cents when this tea is sold on other markets outside the farming area at 60 cents a pound? Does he agree with me on that?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, 40 cents is paid to the growers for each 1 lb. of green leaf supplied to the factory and this is not the final payment; there is usually a second payment which has usually been, during the last three years, 12 cents per pound, and this is dependent on the profit made by the factory on selling the tea which has been processed.

If the tea growers mentioned by the hon. Member are within the Kenya Tea Development Authority area of operation and they are near a Kenya Tea Development Authority factory, then they are obliged to deliver their tea to that factory.

It should be appreciated that the Government has borrowed a lot of money—£2 million—to provide the processing facilities for the Kenya Tea Development Authority tea growers. These factories are expected to repay these loans and they cannot do it unless they have an optimum amount of green leaf to process in order to keep their costs of processing to a minimum.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister seems to be evading the main question. The main question is, is the Assistant Minister aware that the 23 cents paid to the growers is uneconomical and as such tea is proving a useless crop to the farmers? Are you aware that the 12 cents you are referring to is not 12 cents, it is 10 cents? Is that fair?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the 23 cents is after deduction of the loan given to the farmer in the first place.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not understand why the Assistant Minister is so vague in his answers. Will the Assistant Minister confirm to the House that beside the taxes and loan repayments for this money borrowed, he has omitted the money deducted for devaluation of the pound?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all these things are taken into account.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, it has become customary by the Ministry of Agriculture not to provide the House with replies to the hon. Members in writing; you just ask and you do not get a reply as we do from other Ministries. Is it in order for them to continue doing this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have said so many times, Mr. Shikuku, that dissatisfaction with a reply does not give you a point of order.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am not dissatisfied with the reply, but the replies which are read by the Ministers are usually supplied to the Members in advance—at least you collect them five minutes before time—but with this Ministry we do not get these replies; is it in order for them always to refuse to give us replies before they answer?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I apologize, I misunderstood your point. No, it is actually a matter of courtesy that Members are supplied in advance with a copy of the reply that the Minister intends to give. Sometimes, indeed, he gives an oral reply, spontaneous, without it having been written for him at all by somebody else; it is very often a better reply that way but you do not get a copy beforehand.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 262:
ASSISTANCE TO AFRICAN-GROWN TEA MARKETS

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member does not object, I would like to pursue this matter on the Adjournment.

Mr. Shikuku: Certainly, Mr. Speaker, I will give him 177 per cent support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well.

Next Question.

Question No. 275

TRANSPORT OF MAIZE FROM SONDU MARKET

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House—

(a) why was it that even those people leaving Sondu Market with less than a bag of maize were being arrested though the allowance was two bags; and

(b) since during the colonial régime one was allowed to transport five maize bags free of interference, why had this been reduced to two bags after independence.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, I beg to reply.

At present, the law requires that any person who moves more than two bags of maize should have a movement permit issued by the Maize and Produce Board. Recently there has been a considerable increase in the illegal movement of maize in the Sondu Hills area as a result of which concentrated efforts were made by the police to arrest those concerned in accordance with the law. No person moving less than two bags of maize was arrested.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister assure the House that any police who arrest a woman who carries just half a bag of maize is acting illegally and should be prosecuted? Could he assure the House that that is according to the law.

Mr. Murgor: I said in an earlier reply that anybody moving less than two bags does that legally, but moving more than two bags is illegal.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister assure the House that, moving of not more than two bags does not matter whether you move it in a bus, a Land-Rover or a lorry?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, movement is movement. I said movement of less than two bags is legal; no matter where you move it and how you move it.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister still deferring one question which has been asked, as to whether it is legal for a policeman to arrest a woman or a man moving maize of less than two bags either by a donkey, or his or her back, a bus, or a wheelbarrow? Is it illegal, therefore, for such a policeman to arrest such person who is moving maize legally to be taken to court?

Mr. Murgor: It is illegal for anybody to move maize which is more than two bags.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of order, I would like to seek your guidance. We are very unfortunate, we who sit on this Front Bench. The point is, can we not help the other Minister if we feel like it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Mr. Gichuru, I understand you desire to help, but every Minister has to look after himself on these occasions.

Let us go on now. But Mr. Murgor, since two hon. Members have complained of not receiving in advance copies of your reply, and since you seem to be working on written replies, I hope your Ministry will follow the usual practice of supplying in advance the copies of the reply which you intend to give.

Mr. Murgor: I will see to that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, thank you.

Question No. 248

PURCHASE OF D4 TRACTOR FOR KITUI COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House whether it was true that the Minister had refused to approve the purchase of a D4 Tractor by Kitui County Council for the purpose of dams construction.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

No, Sir. The Council officers sought advice on the purchase of this tractor and were told that there would be no objection to the purchase being made from the Council's Renewal Fund. This fund was set aside by the council for such purposes.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Minister assure me that, if the council puts forward an estimate for the purchase of a tractor for the purpose of water development, the Ministry will not hold it up but will approve it immediately?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if they are buying from the Renewal Fund, as I have said, they have the okay.

Question No. 209

FAILURE OF RENT CONTROL.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Housing whether he would tell the House if he was aware that the measures he was taking to control rents had not stopped landlords from charging exorbitant rents.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Legislation is in existence, through the Rent Restriction Act, whereby tribunals exist at Nairobi, Mombasa, and Kisumu to adjudicate on all matters brought before them by the landlords and tenants in respect of dwelling houses within the scope of the Act.

If a tenant is paying more rent than was being charged on 1st January, 1965, plus the permitted increases allowed under Section 12 of the Act, he may bring an action to recover the excess rent claimed to have been paid. Specific instances of overcharging should be brought to the attention of the Rent Restriction Department and investigation will be carried out.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it means that the Rent Restriction Act was brought to help the tenants who are being overcharged and I know—even by looking at the advertisements in the papers for the rent of various houses—that then rents before the Act and the rents after, this have risen very much. Will the Minister tell the House whether he agrees or not that rents have increased despite the Act and, therefore, there is a need of either amending the Act or probably giving the Act greater publicity to help the tenants?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the Act it is clearly specified, that the rent in 1965—which is based on the foundation of the lowest rent—was taken when the rent charges were at their lowest ebb; and this was on the 1st January 1965. I will not, therefore, agree that rents have gone up. If the hon. Member, on the other hand, is thinking of luxurious buildings or, for that matter, premises that is a different case. If you can afford to pay for a luxurious house, for example, it is up to you to pay. The Act was provided to protect the tenants who have no ability to pay high rents. That is why the chargeable amount was based on January 1965 when rents were very low indeed.

Mr. Karungaru: Arising from that reply and bearing in mind that there are some premises in Nairobi where downstairs there are shops and upstairs there are living rooms, and that the owners of these buildings had been renting to people at the rate of Sh. 100 and that they are now rented at the rate of Sh. 200 per room, what action is the Minister going to take to see that people are protected from these unscrupulous exploiters?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I made numerous announcements and I would like to appeal to the hon. Members of this House to help us by sending those people whom they represent to bring those cases before us and they shall be dealt with. The hon. Karungaru is aware of this information and—if he can bring to us those people from his constituency who are exploiters, they will be dealt with according to the law.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister not agree with me that the present Act covers only houses which have a rent below or under Sh. 800 per month and that there is no control on any house which fetches more than Sh. 800 per month?

Mr. Ngei: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am aware of this because the Act was passed by this hon. House and the hon. Member sitting there gave assent to it. I think he is very aware of this and it is well known. If we have a case of overcharging and it is brought to my notice, I assure the hon. Members that it will be dealt with. I would like to say also that very soon we shall appoint some inspectors who will go round inspecting houses. They will not only investigate the rent but they will investigate the conditions of the houses and the garbage around them and then, perhaps action will be taken against those people who are not taking care of their houses.

Question No. 268A

FUNZI ISLAND BRIDGE

Mr. Mwamzandi asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services if he would tell the House what assistance he had given or had promised he would give, in order that the bridge to Funzi Island in the Kwale District could be completed.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Kalya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

Assistance to self-help projects is given to assist people who have started a project to complete it. As the community in Funzi Island have not started building the bridge, it has not been possible to give or promise any aid. Government has so far assisted the group with 82 bags of cement for culverts, for a five-mile road from Mzambweni to the Island which was built by the people of that particular area.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, in fact, I can correct him that the assistance wanted was not for Mzambweni road but for the small bridge to Funzi Island, is the Minister aware that the estimate for the project was over Sh. 10,000 and Community Development assisted with only 82 bags which amounted to a value of Sh. 984? Is this the only assistance which the Minister can offer to the people from the Coast or anywhere, because we have noted that people from up-country are offered big assistance by this Ministry?

Mr. Kalya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we offer this assistance according to the projects and also according to the funds available in our Ministry. If the hon. Member can convince the Ministry, and if the funds are available, that the project is worthwhile helping, he is sure to be helped.

I do not think we just give money to up-country people haphazardly; we look into these projects and we assist those projects which we know have been aided by the people themselves and are projects which are not going to fail. I would like to advise the hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, that if he could come to our offices and discuss this matter with us, I am sure we will be able to look into this, and if he wants assistance we can give it to him.

Question No. 249

GRAPHITE DEPOSITS IN KITUI

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Natural Resources if he would tell the House what the Government was doing to encourage the exploitation of the graphite deposits which were to be found in abundance in Ikutha and Kaniko Locations in Kitui South Constituency.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The graphite deposits in the Ikutha area of South Kitui have been intensively surveyed and the graphite-bearing rocks in this area have been subjected to mineral extraction testing.

In the past, these South Kitui graphite deposits have been worked on a small commercial scale. They contained about only 10 per cent of available graphite, and were not found in abundance as the hon. Member suggests in his question. This requires extraction by plant treatment requiring a large supply of water which is not readily available in that area.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the Minister admits that there are graphite deposits in this area mentioned in the question, would his Ministry consider doing something to provide water facilities which are required to extract such deposits in the area?

Mr. Nyagah: No, Sir. Mr. Speaker, the question of water should be directed to my colleague, the Minister for Agriculture.

Mr. Mbai: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, although the water question is one for the Ministry of Agriculture, does the Minister not agree with me that the question of extraction of graphite falls within his Ministry and if anything like water is required which is something which is the concern of another Ministry, it is up to him to negotiate with the Ministry concerned to do something in order to enable the project to start?

Mr. Nyagah: The question as put now, Mr. Speaker, is a little irrelevant as far as I am concerned.

However, I would like the hon. Member to know that the sale of graphite on the world market is subject to strict specification for use in the industry. Commercial extraction is best done from Madagascar and India. So far, Sir, we have not been able to attract to South Kitui any large commercial firm to come and do this extraction. When we have such a company, then the company investigating would see to the water position as well.

Question No. 276

COLLECTIONS FOR GATUNDU SELF-HELP HOSPITAL

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, as the wananchi had donated very generously towards Gatundu Hospital, whether he could disclose to the House the total amount collected to date.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. On 9th March 1967, I gave a reply to a similar question to the hon. Member and informed him that the Gatundu Self-help Hospital is a private project by the people of Gatundu and that the Government does not keep a record of donations that are made to it.

We still hold the same view with regard to any other project that is carried out in any other place.

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Minister said that he had replied to a similar question by the hon. Ondiek-Chillo but I think it was to me that he replied and not Mr. Chillo. Is he not misleading the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The point was that it was the same kind of question to which he gave the same reply.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, and bearing in mind that although Gatundu Self-help Hospital is a private project just as any other self-help Harambee schools in the country, and before such projects are initiated, the Government gives permits for the collection of money, and since this one was initiated by the President, would it not be ideal if the Government, or the people of Gatundu, for that matter, would tell the country the amount which the people in the country have actually donated to that hospital? What is wrong with telling the actual figure of the amount which has been contributed?

Mr. M. Koinange: Frankly, Mr. Speaker, I meant that I gave an answer to a similar question by the hon. Mr. Okuto Bala.

Any self-help scheme, with a committee organizing things in a most sincere way, and if there has never been anything suspicious, then I think they have the right to carry on. May I say that the Gatundu Self-help Hospital takes in not only the patients of that particular constituency but from other parts of the country as well. People should be appreciative of that and continue helping.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, on the Order Paper it shows that the question is directed to the Ministry of Co-operatives and Social Services. I wonder whether the Minister is now answering a wrong question, and if he is answering the right question, is he perhaps hiding something when he does not answer the question correctly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Sometimes questions are transferred from one Ministry to another. It is entirely at the discretion of Government as to which Ministry answers.

Mr. J. K. arap Soi: I agree with you there, Sir. But we have the Minister here who could tell us that this has been transferred to him?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, the Ministry of Social Services sent this question to us.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for an hon. Member to draw the attention of the Speaker by slapping the Bench?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, sometimes rise with such enthusiasm that they shake the furniture. I can think of one hon. Member of heavy weight on this side who does so. It is not out of order.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, arising from the hon. Minister's reply, that the Gatundu self-help project is a private project, is it not true that this project is no longer private and that it is a State project, because the Government has taken over the running of this project? If that is so, why does it still continue, according to the Minister's statement, to be a private project?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, it is absolutely true that the day-to-day management of the hospital has been taken over by the Government.

However, the committee wanted the privilege of extending the hospital and carrying out all other desired work. This was the initiative of the people originally. It is because of that extension work that the Government runs the day-to-day work of the hospital but the question of expansion is still the responsibility of the committee.

Question No. 207

EXPENSES OF SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Education if he was aware that the New Primary Approach and the New Mathematics methods in schools required a lot of expensive equipment which many local governments could not afford in primary education, and which in the case of Harambee secondary schools and semi-aided secondary schools, the Central Government could not afford.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware that the equipment required to teach these new approaches to education is any more expensive than the equipment used in the old methods. Indeed, the new methods have been introduced to make it easier for teachers to improvise and use the local materials which may not require purchasing.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Assistant Minister agree with me that these methods require a lot of equipment for demonstration, which, although he says local materials can be used, would need money for their preparation and would require workshops such as the one at Entebbe which was used for this method?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with the hon. Member, because the teachers who are taking the new primary approaches are trained and they make visual aids before they leave their training. They come out of their training prepared to handle these things with the material and equipment required for their teaching.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 207: EXPENSES OF SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am not satisfied with that reply. Could I raise it as a Motion on adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes.

Question No. 228

LOCAL AUTHORITIES TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR SCHOOLS' EQUIPMENT

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Education if he would authorize each local authority to be responsible for the order, purchase and delivery of permanent and consumable equipment needed in its local schools.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Before 1969, each local authority was responsible for the order, purchase and delivery of books and equipment to schools in its area. However, the Central Government discovered that a lot of irregularity and possible bribery and corruption was taking place in the administration of the tenders involved. It was, therefore, decided that the purchase and distribution of these books and equipment be done centrally, or by the Central Government. This is a Government decision which has to be implemented.

I am aware of the teething problems which have faced the scheme this year, but I am confident of its success next year and in the future. I cannot, therefore, go back to a situation that obtained before the supply of school equipment was centralized.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think this question was, in fact, answered pretty fully in a recent debate on the adjournment, so it should not really be on the Order Paper now, and we will go on to the next question.

Question No. 269

CAR LOANS FOR TEACHERS

Mr. G. G. Kariuki asked the Minister for Education to state what facilities were being given to teachers to enable them to buy cars.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. So far, the Government does not give any facilities to non-civil servants, including teachers, to enable them to buy cars. However, I am pleased to inform the House that the Teachers' Service Commission, as the employer of all teachers, is currently trying to find ways and means of getting car loan facilities extended to teachers.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: While appreciating the reply by the Assistant Minister, what is Government doing to see that the Teachers' Service Commission expedites this as soon as possible?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I have already stated that they are trying to find ways and means of doing so, and they are holding discussions right now. That is what the Government is doing.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sr, the Minister said that the teachers were not civil servants, but we have been told more than once here that the teachers fall in the category of civil servants. That is why we debarred them from participating in politics, and therefore, as such, do they not qualify to receive loans, like any other civil servants?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think there is a confusion here. Civil servants are appointed by the Civil Service Commission; teachers are appointed by the Teachers' Service Commission. These are two different organizations.

An hon. Member: There is confusion.

Mr. Khasakhala: The confusion here is that teachers have one employer, and it is the employer who decided that, as far as this is concerned, teachers should not participate in politics.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since this is a very controversial issue, with regard to the Minister for Education's circular letter about ensuring that teachers never attend politics, never talk politics, never become political party members, will the Assistant Minister tell us what the Ministry means by placing all these restrictions on teachers if they are not categorized with civil servants? This is the point.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, all these things have been discussed in this House at length.

Hon. Members: No, no.

Mr. Khasakhala: The law under which the Teachers' Service Commission was appointed was approved by this House, and we know very well that the teachers themselves passed for one employer, so that their requirements could be met by one—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! A little less noise.

Mr. Khasakhala:—person directly responsible for whatever was necessary. It is this one employer who is the Teachers' Service Commission, and they have said that teachers should not participate in politics as well as their not being able to stand for election, they are perfectly entitled to do so.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from one of the replies, Mr. Speaker, would the Assistant Minister consider making the conditions of teachers uniform with those of the Civil Service, because, so far, now they are not allowed to participate in politics in the same way as civil servants, but when it comes to privileges, they are denied them?

Hon. Members: Answer the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Hon. Members in that corner are much too noisy.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I consider most of these supplementaries arise from a different question; even though I am answering them, I consider they are different questions. The position here is that when you employ someone you are his boss, and the boss should direct him.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, I do not know whether the Assistant Minister and other Members are right, because they are saying that teachers are not participating in politics, but I know that teachers are politicians.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No point of order.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 269:
CAR LOANS FOR TEACHERS

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the seriousness of this matter concerning the teachers, if the questioner, the hon. G. G. Kariuki, will allow me, I would like to raise this matter on adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What exactly do you want to raise, Mr. Kamau: the fact that an effort is going to be made to provide them with cars, or the allegation that they are not civil servants. I want to know what you are proposing to raise.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, both are the same. The reason why I think they are the same is because now the Assistant Minister is telling this House that teachers do not belong to the Civil Service, but again—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We cannot have a discussion now, you know. You can give me notice, if you like to raise a specific matter, but it has to be specific, and it sounds to me as if you are on to two lines at once. We only deal with one at a time. You give me notice of what you want to raise.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the Minister to say that the Teachers' Service Commission is the one which directed that teachers should not participate in politics, when in fact it was the Minister who issued the circular?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can ask him to substantiate on a point of order, but you cannot start on an argument on fact by way of point of order.

An hon. Member: Point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will not have any more on this one.

We will have the Question by Private Notice now.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

POSITION OF MR. RADING OMOLO vis-à-vis THE CIVIL SERVICE

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs the following Question by Private Notice:—

(a) In view of the fact that Mr. Rading Omolo was a civil servant when he announced his decision to stand as a candidate for Gem election, did he resign before he went for election.

(b) If he did resign, under which section of law was he allowed to resume his duties.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Hon. Rading Omolo tendered a notice of resignation from Government Service before he stood for the Gem election. This notice was accepted and his resignation took effect from the 24th March, 1969.

(b) He has not resumed duties in the Civil Service, although he has applied to come back to the Service again. This will be considered in the normal way, but no decision has so far been made.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that encouraging reply, would the Minister for Home Affairs assure this House that any civil servant resigning to go and contest a seat should do six months before, and if he is defeated he should start all over again, not return with the credit of the previous years' service?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot give any assurance or guarantee, because there is no law governing this, except the civil servants Code of Regulations.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply that Mr. Omolo has applied to rejoin the Civil Service, would the Vice-President tell the House when this post was advertised?

Mr. arap Moi: I said, Mr. Speaker, that the person in question has applied for the post but no decision has so far been made, and so the hon. Member should not be confused about it.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question is very important. Since the Betting and Control Board is a board under a Ministry, is a person serving on that board as an executive officer a civil servant or not?

An hon. Member: He is not.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: That is the point, because the Teachers' Service Commission is a Government body.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member has been conversant as a legislator, he should know that in the working of Government, civil servants are seconded to different statutory boards if it is seen to be fit. Therefore, this was in order.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, now, to enlighten the country, the gentleman in question came from detention, and he did not come from the Civil Service to be seconded, and he was employed straight by that particular board. From which branch of the Civil Service was he seconded?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. questioner asked whether it was in order for a civil servant to serve on a statutory board, and I answered that it is normal for Government to second any officer to any statutory board. As to the other questions about where he was transferred from, he was in my Ministry, and he was in my Ministry during the time of the Leader of the Opposition and of Mr. Murumbi.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Vice-President tell the House whether there have been other applicants apart from this gentleman, and if there have been no others, does it mean that the job is going to be taken by this gentleman?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, let them wait until the post is seen to be vacant. When the post still exists, they should not speculate over that.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as this is a serious question; now is it going to be the policy of the Government to sponsor any candidate even the civil servants or people on any Statutory Board, and if that is going to be so, will this also apply to the Opposition sympathizers?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I should like to enlighten the hon. Members. Previously—some of the hon. Members of this hon. House or some people elsewhere—when a civil servant wanted to stand for a seat, he could easily apply for leave, and during that leave, during that action he could stand for that constituency and then come back after his leave. These things have been going on and I would like the hon. Members to study them very well. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the civil servants are like any other human-beings and if they so wish to oppose anyone of us—this is a democratic state—they are free to do so, even in the Civil Service, in private enterprise or elsewhere.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the gentleman in question—

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs tell the House whether he is not misleading the House by telling us that it is not against the Code of Regulations that civil servants should stand before they completely resign from the Civil Service? I can quote the section if he wants.

Mr. arap Moi: —Of course, when they tender their resignation, then they leave the Government, but there is a period through which one can return to the Government, without a break of service.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I am right in saying that, according to the Constitution of Kenya, a man is not qualified to stand for election to the National Assembly if he is a public servant. I think it is so.

Mr. Okuta Bala you were asking a question.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the gentleman in question only last week appeared in a Court of Law and gave his evidence with the same title he used to hold as the officer in charge of betting and gambling in Kenya, why did the papers and the Government actually not deny the fact that he was the former officer? Why was he given the same title when he appeared before the court? Does the Minister mean to tell us the truth that this man has not been dismissed and that he is still in the same way, that he is on leave and he has not been dismissed?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I answered and said that he tendered his resignation on the 20th March and therefore when he gave evidence on the case in the court, he gave it on the things which happened while he was executive officer of that Statutory Board.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on now.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: POSITION OF MR. RADING OMOLO vis-à-vis IN CIVIL SERVICE

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the seriousness and the lack of proper reply given by the Vice-President, I would like to raise this matter on a Motion for the Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Have you any objection Mr. Munyasia?

Mr. Munyasia: No, Sir.

ILLEGAL COURTS BY SUB-CHIEF IN KITUI

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I would remind hon. Members that on the Adjournment today, Mr. Munyasia will raise the matter noted on the Order Paper.

POINT OF ORDER

MATTER NOT SUITABLE FOR RAISING UNDER S.O. 20—MOVEMENT OF MAIZE

Mr. Kamau: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order 20, I would like to raise a matter of national importance.

It so happened that today, in Kiambu, and perhaps in some other districts, people cannot buy a bag of maize flour from one shop to their respective shops; they are being arrested by the police and asked to produce permits. The conditions started today, Mr. Speaker, Sir. At Ruiru, where I live, I left two vehicles standing near the Police Station; belonging to people who bought maize flour from the agents allowed by the Government to buy maize flour from the Kenya Maize and Produce Board.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, what surprised the people in Kiambu today with traders is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You are seeking to raise a matter and we cannot have a full discussion of it now. You are entitled to describe the problem, but it is better you know, if you want to raise a matter under Standing Order 20, to warn the Speaker, before the House sits and give him the full picture. You can now give us only a bare picture but do not start to discuss what is worrying you so much.

An hon. Member: Point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am still with Mr. Kamau.

The trouble is, you say, Mr. Kamau, that people are being arrested for buying maize flour in one shop?

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I am allowed by the Chair, I will make it very clear.

I said that today people are not moving maize flour from Ruiru Township, or Kiambu, where there are agents who have been allowed to buy flour from Nairobi and take it to Ruiru, and the traders are supposed to buy maize flour from Ruiru shops. What they are supposed to get there is only cash sales from the duka wala, or the shopkeeper, but when they buy this bag of maize flour, they cannot move it without a particular permit: they are being arrested by the police. I said that this afternoon—this sheet I am holding—I left one of the vehicles standing at the wholesaler's shop with a bag of maize flour and the police constable's number, Mr. Speaker, I am telling the House—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kamau, I think you have described quite enough of the nature of the case. It may be a definite matter, it may even be an urgent matter for Mr. Kamau and a few other people, but it cannot be of such national importance as to justify this procedure I am afraid.

An hon. Member: Put the question.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. Mr. Kamau, I would suggest that on another occasion, if you want to raise an urgent matter under Standing Order 20, come and warn the Speaker a little about it beforehand, so that he can get the picture quite clear and advise you as to whether or not you are likely to get leave. This is too narrow an issue for this procedure.

LEGISLATION WHICH CONTRAVENES THE CONSTITUTION—NOT PERMITTED

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance on this. I read in the newspapers that the Affiliation Act Bill was passed last night through all its stages.

Now, Sir, referring to the Constitution Act 1969, may I draw your attention to Clause No. 70 so that we have your guidance on the protection and fundamental rights of the individual as set out in Clause No. 70 of Act No. 5. Now what will become of those genuine cases according to this clause?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the Act No. 5 1969, Constitution of Kenya, here—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is its title?

Mr. Munyasia: The Constitutional Amendment, Sir.

Now, Sir, Clause No. 70, Protection and Fundamental Rights and Freedoms of the Individual. Sir, if I quote it says: "Whereas every person in Kenya is entitled to the fundamental rights and freedoms of the individual, that is to say—"

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your point of order is that this particular Bill was contrary to the Constitution?

Mr. Munyasia: Yes, Sir

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, not in my opinion. If I had thought it was, I would not have allowed it.

BILLS

Second Reading

THE ENGINEERS REGISTRATION BILL

(Minister for Works on 12th June 1969)(Resumption of Debate interrupted on 17th June 1969)

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had advised the Ministers for Works and Education to consider arrangement of secondary education so that some of our students who are not employed may take up engineering. This will produce a number of engineers, in fact very many, that we need.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to the Minister to consider this position because there are, in this country, very many youths who are gifted in engineering and we should try to assist them to develop their talents so that they can be of great use to nation building. Youths who are technically good could pass through to the degree work. I would appeal to the Minister to consider this point very seriously.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister should also tell this House where he places youths who are, at present, in Government technical secondary schools. Many of these youths learn some form of engineering and we want to know what chances they have of going ahead in the engineering profession so that they become registered.

Mr. Speaker, there are, in this country, a number of firms who have employed non-citizen engineers and I think, according to my opinion, a number of non-citizen engineers are doing a very magnificent job. In those cases where Government or private firms need the services of any person who is a non-citizen, they should be given the right to employ him. Such engineers, in those fields, should be protected so that they are not sacked until the country is able to get its own engineers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, a number of our own people—our own engineers—who, perhaps for lack of experience, cannot do good work, the firms would like to employ those who are not citizens because they can do some better jobs. Therefore, I think that this provision should be made available.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to appeal to the Minister to tell the House what fee is required because it is merely stated, under section 11, that a fee will be prescribed. We would like to know who will prescribe the fee and what will happen in the cases where someone cannot get sufficient money to go ahead. This fee might be too much. We would like to know that.

Sir, I would like to appeal to the Minister to encourage as many private engineers as possible to enrol themselves and, if possible, if the Minister would like to set up a test that should be done by a person who wants to enrol as an engineer, this should be done so that we know, in every district, the number of engineers we have in this country.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like the Minister to look ahead and be able to tell this country what will happen to the many trained engineers; we might train very many of them and yet not give them employment. We must always make sure that there is some form of employment for those engineers who have been trained and registered. It would be a very unfortunate state of affairs if a number of registered engineers could not practise in this country. They may not have the capital and it should be possible for the Minister to find ways and means of getting them actively engaged in work of nation building.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, hoping that the Minister will very seriously consider the points which I have raised, and this Bill being quite straightforward, I think the Minister will consider the matter seriously, and so I beg to support.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill for the registration of engineers is a very welcome Bill and I want to make a few points on it.

Sir, the Government must make every effort to see that Africans, or Kenya citizens, are interested in the engineering profession. The best way of encouraging them is to create a board, as the Minister has laid down in the Bill, through which the people can be registered. However, Sir, I feel it is only fair and just that a young man who has gone through training—and engineering training, like medicine, is not a short course—should be given a chance. For any one to come out of university as a graduate in engineering will take at least five years. Five years, Mr. Speaker, is not a joke and, therefore, the period for practical training outside, after graduation, should not be too long. The Minister, under clause 11, subsection (b) (ii) says: “a person who—has had not less than three years’ practical experience of such a nature as to satisfy the board as to his competence to practise as a registered engineer”.

Mr. Speaker, if this is to be taken it means that a young graduate, after five or six years of training will have to take another three years of formal apprenticeship before he can be registered to practice on his own. I think this is unfair because it means that if one wants to practice on one’s own one has to work for five or six years, plus three, and then register as an independent practitioner in private practice in the ninth or tenth year. This is not fair. A person only acquires skill and becomes competent when he is given time to practise on his own. If he finds he is making mistakes, he will learn from his errors. If he is not competent he will not get employment from those who might have given him work. Therefore, Sir, I think it is only fair that the period of practical experience, after training, should be only a year and not three years. This is also done in the medical profession for instance, and the medical profession is a much more serious business than engineering. In medicine, if the doctor starts practising too early he might mess up the patient, but here a person might mess up a bit of business and a house might fall down, but nobody will ever re-employ a person who designs a house which falls down. Therefore, I feel it is only fair that the practical experience should be only for one year. I am going to move, in the Committee stage, an amendment to reduce this to one year.

Another point I would like to raise here, Sir, is about discrimination by various professional boards. At times, Sir, we have found young men coming back to this country with degrees from other countries other than from Britain, and these chaps are discriminated against. I feel that an engineering degree is an engineering degree whether one gets it from Moscow, from Britain, from India or from East Africa; it is an engineering degree. The recognized universities in the world maintain international standards and a university of any repute will never pass out a person as a graduate in engineering when he has not fulfilled the international requirements. Therefore, Sir, there should be no discrimination in this profession because a student has gone to Czechoslovakia, to Sweden, or Denmark, as against those who have gone to Great Britain or have been trained locally here. This is an unfair practice. In fact, it would be fair if the Minister, through his board, tabulated a list of universities in various countries so that an engineering degree from any of those universities on the list would be recognized as an engineering degree and it would allow the holder to practise in Kenya. This, Sir, would be only fair and just.

Sir, locally here, if we have to encourage more and more and more of our own local citizens, the facilities at the University College, Nairobi, and Makerere and so on, must be more attractive so that we get more and more of the local people joining this very important profession. This, Sir, I support fully.

The other point, Sir, is on the Schedule and is the way in which the Minister has to appoint members of the board. There will be four members appointed by the Minister and three persons appointed by the East African Institute of Engineering. I am quite happy about the four by the Minister, but I find that the East African Institute of Engineering is today dominated by non-East Africans. The Minister should make sure that these people do not unnecessarily prevent certain people from being registered who ought to be registered. Therefore, since this body now is predominantly non-citizen, among the four people that the Minister appoints, he should appoint only people who are citizens of this country so that—since there will be four of them and they will be a majority on the board—they will look after the interests of the local citizens.

Another point, Sir, which is of importance, is the continuation of experience. It is good the Minister has made it clear that the rotational retirement of members should cater for the experienced people to continue serving the board. I feel the board can only succeed so long as we have continuity in having experienced people on this board. It is also good that retiring members are eligible for reappointment, and this will enable the organization to run smoothly. We have heard of the county councils at times almost coming to the point of collapse because continuity has not been effective.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, these are the few points I wanted to raise on this Bill, and with these few remarks I welcome the Bill wholeheartedly.

Mr. Wariithi: Mr. Speaker, I would like to stand and support this Bill as I believe it is very important for us to have a system of registering people who study engineering so they can practise and be accepted as engineers.

As the last Member has said, I am a little concerned as to the provisions of section 11. Hon. Muliro is a member of a board, and I am also a member—that is the Central Selection Board where we award scholarships to our students to go overseas and study various subjects. It is our policy on this board to persuade our students to go and study subjects like engineering, or scientific subjects of which there is a great shortage in this country. It is necessary for some of us to be concerned about the period during which these young men, after being overseas for many years, have to stay here when they return before they can be registered.

These scholarships are awarded by various governments outside to the Kenya Government, and our students accept these scholarships and they go to study and when they come back, it is my strong feeling they should not be hampered in any way, or made to feel they are different from other students who have studied similar subjects.

If you look at clause 11, 1 (a), and I quote—

“(a) a member of an institution of engineers the membership of which is recognized for the time being by the board as furnishing a sufficient guarantee of academic knowledge of and practical experience in engineering;”.

My misgiving here, Mr. Speaker, is that if I ask the Minister to give us a list of institutions of engineers in the world which are recognized by this Government as providing sufficient guarantee of proper training, we will probably find there are very few. Even if they are there, you may find they are primarily in the Western countries. I doubt whether there are any in the Eastern countries or maybe some countries in Europe, or Asia for that matter. I would not say we are unfortunate but because of our historic relationship with Britain and the Western countries, I am almost certain that most of the institutions of engineers which we accept that people registered with them are properly trained will happen to be in the Western countries.

I am not saying that these institutions do not have world fame, and recognition, but I think it is wrong to continue to think that only those who registered with those institutions are properly trained. It is, I think, for the Government and the Minister to consider other institutes of engineers which have proved that members of those institutes are properly trained, and probably even better, than those from some of the Western countries. I know that some of us who were trained in Asia in a different profession, when we came back ten years ago, there was a feeling that perhaps we were not properly trained. We had difficulty in finding employment. Now things have changed and, in fact, some of those countries have proved that people trained in those countries are equal to others—if not better.

Mr. Speaker, I have my misgiving about the practice adopted so far. I have friends of mine who have been in the Eastern countries where they have studied engineering for six or seven years, they come back here and yet they are not recognized. They are asked to produce a certificate. In my cases, the Ministry of Education cannot process those certificates but they have to send them to the embassies of the countries where these people studied. What I am saying is when we encourage our people to go and study in some of these countries, when they come back with the qualifications, we should not make it difficult for them to be registered. Perhaps what we should do is not to allow them to go to those countries in the first place, particularly on Government scholarships.

Coming to the point raised about the three-year period, I feel this is too long a period. We have other professions, doctors; we have pharmacists, we even have members of the legal profession who do not stay for such a long time. After all, what is required? This person has already been trained as an engineer, and it is for him to familiarize himself with the local requirements which he might not have studied overseas. I do not see the reason why this man should be made to stay longer than other people who have studied in other professions. Medicine has only a 12 months' internship, in fact, there is no examination. Pharmacists also do one year, lawyers do about a year or so. So why should this case be different, Mr. Speaker, from other types of professions? As hon. Muliro said I think we will wait until the Committee Stage, and if there is no amendment proposed by the Minister, then we should amend it to read one year.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is concerned with clause 13. Clause 13 of the Bill provides power to remove from and to correct the register, and I quote—

“(1) The Board may at any time direct that the name of a person be removed from the register where such person has—

(a) failed within a period of six months from date of an inquiry sent by the Registrar by prepaid registered letter to the address appearing in the register against his name, notify the Registrar of his current address;”

It goes further to provide ways in which a person can be removed from the register. I have no quarrel with the other provisions, (b) and (c), but (a) to my mind appears to be very flimsy. The fact that somebody does not reply to an inquiry within a period of six months, and he has not done anything else against the Act, or the regulations, this sounds a very flimsy reason for him to be removed from the register. In fact, my recommendation would be that all these cases of removing people from the register, be they doctors, engineers, or members of the legal profession or any other registered professions, there should not be such a great difference. This man has not committed any offence, he has not been tried, simply not replying to an inquiry as to his current address, this in my mind, is very flimsy and should not be grounds for his name being removed.

[Mr. Wariithi]

The other grounds are all right. There is an inquiry carried out and if he is guilty under the Act then his name is removed, but not simply because one has failed to answer some inquiries. I am asking the Minister to explain this when he comes to reply. Why it has been found necessary that a man after all those years of training and experience, should be made to lose his registration by merely not replying to an inquiry. The inquiry is simply where this person is staying.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to end by saying there was a lot of talk yesterday about a gentleman at Karatina, in my own district, Mr. Gachamba, who is my friend. He is the engineer who is trying to build Kenya I. My observation is that this man is trying his best and he should be assisted, but I do not consider it necessary for the Minister or his Assistant, to go to Karatina. What he should do is to provide technical know-how for this person. There was a request yesterday that the Minister should go himself and see what this man is doing and perhaps help him. What I think is important, is he has shown some originality and made great effort; I have seen this object which looks like an aeroplane, and I would tell the Minister that it is not necessary for him to go there but he should send his experts, people with knowledge of the building of aeroplanes, knowledge of whether it will ever fly, knowledge of what is required and advise this person. It is no use for the Minister to go as he is probably a layman as I am, in aeroplane building, but what I am appealing to the Minister is that this should be encouraged and he should provide the technical assistance which this man may require. If it is found necessary and he is making some progress, then material assistance should be given.

With this, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I move that the Mover be called upon to reply?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no one wishing to speak so I will call on the Mover to reply.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, I am glad to see the Bill has received the support of this House in general, as I thought it would. It is a straightforward Bill, Mr. Speaker.

A number of the Members who have spoken have touched on a number of various points which I would like to reply to in general.

First of all I would like to assure the House that the Board which has to be formed, will be formed of competent professional men. This Board has to consist of professional men of the highest calibre, in order, Mr. Speaker, to maintain the high standard in engineering which we have in this country, and even to improve on such standards. Mr. Speaker, it is very important that the Board should consist of professional engineers, men who have had a good standing in their profession and who are respected in the country. Men who understand the needs of this country.

Mr. Speaker, those who qualify for membership of the Board are the ones who are eligible for registration. Page 52, Mr. Speaker, says "The Board shall consist of seven members who shall be persons eligible for registration . . ." I have heard a number of Members here express some fears that perhaps the people who will be on the Board may be people who may not understand the engineering profession. Some suggestions have come from the Chief Whip that some politicians should be elected as members of the Board. It is not possible, under this clause, Mr. Speaker, to have politicians on the Board, and it would be very difficult, Mr. Speaker, to have a politician assessing the qualifications of an engineer. It is an engineer who will know what his fellow engineer is like, and this is the person who is recommended to be appointed to the Board.

The hon. Member, Mr. Mark Mwithaga expressed his desire that a politician should be chairman of the Board. It is as I say, not possible to have people who do not understand this profession.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister not trying to mislead the House when he refers to politicians? If a politician were an engineer would he not be eligible to sit on the Board by virtue of his profession as an engineer?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not see it as a point of order.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The policy side of the matter, Mr. Speaker, will always be decided by the Minister who will be in charge of Works. The Board has to be technical and has powers to carry out its decisions and so on, but, normally, the Ministry of Works will carry out the policy side of the matter.

Mr. Speaker, a number of Members have expressed the fear that perhaps the Board will discriminate against people. The very purpose of forming this Board, Mr. Speaker, is to try and do away with a practice which has existed in this country in the past, where engineers, or professional men who were mostly from Britain were considered to be the only suitable people in this country. This is precisely why I have initiated the formation of this legislation in order to do away with any traces of discrimination which might exist. Therefore, when this Bill becomes an Act, Mr. Speaker, the name of a country in which an engineer was trained is immaterial. The only thing which will matter will be his qualifications. Without, Mr. Speaker, trying to find out where a person was trained as more hon. Members have been suggesting that perhaps somebody was trained in Sigalagala may not be registered here as an engineer. Provided, Mr. Speaker, he has the qualifications outlined in clause 11, page 46, if any person no matter where he was trained, has these qualifications, Mr. Speaker, then he will qualify as a registered engineer. It does not matter if it is my friend, Mr. Gachamba, who many people have spoken about in this debate, if he can satisfy the Board he has these qualifications, Mr. Speaker, there is nothing to stop him from being registered as an engineer. Therefore, those who have spoken very strongly about Mr. Gachamba, can advise him there is a Bill now, which is soon to become an Act, and if he wishes he can apply in the normal way as any other person, for registration.

Again, Mr. Speaker, a number of Members like hon. Mr. Shikuku, and the hon. Mr. Kago, said the board would consist of British engineers, or for that matter, only of people who had been trained in the United Kingdom. This is not so, Mr. Speaker, because we already have very, very competent local engineers in the country who are doing extremely good work; there are a number in the Government; and we also have a number in the private sector, and there is no need for anyone to fear that perhaps the appointment of the members of the board will consist of non-citizens. I can assure the hon. Members everything will be done to see local engineers are appointed to the board. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Mr. Kago has told the House that there are a number of engineers in the country and in fact he said that there are nuclear physicists in the country who are roaming about in Nairobi without any employment. This is certainly not true Mr. Speaker, because I can assure this House that engineers are very rare people to find and subsequently we in this country are short of engineers. I am, in my Ministry doing everything to try and recruit engineers because there are vacancies, but it is not true to say that many engineers have come from overseas who have been training say in Eastern countries, and have been discriminated against by the Government. This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is not true at all. We have, even in the Government, in the Ministry of Works, employed many engineers—who are doing very well—from Eastern countries. In fact one of them is holding a very senior position in the Ministry of Works. It is true that a number of engineers have tended to drift away from Government employment because they are attracted, I think, by the higher salaries in the private sector and in the City Council. However, we are in the Ministry short of engineers and everything will be done Mr. Speaker, to recruit anybody who comes from overseas as an engineer. In fact, Mr. Speaker, many times, almost every year, we send circulars to our embassies overseas—to try and advise students who have finished their engineering degrees to come back home and work for the country. We are glad some of these students who have finished have come back, but there is a problem that many of them still like to stay overseas and this is a weakness.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker—

An hon. Member: Go on.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): I am going on. Mr. Deputy Speaker, efforts have been made by my Ministry to encourage our young men to train as engineers as much as possible. Every year we send out circulars to schools advising students to take up engineering as a profession as we think that it is a noble profession.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, to answer a few questions which have been put forward by those who have spoken, I would like to tell the hon. Mr. Muliro that the time which is taken to be very important in the engineering profession is the period of practical work. This is the most important part of the whole profession, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because somebody must prove himself capable of using his academic knowledge in the field and a period of two years is not really too long. It is considered by the engineers themselves as the right period to qualify as a consultant engineer and have his name registered.

An hon. Member: What is your opinion?

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): My opinion is as in the Bill Mr. Deputy Speaker. I had given ample time for the hon. Member when he was speaking and I did not interrupt him.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the hon. Mr. Mwithaga has complained that even in the University College Nairobi, syllabuses are borrowed from overseas. This is not true Mr. Deputy Speaker, for we have a competent staff in the college who are training very competent and able engineers at the moment. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there have been allegations by the same Member that those who are training our students in the university are perhaps using outside influences on our students. This is again not true, Mr. Deputy Speaker. In fact, we are very proud of our University College because it has laid down an extremely high standard for our engineers.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Mr. Matano, who has supported the Bill, expressed some fears that perhaps there may be a lowering of standards in the profession. This, I have assured the House will not happen and everything will be done to see that the standard will not be lowered, but will be, in fact, improved and I can assure the hon. Members, as I have said, that the members of the board will be competent professional men able to understand what they are doing.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Mr. Shikuku had taken a lot of time talking about a lot of things, most of which were repetition and, therefore, I do not have to labour on the points he raised. I was glad that the hon. Member for Aldai, Mr. Cheruiyot, who is incidentally the only engineer we have in this House, supported the Bill and he knows much better what engineers should be. Here a point was raised as to why the hon. Member was not a member of the East African Institute of Engineers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this institution is a voluntary organization of engineers and anybody who is an engineer is acceptable as a member of that institution. Incidentally, the hon. Mr. Cheruiyot has not applied to be a member. We have this East African Institute of Engineers, which is East-Africa based, but we also have separate Institutes for Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. We also have an Act for the separate registration of engineers based in every country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, speaker after speaker talked of Mr. Gachamba, that the Government should do something to assist him. I think, if I remember rightly, that my hon. colleague, the Minister for Power and Communications had offered to assist Mr. Gachamba so that he could be recruited into the East African Airways Corporation to serve in the mechanical workshops. If Mr. Gachamba could take that advice, I am sure he will be able to advance his knowledge of plane-making or something like that.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if I can do anything to assist in this respect, I shall only be too glad to assist Mr. Gachamba but he has to accept to work in the Ministry. We shall not be emotional and say that because Mr. Gachamba has been publicized in the newspapers as somebody who can build an aeroplane, that he should automatically be a registered engineer. This is not so, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I feel he has to apply and he has to have qualifications like any other engineer in the country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Mr. Godia had asked the Minister for Education to encourage students to take up engineering as a profession. This is true. The Ministry of Education is doing everything it can to absorb some of these Form IV and Form VI leavers to join engineering. In fact, already, I am told that a number of institutions like the Railways are taking quite a number of young men to be trained as engineers and a number have already been absorbed by the East African Community.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think a lot of other information will be given when the Bill goes to the Committee Stage as it is difficult, at the moment, to remember all the points raised by my hon. friends.

I would like to say before I conclude my remarks, that it is important that we have this Act because engineers themselves feel that it has taken a long time for this to be enacted, and I am glad that it has received the support required in this House, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

(The Bill was read a Second Time and committed to a Committee of the whole House tomorrow)

CHANGE IN THE ORDER OF BUSINESSCHANGING ORDER OF BILLS FOR SECOND READING

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I have to inform hon. Members that we have been advised that the Ministry of Agriculture is not prepared to go on with Fencing Bill just now. We are moving to the next Order on the Order Paper, that is the Traffic (Amendment of Laws) Bill.

Mr. Karungaru On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, supposing now we decide to kil this Bill and say that instead of it coming tomorrow, we do away with it for a period of not less than six months because it is useless since the Minister has not seen sense to move it—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I think you can do that at the right time, Mr. Karungaru, when it does come for debate, you can move an amendment to that effect if you wish to do so.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance as to whether we, as hon. Members, are covered anywhere in the Standing Orders where we can register our protest on this alteration, because we have not been given any notice of the change of the Orders of the day. Usually, once we get the Orders of the Day, we study the Bills as they come one after the other. I think we should register our strong protest on this.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I can assure you Mr. Biy, that Mr. Speaker and I are both very sympathetic to what you say. In fact, I was informed that when Mr. Murgor did come and tell Mr. Speaker that he was not prepared to go ahead with the Bill just now, he was advised that this was not a very satisfactory situation, that hon. Members come prepared for the next Bill and if that is going to be postponed, longer notice should be given rather than coming at the last moment. I think the Government will be aware of this. It is a bit unfair to the hon. Members who have perhaps come here prepared for this particular debate and find that they have a debate on something on which they were not fully prepared at this stage. I am sure the Government will take notice of this.

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it possible that you will help and move down the scale, say, to Motions instead of this Traffic (Amendment Laws) Bill, since Mr. Deputy Speaker, you know the way we study is to concentrate on one Bill and now we find that we are not going to deal with it? So, with your discretion, I ask whether we could move to a more general sort of business like the Motion which we have under Order 8?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think, in fact, we have little alternative but to do that because I notice the Attorney-General is not in the Chamber either. I think perhaps we shall move to the Motion, Order No. 8, because I see the Attorney-General is not here. I do not think we can really move—

Hon. Members: Hear! Hear!

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in fact, there is an error in Order No. 7, the Traffic (Amendment of Laws) Bill is supposed to be moved by the Minister for Power and Communications.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I see. Then, I apologize in that case. We shall, therefore, go on with Order No. 7. If there is an error in the Order Paper and the Minister is here, well we shall go on with this Bill.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I thought there was a section in the Standing Orders which empowers you to give direction to what type of Order that can be tabled here for discussion. But now since the Bill we were to discuss is not coming today, is it not in your discretion to allow us to go to Order No. 8 instead of Order No. 7 because we have not really prepared ourselves for that Order, although I know we shall do so later? I am sure the Minister does not want unfair criticism, because we shall come out with criticism, but we want fair criticism.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Mr. Lubembe, even if I have the authority, which I am sure I do, if we are not prepared for Order No. 7, I do not see how we can be prepared for Order No. 8. In fact, we should be less prepared for Order No. 8 than No. 7. In any case, the Minister is present here and I think it is only fair to give him a chance to introduce this Bill.

BILL

Second Reading

THE TRAFFIC (AMENDMENT OF LAWS) BILL

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the Traffic (Amendment of Laws) Bill, 1969 be now read a Second Time.

I shall assure the hon. Members that I am going to be concise and to the point.

As hon. Members will observe in the Memorandum of Objects and Reasons, road accidents in Kenya have been increasing steadily over the past years and, unless comprehensive safety measures are taken without delay, accidents can be expected to continue increasing. Road accidents, Sir, result in the wastage of national resources and although the ultimate responsibility for better driving and proper road use rests with the individual, the Government has to take every possible means of reducing them. The Government has a general and overall responsibility of providing conditions for safe and orderly road use. It is in this spirit, Sir, that all aspects of road safety have been considered and this Bill prepared.

Basically, Sir, the amendments contained in this Bill can be divided into three broad sections. First of all we have clauses 2, 3, 4 and 11. Firstly, in these clauses the Registrar of Motor Vehicles is enabled to revoke driving licences of persons who may become unsuitable drivers due to illness and order a fresh driving test when driving ability of a person is clearly doubtful. It also becomes possible for a person to be convicted on offences relating to speed, reckless, dangerous or careless

[The Minister for Power and Communications] driving although the nature of the alleged offence may not be specified within fourteen days of its commission which has been a requirement hitherto. Those who know the provisions of this particular law will realize that when a police officer fines a driver whom he believes needs to be prosecuted some time in the future, he has to serve him with a notice of prosecution. Now, Sir, in some of these cases, careless or reckless drivers have been able to escape penalties because of this technicality. This amendment, therefore, is intended to remove this technicality so that it will be possible to procure a conviction despite the fact that notice of intended prosecution has not been served on the accused.

Secondly, the powers of the Minister administering the Traffic Act have been expanded so as to enable him to make rules relating to professional driving schools and instructors, safety helmets for persons on motorcycles, pedestrian crossings and compulsory display on motor vehicles of current certificates of insurance. As hon. Members know, most of the accidents which are caused on our roads are caused by vehicles which are not road-worthy and most of them are not insured. To be able to maintain a high standard of road safety, it will now be necessary for every motor vehicle to carry and display a current, valid certificate of insurance. These additional powers will, for instance, enable the Minister to make it compulsory for all driving schools to be registered on payment of a fee and conditions such as that the establishment has adequate facilities for driving instructions, that the vehicles used in giving these instructions are mechanically sound and that all driving instructors obtain and hold valid driving instructor's licences. At the moment, Sir, it is difficult to ascertain that all the driving schools in the country and all the driving instructors are of a standard which should be permitted to embark on such a very important work of training people who are to be drivers on our roads.

It will also become possible to standardize all pedestrian crossings fixing a minimum width and defining the pedestrians' rights and/or priorities over the crossings.

The third category of the amendment, Sir, which is proposed in this Bill is the general increase of penalties for traffic offences in order to provide a deterrent to traffic offences. For instance, hon. Members will note that the maximum fine for conducting animals on a road in a dangerous manner is raised from Sh. 200 to Sh. 500 because it is considered that the roads are for the use of motor vehicles and if animals are to use the roads, naturally, the risk of accidents is increased; and in order to make the people who are keeping their animals near the roads to take greater care the penalty has been increased from Sh. 200 to Sh. 500.

For owning or driving a public service vehicle, which is not licensed on a road, the maximum penalty is raised from Sh. 2,000 to Sh. 10,000, and a possible imprisonment period of up to a year has been introduced. Hon. Members will agree with me that a lot of vehicles which, as I have said earlier, are not road-worthy are put on the road, they are not licensed because if the owner had applied for a licence he would not get it for the simple reason that the police would not have permitted a vehicle which is in such a dilapidated condition to be on the road. In that case, Sir, the Government cannot close its eyes and allow such poor vehicles to remain on the roads, becoming an increasing hazard and risk to other road users.

It should also be noted in clause 6 that provision for the forfeiture of vehicles is now made for a second or subsequent offence by the same person, whether the vehicle involved is the same or not. This is intended to make the owners of vehicles and drivers to be more careful and comply with all the provisions of the Traffic Act. For the breach of traffic rules which are made under the Traffic Act by the Minister, in the case of the first offence the maximum fine is to be raised from Sh. 600 to Sh. 5,000, and the permissible term of imprisonment from two months to six months. For second and subsequent convictions, the maximum fine is raised from Sh. 1,000 to Sh. 10,000 and the permissible term of imprisonment from three months to one year.

The hon. Member for Embakasi, Mr. Deputy Speaker, says that the motive of this Bill is money. The Government says that the purpose of this Bill is to save lives on Kenya roads, and the measures which the Government intends to legislate are intended to make the drivers, including we, hon. Members as drivers, to be more careful and cautious when we are on the roads. I am talking of myself as a driver. There is no vicarious liability in this case.

Sir, for carrying goods other than those allowed under the terms of the licence, a person becomes liable to a fine of up to Sh. 10,000 and/or imprisonment for a year.

Mr. Lubembe: Is that saving life?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Yes, it does in a way because some of these vehicles which do convey unauthorized traffic do contribute, to a certain extent, to a number of accidents on the roads.

[The Minister for Power and Communications]

For operating unroadworthy vehicles, over-speeding, over-loading, operating in unauthorized areas or zones, or routes, over-charging—when the hon. Member is charged Sh. 2 instead of Sh. 1—picking or dropping passengers at unauthorized points, in the cases of public service vehicles and not displaying timetables and faretables where applicable, a person becomes liable to a fine of up to Sh. 10,000 and/or imprisonment for a year.

Sir, I agree entirely with the hon. Member for Nakuru that I should ignore all the noises from behind me and I am effectively doing that.

For making false statements when applying for a licence, the penalty is increased from Sh. 1,000 to Sh. 10,000 and also there is permission for imprisonment which is to be raised from six months to 12 months. Sir, we did not fight for Uhuru so that our people should be slaughtered on the roads.

For driving or using a goods vehicle in contravention of any of the provisions of the Transport Licensing Act, one becomes liable to a fine of Sh. 5,000 or imprisonment of up to a year. What perhaps the hon. Member for Starehe and, to a certain extent, the hon. Member for Embakasi do not appreciate here is that the fine or the term of imprisonment specified in the Bill are, as usual, the maximum. There is always the discretion of the magistrate or the convicting court to look into the seriousness of the offence.

For transferring a licensed vehicle to another person by way of security for any purpose, without the consent of the licensing authority, one becomes liable to a fine of up to Sh. 1,000. In the second or subsequent offences to a fine of up to Sh. 2,000. This offence is quite prevalent where a licensee of a vehicle does transfer his rights on that vehicle without notifying the licensing authority or without obtaining the Transport Licensing Board's prior consent. This is intended to meet such a situation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, some few weeks ago, I think it was you, Sir, who asked the question as to what was being done in installing governors and other instruments which may help in controlling speed of the vehicles. I hope, Sir, you raised this question because you were motivated by the rate of fatal accidents which are taking place on the Kenya roads. I did, at that time, promise to the House that we intended to introduce stronger measures for controlling speed, and over-speeding by various vehicles.

For disobeying any police officer in uniform, when he is carrying out his duties under the Transport Licensing Act, and for not keeping records as to the hours of work, journeys, loads for six months from the date the record is made, a person becomes liable to a fine of up to Sh. 2,000 and for second and subsequent offences the fine is up to Sh. 10,000 and also there is a term of imprisonment, of up to a period of one year, which is permitted under this section.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Ministers, when they are driving—or anybody for that matter—are subject to this law since nobody has any immunity. If a Minister is found over-speeding, naturally, he will be brought to task. If there has been no Minister prosecuted for over-speeding, it is credit to them that they have not been—

Hon. Members: Question.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, clause number 10 provides for using a vehicle on a public highway without a valid third-party insurance cover. It is proposed to increase the possible maximum fine from Sh. 2,000 and/or imprisonment for a maximum term of six months, to Sh. 20,000.

An hon. Member: Sh. 20,000?

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Yes, and imprisonment of up to two years. The driver may also be disqualified from holding or obtaining a driving or provisional driving licence for a year or longer. The hon. Members may ask why the penalty in this case is so high, up to Sh. 20,000. It should be appreciated, Sir, that putting a vehicle on the road without an insurance is like putting a wild animal, a vicious animal, among children, and if it causes any damage, there is no remedy for those to whom the damage has been done. In order to ensure that owners of vehicles do meet their obligations in the event of vehicles being involved in accidents, it is being made imperative here that all motor vehicles should have insurance whenever it is necessary.

Clause number 12 concerns giving false information in order to obtain an insurance cover. Clause number 12, as the hon. Members will see, is prescribing what the penalty is for giving false information when applying for an insurance cover. It is vital that the record of the driver and the owner be properly known and disclosed to the insurance company so that they will be in a position to say whether the person they are insuring is a good risk or a poor risk, and whether they will be in a position, looking into the background or the record of the owner or the driver, to insure that person.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

An hon. Member: It is enough.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): It is not enough yet because in this case, when false information is given, the person giving the false information will be fined up to Sh. 10,000.

Clause No. 13, Sir, is for any offence under the Insurance (Motor Vehicles) (Third Party Risk) Act, or any rules made thereunder, the penalty is increased generally from Sh. 1,000 to Sh. 5,000, and/or permissible imprisonment term from three to six months.

Many of the common traffic and transport licensing offences have markedly increased in recent years. One main reason for this is considered to be the inadequacy of the present penalties and deterrents. This is why increases in penalties are generally being envisaged in the present Bill. Despite the year-to-year fluctuation, it is also evident that accident injuries have increased with the growth of vehicles. Given the continued economic development of Kenya and the growth of traffic, it is inevitable that the number of accidents will continue to increase if left unchecked. Analysis of the death and accident injuries between 1949 and 1966 show that such injuries are doubling in number every seven years. Over the same period, the number of road vehicles has increased by approximately 8 per cent per year. It is estimated that in the next 20 years, the total loss to Kenya through road accidents could be of the order of £150 million. This is a large sum of money to lose over a period of 20 years, and particularly considering the fact that almost the entire vehicle population is imported, thus causing a loss of foreign exchange. The estimated loss is based on the cost of damage to property, medical expenses for injuries, loss of output due to fatal injuries, and administrative expenses of insurance companies. It does not include any allowance for the human misery and suffering involved, or accurately account for the fact that the people killed in motor vehicles are frequently drawn from the administrative and executive classes that a country can least afford to lose.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the enormity of the wastage of national resources in road accidents provides the most compelling single reason for seeking every possible means of reducing them. It is also the main justification for proposing to increase penalties for traffic offences. No additional expenditure of public funds will be incurred by reason of the enactment of this Bill.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to inform the hon. Members that these measures have been taken after very careful study of the report on road safety which the Government commissioned several years back under the chairmanship of no lesser a personality than that of the Chief Justice of Kenya.

Now, Sir, with these words—I know the hon. Members who are as anxious as the Government, and myself, to see the stronger measures, in order to protect lives and property on Kenya roads, are taken—I commend this Bill to the hands of the hon. Members.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

POINT OF ORDER

MEMBERS TO BE PREPARED TO DISCUSS ANY ITEM ON ORDER PAPER

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since you can see the importance of this Bill, and since Members were prepared to listen to and debate the Fencing Bill, which has now been withdrawn until tomorrow, and as Order No. 8 is straightforward and does not need much study by the Members, may I move that the debate on this one be adjourned for Members to study carefully what the Minister has said, and then we debate it tomorrow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is premature to move that, because the question has not been proposed yet and we have not reached the debate; but I will just say now to hon. Members what I was going to say in a circular—and I think I will put it in a circular, too—that Members must be prepared to discuss anything which appears on the Order Paper for the day. The only reason for it appearing on the Order Paper is that we may reach it, and we do very often reach things unexpectedly through the absence of a Mover, or the collapse of a debate, or through the adjournment of a debate, or some other reasons. Hon. Members cannot assume that a particular item on the Order Paper is going to take a particular time. Really, this applies to Movers as well as those who want to join in the debate. You must be prepared for anything on the Order Paper of the day in which you wish to take part.

Does anybody second this?

(Resumption of Discussion on Bill)

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo) seconded.

(Question proposed)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It looks as though some hon. Members are ready to commence the debate, anyhow.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am pleased you have given us good information on how to study Bills. In fact, these Bills were circulated to Members during the recess, by post even, and therefore no excuse can be advanced here that Members do not know what the contents are. I excuse my hon. friend there, because he was very busy during the week-end at home.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the country knows very well that this Bill was coming because it was given publicity some time back. In fact, the people have been trying to contact their Members regarding the contents of this Bill to try to air their feelings, either for or against the contents. I know that a law like this one is very sensitive. One reason for that sensitivity is because it is not fully understood by the people in the countryside. On the other hand, it is because it is going to affect those people who own vehicles, some of whom are traders.

Sir, I can remember at one time when I was in England, and a law such as this was going to be enacted, whereby the speed was going to be limited. The Minister, Mrs. Barbara Castle, was in trouble with the whole country, because of trying to limit the speed to 70 miles per hour. People who owned Jaguars and other big cars were complaining because their speedometers went up to 120 miles per hour or 140, and they wanted to know what was the use of buying such vehicles if the Minister thought it fit to limit the speed to 70 miles per hour. Of course, they have the advantage of motorways.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this Bill, however sensitive it is, has some clauses which are very necessary if we are going to legislate at all for the good, the welfare and the lives of our people. Opposing a Bill like this out of hand is trying to oppose an issue or which an individual in this House would find it difficult to provide an alternative. We must be able to legislate, and do so with some courage and be daring enough to tell our people why we need such legislation. There is no point in being cowardly legislators.

Mr. Speaker, turning to the Bill, I know one disadvantage we have is our road system. In fact, we have roads which are very narrow, and they have seen one of the main causes of these accidents. The other mistake is that of the manufacturers. The vehicles they are manufacturing today seem to be getting bigger and bigger as each year. Perhaps the market for large vehicles is on the increase, and therefore we have been unable to build roads which can march with the manufacturers. These two issues are already in conflict: the manufacturing of vehicles and the rate of development and maintenance and building of our roads. We have roads which were built by the prisoners of war in the 1940's. In those years, nobody in this country anticipated the increased use of motor vehicles. Indeed, the Colonial Government never anticipated the time when the Africans would have the thousands of cars they have today. Therefore the road system of the day, was in keeping with the European and Asian population that was able to buy vehicles in those days. Mr. Speaker, Sir, years have passed and the roads we have now, ought to be roads capable of catering to the situation as it is at the moment. So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, even if we have to blame the drivers, blame everybody else who is on those roads, we have to consider the making-up of the road system and that a manufacturing those vehicles. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister can have his own intelligence report, which he should be collecting, and contacting manufacturers in Tokyo, in Paris, in London in New York and other places and telling them exactly what kind of vehicles should be used on our roads for at least the next ten years, then they can give us the vehicles to suit these roads. If we cannot do that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this legislation of today will not be enough and we will have to come here with another alternative legislation. Therefore, let us not throw the whole blame on our people and punish them unjustly.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very much concerned with this Bill, with the fines being imposed on our people. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if a fine has been imposed, let us say, Sh. 10,000 because a person has not been able to display a licence or a timetable on his bus, then he goes in for ten years, or one year, something like that— They say a fine of Sh. 10,000 or such a fine and imprisonment of one year, or vice versa.

An hon. Member: Or both.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot understand, how the Minister calculates Sh. 10,000 and, then compares a Sh. 10,000 fine with an imprisonment of one year. If it is a question of income, Mr. Speaker, Sir—I think such bus owners cannot make a net profit of Sh. 10,000 in a year from one bus. Therefore, this fine is terribly exorbitant and unnecessary. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister should have seen fit to compare the income of those people and the amount they are actually capable of paying, instead of having a clause here which we know is going to be unworkable. Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of the bus owners will have to go to jail for one year, because they cannot afford those fines.

I have said in this House before, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that it is no use us legislating here a law that cannot be employed, a law that cannot be enforced. It is of no use, I know that the Minister, when he was moving the Bill, said that the Magistrates have discretionary powers, but I am not a lawyer, Mr. Speaker. You are, Mr. Speaker, and the hon. Mover is also a lawyer, and another one is sitting over there, very busy with housing problems. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what does the word "shall" imply in law? What does that imply? I think we will need a lecture from the Minister one of these days.

An hon. Member: He is not qualified to lecture.

Mr. Mwithaga: In my view, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is not actually discretionary as the Minister puts it. If the word "use" were there, then we would say that the Magistrates have discretionary powers, they can either use the fine, use imprisonment for a year, or both from discretionary conclusions. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, nearly all the punishments entrenched in this Bill carry the word "shall", which means that the whole thing is a forgone conclusion, and there is no way out.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am entitled to correct a misunderstanding of the effect of the law as it stands, or of this Bill. All these punishments, I think, without exception, are a certain figure of money not exceeding that figure or imprisonment not exceeding a certain period. So there is a very wide discretion there.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with you the discretion only comes after Sh. 10,000 because if it is a question of "not exceeding", then the Magistrate has the power to go to that maximum. He can go to that maximum and the defendant cannot actually question the power given to the Magistrate. He cannot question it. This is why I am arguing, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not want you to imagine or make the House believe that the Magistrate has no discretion.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, he has a discretion, which I would call a latitude. Now, Mr. Speaker, that is not understood by the common man in the street. Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, on this question of fines, the Minister should amend this Bill if he wants to have the support of this House, and the support of the country. People owning vehicles are not prepared to meet with reckless drivers on the roads. If he would want to woo the people to support him in this Bill, in this legislation, let him come with an amendment to reduce the maximum fines. We should have a ceiling which a person can actually afford. If he cannot afford this, then the court cannot order for his imprisonment because he has deliberately refused to pay that fine which he is capable of raising. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must always legislate in the full understanding and awareness that our people will be able to meet the requirements or the laws that we make.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the question of first conviction and second conviction, for using unlicensed vehicles, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Bill here says that such a second conviction, for using an unlicensed vehicle would entitle the court or the Registrar to order for the forfeiture of that vehicle. Now, Mr. Speaker, the human cry in the countryside is on this particular point and the fine. All the others are not of any material interest to the people. The two important issues are the fine and the forfeiture of vehicles. If the Minister instituted a referendum, in order to find out whether the people are very much concerned with those two points, I can assure him that he would find that the Bill would be rejected totally.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is true that using an unlicensed vehicle is a very serious offence because such a vehicle could be a stolen vehicle, could be a black market vehicle. It could be a vehicle intended for criminal purposes. That could be, Mr. Speaker, but how would the Minister compare the inability to pay a licence of Sh. 200 with the cost of the vehicle of £19,000? It is terrible, Mr. Speaker. I do not know who taught this Minister mathematics. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it has something to do with mathematics, Mr. Speaker, Sir, because if failing to raise Sh. 200 would cost a person £19,000, then, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I still question the teacher who taught the Minister mathematics.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister has in mind the matatus, the ordinary transport or the carriage car. If he has this in mind, then he should tell this House, with absolute honesty, that he is legislating against the use of the matatus. However, by generalizing here, even an owner of a bus who might have fallen sick and gone to the hospital and, unfortunately, the police get hold of his vehicle before the driver can contact the owner of the vehicle involved, and this vehicle happens to have become a victim of this law a second time through no deliberate intention of any person, this man will find his bus forfeited when he is sick in a hospital ward.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very arrogant clause and I do not believe we are here to legislate arrogantly; we must be very humble gentlemen, and that is why we are called honourable.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Who is arrogant?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister asks me who is arrogant: the clause is arrogant. I can assure the Minister that the pirate vehicles are being used by poor people, most of whom cannot find an alternative source of income.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): So what?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not worried when the Minister for Information says, "So what" about the pirate cars. He does not care whether those people can find employment anywhere or not; he is not worried at all because he is fully employed and he has the big job of Minister; but next year, when we go the elections, the people will decide whether that employment can last any more or not. These pirate drivers will decide with their votes, and when the Minister says "So what", he is abusing his voters.

Mr. Speaker, those pirate car owners, in fact, and if anybody tried to check I am sure the police would bear me witness, have not been able to find other employment and they deliberately refused to take that employment. They buy these vehicles with their Sh. 3,000 which they have been able to save to be able to make a living out of the Sh. 3,000 instead of using it on beer and other things. However, here we introduce a stringent, arrogant clause which such people will not be able to escape from.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Why?

Mr. Mwithaga: The Minister is asking "Why?" I am glad that he is doing so because the reason is that a person who owns a pirate car pays a rent to the municipality for the house he lives in with his kids—Sh. 130 per month. He pays Sh. 60 a month for each of his children going to school. If he has five children, that is Sh. 60 times five, which totals to Sh. 300 a month; this is in addition to Sh. 130 for house rent. Sir, he buys his own petrol and he spends about Sh. 100 per month on petrol. This man uses the simplest food, muthere or ucuru or ugali, and this costs that common man Sh. 100. This is Sh. 630 altogether, and then this man is expected to maintain his car in the garages and its costs him approximately another Sh. 200 a month to keep the car fit to be on the road. The total is Sh. 830. Now, Mr. Speaker, this man can be faced with a situation whereby it is impossible to be timely in paying for his licence. I am not saying that he should own this car without a licence at all, but I am saying we should not legislate so that we empower the police and the Registrar-General to grasp money which is important to those people. The sun does not shine every time and we must bear the problems of those people in mind when we legislate here, and we should be humble when we are approaching those problems.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, instead of empowering the courts to order for the forfeiture of these vehicles on the second conviction, we should say on the fifth conviction, and then we will allow the courts to have reason to believe that this man has deliberately defied the law, because he is already a habitual offender and continues committing this offence despite the court's warnings. A person committing a similar offence a fifth time, no man should have mercy on him. However, to punish him on the second offence is terrible. I know the Minister intends to create situations which are preventive so that we do not have this becoming a habit. It is true that to be preventive is right and good, but if we are preventive in this manner, then we are not preventive at all and are only trying to exploit the poverty of these people.

Mr. arap Biy: Are you supporting?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very independent in my conscience and I do not need the hon. Member for Buret to question my conscience. Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member comes from a place where this offence is not likely to occur because it is a farming area where the public are concerned with tractors and a few lorries that are used for carrying milk to the dairies—there is not as many vehicles as we see in the towns, motor highways and cities.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the hon. Member, Mr. Mwithaga, is not really misrepresenting or imputing improper motives on the people of Buret, or Kericho District for that matter, when he categorically says that there are no motor vehicles in that area and there are only probably cattle and nothing else?

Mr. Mwithaga: No point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think he is out of order, but he may be wrong in his facts.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, you understood, just as I did, that the Member only wants to keep the House warm and thinking of Kericho. I quite agree, we should think of Kericho.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have advanced the point which I believe the Minister has seriously noted. We should reduce the possibility of forfeiting these vehicles on the second conviction to the fifth conviction, and I know the Minister is feeling concerned about it because he knows the kind of society in which we live.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, in relation to the question of forfeiture of the vehicles, it is stated here that there is the question of the discretionary powers of the magistrate. In fact, what I said was that a vehicle

[The Minister for Power and Communications] is liable for forfeiture after the second or subsequent offence. Subsequent can mean any after the first one. Therefore, in fact, in this case, we agree that the powers are liberal enough to take your point into consideration.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, the information from the Minister is not a new discovery because he said that in this House and I noted it. However, the point is that he is not prepared to tell us what the word "subsequent" implies in this clause. It specifically refers to the second conviction for the second offence, or subsequent. That is all right. However, Sir, if that word "second" did not come in, I would not quarrel with the word "subsequent". What I wanted was for it to say on the fifth or any subsequent conviction.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Where did you get that fifth?

Mr. Mwithaga: I want the Minister to amend it to read fifth to allow time for people to adjust themselves.

Mr. Speaker, the other point is—for the information of the Minister—if I go specifically through each clause you will find clause 2 says, if I may quote:—

"Subsection (1) of section 40 of the Traffic Act is hereby amended by the deletion of the words 'Upon application by a police officer of or above the rank of Assistant Superintendent'."

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very serious point. If you read on page 87, you will find that section 40 of the current law, subsection (1), says:

"... the Registrar may—

(a) revoke the driving licence of any person who appears, in the opinion of the Registrar, to be suffering from a disease or disability likely to cause the driving by him of a motor vehicle to be a source of danger to the public;"

Mr. Speaker, I completely disagree with any powers being vested in the Registrar anyhow. Let us use the Judiciary. We have the courts of law very independently established by this nation. Here, the general powers are given to the police so that upon application by a police officer of or above the rank of police superintendent to the Registrar, the Registrar can use the powers given to him in subsection (a) and (b). These powers should be vested in the courts, in the magistrates, so that this person appears in a court of law and is able to defend himself against any proposal by the court for the cancellation or withdrawal of his driving licence. That is the place where this man has got freedom to express his defence, to advance his defence. What will happen if the police just believe that So-and-so has been convicted twice or thrice on this or that offence, or they see him drinking a lot of whisky or brandy, and he has never been charged for having been drunk, or anything else happens which makes the police believe that this man is perhaps not normal, and a mental hospital has not proved that this man is mentally deficient? How do we agree then, that they should have the right to apply to the Registrar for the forfeiture of this man's driving licence?

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, under Standing Order No. 21 (1) I wish to move the adjournment of the debate on this Bill—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. arap Biy, that is not something that can be done on a point of order. When you have caught my eye, and have the Floor in the course of the debate, it is a Motion that you can make with the leave of the Speaker; but you have to wait your turn until you have caught my eye.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, the House will be surprised to see the hon. Member, who is so intelligent, rising and trying to interfere with such an interesting and important law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the word there is "revoke", and we all know what revoke means. That is doing away with it. This person will not be a licence-holder any more because it will be revoked. Therefore, why should we give such powers to the police and to the Registrar alone. My feeling here, Sir, is—and I hope the Minister will consent to this feeling because I have the right to advance them here and that is why I am sent here—that we should use the good offices of the court.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwithaga, you may have a good point there but I am afraid you cannot raise it on this Bill. As I have often explained, when we have a Bill for amending laws, we can only deal with the proposed amendments and not the substance of the law which is being amended. You see, there is no alteration proposed here of the principle that the Registrar has the power to revoke; all this alters is the officer who can apply for the revocation. Therefore, you have to keep to that point I am afraid.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, you are very right. Clause 2, which is intending to amend subsection (1) of Section 40, gives us to understand that the amended subsection will now include the Registrar, who is not covered by the current Act. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am objecting to this question

[Mr. Mwithaga] of the Registrar being included in this amendment, because the current act does not give the Registrar any powers; he is given powers by this amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Mwithaga. You are referring to the description, attached to the Bill, of Section 40 (1) as it now stands, which gives the Registrar this power; the only amendment proposed by Clause 2 of the Bill is the rank of the officer who can apply to the Registrar, and that is all we can discuss.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree with you, but I had better leave it there. However, the Minister has nodded his head in agreement and he has taken note that even if the current law is as such, he is prepared to amend it so that people are taken to court and they are tried there and they can exercise their defence under our judiciary law.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other thing was the powers being given to the Minister to make rules. The Minister is being given powers to make rules—

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): I will use them very carefully.

Mr. Mwithaga: I agree that he will use them very carefully, but I do not know why he should tell me before I speak.

Mr. arap Biy: He is not permanent.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Minister knows he is not permanent, I am worried about him.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must caution him on the rules he is going to make because they must be rules which he believes are completely workable. It has happened—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which clause are you referring to, Mr. Mwithaga?

Mr. Mwithaga: Well, you know, Mr. Speaker, I have read the whole Bill and I know it by heart, but as far as referring to clauses is concerned, it is a big problem.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Which clause?

An hon. Member: He has no idea.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will trace the clause but, you know, I read the whole Bill and I know it off by heart; I normally do not refer to these papers.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members would make it a great deal easier for us to follow them if they would refer to the particular clause they have in mind. Also, I have to make sure that there is a clause in the Bill to which they are entitled to refer as relevant. I am sure you have it there.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, honestly I would not tell the Chair I had read a particular clause unless I am sure I have done so. I am now referring to clause 8, which is on page 88. Mr. Speaker, this is intending to replace the current clause. Mr. Speaker, under clause 8 the Minister is still left with the powers to make rules. This is what I am talking about, Mr. Speaker. These rules, sometimes, Mr. Speaker, are made by Ministers not understanding that some of them are actually unworkable, and therefore the law does not create any solution at all. It does not even provide a workable solution, or a solution that is convenient to our people. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I believe rules which are made should be as few as possible. Most of them may become tricky; and when they are tricky, the police get a loophole because they can always refer to the rules made by the Minister with authenticity based on actual law. They have the force of law because they are based on the main law.

Mr. Speaker, this makes more laws out of one law from the mind of one man, that is the Minister. I caution him to make very, very few rules with regard to the question of traffic—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Again, Mr. Mwithaga, I have to keep you relevant. The only alteration proposed here is the alteration of the penalties which the Minister can prescribe for breach of his rules. If you want to say that, because of the danger of rules made by a Minister, there should not be a very heavy maximum penalty for breach, that is all right. We cannot have you advising the Minister as to what rules he should make, other than the rules concerning penalties.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, honestly I was coming to this point and I do not know why you have taken out food from my mouth.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is the only relevant point, you see.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was talking about few rules because I believe many rules could bring complications. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, Sir, as you rightly said, I was coming to that point of heavy maximum penalty. It is no good for the Minister to have these powers to direct anything to do with these fines. I believe, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the main Act, apart from these rules, does provide for those fines. These fines will only be fines in relation to breach of the rules he will make.

Therefore, the rules must be very simple and where there is no possibility of breaking them, and where the question of heavy fines does not arise.

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, without dwelling very much on this as I have made my two points, the question of fines and the question of road systems which the Minister took note of, and he should reply to these and give us the usual promises and especially for the time he is going to be there, that is for another nine months, if he could enforce them we would be only too pleased.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reserve my support.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, although we have been disturbed with the news of people being killed on the Kenya roads, we are of the opinion that this kind of Bill is not really going to the root of the problem. This Bill merely makes the punishments more severe for the drivers, and so on, who are involved in accidents by increasing the fines to be paid, and by things like forfeiture of vehicles and also long jail sentences for the people who have accidents, and are lucky enough not to be killed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this approach, in our view, is not the correct one. The approach to the problem of accidents on Kenya roads should be much broader than what is included in the Bill. I do not think we should aim at punishing the driver as being the main remedy and so on, or the owner of the vehicle, because one thing we are quite sure about is that no one wants to die. Anybody who drives a car on the road does not want to die. None of us want to die. Nor do they want to disfigure their cars, or hit other cars. These are accidents, and we should look for the causes of the accidents rather than trying to penalize whoever is involved in an accident.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the whole problem of accidents on Kenya roads, I think, affects this House very much because since we came here we have lost so many Members of the National Assembly through dying on the roads, and we spend most of our time on the roads—so the matter is very close to us. As a matter of fact, it is some kind of domestic problem so far as we are concerned. I think they should think in terms of the drivers who are employed by companies, or by others who can afford drivers. These are poor people who have to do driving as a way of earning their livelihood. If we make things too difficult for them, then we are not being fair. We have the drivers of the lorries, and of the tankers on our roads and so on, and these are the people who are trying to make a living out of that job. They have taken this up as their professional work, and I do not think they want to die purposely. We should find out why these accidents do occur and try to tackle the problem in broader way.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think one of the things which should be looked into is the engineering defects of the vehicles which are using our roads today. I think it has been said, many times in this House during Question Time, that many of the vehicles on the Kenya roads today are too long. I do not know where they are coming from. You can find a vehicle with about three parts. It looks like a small train on the road. If this sort of thing is allowed to go on, then naturally we will have accidents.

There are no regulations about lighting for these lorries. Some of them have lights on the side and some of them do not have anything at all. So, as soon as you pass the head, you think there is nothing there, and then you knock yourself against the tank. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is one of the things which the Minister should have looked into. The control of engineering defects of our vehicles. Some of them are too long.

Some of the vehicles here are left-hand drive. If we are going to drive on the left as we do, then all the steering wheels should be on the right for everybody. If some are sitting on the left, and some on the right, then of course, you are likely to have accidents.

Mr. Speaker, another thing which I think has been pointed out by a Member in this House is the question of exhaust pipes. Some of these lorries, you find, have the exhaust pipe facing the road, and when you try to pass such a vehicle it is as if it is burning something and you cannot even see the road. Why cannot the exhaust pipes be on the outside? It appears some of the vehicles were really made for countries where they drive on the right. This is why they have the exhaust pipes bringing smoke on the roads. The exhaust pipe should face the outside, or even upwards so that the smoke goes up.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, lights should be controlled. People have various numbers of lights on their cars. Some have four, some five, some looking upwards and some upwards—they are awful. Some are red, and some yellow. Mr. Speaker, Sir, how are we to avoid accidents? Sometimes you think you are meeting two or four vehicles when it is only one. These are some of the things which I think should be looked into, and they are the things which could prevent the accidents, Mr. Speaker.

The other point is about the roads. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must appreciate the people who made the roads here a long time ago because engineering work was difficult and they did their best. We must realize that many of our roads are out of date. They have very sharp corners and they are also narrow. You find many of the signs

[Mr. Okelo-Odongo] are written in English and the majority of our drivers are Swahili speakers. Some of the signs are not read by anybody, and again you find they are not visible enough. They should be made more visible and more symbols should be used rather than the writing. You have no time to stop the car and read what you are being warned about. By the time you have read one sentence you are already leaving the road. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the signs on the road should be easily readable. If you are approaching a corner, then it should have a big sign which can be seen at night as well as during the day. If it is a narrow road, then we should also get a warning and if it is a steep place we should also get a warning, and so on. The signs on the roads are not clear enough and there is no reason why the roads which are near the city should not be properly lit. There should also be proper regulations on how to use your lights.

If there are lights in the city, and if the road signs in the city are lit, then there is no reason why people should use full lights on their vehicles there. In some cities you find people just use their parking lights because the cities are well lit and you do not have to use your own lights. Some of them here are not well lit but they should be lit properly so that people using vehicles at night do not have to use full lights because these are the lights which blind drivers and cause accidents.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it has also been raised in this House that there should be some regulations with regard to drivers being employed by unscrupulous employers who want to use one driver to carry all kinds of goods from Mombasa to Kampala—this is in one night. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is beyond human capacity. There comes a time when the driver becomes tired and cannot help falling asleep or seeing two cars instead of one and so on. First of all, the people who have to transport goods from Mombasa to Kampala, or Kisumu, must be regulated and there should be two or three drivers so that they can change while on the road and they do not become tired.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, another interesting thing on the roads is that you meet these cars with white number plates; this means they are hired cars and some of the people who drive them are people who have come from abroad and probably they are used to driving on the right in their own country. They come here for just one day and they can walk into any of these places and hire a car and then they start driving themselves. I have seen some of these people driving very dangerously on Kenya roads, and you can see that this person does not really know the signs on Kenya roads, or whether he has the right of way or if he should stop and so on. I think there should be regulations with regard to foreigners who come from the Congo, from America, from France or Germany and who can just take out a car. I think if anybody who comes from a place where they drive on the right must have a driver when he is in Kenya. He does not know how to drive on the left. I think these are some of the regulations which should be looked into.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point is that I think we should be severe on the drivers; but we must also remember there are cyclists who do not have to take any tests. Some of them ride their bicycles standing up, some use one hand, some use no hands at all—they just put their hands behind them and continue riding. They are also road users and they can be knocked down; and if you do it, then the whole responsibility lies with you. I am suggesting, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the cyclists should be closely watched, and that there should be a standard set for cyclists. Our roads should be able to provide certain places where our cyclists can cyle; as a matter of fact they do this in other cities, so that they have their own side where they can cycle. In any case, I think, there must be some standard set for the cyclists, so that they may not do what they want, make corners when they want, put up their hands when they want and things like that. The same thing, of course, applies to the pedestrians. Those people who walk on the roads should be warned and also be fined, and we should see the police arresting some of the pedestrians for violating the traffic regulations, because sometimes the pedestrians are violent.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, many of our roads are very narrow and, therefore, accidents are unavoidable. With regard to the intention of the Bill, I know it wants to stop accidents on the roads and that is why it is making the punishments more severe. I also want to say that this is a narrow approach which is not fair, it is just hard on the poor drivers who have to make a living. It is not seeing what the Government should do, and it is high time that the Kanu Government opened its eyes so that it can see—if it can see at all—because there are a lot of things that are wrong which are causing these accidents. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the roads are narrow, and should have proper signs so that when you are approaching bridges you can know the meaning.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Okelo-Odongo. I have allowed you to turn this debate on a particular Amendment Bill into a general debate on road safety, because I think it is relevant. When a Bill is aimed entirely at road safety, it is relevant to say "Well this is not the way to achieve road safety", but I cannot allow hon. Members to go into great details on the other remedies, and still less repeat themselves on what they have said.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: I think, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I have come to the end of the point I wanted to make, with the last one on the bridges which should be protected.

With these few remarks, I beg to oppose the Bill as it is.

Mr. arap Biy: I stand to——

Mr. Karungaru: Oppose it!

Mr. arap Biy: I do not want to oppose the Bill as it stands, but what I would like to suggest is a further consultation between the Minister and the Back-benchers because this Bill, as the Minister explained to the House, is a Bill which will save many lives in this country, and I thought, Mr. Speaker, we would have had some free discussions on this Bill, because there are some good points which will help reduce accidents. However, in some other clauses there are some extremely harsh punishments, which, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, will not really reflect any goodwill of this Parliament. We would like the members of the public to know that we are making laws which are for their own good. We do not want to punish the public generally, simply because there are a few bad men—bad drivers—who do not wish to comply with the laws of the land. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to take a lot of time because I have only one more suggestion to make.

This suggestion, Sir, is not really trying to undermine the wisdom of the Minister for Power and Communications, and the Government as a whole, but should go a long way to assist the good intentions of this Ministry. Mr. Speaker, I would like to suggest that this debate be adjourned so that we may have time for free discussion with the Minister for Power and Communications and summon a meeting for all—the Back-benchers—and sit somewhere in one of the rooms in this House regardless of being KPU Members or Kanu Members. We would like to have all hon. Members sitting outside this House and then have free discussions, free opinions being given, and I hope the Minister for Power and Communications will take those considerations into effect. I hope, Mr. Speaker, when debate on this Bill is resumed next time we will have more to say on it and we will have more positive clauses, and better amendments brought forward by the Minister in charge of the Ministry in question.

MOTION

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBATE: THE TRAFFIC
(AMENDMENT OF LAWS) BILL

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the adjournment of this debate.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It may seem a rather curious proposition that a matter of this kind should be further discussed by all Members outside this House, when it would appear to be capable of discussion equally well in this House, but I think it is the kind of Motion for adjournment of debate which I must allow the House to consider. The only thing is, if it is seconded, I think I should put the Question without any debate, as to whether there should be any adjournment or not.

You second him, do you Mr. Karungaru?

Mr. Karungaru: I stand also to second the adjournment of this debate because, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the Minister was moving this Bill we failed to understand why he was so very parochial on money. We think this Bill is for money; and if it is a new industry that the Minister wants to create for making money, he had better tell this House. It is for this very reason, Mr. Speaker, Sir, taking into consideration the dangers ahead, and at the same time knowing that money is not at all going to save our lives, we must adjourn this debate so that we may scrutinize it properly. However, we have failed to see the meaning and also the reason that the Minister has given to this House this afternoon.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we regard the Minister who has moved this Bill as a very capable Minister. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this afternoon the Minister has shown us that he is no longer capable. It is for this reason that we are now trying to put off this debate until we know the reason why he is too much after money.

Thank you.

Mr. Shikuku: Is it in order for the Member to allege or impute that the Minister is after money?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think, Mr. Shikuku, you must take that statement in the context in which it fits. It does not mean that the Minister is personally after money; what he means is, very obviously, that in the Bill the Minister seems to be interested in imposing high fines. He is not alleging anything improper against the Minister personally. I think that is very obvious.

[The Deputy Speaker]

Anyway, I will propose the question which is, that the Traffic (Amendment of Laws) Bill debate be adjourned. I will also put the question in terms I have proposed.

(Question proposed)

(Debate Thereupon Adjourned)

MOTIONAMENDMENT TO STANDING ORDERS

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to move an amendment to Standing Orders to bring them in conformity with the Constitution of Kenya. If I may have a copy of this Constitution I would like to quote.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Standing Order No. 4, lays down the methods of election of the Speaker, the procedure for election of the Speaker. I would like to read the Constitution here, so that the hon. Members may be brought into light, for I know they might wish—

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the Minister to start talking without moving the actual Motion?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He might move it in the course of the debate, although he has not done it as yet. That is all right.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): I think the hon. friend should know pretty well that I know how to move a Motion; I have been here long enough to know how to move a Motion.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Motion, as it is, says—that Standing Orders be amended; and I beg to move:—

THAT, Standing Orders be amended:—

(a) by adding at the end of Standing Order 4 the following paragraph:—

“(10) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary hereinbefore appearing, if there is not more than one candidate who has been duly nominated, that candidate shall be declared forthwith to have been elected Speaker, without any ballot or minimum vote being required.”

(b) by substituting in Standing Order 25(1) for the words “the attention of Mr. Speaker or the Chairman of Committees is called to the fact”, in the third and fourth lines thereof, the words “any Member objects.”

(c) by inserting in paragraph (b) of Standing Order 61, after the word “majority”, in the second line thereof, the words “and the Noes have not numbered thirty-five per cent of all Members of the House or more.”

Mr. Deputy Speaker, all what I am seeking is the agreement of this hon. House to bring the Standing Orders in conformity with our Constitution of Kenya so that everything will run smoothly.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when we look at Section 37 of our Constitution, paragraph 1, it reads:—

“There shall be a Speaker of the National Assembly, who shall be elected by the Assembly, in accordance with the Standing Orders, from among persons who are members of the Assembly or are qualified to be elected as such members, other than the President, the Vice-President, Ministers, Assistant Ministers and the Attorney-General.”

This is the place where we would like Standing Order No. 4, which also reads Mr. Speaker:—

“(1) A Speaker shall be elected when the House first meets after any General Election and before the House proceeds with the despatch of any other business.”

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is the question of marrying the Standing Orders to the Constitution, and I do not want to labour much on that because hon. Members are aware of this. It is thought that where such election is contested, there shall be a wish to keep the present position of this Standing Order, and formerly of the Constitution for a ballot of two-thirds majority up to the third ballot, but where there is only one nomination, the House desires to dispense with such formalities and to accept that any candidate is automatically elected. Therefore, Standing Order No. 4 could be amended as I have read, to marry Section 37 (1) of the Kenya Constitution, and then we have the whole thing running systematically.

Now, turning to Standing Order 25, Mr. Deputy Speaker—

This is another amendment we have in section 51 of our Constitution of Kenya which requires a Speaker to take an action of lack of quorum, only if an hon. Member actually objects that there is no quorum. The proposed amendment of this standing order brings the whole thing into line, and I want to read Standing Order 25 (1):—

“If at any time after the business of the House has commenced, or when the House is in Committee, the attention of Mr. Speaker or the Chairman of Committees is called to the fact that there is not a quorum present, Mr. Speaker or the Chairman shall count the House or the Committee as the case may be. If on the first count a quorum does not appear to be present, Mr. Speaker or the Chairman shall cause the Division Bell to be rung, as on a Division, and if no quorum be present before the expiration of three minutes from the commencement of the ringing of the Bell, he shall, after the lapse of such further time as he may deem reasonable, announce to the House, or to the Committee as the case may be, that there is not a quorum present and shall proceed as follows:—

[The Minister for Housing]

- (a) If Mr. Speaker be in the Chair he shall adjourn the House without question put until the next sitting.
- (b) If the House be in Committee, the Chairman shall leave the Chair and report the fact to Mr. Speaker, who shall adjourn the House without question put until the next sitting.

Whenever Mr. Speaker or the Chairman, as the case may be, is engaged in counting the House or the Committee respectively, the doors shall remain unlocked."

Standing Order 61 (b) is the question of Division, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and the proposal is to amend the Standing Order to bring it more into line with section 47 (3) of the Constitution of Kenya, which was amended by the Constitution Act 1969.

Now these amendments may fail before what factually, they were designed to do to make Standing Orders follow more closely in line with the Constitution as it now stands, except for the new provision which will guard the election of the Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with those few remarks I beg to move.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange) seconded.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have been trying to follow the hon. Mover, but I just seem to be in a position of thinking that he moved nothing. I hear him saying it is because I do not understand, but I have been in this House for the last few years and I believe I am not an idiot. I am capable of following things done in this House probably much better than the hon. Minister. For example, when he was referring to (b), he just read something from the Standing Orders and he never referred to section 43 of the Constitution, which he talked about but failed to read to us. I was wondering whether it would not have been better for the Minister to give us the references from the Constitution and from Standing Orders so that we could know what he was doing. But for the moment, Sir, I must confess I am completely at sea as to what the hon. Members have been told. I do not know what the Minister has moved. He just made a movement from his seat to the Table and back from the Table to his seat. If that is the movement, then he has moved nothing.

Sir, I was only on a point of order, I was not contributing to the debate because I am confused and completely at sea. I was on a point of order, Sir, and wonder if you could possibly enlighten the House as to what the Minister has moved because I just do not know.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I do not know, but I think the Minister made it quite clear as to what he was moving. There are three aspects and I think I understood the first two quite clearly.

The first one is that there will be no election if there is only one candidate for Speaker; it does not have to go through the whole process of election, if I remember rightly, which we had before.

The second one is very important as far as hon. Members are concerned. In the past an hon. Member merely said, "I think there is no quorum", and what the Member now has to say is, if he wants to take objection to the lack of quorum, "I object to the lack of quorum". It is not enough just to draw the attention of the Speaker to the fact that there is no quorum; he has to stand up and object to the lack of a quorum.

The third one, I am not sure myself what it is. I am afraid I did not quite follow it. The trouble is, unfortunately, that my copy of the Constitution was taken by the Minister. I am sure the Minister would, if you would like him to, repeat the particular point and explain it again. That is (c).

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, perhaps I moved too fast for the hon. Member for Butere to listen to me and—

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since what the hon. Minister is trying to do has never happened before, is it not in order that we require the Minister to bring all the relevant papers, relevant parts of the Constitution which have to be amended? Is that not the procedure?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): In the case of an amendment to a Bill, that is the procedure. This is not a Bill, and so it is not strictly necessary. We are only amending Standing Orders here.

[The Deputy Speaker]

It would, of course, I think have been a great help if the Minister had distributed, as Mr. Shikuku has suggested, all the relevant sections, both of the Constitution and the Standing Orders to show hon. Members what is intended. I am sure he will do that next time.

With the leave of the House we will give the Minister another opportunity to explain paragraph (c). I have tried to explain paragraphs (a) and (b) to the best of my ability, but I am sure you will explain (c) a little more, Mr. Ngei.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Thank you, Sir. First of all I must say that next time I know that the—

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is it in order for the Minister to move a Motion the second time when he has failed the first time?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): It is not a question of having failed, Mr. Mwalwa. We are trying to give him an opportunity to explain something that perhaps some hon. Members, including myself, have not understood as fully as we should have. Perhaps it is our fault as well, we should have done a bit of homework as well and come prepared after having looked up the relevant sections of the Standing Orders and the Constitution.

I am sure you will all agree, however, that we will all be wiser if we gave the Minister another chance to explain this particular part (c). I am afraid I cannot do it because I do not have the copy of the Constitution with me. I am sure the Minister will explain.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, one very capable Member has a copy of the Constitution, the new copy, I mean, and that is hon. Lubembe. This means, of course, that hon. Lubembe takes his work seriously.

Paragraph (c) refers to Standing Order 61. I am sure every hon. Member has his copy of Standing Orders. I would like to read slowly, Sir, for the benefit of hon. Members. Standing Order 61 (b) is the one we are amending. All I am proposing is that after the word "majority" we insert "and the Noes have not numbered 35 per cent of all Members of the House or more". So the amendment reads:

"if the Division on that question results in a majority of Ayes and the Noes have not numbered 35 per cent of all Members of the House or more, Mr. Speaker may direct one further Division on the same question to be held within seven days from the date of that first Division; but if he does not so direct any further Division, or if on such further Division the fixed majority is not obtained, he shall declare the Motion is negatived."

In other words, Sir, he will declare the Motion defeated on the second Division. That is all what I am trying to say.

Mr. Shikuku: Where does this marry with the Constitution?

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Deputy Speaker, hon. Shikuku is trying to ask me where that does marry into the Constitution. I am afraid I have moved this and I cannot go on reading. If you have not done your homework, then I am sorry for you.

Sir, all what I am trying to move is that the words in (c) are inserted in Standing Order 61 (b) in order to give a more democratic approach to the whole affair.

I beg to move that the House notes the amendments as scheduled in the Order Paper under (a), (b) and (c).

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Perhaps I can add a little to what the Minister has said, and that is this. There are certain clauses in the Constitution—sections in the Constitution—which require a fixed majority of Members present and voting. The first part of section 61 says that, for example, if we need 65 per cent to amend a particular section of the Constitution, and we do not have 65 per cent of the Members present here, then as we know, or as hon. Members are aware, Mr. Speaker usually directs that the Division be postponed to another day.

Now, the second part says that if we take a vote, and if at the end of the vote the Ayes have a majority but do not have a 65 per cent majority, then Mr. Speaker, can direct that another Division takes place within one week so that the majority can be increased; in other words, the House can have a larger number and, perhaps, get the 65 per cent votes which are required to amend a particular section of the Constitution. This is the position as it now is.

The amendment seeks merely to say this; that not only must the Ayes be in the majority, but the Noes must not be 35 per cent. This means that even if the Ayes are in the majority, but the Noes have 35 per cent or more, then there will be no second Division. I think this is what it means.

I am sure I have made the position fairly clear.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Sir, for the explanation. Now I know where I stand. Certainly, however, the Minister failed in his first attempt to convince the House. Had it not been for you,

[Mr. Shikuku]

Sir, (a) would not have been understood at all. Now we know why (a) is there. Last time when we were electing our Speaker there was no one opposing him and yet we had to go through the tedious procedure of voting for the Speaker. This is a welcome change which we support.

I hear the ex-Chief questioning. Unfortunately, he was not in the House when this was happening. Sir, I know that when we were electing the present Speaker of the National Assembly—and I can substantiate this beyond any shadow of doubt—hon. Mr. Khaoya—

Mr. Khaoya: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, can the hon. Member substantiate that when you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and the Speaker of the National Assembly were elected I was not here—at the time of the dissolution of the Senate? You ex-seminary fellow.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I do not really know whether we want to go into this. I think the other hon. Member is right and you are also right. There were two elections and probably he is referring to the first election, and you are probably referring to the second one. In any case, it does not really matter. Carry on, Mr. Shikuku.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to call the hon. Mr. Shikuku, "You ex-seminary fellow"?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I am sorry, I did not hear that. If you did say that, Mr. Khaoya, it is quite out of order. You must withdraw that. I do not think that any Member needs to be personal in these things. I have told you so many times about this. Please withdraw.

Mr. Khaoya: I will withdraw but—

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! no; no buts. If you said something, then you merely withdraw; there should be no buts.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, if that is the case, is it not fair that the hon. Member now speaking should refrain from calling the other Member 'ex-Chief'? He was only retaliating.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I do not know that the word 'ex-Chief' would be considered derogatory, but I think the words, 'ex-seminary fellow', and certainly the word 'fellow' would be considered derogatory. I think I am much more entitled to withdraw that.

In any case, however, please let us not get personal.

Mr. Shikuku: I do not see any point where we disagree. I was talking of 1963 and at that time the Member was not here.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Let us speak to the Standing Orders.

Mr. Shikuku: I will reserve my guns or bullets for another day when I will fix him.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

There is no quarrel here as far as I am concerned because I recall very clearly, Sir, that when we were electing the present Speaker, and you, Sir, there was no opposition and yet we had to cast our votes. That was a waste of time. At that time my friend, hon. Khaoya, the ex-Chief was not there. Therefore, we should not waste any more time if there is nobody to oppose the Speaker. Let us have things done quickly. That is why I support (a).

Coming to (b), where any Member objects to a lack of quorum, this is normal and I agree with this. This has also been ably explained by the Deputy Speaker.

I come now to (c), which has also been ably explained by the Deputy Speaker. The Mover failed to give us a clear explanation.

I do not like this idea of re-doing things. We should only look into this question of the 'Noes' having 35 per cent. If they do have 35 per cent, then the whole Motion is thrown out and people forget about it. I would like, however, to point out one thing, Sir. We have had the problem of getting the right percentage in this House. Now, if the only loophole in this is that if there are 35 per cent who say, 'No', though we have a clear majority of the 'Ayes' we might be compelled to go to several attempts. Hon. Members can stay on here whenever we fail to get the majority of 'Ayes', and this may force us to go on with this same thing for a long time—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): 35 per cent of all Members. It is not only 35 per cent of those present. It is only when it is 35 per cent of all Members who have said 'No.' that you cannot have another go.

Mr. Shikuku: I see, Sir. If it is 35 per cent of all Members of the National Assembly—Or is it 35 per cent of all Members who are in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Of the National Assembly.

Mr. Shikuku: Oh, I see. If it is 35 per cent of the Members of the National Assembly, then I do not know how we shall be able to find that out because those who may not be present, in their cases we will not know if it is 'yes' or 'no'. It is very rarely, Mr. Speaker, that we can get all the Members of this House here and I do not recall any day when we have had 170 Members in this House. The number is always less. So if it is 35 per cent of the Members of the National Assembly—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is what the amendment says: "All Members of the House."

Mr. Shikuku: Physically speaking, Mr. Speaker, it will not be possible. I do not recall any time when we have had 170 Members sitting here, not even on the State Opening of Parliament. As a Chief Whip I have gone round but I have never been able to count 170 Members. This is physically impossible.

If it is 35 per cent of the Members of the National Assembly, then, theoretically, it may sound all right but, physically, I do not think that will be possible. Nonetheless, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not today, but tomorrow, perhaps.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, let us see. Perhaps on Budget Day we may be able to get that number. I will be on the lookout to count. I am sure I will not get 170 Members of this House.

I believe the amendment is quite welcome because we have to be in keeping with our Constitution. However, that will not be physically possible. It is my hope that we may be able to get the right majority without having to have this 35 per cent of Members saying 'No'. The problem will, however, be here. For those who will be absent, we cannot assume that they have said 'No' because they may have said 'Aye'. So how will we be able to make out those who said 'Aye' and those who said 'No' in relation to the absent Members, it will be pretty difficult.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to observe.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for interruption of business, hon. Members; but before asking a Minister to move adjournment I might point out, for the benefit of hon. Members against the resumption of this debate, that this particular amendment that Mr. Shikuku is discussing is simply giving effect to what is in the Constitution. It is not much good discussing whether or not it should be in the Constitution. It is there, and our Standing Orders have to march with the Constitution.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

HOLDING OF ILLEGAL COURTS BY A SUB-CHIEF IN KITUI

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will now call on a Minister to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister for Housing (Mr. Ngei): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the House will remember that on the 29th of last month, May 1969, I asked a Question by Private Notice of the Minister of State. To refresh the minds of hon. Members, I will read the contents of the Question. It said:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that on the 29th February 1969 in Mulango location, Thome 10 and 11, the sub-chief, Isika Kikulu formed an illegal court and fined a school-boy, namely, Ileli, Sh. 70;
- (b) that on the 29th February 1969, the same sub-chief held another illegal court and fined the same boy, Ileli, Sh. 40, and three goats;
- (c) that on the 26th April 1969, the same sub-chief held another illegal court and fined the following school pupils as follows:—
 1. Nguthu Mwanza: Sh. 10 and three goats.
 2. Kanuku Mutio: Sh. 10 and three goats.
 3. Mutia Muli: Sh. 10 and one goat.
 4. Mutinda Kalinde: Sh. 10 and three goats.
 5. Kavuu Nguli: Sh. 10 and three goats.

The House will see that there are two different cases here. One, the illegal cases which affected one schoolboy known as Ileli. Forget about the five boys. Now, this schoolboy was fined twice and the boy is not in school now. The county division officer is not aware of this, the education officer of the area is not aware of this either. The Sh. 70 has been paid to the sub-chief himself.

When the Minister was replying he said: "Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware of the illegal courts having been held by sub-chief Isika Kikulu on the respective dates mentioned by the hon. Member. However, I am aware of an attempt by the local elders to settle a dispute between Mr. Mwembe and the five boys." Mr. Speaker, he has just jumped on this one boy. The Minister went on to say: "... who were involved in assault on his daughter in which the fines mentioned by the hon. Member were imposed." I would like to tell the hon. Members that this boy Ileli went to the sub-chief's home with the other schoolboys, as is normally done by schoolboys. When the sub-chief found the boy there he held this illegal court and said that he found this boy trespassing in his home and stated that the boy must be fined. So the boy was fined Sh. 70 which was pocketed by the sub-chief.

Now, on the 27th of the same month, February, the sub-chief ordered the teacher—not the headmaster—to go to the school and beat the boy because he came to his home. The teacher started the beating the boy with a wooden stick. That wooden stick broke and one piece went back and struck the teacher on the head. Then the sub-chief told the teacher that he would hold another court, an illegal court, which was held on the 29th. Here, again, Sh. 40 were paid, but this time to the teacher as blood money. The teacher is holding Sh. 40 and three goats. This can be checked. That finished.

Then, the month of March elapsed and we came to April. At this time, the five boys were asked by the brother of Isika to go and help him in cultivating his shamba. A group of 40 school boys went to help Mwembe who is the brother of the sub-chief. According to the Akamba law, the customary law, when the group of women finish the work they enjoy themselves, they dance. This chief found the boys playing at his brother's home and he said that these boys must be accused and they were arrested and they were put into custody by the police. These fines, Mr. Speaker, as I have mentioned, were imposed on these five school children some of whom are less than ten years old. There is one who is about 12 years and the rest are in Standards IV, III and I.

Then, Mr. Speaker, the sub-chief, after remanding the boys in custody, got the police to summon them and here are the summons. He accused them of burglary under Section 304 (b). Now, when the police saw that things were hot in this Parliament they withdrew the case, and I have the two summons here, which I am going to lay on the Table. I did not have time to go and look for the other summonses.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What are you laying on the Table, Mr. Munyasia?

Mr. Munyasia: I am laying the summons, Mr. Speaker. You will see from here the boys were meant to report on the 19th May at 8.00 a.m. to answer the charge of burglary. I have only got one, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and I could not raise the other three because of the distance.

(The hon. Mr. Munyasia laid the papers on the Table)

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is my submission to this House that this House should know to whom these fines were paid, the fines of the five boys. This is very important because they were fined and who was paid? Under what section?

I would like to know if Mr. Mwembe's girl was injured in any way because this was in the reply of the Minister, and I do not recall at any time that the daughter was injured, and if she was assaulted did she go to a doctor to be examined?

An hon. Member: How old is she?

Mr. Munyasia: She is nine years and these were primary school boys.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 8th May 1969, the district commissioner sent Mr. Muthoni who is a Meru and he went—

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance because the more I listen to the hon. Member, Mr. Munyasia, I think that the type of question he is discussing is something which should be discussed in a court of law; the boy, or somebody, should go to a court of law to accuse whoever is wrong. I do not know how this House can contribute to these very involved allegations and so forth.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is alleging that an administrative officer has mis-conducted himself by assuming judicial powers that do not belong to him and that is a matter for this House.

Mr. Munyasia: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for putting the Member right.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, on the 8th May 1969, the district officer, Central (Inaudible) and he returned all this property to the five boys in question. The property was returned to the boys, but the very boy who faced the legal courts twice and paid Sh. 70 to the sub-chief and this has not been returned to him. Sh. 40 was also paid to the teacher and the teacher is still retaining this. The House wants to know, if these fines were returned, and the Minister has said to the House that this was according to customary law that the fines were imposed, why were they not returned?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said earlier, the county education officer is not aware of this and the education officer of Kitui North is not aware of this. Therefore, it is my submission that such a civil servant who has misbehaved in such a way should be sacked forthwith with effect from today because this affects the lives of the school children, who are immature. These children are under age and I said earlier on that the oldest one is 12 and the rest are nine, eight and seven. These boys,

[Mr. Munyasia]

Mr. Speaker, for your information, were absent from school for three days because they were in the custody of the chief. This is a criminal offence against the innocent because they are innocent and they are not fully grown and they are immature. I am surprised to see the Minister defending a civil servant who messed about with this issue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the people of this country will be faithful to the Government if the Government speaks the truth and does not go around and hide the truth.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Your time is over, Mr. Munyasia.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks I beg to move.

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for giving me this opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, I want to make one point clear to begin with and that is that our duty in this House is to make laws and when we make laws, these laws are interpreted in the countryside by the administration. In the course of the administration of these laws, something may go wrong and, when something goes wrong, then it becomes a duty of the representatives of the people to bring the issues of what has gone wrong to the Government. What surprises many Members of this House is that whenever you present a genuine and clear case, as this one, to whoever is concerned, he seems to brush your case aside. One wonders, because the duty of us Members of this Chamber is to build the nation; the duty of the administrators also is to build the nation; the two parties have one common goal and that is to build the nation. However, the head of the administration tends to believe more in his own field officers than the Members of the House, and this is what causes all the confusion.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I speak with experience. We have seen these things happen and we have brought Questions and we have spoken in this Chamber and we feel that the Ministers, or those concerned with the administration, do not take us seriously, and they seem to think we oppose the Government. We are not trying to oppose the Government, but we are trying to put the Government right. The Minister should not be shy because we are trying to protect them and show them the mistakes that have been made in the countryside by the field officers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know, for certain, that if a chief or sub-chief makes a mistake then the district commissioner's work is to protect the mistake so everything appears to be well. The district commissioner does not want to be blamed by the Minister, so the chief and the sub-chief all try to cover up their mistakes. When these mistakes are covered, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are told about them by the people we represent. They approach us and tell us, but then when we come to reveal these facts the Minister says that it is not true or something like that.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this idea must be given up. The Minister should come forward and tell us that if we know about these things, then the Government is going to look into these things and correct them. It is as simple as that. Simpler than simplicity. Let the Minister come forward and say he is going to investigate the mistakes and put them right. I am told by the Members that the investigation must be reported to this House so that we know the truth.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, personally, I have had the same experience in my own constituency. It was last year, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when my brother asked me for Sh. 70 and he told me there was a case concerning a shamba somewhere at home. I gave him the Sh. 70. I did not know what exactly was going to happen but, later on when I returned home from Nairobi, he told me he gave the Sh. 70 to the sub-chief to hold to his illegal court to try and judge a shamba case. This is something which I have experienced and I have not had to be told, that these illegal courts are taking place all over the country, not only in our own area, but also I believe in other hon. Members' places.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is the duty of this Government and of the Minister in charge to listen to what the Members say and then try to correct it. Why is he afraid of correcting this?

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the hon. Member substantiate that these are taking place all over the country?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not a thing which you can substantiate with very much chapter and verse, but he must say on what grounds he alleges that it is happening elsewhere.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is what I was saying that the Minister should not be embarrassed as we know—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwalwa, you are being asked to say on what grounds you allege this is happening elsewhere other than in Kitui. Where you heard it or just why. You need not give chapter and verse, but why you are saying this at all.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said this because it happened in my own constituency, in Mr. Munyasia's constituency, in hon. Oduya's constituency and many other hon. Members have said, so, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have heard it from other hon. Members?

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am saying this, and we are very serious and genuine, we want the Minister to correct these mistakes and nothing else. He should not be afraid to correct what is wrong. We are with the people and the Ministers are far away from the people. They are not told of these things by the people. The people are close to us and they tell us and they approach us. They are afraid of the Ministers because the Ministers are too big for them and they cannot tell them exactly where things go wrong.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few simple remarks, I beg to support the Motion and ask the Minister to be serious and be clear to this House.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, when I replied, as the hon. Mover said, I did not want to repeat the same points he made.

I have made still more investigations and find that the point in question, Mr. Speaker, is the words "illegal courts". That is the main point, Mr. Speaker. I must say, at the outset, that with the definition of a "court" the hon. Member knows the sub-chiefs have no powers to hold a court, according to the definition of court. Therefore, the sub-chiefs have the right to call the people in their area and advise them. In this case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this man did not hold a court in the definition of a court. What he did was to have the question of the boys who mistreated the girl tried before the elders according to the customs of the area in Kitui. That is the first point.

It was also understood, Mr. Speaker, as I said then and repeat now, that it was in the understanding that the person who is not satisfied can take the case further to the real court of law.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance in that the Minister says in the sense the sub-chief did not hold a legal court, and then he said those who were dissatisfied could take the case further. Is that not holding a court?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order. You could, with his permission, rise for an explanation but that is all. You have no right to interrupt on a point of order.

Mr. Munyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance. Would I be in order, through you, to ask the Minister to answer my question first? Now he is blaming it on the five boys. He is trying to pass over the first two parts of the Question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, you cannot tell the Minister on a point of order the way he should answer your argument.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): When the district officer, who is in charge of the chiefs and sub-chiefs, saw this question, he said he had had this question reviewed and he advised that the calling of the elders to look into this question according to the customary law of the Kitui was not within the jurisdiction of that Kitui customary law.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, they were advised to go to the courts and I understand they went to the court. The parents of the boys did not agree with the decision but the father of the girl did accept the decision. I said then, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the matter as I have been given to understand has now been taken to the court. As it has been taken to court, Mr. Speaker, all I would like to say is that the sub-chief has no right whatsoever to hold what—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Minister if he knew this matter was in court and is sub judice why did he not advise us so that we do not sit here and listen to a matter which is sub judice?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. The merits of the award are sub judice, but not the conduct of the chief. We are concerned with the conduct of the chief and whether he misbehaved. That is still open for discussion.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): What I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, is that the chief had no right to hold the court in the legal definition of court, but his office is given the responsibility to call and advise his people, and this is what this chief did. This is the point I wanted to show to this House and is what I said before.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I think this question has been very ably put forward by the hon. Mover, and the Government has also been trying to put forward its case. I think the important point here to be listened to by the Minister, is the conduct of the chiefs and of some other people in authority.

It has happened in many places, as the hon. Member has said, and if the chief has power to advise people, then it is all right, but receiving money from the people is absolutely illegal and the chief should have been arrested and put into custody somewhere. It is not fair that the advice of the chief is demonstrated by obtaining money from the public. The advice is merely what should be given by public officers. What we do as Members of Parliament is to advise somebody who has a problem. It is not the job of the chief to receive money. The Minister, whether he denies it or not—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kariuki, we want to be clear on this with regard to precise facts. As I understand it, it is not alleged that this chief just helped himself to money, but, rightly or wrongly, he directed or advised a payment by these children or their parents to a girl or her parents.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I am not trying to impute improper motives on the chief trying to receive money for himself. Whether he received this money for the Government or for himself, it was illegal for him to do so. He should only collect money for graduated personal tax and other things but not by fining people. In this case, Mr. Speaker, I do not think the Minister should protect people who are doing wrong things. It is for the Minister to set an example to some officers—

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I said no sub-chief has the right to hold a court in the definition of a court, and this chief did not hold one. I am not protecting anybody.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I am happy for the warning which has just been issued by the Minister that no chief is allowed to hold a court. I hope this will be taken by the Government and issued as a directive. Unless this is done such things are going to continue. I think this sort of thing should be controlled before it becomes worse.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Oduya, you have two minutes.

Mr. Oduya: Thank you, Sir.

I only want to endorse what my colleagues have said here, and also to ask the Minister to be very serious with his office. If there is any place where the Government will be more unpopular it will be through his office. The chiefs are the people who are supposed to interpret and advise people on the right things. I know, and if he wants I can challenge him as I am going to bring up a very burning issue before this Chamber. I do not want to do so, because I have left it with the provincial commissioner to settle. Mine is even more serious than this, where people have taken the law into their own hands.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, what we are trying to do here is to try and tell the Minister to find a way to help the situation before it becomes out of control. Once the administration gets out of control, the Minister will not be able to stand here and talk the way he has been when he says he is not protecting these people. He will be running between two places looking for police and other people to protect him instead of protecting the nation.

With these few remarks, Sir, I hope the Minister will be very serious in matters which the Members raise in this House.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Our time is up, hon. Members, so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 19th June, at 3.30 p.m.

The House rose at Seven o'clock.

Thursday, 19th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Three o'clock.

PRAYERS

PAPER LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—

Kenya National Library Service Board Annual and Audit Report 1st July 1967—30th June 1968.

(By the Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda) on behalf of the Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah))

NOTICE OF MOTION

VOTE ON ACCOUNT

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give notice of the following Motion:—

THAT, in accordance with section 101 of the Constitution of Kenya the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of the sum of K£41,185,312 made up in the manner set out in the Vote on Account laid before the House, be authorized for the purpose of meeting expenditure necessary to carry on the services of the Government of Kenya during the year ending on the 30th June 1970, until such time as the Appropriation Act for that year comes into operation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the President's consent has been signified to this Motion.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 284

STATUS OF EMURURUA DIKIR FOREST

Mr. ole Lemein asked the Minister for Natural Resources if he would tell the House if he had approved of Emururua Dikir Forest at Kilgoris in Narok District becoming a Narok County Council forest. If so, would he say:—

- (a) When the forest had been gazetted.
- (b) How many people were supposed to be living in that forest.
- (c) What action Government had taken against those people living there illegally.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The answer to the first part is no, Sir.

- (a) The forest is not gazetted.
- (b) There are approximately 3,000 souls living in the forest.

(c) The Government is always vigilant in checking on people who live in the forest illegally. When they are found, they are normally prosecuted.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's answer, is he aware that the Narok County Council have sent in their by-law for that forest to be gazetted since about a year ago and that this has not yet been gazetted?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister is not aware of this. I have, thoroughly, searched for this information on this allegation and there is no such thing.

I think the hon. Member should go back to the Narok County Council and ask them to send, express, their resolution and we shall act quickly.

Mr. ole Kipury: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, that the forest has not been gazetted, what does he mean when he says that the people living in the forest are there illegally? Who are these people who are living illegally in a forest which has not been gazetted?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, perhaps if the hon. Member had read the question, he would have seen that there is a supposition from the Questioner.

I said, if the people are found living in a forest illegally, the normal thing was to prosecute them. However, as this one is not a gazetted forest, the answer is as I gave it.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, what action is the Minister going to take against those 3,000 people who are living in that forest and the Masai do not like them to live there because they are not Masai?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members making too much noise and you could not be heard, Mr. Lemein. Could you please ask your question again?

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my question is this: what action is the Minister going to take for those people who were not given any consent by the Masai to live in that forest?

Mr. Nyagah: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I realize there is a lot of interest on this, but I would like to ask, through the hon. Member, that the people—the approximate number I gave was 3,000—should stop running away when the Government officials go to their area.

Question No. 266

WAGES RULES OF ENGINEERING AND MECHANICAL TRAINEES

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Labour if he would tell the House—

- (a) if the Minister was aware that by laying down wages regulations for the mechanical trainees many private firms had declined to take on school-leavers, especially the Certificate of Primary Education failures or those who passed but failed to qualify for higher education;

[Mr. Kebaso]

- (b) if the Minister would reduce the present figure and make the minimum wage, say, Sh. 75 to Sh. 80 per month for the first 12 months and Sh. 100 for the second year depending on the agreement between the parties.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) The Wages Regulation Orders are laid down to protect workers from possible exploitation by employers, particularly in industries where employees do not have a well-established trade union to handle their matters and where also employers are comprised of several firms of varied sizes. Besides the Regulation of Wages (Apprentices and Indentured Learners) Order 1967, which covers mechanical trainees, there are 15 other Wages Regulation Orders covering other trades.

Wages and other conditions of employment contained in any Order are discussed and agreed upon between employers' organizations and workers' representatives before they become law. Both parties take into account the ability of a particular industry to pay as well as considering the basic requirements and needs of workers.

(b) The agreed wage for the first year of Apprenticeship and Indentured Learnership is Sh. 140 per month which includes a trainee's salary and house allowance. This is considered to be just adequate for a worker, irrespective of whether he failed the Certificate of Primary Education examination or not. I am, therefore, surprised that the hon. Member considers Sh. 75 adequate for a working person to live on, especially in urban areas where the cost of living is high. I disagree with him that Sh. 140 per month is too high for him to afford, and my own observation has revealed that this has not had any discouraging effect on the part of employers to employ these trainees.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the aim of the Kenya Government is that all should eat or share whatever little food we have, is the Minister, then, considering any other method whereby the youngsters, the school-leavers who are roaming in the towns without jobs can be absorbed in order to earn a living?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, any firm in Kenya or any other employer when he employs any person, he does not take him as a trainee but as a person because a trainee needs to live just as much as any other person.

H 44—16 pp.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, that when an employer employs any person he does not take him as a trainee, are there any plans the Minister himself is contemplating for introduction to this House, whereby the people who have not had any training in any profession will be trained, so that the employer in Kenya will get people who are already trained? Is he making any plans or just sitting there doing nothing?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised that the hon. Member does not know that we have plans already, here in Nairobi. We have vocational training centres which employ—

Hon. Members: Where? Where?

Mr. Mwendwa: If you want to see, I can show you tomorrow. They are here in Nairobi.

I am surprised, Mr. Speaker, that a Member of Parliament does not know that there is a plan in existence. To make things worse, Sir, he is the Government Chief Whip. I hope he has now understood what I am trying to tell him.

Mr. Mate: On a point of clarification—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Mate, clarification is not a point of order.

Mr. Munyi: Arising from one of the answers which has been given by the Minister, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister aware that now the mistake lies with the present machinery in that centre which is in Industrial Area and, therefore, it is high time that the Minister should change the whole machinery in order that there will be a co-ordinated machinery and things will go right?

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, it is very hard for me to get a mistake corrected when the mistake has not been pointed out to me. I would appreciate it very much if the hon. Member could come to me and point out where the mistake lies.

When he speaks of co-ordination, Sir, there is already co-ordination between myself and the staff over there. We know what we are doing.

Question No. 210

EXTENSION OF TELEVISION SERVICES TO EASTERN PROVINCE

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister for Information and Broadcasting if he would tell the House if he was aware that television services could play a great part in development and, therefore, by not extending these services to Eastern Province the development of that province was not being given full facilities.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am fully aware that the television service can

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] play a great part in development, but as I have said many times in this House, although the long-term target of the Government is to expand television facilities all over the Republic, that target cannot be reached overnight. The Eastern Province is, therefore, included in the list of provinces which do not at the moment enjoy television facilities. They will be included in the television expansion programme according to the Development Plan.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister expand on that answer by reading the priority list and showing in which years this expansion will be carried out?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I would say at this stage is that the hon. Member should wait for the five-year Development Plan book to come out and he will see this there.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the hon. Minister for Information and Broadcasting has postponed the answer about television, and while realizing that Nairobi is better favoured—and maybe, Rift Valley—would the Minister, at least, tell the House whether Mount Elgon, Ol Donyo Sabuk, Ol Kalou, Mount Kenya, could not have a station there in order to give the people of the area television?

ARRIVAL OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT

(The Speaker announced the arrival of His Excellency the President, the hon. Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, M.P.)

(Hon. Members rose in their places while His Excellency the President took his seat in the Chair of State)

(Resumption of discussion on Question No. 210)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Osogo, you should answer that last question, and then we will proceed to the next business.

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, the answer I would give to the hon. Mate is that the places he has mentioned in his question are not at present covered by electricity. As such, we do not, at present, expect to instal television there.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next Order.

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

MOTION

THAT MR. SPEAKER DO NOW LEAVE THE CHAIR

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair.

Hon. Members are already in possession of the Estimates of Expenditure for 1969/70 and of the Economic Survey for 1969. I now present the Estimates of Revenue and the Financial Statement.

Hon. Members may be relieved to know that my speech this year will be shorter than usual. They should not assume from this that my Budget will necessarily be mild. When an accused is obviously guilty, the judge need not deliver a lengthy judgment before sentencing him to 24 strokes.

The Government's financial position at 30th June 1969, will be about K£2.4 million worse than the forecast which I gave in last year's Budget Speech. The position, however, is more than covered by receipts from issues of Treasury Bills. On the recurrent side, Supplementary Estimates relating mainly to the need to provide over K£2 million for maize export losses will be more than covered by increased revenue. This increased revenue has come from import and excise duty and from income tax. We have also received an unexpected K£800,000 from the East African Currency Board following on the settlement of the dispute with Aden. Import duty would have been even higher, but has fallen off in recent months, partly owing to the cancellation of orders for imports by traders who have been refused licences or given licences for only a short period.

Development expenditure will reach a record total of about K£26 million and there are signs that the administrative problems which have restricted the amount of our development expenditure in recent years are being overcome. This level of expenditure on development projects should be seen as a substantial improvement when it is considered that during the last financial year, the audited expenditure on development was just over K£21 million. The country should be indebted to His Excellency the President and his Ministers for the particular interest they have continued to show towards the implementation of our planned development programme.

We have raised K£8 million on the local market and I have been able to transfer K£3 million from recurrent to development. I also propose to transfer a further K£3 million from recurrent to development and will be able to do this because we ended the 1967/68 year with a credit balance of a little over this amount in the recurrent Exchequer.

There is one minor matter which I am advised that I should specifically mention to the House. This is that it has proved possible to reduce the capital in the "other Governments and Administrations Pension Fund" from K£100,000 to K£50,000. The K£50,000 saved has been credited to the Development Exchequer Account.

It will be seen that the deficit is related entirely to development, and I could have avoided this deficit by restricting development expenditure. I have, however, preferred to take a lenient view with regard to expenditure on planned projects, but have taken a tough line with requests for Supplementary Appropriations for recurrent expenditure. I have taken a tough line with requests for Supplementary Estimates because if proper financial control is to be exercised by the House and by the Treasury, the printed Recurrent Estimates must be regarded as the proper ceiling for recurrent expenditure. I have been more lenient on the development side because I regard it as my duty to do what I can to ensure the maximum possible use of the nation's resources in the interests of economic development.

Throughout the year we have had cash problems. The deficit in the Development Exchequer has risen from time to time to over K£13 million, and the Cereals and Sugar Finance Corporation has had to find up to K£11 million, partly from Government sources, to finance large stocks of wheat and maize. These cash difficulties have been eased as a result of the issue of Treasury Bills, for which there has been keen competition by the commercial banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions.

So long as the position of the commercial banks remains liquid, it will be possible for the Government to maintain a regular float of Treasury Bills to the extent of at least K£5 million.

The Economic Survey is more comprehensive than ever before, and I do not intend to give hon. Members the feeling that they need not study it by presenting now a lengthy summary of what it contains.

Stability in international currency markets, reasonable rates of interest and freedom of movement of capital helps to create a favourable climate for our exports, and also makes it easier for us to attract capital investment and an increasing flow of tourists. These conditions did not prevail in 1968, although world trade did expand surprisingly well.

Last year it was forecast that our gross domestic product would rise by no more than 4 per cent or 5 per cent. In fact, the rise at current prices was nearly 6 per cent, and at 1964 prices over 6½ per cent. We have, in fact, achieved over the last four years the target rate of growth set out in our published Development Plan. We would have done even better if Coffee Berry Disease had not led to a fall in the volume of our main export crop, and if sterling devaluation had not reduced the price we obtain for our tea.

1968 was a good agricultural year for cereal crops and we have built up a more than adequate stock of wheat and maize. There was a rise in tea production and there are now 38,000 farmers growing tea. There was also a big rise in sugar production which would have been even higher if transport problems had not left in the fields cane which should have been processed. There was a rise in livestock sales, but increased consumption of meat in the rural areas, which is a welcome sign of rising standards of living, created difficulties for the Kenya Meat Commission, which could have processed and exported far more meat if the cattle had been available.

Farmers' receipts from marketed produce in 1968 went up to a new record figure of nearly K£71 million, of which K£36 million, or over half, came from small farms. This again was a record, and sales from small farms have risen by 50 per cent in the last four years.

The most disquieting feature on the agricultural side of our economy was the rising volume of outstanding and overdue debt. Credit to farmers has been, and will continue to be, expanded, but the present level of arrears must be reduced, particularly of short-term debt.

The figures of our imports and exports show that on our trade with countries outside East Africa, there was a deficit of nearly K£52 million. This was K£5 million bigger than in the previous year because, despite the unexpectedly rapid rise in world trade in 1968, our exports rose a good deal more slowly than our imports. The deficit on our balance of visible trade is now more than twice as big as it was a few years ago, and although this reflects in large measure a rapid rise in imports of machinery and equipment essential to our development programme, it emphasizes the need to keep up our efforts to increase our exports and accelerate the pace of import substitution. Nevertheless, despite the size of the visible deficit in 1968, we managed to cover it—indeed, more than cover it—in other ways.

We earned a net amount of K£14 million on trade with Tanzania and Uganda, an increase of K£1 million on the 1967 figure, in spite of transfer taxes. We earned over K£16 million from tourism, and a substantial sum from freight charges on goods passing through Kenya to Uganda. Most of the balance was made up by the inflow of capital on public and private account, and our foreign exchange reserves rose by over K£11 million.

As pointed out in the Economic Survey, our favourable balance of payments position and our ability to continue to finance a high level of imports essential to our development, has depended in large measure on our success in attracting capital to Kenya.

Although our trade with African countries other than Uganda and Tanzania is not large, the figures show a significant increase in our exports to Zambia, which I hope will increase still further. We also sold more to the Sudan, Somalia, Ruanda and other African countries.

Manufacturing industry had a good year and recorded its greatest rate of growth since 1964. Activity in building and construction remained at a high level. The transport and communications group went ahead by 7 per cent.

Employment in what the Survey describes as the modern sector rose by only 1.3 per cent while the amount paid out in wages rose by nearly 5 per cent. The Survey does, however, show that in 1967, including those in employment on small-scale farms and in non-agricultural activities in rural areas, the number of persons in employment was over one million. The complete picture for 1968 is not yet available but the Survey states that there is evidence to suggest that employment rose more rapidly in the rural sector than in the modern sector. Enough new jobs are still not being created, but with a rising volume of production and a rising volume of capital being invested, I am hopeful that there will be a further increase in employment in 1969.

Before I leave the Economic Survey, I would like to draw the attention of hon. Members to the excellent account given in Chapter Nine of Government revenue and expenditure over the last ten years. Since independence, recurrent expenditure, as defined by the Ministry of Economic Planning for the purposes of the Plan, has risen by about 7½ per cent a year, though if expenditure directly financed by the British Government is excluded, to give a more accurate picture of the growth of the burden on Kenya, the rise is about 9½ per cent a year. Development expenditure rose by 11 per cent a year. Recurrent revenue has more than kept pace with the growth in recurrent expenditure, and we are now able to finance part of our development from a surplus on the recurrent Budget.

It is interesting to note that the really big money in revenue terms comes from very few sources. It comes from the income tax payer, the smoker, the drinker and the motorist. Over one-third of the total comes from the income tax payer, and I am sure that there is very considerable scope for obtaining more in income tax by opening new income tax offices, and by increased efforts to trace those who should be paying this particular tax. A real effort on these lines is going to be made in the coming year.

It is also interesting to note that the motorist and the transport operator pay over K£10 million, and although we are spending a lot of money on roads we are recovering more than the total charge on revenue from those who use the roads. The contribution by the smoker and the drinker is also over K£10 million and has been steadily increasing, and I have been careful to nurture these sources of revenue by avoiding too sharp increases in taxation. I should not, perhaps, pursue this argument much further in case my hon. friend, the Attorney-General, accuses me of encouraging drinking and driving. More seriously, a study of this chapter does show that we get our revenue from those who should be able to afford to pay, and in a reasonably painless manner.

Another interesting table in this chapter sets out the sources from which we have financed development expenditure since 1963/64, when almost all expenditure was being financed from external sources. We are now finding over half from loans raised on the Nairobi market or from a Budget surplus.

I do not, however, agree with those who argue that we should depend entirely on our own resources. Capital is one of the essential ingredients of development and represents money which some one has saved. We must tap local savings to the greatest possible extent, but it is obvious that if we can also obtain access to other peoples' savings, then we will be able to finance a higher level of development expenditure and achieve a higher rate of growth.

Overseas savings also represent foreign exchange which we need for balance of payments reasons.

We are now experienced in the negotiation of overseas aid, and have been much encouraged by indications that the World Bank, which is already our largest overseas source, will be prepared to increase the rate of its lendings to Kenya. The strings attached to World Bank loans are, in fact, no more than the sort of guide lines which we would, in any case, wish to use. The projects must be sound and properly administered. The projects must be carried out as cheaply as possible on the basis of open tender. Materials must be obtained from the cheapest source. The money must not be wasted, and one example of this relates to our road programme. There would obviously be no sense in building up a main road system and then allowing over-weight vehicles to operate on the roads and break them up in a very few years. This was happening on the Mombasa Road, and has now been stopped.

Turning to the financial side of the economy, during the past year the country's banking system has gone from strength to strength. During the 16 months to April 1969, the deposits held with the commercial banks rose by K£16.5 million to over K£101 million. Nearly half of this figure represents time and saving deposits. During the same period total currency in circulation rose by nearly K£4 million. Thus, there was a rise in the volume of money, which at the end of April 1969, was some 20 per cent higher than it was at the end of 1967. I should like to add that this increase in money has been accompanied by relative stability in prices and could be regarded as a continuation of the tendency within the country to accumulate savings in money form.

It is also notable that during the same period, loans and advances by commercial banks actually fell by K£1.5 million, whilst the level of commercial bank deposits with the Central Bank had risen to over K£15 million at the end of April 1969. This high level partly reflects the Government's policy of centralizing the banking system's foreign exchange reserves.

The commercial banks have been urged to make every effort to increase their volume of lending to the local people. At the same time, the level of bank lending to foreign-controlled companies has been a cause of concern. The object of the exchange control restrictions on such lending is to encourage these companies to bring capital into Kenya and to limit competition with locally-based companies for domestic funds. There has also been a number of companies wishing to sell shares to local people to permit a measure of local participation. Such participation is usually accompanied by requests to remit the amount released overseas. I will not allow such transactions to take place unless the measure of participation is intended to lead to full local control of a company, or the investment has had the Approved Status. I intend to follow up the question of increased lending to local people in the coming financial year.

At the head of our banking system the Central Bank has continued to expand its role in the nation's monetary affairs during the year. The bank made a profit of K£800,000 on its operations in 1967/68 and it is expected that this year's profits would be even higher. In March of this calendar year the Central Bank, as agent for the Government, successfully launched the first issue of Treasury Bills by tender.

I should like to say a brief word about the expansion of the commercial banking system in this country. The existing commercial banks have continued to set up new branches and agencies and the important mobile services, which they have been operating, have been extended. The new Banking Act, which came into operation on 3rd June 1969, seeks to improve the supervision of the banking system in Kenya by prescribing restrictions on certain lending transactions and by introducing a system of bank inspection. It also extends this control to other deposit taking financial institutions in the country and in this way the Act should enable the Government to ensure the maintenance of a sound monetary and banking system in the country.

The system of International Monetary Co-operation, established as a result of the Bretton Woods Agreement, suffered severe setbacks during 1968 arising from a lack of confidence in the main reserve currencies (i.e. the U.S. dollar and the pound sterling) and in the French franc. Last July the United Kingdom Government offered all Commonwealth countries a dollar guarantee on their sterling holdings, and the Kenya Government concluded an agreement with the United Kingdom last September by which, over the next three years, 90 per cent of our foreign exchange reserves are now, in effect, in dollars, or are dollar-guaranteed. Meanwhile, the search for a solution to the recurrent monetary crises continues. On our part, we will continue to lend full support to the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and will reject any solution which would lead to making developed countries richer and developing countries poorer. We, therefore, consider that raising the price of gold would be unacceptable. We have supported the scheme for Special Drawing Rights and have welcomed the proposals for the stabilization of prices of primary products.

It will be recalled that, during his visit here last November, Mr. Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund, was impressed by Kenya's ability to manage its own affairs, and to continue a steady rate of development without borrowing from the International Monetary Fund. The Government is proud of this record, and of the high standing which Kenya has achieved in the eyes of overseas investors. The House will be proud to note the impressive rise in our Foreign Exchange Reserves from K£30 million to over K£50 million in a little over the space of a year, which naturally will increase confidence in our money and stand us in good stead in the future.

It is also a matter of pride to note that the wholly Government-owned National Bank of Kenya has made substantial progress since the end of November last year, when it commenced business. This bank, which provides a full range of commercial banking facilities, continues to receive more and more deposits and has so far successfully started to implement its declared policy of assisting Kenya businessmen and firms to increase their participation in the local commercial and industrial sectors. About K£350,000 of the bank's resources have already been committed, mainly to the execution of this policy.

The last chapter of the Economic Survey deals with the outlook for 1969. It shows that the economy should continue to grow at the rate of about 6 per cent. Agricultural production is likely to rise in volume by about 6 per cent, but in value by only about 3 per cent, as prices in export markets are likely to be lower, particularly for coffee and tea. The size of the wheat and maize crop is still uncertain. A further rise of about 7 per cent in manufacturing is forecast, and building activity will remain at a very high level. The tourist industry should do well, and our balance of payments is expected to remain in surplus.

In addition to the state of our balance of payments I also have to bear in mind, in deciding whether or not to increase taxation, the effect of a decision of this kind on our economic position. We do not, in my view, at the moment need to impose much additional taxation for the purpose of checking inflationary conditions. Prices have remained remarkably stable, both of land and labour, which can be brought into productive use.

Expenditure is likely to exceed the published estimates, and the reason is that we will in 1969/70 have to export a substantial amount of maize and wheat at a loss.

The losses on the export of maize will be less than in the present year owing to the lower producer price, administrative savings by the Maize Board and, it is hoped, some increase in the export price. But losses cannot be eliminated until we have managed to install bulk handling facilities at Mombasa and on the railways. Arrangements for this are in hand, but it will take at least two years before the necessary wharf for loading grain in bulk, and the necessary silos in which grain can be stored, and from which it can be loaded into ships, have been built. We can see the light at the end of the tunnel, and in view of this I do not think it would be right to make a further reduction in the producer price of maize for the 1970 crop. I hope that within three years we will be able to achieve export parity without any great reduction in producer prices, but this will depend on the savings we can actually achieve from bulk handling and the trend of export prices. I am confident that maize can become one of our major export crops and a major earner of foreign exchange, but in 1969/70 a fairly substantial loss will be made on exports.

The position with regard to wheat is different. When we exported wheat from the 1967 crop we lost 39 shillings per bag. We have reduced the producer price by 10 shillings, but the remaining gap is too great to be covered by further possible reductions in the producer price, or by savings on bulk handling. It is likely to prove impossible to achieve export parity for wheat. Our policy, therefore, must be to grow enough wheat for our needs and for that part of the East African market which we supply, but to avoid, as far as possible, the need for exports. This will not be possible in 1969/70, as we already have over 2 million bags of wheat in the country, either in stores or on farms, and this is far more than we need for the East African market for a full year. We will have to export not less than 500,000 bags to make room for the 1969 crop, even if it is not a large one, and we will lose over 30 shillings per bag on these exports.

I could have included in the Budget provision based on estimates of probable losses, but no firm estimates can be made until we know with some certainty what the size of the wheat and maize crop will be. We will not know this for another four or five months. I have assumed in planning the Budget that I will have to come back to the House for not less than K£2 million for wheat and maize export losses.

If hon. Members think I am praying for a drought which would save me this expenditure, they are wrong. If we have a drought incomes will fall, and money which would have been spent on dutiable commodities will be spent on food. I would not then achieve my estimates of revenue. Either way, I am bound to lose and I therefore wish all farmers a bumper harvest. I hope that when they get their crop they will remember the need to repay the money which they owe to the Agricultural Finance Corporation.

I will come to my Budget proposals in the next few minutes, but before I do so, I would like to refer the hon. Members to His Excellency the President's Madaraka Day Speech, in which the

[The Minister for Finance]

President very ably reviewed the Kanu Government's achievements since our first Madaraka Day. The President listed 30 critical points, and outlined the spectacular success the Government has made under his leadership. These landmarks of our national development could not have been achieved without the necessary financial support, and I would like to inform this House that between 1963/64 and 1969/70 financial years, the Government will have spent K£540,000,000 in both recurrent and development services. Of this amount, over K£399,000,000 will have been spent on recurrent services, notably on Education which will have taken more than K£49,000,000, while Agriculture and Health Services will have been allocated with about K£43,000,000 and K£24,000,000 respectively.

The balance of about K£141,000,000 will have been spent on the various development projects, some of which would be Agriculture—K£21,000,000, Irrigation—K£3.3 million, Water Supplies—K£3.6 million, Land Settlement—K£25.6 million, Land reforms, particularly Land Consolidation—K£5 million and K£30 million on roads. The private sector, including our Local Authorities and statutory boards, will have played a significant role in development, and I would suggest that this task will have been accomplished because of the wise leadership and the administration the country has enjoyed under the Kanu Government.

I now turn to the Development Estimates for 1969/70 whose details are provided in one of the documents that I have tabled before the House. There are some features of these estimates to which I would like to draw the attention of the hon. Members. The first is that these are the highest estimates on developments that we have ever had, and represent a net expenditure of some K£29.3 million, or a gross expenditure of just over K£30 million. The second feature is that the estimates herald the first year of our next planning period of five years; they also represent the final instalment of the development expenditure envisaged in the table on page 118 of the present plan, which shows that the Government development expenditure during the period 1965/66 to 1969/70 would be around K£92 million. This target will have been exceeded by the end of the next financial year, when the total expenditure is expected to have reached a figure of K£100,000,000. It must, however, be admitted that the figures are not strictly comparable as we must allow for the rise in costs, particularly of building and road construction. Another significant aspect of the estimates is that I expect to find slightly less than half of the total amount from external sources, notably the World Bank, the United Kingdom, West Germany, Norway and Sweden and the balance from local borrowing, some transfer from the recurrent Budget surplus, and a possible switch of investments.

Once again, the development of roads will take the highest allocation of gross expenditure of nearly K£8 million. The agricultural projects, excluding water development, will absorb K£3.8 million, but if water development is taken into account, the total sum for the Ministry of Agriculture will be over K£4.7 million. I am also hopeful that, in addition to the provisions made in the estimates for water development, negotiations will have been concluded with a foreign source which will make it possible for additional funds to be allocated for this purpose during the year. Health will take K£2 million, including K£950,000 for the Kenyatta National Hospital development into a Teaching Hospital, and Housing will take K£2.3 million, which includes K£1.8 million for the National Housing Corporation. K£2.1 million have been allocated towards land settlement schemes, but I should like to point out that a greater amount of this provision is expected to be spent on the development of farms rather than on land transfer as has been the case in the past. Towards Education K£1.9 million have been allocated, and the next financial year will be the first year during which our I.D.A. education projects will be implemented, along with the integration of selected Harambee schools into the normal financing programme by the Central Government. There is also a record provision of over K£1.0 million towards the Africanization of commerce and industry. The amount, however, excludes the K£470,000 recently loaned to the I.C.D.C. by a consortium of banks, including the National Bank of Kenya.

As stated in the General Memorandum Note, the estimates include expenditure on smaller but vital projects, such as pre-investment studies, surveys, training, loan schemes, Government participation in the development of the private sector, contributions to self-help and community development projects, unemployment relief schemes and assistance to the disabled.

It is also relevant to mention that, parallel with this national development effort, there are other development projects which the East African Community will undertake within Kenya, notably, the development of the Mombasa Harbour and the improvement of services provided by the Directorate of Civil Aviation. It will also interest hon. Members to learn that negotiations with a certain external source are in progress, with regard to the extension of the Embakasi Airport, and the present indications are that the first phase of this project is likely to require just over K£4 million out of a total project value of about K£8 million. My Ministry is also looking forward to undertaking possible negotiations with the World Bank that would lead to a road development programme estimated to cost about K£15 million over a period of years, the next I.D.A. financed education programme and expansion of our forestry development. I am very hopeful that conclusions in these negotiations will be reached before the end of this calendar year. The final round of discussions on the proposed Broderick Falls Pulp and Paper project will be undertaken in the next few days.

[The Minister for Finance]

As I have already stated, the provision for development in the next financial year is much higher if compared with the amount of about K£21 million which we spent in the last financial year, and there has been a great deal of improvement in the implementation of our planned projects. It is because of this that I am hopeful that development expenditure is likely to be in the region of K£26 million, as compared with K£27.1 million shown in the printed Estimates for the current financial year. I am also hopeful that further improvements in our performance will become evident in the course of our first year of our next Development Plan, which is to be published before the end of this calendar year.

A while ago, I did say that expenditure on Development next year will be the highest we have ever budgetted for, and this remark equally applies to the recurrent provision for the same period. The expenditure summary shows that I expect to be able to provide about K£79,500,000 of gross expenditure, or a net expenditure of slightly over K£67,000,000. Taken together with expenditure on development, I have budgetted for a total expenditure of about K£110,000,000.

It is not my intention to bore hon. Members with details of the recurrent expenditure which, no doubt, they will find for themselves from the printed Estimates, but I should like to say that provision on Education tops the list with over K£9,500,000, followed by Agriculture, Works, the Police, Kenya Armed Forces, Local Government, the President's Office and Health. The Public Debt has also gone up by about K£850,000, and the total recurrent Budget, which is based on our new Plan, has a net increase of about 9 per cent compared with the provision made in the 1968/69 printed Estimates. The question that then arises is how I intend to finance this rather high recurrent expenditure. The answer, which I regard as simple, will emerge from the remaining part of my speech.

PAPERS LAID

1969/70 Estimates of Revenue of the Republic of Kenya for the year ending 30th June 1970.
1969 Financial Statement for the year of Account 1969/70.

(By the Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru))
(Resumption of Minister's speech on Financial Statement)

This brings me to my new taxation measures, and in accordance with our normal practice, I would ask, Mr. Speaker, that this speech be taken as a notice of Motion to be placed before the Committee of Ways and Means which is to deal with the measures I am about to announce.

The most important change from the point of view of revenue is one which has already been announced and enacted into law by the Central Legislative Assembly. This is a change in the dates on which companies will be required to pay corporation tax. Under the former system, all companies which made up their accounts to any date in 1969 would not be assessed to tax on their annual profits until after the end of 1969, and would not have to pay corporation tax until 31st December 1970. This would mean, for example, that a company whose financial year ended on 31st January 1969, would have 23 months before it had to pay tax. Under the new system, all companies will have to pay tax on their profits 12 months after the end of their accounting year. This will ensure a more even flow of revenue and the prompter payment of tax. This new system will come into operation this year, which means that companies making up their accounts, for example, to the 31st March 1969, will be assessed and required to pay tax by 31st March 1970.

In 1969/70 the Government will get windfall revenue of an additional sum of not less than K£1 million, but the extent to which this will benefit our cash position will depend on the extent to which the companies concerned already hold tax reserve certificates against their outstanding tax liabilities. Taking into account also the increased level of profits in 1968, as compared with 1967, I expect to get additional revenue of about K£3 million from income tax in the forthcoming financial year.

New dates for payment of surtax by all those liable to surtax, and new dates for the payment of income tax by individuals not subject to P.A.Y.E., have also been announced. These will not affect the 1969/70 financial year. The dates for tax payments in 1970 will be the 31st August and the 31st December, instead of the 31st October 1970, and the 31st March 1971.

[The Minister for Finance]

One other amendment consequential on the amendments already approved by the Central Legislative Assembly is included in the Finance Bill. Until the law was amended, individuals got the benefit of an allowance arising from a change in status immediately, but did not lose the allowance if their status altered. When one got married, one immediately got the benefit of the marriage allowance, but if one parted from one's wife and no longer had to maintain her, one did not immediately lose this allowance. I think it must be agreed that personal allowances should be related to a change in status, whether this is for the benefit of the individual or for the benefit of the revenue. The amendment makes the higher single allowance subject to the new rule.

I now come to import and excise duties. A number of errors and anomalies have been discovered in the transposition of the former tariff to the Brussels nomenclature. Most of the amendments relate to the correction of these errors, and restore the position to what it was before the new tariff was introduced last year. I do not think that I need refer in detail to these minor changes which affect dye-stuffs, linseed, lubricating preparations, sheeting, tyre flaps, can-keys, palletes, fish net floats, the raw material for making crown corks, steel structures, and certain pipes, tubes and fittings. Another amendment to the excise tariff has corrected an anomaly relating to the excise duty on distemper and paint.

One minor change makes containers, which are likely to be used to an increasing degree to pack our imports and exports, free of duty. A further minor amendment adds safety belts and crash helmets to the definition of protective clothing which is admitted duty free.

Two fairly major changes are being made for protective reasons. The first makes provision for suspended duties on pulp and paper products, and will enable us to give 40 per cent protection to our Broderick Falls Pulp and Paper Mill. The suspended duties will not be brought into force until, or shortly before, the mill goes into production. The second major change provides for increased suspended duties on motor tyres and tubes, which will also not be brought into force until, or shortly before, motor tyres and tubes begin to be made in East Africa. There has also been a reduction in the duty on canvas, designed to assist the local manufacture of canvas products, and an increase in the duty of aluminium circles to give additional protection to an East African industry.

I now turn to changes which have some revenue implications. Washing machines and spin-driers are being made dutiable. Most of this type of machine are already dutiable if they are used domestically, but not if they are used in a commercial laundry. This seems to me to be an anomaly, but I will be prepared to consider applications for the refund of duty to hospitals and similar institutions.

I am proposing a major change in the present system of excise on cigarettes. Cigarettes are now taxed by a complicated formula related both to weight and price. Under the new system, the tax will be related only to the price, which will be simpler and will also provide a more progressive method of taxation. The retail price of our most popular cigarette with the largest sales, namely Sportsman, will remain unchanged. Some of the more expensive brands, such as State Express and Rex, will go up by 10 cts., and two of the cheaper brands will go down by 5 cts. per packet of 20. Additional revenue of this measure will amount to about K£50,000 a year.

Another measure designed to protect local products, but having some revenue implications, is an extension of a policy which has been gradually implemented over the last three years of increasing duty on food products to 50 per cent. This increased duty already applies to processed products, and I can see no reason why, for example, dried figs should pay 50 per cent but fresh figs only 30 per cent. The 50 per cent duty will apply to all fresh vegetables and fruit.

All these changes will come into force from midnight tonight.

I have one further change to announce which relates to the system of charging excise on beer and stout. Under the present system, the charge is related to gallons of worts, but I feel that it would be much simpler from the administrative point of view to charge duty at the stage when bottles of beer or stout have been produced in the factory. The new system will come into operation on the 1st July. The present allowance for wastage is excessive and has been reduced. This will give us additional revenue of about K£100,000. Breweries were allowed 10 per cent wastage and I am reducing this to get K£100,000. Arrangements will be made for the duty to be paid in advance, related to production in the previous month, to avoid a hiatus in the flow of revenue to the Government. The import duty on stout is being increased to give additional protection to the local product, and there will be a slight reduction of the present excise duty on stout.

These proposals have been discussed and agreed with the Finance Ministers of Uganda and Tanzania, who will be announcing similar measures today. They may also be announcing other changes in taxation which will apply only in their own countries.

[The Minister for Finance]

I have one final proposal to put forward which I am sure all hon. Members will welcome. I propose that in 1970 the lowest rate of graduated personal tax, namely Sh. 2 per month, for those with incomes of less than K£48 per annum, should be abolished. This will apply from the 1st January 1970. This change should not lose local authorities a very large amount of revenue if, as intended, greater efforts are made to assess correctly those who will still be liable to pay, and to collect the tax in full from them.

To sum up, my taxation proposals will give us next year K£1 million from the change in dates for payment of corporation tax, and about K£200,000 from changes in import and excise duties. After allowing for the growth in revenue resulting from the growth in the economy we should get about K£3.2 million more in revenue than in the present financial year. The recurrent Budget will be balanced after allowing for expenditure of K£2 million not shown in the estimates, and likely to be needed for maize and wheat export losses. In addition, there will be a surplus of about K£4 million available for transfer to development.

Development expenditure will be financed to the extent of K£14 million from overseas sources,

K£4 million from the recurrent surplus and K£11 million from loans raised locally.

My Budget could be described as a standstill Budget in the sense that it proposes no significant changes in taxation. I would prefer to describe it as a go-ahead Budget as it provides for our biggest ever programme of recurrent and development expenditure, demonstrates the growing strength of the economy, and sets the stage for a further advance towards greater prosperity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala) seconded.

PRAYERS

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 277

FLOATING ISLANDS IN LAKE VICTORIA

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House what action the Government had taken about the floating islands in Lake Victoria around the Kisumu area.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Municipality of Kisumu, in conjunction with the Railways administration, have made available K£2,000 for the project. One crane is already at Kisumu, and another one will soon be brought from Musoma. The work of the project is expected to be carried on in the near future. In view of this, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member should rest assured that the Government will do all it can on this project.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from the answer and taking the words of the Minister, "will do", and yet the harbour and the outer port are already blocked by these floating islands, is it not necessary for the Government to take immediate action so that these floating islands are destroyed, not actually removed by crane because they will float to other places?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is known as a fact that these floating islands are a real nuisance, and that is why this immediate action has been taken and the Government is definitely taking serious action on this.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister aware that both the Kisumu Municipal Council and Railway Administration have said that the blockage is so colossal that they will not be able to carry it out on their own, and the amount of £2,000 is inadequate; what response has this appeal from both the Railways and the Municipality received from the Government?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, because of fact that the Government has entered into this subject, I believe the hon. Member should rest assured that in conjunction with the Railways, Municipality and the Government, that will be done.

Question No. 285

VACANT POST OF SENIOR CHIEF, MASAI

Mr. ole Lemein asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if he would tell the House when the vacant post of Senior Chief, created by the death of the late Masai prominent leader, Senior Chief Kundai ole Sangale, was going to be filled.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. M. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The vacant post created by the untimely death of the late ex-Senior Chief Kundai ole Sangale will be filled as soon as possible.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I appreciate the answer from the Minister, is the Minister aware that there are 12 sections of Masai in Narok District and the post of Senior Chief is the one which can bring good relationships to all those sections. Therefore, will he try to see that this post is filled this year?

Mr. M. Koinange: I cannot say this year, Mr. Speaker, Sir, but I can assure the hon. Member that the Provincial Commissioner is now looking into this subject and is searching for a suitable candidate for the post.

Question No. 230

AID FOR TEA GROWERS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House, since very many tea growers were now experiencing financial hardship in the maintenance of the tea farms, would the Minister arrange loans for such farmers on the security of the tea already planted.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Minister for Agriculture? We will leave that for a moment. Mr. Odero-Sar?

Question No. 272

NUMBER OF PATIENTS, UKWALA HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House:—

(a) what was the daily attendance of patients at Ukwala Health Centre; and

(b) whether that number did not qualify it to become a cottage hospital.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Minister for Health?

Next Question.

*Question No. 250*EDUCATION OF CIVIL SERVANTS' CHILDREN
WHEN TRANSFERRED

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) was the Minister aware of the difficulties which were being experienced by the civil servants when they were transferred in obtaining places for their children in schools; and
- (b) if the answer was yes, why had the Ministry not considered making special arrangements for their children on such occasions to avoid disruption to their education.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

There are several boarding primary schools in this country where civil servants and other people may send their children and, consequently, I am not aware of the difficulties the hon. Member is referring to. If specific cases are known, by the hon. Member, I will give every assistance possible to ensure that the children concerned get places in schools.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, is the Assistant Minister not aware that if a civil servant is transferred today, and he has children in school, he has to take great pains to find places for his children where he is going to? What I am asking is, why does the Ministry not make special arrangements for such civil servants' children to be taken easily in schools where they are going to instead of him taking pains to find a place?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said before, if the hon. Member has any specific case where by a certain civil servant could not obtain a place for his children after being transferred to another place, then this can be looked into, but we cannot judge hypothetical questions unless a Member can substantiate.

Question No. 230

AID FOR TEA GROWERS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone prepared to answer Mr. Godia's Question from the Ministry of Agriculture? No.

Question No. 272

NUMBER OF PATIENTS, UKWALA HEALTH CENTRE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anyone prepared to answer Mr. Odero-Sar's Question from the Ministry of Health? No.

Question No. 288

SELECTION DATE FOR FORM V PUPILS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is there anybody authorized by Mr. Onsando to ask his Question. Mr. Onsando is here. Ask your Question.

Mr. Onsando asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

- (a) why had the selection of School Certificate pupils for Form V, which had to take place on 11th and 12th of March, 1969, been abruptly put off; and
- (b) who had to meet the expenses of those secondary school headmasters who arrived and only learned from the notice which had been posted at the Polytechnic that the meeting had been postponed.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply.

Regarding part (a) of the Question, the hon. Member is aware that examination results from the United Kingdom, were considerably delayed. We had hoped that everything would be ready by March 11th, but this did not prove to be the case. Thus, the Form V Selection meeting was postponed from 11th March to 14th March, 1969, owing to the fact that material to be used by Heads of Schools for purposes of selection was not ready by 11th March. The postponement was necessitated by the fact that the Ministry needed more time to analyse the results of the East African Certificate of Education examination which had arrived late from the United Kingdom.

Part (b), the expenses of the heads of schools who came to the selected meeting were met by the schools concerned.

Mr. Onsando: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, why was it found necessary to postpone this meeting by a senior office boy in the Polytechnic rather than by an announcement on the Voice of Kenya, which would have been much cheaper?

Mr. Mutiso: I do not see how the hon. Member reached this calculation that the posting on the notice board could be considered more expensive than broadcasting through the Voice of Kenya.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is something wrong with the Assistant Ministers. Now, the question is, the selection was called off twice, when the headmasters from Mombasa, from Kakamega, and so on, were already in Nairobi. Was it the headmasters who came on their own, to make selection, or was it for the Minister to call them? How does it happen that the Minister was not ready when they were called up twice?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said earlier that we had hoped that these papers would have arrived in Kenya by 11th March from the United Kingdom, but this did not work out, and this is the reason why the postponement was carried out, so this was not the fault of the Ministry.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister is evading my question. Do I have to ask him to answer the question? The Assistant Minister is answering a different thing when I have asked him to be definite on the question. What can I do to make him answer the question?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid there is nothing an hon. Member can do in such circumstances except to ask further question or pursue the matter on adjournment.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, does the Assistant Minister not agree that it was on two occasions that these headmasters were called here, and if they were called here on two occasions, who paid for the expenses here, was it the Ministry of Education? Why were they called here twice? They can make a mistake once, not twice.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The schools concerned paid, he has already said that. Have you another question, Mr. Shikuku?

Mr. Shikuku: Yes, Sir. Will the Minister tell the House why they find it necessary to use the public's money for their own mistakes? The public's money has been spent and are we going to be reimbursed?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry is a public institution and it has no other money than that of the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must go on now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION No. 288:
SELECTION DATE OF FORM V PUPILS

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, this is a matter of national importance and so I want to pursue it on a Motion for the Adjournment. You cannot do things like that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You do not mean under Standing Order 20, but with the consent of the Questioner you would like to raise it on an adjournment.

Mr. Onsando: I have no objection, Sir.

Question No. 211

INFORMATION OFFICE FOR MERU

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi? Is any hon. Member authorized by Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi to ask his question?

Mr. Godia, on behalf of Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi, asked the Minister for Information and Broadcasting if he would tell the House when the promised information office in Meru would be opened.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I cannot give the hon. Member any date for the opening of the Meru information office at the moment, but I can assure the hon. Member that plans are under way towards the opening of the office.

Mr. Kathanga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of that reply given by the Minister, is he not aware that Meru District is a very large district and they require their own information office?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, I am aware of this. That is why I have allocated a lot of money to build an office in Meru, but I would further inform the hon. Member and say that the plans for the office have been drawn by the Ministry and given to the Ministry of Works for approval, and on their approval the work will start.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, will the Minister inform the House whether he could post an information officer there first while he is waiting for the building of the office and the equipment?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member is prepared to house the information officer and transport him there I will do that.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, arising from that reply, does the Minister imply that he has no Government transport to take the information officer there, and there is no district officer who can allocate a house for an information officer there immediately the work is done?

Mr. Osogo: Mr. Speaker, there is transport to send the information officer to the place, but there is no house for the information officer as the information officer requires a house, but it would greatly help if the hon. Member agrees that the information officer lives with him in his house.

Mr. arap Biy: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Minister not imputing improper motives on the hon. Questioner, when he says that the information officer should go and live with the Member when the Member lives at Embu, which is miles and miles away from Meru?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Where you find an improper motive I fail to understand.

We come back to Mr. Godia's question.

Question No. 230

AID FOR TEA GROWERS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House that since very many tea growers were now experiencing financial hardship in the maintenance of the tea farms, would the Minister arrange loans for such farmers on the security of the tea already planted.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Ministry of Agriculture is still not here. This is most unsatisfactory, but we will have to put it on the Order Paper on Tuesday, I am afraid, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Odero-Sar?

Question No. 272

NUMBER OF PATIENTS, UKWALA HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) what was the daily attendance of patients at Ukwala Health Centre; and
- (b) did that number not qualify for a cottage hospital.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Ministry of Health?

An hon. Member. No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The same applies; Tuesday.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

REPORT ON AND EMPLOYMENT OF CITY COUNCIL OFFICER

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister for Local Government the following Question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that Nairobi City Councillors have rejected the recommendation by senior officials that an officer who confessed willingly to have defrauded the city council should be removed forthwith from his post?
- (b) If so, does he approve the retention of such an officer in public employment?

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) Yes, I am aware of this issue, but I am also aware of the fact that local authorities are empowered by Local Government Regulations, to hire and fire their employees, other than the chief officers, within their terms and conditions of service.

(b) I have considered the step taken by the city council a fair one, whereby disciplinary action was taken on the officer in that he was demoted from the grade of Revenue Officer earning £1,715 per annum, to the grade of Accountant II, earning £1,670 per annum. Besides, Mr. Speaker, he was reprimanded. The degree of the offence in the circumstances did not warrant his dismissal or an inquiry by the Government into this matter.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

FREQUENT ENTRY OF Nolle Prosequi CASES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, with reference to matters to be raised on the adjournment next week: I have appointed the adjournment on Tuesday, 24th June, for Mr. Odinga to raise the matter of frequent entry of nolle prosequi on criminal cases. That will be conditional on our being able to interrupt business at 6.30 p.m.; we may have to carry on longer in order to get in a full day's debate on the Financial Statement, in which case I am afraid I will have to defer it to another day.

GRADUATED PERSONAL TAX EXEMPTION CERTIFICATES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): On Wednesday, 25th June, Mr. Cheboiwo will pursue his Question No. 186, concerning the issue of certificates for exemption from graduated personal tax.

POINT OF ORDER

PRIOR CIRCULATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENT
AND PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

Mr. Seroney: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it has been customary in the past to make the Financial Statement and the Minister's speech available immediately we leave this House and I know that yesterday this was not done. In fact, recently, even the Presidential Address we never had copies of, and the public had copies before the Members of this House. Is this in order, and should the previous practice not be followed in every case as a courtesy to this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I quite agree with Mr. Seroney that that has been the practice as stated by him, and I also agree with the importance of this matter. I was not aware that Members had not received their copies at the usual time, and I must inquire into it.

PROCEDURAL MOTION

EXEMPTION FROM STANDING ORDERS: PRECEDENCE OF FINANCIAL STATEMENT DEBATE

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, the business appearing on today's Order Paper be exempted from the provisions of Standing Orders 137 (1) and 33 which give precedence to the debate on the Financial Statement.

Mr. Speaker, this is necessitated by requests from Members of the Sessional Committee that hon. Members needed some time to read the Financial Statement, which they think has been a good one, to be able to contribute to this debate on Tuesday next. Therefore, instead of starting the Financial Debate this morning, it decided that today be left for Private Members' Motions which appear on this Order Paper and that is why we are moving this Motion.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, I would like to second the Motion moved by the Minister. It is only fair that the Members of this House have sufficient time in which to study the Financial Estimates and speech delivered by the Minister yesterday. We have received copies of the speech this morning, and we have not had time to look at it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Seroney has already informed you that the practice which has usually been followed in this House—whereby the Financial Speech is delivered to Members immediately after the House has adjourned—was not used yesterday.

Mr. arap Biy: It is agreed. Don't waste time.

Mr. Godia: This being the case, Members will appreciate the time which has been allowed to them to study this speech in order to contribute to the debate on Tuesday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few words, I second the Motion.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, I stand to support, because we all know that Fridays have been kept solely for the business of hon. Members, so that we are able to inform the Government what we have in mind. I think it is only fair that we should support this Motion.

With this observation, I support wholeheartedly.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, I beg to move that the Mover be called on to reply.

(Question, that the Mover be called on to reply, put and agreed to)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you wish to reply, Mr. Osogo?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, I commend the Motion to the House.

(Question put and agreed to)

MOTION

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE TO NORTHERN KENYA RESIDENTS

THAT, in view of the fact that the people of Northern Kenya have suffered a great loss both at the hands of Government and those of shifta through the three years of the shifta menace, which made everybody in that area very poor, this House urges the Government—

- (a) to give the county council enough aid and grant, so that poor families could be remitted from tax-paying; and
- (b) to give free education to primary school scholars for a few years so as to decrease the families' burden.

(Mr. Wario on 13th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 13th June 1969)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, you will recall that we had started this debate of Mr. Wario's Motion. We had spent 32 minutes, which leaves us with 58 minutes for the rest of the debate. Mr. Ngei was speaking, but he is not here.

Any other Member wishing to speak on this Motion? Mr. Munoko.

An hon. Member: Are you replying?

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, I do not have to reply, because I did not move the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say a few things about this Motion which was raised by the hon. Wario. First of all, it is not quite clear, in the first part of the Motion, which says "to give the county council enough aid . . ." by way of grants, but he does not say which county council it is, and yet, in the first part of the Motion he is talking about Northern Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, he raises this point about giving grants to local authorities, and at the same time asks that once that is done the poor families should be remitted from the payment of graduated personal tax. I think this has been overtaken by events, in that the Minister for Finance yesterday gave all the people now paying Sh. 24 complete remission. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, this first part of the Motion does not now arise, because remissions are normally given to those people who are at present paying Sh. 24. Even if this had not been made clear by the Minister for Finance, there were ways in which these people could be given remission, which are contained in the graduated personal tax Act, but this now does not arise, and so the only question which the Member now raises is that of giving sufficient grant to the county council.

The amount of money which is normally made available to the Ministry of Local Government for paying grants is limited, and is based on the formula which has been agreed by this House, which is that the grants will vary directly with the population of the area, and inversely with the fiscal ability of any area to pay the taxes and other revenues which accrue to the various local authorities in the country. Therefore, we have a fairly limited amount of money which is based on that formula, and which is payable to the local authorities throughout the country.

Mr. Speaker, for the present year, as far as those county councils in the northern part of Kenya are concerned—and I take them to be Isiolo, Marsabit, Samburu, Turkana, Garissa, Mandera and Wajir—they are given as follows: for Isiolo it will be £33,916; Marsabit, £28,268; Samburu, £35,140; Turkana, £33,383; Garissa, £35,630; Mandera, £33,106; and Wajir £33,211. This, together with the other grants which are payable to other local authorities, brings the total amount of funds which the Government is giving by way of grants to local authorities to £3,564,353.

This amount can only be increased if the Treasury or the Government are able to lay their hands on any other funds which may be available and, at the present time, in the next Financial Year, we are likely to have a little more due to the amount of money which has been made available for the teachers' salaries plus other grants which comes to about £1 million, as hon. Members have already been able to see in their Estimates.

The hon. Member raises one other important point, and that is to give free education for primary schools. He says for a few years, it would decrease the families' burden in that area. It is true that the Government has the intention of providing universal primary education free, and also this is the wish of Kanu as a party. This can be seen from its Manifesto, and it is an aim which the party and the Government will continue to work towards until it is achieved. When we talk of free education or free anything, it really does not mean that that things, or whatever we are going to do, will be free. Such things have to be paid for in a way which will not involve directly the person who benefits from it at that time. However, somebody has to pay and, in this case, if we were to provide free primary education, it really means that the rest of the people of this country must foot the bill collectively, so that individually the people, or the children of the people, can have it free. As we all know, Mr. Speaker, at this time, the country is not able to stand this burden. As hon. Members will recollect, only a few days ago the Minister for Education, in answer to a Question in this House, said that it would cost the country about £20 million recurrent expenditure and £14 million by way of capital development, and these are fairly large sums, and it will take time before this country can realize them. I know, Sir, that the per capital income is increasing in the country. We hope that when it rises sufficiently, that we will be able to meet this. At present, however, it is not quite feasible. Mr. Speaker, when the country is prepared for free primary education, it will have to be for the whole country. The Government will not and cannot agree to have some areas having free primary education while the others will not share the benefit. Mr. Speaker, the reason is that once we have free primary education in a particular area, there is likely to be an influx of people into such area in order to reap the benefit. It would not be in the best interest of this country to do that.

Members will recollect that, at one time, the City Council of Nairobi wished to go ahead with the programme of free primary education in Nairobi because they had the money. The Government had to say, "No", to that because it is not the right policy to follow.

So, Mr. Speaker, as far as this request for free primary education is concerned, even for one year in that area, the Government cannot accept it. So, Sir, I feel that this question has to be gone into quietly, and later on when the Government is ready, we will be able to embark on it but not in a piecemeal way, I am sorry to say.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, for the reasons which I have given, the Government rejects this Motion, and does not accept it.

Mr. Odinga: I am surprised, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to hear the Government reject this straightforward Motion. It is a Motion which should meet with everybody's sympathy in this House. This is because the Motion itself is self-explanatory and it tries to put forward the fact that this part of the country has lagged behind. Particularly, during the shifta menace there has been a halt in this particular area, as far as social development is concerned. If, therefore, these people bring in here a genuine appeal, that they should be considered and be given special consideration, I do not think that happened had been brought about by the people of the northern part of Kenya. You must know that it is only through history that these people found themselves, after a long time, being educated. During the time of the colonial régime they were given false promises which later on gave them some beliefs which resulted in the troubles which we have had in this particular area. I am sure that if people had come eye to eye to stop all these troubles which have cost us so much money, if only the money which has been wasted in this part of the world in trying to suppress shifta had been collected, we would see this money has not helped anybody. Now, is the time when we must put everything into full swing, using all the resources that are available and that are at our disposal, give these people a little quicker development so that they can catch up with the rest of the people of Kenya, and let them compare where they are in Kenya in the light development.

I am sure that if we did this, you will find that the future trouble which might come as a result of lack of knowledge and of unnecessary propaganda might be avoided. However, if the idea is only to give the county council enough aid and grants so that poor families may be remitted from tax payment, and to give free primary education to primary scholars for some few years so as to decrease the family burden, I do not think this is something which is according to the Assistant Minister for Local Government's argument. I quite agreed with him when he admitted that they have given grants to the local governments, but these grants are not adequate for the people who are on the ground. What they consider at the moment is not really enough to make any impression, or give them any impetus in development of that particular area. They said that it is very little compared with the magnitude of the problems which are to be solved.

They must also ask for free education, but if they ask for free education and in Kanu's policy they stated that they will give free education, why not start now? Why not start from there? Kanu said in its Manifesto that there would be free primary education at one time. If some people want this primary education and even if you were not prepared to do it for the whole country, why not start in this place? The children who will need free primary education in that area will not be so colossal in number that the country or the Government could not afford it.

There are so many things on which the Government decides to spend the money of the country which we disapprove of very much. If such money is switched, to start off free primary education to help these helpless children in the northern part of Kenya, it will be a gesture of friendship as we see it. These people who for a long time have been neglected, as not being a part and parcel of Kenya, those people who are living in the north and were made to believe that they were not part and parcel of Kenya and were excluded from Kenya for a long time, if they are assisted, they will come up, their confidence will be restored and you will find that they will immediately be loyal people of Kenya. Smooth development, smooth co-operation and co-existence which we need will be restored.

I say that the Government is very unwise indeed in rejecting a straightforward Motion like this; what does it mean? It will go to the world, it will go everywhere, and it will imply that the Government came out with a hammer and hit a very straightforward Motion instead of considering amending what they want. They simply said, "we reject". What is the Government really rejecting? Are they refusing to give the county council enough aid and grants so that poor families may be remitted from paying tax? Or are they rejecting, though without saying that they do not accept free education? Or what do they mean? Does it mean they do not want to do anything for education in this particular area that they reject further grants for this area? They will be proved to be very wrong. It will not at all appear to be nice. There should have been an amendment, an alternative to this. It should not be that the Government has rejected it. What have they rejected This is what I am asking, Mr. Speaker. You cannot reject such a straightforward case. He might have put it in a way which the Government thought they could not accept free primary education, but a certain measure of giving grants for free education in this area should have been agreed to. They should have suggested something, or come out and say, "this is what we are going to do in order to give some grants to these people". This would appear to be reasonable. But if this attitude is going to be taken by the Kanu Government as usual—because I saw yesterday that because the elections are coming they have begun to deceive the public—if this is the idea that you have no feeling for humanity, this would be very pitiful because we must actually be sincere with the masses. Especially, we must have mercy on those areas which were neglected by the colonial régime. To show that we are free, we must also help these people. We know that the colonial régime concentrated their efforts in some parts of the country and neglected other parts. We should now be able to concentrate on those parts which were neglected in order to bring them up. We should not compare and say that we will not give free primary education to that area because all the other areas will demand it too. Other places have had something.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Motion very strongly.

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to start by answering a question that has been put forward by the Leader of the Opposition. Why has the Government rejected this Motion? What the Government has rejected is really the insinuation and the tone that is contained in this Motion. Perhaps, a number of people here have not had an opportunity of visiting the area in question. They, therefore, tend to deduce from the Motion that nothing has been done. A lot has been done, Mr. Speaker. The working of the county councils and the working of the Government are complementary. Whereas grants have not been given to the satisfaction of a county council, as much in quantity as the county council would have liked, the Central Government on the other hand, has really done a lot to invest money for development of these areas. Perhaps it is not realized that at a very colossal figure the Kenya Government has built two secondary schools in the area without regarding the number of pupils in the primary schools to utilize them. Per square foot, the cost of putting up two secondary schools at Wajir and Marsabit has been very heavy. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but recently it was announced that the Harambee school in the hon. Mover's constituency or area, Isiolo, is going to be included in the Government aid programme. These are the three schools that have come up during the time after the shifta menace.

Is it also realized, Sir, that as we sit here the Government has built a fully fledged hospital, with a doctor, at Marsabit? Is it also realized, Sir, that the Government, today, is spending a lot of money to open up the country for road transport? There is the Nairobi/Isiolo/Ethiopia Road to make the place accessible to the whole Kenya population. Is it also realized that a number of air strips, because of the nature of the country, have been put up—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to interrupt the hon. Minister but would it not be in order if he had some sticks—for the points he is making—to throw to the Leader of the Opposition in accordance with the Afriean tradition?

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am trying to make supplementary or complementary points of development by the Government towards the development of the area. As I said at the opening of my speech, both county councils and the Central Government work hand in hand. Whereas the money is not given to the county councils for their local development, the Central Government has given large sums of money, invested large sums of money in that area to open it up. We work in periods of development. Who knows what the next phase of the development will mean?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as we stand and sit here today, the local county council of Marsabit is putting up county council offices and a chamber. I do not think that has happened before. Is this not improvement?

Water development, boreholes and research is vigorously being pursued in this area and, may I say that the Government has started a very large programme of livestock buying which cannot be denied. The hon. Member from Muddo Gashi area and Garba Tula knows this well, that this is meant to bring in money to the country, for the people. This money will continue pouring in for as long as the people work hard to maintain their livestock at good standard and produce them in large numbers. Money will go there as long as people are prepared to work hard.

Again, Mr. Speaker, it cannot be said that Government has forgotten the people. People who come under the jurisdiction of the county councils of this northern part of Kenya have been fully integrated into the Government's working machinery. It is not so long ago when we had from the hon. Member's own township a district commissioner. They were not left behind. Today, Sir, a District Commissioner for Kirinyaga comes from that area, and a number of district officers, too. Therefore, these people are being considered as good Kenya citizens, and being integrated into the development of the country.

Finally, Sir, to put the picture in its proper perspective, may I say that the churches are now working very hard in the area. A number of hospitals, clinics, schools, boarding primary schools have been opened in a number of places. Norkole, Marsabit and at a point between Isiolo and Archer's Post, all over the place the Government is very much alive to the need of the area. I can assure the hon. Member that although the Motion has been rejected in its present form, the

[The Minister for Natural Resources]

Government is fully prepared and is going full ahead, full speed to develop that area. We will never forget that area.

With these remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to reject the Motion as it is here.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Mover of this Motion is a good and personal friend. Not only that, I am one of the people who is always conscious of the fact that people need development, particularly the small man.

I would like to submit that it is quite true that this area in the past was neglected. Even during the pre-shifta days, it was neglected, not given good attention. However, after the shifta days, I can say very, very clearly here, taking into account also what the hon. Minister has just said, that that part of the country has received more aid from this Government than even Butere. These are facts, and when the hon. Minister was replying to the hon. Leader of the Opposition, surely I would have liked him to have had a bundle of sticks with him. According to African tradition, Mr. Speaker, when you have facts like the ones the Minister was dishing out, he would say, "Is it not true that this and that is being done? If what I am saying is not true, there is the stick", and he should have thrown a lot of sticks to hon. Rapondi and he would not be able to reply to any of them at all. It is quite all right to talk in terms of gingering; the Leader of the Opposition has done his job by making the whole picture very black, thereby trying to get some credit to himself. However, this is not the time for that because we are not fighting the imperialists at all; we are fighting facts. Hon. Rapondi is wrong and he has to be proved he is wrong, and this is not just to let him down. If he has done something good we say that Rapondi has done something good. However, this attitude by the hon. Rapondi to try and blackmail, to try and paint a very black picture of the whole situation just for the sake of politics, that is terribly wrong. Politics is long behind us. What we should talk about is development. Is it not true what the Minister has been saying, that this takes place in the area concerned? It is true, and we can go there and prove it is true.

Mr. Speaker, there are a lot of other parts besides the area in question which now need development. There are some parts of the country where there are no hospitals, no hospitals being built, where there are no health clinics being put up. Take Busia, for example, which is such a big district, and yet these things are not to be found there. There is a big population there, but you find nothing there. We are not being told that there is going to be built a hospital in that area, but that is just a story. We are told that in Broderick Falls there is going to be a paper factory. That has been the sing-song since we came to this National Assembly but nothing has been done about that. However, Sir, where the Government has done some things which we can see, physically there, then we must accept that as something being done. The hon. Member, in the course of the Minister's speech—I was watching him—was nodding his head in agreement with what the Minister was saying. In other words, Sir, he never challenged anything the Minister said as not being true. This means that he agreed that whatever the Minister said was, in fact, being done and he was conscious of it.

Mr. Speaker, I do not think the Member who moved this Motion can be blamed because this Motion was tabled in 1966. That was a long time ago and this Motion would have been very much in order at that time, but in view of the fact that some development has now taken place in the area, I am sure the hon. Member will not take it too badly if the Motion is rejected. It has been overtaken by events. It is not that the Motion is being defeated in bad faith but in good faith because it has been overtaken by events. A lot of things have happened since that time. I see hon. Rapondi shaking his head, but the hon. Member is well aware of what is happening. I am sure he is not the type of Member who would like to tell a lot of untruths in this House; on the contrary, I am sure he is a Member who is prepared to accept facts. In relation to the hon. Rapondi shaking his head, we know very well that he is in the Opposition and he must cash in on anything he feels can promote his party. I am sorry for him because he might as well be shedding crocodile tears in this case.

Having said that to hon. Rapondi—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am sure the hon. Member prefers to be referred to by his more common name of Odinga. It is our practice to refer to hon. Members by the name of their own choice.

Mr. Shikuku: I am sorry, then, but I remember one day he said he was sometimes referred to as "Double O" and he should also be referred to as "Double O", Raila Rapondi, if that is so.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): When it comes to addressing Members of this House, we use the names that they ask us to use.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you Mr. Speaker, Sir. Having accepted your ruling Sir, I will call him hon. Oginga Odinga or "Double O". Now, Sir, I am sure that I was not of the opinion—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are starting to disregard my ruling Mr. Shikuku; I do not like this rather flippant response. As you say, Mr. Oginga Odinga is the name he has chosen and I have not heard him say he would like to be called "Double O".

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you Mr. Speaker, hon. Oginga Odinga.

Now, Sir, why I was prompted to speak on this Motion, as I said before is because of the allegations made by the hon. Oginga Odinga and also the facts placed before the House by the Minister for Natural Resources who has a full knowledge of the area. Some of us may talk about it. Because it is a long time since I was there last, in 1964, I would not therefore claim that I am very clear about the development there. In view of the fact that the Minister himself, who is frequently in the area, is sure of the facts he has stated—the Member was not challenging him because he was nodding his head in agreement—I am sure he will agree with me that the Motion, having been kept too long, has been overtaken by events. It is in this spirit that the Government is not going to accept this Motion. Any day the Member feels that the Government is dilly-dallying and dragging its feet on development in the area, I am sure he is one of those Members who will be coming back next year and I will be here to help him push the Government if I will be here too, but I have the hope of being here. I hope I am not hoping against hope.

Mr. Kanani: Are you sure?

Mr. Shikuku: No one is ever sure in politics for the information of the Member for Busia Central.

Mr. Speaker, with this in mind, we are asking the hon. Member to accept the Government's—

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to get your ruling on this; the fact that the Member is putting it that this Motion was introduced somehow in 1966, and since we are debating the Motion now and the introducer of this Motion had all the time—if he wanted to withdraw the Motion—to withdraw it, and the fact that he brought it, is it not a fact that the Motion is fully in order and that it should be discussed at this time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, yes, there is no doubt that the Motion is in order. Even if the hon. Member gave notice originally so long ago, it is quite in order for him to pursue it still, having given fresh notice at the start of this session. I think what Mr. Shikuku is saying is that there is not so much justification for having it now as there was when the notice was first handed in.

Mr. Shikuku: That is what I am saying Mr. Speaker; I am saying that it is not out of order, it is definitely in order because you renewed it during the new session and you have been doing so since 1966. I am quite sure about it, but now things have been overtaken by events. That is all I am saying; I am not saying that it is out of order. With these remarks, I beg to ask the hon. Member to agree with the Government and also to push it in future if he feels that the Government is not doing anything, but the rejection is not in bad faith, it is in good faith.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Any hon. Member wishing to speak? I will call on the Mover to reply.

Mr. Wario: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In fact, when I moved this Motion the other day, I never thought that the Government could come out as it did today to reject the Motion outright.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I cannot say that this Motion is wrong; it has been here since 1966, but, Sir, it does not mean that what is there in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this Motion is not needed. Mr. Speaker, this is the time—especially now that things have cooled down—when these things and actually even this particular Motion, ought to come. Even if this Motion was there in 1966, the shifta activities continued. Even if the Government wanted to do something in that particular area it would not have done—even if it wanted to give more grants and the rest of it—at that particular time. However, this year, 1969, when the shifta activities are all gone, it now remains for the Government to do something for the people of that area.

Mr. Speaker, this Motion is only asking for sympathy. I do not reject or object that the Government has done something for that area; it has done something yes. It has built roads, it has built hospitals and schools and all these are acceptable to me and anybody living in that area even today. However, one thing where we need the Government's sympathy is this: now we have schools and, in fact, the number of schools in that area has tripled—this I agree that it is there and hospitals the same—but because this number has tripled, the number of the peoples there is quite large. Now, we know very well that we have lost everything to the shifta and, as I have said previously, to the Government. Now we have no money. How do you expect schools with no pupils at all? What schools are those? If I sent my child to school and he does not pay fees just because his father does not have money, then, he will not learn anything because the mwalimu will sack him. This is well known even to the hon. Mr. Nyagah because he was once a mwilimu and he knows that unless someone pays fees, he cannot stay in school.

This is where I ask the Government to give us, at least, free primary education in schools because our people cannot educate their children. The nation cannot be fully educated at any one time unless the entire nation has the same privileges and facilities of educating their people. Even at the beginning, when we used to say that those particular areas were lagging behind, it was entirely meant that they were lagging behind in education. In fact, it would look as if we were again going back to the same stage of lagging behind when we had trouble with the shiftas; we are going back to the same stage of lagging behind because you will never move forward unless you have education. Without education, you will not find anybody from that area being efficient. One hon. Member said that we were producing district commissioners but these ones are educated people, they are educated yes, and as educated men like any other Kenyan, they are bound to have their chance. He can be the biggest man in Kenya because he is educated. However, when the situation is such, then education is really refused. I remember in colonial times, during 1948 and the rest of it, our people said: "We do not want you, we do not want schools, no teachers, no local councils and the whole lot of it". Now this time again since we have got our Government they have the county council for which today, I have the responsibility to ask for more grants and aid.

As far as education is concerned, it is the same education we were rejecting in 1948. We have agreed to push ourselves forward in even secondary schools, as the hon. Member has said, for example, in Isiolo, which is in fact one of the best Harambee secondary schools in the country. We have built this one from our own resources.

The Government has helped—this I have no doubt because it has helped all the similar types of schools in the country—and the Government has got its own part to play and we people our own, but our side is the one which I said that we have done it out of our own resources. This means, even an old mother who had a ten cent piece, we had to get that one away from her and then see to it that we had the school.

An hon. Member: In the spirit of Harambee.

Mr. Wario: In the spirit of Harambee yes, thank you.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, although the Government has rejected this part of the Motion, that is, giving the County Council enough aid and grants to remit these families from paying, I agree with the Assistant Minister for Local Government in part (a) of the Question. This does not arise especially as far as tax paying is concerned because we were lucky with the hon. Gichuru's Financial Statement yesterday, in which these people paying Sh. 24 will never pay. I am sure that this will benefit over 95 per cent of my area because they are all paying that, except me and maybe two others who are in that particular constituency. I therefore have no complaint about tax remittance, because it has already been done by the Government through the Financial Statement yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister has said that he is giving enough aid and grants to this County Council. Mr. Speaker, when I went home last weekend I learned from the County Council of Isiolo that they have received £33,000 which means Sh. 660,000. As far as truth is concerned, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Assistant Minister for Local Government knows very well this County Council did not receive the grant for 1967 and if you include that of 1967 in with that of 1968, it will be something like Sh. 800,000 or nearly a million shillings. If we are poor—as the Assistant Minister knows that we are because he has at one time gone there—we cannot continue and even the County Council cannot pay the salaries of teachers and the rest of them. The Assistant Minister for Local Government, the Ministry, should therefore consider giving us the rest of the money that has remained which is half of our share for the year 1968/69, that is Sh. 800,000 instead of the present Sh. 660,000. I think the County Council is making an application very soon so as to get the entire share. If the Government had given them their share in the year 1968, then there would have not been any complaint as far as this is concerned. The amount of Sh. 660,000 is only for the year 1969 and, therefore, we still need the amount for the year 1968, which is over Sh. 400,000. I think the Government will agree to this delegation we are making and if this amount of Sh. 660,000 is increased to a million, then we shall have achieved the aim of having enough aid and grants.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and negatived)

MOTION

RAISING NAKURU MUNICIPALITY TO CITY STATUS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwithaga, I understand quite correctly that you wish to amend your Motion slightly. I had myself noticed that it is not quite in order as it stands, because it is not possible for this House to resolve that a local authority should be raised to the status of a City. That is beyond our power. You have also seen that, and I think you want to put in after the word “resolves”, in the last line but one, the words “to recommend”. That is in order.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, since Kenya has only one town enjoying the status of City, and in view of the fact that the town of Nakuru has grown both in industry, population, and thus importance; and since further this town is the home and granary of the most important sector of our economy, namely, agricultural industry, this House resolves to recommend that Nakuru Municipality be raised to the status of a City.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in fact, I do not see how the Government will not see reason in the following points that I wish to advance since the Motion only seeks to recommend. In fact, the House will agree with me that we all understand the question of raising the status of towns is a prerogative of His Excellency the President. This House can only resolve to recommend, so that the Ministry of Local Government can take that resolution of recommendation to His Excellency the President who normally, and usually, and, in fact, at all times, heeds the feelings of the Members of this House, and therefore believing that he will not overlook those feelings.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, to begin with, the Motion itself is self-explanatory. During the colonial régime, the British decided to build Nakuru to be the second city in the country, and I remember the words of Mr. Havelock, the then Minister for Local Government—when the present hon. Minister for Local Government was nowhere to be heard of at that time—when he announced that Nakuru was going to be built into a second city of the country for various reasons. One of the reasons was that it was becoming the home of the agricultural economy and, at that time, we all remember that the agricultural economy was centred on the area known as the White Highlands. In fact, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the railway station of this town, at that time, was built with one purpose: to start building the town into a better and bigger town in the whole of East Africa. Our railway station, Mr. Speaker, Sir, then, and until now, is the best in the whole of East Africa. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am trying to show why the British thought that this town was going to be a very important town.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are factors which are taken into consideration, in Local Government system, before a town can be raised either to the status of a municipality or the status of a city. Mr. Speaker, our town, was once a municipal board. Now, when it became a municipal council—it is over 15 years ago—it became a municipality with full autonomy. Mr. Speaker, Sir, one of the factors which should decide whether Nakuru can be a city or not, is the rateable value which is the highest in the whole of East Africa. Mr. Speaker, Sir, our rate was 5½ per cent only two years ago. Now we tried to come down to 4½ per cent so as to try and reduce the burden on the rate-payers. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, even at 4½ per cent, the rate is still the higher in the whole of East Africa. In fact, the rate in the city council is 3½ per cent and they have been reducing it to two per cent; they are in the process of doing that. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the rateable value is one of the most important factors that is considered. Now, if we can have the whole of East Africa, as far as the rates are concerned, then there is an assurance of resources by virtue of the high rate that we are charging.

Not only that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of industries, is another factor. In fact, Mr. Speaker, we have some industries which were built during the colonial régime. Now, a factory that was going to be built in Ghana, was brought to Nakuru; you can imagine shifting from Accra to Nakuru. How important is this town? Mr. Speaker, this is the Union Carbide and, in fact, it is the only factory in the whole of Africa of its kind, manufacturing batteries and torch-cells. This factory is a very scientific factory. It is being enlarged to the extent of occupying nine acres, which means that it is going to increase the volume of production and, in increasing the volume of production, cater for more workers, and, in fact, Mr. Speaker, Sir, this alone, brings in more revenue in the form of taxation. Now, Sir, I will come to size. That shows that Nakuru has got a consideration from international circles to be able to be given an industry being shifted from Accra and instead of going to Accra, comes to Nakuru; this is of prime importance.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other industry, is the pyrethrum industry, and it is the whole of the pyrethrum industry. How much is Kenya gaining from the pyrethrum industry?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): So what?

Mr. Mwithaga: In fact, Mr. Speaker, Sir, hon. Ngala asks, “So what?” It is the home of the pyrethrum industry. Mr. Speaker, you will agree with me—you have been a farmer for a long time—that the pyrethrum industry in fact gives Kenya a very high income. In fact, it is the first, and in the whole world, I think the headquarters of pyrethrum, apart from New York, are in Nakuru. Mr. Speaker, the fact that pyrethrum is not grown in the town, is no excuse because the growers of that pyrethrum must have a place like a town for processing the pyrethrum and for their operations in accountancy and other cares which must be done in a given centre, and that is a town where offices are built.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the agricultural industry of the country is actually the matter of our economy, the matter of the society; the agricultural economy. Now, our province, in fact, feeds almost the whole nation. If our farmers in the province stopped a little while, just halted a little bit, the whole country would shake; all the stomachs of these gentlemen who are now facing me with a lot of laughter will go down. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not normally feed much because I want to live long.

Mr. Speaker, the farmers in that area who use this town for most of their operations, need a word of thanks from the Ministry by recognizing that their capital, is an important capital for them, and they have been waiting for that thank you, but they have never got it. Now, if the capital is not important, why has the Republic seen fit to take out Heads of States almost everytime they come? They cannot go to Mombasa because it is too far and, in fact, there is nothing very new—there is an international harbour and they have seen harbours everywhere—but they want to see the agricultural economy which has now been transferred from the white man to the black man. Mr. Speaker, those Heads of States at one time, were made to believe that the African could not farm well so now they have to come to Nakuru to see the change in effect.

Mr. Speaker, the flamingoes are also another factor. It is the second largest sactuary of the flamingoes in the world; there is nothing small in Nakuru. Now, Mr. Speaker, the agricultural industry, is a factor that must be treated with a bit of recognition and therefore the home of that agricultural economy is our town.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister will agree with me that the population of Nakuru has grown to an incredible size. This population growth is another factor which must be taken into account, and which is normally taken into account. I have been to some cities overseas: I have been to Europe, I have been to the East, and I have seen towns called cities, or which are enjoying the status of cities, having a population of 28,000 people and the Minister will agree with me that this is so. Some have 28,000 people, 30,000 people, and they enjoy the status of cities, with the mayors and all that autonomy. Now, Mr. Speaker, here we seem to be going slow, just because the Minister of Co-operatives and Social Services, intends Mombasa to become a city first. I do not want to drag the issue of Nakuru in this whole scramble for which town should become a city first? The population of Nakuru, as registered, has been estimated at 43,000. This was from the old population census and today, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would bet with anybody, who would not agree with me that Nakuru has a population of 80,000 people.

The demand for housing space, Mr. Speaker, is an indication of what kind of population we have got. People refused to register themselves when a census was being carried out some years back, because—Mr. Speaker, Sir, let us be honest—they thought that we had not reached the time of independence and they knew, in the years back, that if they were known to be of this and that number, some of them would be repatriated, and others might have other things done to them. For political reasons, people did not register themselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know the Minister will come out and tell me “let us wait for the census”. That could be the usual, expected approach—let us wait for the census—but the census is being considered right now and, if people agree to be registered, it will prove that we have roughly 80,000 people. 80,000 people in a town like that one with such a small area of operation, is really a credit to the Municipality of Nakuru.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the size of a town itself does not need consideration. However, what the council gives out, the resources and the contribution the council give towards the building of this country, are the factors which I think are important. I asked a question in this House one time: whether the Minister for Lands could acquire compulsorily some land around Nakuru. From (Inaudible.) farm, to Lanet and Menengai Railway Station, (Inaudible.) Estate and the whole of the southern zone around Lake Nakuru, so that all that land can be given to the municipality to allow space for expansion. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question was dealt with very lightly, and the Minister for Local Government answered my question and said that there was going to be a review of the sizes of towns and that something was being thought of

[Mr. Mwithaga]

That something has never been thought of because it has never materialized. Now the size, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to me is immaterial. However, if it is immaterial, then who is to blame? The Government has the right of acquiring land. We have demanded for more land to be given to Nakuru Municipality for expansion and for industry.

When we set up the Union Carbide industry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we did so in a residential area. In fact, the Town Planning Adviser, had almost refused because it was a residential area. However, we had to convert that given area—a piece of land of nine acres—into a factory and industry land although it was supposed to be a residential area because there was no land for industry. Mr. Speaker, the land issue is another matter to be considered by the Minister and I am sure that when we are given the status of a city all that land around the town which I have mentioned, including Lanet Estate, Bunjoro Farm Sisal Estate, and Menengai Hill, will be given to us. This should be quite easy.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if these areas are included in the town, of course, we will have our rates going up by another half per cent and this is a service to the nation. In fact, the Municipality has been very independent and has not been bothering Government with a lot of deficits, and has not suffered any financial blow. The Minister will agree with me also that our financial position is second in stability to that of Nairobi City and this is well known to the Government. Our financial position has been terribly smooth and has been very static, and this alone is a factor to indicate how responsible our council is.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): What about the sports stadium?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, for the information of the hon. Minister, our stadium is the best stadium in the whole of East Africa; it is only now that Nairobi is trying to build a stadium. It is the best in the whole of East Africa; everything we have got is either the best in the world, second-best in the world, best in East Africa or even best in Africa. Therefore, the question of size of the land does not arise and I am not concerned with it.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the tourists have used Nakuru and in that way giving Kenya a lot of revenue. They have used Nakuru so much that if you go around the towns of the world you will hear them say, "What about Nakuru, the beautiful town of flamingoes that we hear of?" I have heard people say this in the Far East, Europe, everywhere; it is self-advertised. Lake Nakuru, which is now a national park, has got a sanctuary for flamingoes which is a source of revenue as far as tourism is concerned.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): These are not animals.

Mr. Mwithaga: If there were animals, we would ask the Minister to help us.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the importance I am referring to is real in that the Government has already found it fit to bring Heads of State to see the growth of Nakuru, to see the development of the agricultural economy around us, and to see the political stability, peace and unity of our people—which they have enjoyed—and to see the flamingoes. The Head of this Republic, the President, has used the Nakuru National Park as his lunching place every time he has come to Nakuru. Ministers have been brought by the President to see this because they never bother individually to go there. We have built a State Lodge now, which indicates also the importance of Nakuru and that it is growing important. We have a State Lodge which was never there; the Lake Nakuru National Park which was never there; Menengai Crater which was—

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member in order in alleging that Ministers never bother to visit Nakuru on their own, while we, individually as Ministers, visit Nakuru so often?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is all right, you have corrected him on his facts.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, he has corrected nothing. I said they have never gone on their own to Lake Nakuru National Park. They only started going with the President when he was moving there, and we all went together. If they want the credit for bringing the President, they they can have it.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do not want to dwell very much on this. We appreciate that a lot of industries have been built in Nakuru. There are several firms which have applied to come and set up industries, but the only problem is that of land. I have said here that it is an issue which the Government will have to consider. If we are to set these up we must have more autonomy and more land given to us so that we have more room and more scope for expansion.

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Mombasa has a lot more population, but what is their financial position? What is their revenue there? It cannot compare with our revenue. Kisumu cannot compare with our revenue. Despite the fact that these towns are large, and the fact that they have more population than ourselves, the financial position of Nakuru is a factor which justifies its being considered before other towns or local authorities are considered.

Therefore, Sir, since we have so contributed financially, towards the building of the Republic, and we have so contributed towards the expansion of our agricultural economy, for which we cater in our town, we have also been contributing towards creating a better image for Kenya by getting these Heads of State to come to Nakuru, and then I believe our resolution here to recommend that this town should become a city, will be accepted by the Government with a bit of humility.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Who is seconding your Motion?

Hon. Members: No one.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Is there anyone who is wishing to second the Motion?

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir—

Hon. Members: What does he know about it?

Mr. Godia: —I would like to congratulate the Member for Nakuru Town for putting his case so well to the House.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the hon. Member right to second the Motion when he has not been asked by the Mover to second and the Mover says that he wants Mr. Shikuku to second, and this is not Mr. Shikuku at all?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): I think we know the answer to that. Carry on, Mr. Godia.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this being a House where each Member is supposed to contribute to any Motion which is brought before the House, there is no reason why hon. Mbogoh should challenge my standing to speak on this Motion. I feel that this is an important Motion and therefore I have the right to express my views accordingly.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to congratulate the Mover of this Motion for the manner in which he has put his case very ably to the House. It is a fact that the people of Nakuru wish to see their municipality promoted to the status of a city. They feel that they will be privileged to live in a city just like we here in Nairobi. I think that it is only fair that we give consideration to this Motion and that the House should agree to the request.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Nakuru has grown very greatly mainly due to the influence of farmers. It cannot be denied that Nakuru Town has been established due to the hard work and due to what was produced by the original settlers and now the other farmers—our own African farmers—in that place. These have done very much in contribution towards the growth of the Municipality of Nakuru. This being the case, I think the people are right in requesting that the status of their town should be raised.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the question of the extension of the boundaries of Nakuru would be a matter for the people of Nakuru and the Government to consider; they will definitely need more land for expansion and other facilities for development. This being the case, Sir, it would not be a problem because the people have decided to offer their shambas for the development of the municipality so that it may become a city.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this being the second town—the first was Nairobi—to require promotion, I have no doubt that the other cities like Mombasa and Kisumu will do likewise. However, this being the first one, and the people of Nakuru being the first to put their case forward, I think that it is time that this House considered their case.

Since the Mover has put his case very clearly to the House, I beg to support.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the words you have read have already been amended, and the Speaker pointed this out.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, I amended it. Mr. Osogo. Are you the Government responder?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): No, Sir.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, much as I sympathize with the hon. Member for Nakuru Town who has brought this Motion, I see no other way but to tell him that the Government is going to reject it. This is because the reasons given here, for the town to be altered to a city, are very flimsy indeed, and also, the raising of the status of any town to that of city is the prerogative of His Excellency the President, and if this Motion were passed we would tie the hands of His Excellency the President in deciding otherwise. We are not

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] prepared, as a Government, to tie the hands of His Excellency the President by accepting this Motion.

Now, I said that the reasons were flimsy, Mr. Deputy Speaker, because we were told here—

An hon. Member: When did you see his Excellency last?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): I have seen the President this morning.

Mr. Mwithaga: About it?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): About it, yes.

Mr. Mwithaga: What did he say?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): He told me to reject it.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Deputy Speaker, would I be in order to request the Minister to give us evidence by substantiation that he actually spoke to the President on this Motion this morning?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, I am afraid it is not really necessary for him to tell us this. In any case, he says this happened to him personally, he is stating what was told to him personally, and that is evidence. The evidence he is giving is his own experience of his own conversation this morning.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was carried away by the interjections of an hon. Member on the Back Bench who keeps on interrupting me, and I am just answering him at random.

Let me come to my main speech. I said that the reasons given in this Motion were flimsy. We were told that the town has grown in industry. This is a bit questionable, if it has grown more than any other town which is not a city now as far as industry is concerned. I would say that Mombasa has grown in industry more than Nakuru.

Hon. Members: No, no.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): It has, and anyway if Nakuru has grown in industry by establishing processing plants for agricultural produce, then the only comment I can make is that the town is very lucky to have grown in industry.

We were also told that the town has grown in population. I would like to tell the hon. Member that he did not do his homework. The figures we have show that in population, there are other towns of smaller status than Nakuru which are more populated than Nakuru. Thika is one, and Mombasa is another; so the question of this town having a growing population being the reason for asking this House to recommend that the town be made a city does not seem to be logical at all.

We were also told that there are flamingoes there. The fact on its own, that there are flamingoes on Lake Nakuru, does not make the town sufficiently important to warrant changing it from a town to a city. There may be flamingoes there, and if the hon. Member wants to hatch more in the area, he is welcome to do so. He had better ask the Minister for Tourism to help him in producing more flamingoes, and ask the Minister for Agriculture to teach him how to eat flamingoes.

The last point he made, Mr. Deputy Speaker, was that this town is part of the most important sector of our economy, and that it is an agricultural town. That is a good reason, but he should not forget that a town such as Mombasa is the gateway to our country, and that in itself would be a more important factor to warrant His Excellency the President considering Mombasa for city status.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, much as we sympathize with this Motion, when the Mover spoke we found hardly any substance, in the reasons he gave, to warrant this House recommending to His Excellency the President that the status of Nakuru be raised.

With these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to oppose the Motion, for the reason that we do not want to tie the hands of His Excellency the President in recommending that any town in the Republic should become a city. If we passed this, we would be tying his hands.

With these few remarks, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, while supporting my friend, the Member for Nakuru Town, on his Motion, there is something I would like to find out from the Government, as a matter of principle. Nairobi is a city, and it was made a city during the colonial times, I believe by the Queen of England. I think the matter of promoting our bigger towns is a very important one for the Government to think of, and that is why I feel the Motion of the Member for Nakuru Town has a very important aspect as far as principles and the creation of cities are concerned.

We have towns like Mombasa, Kisumu, Nakuru, Embu, Kitale—

An hon. Member: Meru.

Mr. Mate: —which for some peculiar reason might desire to be promoted to a higher status, which would show the difference between towns and cities. For example, Mombasa is a harbour, that is why it is important. It is on the sea. Nakuru

[Mr. Mate]

Town is in a farming area, and we cannot expect Nakuru to have the same facilities which Nairobi offers, Nairobi being the capital. Being the capital, Nairobi has peculiar qualities suitable for a capital. If you take another town, for example Kisumu, it is a port on Lake Victoria, and has to be considered as such. Therefore, we cannot think of Rudolf or Moyale in the same way as we think of towns like Machakos.

As a matter of merit and principle, I would like the Government to think again and see whether, during Jamhuri Day or New Year's Day, or something like that, we could not consider other towns for promotion. There are a few towns which compete favourably. Mombasa is one, Kisumu and Nakuru naturally. Therefore, I feel, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that the Minister for Information, rather than just brushing aside the whole question, should realize that the Member for Nakuru Town is trying to bring out a principle and an idea which may be forgotten in due course. I appeal to Government to think again about these things, and remember that they also have honours for individuals who have done good jobs. They become Elders of the Order of the Golden Heart or Elders of the Burning Spear—so, as far as towns are concerned, even Embu might one day qualify. It is the capital of Eastern Province.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, as a matter of principle, I feel the reason which would make Nakuru Town a city would be agricultural. Mombasa is a harbour, and similarly Kisumu, I think Government should think along these lines, rather than just brush aside the Motion, when the Member for Nakuru is thinking deeply and logically, and is putting up a very good idea to the House.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Bala: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to say a few words on this Motion. The intention of the Motion is not all that bad, but the hon. Member who was moving it did not give us reasonable evidence to justify Nakuru attaining city status.

First of all, he did not tell the House whether a resolution has been passed by the Nakuru Municipal Council demanding that Nakuru should receive city status. I know the hon. Member is not a delegate of that constituency, but all the same he should have been able to tell the House whether Nakuru Municipal Council has demanded this and the valid reasons why they have done so. Also, the hon. Member did not tell the House whether the local Kanu officials and Kanu as a party have passed a resolution demanding this—

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, under the Powers and Privileges Act of this Parliament, is the Member in order to challenge my authenticity in representing my people?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): He is not challenging your authenticity or your right to represent the Nakuru people. All he is saying is that your case would have been stronger if you had brought the obvious, or stated support of the Nakuru Municipality. That is perfectly in order. It is a debating point, for what it is worth.

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I do not know why the hon. Member is panicking. In fact, he had a lot of time—although I could not see him—in front of this bench.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member has not told us whether KPU supporters in that area have also recommended that this particular town should be promoted to city status. As such, I feel that the hon. Member, although he had the Motion in mind, did not do proper homework and get enough support so as to justify the Members in this House sympathizing with him.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, if we say that Nakuru should be promoted because it is in the agricultural area, when we consider those agricultural products from Nakuru area, we find things like wheat. However, you can also get wheat from Central Province, from the Kisii area, wheat from everywhere. What about pyrethrum? You get it from Central Province, from the Kisii area, and from everywhere. They produce things like maize, beef, milk. What the hon. Member does not realize is that in places like Nyanza, we produce sugar which these other places do not produce. In fact, we produce a lot of sugar which gives a great deal of revenue to the Government. The Government of Kenya gets Sh. 48 per bag through excise duty. Therefore, if we are to consider production and geographical factors, I think Mombasa should have been thought of first as it deserves to be raised to the status of city, followed by Kisumu. Some Members have already said that Mombasa is a gateway, and at the same time there is a very large port there. The place is a tourist attraction, if we are thinking of tourists. If you consider places like Kisumu, this port is used for access to Uganda and Tanzania. The steamer transports all the goods from Kisumu very cheaply, it takes supplies to other areas. I think these two towns are more deserving, and would have attracted the attention of His Excellency the President for first recommendation.

[Mr. Bala]

I know that there are flamingoes in Nakuru, Mr. Deputy Speaker. Tourists come from abroad, they go to Mombasa and Nairobi, and on their way to Kisumu they have something to see in Nakuru. You cannot have every small town promoted in this way.

It has been said that overseas, some towns which have a population of only 28,000 have the status of a city. Mr. Deputy Speaker, what the hon. Member might not have understood is that out of these 28,000 maybe less than five per cent are jobless, but when you refer to the 28,000 people in Nakuru, you will find that more than 50 per cent of them are jobless. They are roaming about in Nakuru. If most of them are merely roaming about, then their number does not justify the promotion of Nakuru to a city when there are so many idle people around that area.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the seconder has nothing to tell the House. He stood simply because he was sympathizing with the hon. Mover, so that the Motion would not be lost, but he did not have the slightest clue. In fact, I did not hear a word from him. I think Members should try to live up to their dignity, so that they do not stand just for the sake of standing in this honourable House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to oppose.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I have always had considerable respect for the views of the hon. Mover, and thought that he considered his material fairly well before bringing it to the House, but this morning he has been very disappointing. If the intention is to recommend something to His Excellency the President, then we must recommend something which is understandable, something which has strong reasons, and the House must make a case.

Nakuru is a small town of the farming community. It has a population of between 30,000 and 40,000 people only.

An hon. Member: Short people.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): With this population, I think it would be ridiculous for this House to recommend to His Excellency the President that the town should be given the suggested status. What about the services in Nakuru? Take a dance-hall. There is not even a reasonable dance-hall. If you make a city, you must have a big dance hall, and Nakuru does not have one hall in which even 200 people can dance. Surely, this is just one example. Think of night clubs. Nakuru does not have a single reasonable night club. Think of social welfare generally Nakuru is doing its best, but it could not be considered as reaching the status of a city.

Therefore, I would like to submit to the hon. Member that Nakuru is not yet up to the standard required for the status of city. The hon. Member has said that Nakuru is important agriculturally. I agree with him, and I think it is the very reason why it should not be made a city. The farmers are there, why do you give them a city? They are interested in farming.

An hon. Member: In gum boots.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): The hon. Members want to take over certain farms around Nakuru. This is not in the interests of the country, that they should be taken over so as to extend the town and make it a city. The important thing is that these farmers should be allowed to develop more and grow more, because that is what will benefit them; they are not interested in mere status of a town. One point has been made very, very clearly by the hon. Member for Meru Central, Mr. Mate, where he has said that there are many other towns of bigger status already, such as Mombasa, Kisumu, Thika and Nakuru. Nakuru, therefore, becomes number three or number four. Is this House going to recommend number four to his Excellency the President? I think it would look very bad and very absurd if we recommended something which we know is entirely wrong to recommend. Therefore, when the Mover speaks of money, and which town brings money, surely we must think of Mombasa first. In the first four months of this year, Mombasa brought to the country about £22 million through the customs and so on. I think during that time Nakuru did not bring even one twentieth of that revenue to the country, and therefore Nakuru is miles behind the towns that should be considered for this type of status.

A very good point also was raised by one of the Opposition speakers, that the Nakuru people themselves have not asked for it in their resolutions. The Kanu supporters and the Municipality itself—we have visited the town of Nakuru several times, but I have never heard the Mayor or the councillors asking for a higher status, because they know it would be improper when their priority is so low comparing with the other towns in the country. When the speaker says that it produces pyrethrum, Malindi also produces mangoes, and Lamu produces fish, and many other towns, Mr. Deputy Speaker, produce other things, and therefore, it is not just merit as such. We are pleased that Nakuru is picking up now with industries. But how many factories are there? The Mover himself, if he was bold enough, would say that there are not more than four factories there, very tiny and small ones. He was saying that people in the world know Nakuru; this is not true. Nakuru is not known in the world. The town which is known in the world is Malindi, not Nakuru. There are hardly any tourists around Nakuru and they never reach—I think they go straight to the flamingo lake which is away out of the town and come back to Naivasha. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to assure the hon. Member that we have a great deal of sympathy for his aspirations, but I think he is asking for something which is not practical just now and I hope he will help his people to get more people. I think Nakuru is— When I go there I see Nakuru is populated by forest squatters during the day time, and at night it is almost empty. Therefore, even with this population, this may be overestimated, the population of thirty to forty thousand people.

I agree with my colleague, the Minister for Information and Broadcasting, that this is a Motion that we should oppose because we are recommending something which is misleading to His Excellency the President. We know very well, that there are some other places which merit this status and these are places bigger even in population, in area and revenue-bringing into the country and in industrial activities we have towns which have bigger status. Some people have funny ideas about cities. They think that when they get the status, city status, they will get the autonomy. This is not true. Cities have no autonomy.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Cities have very similar status as municipal councils. There is no question of autonomy as indicated or implied in the hon. Member's Motion. Therefore, I think this question of making these places a city, like Mombasa, Nakuru or Kisumu, should be left to the wisdom of His Excellency himself to take stock as we go on, as we progress, because we are still developing and in a few years' time it will be more appropriate to take a decision more wisely depending on the goods and the facilities in the area. The moment when Nakuru will have these very nice night clubs, good dancing halls, and places of importance— Even hotels, in Nakuru you have no hotels of any city status, there are only farmers, resorts and so on. Therefore, to suggest—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): A point of order!

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, I am wondering whether the Minister speaking is replying as a the Government's responder since he seems to have taken a lot of time.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Are you replying for the Government?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): No Sir. The Minister responsible for Local Government is here and will reply. I am just shovelling something in.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The Clerk has not understood that, but it appears that you have had your ten minutes.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, finishing up, I would like to ask my friend to be patient.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to add to what my colleague is going to reply. The hon. Member has said that Nakuru is an agricultural centre. This is true, Mr. Speaker; I think that that area is very good for agriculture, but that has nothing to do with city status. Now, there are so many things that hon. Members should think of. We usually go through the population, the size and revenue of a particular municipality or the city as such. His figures were very much miscalculated and do not help his case at all. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should know that in my Ministry we have, problems in trying to promote some urban councils to municipalities and also municipalities to city status. The hon. Member should know that in the month of August we are going to have a census which will help us to know which areas are heavily populated. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is very difficult for our Government to judge which towns deserve a change in status without knowing exactly the population of all our towns.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should know that the Government has decided in 1970 to bring what we call the Review Commission as far as the population of a particular area is concerned. On account of this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministry will be having a rather difficult time to commit itself before these two important things are studied.

As the hon. Member mentions about the question of people being more there, personally, Mr. Speaker, I usually go to Nakuru and I see very, very few people. We have to increase the status judging by the population. The people there, no doubt, are good farmers. In my Ministry, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have many municipalities asking for a change in their status, for example Thika Municipality. They are all trying to bring the [Mr. Njiriri] same pressure as the hon. Member is bringing, but it is very difficult for the Government to judge on that before receiving the census results or the Review Commission's report. My colleague, Mr. Munoko, will reply for the Government; but I want to tell the hon. Members that it would be rather difficult for us to consider the status of only one municipality before the Government goes through cases of all municipalities.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose, strongly.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say a few words against this Motion because, Mr. Speaker, I feel that the Motion has been very, very untimely. A case for a small town is being brought here in this House, not a very big town in the country, and we are being asked to approve that it be given city status. I think, Mr. Speaker, Nakuru must consider itself lucky to have a municipality status, to have a mayor. Even if the hon. Member had brought that Motion to give it the status of a municipality, Mr. Speaker, I would still have opposed it because I think it does not merit anything, neither historically nor in size, neither economically, nor socially, at the moment or in the near future.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member should have stood here and cited the three industries he had in mind. I think one of them is Union Carbide, which is just recently established or opened, and has not actually started making a profit from the money that was invested. He should have at least quoted a few more which are going to be established in Nakuru. He should have told us that, perhaps, there is going to be a big tractor-manufacturing plant, because it is a farming area, as he says, there could be at least a farming industry. But apart from citing a number of firms, most of which are suffering from drought at this moment, he did not give us any proposed development to warrant this House considering even to agree with him that Nakuru should have a city status.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, he could also have considered other towns that actually merit to be called cities. I have only one town in mind at the moment which is ripe to be a city, in fact, over-ripe, and that is Mombasa, Mr. Speaker. Mombasa, Mr. Speaker, has a lot of things, including history, to be proud of. I think even if Vasco da Gama were to come back to Mombasa, he would be surprised to see that it is not a city yet, because when he passed there, in 1498; it was a city at that time. The only reason why it was minimized is that the settlers attached too much importance to Nakuru. That was a sentimental sort of attachment. But, Mr. Speaker, in Mombasa, when we quote, as the Mover has quoted, about industrial value, we have only to cite one industry to buy out the whole of Nakuru. The oil refinery, for instance, is worth £6 million. I think the hon. Member for Nakuru will have to quote 200 firms before they amount to £6 million, Mr. Speaker. There are a lot of other qualifications: for example the port, which you may say is even worth more than £500,000 million. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like the hon. Member for Nakuru, if he wants to be serious, not to bring such a Motion that this House will surely reject. Mr. Speaker, I would not like to cross swords with my friend, but I do not know why he chose to mention Mombasa and attack it; because of this, I am obliged to reply to him and oppose the Motion.

Mr. Speaker, we would like to review all the towns and when there is merit, to name and give them different status. But, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not believe that in giving a city status to a town or a village will result in any change. It is like taking a beggar from the street and taking him to England, giving him the "Sir" title and all such things without giving him a penny. Mr. Speaker, he will come back here and will be known as Sir So-and-so, but his title will not help him. I have seen many old people who are very proud of wearing medals, from here to there, given to them for whatever they did, but these medals are useless to them because these fellows wear rags and they do not have a good shirt to pin their medals on. So to give Nakuru a city status, Mr. Speaker, is just like honouring a beggar by giving him so many medals without giving him a shirt on which he can pin them.

I think this Motion is very untimely, very unfortunate and I think the hon. Member had nothing more to offer to the Nakuru people. He will appear in the papers for having moved a Motion for Nakuru but I think he is alone in this, perhaps even the people of Nakuru are not with him.

With those few words, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I would like also to join other hon. Members who have contributed towards this Motion. But I would like to criticize some of the hon. Members who simply thought fit to attack the hon. Mover of this Motion, and also tried to dissociate him from the people of Nakuru.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member who is moving this Motion is the representative of the people and every hon. Member in this House knows very well that whatever an hon. Member brings in this House is for the benefit of the people

[Mr. Karungaru:] whom he represents. Mr. Speaker, there is one logic here which some other hon. Members have failed to see, and that is that Nakuru Municipality has a Mayor. Mombasa and Kisumu also have Mayors. We would also like to challenge these hon. Members who are saying that Nakuru does not qualify for a city status. How did it qualify to have a Mayor? How did it qualify? I think here are hon. Members here who simply talk for the sake of doing so, but before they talk, they should also have some figures and logic. We are in this House to speak honourably and also to speak with full knowledge of what we are speaking. Some hon. Members were inferring that the Member for Nakuru is not aware of what is taking place in Nakuru. One hon. Member told us that there is no social hall in Nakuru, others said that there is no night-club, and others told us that there is no hotel. If we want to be sincere in whatever we say in this House we should refrain from misquoting or distorting the situation. We know pretty well that there is a social hall in Nakuru, we know pretty well that there is a hotel for the Nakuru people, and we are also aware there is a night-club. Where did that particular hon. Member get his facts? Where did he get his facts? This shows clearly that the hon. Member who is opposing by giving such arguments does not know Nakuru itself, and if he knows the town, he should not have distorted the whole situation about the town. Everybody knows Nakuru. If people of Nakuru do not have a hotel, where do they go to eat; if they do not have a social hall, where do they go for their social activities? If these people do not have these facilities, then we will challenge the Minister who was trying to distort the whole situation, to go and provide these facilities for Nakuru.

We have also listened to some other hon. Members speaking in this House, saying that because of its size, Nakuru does not qualify for a city status. How did it qualify to have its own Mayor?

The other arguments being employed, which also seem to have no base, are that although Nakuru is an agricultural town, there are places like Kisumu which have a lake, Mombasa having a port, and the rest. Why can these people not say that they want this city status to go to Mombasa? The two hon. Members who have quoted Mombasa come from the same place and are very parochial in their argument. The third one comes from Kisumu and he has told us that there is a lake in Kisumu, Lake Victoria. Why did he not bring a Motion to demand a city status for Kisumu? Why did the two hon. Members from Mombasa not bring a Motion to demand a city status for Mombasa? Why are these people confused and perhaps have not consulted the people of Mombasa and Kisumu whom they represent, respectively? Why should they criticize the hon. Member who has carried out his homework properly? Instead they should bring their Motions before this House to see if we can give them blessing to go ahead.

Mr. Speaker, nobody can know that you are hungry unless you say so. The hon. Member for Nakuru is saying that the Nakuru people want a city status for their town; through their representative, whom they have elected, this has been aired in this House. Let us not oppose for the sake of opposing, or because of personalities, or anything of the sort. How does the Kanu party come in? How does Kanu come in—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order Mr. Speaker, are we to let that hon. Member go on imputing improper motives, that we are opposing for the sake of personality? Is that not imputing improper motives for those who have opposed, that they have done so on personality basis?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is all right if it is only a very casual reference to possible opposition for the sake of personalities, but I think you should withdraw when you suggest that any hon. Member who spoke in this debate was influenced by personal animosities.

Mr. Karungaru: No "personality" motive is implied—certainly not in the bad sense of the word. But we could see that when the hon. Members were opposing, they disassociated the hon. Member from the people of that particular area and, at the same time, saying that the hon. Member did not get a letter or circular from the Mayor, from the council, from the Kanu office, and even another hon. Member said, from the KPU office. Then I fail to understand—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are not alleging any improper personal motives?

Mr. Karungaru: No. I am not doing it, Mr. Speaker. I fail to understand why an hon. Member was supposed to have a letter from Kanu, KPU and from the council. Who is he? Is he not a representative of the people?

I believe, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that before an hon. Member brings anything in this House he has knowledge of what is taking place in the area that he represents. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fail to understand the premises of the logic that has been employed by some hon. Members when opposing this Motion and I shall not be a part and parcel to the opposition of this Motion.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Motion.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this question of city status being bestowed on any of the towns in the country is vested in the President who has the prerogative.

Mr. Speaker, the dignity which a city status carries is quite high, and once a town has been bestowed with city status, it must be able to carry that status and that dignity. It will be, Mr. Speaker, not in the interest of the country if His Excellency the President bestowed city status to any town only to find it collapses. That will not be in the best interest.

Mr. Speaker, considerations are always given to various aspects before any town can go up. One is that of population, when the last census was carried out in 1962, Nakuru had not more than between 30 and 50 thousand people. I know, Sir, that the population might have gone up, but this will be proved when the census is carried out in August. I hope, Sir, the Member for Nakuru will try to encourage the people to register so that the actual population of the town is known.

Mr. Speaker, as far as population is concerned, when you consider Nairobi, which has about 320,000 people and Mombasa which has well over 100,000 people, you feel that Nakuru is fairly well below the number which one would consider justifying this high status.

Mr. Speaker, when we come down to revenue, it is another aspect which must be considered. Nakuru at present cannot be considered to be higher than some of the others which have not so far been considered.

Sir, for the benefit of hon. Members, the expenditure of Nairobi at present is £3,178,000 per annum and the revenue is £2,775,000; Mombasa is £1,679,000 expenditure and the revenue is £895,000; Nakuru is £679,000 as expenditure, and there is a revenue of £470,000; Kisumu is £461,00 expenditure and there is a revenue of £355,000. It is quite clear here that if His Excellency were to consider another town to be elevated to the city status, the next one would be Mombasa and not Nakuru.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has indicated that the rateable value of the municipality of Nakuru is the highest in East Africa, and that it is 5½ per cent, and that that of Nairobi is only 3½ per cent. In fact, this just goes to show that Nakuru has a long way to go. If you have a very high percentage to rate on the values, then it means that those values are low. You have to have a higher percentage in order to realize the amount of money you get. The lower the percentage is, in the way of rate, the better for any city or any town which has to develop. So, in fact, Mr. Speaker, the Member should not be proud that the rate in Nakuru is 5½ per cent. He should try and get more industries and more development in that area so that we can have a lower percentage yielding a high revenue for his town.

As other hon. Members have already said, Mr. Speaker, it is not wise for us at this stage, in this House, to try and plead with the President to bestow city status on Nakuru. We would rather feel that the President has all the information that is available to be able to make a decision as to which town will be made a city. It is not good that we should tie his hands and direct him to consider a certain town to be made a city because he is well aware of things, and nobody can tell me, Mr. Speaker, that the President does not know these places. He goes to them fairly regularly and is well versed with the progress that is being made in the country. I am sure that when the time comes he will be able to bestow city status on any of the towns in Kenya; not Nakuru, Mr. Speaker, at present, as I see it, because there are others which have a better claim to city status than Nakuru.

I would like to say here, Mr. Speaker, that the Government does not accept this Motion because it ties the President's hands and directs him to bestow city status on a town which is still in a very doubtful state.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku. You have just four minutes.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Sir.

I wish to contribute to this Motion, the last but one speaker asked why it was necessary for the Government to grant municipal status to Nakuru, or rather, give a mayor to Nakuru. It is natural because it had reached the stage of a municipality and, therefore, it should be given a mayor. It is as simple as that. However, when we talk of a city, I think the hon. Member should try and look in his dictionary and find out what a city means. Fortunately, Sir, the Assistant Minister has just given us the whole situation. From the figures given, we can now see that Mombasa is the only one we could possibly think in terms of promoting.

Mr. Speaker, nevertheless, I am sure the Member who moved this Motion is a very reasonable Member, he is a Member who knows what he is doing, but obviously on this occasion he was not serious with this idea of city status. He is not one of the Members whose intelligence can be underrated by any of the other Members of this House. He is very smart indeed, Sir, and it would be a mistake to think that the Member can be so misguided. I am sure, therefore, that he brought this Motion in for fun. In my opinion he could not have been serious.

Mr. Speaker, for a city status there are a lot of things to be taken into account. Nakuru is not a town I do not know, and my friend should know that. I have been to Nakuru several times and I know it cannot qualify to be a city. Nairobi is a city and it is one of the smallest cities compared with the many cities I have seen in the world. It is a city worth the name and it has maintained that standard. So I agree entirely with the Assistant Minister, that when you bestow city status on a town it must live up to it. Nakuru, unfortunately, despite the argument by the hon. Member that it is the granary of Kenya, that it has farms around it, and so on—that does not give it the necessary qualifications for being made a city. If it is to be based on the question of farmers, Sir, then I would say that there are no farmers around Nairobi that helped to make this place a city. It is a question of the population, and the population of Nakuru is very small indeed as was apparent from the figures given. So, Nakuru cannot qualify for city status.

Nonetheless, Sir, this a pointer towards city status. Now that this idea has been put into the minds of the people, the idea is dawning into the minds of the people, if the mayors and councillors of the area can go on developing it, and if there are more industries coming there, then it will not even be necessary to bring a Motion for this purpose to the National Assembly, it will come automatically. I hope the Member will be living at that time. There will not be any need for a Motion to be brought here for this purpose. The spirit of having Nakuru as a city should be promoted and many other towns which have not yet attained the standard of municipality should also be encouraged to work towards the standard of municipality so that they can be promoted. When they are municipalities they should be encouraged to work towards city status, and then cities should be encouraged to work, I do not know towards what name we may have in mind.

Mr. Speaker, when the Motion is rejected the Member should not take it as a negative attitude. It is based on fact, based on realities, based on what is happening. He should not be down-hearted because we look forward, with his help and the help of those other people, to promoting Nakuru to city status, not through a Motion in the National Assembly but through constructive construction of buildings and social halls, and all the other qualifications required. I am sure then, the President of the Republic will declare it a city one day, when it has reached the right standard.

With these few remarks, Sir, we are not letting-down the hon. Member but are only being realistic with him by turning down the Motion. Thus we are encouraging him to go on fighting further to get Nakuru raised to the status of a city.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg, regretfully, to say that the Member was not serious and, therefore, I oppose the Motion.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the Mover to reply. Mr. Mwithaga.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am very pleased to have had time to listen to the views, especially of the Ministers. Unfortunately, Sir, I have no better expression I can use to refer to these Ministers than to say that they are living behind memory. Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services spoke arrogantly, carelessly, and I was terribly ashamed to hear him still refer to issues, which must be taken seriously, as absolutely nothing. I know what was the driving force behind this, his political quarrels in Mombasa, his fight with—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Oh, no, Mr. Mwithaga.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think you will allow me freedom here because—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. You credit hon. Members who speak in this House with sincerity and not ulterior motive. You certainly do not start referring to their private troubles.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point is this: when the Minister for Social Services says there are no dance halls in Nakuru, says there are no night-clubs in Nakuru, then he is a total failure and does not know where his services are supposed to be, he is not informed of what his officers are doing. In that event, Mr. Speaker, Sir, he ought not to be a Minister of the Kenya Cabinet.

We have so many halls in Nakuru, which I need not talk about here.

An hon. Member: Can you mention the names?

Mr. Mwithaga: We have the Nakuru Association Hall, we have the Menengai Hall, we have the Town Hall, we have the Starehe Hall and, Mr. Speaker, Sir, even the Assistant Ministers here have been there and they know it just too well.

An hon. Member: Night-clubs?

Mr. Mwithaga: We have two night-clubs, where we have bands which play just as the Bongo Boys Band which plays for the Public Service Club here. We have the Tropical Valley Night-Club where even the Nairobi stars come.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that is a demonstration of sheer ignorance. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not quarrelling with the sentiments expressed by some Assistant Ministers, because they plead that perhaps the President will be kind to this resolution. I quite agree, it is a prerogative and the President must have that freedom to decide. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, am I going to shame Abraham, when I am a representative of the people? Do I have to pay for the lack of initiative of our Members from other towns who have not struggled to get their towns raised to city status? Do I have to pay for that laziness? Do I have to pay for that lack of initiative? Mr. Speaker, Sir, the fact that I was able to think of Nakuru being raised to a status of city much earlier than those others, is one—Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not have to bear the blame for their lack of initiative, and I leave them aside. People of their own areas will judge them from today because when I brought this Motion, I had addressed a meeting earlier, Mr. Speaker, Sir, and I asked my people whether they wanted and they said “Yes”, they wanted.

The importance of Nakuru cannot be ignored by anybody. Trying to brush Nakuru aside and describe it as a small village, as the hon. Ngala said—Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised. I do not take the Minister for Finance seriously, he is my good friend and just yesterday he dropped the graduated personal tax and, therefore, our people are happy.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government responder has said that Nakuru is ranked third, as far as revenue is concerned. I am glad, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the revenue in Mombasa is much higher. I do not quarrel about it. In fact, when moving my Motion, I did not want to attack any town at all. I was fighting for my town.

Our revenue, Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming from a town like that one, and being taxed in other towns, compared with Nairobi and Mombasa, is an indication that we are not sleeping. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is a sign of development. Our rateable value was lowered from 5½ per cent to 4½ per cent, and that is an indication, Mr. Speaker, Sir, of our rate of growth. Mr. Speaker, Sir, next time, when the Ministers come there, I will have to tell the people that they all regard Nakuru as a village and they will neither enter any hotel nor go to any night-club and I will warn even the girls not to entertain them in the bars. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the growth is now being seen despite the fact that our rate of value has gone down.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been in a municipal status for a long time. How come that the colonialists could see the importance of Nakuru and raise it immediately to a status of a municipality from municipal status and now our Ministers, our own Government, cannot see the importance?

An hon. Member: Do you follow them where they wish?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is very interesting. Honestly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, most of the hon. Members have their bank accounts in Nakuru because they have got farms in Nakuru, which shows that they see the importance of this town. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the industries are not many. Whom do we blame, Mr. Speaker? The Minister for Commerce and Industry? It is not the fault of Nakuru people not to have more industries; they have demanded this and he knows, but they keep on sending them here and there and we are now very watchful because we have an industry that we want to have there and I understand, from reliable sources, that the Minister for Commerce and Industry may direct it elsewhere. However, we will fight in the offices and not in the Chamber.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the fact that the Nakuru people have not many industries is not a blame on them, it is the blame on the Ministry. If they want to keep us down by not giving us more industries, we must lay the blame on them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, one Member said we should not have the resolution in this House about status of this and that town. I remember, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that when the Thika people demanded that their town be a municipality, they were granted by the President. Mr. Speaker, Sir, why were they granted? Despite the fact that the industries are growing, the size of the Municipality of Thika is too small to justify any other status. It is too small. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have the right in this House, as the elected representative of the people of that town, popularly elected to air the views and put pressure on the Government, with the authority of my people. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when I am seeking recommendation to the President; I know the President understands very well that if a Member seeks support from other colleagues here, he, as the President, knows, that he is actually representing the people and all he is trying to do is get the hon. Members to understand the position of our status.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

Mr. Mwithaga: Now, Mr. Speaker, if you would rule the Minister for Finance to order, I would be able to conclude by saying that our importance, not to repeat what I said, is understood. The agricultural industry of our province, Mr. Speaker, Sir, has gone up. In fact the Vice-President of this Republic comes from there and indeed the Ministry of Agriculture should have had its Ministry's headquarters in Nakuru, instead of Nairobi, because there are no farms here, and fly the flag over there.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, the whole world knows that Nakuru is a very important town in that we have a bird sanctuary and the Ministers did not touch on that because they know that they cannot challenge that. A bird sanctuary, second to none in the whole world, a crater, only second to that in America, Mr. Speaker, Sir. Our importance, in the whole world, is understood. This is why we want dignity in the status of a city. We are entitled to that dignity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in fact, if there is any Member with louder voice than mine, from Nakuru, I will challenge him. Mr. Speaker, Sir, that shows how Nakuru's importance, even politically, is.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question put and negatived)

MOTION

CONFUSION OVER OPERATION OF TRADE LICENSING ACT

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move the following Motion:—

THAT, in view of the fact that the Trade Licensing Act is rather confusing to the public by the method some non-citizens are given their licences back and some refused, this House urges the Government for the better and fair running of this Act to establish:—

- (a) A district appeal committee to determine all appeals lodged as a result of the notices served by the Ministry, from which there is further appeal to.
- (b) A provincial appeal committee composed of members from every district from that province and the decision of the provincial appeal committee will be final.

Mr. Speaker, this is a Kenya-wide problem today and the Ministers have all the time been telling us that whatever difficulties or confusion we have in the Ministry, we should go forward and bring these matters clear before them, and this is one of the opportunities where we can show the Government what mistakes are being made outside in the field.

Mr. Speaker, this is not a problem for the Member for Kwale East alone. As I said, it is a problem concerning people throughout Kenya. I read on the 11th June 1969, this year, that the Kisumu Municipal Council was complaining—this was in the Nation—that some quit notices were issued without their knowledge. As a result, when a non-citizen was given a quit notice, normally he could change whatever business he was carrying out to another kind of business without the municipal council knowing. As a result, Sir, a letter was written from the Ministry of Commerce and Industry that whatever licences the municipal council was going to issue to any change of business the Ministry should be informed. The Municipal Council of Kisumu complained that since they did not have a list of quit notices within their own municipality, they demanded that they should have this list submitted to them. This was mainly in Kisumu where I find that this is a genuine complaint.

In my own place, Mr. Speaker—that is Kwale—quit notices have been issued to some non-citizens. Unfortunately, the public around that place were not informed as to who had been served with these quit notices. We do not know how this procedure is being carried out because some of these people who were served with quit notices, the next day or two they were given their licences back. We fail to understand how this procedure is being carried out within the Ministry.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, we are surprised because the same Minister, or the Trade Licensing Officer of a province— At this moment, Mr. Speaker, we do not know whether it is the Provincial Trade Licensing Officer or the Minister himself who serves these notices—but the problem here is even some of the citizens themselves are sometimes issued with quit notices. Generally, the Ministry always regrets that it did not know that the man they were serving this on was a Kenya citizen. We do not know what procedure is being used within this Ministry. We want to know. We would like, here, that the Ministry should take the responsibility of serving quit notices and the public in the districts should be responsible—that is an appeals committee should be formed—to determine whether it is necessary for that non-citizen to be relicensed or not. Or, Mr. Speaker, even the Kenya citizen himself who has been served with a quit notice, should appeal to this appeals committee, and the committee should be responsible to see whether this citizen should be given his licence back or not. We are confused, Sir, to see that the same officer who issued the quit notice would the next day reissue a licence. As I said, we fail to understand what has been happening on Saturday and Sunday afternoons; we do not know what is happening during those days. Do they serve these notices so that the traders come before them? We fail to understand this. What is the interest of a Kenya citizen who is serving the notice? What is there behind it? We fail to understand. Do the Provincial Trade Licensing Officers want these people to go to their officers to see them, and if so how? We want the officials of the Ministry to be responsible entirely for serving the notices.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Member has just alleged that Kenya citizens have been served with these quit notices; can he substantiate this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you give any cases?

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, there is a case I remember well in Nairobi South, and furthermore last week the hon. Pandya made it very clear here that some— The Minister said that it was necessary to serve quit notices to these citizens. I do not know how it was but I know that evidence was laid on the Table.

Mr. Speaker, we are left with the suspicion that—

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member has not given us light on this because he mentioned Nairobi South and we want the name of the person.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member is entitled to reply on what he has heard from another hon. Member in this House—with chapter and verse—only a few days' ago. I thought he was referring to cases in his own district, but he has made it clear that he is referring to cases in Nairobi which were specified to this House by Mr. Pandya.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, further to my Motion, it was on the 12th of this month when the Minister was replying to a Motion on the Adjournment of this House. Here, Sir, the hon. Pandya was complaining as to how citizens were being deprived of their licences, and the Minister, in replying to that Motion, went on without giving a proper reply. The reply that he gave to this House could not clarify as to why these citizens were being deprived of their licences. These people have sincerely come forward before this Government to say that they are ready to be citizens. There should not be any discrimination because they have sincerely dedicated their lives to this country. If these people are deprived of their licences, we do not know where they are going.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, I was surprised, if I can quote what the Minister said: "where non-citizen traders are available to deal in certain specified goods, non-citizen traders must be able to do so." I wonder if these quit notices are made public. These are not advertised, they are kept a secret. That is why the Minister here said that where no citizens were available, non-citizens had had their licences returned. My question here is this: if the Ministry has not yet had any applications from citizens, why should they issue these quit notices to the non-citizens? Citizens have to be available first. We fail to understand this. It is known that no citizens are ready to run the businesses, and yet quit notices are issued. Do you want that man to come before you to plead? This is why I ask this House to see that the officials are deprived of the power to issue quit notices and to issue licences. It should be given to the local man in the district who knows exactly, if a non-citizen is removed, how the local person suffers. That is why we want local people to make these things public in the district.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Shut up.

Mr. Mwamzandi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the Minister is in order to shout at me "Shut up". That is the hon. Gichuru.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sorry. Are you complaining of his shouting or of what he shouted?

Mr. Mwamzandi: I am asking if it is parliamentary, because he told me to "Shut up".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, that is not parliamentary.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was only talking to him as a personal friend. If he objects to this, I shall not repeat it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, it is not a case merely of the hon. Member objecting. The whole House objects to improper behaviour, and to tell a Member on his feet to sit down or to shut up is definitely contrary to our customs, and is most undesirable.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate your friendship to me.

Further to this—

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Me, also.

Mr. Mwamzandi: I fail to understand in one respect, Mr. Speaker. I know of a case where a non-citizen was served with a notice to close up his shop. The man had a wife, whose nationality was Asian. We could not tell whether she was a citizen or not.

An hon. Member: Why not?

Mr. Mwamzandi: Things went on, and the licence was then converted into that lady's name. The Government interest is to see that non-citizens are not enjoying our prospects. The woman, who was a Muslim, could not serve in the shop, according to Islamic customs. Therefore, it was the husband who was serving in the shop. I wonder about such notices. The husband in this case is not a citizen, and I doubt whether the wife is a citizen; even so, when the licence was refused to the husband, the wife was able to take it over. We do not understand why the licence should have been reissued in the wife's name, so that they continued to enjoy the same facilities enjoyed by citizens. This is one of the things I want to make clear before the House. There are two parties in this case: the husband who is very important and who is a non-citizen, but why should a non-citizen enjoy these facilities because of his wife's status?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Why not?

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, we will have to excuse the Minister for Finance, because he is intoxicated with his Budget last night.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to find out whether your ruling would be right in the sense that the Member, who has been talking on women is correct, and as to whether he is right in saying that I am intoxicated. The point is, in which way is he right.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not quite know, Mr. Gichuru, but I do not think you have a point of order.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the point is—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Gichuru, you have no clear point of order. Please do not interrupt the hon. Member.

Mr. Mwamzandi: Mr. Speaker, he is a senior Minister. If the senior Minister does not understand, I hope he will keep quiet and listen. He is interjecting too much.

Mr. Speaker, let me come back to my main theme, parts (a) and (b). In this country, in every district, there should be a District Appeals Committee to determine whether the non-citizen is to be re-licensed or not. In fact, some citizens have been deprived of their licences, and it is up to the committee to determine whether the citizens should be given a licence or not.

In regard to (b), the man might be aggrieved by both the Ministerial and the District Appeals Committees and I think he should be given a further chance to appeal to the Provincial Appeals Committee. As I said, this should be a committee composed of members from every district. A person appealing might be running a very important industry in a certain province. So the appeals committee members would have to decide whether that person should be given back his licence or not and, if he is to be deprived of his licence, they should find out how much the local people are going to suffer. This is what we want to know. It is the local man from the district, the provincial man, who understands how people are going to be affected, and who would benefit, when such notices are given back. No one in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, not a single man there even in the Minister's Office is able to determine whether such a licence in Kwale District, say, is beneficial or not to the local people. We want that responsibility to be placed with our local men, to be placed with the local county councils, for that matter, if that is acceptable to the House. It should not be the Trade Licensing Officer. We do not want to create loopholes for easy appointment. We do not want to leave room for officers to be met by traders every time. We may come to suspect that he was allowed to re-open his shop because he gave somebody something. Why should we encourage that suspicion?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to move.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, my reason for seconding this Motion this morning is because I have looked at it and found that the Mover is a sensible man who has seen exactly what I have seen. We share quite a lot in common in this case. This has been happening all over the country and, therefore, this is a Motion of national importance, not only applicable to a small area.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question of non-citizens being given their licences back without consultation with the people of this country is very serious, and it would be very bad if such things were found to be happening in that way. This is due to non-co-operation between the authorities concerned. If there were a District Appeals Committee to which somebody who was given notice to quit went to appeal, they would be able to determine whether the non-citizen or citizen should lose his licence; it would be determined which of them should lose their licence, because there are some citizens who do not deserve the licences they hold. I feel that if such a district committee sat down, instead of giving all the power to the District Licensing Committee, it would help to clear suspicions, because many people suspect that if a shop is closed and then later it is opened, there is some corruption going on. To clear the people from suspicion, it would be sensible to establish an appeals committee which would help him in his work without anybody suspecting.

After that, Mr. Speaker, it would be the duty of the losing party to go to appeal to the Provincial Appeals Committee, whose decision would be final and, in that case, there would be no one else to whom to appeal. However, instead of provincial committees, we have the provincial commissioners as individuals. He can go to the people and tell them that this is what he wants to do, he has issued the people concerned with quit notices, and nobody can query his statement.

Mr. Speaker, the Minister can bear witness—he is here—to my statement that this confusion can be stopped. We have seen cases here in this Parliament and here in Nairobi where the Trade Licensing Officer gives somebody a licence to trade, and another man comes round and goes into the same business premises. We had to do a lot of work trying to sort out these things, even in Parliament, and the Minister himself was inconvenienced. If there were appeal committees this would not have happened. I believe the Minister himself agrees with me, that in dealing with the business community, you are dealing with a very tricky lot of people, and unless they are handled carefully it is most difficult to catch them, or to follow exactly what they are doing.

Mr. Speaker, the other day one of the provincial commissioners was addressing a meeting which I attended. He told the people that if the people of that area could not take over businesses, then he would withdraw all the quit notices which he had given to the non-citizens. This is where I feel there should be a very just and informed body to look after the people. If our people can be given the chance to deal with this work—these businesses—I am sure they will do so. What happens is that the quit notices are written and sent to the non-citizens concerned, and they are not published in the newspaper, or on the radio, or they are not sent to the people so that they know which shops have received quit notices and which have not. It has happened in Nairobi, and now there are many shops which could be taken over by Africans today in Government Road, in Campos Ribeiro Road, in River Road, in Bazaar Street, but the Trade Licensing Officer keeps them secret as if they were his own business. If the Government wants to come out to help Africans, or to help the citizens of this country, now is the time they should do so; they should help the people by telling them that So-and-so has been given a quit notice, and then they should advertise that shop for Africans to take it over.

Mr. Speaker, it is only fair to have such things done, and it is fair to inform the people that So-and-so has been given a quit notice, and therefore Africans should go there and try to negotiate with him in order to buy his shop. Also, it should be the duty of the Ministry concerned to try and establish a price at which such property can be bought. The aim of the Act is not to exploit the people of this country, but they are being exploited, because when they go, they find that the property is so expensive and they cannot buy it, and there is no one to help them.

Therefore, I feel that the Government has gone far enough in declaring that Africans or citizens of this country should have the shops, but they have gone just half way in implementing it, and they have left the people to be exploited. They should now show them where the shops are, and those shops should not be the monopoly of a Trade Licensing Officers, so that he sits on them. Perhaps he would like something from somebody so that he shows them where the shops are.

I have seen some people around Nairobi who know exactly which shops there are, and even if they are willing to buy them, they are aggrieved parties, because they know that they are shops belonging to the non-citizens who have been given quit notices and the trade officers refuse to tell them the addresses of these shops or to reveal the names of the people until they are given something, they could go to the appeals committee. They could give them the notice that the Trade Licensing Officer or the district commissioner, or someone, is refusing to give them information about the shop or the people who have been given quit notices. The Minister would then be so popular. Everybody in Kenya would know he was a socialist Minister, and that he wanted his people to be rich, that he wanted to help them and to keep them well informed.

Mr. Speaker, these two committees—the District Appeals Committee and the Provincial Appeals Committee—are a necessity, and they should be set up swiftly. The people serving on those committees should be people of integrity from the districts concerned. Even if they are elected people, civil servants—I do not care if it is the district commissioner sitting in the chair, or the provincial commissioner—but they must all be really honest people who will not be bribed by non-citizens, and who will not accept anything roundabout in the business, and they will be able to help their own people sincerely and without any other motive.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

Mr. Speaker, this Motion has been moved by the hon. Member, and I have seconded it. I would like to commend it to the Government, that they take it as a serious and honest effort to help our people as far as business is concerned, to make sure the Government does not bear any blame from the people who are shouting that corruption is being practised in this country in regard to business operations.

Therefore, Sir, I beg to scound the Motion.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not replying to this Motion, because my Minister is here to reply; I am only participating in the debate.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is the wish of this House and the Members of the National Assembly, and it has been a request from time to time, that Members want trade in this country to be Africanized. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry has taken the initiative from the beginning of this year. That is why we introduced this system of quit notices to undesirable people in the country, to non-citizens in the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do think, since my Ministry has taken this move, that the Members of Parliament and the public, at the same time, appreciate this Move.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the move was very important. However, to start with, we knew that to take over the whole trade in the country was an impossibility. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my Ministry wanted to see, as a first step, participation of the Africans in commerce and industry. That is why we say that we should begin with a fair number so that African traders will participate in trade. This, Sir, was done very successfully.

However, it was in this same National Assembly, that the Members passed a Bill that there should be one committee in the whole country, so that people could appeal. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if there is anything wrong that we have only one committee in the country to hear this appeal, it is the very Members of this National Assembly who approved it. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am being asked how they know about the people of Narok, Kajiado and elsewhere. We have the district trade officers, we have provincial trade officers and these officers are officers of the Government; they know every corner of each district, therefore, they give the report. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know that the machinery is working very well. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, let the Members rest assured that we know what we are doing. We are giving quit notices to people of whom we do not approve that they are non-citizens; we do not, at the same time, issue notices to people who know are very good people in their districts. This, we do from the district level, through the trade officers of the district, through the provincial and trade officers and so on to the Ministry.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming to the Motion, as it is now, because they all admit that we have taken this initiative as a Ministry, now to say that we should set up District Appeals Committees or Provincial Appeals Committees this, we think, is an unnecessary burden to add to the public exchequer. We all know that the committees in the country sit, and they need some sitting allowance. Where are we going to get this money from? Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am getting confused by the speech of the hon. Member because of one thing. Since he said that he is not answering for the Ministry and now he seems to be answering for the Ministry, does not this speech jeopardize the position of the Motion if the Assistant Minister of the Ministry, who is charged with the responsibility in the same Ministry, keeps on speaking as if he was the Minister himself speaking?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, there is nothing wrong with that. I think the House might be glad to hear two representatives of the Ministry in the debate. What the hon. Member meant was that he was not claiming the twenty minutes allotted to the official responder; but to hear the view of another Minister is all in the interest of the House. It is not out of order.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir. I think the ignorance of the hon. Member surprises me. Mr. Speaker, Sir—

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that that remark from a sensible man does not make any sense. He said that he is surprised by my ignorance and yet I have never been as ignorant as he is.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He expressed surprise, that you did not know that he was in order. No, he was in order.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipiti): Coming to the Motion, Sir, I thought that the hon. Member who has been contributing to the House all the time was a wise man, but when he wastes my time for nothing and yet he knows, I do not think that that was a wise statement. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that if we were going to set up all these committees in every district, and we have got 42 districts in the country, and, again, we set up committees for all the provinces, this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, would be spending public money for nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the appeals can go to the Central Appeals Committee here in Nairobi and, the people who are on this committee, Mr. Speaker, are citizens of Kenya; they know what we want; they know our policy, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, we should trust them to do the job for us.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which was raised here by the hon. Mr. Mbogoh, he said that he was at a baraza where the district commissioner told the people that if they do not take over the businesses he would withdraw their quit notices. Here, again, there is a request from the people that they want to take over the jobs, and if they are given those jobs, then they do not take them. The Provincial Commissioner wanted to prove to the people how they can take over the businesses. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, no Provincial Commissioner can be so foolish as to tell the people that we have served them with quit notices when we have not done so. He must have done it, but the point is, Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the quit notices were served, then, it is up to Africans themselves in the district or the province to take that chance.

Mr. Mbogoh: How do we know?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know. How did you know that these people were treated in this manner if you did not know that quit notices had been served? Mr. Speaker, Sir, therefore, I do not think that that point is a good one.

Come to the other point which was made by the hon. Mr. Mbogoh—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would find it easier to hear you if you did not keep turning your head the other way.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): I will address the Chair, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Mover had said that the public were being oppressed by the landlords who asked a very high rent for the premises. However, Mr. Speaker, Sir, here, we need to tell the hon. Members how these things are done and then they can go back to the people and tell them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, supposing one Asian has been served with a quit notice, and is, therefore, surrendering a building to be run by an African commercially, we do not agree to the price that the Asian wants. We have our own Government valuers and every person in the trade who wants to buy those premises is directed to go to the Government valuer. Then the Government valuer in the district can value the house, the building and tell us exactly what the price should be. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it is not right for the hon. Mbogoh to have said that our people are being oppressed with regard to premises. We are alert on these matters and—

Mr. Mwamzandi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will the Assistant Minister make it quite clear, because he is suggesting that there is a valuer in every district to value whatever premises are to be Africanized. We want this to be made very clear: if he means that there is a valuer in every district because in my district I have not seen one.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I presume you are asking him to substantiate.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a fact. If any member of the public wants a valuer today in his district, he will get one. He can get a valuer for any premises that are surrendered by any "quit" notices by Asians, by anybody. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a fact, and I think that in Kajiado—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am not quite clear what fact you are alleging, Mr. Oloitipitip. Are you alleging that there is a valuer permanently stationed in every district, or that valuers will visit districts if required?

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I am saying is that we have valuers who can visit every district to help the local man to have the premises valued.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, can I have one more minute?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid not. You have had your time.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Oloitipitip): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I know my Minister will decide what line to take on this Motion but I think it is very unnecessary.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also would like to support the intentions of this Motion because we have been told by the Assistant Minister that we do have some valuers in the country but we fail to understand what kind of valuers they are and how many cases they have dealt with, and whether we are talking about the value of buildings or the value of the goods. Mr. Speaker, we are tired of some of the Ministers here, Ministers like the last speaker who only tried to keep the House busy with nothing other than arid speeches—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You are going a bit too far, I think. We do not generalize in that way about each other in this House. You can comment on a particular speech as not being of any great value, but you do not generalize just as you have done.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, he has made a very dry speech only a few minutes ago, very dry indeed.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It would be all right if you referred to a particular speech and said why you thought it was of little value; that would be all right. But you were going much wider than that in the description of the hon. Member's contribution to this House.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. ole Olotipiti): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I seek your guidance on this one. I think I have spoken just like any other Member here and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! If you are complaining of what he said, I have already dealt with it and you need not say any more.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I will now leave the last speaker because I do not have any quarrel with him.

I sincerely sympathize with the Minister for Commerce and Industry because the last thing I would say is that the Ministry is acting most unfairly towards our country. I would not like to say this because, perhaps, the Minister would say, this and that. That much is known, but here, Sir, we are concerned with the help that we can give to our people. No one can convince people today that the Act we passed in this House is doing good to our people. It is not, and we are here to tell the Minister that the Act is not working properly. If the Act is working properly, then we would like him to tell us why a "quit notice" is being issued today and withdrawn tomorrow.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Is this a good time, perhaps, to break off, Mr. Karungaru?

Mr. Karungaru: Yes, Sir.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time for the interruption of business. The House is adjourned until Tuesday, 24th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at thirty minutes past Twelve o'clock.

WRITTEN REPLY TO QUESTION

Question No. 264

MISCONDUCT BY TEACHERS: CASES OF

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education:—

(a) Would he give a breakdown for the years 1966, 1967 and 1968, according to districts, of the number of teachers who had been involved in cases of indecent assault on schoolgirls or who had been in any way immorally involved with schoolgirls.

(b) How many of these had been dismissed and how many had, so far, been reinstated in the teaching profession.

The Minister for Education (Dr. Kiano):

(a) Breakdown of indecent assault upon schoolgirls by teachers:—

[The Minister for Education]

Districts which do not appear on the list were not involved. In some cases, it is not possible to show the district breakdown for 1966 because, at that time, records were kept by provinces rather than by districts.

(b) All these teachers were dismissed from teaching. Such teachers would only be reinstated to teaching after they have completed at least two years since dismissal and if they make applications supported by prospective employing authorities. Two out of 64 teachers dismissed in 1966 have been reinstated to teaching.

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

PRAYERSCOMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR*PRESS STATEMENTS ON MATTERS BEFORE THE HOUSE—AN ABUSE OF PARLIAMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, it was only a short time ago that, in a Communication from the Chair concerning a Press statement by a Government spokesman, I reminded you that no debate which is taking place here should be pursued by any hon. Member outside this House, whether in the Press or otherwise.

Therefore, I am more than surprised to see that today, when we are about to debate the Financial Statement on the Annual Estimates, Mr. Odinga has seen fit to publish in the Press, by way of a Press conference, his comments on that Financial Statement, which should have been reserved for the debate in this House.

I say again that such conduct by hon. Members is, in effect, contempt of their own Parliament, and I trust that Mr. Odinga will make a suitable apology.

I see Mr. Odinga is not here, but I hope that his colleagues will convey this message to him and require him to make the appropriate apology as soon as he appears in the House.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS*Question No. 278MINISTERS VISITING NYANZA PROVINCE

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State President's Office to state—

- (a) how many Government Ministers had paid official visits to Kisumu, Siaya and South Nyanza Districts during the long recess of Parliament;
- (b) had there been any donations given to any self-help projects in those areas during the visits; if so,
- (c) what had the amount donated been to each district.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, on behalf of the Minister of State I beg to reply.

(a) A total of nine Government Ministers paid official visits to Kisumu, Siaya and South Nyanza Districts during the long recess of Parliament.

(b) Yes, Sir.

(c) The amount donated during these visits was either in the form of money or material for building the projects, and was as follows:—

- (i) Sh. 300;
- (ii) Sh. 100;
- (iii) Iron sheets to cover one headmaster's house at one of the self-help secondary schools;
- (iv) Material enough for roofing one cottage Harambee hospital;
- (v) 100 iron sheets for one Harambee secondary school.

It should be noted, however, that these were personal donations.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, could I hear from the Minister, with regard to the nine Government Ministers who paid visits, how many visited Kisumu, how many visited Siaya, and how many visited South Nyanza? In other words, could he actually give the breakdown?

Mr. Mboya: Yes, Sir, I could. Details of the visits were as follows: On the 6th April 1969, the hon. Sagini and the hon. Moi visited Sindo Health Centre. On the 18th April, the hon. Mboya visited Tonga Mission.

An hon. Member: Who is Mboya?

Mr. Mboya: The one speaking. On the 2nd April, the hon. Mboya, the hon. Ayodo, and the hon. Odero-Jowi, on their way to attend a Kanu conference, also visited the district. That was South Nyanza District.

Now, Kisumu District: the hon. Mboya visited the Teachers' Union in Kisumu. The hon. Sagini visited the Municipality of Kisumu. The hon. Kibaki visited the Kisumu Chamber of Commerce. The hon. Malinda visited settlement schemes in Muhoroni. The hon. Mungai, the hon. Odero-Jowi, the hon. Ayodo, the hon. Ngei and the hon. Ngala also visited the district.

Siaya District: the following Ministers also visited the district: the hon. Ngei, the hon. Sagini, the hon. Otiende, the hon. Odero-Jowi, the hon. Mungai, and the hon. Mboya on several occasions.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the hon. Minister not agree with me that while some Ministers have been very good in visiting these districts quite frequently, there are some Ministers who do not visit it at all?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, it is true that not all Ministers have been able to visit all the districts throughout the country, and ministerial visits must be based on being able to go to perform some function. I do not believe that it can be said there was a Minister who had some work to do in those districts who failed to go and do that work.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

Question No. 212

TWO DISTRICT OFFICERS FOR NYAMBENE DIVISION

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi asked the Minister of State, President's Office, if due to the size and population (230,000) of Nyambene Division in Meru District, the Minister would consider, in the interests of quicker development, stationing another district officer in Nyambene Division so that one district officer would be in charge of Nyambene North while the other would be in charge of Nyambene South.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government is aware of the problems in Nyambene Division in Meru District, but, owing to the financial limitation, the division cannot be split in two right now. However, it is expected that some time in future, this may be possible.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaungangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister tell the House how much in the future, a year's time, two year's time, three year's time?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in the future.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's answer, is it possible to persuade the other departments to have their officers in the southern part of Nyambene Division, since, at the same time, there are other officers who could be stationed there even if we have to wait for a district officer?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had a problem in understanding what the hon. Member was saying. Perhaps he would repeat it.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, since the other departments, maybe education, agriculture or any other department, community development has staff—not necessarily the administration—would it be possible to centralize them at Nyambene for example in the southern part of the division as a move towards having a district officer at Nyambene?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, if you understood the question, would you repeat it to me?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I did not, so we will have to leave it.

Question No. 279

TEACHERS AND STUDENTS HELP IN AUGUST CENSUS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister for Economic Planning and Development if he would tell the House whether:—

(a) Students and teachers would be given the chance to take part as enumerators in the census to be held this August.

(b) If so, whether priority in selection of enumerators could be given to poor students so that they could be paid something which would help them pay their school fees or which would give them some pocket money.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) Enumerators and supervisors in the August census will be recruited primarily from among teachers. If enough teachers are not available, older students will be employed.

(b) Instructions on recruitment given to the district census officers take into account the requirements of the census. As conditions vary from one area to another, it would not be desirable to lay down any priorities except those relating to the requirements of the census.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Why would it be impossible actually to give priority to poor students who are not actually able to raise school fees for themselves? This is just a way of helping them. What is the impossibility so far?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I sympathize with the point made by the hon. Member, and in fact, every effort will be made to try and assist those students who are in difficulties but, I think the hon. Member will agree that, administratively, it may be difficult always to be sure, which students are deserving or not. However, the district census officers will try to do this and help the students.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while the Minister will be helping the poor students, will he also bear in mind the fact that there are many teachers, let us say, expatriates and Peace Corps, who will not understand local languages, and therefore it would be better to keep the list of those people who would be enumerators, and instead help the local unemployed people by employing them in the enumeration of the voters?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, I do not understand the hon. Member's question because I am not aware that any members of the Peace Corps, are being asked to carry out the census.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, do we take it now from the Minister that there are no Peace Corps teachers in the country, who would equally qualify like the local teachers to be enumerators?

Mr. Mboya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, enumerators must be people who can speak to the villagers in the areas they are going to carry out the census, and I have said that the regulations bear in mind the needs of carrying out the census effectively. This must imply knowledge of language, otherwise it is not possible to comply with the requirements of the regulations, and I thought, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the hon. Member who first asked the question understood this so clearly that it is why I said I did not understand what he was talking about.

Question No. 230

AID FOR TEA GROWERS

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture to tell the House, whether, since very many tea growers were now experiencing financial hardship in the maintenance of the tea farms, the Minister would arrange loans for such farmers on the security of the tea already planted.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

As you know, the Authority has no funds for giving loans to growers; however, there is no reason why growers cannot apply for loans to the Agricultural Finance Corporation, or to other financial institutions in the same way as other farmers.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Minister's reply, is he not aware that the small-scale farmers, many of whom have not had their title-deeds, should be considered for loans by any of those firms?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I have said here is that it is the Government's policy—and if the hon. Member wants to check this I can assure him that this is so—each case will be dealt with on its merit and is considered sympathetically.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Minister now assure the House, that any small-scale farmer, who is a tea grower, and who wishes to apply for a loan in order to develop his tea, would be given that loan on security of the tea itself?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, everybody will be considered on his merit.

Question No. 231

INCREASED PRICES OF LEAF TEA

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture to tell the House, whether he would consider the possibility of increasing the cost of tea leaf by 10 cents per lb., in order to enable the tea growers to meet their commitments.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The other day, when answering Question No. 262 asked by the hon. Member for Butere, Mr. Shikuku, I mentioned a few things which reflected the ultimate money paid to the growers, and I will quote. "All the tea produced in Kenya is either sold on local auction in Nairobi, or in London auction where it fetches a price in accordance with its quality and demand for it."

Now, in answer to the question asked by the hon. Member for Hamisi, Mr. Godia, I will say that, this price fetched in auction partially determines the final money paid to the grower. The Minister for Agriculture, therefore, cannot determine, or increase payment at all. With the last two years—and I repeat what I said the other day: The forty cents paid to the grower for each lb. of green leaf supplied to the factory is not the final payment. There is usually a second payment at a level which has risen in the last two years, of twelve cents per lb. This is dependent on the profit made by the factory on selling the tea which has been processed. This final payment will always depend on the price which was obtained at the auctions and the economy of each factory. At present, the world market for tea is not very favourable, and it is hard to think in terms of greater payments to the grower. However, the Government is awaiting a report from a working party which is looking into the matter, and it is hoped that the report will be available soon.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply to the effect that there is a working party working on the prices, could the Minister tell the House, how the views of the tea growers would be considered by this working party. In what way would the views of the tea growers be heard by this party?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would ask the hon. Member to be patient. As soon as this report comes, it will satisfy him.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 131: INCREASED PRICES FOR LEAF TEA

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of this Question which was very, very badly answered, may I be allowed to raise it as a Motion for the Adjournment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You do not have to ask my permission if it is your question.

*Question No. 272*NUMBER OF PATIENTS AT UKWALA HEALTH CENTRE

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

(a) what the daily attendance of patients at Ukwala Health Centre was;

(b) whether that number did not qualify the health centre to become a cottage hospital.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before the Minister gives his reply, he should, first of all, apologize to the House, because, this Question appeared on the Order Paper on Friday morning and he was not there. He must apologize to the House, and tell us why he was not here or his Assistant Minister.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is quite correct, Mr. Otiende. It was on the Order Paper and it was not answered.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it was not due to my absence. The reason why this question was not replied to, was that papers containing the reply were missing in the office and were later found, and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In support of that, I do know that the Assistant Minister was hunting frantically round for the appropriate papers at the time the Question came up.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): I am sorry for that inconvenience to the hon. Member, but that is what actually happened: we had a change of staff in the office.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) The daily attendance of patients at Ukwala Health Centre is 188.

(b) The number of out-patients attending at Ukwala Health Centre is not a criterion for turning the centre into a cottage hospital.

The Ministry intends to build a new hospital a very short distance away at Siaya, the capital of that district, in the near future, subject to the funds being available, which will serve the surrounding areas including Ukwala.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating that the Minister is considering building a District Hospital in Siaya, will he tell the House, whether this is within the Development Plan.

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Siaya District Hospital was built out of need—not from Development Plan—because of sleeping sickness appearing in that area. Now the Government has put it in the next Planning period 1971/74.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if there was a need—and there is still a need—for a District Hospital to be built at Siaya, and this being a case that Central Nyanza was being split into two, so that Nyando part could be developed, why is this not in the Development Plan 1969/70—Siaya District Hospital is not included? Is this not discrimination in a way?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is a hospital at Siaya of a sort—and we are improving on that one, until such time as we have money for major development. We are building extra wards there soon, and we are now building the kitchen and the laundry. Surely, the hon. Member cannot ask for anything more to be added?

Question No. 273

WATER FOR NANGINA MISSION HOSPITAL

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Health to tell the House whether the Minister was aware of the fact that in Nangina Mission Hospital there was not enough water supply to cater for the hospital.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, Sir, in any case I am not aware of the shortage of water at Nangina Hospital. As far as I am concerned, there is enough water there to cater for the hospital; and, as such, I know that there is water all the year round. The allegation from the hon. Member for Ugenya, is not really justified.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister tell the House how the water is being supplied, because in the hospital they can only use water when there is rain, from the rainwater storage tanks?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised because I have been there and I know that there is a water supply which supplies Chanina Market as well as Nangina Hospital. If I might enlighten the hon. Member: in April 1969, a new six horse-power Lister engine was installed to replace the smaller one which was there before, and there is more than enough water being supplied to Nangina Hospital.

Question No. 213

MEDICAL SERVICES IN MERU

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyi asked the Minister for Health to tell the House when, since the medical facilities in Meru were very poor, the Minister would make a tour of the district to assess the problem on the spot.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Mr. Speaker, shall I say that this is the third time this question has come up in this House, and sometime, early this year, I made a very exhaustive reply to this question but I see it has come up again.

It is not true to say that all medical services in Meru are poor. I do not understand what the word "poor" means here. It is also very wrong to make such a sweeping statement like this one. The hon. Member from Nyambene South should at least appreciate the work which is being done in that area by Government and Mission hospitals alike in providing medical services for the public. They are basic services I agree, but, if somebody wants amenity services he can pay for them elsewhere, but these are basic services and public health services. The Minister for Health has visited Meru Hospital—not recently—but in view of the two-worded question, the Director of Medical Services was at Meru also early last week to inspect the hospital's facilities and we have a report. However, he does not agree that the services are poor. Neither are the services in the health centres poor, they are district services, curative services and preventive services.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, knowing that it is only last week when the Minister agreed that most of the Mission hospitals were almost collapsing financially, and knowing that Meru District mainly depends on those, and that the Meru District Hospital itself caters for Meru and Isiolo and the other northern parts; would he agree with me that it would be true to say, they are very poor, and that the facilities are not at the moment adequate, and especially there is a shortage of staff?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, Sir, some time ago, in answering a question, I did give to the House a list of the staff available in Meru Hospital. I stated that the staff was basic, we have no specialists in that area, and we have mostly general practitioners. However, I did say that it was enough and it was comparable to any other part of the Eastern Province or Kenya.

I can now say that since then we have improved on the staff position. Whereas there was one doctor, now there are two, full-time, and we have increased the number of nurses and other staff.

I would like to say, however, that because of the heavy population of that area, I am sure there is a demand for better services. We shall only improve Meru as we do get more staff from our training services. I agree that the services in that area are basic, but I cannot call them poor because they are fulfilling a need.

As far as the health centres are concerned, Mr. Speaker, we have helped them with a lot of money. In fact, they have had a fair share of the money that we get each year, for all services in Meru.

Question No. 252

FACILITIES AT AND AID TO MUTOMO MISSION HOSPITAL

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House—

- (a) in view of expansion of Mutomo Mission Hospital and the facilities there for surgery, whether he would, through the World Health Organization Assistance Programme, consider assisting the hospital by providing an abundant and constant water supply;
- (b) how much total grant-in-aid, if any, the Mutomo Hospital had received from the Government since 1966.

The Minister for Health (Mr. Otiende): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know whether the hon. Member is referring to Mutomo Hospital or Mutono Hospital?

I hear him say it is Mutomo Hospital, so I beg to reply.

Mutomo Hospital, Kitui South, is a Catholic Mission Hospital. There is no need for this Ministry to consider providing a water supply to Mutomo Hospital, because there is already an adequate and readily available water supply nearby provided by the Kitui County Council from the Tiva River. So far, no complaints have been received by the county council concerning the water supply being inadequate. As a matter of fact, the hospital is provided with 10,000-gallon storage tank.

With regard to (b), Mutomo Hospital has received the following capital grants:—

1967-68 Financial Year—£1,800 for X-ray plant.

1968-69 Financial Year—£750 for staff housing.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply from the Minister, would he note that although there is a water supply to this hospital, it is far from adequate, and what I am now asking the Minister to do is to try to assist the hospital to have an extra water tank and a bigger Lister engine so as to help the hospital get a constant flow of water to the hospital to enable it to function without difficulties?

Mr. Otiende: Mr. Speaker, the request will be considered if it is forwarded to my Ministry.

*Question No. 274WORKING OF KISUMU COUNTY COMMISSION

Mr. Odero-Sar asked the Minister for Local Government if he would tell the House if he was aware that Kisumu County Commission had failed to split Kisumu County into two councils.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. No, the Minister is not aware that the commission is not doing very well with regard to the county council. If I could bring to my hon. friend the details, I could quote, in short, how much the commission has been doing so far.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is only a question of splitting the county into two.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Njiiri): Mr. Speaker, the Ministry is not aware of the failure of the commission to split the county into two.

Mr. Odero-Sar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Assistant Minister tell the House why they have failed to split the county council into two, because they were given two years to do this and the time is now almost over?

Hon. Members: It is overdue.

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the division is still going on because the division of the assets must be carried out by the Commission before the wider Commission is set up.

Mr. Jamal: Mr. Speaker, can the Assistant Minister tell the House how long it will be before this county is split into two?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, at present the two county councils are working separately and are looked after by the Commission.

An hon. Member: Where? Who told you that?

Mr. Njiiri: The only problem is the financial problem and that is the question of grants to start building the Siaya Headquarters. This will be done as soon as we get the loan.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Assistant Minister is completely out of order in telling the House that we have two county councils operating separately, one at Siaya and one at Kisumu. It is not at all—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Mr. Obok. He is not out of order in saying so. You can ask a supplementary question if you like.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while everybody from Kisumu and Siaya District know that the Commission is running the council, is the Assistant Minister right to say that the two county councils are working separately when we know that the councillors have not been elected, and the Commission is running the whole former County Council of Central Nyanza District?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should know that before we had one district commissioner but at present, on the Commission, we have two district commissioners, one from Siaya and the other from Kisumu. Further, before we had one education officer and now we have two, one from Siaya and the other from Kisumu. The accounts are kept separately. Therefore, Sir, the question of saying that the councillors, this is the division of the areas which will be carried out by the Commission. As far as this is concerned, at present they are working entirely separately.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, can the Assistant Minister tell this House the names of the clerks to the county councils, and the Chairmen of the Commissions for the County of Siaya and Kisumu Districts?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should know that we have only one Commission and that Commission is served by the Clerk to the Commission. I never said that there were two Commissions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I might help hon. Members here. There seems to be some confusion. What the Assistant Minister is telling us is that there cannot be two councils, or even one council, until the Commission has finished its work. Really, your Question is, when will the Commission finish its work.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the Assistant Minister's reply, and with the indication which he has given to the House, that his work as Chairman of the Commission is almost coming to an end, could he now tell the House when he is going to hand over to the right people who will actually run the affairs of the Kisumu County Council, I mean the elected members of Siaya and Kisumu?

Mr. Njiiri: Mr. Speaker, the Commission will report to this House—

Hon. Members: When?

Mr. Njiiri: —as soon as it finishes its work.

*Question No. 251TRAINING IN PRIVATE COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House by what method the Minister checked whether the training given to Kenyans by private commercial training institutions in Kenya was up to the proper and required standard and was not exploitation.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Private commercial training institutions are subject to inspection by my Ministry's inspectors, just as any other educational institution in the country, whether Government-maintained, Harambee or private. Frequent inspection of these institutions is made as a way of ensuring that the students in these institutions receive good education in return for fees paid.

The standards of teachers and their qualifications are always checked by the inspectors of the Ministry and those found unqualified have their certificates withdrawn. This was agreed to by the National Association of Unaided Schools. Any schools which are below the national standards may be closed.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell this House, how many of these commercial institutions have so far been found not complying with the standards, and as such have been closed down as he has indicated?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as far as I am concerned, or my Ministry is concerned, we closed quite a few last year. For example, the Educational Guild, which was operating in Western Province, was closed because of inefficiency and many others. That is one example.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister assure this House that the fees charged in these commercial schools, are really fair? Does he not believe that the students are being exploited by being charged exorbitant fees?

An hon. Member: Without teachers being provided?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not know what one would consider as fair. However, before you send your students to any institution, you have to ask and know whether you are able to pay the fees required. You are not forced to send any student to any school where you consider the fees unfair, and because people are taking their children to these schools, Mr. Speaker, I consider that the fees are fair.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Minister not agree that because of the desire by many children, parents may tend to send their children to these schools to get education, and so children and parents are being exploited in private schools?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, that is a supplementary question to the other question which I have just answered. The fact here is that, Mr. Speaker, any private institution is a private institution. Our duty as a Ministry, is to check on the standards. Now, when it becomes a question of the fees, the parents can organize themselves and approach the Government—whether the fees are high or low—for the Government to consider.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, to help these private students, and also the private institutions, is the Ministry prepared to work out a national syllabus, according to the needs of Kenya, to supply to these institutions, and also set up a frequent examination, within that syllabus, so that we can have uniformity in the standards and knowledge acquired in these schools?

Mr. Khasakhala: While I agree very much with the hon. Member, the facilities are not confined to my Ministry. Any private secondary school, Mr. Speaker, is allowed to approach any of our provincial education officers, or inspectors, for the syllabuses required to be taught or used at secondary level. Now, if it is a secretarial college and other commercial colleges, we have Pitman's which has set up a syllabus. However, if it is a matter to be considered, Mr. Speaker, we also have got the Government secretarial college which could assist in this matter. If any institution runs into difficulties and approaches my Ministry we will do all we can to assist it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 291

TRANSPORT FACILITIES FOR WEST POKOT TEACHERS

Mr. Lorimo asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House—

(a) in view of the fact that teachers in some other areas of Kenya were given transport facilities when they were transferred from one school to another, why was it that teachers in West Pokot District were denied this right; and

(b) why did they have to walk to Kapenguria to collect their salaries.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. Teachers who incur travelling expenses while on transfer from one school to another can claim reimbursement for these expenses, provided they can produce receipts to support their claims. This right has not been denied to the teachers of West Pokot as stated by the hon. Member. Where a local authority can spare vehicles to transport the personal effects of teachers this alternative method of assisting teachers on transfer is also used. As many local authorities have an inadequate number of vehicles, teachers are expected to hire private transport or use public buses and then submit receipted claims.

[Mr. Khasakhala]

Teachers who have decided to have their salaries paid in cash rather than through the banks are supposed to collect their salaries at certain centres as it would be impracticable to visit all schools and pay the teachers at schools. There are six such centres in West Pokot and Kapenguria is one of them.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that answer, that teachers who incur travelling expenses, while on transfer from one school to another, can be reimbursed and that teachers are expected to hire private transport, what consideration is the Minister giving to teachers in West Pokot where there are no buses or private vehicles?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, where there are no buses or such private vehicles, we can pay them foot allowance.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, will the Minister tell me, arising from that answer, now that the Ministry is prepared to pay them foot allowance, what are the scales for foot allowance?

Mr. Khasakhala: I made it clear, Mr. Speaker. The reason why I tried to answer to hon. Member is that we know that we pay our local councillors foot allowance. However, I made it very clear that any teacher who is going on transfer, and has used a public vehicle, hired or used any other means of transport, can be reimbursed if he produces the receipt. I wonder whether one can produce a receipt for foot allowance?

Mr. Kassa-Choon: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from part (b), of the question, will the Assistant Minister tell us which are these six centres which he has mentioned because every teacher in that district, Mr. Speaker, who draws his salary in cash, has to go to Kapenguria. Will he mention a few of the others and tell us how many times has the education officer visited these centres?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the education officers, at given time of the month, visit these places, in West Pokot; Kapenguria for schools around about the station; Chepareria for schools around about that centre, for schools in the neighbourhood, and others situated in mountains, Sigor, and (Inaudible.). Those are the centres in West Pokot which are visited.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, arising from this unsatisfactory answer, is the Assistant Minister aware, that people in West Pokot are annoyed because teachers come to Kapenguria to collect their salaries, and the children are left there without anybody attending or teaching them? Steps should be taken so that the education officer is transferred.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that is a very unfair question and statement by the hon. Member. The position—

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Ekitella.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, the position in West Pokot, let us accept it, is that we have to go out of our way to assist the people of West Pokot, and that is why we have give them these six centres for the county education officer to visit and pay the teachers. In other areas, we do not have such centres at all. People have to travel to the headquarters to receive their salaries but we have done this in West Pokot and given them six centres.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, this is very serious. My point of order is this, for your guidance, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Points of order are not for the guidance of the Speaker, they are usually seeking guidance.

Mr. Ekitella: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance, is the hon. Assistant Minister for Education in order not to tell us the right things? What do you think of teachers leaving our children lying idle just like rocks? What do you think of that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Ekitella, you must learn some day what a point of order is, and what is not a point of order. I will not allow you any more points of order for quite a long time.

Next question. Mr. Lemein?

Mr. Lorimo: On a point of order. Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. A question of this kind, which still needs some other answers from the Minister, I know that I can ask it on a Motion for the Adjournment, but, can I, Mr. Speaker, with the leave of the House, raise it as a matter of national importance under Standing Order No. 20, because the matter is urgent?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Lorimo there is no question of raising this matter under Standing Order No. 20. That has to be a matter of extreme urgency requiring a decision within a matter of two days or so. It also has to be a matter of a very wide national importance. A matter of national importance is usually judged by the House, but I cannot allow the House to consider it unless it has a greater degree of urgency than this has.

Next question.

Question No. 286NAROK COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT VOTE

Mr. ole Lemein asked the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services if he would tell the House whether he would consider increasing Narok Community Development Officer's Vote, for self-help schemes from KSh. 10,000 (ten thousand shillings) to KSh. 20,000 (twenty thousand shillings) in the next financial year.

The Assistant Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Maisori-Itumbo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The funds for self-help projects are processed by the provincial community development committees which allocate the money to individual districts. Since the Members of Parliament are members of the above committees, the hon. Member should bring up this issue when the provincial community development committee meets next and stress the necessity of Narok District being allocated with more funds.

I should further point out that the Rift Valley Province was allocated with Sh. 210,000 during the current financial year, and that allocation of self-help funds is made on the basis of the number of self-help projects and their merits in the districts.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Minister consider increasing that amount for the less developed areas like Narok and others, especially Rift Valley, where there are 13 districts in that province? Will he consider to increase that amount?

Mr. Maisori-Itumbo: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member might have known that other provinces normally receive about Sh. 140,000. In the case of Rift Valley, we gave them Sh. 210,000 in the last financial year, and therefore it is considered to be one of the largest provinces in the Republic, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go back to Mr. Kibuga's Question. Is any hon. Member authorized by Mr. Kibuga to ask his Question?

Question No. 289GRADING OF C.P.E. EXAMINATION MARKS

Mr. Godia, on behalf of Mr. Kibuga, asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House why should Certificate of Primary Education marks, while being kept confidential, be the criteria for deciding who should go to secondary schools, whereas only grades A, B, C, D and E. were open for everybody to see.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Every examining body in the world keeps the actual marks scored by candidates somewhat restricted as far as the general public is concerned. Therefore, the results are made available to those who are able to interpret them for a particular purpose because they are not easy to interpret and would only create unnecessary queries and confusion. Kenya is not exempted from this practice. The risk of misinterpretation is the main reason for making the actual marks confidential.

Certificate of Primary Education marks are only confidential to the general public. Therefore, they are usually shown to the heads of secondary schools and teacher training colleges who are able to interpret them without difficulty for selection purposes. Therefore, only grades, A, B, C, D and E are open for everybody to see.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister aware that in many cases there have been pupils who have been rejected under the pretext that they have not acquired enough marks, whereas others are accepted and yet their parents are not told what marks their sons or daughters obtained?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, mistakes are human, but, any time a mistake is made, a correction is also made. Therefore, in places where headmasters have doubted the results of their own pupils, they have seen the Provincial Education Officer who is always given the marks, and the Provincial Education Officer has been able to help the headmasters of primary schools who have not been able to get the marks.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Assistant Minister tell us why it is not possible to give the results in grades instead of marks; why use both?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, marks are only used for selection for further studies and teacher training colleges. Grades are used in the certificates given to all the students.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Question No. 290EMPLOYMENT OF HEADMASTERS OF LARGE INSTITUTIONS

Mr. Kibuga asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House what allowances, if any, were given to headmasters and deputy headmasters of big educational institutions as—

(a) teachers employed by the Teachers' Service Commission; and

[Mr. Kibuga]

(b) teachers formerly employed by the Civil Service.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Headmasters and deputy headmasters who are employees of the Teachers' Service Commission are paid responsibility allowances in accordance with the terms of Sessional Paper No. 11 of 1967, on Teaching Service. The rates are as follows.

Primary schools: headmasters, a maximum of K£420 per year; deputies for primary schools with more than ten teachers established posts are paid K£24 per annum.

Secondary schools: headmasters, a maximum of K£960 per annum; deputies for secondary schools with more than five teachers established posts, K£36 per annum.

Teachers' colleges: principals of the colleges with less than 120 students are paid K£240 per annum; colleges with 120 students or more are paid K£360 per annum. Deputy principals: colleges with less than 120 students are paid K£90 per annum; and colleges with 120 students or more are paid K£120 per annum.

No responsibility allowance is paid to teachers who are civil servants.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from that reply, Sir, would the Assistant Minister tell us in what way the teachers are employed as civil servants and who are working as headmasters and deputy headmasters, and what do they get, so as not to warrant them not getting allowances?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, their terms of employment are different and this is quoted clearly in the terms.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, would the Assistant Minister clarify whether teachers in primary schools are counted as being trained or untrained, when he talks of a deputy headmaster is paid so much when teachers are trained? I think he understands the point.

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, I did not refer in my reply directly to a primary school, but I referred to the number of teachers in that school. Some schools without the number of teachers required do not get the headmaster's allowance.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, arising from one of the answers by the Assistant Minister that some of the teachers are employed as civil servants, is it not true that all the teachers should be employed by the Teachers' Service Commission?

Mr. Khasakhala: Mr. Speaker, this happens to be there; there are two different terms of service and these are well-known to this House, and the teachers are employed under these two terms of service.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Let us go on now.

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Sir.

PERSONAL STATEMENT

REFERENCE TO MATTERS BEFORE THE HOUSE IN PRESS STATEMENTS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, Mr. Godia, I know what you want to raise, but I think first I must ask Mr. Odinga if he has a Personal Statement to make with reference to my Communication from the Chair.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am sorry that I was not in the House when you were making this statement. However, I should say that I did not give any Press Conference at all. What appeared in the Press today was a circular statement which gives the views of my party on the Financial Statement which was given by the Government in this House. This is what has appeared in the Press and, as such, it is not my personal views; my personal views will be expressed in this House. What has appeared in the Press is only the views of my party and my party executive.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, you may have been labouring under a misapprehension: you must understand now, if you did not understand before, that a Member of this House cannot allow himself to be associated in any way with public comment outside this House on a matter which is being debated here. You will recall, I think, my Communication concerning what was said in the Press by a Government spokesman on a matter which was the subject of debate here, and I resented that because Government represented in this House should not have been associated with it at all. In just the same way, this statement, actually attributed to your mouth, was completely out of order, whoever else was associated with you on it. I hope you understand that now, and will apologize for having done it.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, with due respect to this statement which you have just made, you understand that my functions are more or less doubled in this particular respect. If you see the statement which was made, and the circular which went round, it refers to me as the President of KPU, not as Odinga, Member of Parliament and the Member for Bondo. If the statement came from me as the Member for Bondo, I would take the full responsibility for it, but I am taking full responsibility of this one as the President of KPU. The statement reflects the views of all the members of KPU at this time, now, and if anybody has misrepresented me by attributing it to me, as Oginga Odinga, I must say that I am not responsible for it and you must excuse me. It was not my own wish that they should make it as being my own views, because I did not mean it. If it was taken as that, I apologize and this is wrong; it should not have been that way.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is all right to some extent, Mr. Odinga, but you still seem to think—and you are very mistaken if you do so think—that because you are head of some organization outside this House, you are entitled, in that capacity, to say things that you cannot say as a Member of this House outside. You cannot disassociate yourself in that way. You are Mr. Odinga, whether you are a member of this House or whether you are head of KPU. You cannot escape your obligations to the House in this way, and I hope you will say now that you understand it, although you will be forgiven for not having understood it before.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is where I have also said that this applies to the Head of State of the country, because we have heard that I have also said that he should separate, himself from being the Head of State as well as being the head of Government and also being the head of Kanu—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Odinga, that is quite irrelevant unless you are referring to an occasion when the President, as a Member of this Parliament, made a public comment on a debate which was current in this Parliament. I am not conscious of his ever having done so. Please say you understand and then we will leave the subject.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, I was trying, but I think that I have done what you wanted me to do. Have I not done what you wanted me to do, Mr. Speaker? I thought that I had made the statement which you wanted me to make.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As long as you say that you understand for the future, that being in another capacity does not excuse you.

Mr. Odinga: I do understand, Mr. Speaker.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 290: EMPLOYMENT OF HEADMASTERS IN LARGE INSTITUTIONS

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have two points of order. The first is, with the permission of the questioner, I would like to raise the matter of Question 290 on the adjournment: teachers' terms of service.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kibuga, any objection?

QUESTION NO. 289: GRADING OF C.P.E. EXAMINATION MARKS

Mr. Kibuga: I have no objection, Sir, because I wish to raise the other one on the adjournment, Question No. 289.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20

CURRENT STRIKE OF EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY CIVIL SERVANTS

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I please be allowed, under Standing Order No. 20, to move the adjournment of this House in order to consider a definite matter of national importance regarding the effects of the threatened strike of the East African Community's 10,000 workers which comes into effect as of midnight last night and is reported in today's Press.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! This is a point of order.

This strike by servants of the community is obviously a definite and urgent matter and it is of considerable national importance. Hon. Members are probably aware that this procedure of moving the adjournment of the House under Standing Order 20 can only relate to matters of administration for which our Government is responsible, and I did think, when Mr. Godia first approached me about this, that this was really the responsibility of the Community rather than our Government. However, I see that our Government is directly associated with it, having been actually associated in the negotiations and also I think having the power to declare the strike as illegal. Therefore, I must allow Mr. Godia to raise this if he has the support of the House.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, would it help the hon. Member if I gave him the information that at 1 o'clock last night the secretary of the union concerned announced the calling off of the strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It will help the hon. Members and help me, because it ceases to be a matter which is urgent, so it no longer arises today.

(Matter dropped)

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR BUSINESS BEFORE THE HOUSE AND ORDER OF

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members that on the adjournment today Mr. Odinga is to raise the matter noted on the Order

[The Speaker]

Paper—perhaps it is not very clearly noted—which refers to the frequency of entry of nolle prosequi in criminal cases. The only thing, as I said on Friday, is that we shall not be able to take that if we have to run on until 7 o'clock in order to get a full three hours of debate on the Financial Statement. That depends how long we take on the two Procedural Motions. We will see whether we can start by 4 o'clock, but if not we shall have to sacrifice your matter, Mr. Odinga, to the Financial Statement debate. If we start later than 4 o'clock, well then we cannot get three hours anyhow and we might as well have your matter on the adjournment.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I see that the Minister for Economic Planning has given information—we agree with Government collective responsibility—but since it is not only this strike; there is a Railways strike, there is a Kenya Civil Servants' strike, would it not be in order for the Member to be allowed to raise this matter of strikes on the adjournment, because it is very important for us and it is very important for the country, Mr. Speaker? The whole place is turning into a mess and we have to do something about it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, it is only the matter of the strike of the civil servants of the East African Community that I regarded of sufficient urgency to be raised today, and if I am right in understanding that the whole of that strike has been called off, then I do not think it is of sufficient urgency for this procedure.

Mr. Karungaru: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, despite the fact that the Minister for Economic Planning has given this House information relating to the strike in question, supposing this information will not conform with whatever is now taking place, would it not also be in order for this House to be allowed to discuss this matter as a matter of national importance, perhaps tomorrow or another day?

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Obok, you must not interfere when points of order are being dealt with.

If the Minister has misinformed the House that will be a very serious offence and would be a matter for discussion in itself. I do not know why you should assume he has, Mr. Karungaru.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since the Minister has only said that the secretary-general has called off the strike, would it not be in order, even without a debate, for the Government to make a statement in this House as to what they have done about this strike?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The mere fact that the strike has been called off removes the urgency. The House might like a statement on the subject at some time, but there is no urgency to have it today.

PROCEDURAL MOTIONLIMITATION OF DEBATE: SPEECHES IN DEBATES ON FINANCIAL STATEMENT AND ON ANNUAL ESTIMATES

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move:—

THAT, each speech in the debate on the Financial Statement on the Annual Estimates shall be limited to 20 minutes for the Leader of the Opposition and 15 minutes for other Members speaking, excluding Mover's speech and reply.

Mr. Speaker, this position will improve upon last year's procedure, in that instead of hon. Members having ten minutes in which to speak, they will this time have an additional five minutes which gives them 15 minutes in which to speak on the Budget. The Leader of the Opposition has been given 20 minutes, which is the same as the case last year. It also gives him the opportunity to make a more detailed statement on behalf of his party.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): seconded.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to support this Motion. It is a mere procedural Motion. I think 15 minutes will be enough for hon. Members to express themselves in the Financial Debate, and it is good that we give the Leader of the Opposition his share, so that instead of using the Press, he is now able to speak his words here to us, and exploit the situation fully.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to support this Motion which is self-explanatory. I think that we Members of Parliament are only going to say a few things which are important and which we would like to see implemented by Government before the next General Election. If Government cannot implement them, then the Government which comes back to power will do so when the time comes.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, for a Member of Parliament to be given 15 minutes in which to speak on a Financial Statement like this is reasonable, and also I think we would like to hear a full, detailed statement from the Leader of the Opposition in the 20 minutes he has been given. We would like him to comment in this House and tell the country exactly what his Government would do if ever that party formed the Government at all, as was in the Press today. I would listen very attentively and appreciatively if the Leader of the Opposition, within his 20 minutes, could take our Government to task, very reasonably, so as to expose his party's policies on this Statement.

I wish to support.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also would like to join my colleagues in supporting this Motion. I want to congratulate the Sessional Committee for the work which they have done in stepping up the time from ten minutes to 15 minutes. I think this is a very good development, and I hope by next year they are able to increase it from 20 minutes to 25 minutes, and then the following year it will probably go from 25 minutes to 30 minutes. As Members experienced in this House, they tend to get experience by speaking here in the Chamber, by developing reasonable points, whereby they are probably only able to enjoy 30 minutes after two or three years in this Chamber.

Also, we know very well that certain Members have been in this Chamber for a long time without making a speech, and there are certain Members who like to contribute here who can take their time. If we only want to distribute the time according to the Members of the House, it is evident that certain Members have only made a maiden speech when they first came here, they now keep quiet, they just come here and sit down for five minutes only to record their presence and get their allowances, but there are certain other Members who like to contribute—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think that this is relevant.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, I would not like to go out of my way, but all the same the question of increasing the time from ten minutes to 15 minutes is a good improvement, and I hope the Sessional Committee will see to it that—

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is merely a procedural Motion. I move that the Mover be called on to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I should inquire whether any hon. Member wishes to speak against the Motion.

Hon. Members: No.

(Question, that the Mover be now called upon to reply, put and agreed to)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Members for their support, except the hon. Member who spoke last. He might like to pick up a book on economics, and read about what we call the law of diminishing returns.

(Question put and agreed to)

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, arising from what the Minister for Economic Planning just said, does he mean to impute an improper motive on the subject I was speaking about?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think so, Mr. Okuto-Bala. He was just making a little gentle fun.

PROCEDURAL MOTION

EXEMPTION FROM STANDING ORDERS: PRECEDENCE OF VOTE ON ACCOUNT OVER FINANCIAL STATEMENT DEBATE

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, I beg to move:—

THAT, pursuant to Standing Order 137 (1), this House orders that the business of Vote on Account, shall be exempted on Wednesday, 25th June 1969, from the provisions of Standing Order which gives precedence to the debate on the Financial Statement.

The reason for this procedure, Mr. Speaker, is that the financial year comes to an end on the 30th June, and it is necessary that we approve the Vote on Account to facilitate the use of funds during the period the debate is taking place after the 30th June.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala) seconded.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, this Motion seems to have got a little out of shape. It is "... pursuant to Standing Order 166 that the House orders ..." exemption, and the Standing Order from which the business has to be exempted is Standing Order 137 (1). I will propose the Question with that small amendment.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, although I support this Motion as a matter of procedure, I would like the Minister, when replying, to state why we have to exempt business on that particular day, since Government knows very well that many of these Ministerial Votes have not been debated regularly in this Parliament for, I think, six-and-a-half years. We have been guillotining these Votes, just because the Budget Statement is made at the wrong time. Members are not [Mr. Ngala-Abok] given sufficient time to discuss all the Votes pertaining to each Ministry critically. Now we are confronted with a Motion which will mean that we are going to pass, as a matter of urgency, because of the financial year ending on the 30th June, the Votes on Account for all the Ministries. It will not matter what Government may want to do. Government can still order Parliament to go home, to go in recess, to do farming—as they always tell us, as if they teach us what to do and how to farm—and then we shall discuss nothing more. This is tantamount to meaning that we do not need to debate the Votes as such. We shall have given the go-ahead for Government to spend the money. I think this is a matter which Government has to explain clearly to the country. It is not the responsibility of Members of Parliament to bring this Financial Statement and the Budget Debate so that we are asked, within a matter of four days, to pass all those Votes on Account and, then to give Government the go-ahead to spend the money.

Hon. Members: No.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Some Members are saying “no” but once a Resolution of this House has been passed that all the Votes on Account can now be spent, Members of Parliament will have no more right to discuss them, as long as Government says, “All right, we will go into recess. We have been given permission to go ahead.” Every Ministry will spend their money, because they have been given permission to do so.

Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am talking about this, but I support it because I just do not see any alternative. On the 30th June, Government will need money to spend and our financial year ends, and therefore we think we should support Government on this, but I think it is extremely wrong. We are not going to have a Government where many of these important Ministries such as Local Government, and so on, continue to spend money without their Vote ever being debated in Parliament here. Some of these Ministries have not even answered the questions they were supposed to answer when we debated their Votes on Account. Some of them just lie there, they have never even stood the chance—

CONSIDERED RULING

DESIRABLE DATE FOR PASSING A VOTE ON ACCOUNT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not wish to interrupt, but I do not think your argument is really relevant to this question of Vote on Account. It is laid down in our Standing Orders 142 (6):

that “Any Vote on Account shall be put down as the first business on the first of the Allotted days,” So it is actually prescribed in our Standing Orders that we do pass a Vote on Account, giving the Government half the money they require before we start discussing the particular Votes. That has always been the procedure, it is provided for in our Standing Orders.

The selection of Votes to be discussed as regards the remaining half of the money will remain open to the Sessional Committee as before. There is only one point I would make, and that is that Standing Orders say that the Vote on Account should be taken on the first of the Allotted Days which means after we have concluded debate on the Financial Statement and the Committee of Ways and Means voting the taxation the Government requires. It is most undesirable that the House should be asked to pass a Vote on Account before we have gone that far. This happened last year too. On both occasions I have had to suggest to the Minister for Finance that such a late date for the presentation of the Financial Statement produces this result. I know he has done his best, in consultation with the Ministers of the other territories and that he tried to get an earlier date, but he tells me that he has not succeeded; and you know they have to synchronize, so that is how this comes about.

(Resumption of Debate)

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to end my speech, but I think that, much as I would like to support this Motion, as I said from the very beginning, the Government should be very careful, even if we are only giving them permission to spend part of the money. They should make sure that we shall debate as much as possible all the Ministries' Votes and that Parliament and the country will know and will put every Minister to task on each Vote so that we can understand what is going on in every Ministry.

That particular aspect of the matter you have explained Mr. Speaker, Sir, is a matter that I think should be better explained by the Government, because if it is a matter of our Standing Orders and the Government goes on by-passing it, then we shall not be very satisfied. If it is a question of synchronization, this one must be a matter that has to be explained to the other territories so that we can find out what to do about it. After all, we can make it a usual and normal procedure so that there is no struggle between our Speaker and the Minister for Finance.

With those few remarks I wish to support.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I will not take as much time as the last speaker because this is a normal thing that we must pass the Vote on Account to give the Government some spending money. This being the procedure, it is quite welcome. I support it because it is something we must never let go without being supported. It gives powers to this National Assembly to allow any expenditure of public funds. This is where we come in, but when this is being violated, Mr. Speaker, and if the money can be spent without the approval of this House, that is where we get cross. Sometimes I wonder how serious hon. Members are because I can recall one day there was something they passed without knowing what they were passing and it was spent and they will have to live to pay for this some time. So I support, Mr. Speaker, very strongly, that this Motion should be supported, so that we give the money to the Government; we give authority for expenditure and we hope—and I hope I am not hoping against hope—that any expenditure, be it give cents or one cent, must be approved by this National Assembly. It is only in this way we can safeguard the funds of the public.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is more relevant when we come to the Vote on Account.

Mr. Shikuku: I beg to support.

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, may I move that the Mover be now called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think so. This is only a procedural question.

(Question that the Mover be called on to reply, put and agreed to)

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, the points raised have already been dealt with by yourself, Sir. All I want to say to the hon. Member for Homa Bay is that rather than belabour the point of blaming the Government and always blaming somebody else he might like, one of these days, to take a little time and trouble himself to check on the Standing Orders.

The question of synchronization of our Budget is part of the co-operation between the three East African countries. We try very hard to persuade our colleagues in the partner states to see our problems, but they also have their problems and the only way we can reach agreement is by trying to accommodate each other. This year, unfortunately, the time agreed to for the Budget statements in the three countries has come very near to the end of the month of June which has given us the additional problem this year of having to move this procedural Motion even before we have taken the general debate on the Budget statement. The Government regrets this inconvenience, but there is really no alternative and I am sure the hon. Members in the House will understand our predicament on this occasion. We take the points and we will continue to do our best to bring the dates of the Budget statement as early as possible in the month of June with the agreement of our colleagues.

As regards the other statements, you have ruled, Mr. Speaker, rightly, that the points made by the hon. Member for Butere should await the discussion of the debate on the Vote on Account. We will reply to them at that time.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

(Question put and agreed to)

Resolved Accordingly:

THAT, pursuant to Standing Order No. 166, this House orders that the business of Vote on Account, shall be exempted on Wednesday, 25th June 1969, from the provision of Standing Order No. 137 (1) which gives precedence to the debate on the Financial Statement.

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

(Order for the Committee read)

MOTION

That Mr. Speaker do now leave the Chair.

(Minister for Finance on 19th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 19th June 1969)

(First Day of Budget Debate)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I see that we will be able to get in three hours to complete a full day on this debate if we continue until nearly seven o'clock this evening, and I propose, therefore, we should sit until close on seven o'clock, say, for a full three hours, which means that we should not be able to deal with Mr. Odinga's adjournment matter today.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Leader of the Opposition asked me to take his 20 minutes. Will this be all right?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think that will have to have the leave of the House because 20 minutes were given to him as the Leader of the Opposition. I will inquire if hon. Members object to this 20 minutes being taken by Mr. Okelo-Odongo—

Hon. Members: We object.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): How many object?
(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There are many. There is only 15 minutes for you.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will be able to say what I wanted to say in 20 minutes in lesser time now.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, looking at the Budget Speech, I can see nothing new. It is the same monotonous kind of statement that the Minister for Finance makes in this House year after year, and it really says nothing new. But I would like to tackle, first of all, the points where the Minister claimed that the hon. Members of this House would be very pleased to learn that he had said or he had ruled out the graduated personal tax for people who earn about K£48 per annum in other words, those who get Sh. 80 per month. Therefore, the Sh. 2 per month or the Sh. 24 graduated personal tax is removed. Now, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I suppose when the Minister was saying this, he thought this was a gesture, some kind of a new deal for the common man in the rural areas. I would like to say that if this is what the Kanu Government thought, I must say that this is coming rather too late, and it is too little. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this gesture is like putting a pinch of salt in the sea. The Kanu Government has been in power for the last six years. We have reminded the Government of the plight of the common man in the rural areas and this Government has all the time shut its ears and has not done anything about it. So at this last moment, knowing that the elections are taking place very soon, the Government rushes up with some kind of announcement which was intended to show that the Government is now interested in the plight of the lower income group, and I must repeat that this is too little and it is too late and of no value.

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member in order to allege that this Government has never been interested in the lower income group until they took away the Sh. 2 tax?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a matter of opinion which everyone will judge according to the facts of the case.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that when this will be applied—if it will be applied at all—by next year, the whole value of this will whittle away because in the application of this matter, knowing what happens to graduated personal tax in the reserves with all the assessors who have all kinds of standards, I assume and I think what is going to happen is that anybody that is living in the reserves is going to be asked to pay tax still. The assessors will come out and say: "Well you pay Sh. 48 and you should pay Sh. 72"; without really basing the decision on very sound judgment of the economic power of these people. This is happening even today. So Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think this is going to cause nothing but trouble, a wrangle between the citizens of the country with the chiefs and the sub-chiefs, which has been going on and this still going to be worse. As matter of fact, in some places the work of the sub-chiefs is just to collect the graduated personal tax. But now that there is supposed to be no graduated personal tax, one should think that there should be no sub-chief at all, according to the Kanu Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our policy with regards to this has always been clear that the lowest graduated personal tax that is being paid in this country is something of an anachronism, similar to the out-moded hut tax, which should be removed and all the taxes should be based on the income so that anybody who does not have any income, like those people living in the reserves, should not be taxed.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, now I come to the point which the Minister always likes to talk about, namely, this question of economic progress. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister quotes all kinds of figures with regard to the expansion of our economy, and the growth of our economy, the rise in the gross domestic product and so on. But Mr. Speaker, Sir, looking at these things very closely, one wonders whether the Government or the Minister really differentiates between mere economic expansion and true economic progress, because the fact that there has been an increase in our output does not mean that there has been an overall general progress in the economy of the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it could be that there has been an increase in the whole output, but it may be confined to a few hands or it may be confined to a few foreigners, some of whom re-export some of it and leaving people here with nothing.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is also possible and I think this is what is happening in this country, despite all the announcements, that there is an increase in the graduated personal tax, you find there is an increase in unemployment. Mr. Speaker, Sir, year after year we get school-leavers coming into towns. This year, I understand there was something in the nature of 130,000 Certificate of Primary Education leavers coming to this town who could not get places in secondary schools. Where are they going to work? And where are these people? I understand, again, there is another group of nearly 8,000 to 9,000 of secondary school leavers for whom the Government has not provided anything; and I understand also that there is a large influx from the rural areas into towns due to shortage of land, some of it arising out of Land Consolidation. Thus, unemployment is increasing all the time, and yet the Government is shouting that the economy is growing. It is not growing. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if one looked at it very carefully, one would see that, as a matter of fact, the standard of living—or the level of living—of the majority of our people is really falling and we should not fool ourselves that the economy is improving because Government has not proved this. By merely quoting figures, you cannot say that it is improving.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when you read this part here, the Government says that there has been an increase in the bank deposits; there has been an increase in the volume of money circulating among the members of the public. That does not indicate any progress, Sir. Actually, you get a feeling, in this country, that there is some kind of mysterious stream of money flowing over the country, but only a few people manage to come across it. Those people who manage to come across it, appear to have so much of it. They donate it, they do all kinds of things with it, while the majority of the people in the reserves have not even seen it. Some of them have never even received a one pound note, a Sh. 20 note; they never get it as their own. All they know of money is tongolos and shillings. Some people, in one day, can donate Sh. 100,000, Sh. 10,000 and all these sums of money, and they can fly here and there, bet on horses and do all kinds of things. That does not really indicate true economic progress.

As a matter of fact, Sir, I think that the economy is based on a very wrong base. A sign of this is the fact that when the Minister was talking about taxes, he said that a great deal of the revenue that he was getting came from the smokers, the drinkers and the motorists. If we have to depend on the smokers, on the drinkers for the greater part of our revenue, then our economy is definitely based on a wrong base. Many of the smokers are going to die and many of the drinkers continue to move along the roads. This means that there is nothing going on.

Seriously, Sir, when you read through the speech, you find that wherever there is difficulty the Government is going to make good either by borrowing or by issuing Treasury Bills. Now, this is all borrowing, borrowing, borrowing. How can you make money by borrowing money?

To make things worse, Mr. Speaker, produce that could bring this country money, things like maize, you find that they have to export maize, not to make money but they have to use the taxpayers' money in order to export maize. They are going to export maize and wheat, subsidize the export of these crops with money collected from the taxpayers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, what could be worse than that? It shows that the economy is completely on the wrong basis and that it is not going to get us anywhere.

Sir, if one looks around it can be seen that we have a great deal of land and the country could support the population that there is, could feed it very well if there were only a sensible Government. Even at this time while we are talking, there are tons and tons of sugar rotting in Muhoroni for lack of transport. Instead of roaming around to London, to America to look for money, they should just go to Muhoroni and see that the sugar gets to the factories. Then there will be that amount of money.

All this question of exporting maize at a low price, and that we should subsidize the price is madness. That ought not to have been done if such was the case. We have asked the Government to see to it that they develop industries in the country and try to manufacture from the crops that we have. We can get a lot of gin from maize and starch from maize as well. We can get all kinds of things from maize, if only the Government could start thinking in the right way.

Mr. Speaker, the country is not making any progress at all. When you look at our economy today, it is the colonial pattern of economy that we still have here; the income of people is on the colonial pattern. If you look at Nairobi, you see that many of the places and dwelling houses in Nairobi are for Europeans and only for the rich Africans, the Ministers and, possibly, the Assistant Ministers, and, maybe, some Asians, too. The majority of the Asians are still in the Parklands area and so forth. Where are the Africans? The majority of them are pushed down in the locations and in the shanty towns, the areas which the hon. Members there represents. So how can we say that we are progressing when we see nothing? If you look at the figures, Sir, some of the figures for 1966, you will find that only about 41 per cent of the Africans living in the urban areas were earning something like £2,000 and above. That was only for 41 per cent. However, about 51 per cent of the Asians were earning more than— Mr. Speaker, I am sorry, I should have said shillings, not pounds, Sh. 2,000 for the 41 per cent Africans living in urban areas. 51 per cent of the Asians were getting Sh. 7,000 and 75 per cent of the Europeans were earning about Sh. 20,000 to each person and about 25 per cent of them were earning about Sh. 47,000 to a person. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you still have all these things according to races, how can you say that you are developing the economy? All this business of Africanization is not getting anybody anywhere because the Africans do not seem to have the capital to do the business anyway. Sir, these are the figures and these are the things that the people can see for themselves. You find in the towns that the difference is not only between the races; in the rural areas you find that the people have been left in the same old position where they were before. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have always known that unless this can be done—I do not think the Kanu Government can do it because they would have done it if they could. They had had their six years and the time is almost over.

Sir, the economy has a disease and as I have said, Sir, the disease is the colonial pattern of the whole thing. This is one disease and the other is the capitalistic pattern of the economy which is not benefiting the majority of the Africans. It is not giving us the fruits of Uhuru that people fought for. Unless we can change the structure of the economy—which only KPU can do—unless we can mobilize our population, unless we can mobilize the resources that we have, in order to exploit the land that we have, the other facilities that we have, we are not going to be able to do what we pledged to do for the people, namely, to win the Uhuru which will bring them food and will bring them some security. At the moment, there is no security whatsoever. People go about unemployed. You cannot even feed your wife and your children because you cannot get a job. You cannot even educate your children if you want to do so because you have no money to do this with. So how are you going to live happily? What is the use of Uhuru to you if these basic facts are not available to the ordinary citizen of the country? This is why I say the speech has very little in it and really does nothing at all to help the Africans.

I would have trusted the graduated personal tax reduction if it had been accompanied by the Minister's programme as to how the county councils are going to be financed.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to congratulate the Minister for Finance on his excellent presentation of the Budget Speech. What is more, Sir, unlike the hon. Member who has just sat down said—and he was talking shop—I feel that when one looks at the level of taxation and the relief which has been given to the lower income group, and note that the revenue is on the rising side, in comparison to that of last year, one has to congratulate the Government and the Minister for Finance. Today, Sir, in one of the papers the hon. Members of KPU said the national debt was very high and yet the revenue was less than the amount we owed to the world. The hon. Members must also understand that whatever the Government has borrowed on a long term basis, the amount due for repayment this year is met within the revenue we are receiving, and yet we are receiving more money for development.

Mr. Speaker, it was very good indeed for the Minister for Finance to say he has put a ceiling on the expenditure side of his revenue, and this is what he is going to stick to in the published Estimates of Expenditure. It is good he has been lenient on the section of the Development Estimates so that what is required, if any progress during the five years of the Development Programme is to be made, and if new and more viable projects should come up, then he will be able to raise the money.

A point, Sir, which I would like to take up with the Minister for Finance, is that he said in his speech that the most disturbing feature was the question of non-repayment of loans by the farmers. The Government of Kenya, and particularly the Ministers for Agriculture and Finance, as well as the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, should put their heads together and they must realize that farming is a long-term project. One does not put money into a farm today and then be able to make out a cheque the following day.

Sir, development of the farming industry is a very difficult problem. If one goes to the United States, or Britain, you find the farmers of those countries are subsidized very, very heavily in order to continue farming. In Kenya, Sir, it is the reverse. The farmer is milked to the very last drop. Mr. Speaker, if the farmers are to be able to repay the loans which have been given to them, the Government must make up its mind to give them more loans in order to make the farming industry more viable in order to be able to repay the loans. I cannot imagine any farmer, be he small-scale or large-scale, going into the farming business and after six months he is asked for the repayment of the loans.

Mr. Speaker, any of the hon. Members here today can go to the Agricultural Finance Corporation and ask for a loan for a tractor, and after six months they will be called upon to pay the first instalment. Mr. Speaker, if one buys a ng'ombe today in calf, in six months it will not have calved down in order for the farmer to be able to deliver some milk or cream to start repaying his loan. Mr. Speaker, Sir, when one looks at the price of fertilizer, you find it is not subsidized to the degree which it ought to be. There was a paper some time ago which was prepared by Doctor Hopper. This paper suggested very clearly that the price fertilizers in Kenya was too expensive. The cost of machinery today in Kenya is very high, and even if the African farmer would like to make economies in his farming, he cannot do so. With the lower price for maize and wheat, and other produce, including pyrethrum and tea, I wonder how Mr. Gichuru could come to this conclusion unless he wants the farmers to go bankrupt?

I feel, Sir, that this is a point which the Minister must seriously consider, and the Government also, because unless the African farmers, both small-scale and large-scale, shoulder the bulk of the farming industry in this country, when the European farmers move out in toto, this country is really going to suffer.

Another point, Sir, which I would like to raise is on the question the International Development Agency loans to enable the takeover of Harambee schools to be normal Government aided items. Mr. Speaker, I hope, in aiding these Harambee schools, the Government will aid all Harambee schools everywhere and not just select certain areas where they will be aided and leave other areas to continue as Harambee schools. This, Sir, creates lopsided development, and so long as we have this in the country, we can never have harmony among the various communities in this country.

The other point, Sir, which I would like to raise in this debate is the question of Africanization in business. Africanization in business, Sir, must be genuine Africanization in business. Today, Sir, we have window dressing. It is good a Bill is coming to this House. But, Sir, what I would like to say is this. Africanization in business must be Africanization in its normal sense. It should not be tribalization of industry in Kenya. Sir, all African communities, all tribes everywhere, must be assisted by the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation to come into business. Today, Sir, what one finds is that the practice of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation is that if you belong to a given tribe you will not have to wait for one week before your loan is approved. If you belong to some of the unfortunate tribes of Kenya, Sir, you will not have your loan approved. This I have had experience of.

Mr. arap Bii: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Member in question to substantiate and give us an instance where an African of a certain tribe has applied for a loan and this was not approved because he came from that tribe.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I am afraid it is not possible for an hon. Member to substantiate a negative. You cannot prove that something is not happening. Those who allege it is happening are allowed to rebut his statement, as a point of order.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member must bear in mind that I am the most senior Back-bencher in this House and I will never make any irresponsible statement which I cannot substantiate here.

I applied for a loan in March last year to buy a business in Kitale; I asked for Sh. 120,000. The loan was approved in April this year. After a year, this information was communicated to me and the business had already been taken by somebody else. Mr. Speaker, I, Masinde Muliro, was the applicant to the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. The hon. Member being young in this House should always bear in mind that some of us are old here. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel the Minister for Commerce and Industry—

Mr. Kimurai arap Soi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, could I ask the hon. Member to further substantiate that the property went to another tribe? He said the property had already been bought, but was it bought by some one of his own tribe or by another tribe?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the hon. Member was saying the loan which he was refused went to a member of another tribe. It is the question of the loan and not the property which he was trying to buy.

Mr. Muliro: Mr. Speaker, I never said the loan went to some one of another tribe. What I said was the property had already been bought by someone else.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Minister for Commerce and Industry must give a better directive to all the various organizations under him, that they should never discriminate against various members of the Kenya community. Mr. Speaker, it is useless to say we want the Asians to leave, and we want the Europeans to leave the businesses, and entrench one tribe in the economic privileges in this country. The entrenchment of one tribe, or two or three, is not going to be the answer. The answer is to create a nation and to create a nation then all the people in this country must be developed equally. They must be given the opportunity for economic and commercial betterment which they expected from the independence in this country without some other people helping themselves alone. Some of the Members who say today that they were Freedom Fighters were actually in detention camps when we were fighting for independence in this country. We fought for them to come out of the detention camps and they need not boast to anybody here of what they did.

Mr. Speaker, I feel this is the last Budget Speech for some of us here. Some of us will not be in this House the next time, and this might be the last time for somebody to speak his mind on this Budget Speech. Those who do not speak their minds will be shut up the next time shauri yao.

Mr. Speaker, as for the Minister for Economic Planning and Development—I am sorry he is not here—in a speech in 1967 he told this hon. House that the paper pulp factory at Broderick Falls would be in production by mid 1970. This was the song. Up to this minute, Mr. Speaker, even the site has not been ear-marked. The site is there, nobody has gone there, and the trees have not been planted and we are being told all the time the paper pulp factory at Broderick Falls, will shortly be in production. When will it be in production? One knows when the ng'ombe is going to calve down, that is when the ng'ombe is in calf. We have not seen the paper pulp factory project and the Minister for Finance was daring enough the other day to say “we protect the paper pulp factory at Broderick Falls”.

We are going to a general election, and we are going to return all Kanu candidates in Western Province. We do not want to be hoodwinked by the Government and that is why we are now speaking our minds. We are going to return Kanu candidates to this House whether any one likes it or not.

An hon. Member: Are you sure?

Mr. Muliro: Very sure. I am the engineer so do not worry. You will be out.

Mr. Speaker, I would say, honestly, that if there is economic development in one place and none in another this does not create harmony; does not create peace; does not create stability; and any Government which deceives itself that so long as people in his place are happy and contented they, the Government, are happy, that hon. Member, or hon. Minister, or even if he is Leader of Government, he is deceiving himself to the highest degree of deception.

Mr. Speaker, if we want to create one society, then we should create a society of equals and not a society of unequals. We want to create a society of people who will meet at the same level, and not people who will meet others as juniors. This, Mr. Speaker, has been the trend for the last seven years. I hope after the election this trend will change. Let me hope in earnest that this trend will change.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support the Budget.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say straightaway, that the Budget this year is very reasonable, except for a few things which I would like to talk about.

I think the Minister for Finance has tried his best and there is no doubt the Government has tried its best for the last six years. Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are difficulties all over the world. Difficulties in economics. Difficulties in politics, in social welfare and there are problems of all kinds in the world. No Government has solved these problems overnight, and no Government has ever found a solution to all human problems. We are going to concern ourselves with economic development in this country for many years to come, and I think throughout we shall have problems. We have heard of these problems in America, where they have a lot of money. You still find the people there complaining; they are still in search of leadership they are looking for social welfare facilities still. Therefore, speaking in this House, Mr. Speaker, I would like our Members to appreciate that human problems are endless, and that as long as we live in this world, we are going to have problems and difficulties which all the time are practically insurmountable.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to draw the Government's attention to one proposal which I feel is very important, and that is the question of removing altogether the lowest income tax group, so that the people do not pay Sh. 24 per year by way of poll tax. I would like to congratulate the Government for having taken that move. This is important, because most of the frustrations encountered in the countryside are those of the Administration Police, arresting, molesting and disturbing our people all the time. They are very grateful that, as from January 1st, next year, they are not going to have to pay the usual Sh. 24 in addition to locational rate, and so on. It was not stated that the locational rate would remain

[The Assistant Minister for Finance] spent on that particular project. This is only a token amount which has been shown and which, traditionally, is shown this way.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the question of token amounts does not help. The problem is so extensive and serious, and I can only explain that farmers were sent down there. It was the only scheme to accommodate some of them from South Nyanza, but nothing has been done. The roads are primitive, tsetse flies are plentiful, the animals are roaming around and they are devouring the crops belonging to people. Last year, my ten acres of maize were devoured by these animals, just because there was no money to fence the animals in, and there is no development in the area. No opportunities are being created for jobs. We know we can get the money, there is plenty of it. We can do this by taxing some of these luxury items. We can reduce our Ministers to their sizes. We can get all the millionaires in this country to behave themselves, so that we are able to get the money we want. It is all right to reduce this Sh. 24 tax and tell the people they do not have to pay it. However, my brothers' sons are still at home, they have no jobs, they do not pay taxes. Do I care?

We all know that when you buy your son a shirt, you say, "But if I had bought the shoes to go with this shirt, really he would have been a very smart gentleman. I don't have the shoes." Now the shirt does not help.

An hon. Member: Are you serious?

Mr. Ngala-Abok: I am very serious, and if you are not serious, that is up to you. If the Kipsigis are not serious, that is up to the Kipsigis.

Hon. Members: Address the Chair.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to discuss this question of the removal of Sh. 24, the lowest tax. All sub-chiefs must be dismissed; what jobs will they do? In fact, the Administration has been doing one single good job, and that is the collection of taxes, but if most of these people in the rural areas are not going to pay that tax, what are the sub-chiefs going to be paid for? Their salaries must now go for the benefit of the people. They should be removed, and we will use the Chadunguel, the elders, because they are not paid, they do very well, they are very respected. We should use them, and if a sub-chief was running two clans, one sub-chief must be removed, so that one sub-chief runs five, six or several clans. The others will have no jobs, and we are now going to rely on goodwill. Moreover, what we shall need from the people is only the locational rates, and these can be collected quite easily through the elders and other machinery. Therefore, the sub-chiefs have to be removed. While removing them, it should be seen that educated men are employed. Some of the sub-chiefs who do not read, who do not listen to the radio, are sabotaging the political machinery in this country. They are not moving with the current world. You meet a sub-chief, he cannot read, he has not heard the radio, he talks about witchcraft, and he talks to people who do not know anything. He believes in bribery. This is the kind of thing we want to avoid. We are developing. Some people may say I am catering for unemployment, but this is not so. If someone turns out to be unemployable because he cannot march with the times, that is not my problem. Therefore, the kind of sub-chief who cannot read or write is an embarrassment, a frustration, and his employment is a retrograde step in this country. Such people should be eliminated. What about some of these men who have passed Kenya Preliminary Examination who do not have jobs? They could do the work of the sub-chiefs, and it would reduce their numbers. Right now, the large part of the population in the rural areas are not going to pay tax. Therefore, what is the point of having a sub-chief?

An hon. Member: Law and order.

An hon. Member: Harambee projects.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Some say Harambee schools, but hon. Members know that sub-chiefs, district officers, chiefs, district commissioners, if not community development officers, do not contribute. When they come there, they need food, they look like lords, they drink beer, but they never contribute. They get money from Nairobi here, but they never give any of it away. I have attended all these Harambee projects. Which sub-chief gives money? Therefore, remove them, employ instead intelligent men, and ask them to do another job.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I must thank the Government for having built a magnificent hospital in Homa Bay, which is now pretty well ready. I would like Government to come and get it opened. It is very good, and it will help my district, and I would like the Minister for Health now to come and open it and make sure that Government is doing something about it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the County Council of South Nyanza is in the red, as you know, and at the end of this month money will not be paid to its workers and even to teachers. We have not heard any concrete proposal from the Government, and I am now asking Government to write-off the Sh. 3 million which is outstanding to be paid by the county council, because they are unable to find the culprits, the people who should be blamed.

in being, I think it will remain, and it will depend on the location as to what that locational rate is. This has to be explained very well, that although as from January 1st, next year, the people will not have to pay the Sh. 24 tax, but they will still have to pay the rate for their locations. This must be made abundantly clear, because there is some confusion. This was not catered for in the speech.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what replacement is there financially for those services which were being met by this tax? Is there any alternative? The Minister said this was not going to reduce our revenue very much, but he did not say that those desperate districts which are already broke were going to get some kind of taxes to meet the services which were paid for by the ordinary man before. I must be very clear on this. I support the removal of this tax, but are we going to cease serving our people after it has been removed? Our people are grateful for this, but what about the services which our people were getting as a result of this kind of tax? The Government must explain this very clearly.

I would like to propose that, at the same time as removing the Sh. 24 tax the lower rate people were having to pay, it would be better to increase by 20 cents beer, Guinness, whisky, Tusker, Pilsner, all drinks. These are luxury items which we can do without, and yet still exist. These are pleasurable items which we buy because we have the money. Why not increase the tax on this kind of thing, so that we can pay back for the money which is not to be collected from our people as a kind of relief? Our people are poor, but these people who drink a lot of Tusker through the night, whisky, Guinness, gin, Pilsner, and so on, should find that these things are more highly taxed than they are now.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have a problem on our roads, and I feel that if these drinks were expensive to buy it would help. There would not be so many people going to prison for ten years because they made a mistake. A person is given a lot of leisure; he is taxed too heavily, and then he is sent to prison for ten years and he is fined Sh. 10,000. A driver, a man who earns Sh. 20 in two weeks, is fined Sh. 10,000. Our Government would have done much better in seeing that our economy progressed if they had increased the taxes on these items which are not so essential in human life, these things of leisure, as I have mentioned. In addition, Government could have decreased the tax on a box of matches, on sugar, salt, meat, paraffin and soap. The man, the husband, has been relieved of the necessity of paying the Sh. 24, he usually pays by the year, but a woman stays at home, and she has no income but she needs salt every day. She needs a box of matches, meat, inevitably she will need paraffin, soap. These are the kinds of things which are really touching, and the woman wants to see that the small things she has to go and buy decrease in price.

An hon. Member: Housewife.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: It does not matter. You can call her housewife, you call her woman. I am talking in a language which can be understood by all the Members. It does not matter if you say housewife or woman, because I am now directing my ideas to a person who is in the kitchen, whether woman, housewife, girl. All these unmarried chaps spend money all the time, and they would like to see themselves relieved of this burden. Perhaps we could instead tax other things. Take the beautiful suits you see. Why do we not increase their prices? It is not necessary that I wear a suit costing Sh. 500, when I can get one for Sh. 180. It is not necessary for me to buy a Mercedes for about Sh. 60,000, when I can as well use a Peugeot for about Sh. 24,000.

These leisure items could have been taxed by our Government. There is all the money in this country, and we can tax these leisure items, reduce ourselves to the right size, and let the poor man find work.

Mr. Shikuku: Point of information.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Not necessary, Sir. I know you will move your ideas. You usually do. You are very capable. Let me go ahead.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, our Budget today is lacking in that there are so many luxury items which are not highly taxed in this country, and as a result the poor men do not get jobs. We could increase the tax on Mercedes cars, Toyotas, and all these large cars in order to create jobs for our people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when looking through the Development Estimates, I find there is £10 for Lambwe Development. How many pounds? £10. If they were my students they could have followed me. £10 for Lambwe Development. In terms of shillings, how much is that? Mr. Assistant Minister, do not look at me. We need to create jobs for people in the Lambwe Valley, but putting aside £10 for the development of that area—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): On a point of information, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would just like to tell the hon. Member that the £10 shown in the Development Estimates does not indicate that it is £10 which is to be

[Mr. Ngala-Abok]

It is like you lending somebody money, he leaves a widow and there is nobody to pay it. We do not care, we want it. We want our services to be run properly, and I want Government to work on concrete proposals to give money to that district.

With those few remarks, I wish to support the Budget.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker—

Mr. Ngala-Abok: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is it in order for a Member for Buret to allege that I said we want free things? Is it in order? Is it in order to change my speech for the hon. Biy to say that we want free things, is it in order? This is contradicting my statement.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I do not think he said anything about free things. He was asking, he was making a very good contribution to this debate. That is all.

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I associate myself with the contents of this year's Budget and I believe that the people have been really helped by the way it was calculated. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Minister himself made it very clear to the people that this year it is a go ahead Budget and that is accepted because of the inspirations contained therein.

First, the question of reducing the G.P.T., especially for the lower paid people, is welcome to the country, and although there are many people that go round preaching and sowing seeds of discord, pretending that they are leading other people by saying that it is an election campaign Budget, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I feel that such people should get out of their cocoons and live with the people and know how happy people are in the country at present.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the only thing that I should like to warn the Government on, by so reducing the taxes, is that we are going to have very many lazy people and if the Government does not put a stronger rule, especially right down to the villages, we will have many thieves, because, in many cases, those people who pay their taxes, graduated personal tax, toil and labour so that they can pay their taxes. Now that there is nothing to pay, why should I work, why should I toil? Why should I do that? Some of them do not care about shoes, and some of them do not care about shirts, and you see the strong enough and they may refuse to work although they have children, and even they may not care about their children going to school. This is the development that our Government should press on. This is the right time that our Government moved up and said that primary education was compulsory, for if it is made compulsory, people will work to educate their children, but if we say we have reduced the taxes full stop, these lazy people will not do very much.

Another point, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is on the county councils. The county councils have been trying to thrive on very little money. I would like the Government to take over all the county councils in this country immediately. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is now the right time that the county councils were taken over by the Government, because one thing, all of them—except a few if there are any—are in the red, and this tax reduction will put them further into debt and they will become bankrupt. Most of the chairmen have been irresponsible and the employees of the county councils have been so irresponsible that it is impossible for them to function and give the taxpayers their rights as they are expected to do. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I submit that the Government should take over all the county councils now and take over all the payments of salaries to teachers, and take over all the supplies of books to the schools, and leave the county councils the minimum of control of their own areas. Leave them all the small dispensaries to run, but take over the clinics and take over the health centres, and also all the big services the county councils are unable to perform.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the dispensaries, as the hon. Minister has suggested, are small enough and they can be catered for with the little money the county councils will be having. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is very embarrassing to find that after a community have engaged themselves in building a self-help health centre, they cannot open it because the county council has no money. It is very embarrassing to find that some people in a district or in a location have been building a secondary school and after finishing the building, they cannot open the school because of the council's inability to find the funds to run that school. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is now killing the idea of self-help in most areas and I think it is high time that the Assistant Minister thought of increasing the money to be voted for self-help groups.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the question of the administration being able to control the self-help schemes or being able to control the work of the county councils is out now because, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you find that in most cases, the chiefs and sub-chiefs have become the tools of politics. After they have become tools of politics, Mr. Deputy Speaker, they are not helping their country at all, because it is no use having Members of Parliament in one district being able to gain favour with the district commissioner or the provincial commissioner while others have not gained the same favour. When I want to have my self-help group meeting, I find that I invite the district commissioner and in many cases he will not turn up. If he hears however, that So-and-so is having a self-help group meeting, he goes there like a jet going to build him in that area. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this question of the administration becoming tools of politics, I think should be taken away immediately and they should be taught better lessons and be told that they are the administrators and not politicians.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am not saying this about a specific provincial commissioner or on a specific district commissioner, but the fact is that this money which the Treasury votes and gives to the Ministry of Social Services for self-help is not enough. The way it is shared, is out of proportion kabisa. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there should be a committee in a district which should be able to share this money. Not just getting this money and handing it over to one person who can go spending it as an administrator who can go spreading it to the people of the areas which he thinks are gaining favour in that area or which he thinks that he is in good terms with a Member of that area, while other places stay stagnant without any development.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is now two years since the Minister for Finance imposed the cess, called an export tax, on coffee. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this has angered the whole country, and this money has been collected illegally by the Ministry and it has been an illegal collection of money from the people and now is the time that they should decide to abolish that tax. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we expected in this Budget that the Minister would announce the abolition of that tax they call the export tax on coffee, because during the time when this export tax was imposed on coffee growers, the coffee crops was big enough and there were good prices in the country which could be taxed. Now Mr. Deputy Speaker, after having so much coffee berry disease, we had a very small coffee crop, we had very low grades and the prices were very low and then a coffee farmer is taxed like that. It is impossible for him to make ends meet. Mr. Deputy Speaker, here one day we passed a Motion which was almost unanimously passed that these things must go, but the Minister turned a deaf ear to this—really deaf—and I think that he is really deaf for he has done nothing about it. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the people of these areas which grow coffee at present, feel that although there is that question of reduction, in taxes, they have been mistreated and it is very unfair to them because they still have the same number of coffee trees after being deducted the export tax. He is there also to be assessed for graduated personal tax on the number of the coffee trees he owns. That is already double taxation. The county council has fixed a cess on coffee and this is very high indeed. Now this man is being taxed three times.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are many other incidental expenses, there is the coffee co-operative union; there is the co-operative society cess which he has to pay. Then he has the high cost of maintaining the coffee shamba. Wages have gone up and the price of coffee is low. Everything really has gone up, manure has gone up, labour, everything has gone up, but the coffee prices have gone down. This should have been a good reason for the Minister to abolish that export tax and leave the coffee grower to pay just the few other taxes that exist. Mr. Deputy Speaker, as a result, the coffee industry is now being ruined and there are very few people in this country who will tell you now they are prepared to grow any coffee at all because it has become an uneconomic crop, in fact, the handling charges themselves exceed the payment that the coffee growers are getting.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not want to go into all the subjects that the Minister is interested in the Budget, but I am just appealing to the Ministry concerned to be more vigilant and to work harder because naturally, the self-help groups in this country have come up just like mushrooms, and yet the money they thought of giving the self-help groups is just not enough; they should tour the country more and especially the Assistant Minister, who is sitting there, has not toured anywhere, apart from driving between Nairobi and Mombasa and then you know what happens when he gets to Mombasa. Instead of that, he should tour the up-country districts since he has the portfolio of being the Assistant to the great Prime Minister of money. He should take the chance, and I invite him to my area. He is invited everywhere, especially as he does not have a constituency, but he should be able to visit everywhere without any hindrance. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think if he would take more time to visit the people then he would learn more and more, and I hope he will accept my statement here without any argument.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in view of those difficulties, and in view of the fact the Minister is listening and understanding as we speak, I hope that with proper co-ordination we can get rid of these difficulties which are arising just now.

[Mr. Mbogoh]

I want to say, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that the unemployment situation in Kenya is very serious especially for the school leavers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is the time that the Government should be voting money to alleviate this, and we want the measures to be announced here in this House as to what the Government is doing to make sure that this question of unemployment is tackled. Let us not just tackle it with our mouths, let us not tackle it as a campaign, let us tackle it as an opposition gimmick—we should tackle it as a serious problem that is facing this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Motion.

Mr. Gatuguta: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am happy that I have been given an opportunity to speak on this very important debate.

There is nothing much I can say about the Budget itself because as far as I am concerned, and I think I am speaking the minds of very many people in the country, this has been a very fair Budget and this has been the trend all the time—our Government has been trying to find money for the development of this country without taxing the common man. I think this is a very important aspect. In some countries it is the common man who bears the burden of raising the funds for taxation, but in our country, the Government has been trying to find money from sources which are not affecting the ordinary man. The taxation has been mainly on the people who can afford to pay; this should be the trend and in this respect I congratulate the Minister for Finance and the Government for the measures they have taken. I wish particularly to mention the fact that the people appreciate very much that the Government has decided to forego the Sh. 24 taxation per year. The people who have been paying this tax mainly are the unemployed people who are poor and they have been finding it difficult to pay this taxation and they have been harassed by the chiefs and the sub-chiefs if they could not afford to pay this. I think that this is a very great relief and a very great wisdom on the part of the Government to decide to abolish this taxation. I am not going to think that this is a wrong step taken by the Government—I think it is the right one because, after all, the responsibility of the Government, all the time, is to look after the welfare of the people and therefore the abolition of this taxation was overdue. I was amazed to hear my friend, Mr. Ngala-Abok, suggesting that because the taxation of Sh. 24 has been abolished, the Government is therefore going to dismiss all the sub-chiefs because they will have no work. Surely, this is a very funny conclusion, because the most important job of a chief or a sub-chief is not merely collecting tax. There are other great responsibilities, for instance, I would say that the most important function of these people is to maintain law and order, which is very important, not merely taxation. I am sure I do not think this is fair.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I wish to say something which concerns most Members of this House, and also outside this House, and that is the county councils. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the county councils in Kenya, particularly in Kiambu, are running in very great difficulties and I think that if things are not reviewed carefully by the Government, this country is going to suffer a great deal. The county council's estimates are not being approved by the Ministry of Local Government, and I know that in Kiambu, the county council's estimates have not been approved for at least three or four years. Why? Every time they get difficulties in getting their estimates approved, for instance, this year they have been told to use the estimates of last year, and last year they were told to use the estimates of the previous year and so on. Therefore, the position is that the county council cannot provide money for development. I want to say this very seriously now, because I know that in my constituency a lot of development has been held up. This is because the estimates of the county council have not been approved. The people of my constituency, particularly, have built a self-help maternity ward at Wangigi and have completely furnished it, and now everything is ready. However, because the estimates of this year have not been approved, and although the county council had provided for two midwives, this maternity ward is not functioning now. Is this the sort of development that we have been asked to have? We would like the Ministry concerned to tell us why this development has been held up. The President of this country has told the people to help themselves. We have accepted his call, only to find that there are some people who are not interested in what we are doing. What is wrong in the Ministry of Local Government? I am told that there are some financial advisers in that Ministry who are not interested in our development and want to hold back the development of this country. Why are they not being Africanized? We would like the Minister for Local Government to tell us.

What is the Ministry of Health doing in the case of Wangigi Maternity Ward? This maternity ward was opened by the Minister himself in the month of April and this is the end of June, the maternity ward has been locked—after the people have been able to build it themselves. Surely, there must be something wrong in the Government machinery and we want it to be corrected, because the people are being frustrated. The people have been told to do this, that and the other, and after that they find that the Government is not responding.

Another thing is about Harambee schools. There are many such schools in the country which have been built by the efforts of the people, and particularly in my own constituency there are a number of them and we find that the Government does not support these Harambee secondary schools. I want to thank the Minister for Education because he has been able to take over one or two of my Harambee secondary schools. However, this is not enough because I have more of these schools. We want them to be taken over by the Government because after building them the public are finding it extremely difficult to raise money for the recurrent expenditure, and the only alternative left to the school management is to raise the school fees, in order to find money for this expenditure.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

If the school fees are raised too high, then, of course, the result is that parents are going to find it extremely difficult to pay the school fees for their children in these Harambee schools. This is another aspect of our country's problem, which I would urge the Government to draw its attention to and to try to solve.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the other point I would like to raise is the question of people living in emergency villages. I would urge the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, very strongly, to look into this question. Every year, I speak about it, and I am going to continue talking about it until this problem is solved. Now, the people in my constituency, at a place called Ringuti and Ruthigiti, their houses in these emergency villages are falling down now and the people who own this land cannot allow them to build new houses. I have brought this to the attention of the Ministry of Lands and Settlement, but nothing has been done. What is going to happen to these families now? These people are now overcrowded. If one house falls down, they crowd into another small house, and when that one breaks down, they move into another one. You can find 15 families living in one house. Surely, this is a problem which must be solved. I would like the Minister for Lands and Settlement, and I am going to make a personal invitation to him, to visit these areas to see the conditions in which the people are living. Why should we—and I have asked this question before—allow one person to own 1,000, 2,000 acres of land when other people do not even have an inch to live on? We cannot allow this situation to continue in a country like this. There is no point of Members shouting because they think I am fighting for my people to go to their land, but the point is this: we are trying to create one nation for all Kenyans. Therefore, we must look after the interests of every person. There is no question of feeling tribalistic or any such thing. We are dealing with a human problem. If a Member of this House is human at all, then he will listen carefully to this problem and help to solve it. So, Mr. Speaker, I would like the hon. Members, when they speak, to speak on this problem from a human point of view. I would like to invite some of the Members here to come and see the problem that I am talking about. It is very, very serious. So I wish that the Minister for Lands and Settlement will really look into this problem. I hear that all the time they are starting these settlement schemes, here and there. We do have these settlement schemes, but I do not know whether the Minister gives priority to the people being settled in these areas. There are those who have hardships, there are those who are in more difficulties than others. So I would like the Minister concerned to look into this.

The other point, Sir, that I wish to bring forward, is the question of roads. Roads in our country are very, very important. Without proper communications the country's development is likely to be held back for many years. Now, Sir, in my area—the one I represent—we have this problem and I know that this problem affects other areas as well. Our roads are very bad and there is no point in the Minister for Works telling us that that is the responsibility of the county councils. We know that the county councils have no funds to do these jobs and we know also, as I have said it before, that the Minister for Local Government has not been approving the estimates, even where the county councils are in urgent need for money. I know of a case where the County Council of Kiambu had provided estimates for the making up of two roads to all-weather road standard. But these estimates have never been approved and that is why we have all these problems. We would like the Minister for Works to look into the problems of communications, roads especially, because the good roads that we have are only the main highways from here to Mombasa, to Nanyuki, from here to Kisumu and such places. Fair enough because these roads are important and we like them to be maintained. However, the Ministry should not be satisfied with only improving the main highways and leaving the other roads to the county councils; that is not good. It is time that this Ministry should now tell the county councils, "These roads will now be taken over from you to be maintained by the Central Government". If that is not to be the case, then the county councils should be given more money by way of grants-in-aid for the building of roads. During the rainy weather, Sir, it is extremely difficult for our people to transport their foodstuff from their areas to Nairobi. Nairobi exists because of the villages that we represent, which are four or five miles away. Without them bringing in the vegetables, the potatoes and all these things, Nairobi would not be able to develop. So we would like the Government to turn their attention to the question of roads in the countryside and make the necessary improvements there.

Then I would like to say something about the teachers. I know that this matter is now under review by the Government and that there was intention to have a strike by the teachers recently; this was later withdrawn because of the negotiations which are presently going on. However, I want to say on the Floor of this House that teachers' conditions should be improved. We realize the difficulties that the teachers have, but I know that if the teachers' position is not going to be improved, then our children are going to suffer. Teachers are now losing interest in education. I know some schools where they just roam around because they think that their interest is not being looked after. If we want the standard of our children to improve, educationally, if we want the teachers to be interested in the educational system, then the time has come when we should improve their salaries and conditions of service. It is possible to raise a little taxation, and there are methods of raising taxation without even touching the ordinary man. Let us raise more taxation in order that we will be able to pay the teachers, so that we can make them work with interest. I know we can. There are many ways. Why, for instance, do we not have an airport tax like other countries do? Why do we not have a sales tax? We can raise a lot of money in this country in this way and make it possible for us to pay our teachers better salaries. Why, for instance, do we allow money to be taken away from this country by, say, landlords who own houses, and live in London and New York?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that my time is over. Thank you.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, whilst listening to hon. Members speaking I have very much appreciated the speeches they have made, and I would like to join them now in congratulating my colleague, the Minister for Finance, for having so ably delivered the Budget Speech a few days back.

I have stood to say something in reply to the points made by my friend and former teacher, the hon. Okelo-Odongo, Member for Kisumu Rural. I have had quite a lot of respect for the Member for Kisumu Rural, having been my teacher, but today I feel he lamentably failed to express to this House the knowledge he has in economics. He tried to prove some very mysterious points here.

Sir, the first point he raised was in connexion with the abolition of the Sh. 24 graduated personal tax. He said it was quite a minor thing, like a speck of sand falling into the sea. But we should not forget, Mr. Speaker, that it was only on the 20th of October 1967, that His Excellency the President announced measures for reducing the tax for the lower-income group people: this was the Sh. 24 they had to pay. After two years or so, this has been followed up by the fact that it has been completely abolished. Now, this particular aspect should be appreciated. The hon. Member should have appreciated that it was in 1967 that Mzee proposed this and it is this year that the Minister for Finance has done away with this payment.

Another point the hon. Member raised, and it has apparently been raised in the KPU statement appearing in the Press today, was the question of unemployment. He says there really was no increase of any kind to relieve the situation of unemployment. We know, Sir, and the Government is aware, that unemployment is quite a serious problem. It is a serious problem not only to this country but to all developing countries. I would also go further and say that it is even a problem in most developed countries. However, Sir, it is not true the Government, or the Budget, does not provide measures to relieve unemployment. In the statement which was given to the Press by the KPU—I am sure the hon. Member for Kisumu Rural was a party to this statement—it is said that the Minister for Finance did not suggest any ways and means for alleviating the problem of unemployment. Sir, on looking at the development book—and I have done that very carefully—I have found that in Nyanza Province alone, leaving out Kisii District (and by Nyanza Province here I mean Luo districts) out of the total amount of money that has been allocated to these three districts some are intended to start projects that will alleviate unemployment the total sum of money is £1.2 million. This is the amount set out in this book. This is for [The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] three districts alone. There are projects like building of the new district headquarters in Siaya District, where my hon. friend comes from, building of fisheries offices; installations for the eradication of the tsetse fly, which will cost about £73,000. This money will go to start projects which are meant to bring about unemployment relief. Here we are being told by the KPU that we have not done anything in this Budget to alleviate the situation of unemployment.

They have also said that the Central Bank has not directed— That is in the same statement, and with your permission I will read:—

“Mr. Gichuru said that the commercial banks have been urged to make every effort to increase their volume of loaning to the people”.

The comment they make is:—

“In fact, the Minister was admitting that the Central Bank had failed to give some directives to commercial people to lend to the local people”.

With all due respect, Mr. Speaker, the Central Bank cannot give a directive unless it guarantees to write-off those loans. This is the kind of cheap statement which I call baseless. It should have gone on further to say whether there is money in the Central Bank of Kenya which can be used to give the necessary guarantees—guarantees for money given to the wananchi by these banks—and also whether the Central Bank is able to stand as guarantor to write off those loans in case they are not repaid. This kind of thing cannot happen. I am sure that my former teacher, the hon. Member for Kisumu Rural, is a party to this because he is the financial adviser to the Opposition; but he has made a small mistake this time by trying to produce very cheap propaganda.

Another point raised was that the Minister drew attention to the national debts. He said that by the end of April, this year, Kenya had obtained about £50 million from the countries mentioned in the statement and that it was going to look for another £50 million and, therefore, the national debt of this country stood at £100 million. This, therefore, according to the KPU, makes Kenya a bankrupt country because the revenue estimates for 1969/70 is £73 million. Sir, what kind of logic that is, I do not know.

Let us take, for example, that the hon. Member for Gem has obtained a loan from some firm which he has to repay in five years, say, a loan of Sh. 100,000. In his pocket, at this time, he has Sh. 5,000 by way of salary. Now, does this make the Member for Gem broke, or bankrupt just because he has to repay a loan in five years' time? Sir, this book states clearly where the revenue is going to be obtained for the next financial year. The revenue summary states what it is. On this page it is not shown where the Government is going to borrow any money to make up the amount of £73 million. This is the revenue we are going to receive this year. The loan given by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United States of America and so on is lent to this country for development over a period of 20 years. Does that compare with money which we are going to use for only one year? How does that cause this country to be bankrupt? This is cheap propaganda that has apparently been issued by the Opposition in order to mislead this country. I am sure people are reasonable and they, after reading this statement, will prove that the Opposition are actually promising Utopia. We are being told that, probably in a few months' time, heaven will open and from there will fall manna for us to collect. This is not what is going to happen.

Turning to the question of graduated personal tax, which has been remarked upon by the Member for Embu East, the hon. Mbogoh, and also the Member for Homa Bay, I think it is only natural that there will have to be some consequential adjustments after the tax for a particular income group has been removed. The Government is aware of this and is preparing for the consequential adjustments which will mean quite a number of things being done away with from the county councils. This will mean quite a high degree of assistance in the form of grants from the Central Government to the local governments. We are aware of this. We could not just remove this taxation from the county councils, say, the County Council of Homa Bay, and leave it to be in a redder colour than it is now.

Mr. Speaker, in the Economic Survey the graduated personal tax for all districts in the country only fetches £3.2 million and that is what is being left out. Maybe I should tell the House one small thing which looks strange. In my district, one location—I do not want to mention the name because the hon. Member for the area is not here—last year only 16 people were asked to pay Sh. 48. It was only 16 people who were assessed to pay Sh. 48—16 people only from the one location. 600 were assessed at Sh. 24. If you add this money together you will find a salary of a road foreman; one location paying graduated personal tax for the salary of just one road foreman, in the form of graduated personal tax. I just want to establish a point, that regarding graduated personal tax, there will not be much loss

[The Minister for Information and Broadcasting] of revenue with the steps the Minister for Finance has taken. It should therefore be amended, Mr. Speaker, that the question of having left graduated personal tax in lower income will deplete the country's development.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is one thing also to which I wanted to draw the attention of the hon. Members, and that is the question of unemployment. If we go to the economic survey book, page 154, we will find that those of us, and I am included in this group, who speak of unemployment, have failed to notice one thing. We have failed to notice that in 1966, just as long ago as two years, the number of—this is on page 60 now—our youngsters who did the Cambridge School Certificate Examination was about 8,000. Two years after that, that is last year, 1968, the number of those that sat the School Certificate was 17,000. This, Mr. Speaker, is three times more than the number that had sat for this examination two years before. Now, in this short space, the amount of development that would produce jobs for these youngsters could not have expanded threefold, it could not possibly have expanded that much, and this is a fact that we must bring forward. The growth of our educational side of development is faster than the growth of our economical development which would create jobs.

Now, the hon. Member behind me might probably suggest, as he is trying to, that we should plan to cater for this. One cannot do this, Mr. Speaker, unless one plans to leave out education completely because we, as the Government and as a country, have to educate our people. However, the fact that Kenya is not an industrial country, as other countries, makes this particular matter very bitter and painful. It is painful to the Government, it is painful to the youngsters looking for jobs, it is painful to their parents.

Mr. Karungaru: What are you doing about it?

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is asking what I am doing, but I think he knows what we are doing because that was explained this morning in Kanu Parliamentary Group meeting.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I would also like to state a small thing that has been raised by the hon. Member for Kisumu who talked about sugar in Muhoroni. Sir, it is not right to accuse this Government for not having assisted the Muhoroni sugar growers. This people, I must say, are lazy by nature; the people of Muhoroni. The President directed that the whole army should be taken into this place to assist these people to transport their cane to the factories—there are three factories in this area—but, Mr. Speaker, what did we find? The people were unable to cut the cane and put it on the lorries. They expected the army, which had gone to help them, to cut the cane from the shambas, to carry it onto the lorries and transport that to the factories. Mr. Speaker, this was very unfair indeed to the army and to the gesture the Kenya Army had given to go and help these people. If people are lazy, are we in this House going to move them to work? Are we going to be told by the Opposition that money is in Muhoroni and that sugar is rotting while this is because people are too lazy to pick up this cane and take it to the factories? We are not going to have this done or do that, Mr. Speaker.

The other point that was raised by the hon. Member was that he put the breakdown of employment in the offices by races or salary income by races. It is not for me to say, but the evidence is in this country, that the other races—those are the Asians and the Europeans—have been (if not eliminated completely) eliminated to a very great extent as workers in many offices, as compared with some time back. The breakdown that the hon. Member was giving in percentage was calculated very cleverly and intended to mislead the country, Mr. Speaker.

My last point, Mr. Speaker, is on the question the hon. Member raised concerning brewing of gin; we know that we make—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, should we leave that to go unchallenged, namely that the hon. Member's figures which were given here were calculated to give a wrong impression? Is he not imputing an improper motive when a Member might have given it in good faith not calculating to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku is quite right. It is all right to say that an hon. Member is saying things which will have a misleading effect, but to attribute to him the actual motive of misleading is contrary to Standing Orders.

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting (Mr. Osogo): Mr. Speaker, I withdraw that remark and say it was only a terminological inexactitude, on the part of the Member who stated it.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. I will begin with the issue which we could have raised today but, unfortunately, it was no longer an urgent matter. However, since it is my right, when commenting on the Estimates that I can speak on matters which I think affect our nation, I do not think, Mr. Speaker, you will have any objection.

I feel that the question of the strike in the East African Community is causing great concern to the people of Kenya and to the people of East Africa. Firstly, I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that the dispute bringing the threatened Railways strike is very simple. First, the dispute existed; second, the dispute was reported to the Ministry of Labour, and according to the Trade Disputes Act of Kenya and the Community, the East African Industrial Court has its own procedure. This having been reported, it was agreed that the machinery was exhausted and the matter was referred to the East African Industrial Court. Now, Mr. Speaker, the case has been heard and strike action is legal according to the East African Treaty, Article 85 (ii), which says: "The East African Industrial Court shall exercise the powers referred to in Article 84 of this Treaty in accordance with the principles laid down from time to time by the Authority." These principles are given to the Authority by the Secretary-General of the East African Community. Now, in Tanzania the strike is not legal, they have declared it as an illegal strike permanently; and in Uganda they are moving on that way. We, in Kenya, are democratic and whenever we tend to go lower than we have grown, as trade unions and whatnot are concerned, we should know that such a tendency is tantamount to playing with a very hot and dangerous situation.

That being the case, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Secretary-General, in my view, has not prepared this, and this is his action, not him. He has failed to try and give the direction required in order to give guidelines, and so our economy is being crippled. This, in my view, is a great danger, and if I had any opportunity I could have said that the Secretary-General has failed and as such—I mean the Secretary-General of the East African Community—he should resign forthwith.

The second point I want to raise, Mr. Speaker, is that our Ministry of Labour is not doing much. I do not have any feelings of anything else and no one can accuse me of anything, and I have said so even when I was still a labour leader. I think we have to separate the relationships of the people at the top in the Ministry. We cannot have a Permanent Secretary and a Minister being cousins and running a Ministry of such a sensitive nature properly. Those two people come from one clan in Kitui, or something like that, and they do not care what is happening. There is somebody misadvising somebody and another misadvising another. I think the Ministry of Labour needs a proper reshuffle so that they get proper people to run that Ministry. The hon. Minister and his Permanent Secretary have completely failed because they do not know what they are doing.

I want to go on with this particular point, Mr. Speaker. We have a lot of situations which can be solved; we have a lot of strikes which can be avoided by the Minister without any difficulty. We have a lot of things which can be done if we have a capable Minister to run this Ministry. He has been given a law under section 20 of the Trade Disputes Act, and it gives him powers.

"Where it appears to the Minister that there is an actual or threatened strike or stoppage of work arising out of a trade dispute in any section of industry and the Minister is of the opinion that the matters to which the trade dispute relates have been settled by an agreement or an award, and a substantial proportion of employers and a substantial proportion of employees in that section of industry are either directly or through their respective organizations of employers and employees party to such agreement or award, the Minister may, by order, require the parties of such dispute to comply with the agreement or award and . . ." It goes on. We have had a lot of threatened strikes in an industry where agreement has been reached with another industry similar to that industry. This law gives the Minister powers to compel that particular industry to do things. We have had the domestic hotels, and other industries, which are completely similar and the Minister has been unable to compel the other employers, using these powers which have been given to him. We have the problem every day because the Minister is unable to do anything. How can we continue like that? We cannot suffer because we want to see the Minister going to Geneva and coming back and thanking everybody. We are not prepared to have these things continue.

I feel, Mr. Speaker, that this has got to be taken very carefully. We have now had all these strike threats and I have all the statements here. The Railway Union has already threatened a strike, but we have an agreement which was made and signed by the hon. Mr. Odera-Jowi, I think, and this agreement said that the matter was being referred to the Industrial Court. If the hon. Members want to see this agreement, I will leave it here. Here is a Press statement outlining the meeting which took place on February 7th, 1969, presided by Mr. Odera Jowi, to settle this dispute in the Railways. He has done nothing. Here is the statement. The Minister for Labour in Kenya has done nothing—the Ministry has done nothing and now we are faced with all these threats. This is one statement which can be laid on the Table.

(The hon. Member laid the paper on the Table)

We have a statement, Mr. Speaker, issued by the Railway African Union supporting the Community; these common service workers. However, employees of the Community went on strike today, although the Minister said here that the Secretary-General has announced that the strike is called off. The information I got later, however, was that the airport was still having difficulties, and many other places. We will see about that tomorrow.

We have this big union of the railways supporting this and we are doing nothing at all; the Minister is doing nothing; the Permanent Secretary is away and trying to do his best in the governing body, and that is all. These are the statements coming out, and so on. Something has got to be done, Mr. Speaker. This I also lay on the Table.

(The hon. Member laid the paper on the Table)

I will also say, Mr. Speaker, that we have the notification of the Industrial Court of East Africa. For this you do not need to have the consent of the two parties because the Minister for Labour can refer it; if one party agrees to go to the Industrial Court, you do not need to consult the other party. Why has the Minister not done anything. This is a form which does not need to be laid on the Table because it is only a form which deals with this question.

Now, I am calling on this House to ask the Minister to do something, and if not, to resign. If possible, the Secretary-General of the East African Community should resign forthwith so that we get a better man; I do not mind even if he is from Uganda.

Now, I would like to come to another point. I was reading the Estimates and I saw that the Ministers have been allocated a lot of money. I must say I am not asking for anything. We have seen ourselves, that usually His Excellency the President calls us to State House on occasions and we have tea there and so on; but some Ministers are being given money for entertainment and I would like to know who they entertain and when. Our Vice-President was appointed in 1967 and up to now I do not know where he lives myself. No Member knows. They are being given entertainment allowance—but what for? When are they going to entertain? I feel that this entertainment money should be reduced so that it helps the question of unemployment.

I want to go to the question of immigration. The other day one hon. Member condemned immigration officers, but I would like to say that I am here to defend them because the whole problem has nothing to do with them. The whole problem is caused by the Minister responsible for Immigration Department and his Permanent Secretary. The immigration officers are doing what they can and, in fact, they should be congratulated. Let us appoint an inquiry and find out who the people are who are getting citizenship now, and who is giving them letters of recommendation so that they can get citizenship. We will be surprised. I challenge the Government, or the Minister, to appoint a board of inquiry to see who is giving the foreigners recommendation letters and thereby enabling them to get citizenship even though they never applied in time. We know who is doing this. Therefore, I think the hon. Member who is attacking the immigration officers is completely wrong.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I realize that the hon. Member has nearly finished his time, but the hon. Member has stated something very important, that Ministers give letters to some people soliciting for citizenship. Could he substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think he actually alleged that. I think he raised the question as to who was giving recommendations, without answering the question. He can do that.

Mr. Lubembe: I am surprised that today the hon. Member is a good defender of the Ministers while he is normally bitterly against them. I never mentioned the Ministers; what I said was that we should have an inquiry to see who is doing it.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which I think should be considered is on the question of appointment of law officers. I want a Solicitor-General to be appointed. We want that post to be brought back. When we had Kitili Mwendwa—our present Chief Justice—there, somebody made him ambassador and he was just running about. Who is drafting our laws? The Attorney-General is busy with political matters and he is always in the homes of the destitutes and in this House on Parliamentary business. Now, who is drafting our laws in this country? We have no Solicitor-General; we only have some officers there. We have some Africans who are very slow, and I feel that an African should be promoted to become Solicitor-General in that particular department. There are young people now in that place doing very well in the City Council and some of them have proved to be very good. The Attorney-General should make one of them the Solicitor-General, and appoint another one to be the Senior State Counsel. We would like, Mr. Speaker, our young men who are coming up out of the law schools to be given opportunities. They should be given good jobs and some of them made magistrates.

I feel, Mr. Speaker, that we need to have African judges appointed. We have had one or two, but let us have more. We have many lawyers here, like hon. Nyamweya, and hon. Wariithi and so on. Somebody should approach them and ask them to become judges in this country. We cannot continue to have foreigners running our Judiciary. I would like to say also that the judges should not be involved in public political statements which they are being pushed into by us, the politicians, I think we should refrain from this. Our judges should be private people who can make decisions when it comes to the question of making them. When you criticize them in public, you are putting them in a place where they have to retaliate and say things they should not say. I think this should be avoided.

I come now to the question of graduated personal tax, Mr. Speaker. I hope the Minister for Finance will ask the Minister who deals with the provinces to see that all the chiefs are told that Sh. 48 is no longer there. I know they are going to say that somebody who should have paid Sh. 24 will now pay Sh. 48. This must be looked into.

I must thank the Minister and say this has been a good Budget.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I support the Budget.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, the scope of a debate on the Financial Statement is very wide, but, after all, it is essentially a question of the economy of the country. I do recommend hon. Members to confine themselves in this debate to matters affecting the economy of the country in some way. There is still a very wide field. For instance, the question of the appointment of judges, important though it may be, is better raised when we come to the Vote for the Judiciary than in the general debate on the Financial Statement. That is just one example of what I think is not really relevant in a debate on the Financial Statement.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am not challenging your ruling, but when we are given Estimates by the Ministers, laying down all the Estimates for each, are we not allowed to comment on them when we are talking on the Budget generally? If I want to comment on the Attorney-General's Chambers, or on the Ministry of Home Affairs, or on the Auditor-General, am I not allowed to do so even before we move to that particular Ministry?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I cannot say you are actually debarred from it, but I would point out that this is a debate on the Financial Statement. It is a debate on the Statement made by the Minister for Finance last week, and it is a Statement which leads up not to the Estimates, but to the Committee of Ways and Means to vote the taxation. You do have your opportunity of discussing the Estimates in detail you see, for 20 days. It is only my recommendation to the House that we could spend our time better in this debate by keeping more closely to the subject of the Financial Statement.

Mr. Karungaru: I would like to join my fellow colleagues who have spoken in this Motion.

Mr. Speaker, I have a few questions to ask the Minister for Finance. I would like to know who advises him because I fail to understand who does so. The Budget of this year reflects a bias in favour of the rich people of this country, and I think that the people who have an interest, perhaps, are the ones who have advised on this. Why I say this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is because I know in the industrial area there is a factory manufacturing native beer, and this native beer is bottled and sold in the countryside, and this beer is not taxed. We should be told about this this afternoon. I asked the Assistant Minister for an explanation the other day on whether in the next Budget this beer was going to be taxed. Now, after having examined this year's Budget I see it has not been taxed at all. I would even say that perhaps the Minister concerned has an interest in the beer.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You have no right to say anything of the sort. You will withdraw it.

Mr. Karungaru: I will withdraw if he has no interest.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! You will not make any allegations of that kind unless you know for certain that he has. You will withdraw it and apologize for making a statement like this, unless you are prepared to substantiate it, of course. You can if you like, substantiate.

An hon. Member: Withdraw it.

Mr. Karungaru: I will not withdraw.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then you will apologize for making such a statement. Mr. Karungaru, you will apologize if you cannot substantiate now.

Mr. Karungaru: I am going to substantiate, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can substantiate? Very well.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I understand the Minister for Finance together with another man run a brewery of native beer in that area, and that they are putting this beer in bottles and selling it like English beer, and this is being sold in the country.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, and how do you know this?

Mr. Karungaru: I know this because I am a Member for Nairobi and I have been going to that place and I was told there he was a member of the firm.

An hon. Member: Who told you?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What is the name of the firm, and who told you? Substantiation means this, you see.

Mr. Karungaru: The firm is making the native beer known as Maratina, and it is in the industrial area.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): What is the name of the firm?

Mr. Obok: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am dealing with a point of order, and I want to hear the name of the firm and the source of the information.

Mr. Karungaru: It is Maratina Industries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is the name of the firm is it? Maratina Industries. You must be very sure of your fact, you know, because I would remind hon. Members of what happened to Mr. Munyasia the other day when he told this House a lie and made up a story. You must be very sure of your facts.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am dealing with a point of order. Will you leave me alone? You interrupt too often on points of order, Mr. Obok.

The name of the firm you say is Maratina Industries?

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I am not actually sure if that is the correct name.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have to be sure of what you are telling this House.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to be surrounded by problems of being asked to withdraw and so forth; so, may I now withdraw and continue making my speech?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is wise, but you must apologize also.

Mr. Karungaru: I apologize.

Mr. Speaker, this kind of beer is putting a lot of people in Nairobi into prison for nothing. Mr. Speaker, nowadays it has become the practice of our Government that, once a person has been arrested, he is not taken before a medical officer for an examination. He is taken to Makadara Court or to any other court and if he denies the charge then he is put in. If he is put in for seven days, Mr. Speaker, when he comes out he finds he has lost his job. Who is going to find employment for this man again?

This is why, Mr. Speaker, many people who are arrested on this charge do admit they have taken drink without any evidence being given. This is very wrong. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if we want to run the country we should be honest in whatever we are doing. There is no reason why we should punish people who have no cause to be punished. Mr. Speaker, in the countryside this kind of beer is given to some people who are rich; and I tell you, Mr. Speaker, many people in our country are going to die because of this beer. I have been in the rural areas and I have seen that many people are now growing thinner and thinner because they drink this so-called Maratina beer, and they do not have food to keep them fit.

I do not know if we have any laboratory which is looking into this kind of thing. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the Minister concerned to tax this kind of beer in order to discourage rather than encouraging it. Mr. Speaker I do not want to dwell on this point any longer and will move to my next one.

Mr. Speaker, I now come to the question of local products, such as cigarettes. Mr. Speaker, we have been told these cigarettes are being used by the common people and so on, and, therefore, they are not worth being taxed.

An hon. Member: Who told you that?

Mr. Karungaru: The Minister for Finance.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I fail to understand the logic behind this. I have heard the other Members asking if we are going to give free education, particularly primary education and so on, but how are we going to do this if the Minister does not look into ways of raising money in order to provide the facilities required? From where are we going to obtain money? Are we going to obtain it from heaven? We must obtain money from the few rich people who are exploiting the poor people. First of all, this kind of cigarette, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for the information of the House, time and again we have been told it brings cancer. If it brings cancer, then is it not likely to finish our people? Why should the Minister for Finance encourage something which is going to kill our people? Does it mean we have more than enough people in our country and therefore we should leave some to die?

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

[Mr. Karungaru]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, now I come to the question of this English beer which is brewed at Ruaraka and other places. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we were told that these people were not going to be taxed so much and that the economy is good. Mr. Deputy Speaker, let us be fair: this kind of beer must be taxed twice more than what it is taxed today because I know the people who have no interest in this company have also an interest in companies in other places like Britain, and the Africans are drinking English beer and they find they are left with nothing, they go naked, they cannot feed their children. This kind of beer has been very much advertised over the Voice of Kenya and this has now become the voice of beer and not the Voice of Kenya, because it is all the time advertising beer. I feel that it is for the Minister for Information to see my logic in advance before I tell him. Actually this is the voice of beer.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I now come to the question of loans. The question of loans is a burning issue and this Government has to be careful. Today, whoever has something has a chance of obtaining a loan from the Government. Whoever does not have anything will die with nothing. It should be the policy of the Government to encourage poor people to come forward and get loans. Who is making this policy? A person who has a building is going to go on acquiring building after building—one day all the buildings in the City of Nairobi will be owned by one man—and that will be an African—and it will be difficult to remove this African because we will not have the excuse of saying that he is a foreigner or a non-citizen and so on. It is high time we corrected this imbalance. If we are not going to correct it in time, Mr. Deputy Speaker— We are now sitting on a fire and one day we will see what will happen.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, the question of distribution of agencies. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we find one man being given distributive agencies for various commodities. He will be given the distribution of sugar, of unga, of wheat, of wines and so on—this will be one man alone.

Hon. Members: Who is he?

Mr. Karungaru: What kind of economic freedom can we enjoy? Nothing. This is because one is not able to get a loan. Why is this?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order!

Mr. Lubembe: This is a matter that can be very explosive. This hon. Member has stated more than twice that one person will one day own the whole of Nairobi buildings. Again he speaks of the same man, or another man, having a lot of distribution contracts covering the whole of Nairobi. Would it not be useful, for that matter, to this House, if he indicated and said which person this was—himself? This is because we do not know. All we assume is that it is him.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Mr. Lubembe, that is not a point of order. Certainly, you are not trying to make a speech out of it. The second point about it could, I think, be substantiated. You say there are cases where one man has a number of distributive agencies. Perhaps you would like to substantiate it. I do not know whether the Government is denying it.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is a terrible mess of the hon. Members who are in this House. Having interrupted the Member who has been speaking, it is the time to start again. There are certain people who have a variety of distributive agencies. They have been given this. Recently in the Nation: "J. M. on the carpet".

An hon. Member: Is he among them?

Mr. Karungaru: What? I am not saying that but I am giving instances of what is happening. He said that he has been given cement—

An hon. Member: Who is J. M.?

Mr. Karungaru: J. M. Kariuki. He has been given cement for distribution. He has also been given the distribution of iron sheets, hardware and some other things. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, that was only one man. I know another man. Rubia, has all these various distributive agencies. He has all these in his godown. If you go there you will find all these variety of things. At the same time, he is a director of so many boards.

An hon. Member: What is wrong with that.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, since, I do not qualify to speak for the tribal breakdown, and at the same time I do not belong to the tribalistic clique, let me, therefore, continue.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, what I would like is that the Government should be the guarantor of loans taken by the poor people, instead of telling them,

[Mr. Karungaru]

"you do not have this or the other, and therefore you cannot get the loan". We, actually do not know where we are heading to. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, at one time a certain Member spoke, allegedly, that some people who had been detained are getting everything. May I take this opportunity and tell the hon. Member that there are so many of these people of whom he was talking about that are going naked and whose children cannot get education. This is because these people cannot get anything in the nature of surety or security. Therefore, the authority which we have been given by the Assistant Minister for Finance for signing is nothing but queer. Nobody will accept that. You should go and change it immediately.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): You received a loan yourself.

Mr. Mate: I would like to make a few comments on the speech which was given by the Minister for Finance. Particularly, I would like to comment on one item which he mentioned, concerning the giving of help by the Government to Harambee secondary schools. He said that in the Development Estimates, the Government is considering giving money to Harambee secondary schools. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I hope that when the Ministry of Education comes to consider this particular issue, they will realize the importance and the size of the problem in as far as Harambee secondary schools are concerned throughout Kenya.

It was the call of the President and the Government of this country, Mr. Deputy Speaker, which made people put up some schools, health centres and so forth. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in many parts of the country, many people have contributed a lot of money for the erection of these schools. Many questions have been asked in this House of the Ministry of Education, as to what the Ministry intended to do to integrate these schools. I was very pleased to hear the Minister for Finance mention this particular item. I hope the Government will take this very seriously.

If I take some of these districts in this country which have put up these schools, which the Government could not have put up by itself, because the money which is at its disposal is limited, but the people have gone out of their way to put up these schools, and they are still continuing to do it even today, I feel very strongly that the Government should realize more and more that this is part and parcel of the educational programme of this country. The Government should, therefore, take them over as soon as possible. They should do so even before they set up their own schools and colleges. I do not know what will happen in future, if the Government continues to plan on its own, programmes of secondary schools and teacher training centres, while on the other hand neglecting or ignoring the Harambee secondary schools. I would like to point out to the Government that they should take stock of these schools all over the country and include them in the development programme; instead of setting up new ones, take them over immediately. This is because, in future, if they cannot get proper teachers, syllabus and the facilities required then, I think, it will be a double loss to the country.

When the Minister mentioned Harambee secondary schools being taken over, I am sure, they will even go out of their way even to borrow money from overseas to take over more and more of these secondary schools and stop opening new secondary schools, the so-called Government ones, forgetting the schools that belong to the people who are taxpayers and citizens of this country. I hope the Government will look at this problem seriously.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the same applies to health centres. I know many. For argument sake I will take my constituency where people have put five self-help health centres. I am glad to say that one of them has just been taken over by the Government and the Meru County Council this year. I hope the others will be taken over when they are ready because there have been plans of filling the gap which the Government could not have filled before.

Both the people and the Government at the local level have been involved. Taking such cases into consideration, I cannot see the reason why the Government should not come forward and plan for new ones instead of taking over the work which has been done by the people themselves. I know that throughout Kenya such projects have been put up. They have been put up with the encouragement and the assistance of the Government or local government bodies, or some other Government agencies. I feel, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that it is high time we integrated these schemes, instead of having competition between the so-called Government effort and so-called people's own effort. I do not see the difference between the Government and the people.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, let me come to the question of roads. If one reads the speech of the Minister, one sees the great roads like, the Great North Road to Addis Ababa, the Tororo Road and the Mombasa Road and some other big roads. What is the position of the small roads throughout the country which require equally important immediate action on the part of the Government for the sake of the people living in a particular area? I was not satisfied, when I was reading through this speech, to see that feeder roads and trunk secondary roads which will be taken over by the Government are too few. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not know what the Government thinks about people who live outside big towns which have obviously good roads. There are the people who live in the countryside who have to market or bring their produce to be marketed in the big markets of Nairobi, Mombasa, Kisumu and Nakuru. This was very disappointing and although the Minister did say that they are negotiating loans for more and better roads, I felt that Government should go deeper into this particular problem because without proper communications there is a lot of difficulty experienced by the country people.

[Mr. Mate]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, at the risk of repeating myself, I would like to mention again the old Embu-Meru Road. I do not mind repeating myself. I did not see anything at all to mention the old Meru Road via Chuka, Igoji and Nkubu, which is mentioned in this particular development programme. When the Minister for Works repeated assurances in this House, when answering questions, I hoped that they are going to do something about it. Last May this Minister for Works came to Meru and, addressing the people in Meru, said that he was going to do something about it. How can they do something about it when they do not put it in black and white in the development programme? Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I do feel that the Government owes a debt to Meru people who are living this particular area. To realize this road, they have already surveyed it, re-aligned it and said that they are going to bring machinery to do it—they say that there are too many bridges to be built and it will cost them a lot of money; It is one of the areas with many rivers and it is fertile. When they talk of bridges, when will there be more bridges? Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I notice that the Ministry of Works did fail to put down the feeder roads that they have been talking about; they know about it and I do not know why they should be so slow. I believe that the need has been proven beyond any doubt as far as they are concerned.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I come to the next question which the Minister mentioned about marketing in general. He mentioned foreign prices of things like wheat, tea and coffee and also other crops like maize. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government should do all it can in order to facilitate easy and better marketing of our crops, especially to internal markets to which the people in the countryside travel, say to Nairobi or other big towns. Our people cannot now transport their vegetables, cannot transport their produce so as to sell in the towns in good time and get some money because of bad roads, bad communications and so forth something should be done because I feel that our internal markets have been fully exploited.

The Government should do more to stimulate the internal markets within the country and maybe outside Kenya as far as local commodities are concerned. They should encourage people of Kenya to buy more of their own goods instead of all the time relying on the external markets which they tell us is failing, and yet we are encouraged to plant more and more of this crop and then if there is no mandate, I do not see where we are heading to. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do think the Ministry of Agriculture and the Ministry of Commerce and Industry should go more and more into this particular problem of marketing.

That goes with roads and communications, and I think it might be very right to go for big money from outside for these projects in big towns like Mombasa, aerodromes and other big projects like hotels in Nairobi. The people from the countryside cannot lodge in these big hotels, they can be put there for the visitors who come there. Our people want to see more projects in their own areas which can improve their economy and their way of life, but not just big hotels in Nairobi, big projects to impress the visitor, while forgetting the ordinary people in the countryside.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to come to another problem, which is the mission hospitals. This is from what the Minister has said and it is in the Estimate. Mission hospitals seem to be deliberately neglected and ignored by the Government. I do not know when Government will ever put up a hospital, say, at Maua or Maseno or Kilgoris for the people when they have no money and these other bodies have done it; and yet the Government continues to refuse to assist them. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appreciate the big projects, like the building of the medical school at Kenyatta National Hospital for the University College, that is quite all right. There are training institutions here and there, but why do they not consider more grants to be given to the mission hospitals, church hospitals, and then Government interest themselves in the management of these hospitals by sending them nurses, doctors and so forth, a closer integration because they will never be able to put up other hospitals instead of those hospitals which in any case are needed. Mr.

[Mr. Mate]

Speaker, Sir, I do feel here the Government, and the Ministry of Health particularly, should go into this particular problem and assist the mission hospitals more. In order to be able to lower the fee they have to judge the people who go to these hospitals, which are available wherever they are, and also to give them equal facilities as at Kenya National Hospital. We have an overcrowding of patients at this hospital because it provides free medicine and also in all other district hospitals. What of the people who live in areas which have only mission hospitals? When will they ever get these facilities? So, Mr. Speaker, Sir, Government should do more towards integration rather than go with the idea of separating the so-called mission hospitals and Government hospitals, at the detriment of ordinary taxpayers. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a matter which the Government and the Ministry of Health should think of very seriously throughout the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, finishing, I would like to pay tribute to the big grant that the Kenya Government gave to the project of expanding and re-modernizing Chogoria Hospital, which I hear that the people all over the area appreciate very sincerely and I hope in future, when the hospital is about to be modernized, the Government will take a keener interest in it as far as the staff is concerned, doctors, midwives and nurses; and also the facilities that are there today and the work they do for the people there, Government will take a greater and keener interest, and should there be any more help needed in future, they will take a keener interest. It is one of these mission hospitals, an old good hospital, which luckily has been saved from the calamities of any other hospital. I saw the East African Standard people were writing in the Standard that hospitals like Maua, in Meru, might be closed, and also other hospitals I hear, in other parts of the country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, on this particular one, Government should take more and more interest and do away with the idea of saying it is a mission school, a Government school, and so forth. Alliance High School is a mission school, Mangu High School is a mission school, Kagumo is a Government school, Machakos is a Government school; what is the difference? Is it in the output of the students who come from these schools or is it the feeling of those people who go to those schools? I think the Government is mistaken and it is too late for them to think in terms of a mission school, a mission hospital, a Government school, a Government hospital—or first schedule, second schedule—because the same people are being served by the same institutions.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I too would like to associate myself with my colleagues who have supported the Minister's speech on the estimate.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, to begin with, I want to thank the Government for the developments which have taken place in my constituency. I would like to thank the Minister for Agriculture for his assistance in getting a water project completed for Tigoi-Kibosiva. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my people are very pleased and are very grateful to the Government for the water. We are also grateful for the tea development which is taking place in certain areas. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would like the Minister to consider sending, to Hamisi, experts who would find out the site which would be suitable for building a factory for tea. That is the thing that is required very much by my farmers and I would like the Minister for Agriculture to consider it very seriously.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we would also like the Kenya Tea Authority to assist in the maintenance of the tea roads in Hamisi, because although we are very grateful for the construction work which has been put into the roads, the roads are getting bad. We would like to urge the Ministry of Agriculture, and the Kenya Tea Authority to continue to assist in the maintenance of the tea roads until such a time as we can look after our roads better. What I feel applies here is exactly opposite to what the Minister replied this afternoon, and that is our farmers, the tea growers, would like the tea price to be increased because they do not get enough from the tea, and as they are not represented very well on the body which is responsible for the fixing of the prices. They would like to urge the Minister—or whoever speaks for the growers on that authority—to see that the price of tea is increased by at least 10 cents. This would give the farmers a bit more money to look after their farms. Also, Sir, it should also be possible for every tea grower—

An hon. Member: Does this apply to Hamisi?

Mr. Godia: This applies, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to the whole country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to the Minister for Agriculture to seriously consider the question of a vegetable factory in Hamisi. We have plenty of vegetables, and each year I have been putting this question to the Ministry of Agriculture, but nothing has been coming forward. Now, I do hope that this year—according to the reply which I received from the Minister for Agriculture—whoever is coming to survey the situation will be able to recommend for a vegetable processing factory to be established in Hamisi so that we can process all the vegetables we grow. These vegetables can be tinned and sent out here for export to other places and countries where there are no vegetables. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have plenty of tomatoes, plenty of onions and all sorts of other vegetables. I would urge the Ministry of Agriculture to see that something is done. I know of other countries where they find it difficult to grow vegetables. Such countries, especially European countries, would benefit very much from our own vegetables from this country. Therefore, the Ministry of Agriculture should encourage this very much.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) took the Chair]

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to appeal to the Minister for Power and Communications to consider extending electricity to every school, to every market in my constituency where this has been applied for.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, regarding teachers: teachers are a very important asset of this country and, therefore, I think the problems facing them should be considered very patiently, knowing that it is a problem which is touchy. We know that many of the Members of this House have been teachers and they are, in fact, interested in teaching. Therefore, any matters regarding teachers in the country ought to get our assistance. This House has recommended the implementation of a unified teachers' service. When we passed that Act—the Act unifying the teaching service—it was hoped that all teachers in this country would be under this Act, but from what we have heard this afternoon it appears now that we have some teachers who are civil servants and others who are members of the Teachers' Service Commission. This principle was objected to by the Kenya National Union of Teachers and I have no doubt that they still object to that principle even now. Therefore, I think the Minister should consider this matter seriously to see that he satisfies the teachers because this brings a lot of confusion and a lot of disagreement among the teachers. All teachers should be under the same employer, and that is the Teachers' Service Commission. Those teachers who are known as civil servants should be automatically seconded to this commission.

An hon. Member: The Teachers' Service Commission is inefficient.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, another hon. Member is suggesting that the Teachers' Service Commission is inefficient and so the Minister should make it efficient. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, all the teachers who are now regarded as civil servants should be seconded to that commission and looked after by that commission. This would be in accordance of the terms of the resolution which we passed in this House some time back. I do think that the Minister should consider this matter seriously to see that the teachers' problems are met.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the teachers were to go on strike this month, but this strike has been postponed until the 10th of next month, and I do hope that the Minister for Education and the Minister for Local Government will say O.K. to all the problems and the grievances put to them by the teachers. The teachers are, in fact, the wisest people in this country and whatever proposals have been put forward by them should be taken as real proposals which are the problems of this country. I do appeal to the Minister for Education and the Minister for Local Government to accept their conditions and satisfy them so that we do not get this strike.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it would be necessary for the local governments, I think, to find the means of raising money. I know, as we have already heard, that each local authority may not get as much money as they had this year, next year because of the waiving of the Sh. 24 graduated personal tax. That being the case, I think that any local authority which feels it can tax its people to find some money to carry out its own services, should be allowed to do so; the Central Government should not be in their way. I think we should free the local authorities to tax their own subjects in the manner which they think necessary in order to run the services for which they cannot get money from the Central Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to the Minister for Lands and Settlement here, especially to consider, before the end of this year, sending a team of land registrars to register all those who need to have their land registered in Hamisi. This work has been going on very slowly and nothing has been accomplished.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, regarding the strike by the East African Community, which is on now, I would like to second my colleague, the hon. Lubembe, who suggested that the best solution to the strike situation of the East African Community is for the Secretary-General to resign.

An hon. Member: Why?

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, this has been suggested because the Industrial Court has heard the case and has made recommendations, and I think the Secretary-General has not called the Authority to come together to make a decision. That is possibly the reason why these workers have gone on strike; and if that is the case, that is why my friend, the Secretary-General, has been blamed. I have reason to ask him to give way if that would not help the other things to be normal.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to go on a bit with the other Estimates. On education, Sir, the Minister has recommended £1.9 million for education. However, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask him to increase this by another £1 million so that the total amount is £2.9 million. This would enable us to pay for the salaries and maintenance of all our teachers in all our Harambee secondary schools. We are tired with running the Harambee secondary schools without Government aid. Some of these have been running for six years and it is a pity that Government is not coming in at all. We would have liked to see Government coming in and assisting most of these Harambee secondary schools by taking them over and paying all the teachers. What is required here is an additional £1 million and then we will get away with this burden of the Harambee secondary schools. Therefore, I would ask the Minister for Finance to consider this seriously.

In addition, there is this question of the self-help projects; it should be possible for the Government to consider taking them on gradually. There is no need, Mr. Speaker, for the Government to aid a self-help Harambee project and then leave it there; once it has received aid from Government, it should continue to receive aid from Government year after year.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to raise another matter here, and that is on land transfer. It is known that most of the land which was agricultural land, was originally occupied by British settlers, or was occupied by the British Government many years back. In some places the land was taken freely, and in other places the fee paid was bought at 5 to 10 cents an acre; and now the price is over Sh. 200 per acre for an African farmer who wants to move there. My recommendation is whether our Government would consider—or for that matter, the British Government—in the case of land transfer that we only pay for the development of the land and also the amount which the British Government paid for that land at that time, without paying very much more.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to appeal to the Minister for Finance, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development and the Minister for Labour to consider very seriously the matter of jobs because we have very many youngsters who leave school year after year and unless we plan carefully how they can be occupied, it will be very dangerous for this country.

Therefore, Sir, I would like to support the Budget Speech made by the Minister and hope the points I have raised will be considered very sympathetically.

With these words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to support the Minister for Finance for the manner in which he has delivered the Budget Speech.

I am glad that he has waived the Sh. 24 Graduated Personal Tax. But that is not enough, Sir, because I am sure that some of our county councils and local authorities are bound to suffer as a result of waiving this taxation. So I would urge the Minister to see to it that any time he is approached by a county council or a local authority for financial assistance he should help them.

The Minister could have increased the national revenue if he increased the price of petrol which is all the time being consumed. In this way he would have obtained a lot of money if he had increased the price by 5 or 10 cents a gallon. I also feel that the Minister could have increased the national revenue by imposing a fee on embarkation and disembarkation at our airports. We have seen in many countries that all tourists, passengers travelling by air are forced to pay embarkation or disembarkation charges and I do not see any reason why the Minister for Finance could not have done the same here. This opinion has been expressed by many Members during the Budget Debate last year. I thought, therefore, that the Minister would have introduced this taxation this year. If you look at the statistics of the passengers who come into Mombasa airport and Nairobi airport, you find that the number is a very, very big one, and if the passengers were charged an embarkation or disembarkation charge, a lot of money would accrue from that. I hope next time the Minister will see to it that he imposes such a charge on these passengers at the airports.

The Minister also could have raised money from the forests. I know quite a lot of forests which, at the moment, are being maintained by the local authorities. We have many times, here, urged that such forests should be taken over by the Central Government. We have said this because in some of these forests there are very useful trees which, if the Central Government took over, could be felled and the timber sold. From this the Government would get a lot of money. Unfortunately, every time we ask the Minister for Natural Resources about this, he says that the forests belong to the local authorities and he leaves it to the local authorities to decide whether they should give these over to the Central Government or not. So I think the Minister for Finance should now talk with the Minister for Natural Resources so that he also convinces the local authorities to hand over these forests which have valuable trees in order that the trees can become the property of the State, so that money can accrue to the State from these trees.

I also feel that it is time that we, as leaders, tried to discourage as many people as possible not to take active part in politics merely because they want to come to this House for the purpose, probably, of gaining a lot of money. The present Ministers' salaries, Sir, should be reduced to Sh. 3,000 a month, and even the salaries of the Members should be reduced together with the attendance allowance and night allowance. By so doing we shall discourage many people from wanting to come to this House. Many people tend to think that by becoming Members of Parliament they can become wealthy. So, many people instead of thinking of embarking on business or agriculture, or even doing things, only think of coming into this House. So I feel the time has come when the Minister for Finance should reduce the salaries of the Ministers.

The time has also come when the Government should think of reducing the number of Ministers in order that a lot of public money is not spent on politicians who become Members of this House. I remember when we were elected in 1963 the initial salary was Sh. 833/33 per month. Over and above, there was a constituency allowance of Sh. 200. That was enough, and because it was only so little, it discouraged many people from wanting to come to this House. However, when people heard that the salary was increased to Sh. 1,400 per month, and then again increased to Sh. 2,000 a month, they began to think this was the place to make money. This is a very bad thing which this country has to be educated on. Many people should be discouraged from thinking that this is a place where they can make money. The other day we blamed some women who had successfully accused some men and had Affiliation Orders made against them. We said they had commercialized the Act. I feel that we have also commercialized politics because we have increased our salaries. So I think the time has come when the Minister for Finance should reduce the salaries of the Members of this House. That would save a lot of money which could be spent on development projects for the country. When you decide to become a politician, you do not do that simply because you want to enrich yourself; you come here to contribute to the debates and give suggestions to the Government so that the standard of living of the people can go up. This should be the chief aim of everybody, man or woman, who wants to become a politician. Some people decide to become politicians because they want to enrich themselves, and that is very bad. If this attitude continues, then those people with such aims will find themselves in chaos, in the soup.

Mr. Speaker, we have seen here, and it has been proved at one time, and in fact it was substantiated by hon. Ochwada, that some Assistant Ministers had been paid gratuities. To the best of my knowledge, Sir, I cannot remember at any time when we discussed and decided to pay those gratuities to the Assistant Ministers, or to the Ministers for that matter. As hon. Member, Mr. Speaker, is telling me that we did. I cannot remember that at all. I feel that this was entirely wrong, for the Minister responsible for Finance to allow some money to be spent on paying gratuities to Assistant Ministers. It is a very bad thing and it is my strong belief that every person or group of persons who were responsible for paying the Assistant Ministers gratuities ought to be brought to justice. I feel this is a daylight robbery. Let us not hide the feelings of the people in the country. When they read about this in HANSARD—because HANSARD goes to the civil servants—and in the newspapers they realized that money had been paid by way of gratuities to the Assistant Ministers and they were strongly against this. This is wrong because public money cannot be spent unless the consent is obtained from this hon. House. In this respect, the consent was not received, and so that was wrong, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, we passed a law here in this House, that 50 per cent of the graduated personal tax should come to the Central Government, to the Minister for Local Government, and I am happy to see the Assistant Minister is nodding his head, I would like, Mr. Speaker, to tell the Assistant Minister, through the Chair, that people are not happy with this at all because by transferring 50 per cent of the graduated personal tax from Mombasa to Nairobi, the rate-payers in Mombasa have suffered in that the plot rents they have been paying to the Mombasa Municipality have been increased by almost 50 per cent. Not only that, but even the shop fees, Mr. Speaker, have been increased from Sh. 40

[Mr. Omar] to Sh. 200. The people in Mombasa who want to obtain these licences find it very difficult because part of the graduated personal tax money which was collected in Mombasa is brought to Nairobi.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is that we are glad in 1964 the Central Government agreed that pedestrians should not pay toll at the Nyali Bridge and also at the Likoni Ferry. During the debate, we were told the Government would also consider the possibility of waiving toll for the cyclists, but since that time, up to now, Mr. Speaker, nothing has been done. As you know, Mr. Speaker, very many people are jobless and many people flock to Mombasa, and they have bought bicycles, and they find it very difficult to pay toll for the bicycles. I think the Minister, since he found it fit to waive the graduated personal tax of Sh. 24 for those people who are earning very little, or who have no means of earning their livelihood, should also see fit to waive tolls for all cyclists crossing the Nyali Bridge and also at the Likoni Ferry. Mtwapa too because it is also a part of the Mombasa District and it would help a great deal if there was no toll there.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is about industries. I feel Mombasa, geographically, is the most suitable place for building industries, Mr. Speaker. If we want to import or to export, we have to use Mombasa Harbour. Therefore, it is cheaper, Mr. Speaker, and more economical to build more industries in Mombasa. If you want to export, then you do not have to transport goods from Kisumu or Kakamega. Some Members have said industries should be built in Kakamega or Kisumu and so on, but I do not think that would be economically sound. It would be more economical to have industries in the Mombasa District because they would then be near the Port. It is more economical to ship. If an industry is in Kisumu, Mr. Speaker, it is not economical in that it has to be transported by road or by rail and, therefore, the price of the goods goes up and you find it is not economical.

I would urge the Government to do something on this suggestion because Mombasa has all the facilities for more industries to be built because of its geographical position.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is about the African traders in the Mombasa District. I asked a question here earlier this year as to how much money had been loaned to African traders in Mombasa, and to my surprise I was given a very unsatisfactory answer, that only one trader had been given a loan in the year 1968. I feel more money should be available to African traders in Mombasa so that they can expand their businesses.

Because my time has run out, Mr. Speaker, with these few words I support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Lawi, you have about six or seven minutes now, and then you can continue tomorrow.

Mr. Lawi: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I also like to stand to congratulate the Minister for Finance for the Financial Statement.

Mr. Speaker, today we have noticed the Opposition has come forward to say nothing. We know this is usual. Whenever the Government shows it has done good in the nation, the Opposition always has something to say; they have to do this because they are on the Opposition side.

Mr. Speaker, earlier you ruled that when we talk on the Financial Statement we have to talk about the economy of this country. Mr. Speaker, our people have been told to go back to the land. Today, the price of maize I think is Sh. 20, and there is the payment of labour, buying of fertilizer, and these have all gone up. A panga now is Sh. 5, and it used to be Sh. 3. Mr. Speaker, the other day there was a Motion here where the Assistant Minister for Agriculture agreed and said there is a committee looking into prices. If the prices of the produce grown by farmers in this country are not attractive, what are the people going back to the land to do? Will they really be able to have something?

The price of rice is reasonable. The price of other commodities is reasonable, but the prices of what is produced by our people who have gone back to the land in the reserves are not quite good. It is up to the Minister concerned, and the whole Government, to think over this issue. It is no use our keeping quiet here when things are not moving well.

Another point which I would like to make, Mr. Speaker, is about the local authorities. In this country many local authorities are run by commissions. I do not know why they have to go to the extent of being run by commissions, but there must be something wrong with the local authorities. The employees of the local authorities feel insecure, and probably that is why they do not look after the council affairs effectively. You find a clerk employed by a certain county council being unreasonably dismissed when a few councillors gang up against him—you hear of a person who is well qualified and trained, and then the next day you are told he has been dismissed from the service. This has happened. I think the keeping of staff on the councils where they feel insecure is wrong. The machinery to appoint them must be through a commission, and not through councillors. If it is in the hands of councillors, there are people undermining a qualified man and because of a simple disagreement we hear he has been dismissed.

I know of a person who, on being dismissed, sued the council and was given a lot of money. This was because these councillors acted unwisely, and it is up to the Minister for Local Government to scrutinize the running of the local authorities. There is something wrong somewhere, and it is everywhere.

Another point I would like to comment on, Mr. Speaker, is about the Central Government and the local authorities. The local authorities have to pay the teachers, and they also have to provide free medical treatment. Now since graduated personal tax of Sh. 24 has been abolished, and this was a source from which money was going into the hands of the local authorities, what the Government should do is to see the local authorities are given sufficient grants to enable them to provide services for the people. I know when a local authority has run short of money, the first class of people to be hit are the teachers. We hear the teachers have been laid off. We hear people are not receiving medicine. This is something the Government must look into, since they have taken away the revenue which was coming in, and they must have a plan to give the local authorities aid to keep them moving. It is no use blaming a county council saying that it is not getting the money when the sources of the money are not available. I know the Central Government has many sources from which they can obtain money. The reason why certain county councils cannot function well is because the sources of their revenue are very few and this is the point which the Central Government has to look into, and they have to know which are the poorer county councils. This question of financial assistance must be looked into because already there are some county councils which are experiencing a serious financial difficulty. The Central Government being on top must be able to really come out and help when help is required.

Is my time over, Mr. Speaker?

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes if that is a good point for you to break off. You will be able to continue when the debate resumes.

We have had our three hours on this debate and it is now time for interruption of business, so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Wednesday, the 25th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at fifty-seven minutes past Six o'clock.

Wednesday, 25th June 1969

The House met at thirty minutes past Two o'clock.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) in the Chair]

PRAYERSPAPERS LAID

The following Paper was laid on the Table:—

Proposed Amendment to the Articles of Agreement of the International Monetary Fund.

(By the Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru))

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS*Question No. 293RECOVERY OF POLICE INSPECTOR'S BODY FROM IVOVWE RIVER

Mr. Munyasia asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs to state—

- (a) in view of the fact that Mutua Kawai of Changwithia Location recovered the body of the late Chief Inspector Willy Katiku at IvoVwe River in February 1968, and had been promised by the police authorities at Kitui that he would be paid compensation, what had caused the delay in this payment;
- (b) was the Minister aware that even now the said Mutua was still suffering from injuries he had received that day.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The body of the late Chief Inspector Katiku was not recovered by Mutua Kawai alone. A concerted effort was made by the local people who assisted the police team. Their action was highly appreciated.

No reward was promised to this man, but the police are grateful for his co-operation as a good citizen.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that confusing answer by the Assistant Minister, that the person in question was not the only one to find the body of this man, is the Assistant Minister aware that I have documents to prove that this man— He had been in the water for five solid hours, and the deceased in question had a lot of money which was his salary for that particular month, and that is the reason why this man was sent to hospital for treatment. I have the documents here with me. Does the Government not appreciate the work done by that man?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, I do not deny that this gentleman took a very active part in the whole operation, but to say that he did it alone is untrue; that is what I am trying to say, he was not alone. There were quite a lot of people around who tried to help in this big operation. We appreciate the help he gave, but to put the whole credit on one person alone would be very unfair to the other people who took part.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that the authorities at Kitui Police Station promised this man that after a while he would be paid compensation, why does the Minister evade the question instead of following it up to find out whether he was promised compensation or not?

Mr. Matano: Mr. Speaker, I said earlier that as far as we are aware in the Ministry, no promise was made.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Questioner has indicated very clearly that he has some documents regarding this man who recovered the body of the policeman. Could he lay such papers on the Table?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was not going to ask the hon. Member to lay the papers on the Table unless the facts covered by them were in dispute, but I understood that they only showed what is admitted by the Ministry, that this gentleman took part in the operation, in which case, they do not really add anything.

*Question No. 280SOURCE OF FUNDS FOR BUILDING KANU HEADQUARTERS

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo asked the Minister of State to the President's Office to state where the £2.1 million for building the Kanu office had come from.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am not aware that Kanu has obtained £2.1 million for the building of the Kanu office in Nairobi.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, where the Minister said he was unaware of the amount involved, and yet the building which is being put up over there is said to be the Kanu Headquarters, could he therefore refute that in the Development Estimates for the year 1969/70, it is stated that a conference hall and offices at City Square would cost £2.1 million, and that is the very building which is called the Kanu office?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the price of the building is one thing, but the question of having obtained £2.1 million is a different thing.

[The Minister of State, President's Office]

May I add this, Mr. Speaker, that Kanu, as a corporate body, has the power to borrow money from any financial institution provided that it fulfils the requirements for loans from any of those financial institutions.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may we get it very clearly from the Minister, whether Kanu has raised some funds in the form of a loan, to put up a building which is now being erected behind the Treasury Building? Is that really a Kanu building which is being built on their own, having raised a loan?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the affairs of Kanu in regard to their building as a corporate body are private, and the hon. Members may also put up their buildings, not only that one of Kanu in Nairobi but in all the branches where Kanu or other organizations are capable as individual groups in those areas.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, I do not want the Minister to play with the House. We must be very serious. We want to know. On this particular building, it says Conference Hall, and so on, and then there are Kanu signs also placed there, and it is said that it is Kanu headquarters. I want him, in no uncertain terms, to declare to the House that that is a Kanu building which is being put up by Kanu funds. We want to know this.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the question raised this question: where did the £2.1 million for the Kanu building come from. That was the question, and I said I was not aware that Kanu have obtained such funds. The Member assumed that Kanu has obtained £2.1 million, and I added, Mr. Speaker, that Kanu as a corporate body has the right to borrow money, and that is their own affair.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from the Minister's answer, could the Minister tell the House whether the amount which is stated in this Development Estimate of £2,190,000, which the House will be asked to approve to build is going to be used—

Mr. Lubembe: Ask the Minister for Finance.

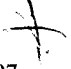

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: I am still asking, Mr. Speaker, I have not actually finished.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order!

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Is this a different building of the Government or is it the same Kanu office building which is being mentioned? Could he actually tell the House which is which?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member should have brought that question in the debate of the Estimates.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): If, in fact, this money is in the Development Estimates and that item does refer to this particular building, then it is obvious that it is coming from Public Funds and can be debated in the Development Estimates.

Next question. Mr. Kibuga?

Question No. 297

LIQUOR CONSUMPTION AT OFF-LICENCE SHOPS

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, before I ask the question, in the third line, the last word but two, "licences", should read, "licenceses".

Mr. Kibuga asked the Minister of State, President's Office if he would tell the House whether, since in most places an off-licence for liquor was not useful because the habit of people to consume liquor on the spot rather than carry it home and because the licencees were, in many cases, inconvenienced by purchasers contravening the law, the Government was prepared to allow holders of off-licences to change to on-licences after being given time to make the necessary alterations to the premises.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange) Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

There is no objection to any businessman changing over his business if he complies with the existing regulations.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from that rather encouraging reply, Mr. Speaker, could the Minister tell us whether he is aware that it is possible for a holder of an off-licence to apply for an on-licence and be refused, while he is supposed to keep his old licence?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware of that.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since it so happens that in any liquor shop, whether off, on or general, the people can buy drinks and drink them on the spot or not on the spot, would the Government consider regulating the laws to allow the people to drink in the shops, as is the habit? If an off-licence owner sold drinks to the drinkers, the police are going to molest the drinkers on the spot, on an excuse, in order to get another extra beer from the owner of the premises.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the licences are issued: (a) for the places of drinking like a pub, and time is controlled; and (b) some licences are issued for actual shops, in which those people who actually sell liquor, as such, could not afford to entertain people to get really drunk on the premises. They can get their own drinks and unless they get a special licence, they cannot have the two; they sell, and the person goes to consume the liquor at his house or elsewhere, but not on the premises.

The Assistant Minister, Vice-President's Office and Ministry of Home Affairs (Mr. Matano): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance. What happens when a Member asks a question which involves a lot of very serious allegations? In this particular instance, the hon. Member implied that some policemen molest customers in order that they may have an extra bottle from the owner. Now, to me, Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious allegation. What do we do when a question is put in such a way as to involve some serious allegations of such a nature?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can ask for substantiation.

Mr. Matano: On a point of order, if that is the case, Sir, may I ask the hon. Member to substantiate the allegation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mate, substantiate what you alleged.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in honour of the hon. Assistant Minister for Home Affairs, that he asks for substantiation, I am a Member of Meru Central; Upper Keria, Keria, "K, E, R, I, A" is my constituency. I have four owners of these licences and, during the last recess, I witnessed this kind of thing and if you have any transport, may we go to Keria, with the Assistant Minister, in order to prove this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It appears, Mr. Mate, that you have personally witnessed what you call molestation by the police, but have you witnessed their taking a bottle for themselves, as a result of molestation?

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have witnessed this and if the Assistant Minister for Home Affairs so wishes, we are going to prove the case.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I did not hear that.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, I am the personal witness.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): What I am not clear, Mr. Mate, is: have you seen policemen demanding a bottle of beer in order to leave people alone, because that is what you implied, I understand.

Mr. Mate: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have witnessed cases but I prefer to withdraw my allegation, if I am wrong. I beg to withdraw.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We had better go on, Mr. Cheboiwo?

Question No. 303MANAGEMENT OF KENYA NATIONAL BANK

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, before I ask the question, the name is not Kenya National Commercial Bank but it is National Bank of Kenya.

Mr. Cheboiwo asked the Minister for Finance if he would tell the House—

- (a) what were the names of the members of Board of Directors of National Bank of Kenya;
- (b) who was the General Manager of this bank; and
- (c) whether the General Manager was a citizen of Kenya.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gichuru, I hope you received the question in the form which the hon. Member intended?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply, (a) Sir, there is no bank in Kenya, I was going to say, with the name Kenya National Commercial Bank.

However, I presume and I am glad that the hon. Member has now learnt or has done a bit of his homework. I presume the hon. Member is referring to the National Bank of Kenya Limited.

The names of the directors are:—

Mr. J. N. Michuki—Permanent Secretary to the Treasury.

Mr. J. Maina Wanjigi—Executive Director, Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation.

Mr. K. A. Cherono—Clerk, Sirikwa County Council, Eldoret.

Mr. P. J. Mwangola—Regional Manager (Kenya), East African Railways.

(b) The General Manager of the bank is Mr. A. H. Phimister.

(c) No, Sir. However, we are training suitable candidates locally and overseas and I hope we shall be able to Africanize, not only all the supervisors, but also the management posts as soon as is reasonably possible.

Mr. Cheboiwo: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer from the Minister saying that he is not intending to Africanize all the supervisors, why is this?

Hon. Members: No, no.

Mr. Gichuru: Mr. Speaker, I said exactly the opposite.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on I think.

Question No. 232

PROPOSED KAKAMEGA TEA FACTORY

Mr. Godia asked the Minister for Agriculture if the Minister would send a team of surveyors to Kakamega District immediately in order to survey the site of the proposed tea factory in Kakamega District.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. There is no point in sending a team of surveyors to Kakamega District for the purposes of selecting a site for the Kakamega factory. Much of the tea in the district is still immature and there is nothing like enough leaf being produced to enable a factory to operate on an economic basis in the area. During the current year, Kakamega is expected to produce about 1.3 million pounds of green leaf and it is completely uneconomic to open a new factory on less than 4 million pounds of green leaf per annum. It would be a disaster to open a factory in Kakamega at present. However, a factory will be built as soon as there is sufficient green leaf there so as to enable the factory to make a profit for the growers.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the Assistant Minister not aware that such an answer is a great discouragement to the farmers in Kakamega District who have, from time to time, been assured by the Ministry of Agriculture that as soon as they are able to plant more than 1,200 acres of tea they will be able to get their factory established in that district?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not deny that there are 2,000 acres of tea, but I say that the tea is still immature and we cannot do this yet because it is not economic to process so little leaf.

Mr. Nyaberi: Mr. Speaker, arising from that answer, will the Assistant Minister tell the House how many pounds he requires before a factory can be established; in terms of pounds of tea leaves?

Hon. Members: Kilos!

Mr. Murogor: I said 4 million pounds.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on.

Question No. 295

CAUSE OF DEATH OF NAIROBI LAWYER

Mr. ole Lemein asked the Minister for Health if he would tell the House what the cause was of the sudden death of the Nairobi lawyer, Mr. Costodio Salvador Moraes, who died in his office on 26th May, 1969.

The Assistant Minister for Health (Mr. Konchellah): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

The cause of the sudden death of Mr. Costodio Salvador Moraes, the Nairobi lawyer who died in his office on 26th May, 1969, was cardiomyopathy which was also due to chronic alcoholism.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we had better go back to Mr. Wakole's Question.

Question No. 298

COLLECTION OF GRAZING FEES, TANA RIVER DISTRICT

Mr. Komora, on behalf of Mr. Wakole, asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House how much money was payable to the Tana River County Council in respect of grazing fees in the year 1967 or 1968 and when would this money be paid.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

As far as the Ministry of Agriculture is concerned, the sum of Sh. 37,753/80 is due to the County Council of Tana River in respect of grazing fees due in 1967/68. We are prepared to pay this amount of money before the end of June this year, pending the agreement of the county council as to the particulars of the claim.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply that the Assistant Minister has agreed that this money has taken too long before it was made available to the county council; at the time this money is paid to the county council, will he assure this House that the county council gets interest as a result of the delay?

Mr. Murgor: No, Sir.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

REPORTED MISUSE OF EMBU COUNTY COUNCIL FUNDS

Mr. Mbogoh: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wish to ask the following Question by Private Notice of the Minister for Local Government.

In view of disclosures by the Ministry's inspector of accounts of misuse of the Embu County Council funds, and his report that the council is at present without any liquid assets:—

(a) What immediate action is the Minister taking to aid the county council before all the services to the people are stopped?

(b) To recover the amounts owed to the council by the chairman and the officers?

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

(a) Action has already been taken by the Ministry of Local Government which has applied to the Government for additional funds to keep the county council operational. This matter is under urgent consideration at present.

(b) The Minister is considering the necessity of issuing a directive to the council, under Regulation 248 of the Local Government Regulations, as a result of the special inquiry under Regulation 245 of the above Regulations into the Tenant Purchase Scheme, No. 2, of the said council. Under this scheme, the chairman and the officers of the council owe considerable sums of money. The directive will require the council to make proper arrangements to recover all the arrears or immediately to take all the necessary steps to recover possession of the property.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from that reply, Mr. Speaker, and according to the auditors' report, it is reported that the county council's books are written in pencil; would the Assistant Minister tell the House whether he has found out the truth that these accounts were totalled in pencil, because they wanted to give these accountants the wrong figures to mislead the Ministry so that they did not find them out and get the proper figures owed to the county council?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I cannot say whether they are written in pencil, but I could find that out. What I know is that the council is having a special meeting tomorrow to discuss the question of the Treasurer who has not been able to keep the books properly.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers, and arising from the fact that it might be even tomorrow when the county council meets that both the chairman and the county council officials will refuse deliberately to repay the money which they are supposed to pay back to the County Council of Embu, what action will the Ministry take because this is very serious; they are owing a lot of money and this is causing the County Council of Embu to become bankrupt, and this is not the directive of the local governments?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister is empowered to give a directive to the council to recover any moneys which are outstanding and, once that directive has been made, anybody who refuses can be taken to court.

Mr. Mbogoh: Will the Assistant Minister assure this House that the Ministry will take action—even if it is legal action—to recover this money because it belongs to the tax-payers of Embu, although it has only been used by a few people, to make sure that the deficit of this county council does not show as large sums as it shows at present? Arrest them and put them in jail if that is important.

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, every possible measure will be taken to recover the money.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from one of the answers which shows that the Chairman of this county council, being a councillor, owes money to the council, and remembering that in one of the regulations, it says that no person should qualify to be a councillor if he is in debt to the council, why has the Government allowed this to happen in that this man is still a councillor while he owes money to that council? Why not use that regulation?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, this matter has just come to light following an inquiry by an officer of the Ministry, and the whole matter is being looked into.

Mr. Lorimo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that too many delegated powers have been given to the local authority which went unchecked, will the Minister consider now reducing or limiting these powers, so that a local authority can always be challenged very easily; otherwise they will bring the same sort of thing to each and every local authority in Kenya?

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, any power that any local authority has, has been given by this House and if this House wishes to reduce some of the powers, they are at liberty to do so.

Mr. Mbogoh: Arising from some of the replies given to the House by the Assistant Minister, will the Assistant Minister then consider the question of calling a commission of inquiry to go into these debts and find a solution which could lead the county council to recover all the lost property and put it on its proper footing again? A proper commission of inquiry and not a Ministerial inquiry.

Mr. Munoko: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether a commission of inquiry will bring out any more facts than what an officer of the Government has already done. If there are any matters which have been overlooked by the officer and which the Member is aware of, he should bring them forward.

BUSINESS

ORDER OF AND POSTPONEMENT OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We should go on now, hon. Members. I would like hon. Members to note that on the adjournment today Mr. Cheboiwo will raise the matter noted on the Order

[The Speaker]

Paper, unless we have to postpone it in order to achieve a full three hours of debate on the Financial Statement. It is possible that, starting at 4 p.m., we have to run to 7 p.m. on the Financial Statement, in which case, we should have to put Mr. Cheboiwo's matter off to another day. I would ask hon. Members also to note the Supplementary Order Paper which shows that after dealing with the Vote on Account, in Order No. 5, we shall resume the debate on the Financial Statement. That should, of course, have appeared on the original Order Paper.

POINTS OF ORDERRAISING MATTER UNDER S.O. 20: NOT ALLOWED, NO URGENCY AS MATTER (OF STRIKE) NOW SETTLED

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I, under Standing Order No. 20, move the adjournment of the House in order to consider a definite matter of national importance regarding the strike staged by 10,000 East African Community employees with effect from midnight of 24th June 1969, who have decided to disrespect the recommendation from their Trade Union leader Mr. J. N. Chege, Central Organization of Trade Unions Acting General Secretary, and Mr. S. M. Seif the General Secretary of the Customs Union on resuming duty immediately with effect from yesterday afternoon.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I am not quite clear now what it is Mr. Godia you want to raise. Is it the general question of the strike or some particular aspect of it. Would you explain it a bit further?

Mr. Godia: I would like to raise the question of the strike.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): For reasons I gave yesterday, I was quite prepared to allow Mr. Godia to move the adjournment of the House to raise that matter until I was informed by Mr. Mboya that the strike was being called off. Apparently, Mr. Mboya himself was misinformed and I hope that in future Ministers will be more careful about being correctly informed in such matters. I am informed today, by Mr. Odero-Jowi this time, that the strike is ended. If he would kindly confirm to the House that it is so, the urgency again disappears.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am happy to confirm that the strike of the Community employees in Kenya and Uganda has ended and by two o'clock this afternoon, most of the officers of the Community originally affected by the strike are now beginning to function normally.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can we be really sure of the information this time?

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Speaker, I have been dealing with this strike all along and I am confirming that I am sure that the strike is ended.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, following the reply from the Minister that the strike is ended, would it be in order for me to consider to discuss the matter regarding the effect of the strike.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think we would regard that as sufficiently urgent as to justify procedure under Standing Order 20.

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance arising from the statement which has been given by the Minister who is in charge of the East African Community. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my seeking your guidance is this, what will happen, if tomorrow, we hear that at least more than 50 per cent of the people went on strike and also arising from the fact that the Minister has given an assurance and he does not know what is the effect of that assurance which was given by the radio because there are people who are in the countryside Mr. Speaker or who have houses outside Nairobi and they do not know that the strike has been called off? What action shall we take Mr. Speaker? I was seeking your guidance as to what will happen to us because I know that it is a failure.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do not quite follow what Mr. Munyi is worrying about, but it does not seem to me to be something I can answer as a point of order anyhow.

MISREPORTING ON THE RADIO BY V.O.K.

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, yesterday when I was speaking on the Estimates, I said something regarding immigration officers. I in fact, said that one hon. Member had attacked immigration officers and that he was wrong because they were doing a good job and they should be protected because most of the difficulties comes from the top.

After listening to "Today in Parliament" last night, the opposite was reported. The Voice of Kenya said that Mr. Lubembe attacked the immigration officers when, in fact, I defended the immigration officers. What can be done now to correct such a malicious broadcast?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do remember that Mr. Lubembe said what he says now. He was saying that the immigration officers were doing a perfectly good job but that other people were interfering with them. If he was reported to the contrary in the Voice of Kenya, I must ask the Voice of Kenya to put it right. I hope that the Kenya News Agency will take note and perhaps the Minister can make sure.

[The Speaker]

SUBSTANTIATION AND DECLARING AN INTEREST

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, this morning I noticed that during the time I was speaking on the Motion before the House, an Assistant Minister for Finance alleged that I had already received loans from the Government. I wonder whether this is true and if it is true that I have received a loan from the Government and I would challenge him now to substantiate what kind of loan that I have received from the Government concerning buying anything or on a commercial basis or so forth. I would challenge him now to substantiate that.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Could you tell me if you were there when this was said.

Mr. Karungaru: Yesterday when I was speaking, I said that the Government had not yet provided loans for people who do not have surety and security, and as result of that, the Assistant Minister alleged that I have already received loans from the Government. He also said that I received this loan in the form of a commercial loan or so forth. I would challenge him now to say what kind of loan I have received.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! it is too late now, you should have asked him to substantiate then.

Mr. Lubembe: What happens when a Member speaks or challenges another Member on a matter on which he has influenced him? Is he not allowed another Standing Order, I think 62 or 67—I am not sure—to declare his interest?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not understand what you are referring to, but that is a fact.

Mr. Lubembe: I am referring to yesterday when the hon. Mr. Muliro was speaking, the hon. Mr. arap Bii challenged him and said he had not declared his interest of being a member of Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, director rather.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are saying that Mr. arap Bii challenged him, what do you mean?

Mr. Lubembe: He challenged hon. Mr. Muliro to substantiate whether the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation was giving one tribe loans.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is really a question of substantiation. An hon. Member, who on a point of order, requires substantiation does not have to declare any interest. The whole House is interested in substantiation.

Mr. Nyamweya, I think you have belated papers to lay on the Table.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTPAPERS LAID IN SUBSTANTIATION OF PREVIOUS REMARKS

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, during the adjournment debate raised by the hon. Khaoya, I undertook to lay on the table, a number of letters, six of them written by East African Railways and Harbours to the Clerk of Bungoma County Council and the said letters and are now here laid on the Table along with the agreements relating to the matters which were under discussion on that day.

(The Minister, Mr. Nyamweya, laid the letters on the Table)

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Members must have received copies of the Vote on Account which was laid on the Table on 18th June. It will be seen from this paper that the House is being asked at this stage to vote one-half of the total sum required for the services of the Government during the coming financial year.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, details of the various Votes are contained in the 1969/70 Estimates which were laid before the House on the 12th of June. The House will, of course, have full opportunity for discussing the Votes when we go into Committee of Supply.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as the Annual Appropriation Bill will not be passed until after the commencement of the 1969/70 Financial Year, it is necessary, in the interim period, to have authority under the terms of section 10 of the Constitution of Kenya. I repeat that we are doing this in accordance with the Constitution of Kenya for the continuation of the existing Government services, including the payment of salaries and allowances to hon. Members who expect to be paid for their Sitting and subsistence allowances.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, in accordance with normal procedure—and this is a Procedural Motion—the Vote on Account will not be used to cover expenditure on new services but on existing services being run by the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru) seconded.

(Question proposed)

Mr. Seroney: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I notice that the Assistant Minister is relying on a particular section of our Constitution. The Government seems to have made it a habit of coming every year—and this is the sixth year—and telling us that unless we give them a Vote on Account the Government will not have any money to spend. My first reaction when I heard of the Motion was to give the Government an emphatic, No.

We passed the Constitution for this country in this House. Now, this Constitution leaves no doubt whatsoever that it is this House that must authorize any taxation or any expenditure of money obtained through that taxation. Now, if the Assistant Minister or other Members are not aware of a particular section, I would say it is found in Chapter 7 of the Constitution beginning from section 99. Now, section 99 of the Constitution, Sir, says this:—

“Subject to subsection (2) of this section, all revenues or other money raised or received for the purposes of the Government of Kenya shall be paid into a Consolidated Fund from which no moneys shall be withdrawn except as may be authorized by this Constitution or by an Act of Parliament including an Appropriation Act or by a Vote on Account passed by the National Assembly under section 101 of this Constitution.”

Now we come to this section which the Assistant Minister is relying on. This section reads as follows:—

“If the Appropriation Act for any financial year has not come into operation or is not likely to come into operation by the beginning of that financial year, the National Assembly may, by a Vote on Account, authorize the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of moneys not exceeding in total one-half of the sum included in the Estimates of Expenditure for that year that have been laid before the Assembly.”

Mr. Speaker, when we attained independence in 1963, it so happened that because of the elections it was not possible to bring in a Budget well before the end of the financial year. However, the Government has since made it a habit of waiting until almost the end of June to bring the Budget and then they come and tell us that it is not possible to have the Appropriation Act come into force before the end of the financial year. Surely, Mr. Speaker, the remedy is in their hands.

The Budget should come up at least two or three months before the end of the financial year. There is no reason why the Government should wait until two weeks before the end of the financial year and then say, "Unless you give us a vote on account, there will be no time to pass the Appropriation Act". Mr. Speaker, it seems as if the Government does not really want the Members of this House to exercise their power of scrutinizing very thoroughly all Estimates before approving them. That is why the Government, every year, deliberately waits until almost the end of the year to produce their Estimates, then to produce their Budget, and then fall back on this particular section which was really, Mr. Speaker, intended for unforeseen circumstances. I am sure that this particular section was not meant to be used every time and every year, simply because the Government wants to get Estimates approved in principle, half of them, and then they might adjourn Parliament so that by the time we come back interest will have gone down. Then, in any case, we will already have passed half of the expenditure on account and think that we might as well pass the remaining half.

Mr. Speaker, I now particularly request Government to make sure that we either change the date of the financial year or we must be strict and make sure that the Budget is presented to this House in April, at least two to three months before the end of the financial year. If, for any reason, we cannot have our Budget in the month of April, then let us push forward the financial year. One of the two must change, Mr. Speaker. Either the date for the Budget must be brought forward or the end of the financial year must be pushed on. It is particularly important, because we, in this House, are elected by our people and one of the few powers we really have is that of controlling expenditure and taxation. I am sure hon. Members do not want to abdicate their responsibility by leaving everything to the serikali. Sir, the way we can influence the Government effectively is through these Estimates, but if these Estimates are just rushed through in this manner and they are not discussed properly, there is no point in bringing them, there is no point in bringing the Estimates before this House.

There is no point in bringing the Estimates here if the Government assumes automatically that we have no choice but to give approval. Then they tell us that we must give this money because the Government services must go on.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen the Development Estimates and the Recurrent Estimates, and I am entirely unhappy about them. However, I would like to mention one aspect of the Recurrent Estimates which is particularly disturbing. I am referring to that part of the Estimates dealing with gratuities for Ministers and Assistant Ministers. In last year's Estimates, there was no reference to gratuities, and therefore the Government may have found that they had no authority for paying themselves gratuities. That is why recently they have published a Bill which I hope will come into this House very quickly so that hon. Members can let the Government know what they think of that Bill. However, Mr. Speaker, the Government has provided in a very clever manner for a way out, regardless of whether or not we pass that particular Bill. In this year's Estimates, they have specifically included gratuities for Ministers and Assistant Ministers. I will just quote page 14 of the Estimates of Recurrent Expenditure. This is from the Office of the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs. We have Personal Emoluments, which covers "Provision for salaries and allowances and gratuities of the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (K£3,550) . . .", which we know is the salary, ". . . two Assistant Ministers (K£4,520) . . .", which we also know is the salary, but as to how much this amount is, there is no indication. It is lumped together in a sum of K£155,000 which is supposed to include gratuities as well as increases in posts for other staff.

Now, if you look at the Estimates for the previous year—and I will quote from the same Ministry—the previous Estimates makes no mention whatsoever of gratuities. All it says is "Provision for the salaries and allowances of the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (K£3,550), two Assistant Ministers (K£4,520), and 314 staff. Increase of 10 posts as compared to 1967/68." That is all last year's Estimates said.

This year, they have slipped in this question of gratuities before we have decided whether we are going to allow it or not. They have inserted this element of gratuity into each particular Ministry, so that it can be hidden and it does not appear to be a large sum. If you look at every Ministry, there is such provision in every Vote. The gratuities are distributed throughout all the Ministries.

[Mr. Seroney]

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think this is an attempt to obtain money by playing a trick on us and on the public, and I think we should make it quite clear to the Government that they should come out openly and say what it is they actually want instead of slipping things in in the hope that we may not notice.

Mr. Speaker, as a mark of displeasure on the part of the Members over they way the Government has treated them, and they way the Government has handled the question of the Estimates, I beg to move the following amendment to this Motion.

I beg to move—

“THAT the amount of K£41,185,312 appearing in the Motion be reduced by K£1,185,312 to K£40 million, and that after the word ‘operation’, there be added the following words: ‘provided that the authority hereby given shall not imply approval of any items not appearing in last year’s original Estimates, and in particular shall not extend to withdrawals for payments of any gratuities not previously expressly sanctioned by the House.’”

Mr. Speaker, I have anticipated one objection from the Government, that is, that the Government will need some money to spend. After all, by this amendment, they are left with K£40 million, which is enough for them to spend while we discuss these Estimates and go through all these matters. There is still room for argument and for discussion, but I have no wish to bring the Government to a standstill, and therefore this amendment ensures that the work of the Government goes on. However, we shall have an opportunity to scrutinize all these Estimates and to discuss fully the principle of gratuities, and we shall be able to influence the Government, both in the Development and Recurrent Estimates, in good time.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move the amendment.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Who seconds this amendment? Mr. Khaoya.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have the honour to second this very honourable amendment which has been put forward by our own learned. I should like to call him our Back-benchers’ Attorney, because I think that all we are doing is not to bar our Government from running the functions of the Government, no. All we are doing is to safeguard and make sure that at every stage, that element of gratuity which we all oppose shall not pass by hook or by crook in this House. As the hon. and learned gentleman there has ably stated, we normally have, say, seven days to debate the Financial Statement, and thereafter we have a few more days in which to deal with each Ministry. I hope, therefore, that by the end of July, we shall have done as much as possible to pass all the money which the Government wants, so that there are no difficulties, even if we pass K£20 million or K£35 million. Surely, that would be sufficient to cover the expenditure of the Government, but here, Mr. Speaker, I have seen the Mover of the amendment has very generously put figure at K£40 million, which means we are only subtracting that element of the gratuities from the amount required for the whole year, which in this case is K£41 million, and that is what the Assistant Minister put to the House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to labour on this point, because we all know what we want; we all know what the country’s feelings are on the question of the 20 per cent gratuities which I think is illegal money, dirty money. We can only support the hon. gentleman there and, if possible, pass that amendment without any debate at all, giving them their K£40 million, but we withdraw and hold on to the gratuity money until we get the time to debate it here thoroughly.

Mr. Speaker, with those few remarks, I beg to second.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I just want to correct an impression which was given, because it is good that the House should know exactly the procedure with regard to the date which the three of us agree in the three territories for Budget Day. It depends on the arguments, and so on, and the various reasons which each country puts forward, and also it is important that we have the Budget Speech on the same day, because quite a number of items which we wish to change have to be announced on the same day. I did inform you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I had difficult in trying to get an earlier date. For this reason, I would like to apologize that the time is short. I agree, it is short.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I believe the Minister is still on his feet, but I am seeking your guidance on this once. According to the amendment, it means that the Estimates included sums which are not derived from past years, in other words, gratuities for the Ministers. I thought we were discussing expenditure for the following year for Government. In the first place, I would like to know whether this was really in order, whether this should not have come as a Supplementary Estimate. Furthermore,

[Mr. Okelo-Odongo]

Mr. Speaker, since the Minister is still on his feet, would he clarify this for the House, because this is very important? Rumour has it that some of this money has already been paid and, if it has been paid, how is that we are now going to sanction it to be paid the following year? I think it would help if the Minister could make it clear to the House, because rumour has it that the money actually has been paid to the Ministers—

Mr. Sijeyo: And they have consumed it.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: —and if that is so what we are approving is the payment for 1969/70.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

MAKING PAYMENTS FROM PUBLIC FUNDS WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN AUTHORIZED IN THE HOUSE

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I think your point of order is rather confused, Mr. Okelo-Odongo. Perhaps I can clarify one or two things. Mr. Seroney, in moving this amendment, did criticize the Government for being so late in the presentation of the Estimates and the Financial Statement, and this Vote on Account. The position is in that respect as Mr. Gichuru described, and as, in fact, I described to the House yesterday when I explained the same thing, that we do not like being asked to pass the Vote on Account before we have finished the Financial Statement and the Vote in the Committee of Ways and Means, but in spite of having done your best for us in this matter, you were to some extent in the hands of your fellow Ministers in the other two territories, and you had to concede this late date for the presentation of the Financial Statement. Perhaps, while still on that point, I might reassure hon. Members who think that a Vote on Account is a sinister thing as a regular annual event. There are many good reasons, really, for having the Vote on Account just at the start of a financial year, leaving plenty of time to discuss the Estimates before you vote the remainder of the money required. Perhaps I might quote a few words from Erskine May on this subject, where he explains this regular annual procedure in the House of Commons. He says "Various considerations, such as the undesirability of framing Estimates too long in advance of the years to which they relate, and the fact that the House of Commons has come to use the discussion of Estimates primarily as an opportunity for the criticism of administration, and wishes therefore to keep them open till near the end of the session, combine to make it impossible to dispose of the Estimates before the beginning of the financial year." I think that really holds good for us, too, and we have taken that view in past years.

As regards the other question that Mr. Okelo-Odongo is dealing with, and the Mover of this amendment has dealt with, too, as to the payment of gratuities, I had intended at the close of this financial year to make a Communication from the Chair on this subject, but it so so material, I think, to this debate, that I had better say now what I was going to say. It was not very much. It is a fact, that a large sum of money has been paid, spent out of public funds, during what is still the current financial year, for gratuities for Ministers and Assistant Ministers, and that payment has never been authorized by this House—

Hon. Members: Shame, shame, shame.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Please. — except, I believe, in one or two cases, where Supplementary Estimates just recently passed have covered such gratuities without anybody being quite aware that they had. However it may be, this particular form of payment is covered by an Act of Parliament, and so it does also require amendment to that Act of Parliament, that is, the National Assembly Remuneration Act.

It is always a very serious matter when payments are made without the authority of Parliament, though it is not uncommon for over-expenditure on approved items to be incurred, and cured by Supplementary Estimates later in the same financial year. It is much more irregular to incur expenditure without authority on a completely new service or purpose, though even then the damage can be largely repaired if the authority of the House is sought within the same financial year.

Now, being well aware of this unauthorized expenditure, I was still hoping that it might be cured, or largely cured, or at any rate discussion of it might be postponed, until Government moved to obtain the authority of the House within the same financial year, and I was led to hope that that was the intention when I saw a Bill published to amend the National Assembly Remuneration Act. However, now that there does not seem to be any attempt to cure the matter within the current financial year which expires at the end of this week, the matter is much more serious.

Hon. Members: Shame, shame.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Order! We are now facing a case of what appears to be, I am afraid, deliberate excess, and, I am afraid, contempt of the Constitutional authority of this House.

Hon. Members: Shame, shame.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I should add—I forgot to say—that I intend to ask the Controller and Auditor-General for a full report on the situation at his earliest convenience, and I think that on this particular question, we should defer all further comment on any excess payment which has been incurred in this financial year. We must await that report, unless the Minister wishes to say anything meanwhile.

As regards the Vote on Account, what the Mover of the amendment has said is still relevant, of course, as to whether you want to authorize anything that could involve payment of gratuities by this Vote on Account. It would, I think, be a wrong way of doing it, pending amendment of the Act in question.

(Resumption of debate on first part of the amendment)

I do not know whether you have finished speaking, Mr. Gichuru?

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Yes, Sir.

Mr. Oduya: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I join—

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, my point of order might seem a bit peculiar. I am asking the Chair as regards the book referred to when he quoted it in connexion with this Vote of Account. I wonder if it is the new Constitution, or the old one, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): This book I referred to, was not our Constitution. It is a book called "Sir Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice", and it is a very ancient, and much honoured commentary on the practice of the House of Commons, which used to guide our practice. It does not now, but the particular argument in this book, for a vote on account, as a regular annual procedure, seems to me very relevant to our situation also.

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to join my two colleagues, the hon. Mr. Seroney, and the hon. Mr. Khaoya, who have ably supported the wishes of this House. That means the wish of the majority of the Members of this House, who are elected by the people to safeguard the financial, and other interests of the Kenya people.

Now, Sir, here is a case, which has been stated fully by my colleague who has moved the amendment, and I on my part, fully support the reduction which he has proposed of £1,185,312 from the Vote on Account. In other words, the Government will be left £40 millions—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is a point of order, Mr. Oduya

POINTS OF ORDER

IMPLICATION OF GOVERNMENT BEING DEFEATED ON A MONEY QUESTION

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, my point of order is to seek further clarification as to what is going to be the implication resulting from this amendment. If, as it would appear, that the majority of Members are in favour of this amendment, and when this question is put to the vote, the Ayes for the amendment have it, does that, in fact, amount to Government being defeated on a money question, which eventually is tantamount to the Government being obliged to resign?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Oh, no certainly not so far as the Constitution is concerned. The only matter on which Government can be compelled to resign under the Constitution, is by an express vote of no confidence. A vote of no confidence in the Government which has to be debated after at least few days' notice and which is only carried, if it is carried by a majority of all Members of the House. If Government is defeated on some other matter, monetary or otherwise, it is entirely for the Government to decide whether the defeat is so serious to indicate that it can govern no more, but in this case, certainly a reduction in a Vote on account by £1 million, and a proviso that it shall not apply to what indeed the Assistant Minister himself has said it is not intended to apply to which is new services. I would not myself regard that as a terrible lack of confidence in Government though.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance on my point of order. You have said, Mr. Speaker, that it is true that some Ministers and Assistant Ministers had been paid gratuities, and would I be in order, Mr. Speaker, therefore, to ask the names of the Ministers and Assistant Ministers, and the amount that they have received?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would ask the hon. Members to respect what I have just said just now. I have asked for a full report from the Controller and Auditor-General, and I hope it will be forthcoming very soon and laid on the Table of the House. Order! Pending the receipt of that report, I do not think we ought to discuss this matter any further, because we have not got the full facts before us.

There may be mitigating of facts of various kinds on these maybe something in the nature of a complete excuse which emerges from that report. So, we must await that report, and I assure you that I shall ask to have it brought very soon.

ADJOURNMENT OF DEBATE REFUSED, REASON FOR

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the existing complication arising from what you have just explained, and also that the Government did not want to comment, on what you have just said, would I be in order if I ask for this debate to be adjourned?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, I do not think I would allow the House to entertain a Motion for the adjournment of the debate on that ground, for I do not think it is really relevant. You see, the House is aware that there have been unauthorized payments in respect of gratuities. The amendment now proposed is that the Vote on Account shall not cover such gratuities. So, if you want to exclude gratuities, you can deal with it on the amendment. I cannot see any reason for deferring the debate. You either accept this amendment which excludes gratuities from the Vote on Account, or you say there is no need to exclude the gratuities, and we will deal with it today.

(Resumption of debate on first part of the amendment)

Mr. Oduya: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Members of this House must realize their responsibility, because I think that we are elected by the people of this country, Sir, not to serve our own interest, but to serve the interest of the nation. The reason why I am saying so, Sir, is that I, Oduya, will insist on saying this today; and tomorrow I may not be there, but this country and the people who elected me will be there, and another man will be in my place. That is why, Sir, I say that we representatives of the people must take matters of this nature very seriously, and keep it with seriousness, Sir.

Therefore, I should think that the Government should be very grateful indeed to hon. Seroney, who has actually not intended to embarrass the Government, but he has in fact, been very generous in only deciding to reduce a small percentage, and he has left all the money that the Kenya Government wants. We, as the Government party, and Government Members, would not like to see the services at a standstill, and we would like to see the Government functioning normally, and that is why we are in full agreement with granting £40 million to enable the Government to function between now the 1st of July, and when all the debates on the entire financial statement is on which I think is before June next year when this House will have approved the whole thing and the Government will have all the money which is on the financial statement to spend and therefore, there should be no panic at all.

I would also like to say to the Government, here that, normally, when the Members speak in this House, especially on matters like this, the Government Ministers tend to say that certain Members are opposing the Government. This is opposition to Government. What we are now saying now, Sir, is merely to help the Government. It is not opposition to the Government. If I oppose the hon. Ngala, I am not opposing the Government, because the hon. Ngala is not the owner of this Government and he is not the Government of Kenya at all; he is just one among us appointed by the President to assist in the running of the State at the Cabinet level. The Government is run jointly by us who back this Government and that is why we do not consider this kind of advice as opposition to the Government. This must be made very, very clear, because I know if we leave this out some forces run about to places where Members of this House are not represented to talk of certain things and say so-and-so did this, and they are the people who are spoiling this Government and they will oppose the Government at any time. Therefore, in this case it is true to say we are not opposing the Government, we are merely advising the Government to be aware. When we leave here every Friday, Sir, we go home and get in touch with our constituents and they are our masters because they are the people who elect us, they are our employers, and we come here with their mandate to tell the Government that here we are going very far and so we had better go this way so that step by step we reach our goal.

Therefore, Sir, as the mover of the amendment ably put it, that we should definitely exclude from this Vote of Account £1,185,312. I think any reasonable Member, any reasonable Minister, without any selfishness and without any personal interest, must accept the proposal, and I know we are all going to support it fully without any opposition. That is why I am standing now, on behalf of the Teso people—with the renewal of my contract which is still very, very fresh—to say that I am supporting very, very strongly.

Now, Sir, I know that most of my colleagues are willing, of course, to give their opinion on this, but I would appeal to the Members here that we should not consider personal friendship in this matter. We must not consider the question of saying, "Oh, if we do that we embarrass our Government." This is our Government, but we want our Government to be clean throughout, because when something goes wrong, it is not only this Front Bench which will be answerable for this situation; it is this House which will be called upon to explain why this has happened. That is why we are very careful indeed of our Ministers. There is no angel here; there is nobody who speaks 100 per cent a day and who is 100 per cent correct in things. Therefore, since the responsibility is collective for safeguarding the interests of this country we, as representatives of the people, are charged, through this House, to keep the interests of the nation and safeguard the public funds. That is why we are so much concerned to see that whatever the Ministers are doing, whatever the Government is doing, whatever is happening in the Treasury, must be scrutinized by this House fully and the advice must be given through this House so that the authorities do exactly what this House wants; so that we meet the wishes of the majority of our people. This is very simple and I think the Government has enough lawyers to do this. The Attorney-General knows the consequences of any malpractices, and we also have the former Minister for Foreign Affairs who is now the Minister for Power and Communications, the hon. Nyamweya, who is also a lawyer and I think he is capable of advising our Government and, particularly, the Minister for Finance, if there is no lawyer there, that by rushing and doing a little outside the normal machinery laid down, they are going to implicate both this House and the entire Cabinet will put us in a situation which—

[Mr. Oduya]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Oduya, I must point out that we are not, at this moment, debating any unauthorized payment of the past year or the Controller and Auditor-General's report thereon; that must be the subject of another debate when we receive the report. All we are debating now is whether you want to cover this House against voting gratuities in the coming year pending further discussion.

Mr. Oduya: Thank you, Sir.

I would like to end my speech by saying that the Government is very lucky, because if it were another Member—say, like myself—who moved this reduction the Government might not have been given more than £20 million. This must be borne in mind, but, because my friend is very generous, I agree with that figure. You can see, Mr. Speaker, that the whole House accepts this amendment and approves.

With these few remarks, Sir, I beg to support fully.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Would you like to speak on the amendment, Mr. Balala?

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I stand to say this, that the Government, as it has always done, fully respects and recognizes the wishes and the sentiments of the hon. Members, and it is doing so, bearing in mind that the hon. Members are the spokesmen, or representatives, of the people in our country.

The Government also respects the status and authority of this House, as well as the status of the hon. Members. I can tell the hon. Members that the Government has always been very responsive to the views of the hon. Members and has always accepted concrete proposals offered by the hon. Members. It is with this view that I, as an Assistant Minister of the Government, stand particularly because this amendment concerns the Motion that I moved, to assure the hon. Members that the Government will only—as it has done before—respect the views and the sentiments of the hon. Members. I can assure them that if it is the wishes of the hon. Members that I accept this amendment, I will accept it.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Minister has accepted the amendment, with the nice speech that he has made, is it not time that the Mover be called upon to reply or rather that the question of the amendment be put?

(Question that the question of the amendment be now put, put and agreed to)

(Question of the first part of the amendment that the words to be left out be left out put and agreed to)

(Question of the second part of the amendment that the words to be inserted in place thereof and that the words to be added be added, proposed put and agreed to)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There will have to be another change, because the sum of money has now changed, and so it cannot be quite the same as shown on the Vote on Account which was laid before the House. Therefore, do you mind if I put in, "subject to any necessary adjustment", because £40 million will not fit with the Vote on Account any more?

(Question of the Motion as amended proposed)

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, now that the amendment has been accepted, I am seeking your guidance as to the correctness of the Motion when it says at the bottom "President's consent signified", I challenge the figure of £40 million as laid in the House and as the President's consent has been signified how do we go about it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We do not need special consent to an amendment which reduces the figure. If there had been an amendment to increase the figures voted that would have required the President's consent. His consent covers this smaller figure.

Mr. Munyi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, arising from what you have said that the amount in question is going to be adjusted, does this mean you have said in the clearest words possible that they are going to repay the money which they have already received or what does it mean, Mr. Speaker?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It has nothing to do with that at all. It is simply that the resolution refers to a Vote on Account which has been laid on the Table, and contains detailed figures of the amount which each Ministry is to receive by this Vote on Account, and the total of those figures comes to £41,185,312. Since we have now cut that figure down to £40 million, we will also have to adjust the detailed figures in the Vote on Account.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I must first of all pay tribute to the hon. attorney-general of the Back-benches for the excellent homework he did and on the manner in which he presented his case to this National Assembly. This makes me think it is time they called him back to the Bar again. I am sure he has put it very well and better than those could who are at the Bar, and I am sure hon. Nyamweya will agree with me on this. Hon. Nyamweya is the only learned friend here now.

Now, Sir, the Vote on Account as it stands here, I have been having a look at it and this is one of my problems which has now been cleared and I am now going to speak on the Estimates themselves.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, we, as custodians of public funds in this country, are responsible, and I am glad there will be a definite debate as to what has happened after the Auditor-General has reported. So long as we still live in this House, so long as some of us are having a head on top of our two shoulders, it will be very, very absurd among us here elected to this National Assembly by those poor people at home to come here and not do our work to scrutinize every single cent which is to be spent, or has been spent, and, above all, to know if it has been spent correctly or not.

It is not the fault of the Minister for Finance that the Financial Statement came rather late. It is because of co-operation between the three countries, so we cannot seriously Mr. Speaker, blame the Minister for Finance in this country for the late coming of this, because it concerns three people. Since the Government of Kenya, and indeed the Governments of Tanzania and Uganda are all concerned, I think they will take this as a very reasonable request that, in future, we should be given the Budget earlier so that it is not rushed through and we have more time to scrutinize every single item which we are going to spend.

Now, Sir, I am drawing your attention to the Votes here. You will find, for example, Sir, that in the Ministry of Economic Planning, the net total there is £477,400, but now we are giving them £238,700. Mr. Speaker, as far as this Ministry of Economic Planning, all we would like to know is what this amount is going to be used for. It is one of the Ministries, Mr. Speaker, before we give them this money, which does in my opinion, and in the opinion of the Butere people—and that is what I honour most—whether the Minister himself or the Government or the Ministers round here like my face or not it is immaterial—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Shikuku: we cannot, on a Vote on Account, discuss the merits of individual Ministries. That is what we do when we come to considering the individual Votes on the Estimates. We can only consider today whether you will accept the principle of giving the Government some money in advance for the purpose of the Estimates which have been laid before the House, while we debate those Estimates in full before giving them the rest. We cannot go into their merits now.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will have to reserve my attacks until we come to discuss the individual Votes.

The issue here, Mr. Speaker, is to provide for services, and to do that we must have the money, we would not be doing our duty if we refused the Government the money they have asked for. I support that this money should be given and, as the debate is so limited, I do not think I will say any more but only look forward to that report. I would like to issue one warning to the Ministers and Assistant Ministers, that in future there should not be any repetition of any money being spent without it being brought before us as it is now being brought before us without the authority of this House. I am sure they will pay for this mistake very dearly when they will be facing the masses in nine months' time to explain why they have robbed the public of their money without the consent of this House.

I beg to support.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, now that hostility is over, I think the Mover should be called upon to reply.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Order! This is a point of order. I see the Leader of the Opposition wants to speak, so I think at least I should give him the chance.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must, in the first place, thank you very much for the clarification and for clearing the air which you have so kindly done in this House. Rumour had filled the air, that the money which is for the gratuities had been used. This is the rumour which the people everywhere have heard. We have been asked about this, but we were helpless and did not know what to say. I think the country will now be much clearer as it now knows there was something wrong. I am sure that even the Government—if it is the Government of the people—if it makes a mistake—and to make a mistake is human—and if they do so they should always come like gentlemen in front of the people and admit they have made a mistake—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member not treading on the wrong ground in view of the fact that you ruled that we should not say anything about this issue?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was going to ask Mr. Odinga to leave that subject, because I said there will be a report and no doubt a debate on the report. I think we should say no more now on that particular issue.

Mr. Odinga: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I was just paying a compliment but did not want to comment on this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank the Members, particularly the hon. Member who saw fit to bring this amendment to this Motion. Although I am thanking him, I do not know how far this amendment will carry us, because I know the Government has been a little wiser than we. They know that even if we reduce it to £40 million, still the whole Budget will have to be passed in the end, and we will give them all the money which we are reducing today. We will then have done a fruitless job.

If we want to do something, we should have said that this amount should wait for our specific approval later on. This particular amount we have reduced cannot be sanctioned until we approve it specifically later on. If we are going to include it in the same Budget and pass it, then I am sure the purpose which we wanted to pursue here will be defeated in the end. This is what I wanted to caution the House about.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that I would also like us to put it to the Minister for Finance—although the Minister for Finance has told us he has to wait for the other territories in order to announce the Budget on the same day—I am sure he must know his time and he must also know the volume of work he has here, and I am sure he should try to prevail on these people to give him enough time in order to introduce the Budget at a reasonable time. This would then give us time to discuss all the Votes. If we had started a little earlier by now so many Heads could have been approved. There should only have been a few Heads, or half of them, waiting to be approved later on. If, at this time, he had only come to ask us to approve half the Estimates for him, and we had already discussed half the Votes, then I do not think the Members would have had any quarrel with that because this has been the normal practice in the past.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to say in passing this Vote on Account, I do not want this to pass without making a strong reference to the fact that we do not want Kanu to confuse us by using some of the Government buildings and the Government expenditure as Kanu expenditure. I would like Kanu, if they want to put up their buildings—we do not want to stop them—let them, but they should not begin to paint their names on top of Government buildings and Government expenditure in order to deceive the world, and to deceive our country, that they have buildings which are not theirs. This is something which is not right. It also shows that Kanu is a party of deceptions which should not be the case. Kanu—

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Leader of the Opposition in order to be harping on Kanu buildings and so on? Has Kanu anything to do with this Motion?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid I was not listening, but that building has nothing to do with the Vote on Account.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is all right because I have made my point which I wanted them to understand, and I would only say—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is a very wrong attitude. I have heard on the part of hon. Members from time to time a false point of order is made all the worse when a Member says he has made his point all the same. Likewise irrelevance. If a Member rejoices in his irrelevance, that is not really respectful to the House.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, what happens in the case of a Member rejoicing over such a thing, is it not normal that he should be asked to repent and apologize that he has rejoiced abnormally?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we can leave it at that.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since at Question Time I referred to this building, particularly, where public funds have been used, and now the Leader of the Opposition is referring to that particular building where Kanu has used public funds, is he not in order to refer to something which is indicated in the book?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. As I said to Mr. Shikuku, we cannot have a full discussion on the Estimates today. In fact, we cannot have any detailed discussion of the Estimates today. We are discussing the principle of whether you give Government a little money to carry on with all the Estimates laid before the House while we are discussing the Estimates. We are not going to discuss them today.

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to say that I support the amendment of this Motion and I hope the initiator of the amendment, will take it into his mind, and also to his heart, that we must insist that this £1 million which we have reduced is kept in our minds until the end when we are discussing things like gratuities and so on.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I only postponed action on Mr. Kariuki's proposed question of the closure to give the Leader of the Opposition the opportunity to speak. I will put the question of the closure now.

(Question that the Mover be called on to reply put and agreed to)

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move.

(Question of the Motion as amended put and agreed to)

Resolved accordingly:

THAT, in accordance with section 101 of the Constitution of Kenya, the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of the sum of K£40,000,000, made up in the manner set out in the Vote on Account laid before the House, subject to any necessary adjustment, be authorized for the purpose of meeting expenditure necessary to carry on the services of the Government of Kenya during the year ending on the 30th June 1970, until such time as the Appropriation Act for that year comes into operation, provided that the authority hereby given shall not imply approval of any items not appearing in last year's original Estimates, and in particular shall not extend to withdrawals for payment of any gratuities not previously expressly sanctioned by the House.

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

(Order for Committee read)

MOTION

THAT MR. SPEAKER DO NOW LEAVE THE CHAIR

(Minister for Finance on 19th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 24th June 1969)

(Second Day of Budget Debate)

BUSINESS

TIME FOR AND ORDER OF BUSINESS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, as we have started so late, at 4.25 p.m., I am very anxious that we should get a complete day within the meaning of Standing Orders, which is three hours, so that we do not waste a day on the debate on the Financial Statement. I am sure this would be for the convenience of the House, if not the staff that, instead of stopping at seven o'clock, we continue until 7.25 o'clock today to get in three hours of debate on the Minister's Financial Statement. This means that we shall not be able to take Mr. Cheboiwo's matter today. We will have to leave it over to another day.

Mr. Lawi, you were speaking and you have eight minutes left.

(Resumption of debate)

Mr. Lawi: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Yesterday, before the House rose, I had the following points to make. I said yesterday, Mr. Speaker, that the staff of the county councils are at times at the mercy of the councillors. I, therefore, asked the Minister concerned to see that the staff employed by the county councils are properly safeguarded. If a staff of a county council is not wanted in Nyandarua, or he is not wanted in Kisumu, he should not face a straightforward dismissal. This case must be looked into. I know that if a civil servant does not do well in Coast Province, he is transferred to Western Province or Rift Valley Province.

[Mr. Lawi]

Now, someone who commented asked how he could be transferred. However, I think we are here to safeguard the interests of our people, because we have seen what has come about. We know that some county councils have appointed wrong persons and they have refused even to commend some others for certain posts. This is known and that is why I am asking the Government to look into this machinery, because it must be looked into.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, is that we know now, that those people who used to pay Sh. 24 will not be required to pay graduated personal tax any longer. The machinery which was used previously to determine who should pay Sh. 24 did not work properly. I say this because very few people were paying Sh. 24. Equally, I would like the Government to have a committee to investigate who should not pay the graduated personal tax; it should be more careful and considerate, so that there are no arguments among those who deserve this remission. It is of no point to have an announcement made where we have no one to enjoy the facilities so announced.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, is that I know that this country has been having elected chiefs. This has not worked satisfactorily. I know that when a chief is to be elected he is rendered powerless. District commissioners are not elected; district officers are not elected; and even the provincial commissioners—a chief in a location, does he have to frame his own policies? What he has to do is to further the policies of the Government. However, when he is elected and sent to a location the following day to collect tax, he is going to be told: "Look, we elected you yesterday, what are you doing for us?" That is why development in some locations is lagging behind. This is a drawback according to me and according to other Members. It is illogical to say that if we have elected a chief we have improved the situation. If the Administration, from the top, was elected, I could agree that there is logic in electing a chief, but you elect a chief and render him powerless. This must be looked into.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which is very disturbing is the unemployment question. How can we improve the economy of this country when youngsters leaving school are not employed? I know, Mr. Speaker—

Oh! Here is an Assistant Minister who asks me where they will be employed. They will be employed in this country. What is required is only the question of how we plan for employing these school-leavers. Surely, we have schools for educating these youngsters? Are you educating them only to leave them like that? You must make provision. If you have ten children in your home, you must budget for their education, and what they eat. So, Mr. Assistant Minister, I would like to tell you, through the Chair, that we are here to say what is worrying us at home.

Now, when we come to the other very burning issue of the teachers, I know that even before I became a Member, even during the colonial days, the question of the teachers was there. It has been discussed all these past years. When is this going to come to an end? Who will consider their case? What is lacking? Despite the establishment of the Teachers' Service Commission, we still find that things are not improving. Where are we going to get a person to improve that? The Government, the Minister for Education must think fast, and know that teachers are a very important group within our community.

It is of no use to say that things are well. When we go home and the people talk to us, they ask us: "What are you doing for us?" What we can do when we are here is to say that their case has to be considered fast. It is of no use using delaying tactics of appointing commission after commission. What is required is to come out with a solution and settle their case. It has been pending for a long time.

The last point, Mr. Speaker, which I would like to make here is about the Motions which are passed in this House. I know that many Motions have been passed here urging the Government to do some things in our own areas. However, I do not know how many of these have been implemented. I know there was a Motion about the price of maize being raised to Sh. 47/50. This was passed in the other House, when there were two Houses, and nothing has been done. What is wrong? Something must be done.

With these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, I would like first to thank the Minister for Finance for his wonderful Budget Speech and the Budget proposals.

Mr. Obok: You think so?

Mr. Jahazi: Yes, I do.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I was wondering even before the Budget, how the Minister would be able to balance this year's Budget. Due to all problems facing the nation, we all thought—even the speculators thought—that this year was going to be one of the hardest ever. We were all surprised, however, to see that instead of taxation being raised, the Minister put forward a surprising Budget by, in fact, reducing the prices of some of the items which we could hardly have afforded with our jungle economics to reduce, like cigarettes. At the same time, Mr. Speaker, he presented one of the biggest development estimates. This Mr. Speaker, deserves congratulations, especially when we go across the border to our sister nations, we find that every thing went up. The people in these countries are paying more than what they were paying last year.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, we in Kenya should be proud of our Minister for Finance for having achieved what most of us thought was impossible to achieve at this juncture. Now, having said that, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say a few words about my home town, Mombasa.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am getting worried about the planning of industries throughout the country. I feel that the Government does not have any plans about the siting of industries. There is no concrete planning for this. Mr. Speaker, you find that every small town, every province and district is fighting to have industries of every kind. In many countries, Mr. Speaker, we find that the Government plans where the manufacturing industries should be placed—at such and such place—and the same with agriculture, mining, fisheries, and forestry industries. However, Mr. Speaker, I do not think there is any plan here. When a new industrialist comes, every province seems to be fighting for him and the Government does not actually seem to guide him as to where he should establish this particular industry.

That is why, Mr. Speaker, although Mombasa is the best-situated industrial town, most emphasis is being laid on tourism.

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

I am not complaining about this because Mombasa has a natural set-up for tourists, but it is also a natural set-up for industries, manufacturing industries. I feel that in future, we are not only going to have industries to manufacture local goods, but we want industries which will be able to export goods and earn us foreign currency. If, however, we have to export these things overseas and to other places, it would be very uneconomical to situate such industries in Nairobi, or Nakuru, or elsewhere, Kistumu for that matter. This is because they will have to be railed back to the port, re-shipped, the cost will be higher, and, therefore, we will not be able to compete properly overseas. I would like the Government to come out with a plan, do some survey and find out where industries can be situated throughout Kenya because, Mr.

Deputy Speaker, Sir, however much we in Mombasa would like to grow maize, whether we like it or not, we just cannot do it. Therefore, it would be folly trying to make Mombasa a maize-producing area. It is the same thing if we try to develop other towns so that they can have industries, when they are not the best situated to have such industries. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we people living in Mombasa must protest very strongly against the idea of killing the town by turning it into a town for lazy people. When people want to go for holidays, they come to Mombasa and also other persons who have nothing to do come there, whilst, in actual fact, Mombasa can be turned into a dynamic, manufacturing city with all types of manufacturing industries.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we would like to know when the Government will consider establishing a ship-building industry or a ships repair works in Mombasa, because it is the best situated with the exception of South Africa and maybe Ceylon, we do not have any other town where we have ship-building or ship-repairing industries. I think the Government would not find it difficult to establish these types of industries in Mombasa by big ship builders and ship operators.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, another thing we find is that although there have been some proposals to develop Mombasa as an island to have modern crossing facilities, we still have these ferries which are a very old way of crossing the channels. Mr. Deputy Speaker, no development can go on on the other side of Mombasa if we retain these antiquated means of crossing from the island to the mainland. I have heard and talked with many people who are capable and who have already calculated the construction of a tunnel from Mombasa Island connecting it with Likoni. This tunnel will not cost much money and it can be operated on the present system, whereby the company which will construct this tunnel will charge the ordinary toll as the Kenya Bus Company is doing at present. The Kenya Bus Company is not capable of constructing a tunnel or a bridge over the Kilindini Channel and, therefore, if it is not done by these people, the same system will continue for many years. I know of one Japanese company, of international reputation, which has constructed very many tunnels and it is willing to construct a tunnel under the Kilindini Channel to the other side demanding as little—as I cannot quote the exact amount of money—but it is less than £8 millions. I do not see any difficulty, because these people are prepared to put up this tunnel—fifty-fifty with the Government and then charge their money and when the money has been repaid, they will hand it over to the Government. Up to now, the Government has not entered into serious discussion with these people and this makes me surprised because, without a tunnel, Mr. Deputy Speaker, no development can come to Mombasa with the present antiquated and old fashioned ferry system.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, while most parts of the country are enjoying television services, the people of Mombasa should be the first people to receive television services. Up to now—and we are approaching 1970—the Minister for Information and Broadcasting has totally failed to meet this target. Everytime he tells us “it will be”, because in 1964 he was saying 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968 and last year he said that people in Mombasa would be able to enjoy themselves with television services by June this year. Up to now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is not even a single sign of a television mast or anything to talk about. This is a very shameful state of affairs for the Minister to be promising us these services. During last year, at the Mombasa Show, there was experimental booming of television for three days and this was very popular and we were told that it would be ready by this year. I would not like to call him a liar but I would like to call him a failure.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we were told by the Minister, when given his Budget proposal, that Mombasa port will be expanded, but he did not say anything about Mombasa Airport. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we understand that Tanzania is going to put another airport near Arusha so that tourists can fly directly to Tanzania. If this country is to maintain its lead in the influx of tourists, then we have to improve the services at Mombasa and also expand services in other parts of the country. Otherwise, I fear there will be a danger of Tanzania taking most of the tourists who would have otherwise come to Mombasa. Unless the airport at Mombasa is expanded—because as it is worked at present most of the Europeans tour operators find it to be too expensive—it duplicates the work to fly jets to Nairobi and then have their passengers being taken by another airline to Mombasa. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, makes the tourists' rates to Kenya very high and these people might take tourists direct to Tanzania. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I have nothing to declare since I am not an aircraft operator; but it is aircraft operator who will find this to be very expensive; to land in Nairobi and then ask the East African Airways to fly the tourists on to Mombasa. This makes them find the rate to be high—instead of flying direct and landing at Mombasa.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I heard the KPU Members attacking Government and calling this Budget all sort of names. They are making propaganda that this Government is doing nothing to help the unemployed. Now, I would like them to read the Financial Statement again and they will see in the proposed Budget we have £8 million to be devoted on road construction. This, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, is one of the projects that will employ many people who are not employed and who are unskilled. In road construction, many people will be employed, quite a good number of people we have in Agriculture and Water Development £4.7 million and this will also help to cater for the unemployed, especially those who are unskilled, who are the majority.

We find that Housing has been allotted £2.3 million. In Housing—which is part of the building industry—we have many people getting employment on building sites as painters, plumbers and electricians. Mr. Deputy Speaker, the development of Mombasa port will take in a lot of the unemployed. At Embakasi Airport, £4 million has been allotted and many people in Nairobi, who are unemployed, will get employment at Embakasi when these projects start working very soon. We hear that Broderick Falls Paper Factory is to start very soon and also I understand there will be a tyre manufacturing plant established somewhere in the country. All these projects, Mr. Deputy Speaker, are going to employ the unemployed and I do not see why a party with contrary ideas like the KPU can accuse the Government of failing to do something to help the unemployed. This is a world wide problem and, at least, we are doing something about it by this £40 million—

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, with due respect for the hon. Member speaking, who has the wonderful name of Chui, since he is talking about the Members of the Opposition, is it not shameful because there is not even a single Member of the Opposition in the Chamber?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think you know that is not a point of order. I know that it might be a good point in the debate, but this is not a point of order. If you are raising a point about a quorum maybe that is different but this is not a point of order and please do not make it.

Mr. Jahazi: Sir, I think the Opposition we have here has proved to be so very destructive that they cannot serve their purpose. It is very stupid, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for them to promise anything because when—

Sir, can I have a few minutes because of the interruption?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): No, that took only a few seconds and you have had almost your full time.

Mr. Jahazi: Sir, from the Leader of the Opposition to his lieutenants, they have totally failed, even to suggest what type of counter proposals they can give to the unemployed except to criticize. It is high time we did away with them.

With those few words, Sir, I beg to support.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Is there no hon. Member wishing to speak?

Mr. Munyi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I wanted to give time to my good friends to speak first.

I fully support the words which have been expressed by hon. Chui from Mombasa, that it is rather shameful that the Members of the Opposition, who are only five in number, this afternoon, when we are dealing with a very important Motion are not in the Chamber. I cannot see even a single Member of the Opposition in the Chamber at this time. How can Members of the Opposition claim, in the future, that they will ever form a Government if they cannot be found in the Chamber? Will they form an invisible government, a government of irresponsible people? Will they form a government of people who are unknown? A government of people who cannot be seen here? This is very irresponsible.

Now I come to the first point I wish to put forward. I would like to let the people know that the Budget Speech which has been delivered by the Minister for Finance is the Budget of the people and for the people, and is intended to help the welfare of the people. The reason why I say so is that there is not a single government in East Africa which has ever declared that the ordinary man is not to be taxed. Our ordinary people, Sir, are not now going to be taxed. For a long time we have been asking questions in the House asking for a Budget similar to the Budget which has been brought to this House. I know that my good friend knows much about socialism. If we talk of socialism, then this is one of the ways of bringing socialism, in its true sense, to the people, in a practical way.

Another important point is this. What has made me happy in the speech which was delivered by the Minister for Finance is that we now have water development projects for rural areas. This is very important. There is nothing so essential, nothing so necessary as water. I know that the Republic of Egypt is a country which has advanced a great deal, but this country will not continue with their life if there is no water from the River Nile. They depend on water from this source. I know that today there are some countries in the Middle East which are fighting—countries like Jordan, Israel, Syria, Iraq—over one thing: the sharing of water. Sir, you can see big powers fighting over water. That is why I say that the Minister has done very well to start a project which is going to provide water. Luckily enough, the name of one of these projects is Kyeni Water Development Scheme; which is in Embu. Every mwananchi in that particular area feels that he is now going to have a share in the development, have a share in whatever the Government is doing. From now on everyone there will get water. This is a pilot scheme and I hope that the next water pilot scheme will go to Kisumu Rural, Baringo or even to Narok.

Sir, we must remember that water schemes in the rural areas are very important. In the urban areas we have been enjoying water facilities for a long time. Nothing has, however, been done before to provide water schemes in the rural areas. This is the first time that the Government is taking action to see that a pilot scheme is going to be set up in this area. I am very happy that the hon. Wariithi has visited the place some time ago. He visited Kathanjuri which is the place where the water is going to come from, this is where the people are working from to send water to various places. That scheme is going to cost more than £80,000. Every mwananchi will feel that he is getting something when he sees a pipeline going to his house, to his shamba to enable him to start an irrigation scheme. It does not matter whether a person has one acre only because this water will enable him to have a good life.

One suggestion which I would like to give to the Government is this. I know that pipes are being transported by lorries of the Kenya Army. If that responsibility was given to the Ministry concerned, the Ministry of Agriculture, the amount which is being spent would have been more. Now, however, we are using lorries from the Kenya Army. Here is my suggestion: in future we should make use of the engineering units, of the Kenya Army. I know that there are roads which are in a terrible condition, there are some districts which do not have any communication, and in such districts, if the Government can make use of the road—engineering units of the Kenya Army, I am sure that the condition of the roads will be good and will help improve the communication system in all those areas. We have so far heard that there was a joint military exercise between the Kenya Army and the army from Britain. The engineering units from the British Army were sent to the North-Eastern Province; not a single soldier was sent either to the Eastern Province or any other place to improve the roads there. This is what we want the Government to do, to make use of those units, because it is a part of the exercise. I know that my friend from Kisumu Rural has been helped a great deal during the floods. The people have been going there to work. People have been working on the Kimilili sugar factory, the one in Nyanza. They have been using vehicles. I hope that when the hon. Member from Kisumu Rural, who is an economist, speaks, he will pay tribute to the good work which has been done by the Kenya Army. I know he is going to do that, Sir, because he is laughing.

We have often been talking on the question of school leavers, people who have completed their Cambridge School Certificate, people who have completed their Higher School Certificate, and saying that these people never get employment. The fault lies with the people who are practising tribalism, nepotism, brotherization in various fields, in our hotels for that matter. These people suffer. I would like to give an example of some candidates from Embu who went to the Kenya Air Force because they wanted to join this service. They appeared for the interview and after they were interviewed they were to be employed because they had succeeded; they were to become cadets. However, ever since the interview, Sir, until today these candidates have never been called up and I want to know what is happening. Several times I have gone to that Ministry to check and find out what is happening. Therefore, Sir, I would like the officers in the Ministries to follow the directive of our President, the Father of the Kenya nation, who said that no one has the right to practise nepotism, brotherization, the right of practising things which are detrimental to the progress of our country, to the unity of the Kenya nation. That is wrong.

I come now to the question of citizenship. This is a very delicate question. Why should we continue to give citizenship to foreigners? Why should we continue giving citizenship to people who are not Kenya Africans? The other day I asked the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs how many people had been given citizenship in Britain and the answer was, "None."; I asked how many had been granted citizenship in Pakistan and again the answer was, "None.", and the same applied to India. If we cannot be given citizenship in Britain, then why should the people of Britain be given Kenya citizenship? This is wrong. If our people have never been given citizenship in Pakistan, I do not see the reason why Pakistanis should be given citizenship by the Kenya Government. If not a single African has been given citizenship in India, why should we give citizenship to the people who originated from there? This is completely wrong and people must be treated on an equal basis. That is the answer to citizenship. I ask that the Government should stop, forthwith, giving more citizenship to people who come from countries which have never considered our people as worthy of receiving citizenship of their countries. You go to Britain and live there for fifty years—I know people who have lived there for 100 years but no one would even think of giving them citizenship. Why should they then cry in Kenya and say they want citizenship of this country? This is not another world, this is the same world, this is the planet on which all of us are living. Therefore, the Government should not any longer give citizenship to foreigners.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I come to another point, which is on the question of the post held by the Commissioner of Lands. This is horrible; an expatriate is still holding this position as Commissioner of Lands. Why is this? There are Africans who could take over overnight as Commissioner of Lands. I do not see the reason why this post should still be in the hands of an expatriate. This is totally wrong and it must be corrected.

My last point is that some people are worrying now, when they heard the hon. Jahazi say that women should come to Parliament. They feel their positions in their constituencies are shaky because we are going to have women in Parliament. They will have an equal share, and they are coming. In Nairobi, I know they are going to get more than three seats, for the information of hon. Members.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order!

Mr. Mwalwa: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker, for giving me this opportunity. In this financial statement—

QUORUM

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I do not think we have a quorum.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Are you objecting to our having no quorum?

Mr. Jahazi: Yes, there is no quorum.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, we now have a quorum. Continue. It took us five minutes to get a quorum, though.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was going to make a few observations in this debate. Sir, the first point I would like to make is in connexion with the teachers of this country. We have had debates, questions and discussions, and there has been much talk about the teachers of this country. We know that 90 per cent of the Members of this Chamber are ex-schoolmasters, if I am not wrong.

Hon. Members: Wrong. Very wrong.

Mr. Mwalwa: Anyway, that is subject to correction. Indeed, if they are not ex-schoolmasters, it is a fact and correct that all of the Members here have been through the hands of teachers. If they were not taught at school by teachers, they could not be Members of this House. Therefore, Sir, it is very important that the teachers of the Republic should be cared for so that they teach with interest the children of the country.

The argument put forward by the Government in connexion with teachers' salaries to me is lame, because they say that the number of teachers in the country is too large in comparison with the Vote which the Ministry of Education is given. However, knowing very well that there are many teachers in the country, and that the money which is devoted to them is not sufficient to pay them good salaries, to my mind—and I do not think I am wrong—there is only one solution: the simple solution is that the salaries given to employees in other departments are too high. Therefore, if we really mean to look after the teachers, and pay to them good salaries, the solution would be to reduce our own salaries, including those of the civil servants who are highly paid. What is wrong with reducing these salaries so that this money goes back and is paid to the teachers. Then they will educate our young boys who will be the future leaders of the country.

I feel that today, in this country, the gap between the rich and the poor is getting bigger and bigger, Sir. This is a question which should be looked into very seriously by the Government, so that we get people paid according to the jobs they do. We have seen a good example this afternoon, when this House talked about gratuities. When we had a debate about teachers, the answer we were given by Government was that there was no money in the country. We were told that there was not sufficient money to give the teachers the salaries they demand. However, what have we seen this afternoon? We have seen that a lot of money was dished out this way and that way. So, Sir, surely this money should have been given to our own teachers, so that they would feel confidence in the Government, and work properly according to the ways they are taught at their training schools.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

I feel, therefore, that the teachers must be paid according to their services, and the lame excuse given by the Government that there is no money, to my mind does not hold water. I feel that the teachers must be well paid.

Sir, I have a second point to make. This concerns the commercial banks in the country. We have passed the Trade Licensing Act in this Chamber, and the experience I have had in the country so far, is that the African is not benefiting as a result of this Act, simply because in order to be able to take over the businesses which were being run by the Asians, you have to have money. You just cannot walk into a shop and begin doing business unless you buy the Asian or European out. However, where is the money to buy these businesses out? Where is it? The money is held by the commercial banks and other financial institutions. Then, though, when we want to get an overdraft or try to get a loan from one of these financial institutions, what answer is given? In most cases, a person gets a negative answer, and the reason for this is simple. Most of the people running these banks are expatriates. Rather, these commercial banks belong to foreigners. One questions as to who are the people being told to quit their businesses. They are expatriates, non-citizens. Who are the owners of the foreign banks? The same people. Therefore, the people running the commercial banks know very well that if they give you the money, you are only going to buy out their friends. Therefore, they make so many conditions, they make it so hard that you are not able to get the money. By the time you leave the manager's office, you are convinced that it is not his fault, that fault is your own, because you do not fulfil the requirements necessary before one is given a loan. Consequently, you do not get annoyed when you leave his office. The secret is simple: he makes these conditions so that you do not get the money in order to go and buy out his own brother or brother-in-law. Therefore, the suggestion I want to offer to the House this afternoon is that whether we like it or not, whoever is in charge, maybe it is the Minister for Commerce and Industry, the Minister for Finance, or perhaps it is the President, something must be done about these commercial banks. Something must seriously be done.

Sometimes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am surprised. A Minister of this country is asked a Question in the House, and he says, "We have requested the banks, we have requested So-and-so, we have requested . . .". Request, request, request. How long will you keep on requesting in your own country? This is nonsense. How can you keep on begging and begging, and yet you live in your own country? This is serious. I think this attitude of the Ministers should be changed. They should give a direction, they should give orders to the people, so that the orders can be carried out. Otherwise, they are ineffective, because you cannot keep on requesting and begging. For how long will you beg? Are you going to beg until the sun sets?

Sir, I feel that this is wrong, and therefore if, according to Sessional Paper No. 10, it is impossible to nationalize some of these commercial banks, another system should be devised. The Government must devise a system, if they think they would be wronging their friends, to nationalize these commercial banks. Otherwise, the Trade Licensing Act will be ineffective, as long as this condition of begging and begging continues.

An hon. Member: They are beggars.

Mr. Mwalwa: Sir, I have another small point to make on the same subject, and this concerns development in the rural areas. We are told that development this year, next year, and next year, is going to be concentrated in the rural areas. However, one wonders when one looks at the rural areas, especially in the place where I come from. If today I were asked by the people in my own constituency, "Tell us, what has your Kanu Government done for us?", surely, Sir, I would feel ashamed.

An hon. Member: Why?

Mr. Mwalwa: I would feel ashamed. There is very little development which has taken place in my own area.

Hon. Members: What about Kitui District?

Mr. Mwalwa: I am talking about my own constituency, my own voters, not Kitui as a whole. I feel the development must be extended to all parts of this country, not to have all these things being done in one particular province. All the industries, and so on, go to Western Province.

Mr. Mwithaga: Point of information.

Mr. Mwalwa: I do not want your information.

Therefore, Sir, I feel that if our Government wants to be a popular one, if the Government wants up to support it seriously and strongly, they should see that development is spread all over the country. They should not develop one particular area, simply because it belongs to a particular popular Minister or a popular Member of Parliament, or a popular somebody. Surely, the development must be spread to all these places, so that everybody feels that something is being done by the Government.

Sir, in my own constituency, I have a Harambee secondary school which was started two years ago, and so far the Minister for Education does not seem to have taken much interest in it. Maybe this is because I am not a friend of his, we are not on good terms at times. Whenever I approach him, whenever I try to speak to him, he says, "You know, you are very kali in Parliament, you attack me and attack me, and therefore I am not going to do much for your constituency." Sir, that is not the way to run the Government. We do not run this Government in terms of friendship, in terms of a popular person. We run the country according to the plan, and therefore the plan must look after all the places regardless of whether a Member is naughty, or a Member is not a friend to a Minister. I feel that the Ministers given responsibility, in charge of their Ministries, must work for the country, and the country as a whole, not only for individuals, so that development can be seen all over the country.

Sir, that is not the only Harambee project which we have in our own constituency. We have another project which is very large, a water project. This needs about Sh. 200,000, and the Ministry of Agriculture also seems to be slow about this one. I would request the Ministry concerned in this water project in my own constituency to hurry it up so that the people get their water supply and feel that things are moving.

Sir, I have one last point before I sit down. This is in connexion with roads in the rural areas. I again feel ashamed when I look at the roads in my own constituency. Sometimes, when it rains I do not get home, because the roads become muddy and impassable. They become so bad that I am cut off from my own area. You wonder, if you do not go to your own area, if you do not meet your voters, if you do not mix with them, talk to them and listen to their grievances, how are you able to represent their views in Parliament. You only think, go to sleep, then wake up and say, "Oh, I think there is this need in my own area." Thinking is not enough. What you have to do is to see with your own eyes, and be told and then you are able to present what you have seen with your own eyes and what you have personally heard. I am always cut off during the rains in my own constituency because of the condition of the roads. They are poor, impassable, muddy, and there are many drifts. Therefore, I feel it is time the Government looked into all the complaints of the Members of this House, and tried to take action.

Then one wonders, Mr. Speaker, when we present these facts to the House and to the Government, sometimes the Government tends to think we are criticizing, we are exposing them to the public. That is a negative attitude. That is not exactly what we mean. We mean to present the facts as they are in the rural areas, so that the Government will wake up and find out they have not completed this or that, and therefore they should go into it and try to complete what has been started. This attitude of the Government, that its own Members, the Back-benchers, are trying to expose Government weaknesses is wrong, and it is high time they amended their way of thinking and listened to what the Members say. We always tell the truth, because we live with the people. We belong to our people, they approach us, they are not afraid of us, but they will not approach the Ministers because the Ministers are too big, they are too far away from the people.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Mwalwa: The Ministers are too far away from the people, and with these few remarks, I wish the Government would wake up and take action.

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to join my colleagues in this debate. First of all, two hon. Members, Mr. Jahazi and Mr. Munyi, made irresponsible statements when I was up in our Whip's Office. They claimed that because we were out of the Chamber, that alone was an irresponsibility. Mr. Speaker, I think if some Members are bankrupt and they have nothing better to tell the House, the best thing would be for them to sit down and keep quiet. We are a responsible Opposition, criticizing the Government, in places where the criticism is necessary.

Hon. Members: One person, one person.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, one brainy person is equal to 50 idiots, therefore that does not actually matter. I may be one person, but one person on the right—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to imply that that Opposition man is equal to 50 idiots? That means he is saying that as he is alone there he is equal to 50 people who are not in the Opposition, and that we are idiots.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members who are provoked by interjections have some latitude in what they say. He only said that he was as good as 50 idiots. He did not say who were the 50 idiots, unless they chose to name themselves.

Mr. Bala: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In fact, I did not refer to anybody. I did not actually refer to the hon. Member.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the Government announced that they were going to do away with the Sh. 24 tax. I quite agree with my friend, the hon. Okelo-Odongo when he said that the Sh. 24 is just lip service. Why could this not have been done two years ago? Why could it not even have been done last year? They are only doing it this year because they think by doing away with the Sh. 24 tax, the voters will vote for Kanu. However, let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, nobody is going to be deceived into thinking that by not having to pay this Sh. 24, they will have to vote for Kanu. In fact, if the Government had given free primary education from standard one up to standard seven, they would have fulfilled what the wananchi want, but the Sh. 24 is only a lip service. I hope that the next Parliament will have a KPU Government.

Hon. Members: Shame, shame.

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, because—

Mr. Munyi: A point of information, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Point of information, Mr. Bala?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, I do not need any information from him. I am more informed and I know all I want to talk about, and, therefore, I do not need his information.

Mr. Speaker, if only the Government could have said something to do with free land for the landless, for the people, I know, who are landless, these same people who are going to be exempted from paying the Sh. 24 tax, they are able people and if they are given land, they can work on the land and be able to pay the taxes. In fact, they would pay Sh. 48, and not Sh. 24. Therefore, instead of aiding these people so that they can be able to pay their taxes, they are trying to leave them idle, and yet they have children and wives to feed. Even if you exempt them from paying the Sh. 24, that will not fill their tummies; they will still need food; they will still need to educate and clothe their children and so on.

Therefore, the only course for the Government should be to try and help these people so that they can get land; to help them educate their children, and that is the only way we could have helped them.

An hon. Member: Where is the land?

Mr. Bala: Mr. Speaker, one Member is asking where the land is. I am very surprised as he is a Member from Western Province, because if he could have gone along the shores of the lake, he could have seen that a lot of land is now being wasted as a result of the rising of the lake and as a result of water which is not properly controlled. Therefore, a lot of land is covered with swamps. If this water could have been controlled, we could have had about 200,000 acres of land, which could have been developed. Mr. Speaker, Sir, it appears that because this Government has no proper planning, that is why sometimes we end up with a lot of people being unemployed; nobody cares about them and nobody is planning anything. The only thing they have is propaganda through the Voice of Kenya, which is sometimes wrongly used. Mr. Speaker, the Voice of Kenya should not be made the Voice of Kanu for propaganda.

Mr. Speaker, on the last day of the election in Gem, there was still an announcement by the Voice of Kenya that Kanu was going to have a landslide victory. What did we see? As a result, Kanu even failed to get its deposit back. The Voice of Kenya should not be misused like that. We want the Voice of Kenya to report accurate information which will be got correctly by anybody in Tanzania or Uganda; but now, somebody in Tanzania who heard the news that Kanu was going to have a landslide victory, only found out later that they lost. Is that not failure on the Voice of Kenya? Therefore, let the Minister for Information be very strict and not allow Tom, Dick or Harry to come and misuse the Voice of Kenya for his own ends. Mr. Speaker, that is very wrong.

Now, Mr. Speaker, presently, we have a number of people who are unemployed. Let me give you proposals. Mr. Speaker, in the area where I come from—it is a sugar-cane area—you find that people are being kept as casual labourers, casual labourers throughout the year, whereas if these people were given proper employment we could have something over 50,000 people employed. However, just to keep them as casual labourers all the time, that increases the situation of unemployment in the country. This Government does not actually plan anything—they just leave things to go on as they were during the colonial times. What is the use of having independence, if things are just to go on the way they used to, before independence? Why can somebody not be brave enough and have these plans and see that some changes take place, Mr. Speaker? Why should we have Ministers in the offices if they cannot plan for the country so that people get employment? Mr. Speaker, that is very wrong.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when you go again, to places like Muhoroni Settlement, or Songhor Settlement, which are Luo Settlement Schemes, you find that the Luo people are discriminated against. In fact, they are paying levy which no other settlement scheme is paying in the country. They pay a levy ranging from Sh. 190 to Sh. 750 for a farm of two and a half acres only. Out of two and a half acres, you pay a levy when you cut your cane of Sh. 700. Even if the whole amount is deducted, and you end with nil, you will still have to pay Sh. 750, Mr. Speaker, which is not paid in any other place.

Even yesterday, Mr. Speaker, there was a delegation which came to see the Minister for Lands and Settlement as many people want to go back to the reserve because they are not getting anything, Mr. Speaker. You will find that somebody has earned Sh. 4,000, and then deductions are taken until this man gets nil after being in the settlement for four years. Now, Mr. Speaker, where is the wisdom of going back to the land? Where is the wisdom of somebody saying "go back to the land"? Which land are you going to? If you go back to that land, you work for four years and you do not get anything. There is no wisdom Mr. Speaker. This means there is no proper planning. If there was proper planning—I know that if one has been given a loan, one has got to pay the loan—a system could have been devised, whereby if somebody got Sh. 4,000, something like Sh. 2,000 could be taken as a repayment of the loan, and the rest, Sh. 2,000 could be left for him. However, he gets all the deductions while his children are staying with him, no fees, and now he cannot afford even to buy a shirt after being in the settlement for so long. Mr. Speaker, I think that is a way of sheer discrimination. There is no other settlement scheme where such things are being done. It is only done in Luo settlement schemes, which is a big shame for some of us who pretend to be in the Government because they are doing nothing for us. Our people are not getting any benefits, Mr. Speaker.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when we go to the question of irrigation schemes, in Kano Irrigation Scheme we find that there are 1,012 families who are affected by that scheme. Out of 1,012 families, only 500 were taken. The rest—512—were left to be labourers or employees of these people who have actually settled in the scheme. Now, Mr. Speaker, it has taken over four years since the scheme was prepared and these people have no security. They have no security whatsoever, because their land was taken and, in fact, some of them were not paid anything. You found that you had a house, and that house had no title. When these people were checking for registration, some people were found to have hedges and some people having fenced their land, but later on they found that they had no land. Therefore, no compensation was paid to them and these people had no place to settle. They are just left like that, without even a place to build a house. Mr. Speaker, what sort of plan is that, if out of 1,012 families only 500 were catered for and the other 512 just left like that—you can roam about; you can live with your friends wherever you like—they are just forgotten like that? If there was a proper plan, these 512 could have been given land in the settlement scheme, and, in fact, they had agreed that, out of any compensation they might have, they were prepared to leave that money and get some land for settlement. Nobody actually cared about them. We have actually shouted in various offices but nobody cares. Even an amount they collected—Sh. 700,000 for buying a farm, nobody has assisted them to get a farm with a loan from the Agricultural Finance Corporation; so they are just left like that, their money is lying in the bank and nothing is being done, Mr. Speaker. Well, this is the wrong planning, which shows that the present Government has no aim to assist anybody, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that in the next General Elections, Government will have fair play like the one we had in Gem: but right now, there is no body constituted like the Electoral Commission. We do not have the Chairman of the Electoral Commission; nobody is planning how the elections will go; there is no place where someone can actually take his complaints—

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Member speaking has made an allegation that the Electoral Commission has no Chairman, and to my understanding, you, Mr. Speaker, are the Chairman. Is he not misleading the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. The hon. Member is quite right, certainly as far as my Chairmanship is concerned because by the Constitution of Kenya that you adopted earlier this year, included a few amendments, and one of the amendments was that the Speaker should no longer be the Chairman of the Electoral Commission.

Mr. Pala: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether some Members have just passed these Bills without even reading them.

It is just about six months ago when we passed the Bill here which deleted the name of the Speaker as the Chairman of the Electoral Commission, and I do not know whether this Member was in Mombasa and did not come and hear all these things.

Now, Mr. Speaker, there is no body like the Electoral Commission with which you can plan how the next election is going to be. Somebody, Mr. Speaker, is trying to leave this deliberately and is trying to bring chaos by way of trying to get in unopposed as they did in the last local government elections. That would bring the biggest chaos ever seen in Kenya, Mr. Speaker. It will bring one of the biggest ever forecast in Kenya, and I mean my word, Mr. Speaker.

Now, Mr. Speaker, one Member says "who cares", but because of all his deeds in Mombasa he has no support. I understand one day, he killed a bull but he could find no people to eat it because of his chaos—his usual chaos. Now, some of these irresponsible Members have thought that we are—

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is alleging that I killed a bull in Mombasa and nobody ate it. Can he substantiate that? The Member speaking has alleged that I killed a bull—a KPU bull—in Mombasa and nobody ate it; can he substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Not unless it is relevant.

Mr. Jahazi: Then he should not say it.

Mr. Bala: Now, Mr. Speaker, I will leave that point alone because I do not want to come to a confrontation. I leave that alone.

Now, Mr. Speaker, can I have one minute for that interruption?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you asked for that interruption.

Mr. Bala: Therefore, it is the end of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to oppose.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been presented with the Estimates of this year by the Government and one of the things that the people have taken very seriously—not seriously in the bad way—and with much jubilation, is the question of doing away with this graduated personal tax. However, if the local authorities are not able, any more, to levy the graduated personal tax, I can visualize a situation coming about, whereby the Government will have to run the local authorities from a central point. A Member is talking behind me, but I think I am more versed in the local government system than him. I say a situation can be visualized because most of the local authorities have been depending entirely on the graduated personal tax. Now, the people must be treated in the way they have been treated—I quite agree—by not paying the graduated personal tax. However, what will happen now if the Government is forced to take over the organization and management of local authorities as far as money is concerned? Will that not bring about a larger grant system? If there would be a grant system increased to be able to meet with the situation with the weaker councils we have now in some areas, how will the money be raised by the Government? Are we not going to increase our borrowing to be able to meet such things?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, however technical it may sound, when we take decisions we must take decisions with some other things in view; trying to visualize a situation that can crop up, and also trying to find out ways of handling such situations. That is for the Government to sit down and think and plan on.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would be interested more now with the political situation in the country. We have had a democratic rule for the last six years, since the country became independent. I say democratic 'because, however much people in this country have felt bitter about some issues and some activities of the Government, the Government has tended to show a sense of tolerance and patience. The last speaker could not wait, at least for a while, to thank the Government for allowing an Opposition to be in the benches where they are. There is no better democracy than that; allowing a small Opposition to exist in a country with a terribly large majority in the Government.

Mr. Speaker, the Opposition party—and this is one of my political principles—should not be allowed to exist merely for the sake of existence in itself; there must be a purpose. The Opposition knows very well that their political policy would not allow any opposition in any country; they would not have Kanu in opposition if they were in power. If the principle—

Mr. Bala: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Member speaking has alleged that the Opposition party would not allow Kanu to exist if it were in power; could he substantiate his allegation?

Mr. Mwithaga: I can.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, he is expressing an opinion, a fear for the future, even if it is not justified.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, even if it was a question of substantiation, I was ready. I do not normally say things in the House without knowing what I am saying. In the socialist system, which the Opposition has been echoing in the country, an Opposition party cannot be allowed, and it is not allowed in any part of the world where there is a socialist government. This is a fact.

An hon. Member: Are you an African socialist?

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member is asking whether I am an African socialist. In fact, he knows very well that the Opposition is against the African socialism, which we follow in this Republic, which means, therefore, that their socialism is scientific. With an Opposition there is no socialism. Therefore, that being the case, not one country which is a scientific socialist country allows opposition. They should agree with me that at times one can misfire, thinking that one is trying to establish a policy and then own up to being misinformed because the brothers want them to be honest with them. I have always said—I believe what I say is true because I am a Christian socialist with true Africanism—that this is so. However, politics, being the game it is, must be handled with a lot of care and with a lot of considerate emphasis being placed on the approach to political issues. Therefore, the existence of the Opposition, to me, in Kenya is unnecessary. It is completely unnecessary. There is no shame in the Opposition joining us to build the nation as one people; there is no shame at all. In fact, Sir, there is a philosopher who used to say: "If you lose honour, you have lost nothing, if you lose property, you have lost something; but if you lose courage, you have lost everything." All that they are lacking is courage, and by losing courage they are losing everything.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Mwithaga, wide though the scope of this debate is, I do not know whether all this is relevant.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I will leave them aside because I think they understand what I mean. If that is too high for them, I do not have to apologize for it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the other thing is that we must look at the political situation in our own party, leaving out the Opposition. We have to be frank on these issues now that we are facing an election. One thing the Members should understand is that the election we are going to carry out next year will not be similar to the election which was carried in 1963. In 1963 the election was for independence; the election we are going for now is national policy. That is the time when the policy of this Government will either be approved or rejected and, therefore, it is a policy election. If we are facing a policy election, we must be very careful not to have a situation like that de Gaulle had in France. We, in our party, must be able to go out to our people and go out together, but the struggle for power must be completely done away with. Egotism is very dangerous. There has been a bit of a crisis in the Kanu branches everywhere. For the information of the hon. Members, this is our last Budget before we go to the elections.

An hon. Member: So what?

Mr. Mwithaga: Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we must be able to consolidate our efforts and forget the struggle for power. After all, power comes and power goes, and leaders come and leaders go. However, if we do not believe that we are going for the 1970 elections with the clear understanding that we have a responsibility to the public, we will be making a very serious mistake. Therefore, we must be united now or never. Power struggles must cease.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the Back-benchers are supposed to defend the Cabinet, the Government and the President—

An hon. Member: Not blindly.

Mr. Mwithaga: Of course not blindly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I quite agree. However, when issues are taken by the Cabinet behind the backs of the Back-benchers, we are treading on dangerous ground. We have the issue—I do not know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, whether you will rule me out of order—like that of the gratuities which were contained in the National Assembly Remuneration Bill.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Yes, I do rule you out of order, Mr. Mwithaga, for reasons I gave earlier today: this will be debated at another time.

Mr. Mwithaga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I anticipated that order.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there are issues which are far more serious than that one which do not need further reference. The Cabinet must stop taking decisions which are controversial and cumbersome and which are difficult to be defended by the Back-benchers of the same ruling party. One cannot expect me to go to a platform in my constituency and defend an issue which affects my political principles and my political philosophy. We must be able to see eye to eye and therefore be honest with one another.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, every Member of the Cabinet is a member of the ruling party; we are Kanu, and if we are all Kanu there must be no question of referring to each other as Kanu a's, Kanu b's, Kanu seconds and Kanu firsts. Therefore, if anything goes wrong, these Ministers of today will be to blame because of trying to treat themselves as an entity. In fact, themselves and ourselves in the Back-benches are already an entity. They must agree with me that when we run a country with a political party like the one we have in Kenya today—a political party Government—we must understand that we are equal. I have to thank the President for having tried to make them understand—the Ministers understand—that we are all equal.

An hon. Member: Have they understood?

Mr. Mwithaga: We want a Minister to stand up in the course of this debate and tell us that they have understood and they have agreed and accepted that we are all going to help the country and we are all equal.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I am trying to warn them because we have a collective responsibility as far as the masses are concerned. As they are my fellow politicians I feel I should take this opportunity to warn them.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must point out something on this question of the strikes which are now taking place in our country. The other day the teachers were going on strike and they were told that on the 10th July they would have the right to go on strike. They have not got the option, Mr. Speaker. Now, is it really impossible for us to try and sit and plan, and if the Ministers cannot plan alone, they should try and use the Ministerial Committees which they were asked to have and which they have never tried to use. If these Ministerial Committees are to be used, perhaps the Ministerial Committee for Economic Planning and Development could advise the Minister on how to approach economic planning and to draw more money and to use it equitably in all spheres. The brains of the Members are being wasted, Mr. Speaker, and I am sorry to say so. The brains of the Members are being wasted because no Minister is prepared to use the brains of these Members by using the committee system to run the Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this is because some of them fear some of our brains are brighter than theirs, then they should say so, and there is no hypocrisy in this. Mr. Speaker, they must be honest and open to their fellow colleagues, they should use the Ministerial Committees to advise the Ministers so that unemployment can be curbed by using the brains of people who have alternative methods and try to find how money can be used to improve this and that organization or institution.

This, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the essence of running a good government. Do we have the Ministerial Committees? The other day the Chief Whip was collecting names again, if he has convinced the

[Mr. Mwithaga]

Ministers to call them I do not know. You have seen, Mr. Speaker, parties organized in the lounge here by the Foreign Ministry. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Members of the Foreign Affairs Committee—I am one of them, and I think the Minister does not know I am a Member of the committee.

An hon. Member: Shame on him.

Mr. Mwithaga: It is not a question of shame, it is a question of facts.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with those few observations, I beg to support, and I hope the Ministers will take considerate consideration of that.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you very much for giving me the chance to say a few things about this present Financial Statement.

First of all I must congratulate the Minister for having moved it, and I would like to make the following observations.

I will start, first of all, with the graduated personal tax, Sir. The idea of doing away with the Sh. 24 is most welcome and I must thank the Minister for doing so. May I know if this is going to be implemented? The system, Mr. Speaker, is that civil servants usually accept anything said in this National Assembly but in practice it is not done. In other words, Mr. Speaker, we have two governments. The Government of this National Assembly and the government of provincial commissioners, district commissioners, district officers, chiefs and sub-chiefs and God knows what. Now, Mr. Speaker, I accuse the Ministers, some of the Ministers use the Administration to keep themselves surviving politically. This is the wrong attitude, but this time it will be for the public to decide and watch the Ministers.

Sir, why I say this is this. When the President of the Republic of this country announced that those who were paying Sh. 48 would pay Sh. 24, this decision has never been implemented at all in my constituency of Butere to be specific. Instead, the sub-chiefs and chiefs have gone to the extent of over-taxing the poor people, and when they appeal to the district officer, the district officer goes by the decision of the sub-chief. In other words, Mr. Speaker, there is the policy of defence. If an innocent poor man appeals to the chief, the chief will not look into the matter and will have to defend the sub-chief. If you complain about the chief then the chief will be defended by the district officer. If you complain about the district officer then he is defended by the district commissioner up to the provincial commissioner level. Mr. Speaker, this is because they have the stupid regulation that you must defend your subordinates. Whether they are wrong or not they must be defended. The same thing goes on in this House. When we say anything the Minister does not want to listen to you, but he must defend the civil servants.

Mr. Speaker, this is very annoying. I sometimes regret that I ever fought for independence because during the imperialist time if you complained to the highest authority something was done. In this Government that is not the case. Mr. Speaker, I can say this very authoritatively because I went and complained to the district officer about taxes. Some poor people are being over-taxed but there are people who are related to sub-chiefs who do not pay a single cent to this Government and they are not arrested nor are they taken to court. When I went to the district officer to appeal to him he told me he would look into this but up to now I have heard nothing. They are harassing other people, sending them to court where they are being fined Sh. 50 and then they are asked to pay three years' taxes with fines.

Mr. Speaker, this is wrong and I wish the Minister would ask me to substantiate and I would then make him very small.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, you know with all sincerity that I do not take sides. Only yesterday, when I lunched with the Member, I asked him to bring those facts to my office, and he refused to do so and now he is bringing the subject here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not quite a point of order as it stands, but I think Mr. Koinange is saying really that you should substantiate this now if you were not prepared to do it then.

Mr. Shikuku: I accept it, Mr. Speaker. When the Minister talks like that, he must remember I went to his office one day to complain about the chief in question. Yesterday I told him that if I gave him these names he would do nothing. Mr. Speaker, the names of the people in the sub-location of Shiatsala, for example—

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, did he honour his promise?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There again it is not a point of order.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member should be ashamed of himself by rising on points of order which are not at all valid and taking my time for nothing.

[Mr. Shikuku]

narrowed. This Budget is not doing this at all, but is leaving the rich man to be rich and the poor man to be poor. This is wrong. I feel they should be taxed more in the things they enjoy, like television, beer, cigarettes, cars, suits, whisky—all these should be taxed so that we narrow the gap. There are also the ties, the suits, the shoes, the socks, if the Member for Kilifi South or North would like me to tell him. All these things should be taxed so that the money from these people can help in the development of this country and also provide employment for the less fortunate, Mr. Deputy Speaker.

Another point which I would like to mention, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is about the question of unemployment. Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is very, very interesting. We talk about it, but when I try to call a conference it is submerged. There are difficulties put in my way, and so I cannot talk about it. Let it be known to them—whether they talk about it or not, whether they refuse to allow me to hold a conference or not—that one fact remains, and that is that the problem can never be solved by keeping silent. This must go to the Minister for Economic Planning, the Minister for Labour, the Minister for Commerce and Industry and the Minister for Education. If they refuse to reply to my letters, that ghost shall haunt them into their graves.

About the strikes, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I take great exception to the fact that if those in Kenya, I do not care about Uganda and Tanzania, are going to demand more salaries when they know only too well that there are so many people unemployed in this country, there are so many people who do not earn even 10 cents in a year, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the Government should be tough with them, and imprison all the trade union leaders. We must have a wage freeze for five years, we cannot afford, Mr. Deputy Speaker, to have strikes when our people do not even see a 10 cent piece in a year. Where is the justification? I believe, Mr. Deputy Speaker, that these threats of strikes by people who are already earning money should be ignored they should know that if they go on demanding more money for their stomachs, their filled stomachs, they will have to be eaten up by very many empty stomachs. This is a warning to them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I say there should be no more strikes in this country, and there should be a wage freeze for five years. If they do not want to listen to this, they will one day have to listen when the hungry men tear their big bellies. The trade unions are shouting because they want a livelihood, I accept that. I am shouting also because I want a livelihood in the National Assembly. I am shouting, but I am prepared to reduce my salary to help those people who are without food. What sacrifice have the trade unions made? They call themselves leaders of the workers, when all they have are their big, protruding bellies. Mr. Deputy Speaker, they should watch out because the hungry men are really watching them.

Another thing, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is about trade, and this is for the Minister for Economic Planning. The trade, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in the Western Province is at an end completely. The people in charge of the trade do not inform the people of the Western Province as to which Indian is going. Instead, they have their friends in Nairobi and they give them the list of the Indians who are going, and the people from here go and take over the trade in the Western Province. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if umoja means that one tribe has to move into everything in every part of this country, they will live to regret it one day, and it will all be taken from them and they will be asked to go back to the little place where they come from.

These are facts and we must build unity on facts. Let Njoroge eat, let Onyango eat, and let Olukhanya eat, and let a Giriama man eat; but if it is only one man who is to eat, then he will be eaten up by all in the long run. Mr. Deputy Speaker, these are facts he must take.

With these few remarks, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would also like to join hands with my colleagues who have congratulated the Minister for Finance for the Motion which he has so ably moved.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I think Members of this House must understand one thing. In a country where we are thinking of development, in a country which has been independent for about five years, the rate of development and the type of development must be selected properly. There is no government which has been in existence for such a short time which can take over every type of development and be able to fulfil with the limited resources which such a Government must have.

Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think the Minister for Finance has reflected great wisdom in selecting the aspects which give the right priority as far as development is concerned. This is a matter which every Member must take recognition of. Developing or planning means choosing, and we must choose our priorities carefully. Government has not said, in any of the documents we have circulated to the Members,

[Mr. Shikuku]

Now, Mr. Speaker, in the sub-location of Shiatsala, a lot of my people, and particularly anybody who appears to be friendly to me, is harassed and asked to pay his graduated personal tax; his are always being arrested.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to bring this issue over and over again when only yesterday in the Parliamentary Group meeting the President personally asked Mr. Shikuku to bring forward his complaints and they will be solved, and now he is repeating it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That does not make him out of order.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I am the Member for Butere and the hon. Arab is not a Member for anywhere.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think we will have no more of it. Mr. Shikuku, I suggest we move on to something else now.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I am trying to put a case here. The case is that some of these people are suppressed because they are friendly to me or simply because they happen to be known to me. They are being harassed and arrested when there are people who are not paying a single cent to this Government, who are not being harassed. For example, the father of the sub-chief of Shiatsala Sub-location, named Okutoyi Otinya, has never paid his taxes since 1965. Oluchula Otinya, his brother, has never paid. Otinya Okutoyi, his brother, has never paid. Maimba Otinya has never paid. Johnson Otinya has never paid. Mr. Speaker, where is it provided that the relatives of the sub-chiefs do not pay graduated personal tax, and those who are not the relatives of a sub-chief must pay and must also be harassed?

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is corruption of the first order.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Member has just listed the names of chiefs or sub-chiefs whose relatives did not pay graduated personal tax, would the hon. Member be kind enough to inform the House of the source of his information?

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Deputy Speaker, the source of my information, for the information of the Minister who has no constituency, is that I am a man from Shiatsala Sub-location and I am specifically talking of Shiatsala Sub-location's sub-chief. I am from there and I know these people by appearance, I know their homes, and for his information I can even take him there. This is a fact and he can go and check for himself.

Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, the other point is that in Butere Constituency and particularly Marama Location, the people who are arrested because of having not paid their graduated personal tax are being sent to the chief's cell. There is no blanket there. There is no food. There is another man again, Mr. Deputy Speaker, by the name of Makabira Wamere who was arrested on Friday, 16th of this month, he stayed in that cell without a blanket, and without food from Friday to Sunday, and I do not recall any time when the imperialists ever did that to an African. It is a shame on this Government; and if that is what we are told we should sing Hallelujah and Umoja for, then I say no.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am being told I am the Chief Whip; I will never be the Chief Whip if I am not elected by the people of Butere. Why do not the Ministers resign after taking their gratuities?

Mr. Deputy Speaker, this is very inhuman, very atrocious and completely defeating the meaning of independence in this country, if our people can be detained without any food, without blankets. They have not killed anybody. Even I know the murderers who have been arrested in this country are given food. I am not supporting the idea that my people should not pay tax. They must pay tax, and if they fail they should be arrested. But if they are arrested they should be sent to the cell and given food. They should not be kept there without food.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I go on. There is even another sub-location called Shibembe where most of our supporters are being arrested but the other people who are not paying taxes are staying there without paying their taxes. Here is another list of those who have not paid G.P.T. in Shibembe Sub-location of Marama Location. There it is for the Minister to see.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I now come to the question of the Financial Statement. The Minister said the statement was a progressive statement and I agree with him, but it does not try to bring the gap between the people who have and the people who have not. The rich men in the higher income bracket, including the Members of the National Assembly, have not been taxed. They should have been taxed more so that the gap between the people who have and the people who have not is that we have taken over everything, or that we have resources to develop everything, but all we have put in the Estimates is what we can choose and develop according to the needs of the people. This, I think, is appropriate. For hon. Members to come with great emotions as if the resources of the country are unlimited, I think is not realistic and is not practical in planning.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when the Government says graduated personal tax for the people who receive less than Sh. 80 a month is abolished, this is a sincere move by the Government and is a move which I think is very much appreciated by a lot of people in this country. It is very helpful to the people in the country. It is not a political gimmick, but is something which has been given as promised by Government to the people of Kenya.

I am quite clear that for those Members who go back to their constituencies, if they want to know the opinion of the people, they will see that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the ordinary man very much appreciates this abolition and he feels that Government has at least removed one of the day-to-day burdens. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this very House in the past has been asking for Government to take steps in reducing or removing this burden and Government has fulfilled what has been asked for by this House for many years. I think, Mr. Speaker, that doubting Government and the Ministers, is not a sincere thing. I think we should be thankful that Government has appreciated the troubles of the ordinary man.

Mr. Speaker, the other point which has been raised is this question of unemployment. Now, we must acknowledge that the country has a bit of unemployment. We must also realize that the medicine for unemployment is economic expansion. If we expand our economy in the country, we shall increase opportunities for work. We shall employ more people, and I think anybody who has studied the development of Kenya, since independence up to now, sees that Government is expanding the economy in the country. Take, for instance, tourism—

An hon. Member: Kilifi.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Kilifi is not Kenya. Take tourism itself. Before independence, Kilifi had three big hotels at Malindi. Now, Kilifi has eight big hotels along the coast.

Hon. Members: Who owns them?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the Members understand what economic expansion is, they will see that in the Tourism Industry, people are getting employment; people are paid. Out of this pay, they are supporting themselves and paying fees for their children and they are buying their daily needs. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if this is not economic expansion—and it has been shown by the Minister that out of tourism only we anticipate to get £60 million. This item is a very big item, in fact it is almost becoming number one, of our revenue producers, in the country, and therefore, people should see what Kenya is doing in economic expansion. It is only that, economic expansion, which will give our people more opportunity of employment. Therefore I was waiting to hear, from hon. Members, suggestions along the line of economic expansion—In what areas we should expand; in what areas we should add to our expansion, and what the budget should have been done to expand more. It does not benefit the country for somebody to say, “The Minister should have not have done this”, without giving an alternative. You have to give your alternative to show your maturity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have shown it is necessary to expand the economy and I have given one instance—tourism for example, Government has got to be congratulated. Some people have said, “to whom does it belong?” They know very well that in our Constitution we allow private sector activities—and private enterprise is not illegal and is not unconstitutional. Government, at the same time, is trying to participate as much as possible in certain percentage in industries, and Members can have a look at the development plan as submitted by the Minister and they will see themselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, looking at the same question of unemployment, I think the second thing which must be reckoned with is the attitude of parents and pupils. Parents must begin to educate their children that when they get educated up to University or up to college or Higher School Certificate or up to Form 4, they should be told by their own parents not to expect white-collar jobs. They should be ready to go back to the land—and I know some of them have land. Most of the pupils who are roaming around towns like Nairobi and Mombasa have left their mothers' and their fathers' good farms which are not cultivated, and—

An hon. Member: Where?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): In your place, Kitui, for example. These young people should learn to change their attitude and learn to work with their hands and they should go to help their parents where they have land. Members, it is no use saying, "No" when the Kano Plains are empty and uncultivated, and when your own homes around the place are not looked after. Mr. Speaker, all that I am emphasizing is that parents must change the attitude, or help Government in changing the attitude of the pupils so that educated people can work with their hands. We have a wrong attitude that when we pass our degree, diploma, or when we get a Higher School Certificate, we cannot work with our hands. They must go back and be able to work with their hands. In other progressive countries this is what is done, even people with degrees can work with their hands, and in Kenya we cannot be different from the rest of the world. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, expansion of economy is being carried out by Government and the attitude of pupils should be changed, and parents can help a great deal in this.

We have shown, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in our development plan— If Members look at the education system in the development plan, they will see that the Government has developed, or is aiming at developing, much in the field of teacher training facilities and in the field of higher education. This alone is a very outstanding development aimed at by the Government. If the Members also look at the roads, expansion that is intended by Government, they will see the improvement which is intended by Government on roads, water and land. However we cannot, and I emphasize this that, nobody should give the impression that everybody must have a piece of land in Kenya, because it is not true. No country in the world has been able to give a piece of land to each of its citizens, and Kenya will not be different from other countries. There is no saying, "question" when you know very well that in your own district, where you have so many people, you cannot give a piece of land to each person. We are about ten million people in Kenya, and some people will have to live on something other than by directly depending on the land. This is a fact of life and has got to be taken by Members. Therefore, all the settlement development that Government is doing, is based on the resources of land available and it shall continue to be so. However, we will come to a point where citizens will have to take the fact and recognize it that we have to look for other means of living.

One Member of Opposition was talking about what Government has done in development around Kisumu and so on. I was very ashamed because I have gone round the place, especially in the Kano plains itself where Government is giving plots for settlement and building permanent houses to people who would otherwise be squatters around Kano area. The Member of the Opposition knows it very well and so he cannot undermine the Government in these irrigation schemes that are going on there. In fact, Government has invested a lot of money in the constituencies of the Opposition Members. This must be given to Government as credit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you visit Ahero, which is about 13 miles from Kisumu, you will see settlement schemes, irrigation schemes and new permanent houses which are put up by Government, as against the old grass-thatched dilapidated houses. Mr. Speaker, Sir, Government must be given credit where it has done something. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would, therefore, like hon. Members to know that planning is choosing, and when the Minister for Finance has limited resources he has to choose and give priority according to the best interest of our country. This is what Government has done. Somebody has said here that he cannot get home because his constituency has a lot of rain, and so on. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, immediately after his speech he came to me and asked for water pipes because his constituency has been dry for the last four years. I think that if we bring a problem to this House, it should be a true problem. We must not play to the galleries, we must be able to reason properly. I am not quarrelling with any Member of Parliament, but I am just showing that we must be realistic with money, planning, resources, and the expenditure. The Government has always emphasized the right things, land settlement, roads, education, unemployment and many others. However, unemployment will live with us for a long time because of its nature and because of the nature of our resources. This must be admitted by everybody. Regarding water, we have undertaken some projects. In the Recurrent Expenditure, hon. Members will see how Government has increased almost each item because we have envisaged the expansion in services.

With these few words Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I beg to support the Minister.

Mr. Kanani: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I thank you for giving me this opportunity of making a few observations.

Everybody is thankful for the abolition of Sh. 2 per month or the Sh. 24 graduated personal tax per year. Everybody in the country is very happy about it. However, I have a problem in connexion with that. In some county councils, for example, Busia, the taxpayers who pay

[Mr. Kanani]

Sh. 24 make about 90 per cent of the taxpayers. How is the Ministry of Local Government going to help these county councils to carry on with their functions? What grant are they going to give?

We passed here that 50 per cent of the graduated personal tax of Nairobi City Council and Mombasa Municipal Council should be given to county councils, but we have not seen this done. The money has not been given to Busia; if it has been given to other county councils, then I do not know. We would like, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, to know how the Minister for Local Government is going to show or encourage he county councils to have the initiative to raise their own money because county councils are facing a very difficult position as over 80 per cent of the money they collect goes for education alone, while other services are suffering. I would like to ask the Minister for Local Government to take over one of these important services.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Local Government is not listening while I am speaking, and yet I am particularly referring to him.

We would like the Ministry to take over one of the important services; he should either take over education—primary education—to be financed by the Ministry of Local Government, or take over health services. These two services are the most important services for our people in rural areas. Most of the county councils are unable to run these services properly, and we shall not be surprised to find that some of these county councils have been taken over by a commission. However, from past experience, the county councils which have been taken over by a commission have not been run properly. If this country does not encourage the local authority to run their own business and be healthy, then we do not know what we are crying for.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the other point I would like to raise is about development. We hope that the Development Plan of 1969/70 will be spread all over the country equally. We people in Western Province have not been considered during the last Development Plan because there is nothing at all which has been developed in the Western Province. We have only been given promises, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir. There is no paper factory which we were promised. The promises are mere words; the factory is theoretical and exists nowhere. Its site has not even been surveyed and it is not known where it will be. Sir, we hear of a sugar factory in Mumias. This is just an experiment, and in this Chamber we heard the Minister, when he was making his Budget Speech, say that the factory will flourish and will be developed.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

There are 1,000 acres under cultivation. This is very little, Mr. Speaker. Therefore, we hope that in the next Development Plan, the Minister for Economic Planning and Development and other Ministers who have collective responsibilities will see that something that can be seen—something practical—should be put up in the Western Province. We are not satisfied, Mr. Speaker, Sir. When we shall go home for the general election what shall we tell our people? I still do not know because nothing has been done in that province. If we tell our people that the Government has done this or that for Western Province, and that if we are elected to go back we shall do this or that for them, it will be a lie. How shall we tell our people a lie again? Six years ago it was said that we were going to have a paper and pulp factory, which does not even now exist. The textile factory which was to be built in Busia was taken away by somebody; we do not know who. What for should we cultivate cotton? How can we encourage our people to plant more cotton when we have no textile industry? Mr. Speaker, Sir, we were promised from the beginning by this Government, in 1963, that the industry would be located near Busia.

I would like to make another point, and this is about loans. We say our people do not get enough loans. I have two or three people who have applied for loans but their loans have never been approved. It takes a very long time to process the applications of loans because they have to go through local trade officers and district commissioners before they reach Nairobi. Some people have never had any letters of acknowledgement. You find that when the people who are not indigenous people of the districts of the Western Province apply for loans, they get them easily. However, when the indigenous people apply for the loans, they are not given, and they even receive no reply. This is shocking, Mr. Speaker, Sir.

Sir, we are talking about development. We want the whole of Kenya to be developed equally, not some parts to be isolated and ignored while others are helped. This is not the spirit of Harambee. The spirit of Harambee is that everybody should pull together, everybody should benefit from the fruits of independence. We should not hear it, on the radio, being said in

[Mr. Kanani]

Nairobi, "Harambee" and yet we on the borders, in Busia, in Bungoma, in Tororo, still live as we were during the colonial times.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we want development of roads, we want better communications. The Minister for Communications is here and we would like him to hear this. We would like the railway from Butere to be extended up to Bungoma, and another branch from Yala to go right up to Port Victoria. In this way we can transport cotton and other produce, as well as oranges, mangoes and other things. These things have no market because there are no roads. We have no good roads, we have no communication. Our postal services are very, very bad. A letter takes two or three days to get to Funyula, a very short distance of about 300 miles only. This is simply because there are no facilities. The Government has not turned its eyes towards the Western Province. We want, in the next development programme, the Government to turn its eyes towards us. We are Kanu supporters, strong Kanu supporters, and I assure this House that the Members from the Western Province will come back on a Kanu ticket. There is no doubt about this. We are not biased, we have no Kanu A and Kanu B in the Western Province. There is only one Kanu and we acknowledge Mzee Kenyatta, the President. Probably it is you in Tana River who have Kanu A and Kanu B because you have a lot of disputes there. We do not have any disputes—

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member speaking in order to address me directly?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the hon. Member was only waving his arms in your direction, he was not meaning it personally.

Mr. Kanani: You are right, Mr. Speaker, I was just waving my arms in his direction, but I was not addressing him personally.

Mr. Speaker, we people in Bungoma and Busia Districts would like a teachers' college to be built in our area. All the other colleges are around Kisumu: we have Siriba which is near Kisumu, we have Kaimosi which is near Kisumu, we have Eregi which is also near Kisumu, we have Kisii near Kisumu, then there is the Kericho College which is also near Kisumu. Look at that. Is this really the spirit of Harambee? Is this development? We live over 100 miles from Kisumu. The only college we have, which is in Butere, is also threatened with closure and so, once again the students from there will have to go to Kaimosi, which, as I said, is near Kisumu. When we speak of development, we would like everything to be distributed equally and evenly. This is why we fought for independence, as the Chief Whip says.

Mr. Speaker, when the President made his speech on Madaraka Day, he mentioned development of the rural areas. Our problems in the rural areas are caused by lack of water. Some of the people in the rural areas could raise more cash and food crops if water was available. There are some places which are arid, they do not have any rain, there are no streams nearby and people cannot inhabit such places. We hope that in the next Development Plan the rural areas will benefit more than the urban areas. We seem to see that development, economic development, is based in Nairobi and in the big towns of Kenya: around Nairobi, Thika, Mombasa and Nakuru. What about Kakamega? If you go to Kakamega, Sir, you will not think it is the provincial headquarters. There are no developments, no buildings. When I went to school about 30 years ago—for the first time—Kakamega was then as it is today, and this is the same Kakamega I am seeing today after Kenya has attained independence. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like development of our provincial headquarters, big buildings, nice buildings, better housing and so on. I am being asked where is the money, but the money is here.

Another point I would like to make is in connexion with the Development Plan. We would like to say that the self-help projects are very much appreciated by the people, but the Government does not give enough funds, enough support to help these projects. People are encouraged and they do the work. They are told, "If you help yourself, the Government will help you." The people help themselves but not much, at all, is given by the Government. For example, Sir, the amount of money given to Busia this year for development is only Sh. 42,000. If you divide this amount among six locations, what do you get? It will be very little. Worse still, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the self-help projects are completed, they are not used. For example, Sir, in some clinics there are no medicines. I have one in my area which the Minister for Social Services opened a little while ago, but there are no medicines there. How we can encourage people to build more, when the county councils have no money, and the budgets, when submitted, are not approved quickly?

With these few observations, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Budget Speech.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am grateful to you for having given me this opportunity so that I can also make a few observations on this Financial Statement. When I went home at the weekend, Sir, I heard the local people we represent all over the Coast Province expressing their gratitude for the manner in which the Minister for Finance tabled his Budget. I, therefore, do not have any alternative but to join my friends in congratulating the Minister.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister for Social Services gave a few examples to the House, concerning economic expansion in the country. One example he gave was tourism. Sir, we do not have any quarrel with the big, big things that Government talks about, but there are those small things which appear to the Government to be small but to us they are very important; so the Government should think about both, the big and the small things.

One of them, Sir, is— This is the reason why the Minister has thought of increasing a bit of taxation this year. If it were not for that, if it were not for the losses we have had to incur on maize and wheat produce, I am sure we would be in the same position as we were last year.

Here, Sir, I have the Kenya Weekly News magazine dated the 23rd May 1969, from which I am going to make a few references. It appears to me, Sir, that these two crops, namely, maize and wheat, have become a problem and a headache to the Kenya farmers. A few years ago, when there was not sufficient maize in the country, the Government was forced to import maize from the United States into Kenya and the taxpayers suffered the loss of money in the process of buying the maize, transporting and distributing that maize all over the country. Then Government decided to campaign to the maize farmers all over the country so that they would grow more maize. Hence more maize was grown, but there was then no place to store this maize. Again the farmers had to suffer because they had to accept a lower price in order that some money could remain with the Government with which maize stores could be erected. We are still suffering from this.

With regard to wheat, at the request of the same Government people increased wheat production. Wheat has now been increased in the country. It is stated that by 31st December 1969, we shall have not only the wheat we need but we shall have a surplus of one million bags of 200 pounds each. This is correct. One million bags, maybe more. These are the figures mentioned by the experts of the wheat industry. Now, Sir, the Wheat Board will definitely be forced to sell this wheat. It is stated that the price paid to the wheat farmer is Sh. 45 per bag. It is also said that transport for that same bag of wheat, say, from Nakuru to Mombasa, will cost the Government a total of Sh. 24. So, if we were to transport all those one million bags, then this country would be likely to suffer a loss of £1,200,000. So, Sir, the figure which the Minister feared, of £2 million of both maize and wheat, is not accurate; the figure will be higher, and there is every likelihood that the citizens of this country will have to suffer further.

Sir, if we have to incur losses and we do not see the price of wheat flour being reduced, we are only told the world market is not favourable and that is why we have to sell at low prices, then why do we not, as a Government, reduce the price of this wheat. So that when the consumer goes to the shops he finds that wheat flour is being sold at a lower price? In this way he will enjoy, and there is no reason why he should continue suffering all the time. In fact, Sir, the Manager of this Wheat Board said that if every Kenyan can consume one loaf of bread per week, this mess would be done away with. I do not see why that Wheat Board cannot campaign for the consumption of wheat in the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is stated on page 3 of this Kenya Weekly News magazine:—

“In view of the increased cost of producing wheat to the small farmer, and the expense of contract harvesting and so on, which the big grower does not face, it is questionable whether he could have been encouraged to grow wheat in the first place.”

But, Sir, Government is still going on appealing to farmers to grow more wheat, when we are threatened now with a surplus and we have to suffer for that surplus. If the farmers are to grow another crop, which is the crop they can grow?

I would suggest here that cotton has no problem of surplus in the world market, nor in the local markets. The cotton grown in this country is not even sufficient to feed all our industries. There is a big demand in the world market. It is good, therefore, to think in terms of giving these people a chance of growing cotton instead of wheat. If the land is unsuitable for cotton-growing in certain areas, then I would say that we have plenty of land in Kenya in such places as my district. This area has been proved, beyond any doubt, to be good for cotton-growing. In addition to this, there we have the biggest river in the Republic which will supply water for irrigation. Also, instead of losing £1 million, or £2 million a year, why do we not utilize the same money to develop that land. Instead of the water flowing into the Indian Ocean for nothing, why do we not utilize the same water to develop the land there, and get the farmers and the landless people who are suffering unnecessarily to that land so that they can produce cotton and do away with the losses we suffer from constantly.

Mr. Speaker, I think I shall be speaking on these things in greater detail when we come to the Vote of the Ministry of Agriculture.

I want to say something on the Flying Doctor Service. This is one of the best service we have received, medically, in the rural areas. We understand now that there is shortage of money to enable this service to continue. The Government has delayed very much, it has not released the money to enable that service to carry on. This is a threat to the people in the rural areas, the people who need and benefit from this service. I, therefore, wish to appeal to the Government to see to it that funds are available to this service so that it can continue as in the past. In this way, Sir, we, the people in the rural areas will continue to enjoy the services rendered by this service.

Another point I wish to mention is with regard to Kanu membership. We have been urged last week and this week, and I think this drive will continue, for Members of Parliament—and many others—to become life members. This is fair enough, but one thing I do not understand is this. The same Kanu which appeals for Members of Parliament to become life members of the party is the same party which is supporting some local people to pay only Sh. 17 per year. I do not say that is nothing, but I feel that the person who pays more should have greater party participation. We see, Sir, that some people are causing trouble in small branches. I am told this is supported by the Minister in charge of provincial administration, the Attorney-General and so on. These people have their support and they are allowed to cause misunderstandings in the branches. Tana River is one, Sir. Imagine, Sir, we held our elections—

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is this question of troubles in Kanu district branches relevant to the debate?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I was just about to say to the hon. Member that the internal problems of a party are not relevant to a debate on the Financial Statement.

Mr. Komora: I thank you, Sir, for your ruling. I am sure I shall find an occasion when I shall air these views.

Mr. Speaker, I would wish to touch on agriculture and irrigation. We, in Tana River, feel that the Government arrangement in placing rice growing in Mwea, and cotton growing in Galole, is wrong. This is because, naturally, the Pokomo, as the Tana River inhabitants, are rice growers and rice consumers, and the natural crop for them to grow, therefore, would be rice. A normal Kikuyu does not eat rice and, in fact, they are more interested in cash crops. We get cash and food from rice and I think the correct arrangement should be that Galole Irrigation should grow rice and the Mwea Irrigation rice should grow cotton. These people have plenty of cash crops and food crops and they do not suffer from floods and we do. Many of the crops we grow in Tana River are affected by floods and rice is not. If the schemes were arranged in the other way I think they would go better than the present arrangement we have.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, with these few remarks I wish to support the Minister.

Mr. Munyasia: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity to express my views on this fine Budget. I have no quarrel with the Budget, but I have to make a few comments on various Ministries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, time and time again we have been told that we must get unity between the Administration and the public. I think this is very well, but I think there is something fishy there and the Minister responsible for the Administration should watch very carefully that whatever he tells this House is put into practice. The Member for Butere has indicated this so clearly, and papers were placed here. The other day, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you will remember that I presented my question about the sub-chiefs and the way they treat the public. Therefore, I think the Minister responsible should come out in his true colours and try to scrutinize his staff. It is pointless to preach unity; we are seeking unity, and there is no unity.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Okuto-Bala is not here, but he challenged the Government and said the Government has just given this reduction of Sh. 24 because the election is near. I think this is a wrong statement. I see throughout the country that people are very happy because of this Sh. 24. However, there is one question that I do not know how the assessment will be done, for one simple reason that in the past those people who were paying Sh. 48 or Sh. 24 were badly assessed. I think the Government must go into this matter and see that there is no nepotism and no brotherization on this so that the poor fellows who are not relations of the sub-chiefs are not left out of this favour. If we are assessed on a country-wide basis, I do not think it is properly done. Therefore, I think the Government should see that there is a fair assessment of the graduated personal tax, otherwise there will be chaos in the country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Okuto-Bala also said that the Government has done nothing, but I think that is a bad statement. Since independence the Government has not done very much, but I think it has done something. The Kanu Government has done something for the country and it is no good saying that nothing has been done by the present Government because it has not embarked on its manifesto by giving free education. I do not think he knows how much it would cost the Government or the Republic to run free education. Free education is not something to be joked about because even today, the exercise books and the text books cost money. I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman understands how much it will cost the Government if it tries to embark on free education.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: What are you trying to say?

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, I am saying that the time has not yet arrived for free education. Perhaps when you form the Government—Although, I think that is a dream because I do not think you are ever going to form a government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Opposition takes this opportunity of challenging the Government and saying "When we form the Government". The country, I think, has arrived at state where we should seek the truth, and where we should not lie to the people but should tell them the truth. It is a dream for the Opposition to think that one day they will form a government. Kanu will still maintain the same Government; Kanu will be returned and it will form the Government, and that must be known by the Opposition.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, putting that aside, I think I had better touch on a few of the Ministries.

Now, Mr. Speaker, may I turn to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. As some hon. Members have expressed the opinion, I think also that the Minister for Commerce and Industry should see that there is no nepotism on the loans. Also, they should see that those members of the Asian community who do not qualify should leave the country. I think he must have a thorough check. I remember very well that some few months back the Provincial Commissioner of the Eastern Province did announce over the radio that 23 Asians were to leave Kitui District. However, up to the present moment I do not know how many have left because the same fellows, the same faces, are still maintaining the trade. Whether this statement was a laughing statement or not I do not know. I fail to understand why, out of the 23 who were to leave, six have been reinstated and I do not know how they were reinstated. This is a shame for the people of Kitui and I think the people of the area are prepared to take over the business. There is no question of us being told that the Africans are not capable of running business because we know they are capable. You cannot challenge someone unless you give him the opportunity, and then if he fails you can say, "I let you do this and yet you failed". However, unless you give him this first attempt, how on earth can you challenge him?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is another Ministry which is very interesting, and that is the Ministry of Health. I know the Minister and I would like him to listen to me very carefully. The Ministry of Health is doing all it can to see that the country is running smoothly and the facilities in the hospitals are provided. I want the Minister, when he can, to give clarification on this point. Mr. Speaker, at present, in Kitui District Hospital, the subordinate staff cannot be employed unless the provincial commissioner gives his consent. I fail to understand whether the provincial commissioner is the one to give the consent, or whether it is the provincial medical officer of health. If not, what is the use of having the provincial medical officer of health? We have vacancies at the moment for subordinate staff, and yet the doctor says that the provincial commissioner has not given his "O.K." to employing the subordinate staff, but this is not the provincial medical officer of health. I think this is the wrong procedure. The provincial commissioner is purely an administrator and I do not know how he comes to be the Government appointed appointer of subordinate staff in the hospital. I think that must be put right. At he moment we are lacking some staff, and there are vacancies. I think the Minister for Health should do something to see that it is not the provincial commissioner who approves the appointment of subordinate staff, but the provincial medical officer of health.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if I may, I will give a warning to the Minister that I think we have gone astray on these self-help projects. In this Ministry, I think the Minister is being over-ridden by the Administration because the Minister is there to plan what is the next project, and you find the Minister has got a plan and at the same time the Administration is also planning for the same Ministry. The people fail to understand who is who and who they should believe. If it is a plan sponsored by the Government, it should be planned by the Minister for Health, but an administrator should not plan and embark on the health side and say, "All right, I want this to be done here" without consulting the Minister. I think this is the wrong approach.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, leaving that aside, I now come to the side of agriculture. The Member for Kilifi, the hon. Ronald Ngala, said that the school-leavers and what not should go back to the land and till the land. All the people are tired of this slogan "Go back to the land", although it sounds very good. People have the responsibility of going back to the land, but what is the outcome when those people have gone back to the land? Mr. Speaker, you find that after tilling the land, and after planting their crops, the prices given are very poor indeed: a bag of sorghum, of 200 pounds, is Sh. 5. Who is going to accept this? Even a chicken, a kuku, is worth that. If you go to the fish and chip shop here, you buy a chicken for Sh. 10 and yet you only get Sh. 5 for 200 pounds of sorghum. What is the use of telling these people to go back to the land? That, to me, is an exploitation because people should not sweat for nothing, or if they are not going to benefit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir while agreeing with this call, I think that Government should see, when people respond to this call to go back to the land, that the prices are reasonable. If a bag of maize fetched about Sh. 20 or Sh. 25, that would be encouraging; but a bag of maize of 200 pounds, being sold at Sh. 8, is wrong, Mr. Speaker. In some of the rural areas, an acre cannot produce more than three bags. Forget about the western area where rain is continuous; I am talking about the rural areas where we have dry places and the rain is only there sometimes, and that is where an acre only produces three bags of maize. If a farmer has got two acres, and he sows maize—or sorghum, for that matter—then he gets six bags of maize or sorghum. If you multiply that by Sh. 5, you find that he gets Sh. 30, and that is what a goat is worth. Therefore, what is the point of preaching to the people that they should go back to the land? There is no point. I would suggest that the Government should think how they can list these prices so that the farmers who have gone back to the land do benefit from what they have planted.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, while on this Ministry, I would like to say that the people have been told to launch a campaign for cotton-growing in the rural areas, in those dry areas, for instance, Kitui. We have formed the Kitui Cotton Growers Society, but the Ministry this year—although this society is registered—has refused that the cooperative society should buy this year's crop. The Government has agreed that an Asian should buy it, but this very Asian has been there since 1939; he does not cultivate, he does not till the land, he does not sweat, but he waits for the farmers to till the land, harvest, transport the cotton to the ginnery and then he gets the benefit free of charge. I think it is high time the Ministry of Agriculture—and I think my hon. friend here, the Assistant Minister, will convey this to the Minister for Agriculture—saw fit that the people of this society were given the opportunity this year to buy the cotton. The Ministry has said that because of the failure of another ginnery in the western region, this should be so. We in the eastern region are being penalized because people in the western region failed to run their society for buying cotton. Why are we not given the opportunity and the chance to buy and see whether we fail? You cannot punish someone who is not the offender; you cannot punish Munyasia simply because Tsalwa has committed an offence. This is wrong.

An hon. Member: Have you got money?

Mr. Munyasia: Yes, we have the money, we have plenty of money here in Nairobi and also in Kitui.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is very discouraging and the people have arrived at the stage when they are not going to plant cotton. They are not going to do it because, why should they do it when someone else benefits from it?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, before I go into the heart of my speech I would like to say that I am very surprised to see that the hon. Member who has just spoken is very confused. Mr. Speaker, he is so confused that by saying that Kanu will stay in power forever, he is, at the same time, criticizing the President of the party which he is advocating will remain in power forever. This was confusion. May I take this opportunity to tell him that in the last election we came to his aid, but this time, now that he is going to stand on his own, he will have to look out.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member has just said that implementation of free education promise will result in difficulties and as such we should not talk about that promise. This is confusing, and, in fact, I could not understand what he was talking about. If this was in the Kanu Manifesto, is he actually speaking on behalf of the President who wrote the Manifesto, or is he trying to speak his own words? This is causing

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no obligation for him to withdraw. He has explained why he said this.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: He said he——

Hon. Members: No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have explained. You carry on with your speech.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, while you are speaking to me and this confused Member here is actually interfering, could he let me hear what you are asking me to say?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am saying you should continue your speech. You have explained what you did say.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, what I was trying to say is that when recruitment takes place, and when there is a programme for recruiting people into the police force or the army, this should be extended to all districts, but if some districts are not considered, this is unfair, and, Mr. Speaker, this cannot be tolerated. The money these people are going to consume comes from the pockets of people of different tribes. The idea of discriminating against some areas, and considering others as the best to recruit from, is a poor one and should not be entertained.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the other point I would like to talk about is medical attention. Here, Mr. Speaker, you find the expectant mothers, when they go to deliver, are asked to pay maternity fees. This is wrong because when the President said there would be free medical attention for the people of this country, then the women should be included. I do not see why the women should be treated differently in that when they go to the hospitals for delivery they are asked to pay maternity fees. Mr. Speaker, this is unfair. At the same time you find the women teachers, when on maternity leave, are not given any salary, when this is the time the mother should be given something to enable her to have enough food at that crucial time. You find this is the time they are not given anything, and at the same time they are asked to pay maternity fees. This is unfair, Mr. Speaker, and I feel this is treating women differently from others as far as medical treatment is concerned.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Chillo, I am afraid there will not be time for you to complete your speech this evening, but you might like to have another four minutes when we resume the debate.

We have just consumed, I think, three hours now, and we are long past the ordinary time for interruption of business, so the House is now adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, 26th June, at 2.30 p.m.

The House rose at twenty-five minutes past Seven o'clock.

[Mr. Ondiek-Chillo]

confusion and I hope in the primary elections for Kanu such confused Members will not be considered by their Party. In fact, he is no worthy of consideration and should be discarded, Mr. Speaker.

A Member who stands up and says things are difficult, things which have been planned are difficult for him, and when you meet him outside he tells you things cannot be implemented overnight. When is the overnight? This is like saying that you cannot bring forth a child today and then tomorrow he walks. A child who was born in 1963, if he cannot walk now, is surely a cripple. Kanu, as a Party, is crippled and there is no question about this. Kanu is crippled and cannot walk. With the Kanu slogan of unity, we want unity which is productive, but we do not want unity which produces nothing. A unity of a husband and wife which produces children is a unity worthwhile considering; but if it is a unity which brings forth nothing, then you must consider marrying another wife in order to have children. Where are the children we expected to be born by the Kanu Government? Where is the education? Where is this free medical attention we were promised? This is a child which should have been born.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that the confused hon. Member who has just spoken, if free education was introduced tomorrow I believe it is his children who would appear in the school at 7 a.m. Today, when we are advocating for this, he feels that what we are saying is not worthwhile considering.

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, although I do not like interfering with the hon. Member who is speaking, do you think the hon. Member is in order when he refers to the other hon. Member as the confused Member?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not an unparliamentary comment on another Member's speech.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I thought I had explained myself—

Hon. Members: You are wrong.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I thought I explained as to why I said this, and even the Member himself was satisfied because he never queried this.

Mr. Mumyasia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance. I did not intend to accept the challenge, but I was going to stand on my feet and query him when he said I was confused, but the hon. Godia stood before I did. Is he right to say I was satisfied?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I doubt it.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Now, Mr. Speaker, I believe the Member was sincere in saying the people are tired of the slogan "go back to the land", but whose slogan is this? Is it not the slogan of the President whom he is supporting and at the same time challenging? Is this not confusion? If he is actually supporting what the President said about this slogan of "go back to the land", then he should support it wholeheartedly and without any question.

Mr. Speaker, I am leaving that point now. The Minister for Finance is asking the House for an amount of money to be spent by the country; but if I may, I want to say that this idea of discriminating against some other tribes as far as recruitment of people into the armed forces and the police is concerned is very bad. Everybody in this country is a taxpayer, and the money they are paying should be enjoyed by people of all tribes. The idea of thinking that the Luo at present appear to be a security risk; as the Vice-President told me in an answer to a question the other day, is a very wrong assumption.

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Member speaking trying to mislead the House by saying the Vice-President answered his question by saying the Luo are a security risk in the country? Is he not misleading the House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am sure he is not trying to mislead the House. He may be wrong in his facts on what the Vice-President said. I cannot remember, I am afraid. I rather think there was a suggestion of that kind in what he said. Perhaps the hon. Member has seen more in what the Vice-President said than what he really did say.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I put a question in the House which asked the Government why the people from Nyanza had not been recruited into the army and the police force for the last two years. The Vice-President, when he was answering my question, said that the Government has considered that for security reasons. If it is for security reasons, is it not true that the Luo are now being considered as a security risk?

Hon. Members: No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members you see that is what happens sometimes. It was not a direct statement by the Vice-President, but it is a deduction, and not an unreasonable deduction, by the hon. Member from what the Vice-President did say. I think we will let him carry on.

Hon. Members: Substantiate.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker—

An hon. Member: Will you withdraw?

Mr. Mbogoh: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the Minister has made a very serious allegation that he has evidence of things which he wants to conceal in regard to the hon. Munyasia's friend. In such circumstances, would it not be in order if he laid that answer on the Table, and then it could be circulated to the Members and not to the public?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, we cannot normally treat documents laid on the Table as private property. They really become public property by being laid on the Table, though I have asked in very special cases, like the Report of the Committee of Privileges, for the report to be treated as confidential for a limited period. In this case, I would say that the best solution is for Mr. Munyasia to seek privately from the Minister the information that he has, and to make it known to other Members of the House at his discretion.

Question No. 294

EVICIONS FROM SETTLEMENT SCHEMES

Mr. Barasa asked the Minister for Lands and Settlement to state why the following settlers had been evicted from their settlement plots without being taken to a court of justice:—

- (a) Wanyama Masinde, Plot No. 123 in Kabuyefwe Scheme;
- (b) Jeremiah Mbako, Plot No. 137 in Kibisi Settlement Scheme.
- (c) Musa Matere, Plot No. 202 in Kamukuywa Scheme.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Malinda): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. The settlers named in the Question were evicted from their plots because they were chronic loan defaulters. By virtue of section 174 (3) of the Agriculture (Amendment) Act, 1965, if any sum of money, whether principal or interest, due in respect of any advance made is unpaid for more than six months, the Settlement Fund Trustees are empowered to evict chronic defaulters without recourse to any court. Before such action is taken, however, each case must be fully considered by the Sifting Committee.

On this occasion, on the 26th February last, the Sifting Committee recommended 15 chronic defaulters for immediate eviction. The three evictees in the question were included.

Mr. Barasa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, according to the answer, I understand that they have been chronic defaulters, and that these people have been evicted: they are living by the roadside. They have no other place to go; their children are now out of schools, and still all these people are not allowed to go back and get any food from their land. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether the Assistant Minister would accept money from these people because they are helpless and the co-operative society is ready to give them money so that they go back to their pieces of land. Is he ready to accept the money?

An hon. Member: Accept the money.

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, provided the plots which they occupied have not been re-allocated, this can be arranged. However, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out to the hon. Member, that the question of family commitments should make it all the more necessary for the settlers to bide by their letters of allotment in that they must pay their loans in time.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising out of the answer from the Assistant Minister to the effect that the Committee considered their case, could he tell the House what the case of each one of these gentlemen was, and how much each owed to the Settlement Fund Trustees?

Mr. Malinda: Mr. Speaker, the figures were— at the time of the Sifting Committee—Mr. Wanyama Masinde, who occupied plot No. 123 in Kabuyefwe, owed the Settlement Fund Trustees a sum of Sh. 3,949; Mr. Jeremiah Mbako, who occupied plot No. 137 at Kibisi Settlement Scheme, owed Sh. 1,887; Mr. Musa Matere, who occupied plot No. 202 Kamukuywe Settlement Scheme, owed Sh. 2,401.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 294:
EVICIONS FROM SETTLEMENT SCHEMES

Mr. Godia: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, with the permission of the Questioner, may I be allowed to raise this question on the Adjournment?

Mr. Barasa: I give him consent, Sir.

Question No. 263

C.P.E. REPEATS IN KISII

Mr. Kebaso asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether, in view of letters recently produced by the Minister to show that Gusii County Council members, in co-operation with Kenya National Union of Teachers, Kisii Branch, deliberately encouraged

PRAYERSORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONSQuestion No. 253CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGE ON KITUI/KIBWEZI ROAD OVER ATHI RIVER

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Works to state what progress had been made so far in construction of a bridge over the Athi River on the Kitui/Kibwezi Road.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the following is the reply. To date, both abutments have been completed, one-and-a-half piers completed, and one reinforced concrete bridge span has been cast and completed. Work is now in progress on the construction of a coffer dam in the river to enable a piling rig to be set in position to drive the piles for the remaining two pier foundations.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that reply, would the Minister tell us what was the estimated period for this work to take initially?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I did not quite catch the Member's question, but—

An hon. Member: How long will it take?

Mr. Mwanyumba:—if he is asking about the time which will be taken to finish the work, I can tell him that we have had some difficulties because of the high level of the river which is now flooded. We think that when the floods recede, work will start immediately, and will be completed.

Mr. Mwalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that this river becomes very dangerous during the rains, and in view of the fact that so far the work has been very slow, would the Minister assure this House that the work is going to be completed before the next rains start?

Mr. Mwanyumba: I would not like to give that assurance, Mr. Speaker, but I have said that immediately conditions are favourable for our workers to do this job—because now it is dangerous to work in a flooded river—work will begin. If there are no floods, we hope to finish it as soon as possible.

*Question No. 254TARMAC FOR KITUI/KIBWEZI ROAD

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Works to state for how many miles the Ministry intended to tarmac from Kibwezi towards Kitui on the Kitui/Kibwezi Road.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is no intention to bitumenize this section of the road at the moment.

Hon. Members: Why not?

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the reply from the Minister, and also noting the reply which I have been given here in writing, would he tell me when the last traffic census was carried out on this road which revealed the volume of the traffic on the road as being insufficient to warrant bitumenizing it?

Mr. Mwanyumba: I would not be able to give the date, Mr. Speaker, but the last time a traffic census was carried out, it showed that at present the traffic does not warrant the expenditure of public money to the extent of making this road up to bitumen standard.

*Question No 292TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT OF MR. MUTISO WITH I.C.D.C.

Mr. Munyasia asked the Minister for Labour to state—

(a) if the Minister was aware that on the 14th May 1969, Mr. P. K. Mutiso's service with the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation had been terminated;

((b) what the reasons were for this termination.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) I am aware that the services of Mr. Mutiso with the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation were terminated on the 14th May 1969.

(b) The reasons, I think, may be destructive to the man my hon. friend wants to protect if they were told to this House. If the hon. Member insists that I tell the House, I will, but I think they would jeopardize his chance of getting a job somewhere else.

Mr. Munyasia: Mr. Speaker, this question being so serious, I think the House would be interested if the Minister told us the reasons which led to this dismissal because—

Hon. Members: No, no.

Mr. Mwendwa: Mr. Speaker, I am doing this in the interests of the man whom my friend wants to protect. Since he is his friend, it is better that these things are hidden. I have them here, but they do not do any good to anybody.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

[Mr. Munoko]

Act. Under this Act, Mr. Speaker, section 17 (2), it lays down quite clearly that it empowers the commission to pay salaries on default of the local authorities, and such payments to be recovered from the local authorities by the Minister for Local Government.

The second part under section 17 (3) empowers the Minister for Local Government from time to time to make advances to the commission in order to ensure the commission is able to discharge its responsibilities as an employer of teachers. In this connexion, Mr. Speaker, the consent of the Treasury is required. I am sure this is the one aspect which the hon. Members have been referring to when saying that the Treasury is sitting on the consent. This matter is now being gone into. Mr. Speaker, hon. Members will recollect it was only yesterday when I said this matter was being discussed, and up to now the matter is still under discussion and we hope it will soon be finalized.

Mr. Speaker, the county council has to try and do its best to see all the services which they embark on are supported by the resources which they are able to muster. They cannot, Mr. Speaker, go round and make a lot of fuss about matters which they ought, legally, to look into on the spot.

I know, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the grants payable to the local authorities have been reduced. So far as South Nyanza is concerned, for 1968 it was £215,000; but this has been reduced to £199,000. This is true of all other local authorities.

Mr. Speaker, the matter is now being looked into and I hope something will be done to save the situation.

The Minister for Finance (Mr. Gichuru): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I only stand to support what the Assistant Minister has said.

If I were to try and find money when county councils go in default it would mean taxing people who are already properly taxed, who are honest and who pay their taxes. If a district refuses to pay tax, this is very unfortunate. My ambition has always been for the country to be taxed leniently, and just try and collect the money which we actually need. Whatever we can collect we should try and distribute evenly. I understand, as the Assistant Minister has just said, money has not been paid. Graduated personal tax is not being paid. I am glad to hear the school fees have done pretty well. They are only short of about £50,000, but that is quite a lot of money.

My feeling is that the Assistant Minister has definitely promised this question is being looked into, and in looking into the question all the other things must play a part. It is in this way we could be looked upon as being fair.

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Kibuga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appreciate what the Assistant Minister has said, and also the Minister for Finance, that the South Nyanza County Council has to pay the graduated personal tax properly. I agree with this, but what we are now concerned with is the question of our teachers and the children. In the Teachers' Service Commission Bill, which has now become an Act, it was promised in giving the teachers one employer the purpose was to see the teachers were paid their monthly salaries at the right time. We now find that the teachers in South Nyanza have not been paid.

If the citizens of South Nyanza refuse to pay their graduated personal tax, then the people to be punished should not be the teachers but the people themselves, and not the children. I would suggest that instead of the Ministry of Local Government waiting until one county council is in difficulties, and then going to the Treasury to look for this money, there should be a ready fund whereby when it comes to the question of paying teachers, the teachers would be paid immediately and then the county council would be followed up. If the South Nyanza people refuse to pay their graduated personal tax properly, at the beginning of the year some of the services should be cut. Instead of refusing to pay the teachers some of the teachers should be transferred to other counties which are paying their teachers properly, or who are raising their taxes properly.

To leave the teachers and the children to suffer is very bad indeed. So far the Assistant Minister has not told us what will happen. The teachers are on a sit-down strike, and this is serious. The Minister and Assistant Minister have not told us what they are going to do about this. If they were to tell the people of South Nyanza that because they have failed to pay their graduated personal tax the teachers will be taken away, that would be a different position. The children of South Nyanza have to be educated.

In finishing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would appeal to the hon. Member who has raised this question, hon. Ngala-Abok, together with the other Members from South Nyanza, and all the councillors there, to go round the county area talking to the citizens and persuading them to pay their graduated personal tax properly. I would not like all the money to go to South Nyanza, but I would like some to come to Kirinyaga, and to other is any problem that the Government is facing now in releasing that money, we should be told here. According to what we were told last week, there is no problem except that the Treasury is sitting on the application.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one point which I want to mention is that if this situation continues, and the children are left to suffer for a long time, then it should be possible for us to demand that the children, especially those in Standard VII, who should have been preparing themselves, during this time, so as to be ready for the examination next term should not be made to suffer. The certificate of Primary Education examination should be postponed so as to compensate for the days lost. In this case, Mr. Speaker, the Government should take the matter very seriously because we cannot have the children suffering under the disguise that it is the responsibility of the South Nyanza taxpayers. It is not a question of tax. If you go and get the records, you will see that these people have paid their comparative share. The percentage paid, if the Government had to match that, they would not have a problem in May; they might probably have a problem in September but not so early. This we want the Government to match and therefore make it possible for the county council to run its affairs and make our children, and the public at large, enjoy the facilities given by the Government rather than deny these people through the refusal to pay this money from Nairobi.

If there is no grant—I see the Minister for Finance looking at me—I suggest that we give them a loan so that we assist them. The money is here; we saw in the Estimates that there is plenty of money. Therefore, we had better give them a loan, if this is possible.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to support very strongly, and second.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I share the anxiety of the hon. Member who has moved this Motion about the children who are now not getting their education, as they have already paid their fees and the rest of it. However, Mr. Speaker, as I said yesterday, the grants payable to the South Nyanza County Council for 1969 are £199,150. Out of this they have already been paid the amount due to them for the first half of this year, which is £99,575. The grants which are due and payable to this council, as at present, are already paid and the Council cannot, at this juncture, say that they had any money outstanding which should be paid by the Government.

Mr. Speaker, on the contrary, the council has a debt to the Government to the tune of nearly £270,000. Between £32,000 and £35,000 is in the form of school equipment which has been supplied and the council has yet to pay for it. The other amount is £37,000, which is in respect of reimbursements for health staff, together with other staff which have been seconded. On top of that there is £12,750 which is due to the Government in the form of loan charges which should have been paid but which have not been paid. On top of that the Government has made loan grants from the Local Government Loans Authority to the tune of £185,945.

An hon. Member: Too many loans.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member may say too many loans, but this is one of the points which has been made by one of the hon. Members—I think it was the hon. Mr. Omweri—who said that they should be given a loan if there are no grants to be given. However, the hon. Member should realize that a loan is not a gift and it has to be repaid. The main sources of revenue open to most of the local councils can be classified into three categories. The first one is in the form of graduated personal tax, and as far as South Nyanza County Council is concerned, it has estimated a revenue of £140,000, of which only £30,000 has been collected as at the 31st May 1969.

Mr. Shikuku: They want free things, that is all.

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the next item of revenue is school fees. In their estimates they have £156,000, out of this £103,000 has been collected leaving a balance of £53,000 to be collected.

Mr. Speaker, the third source of revenue is Government grants, and, as I have already indicated, the full amount has already been paid. Mr. Speaker, the best way which is now open to South Nyanza County Council to obtain revenue is for them to collect the graduated personal tax which is still outstanding and, also, Mr. Speaker, they should collect the fees. In this respect, Mr. Speaker, I must be quite fair to the county council, the administration is responsible for the collection of graduated personal tax, and I would very much like to see the Administration tighten up on ways by which it can have this money collected as soon as possible in order to remedy this situation.

Mr. Speaker, the only other way now open, in which perhaps the Government could help, and I am sure it is going to help, is as laid down in section 17 of the Teachers' Service Commission

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Vice-President and the Minister for Home Affairs the following Question by Private Notice.

In view of the constant trouble caused by Kanu Mombasa groups, which threaten peace and security in the area, what steps does the Government intend to take to bring unity among people in Mombasa?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. The Government is well aware that, occasionally, certain differences do arise amongst the party officials in various places, Mombasa Kanu branch being included. It is, however, up to the party leaders to sort them out in accordance with the Constitution.

It is not the intention of the Government to intervene in political squabbles, but if anyone tries to take the law into his own hands, the police will deal with him accordingly.

The security situation at Mombasa is being watched, but, so far, there is nothing to indicate that any community is threatening peace as the hon. Member has suggested.

Mr. Ndile: Mr. Speaker, Sir, may I know from the Minister who authorized the registration of that Union by Maalim Juma?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I do not think that is relevant.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, did I hear Mr. Jahazi shouting at the hon. Mr. Ndile to shut up? He shouted "stupid" I am sorry. He did say he is stupid.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I hope not. I did not hear him.

Mr. Shikuku: I am asking a supplementary question, Sir. Arising from the reply given by the Minister that there is no threat to peace, is he aware that the other day, I read in the East African Standard where it was stated that—

Could you bring the hon. Arab to order, Mr. Speaker, Sir?

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the hon. Shikuku tell us who is the hon. Arab here?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It was quite clear when he pointed his finger. The hon. Member so described did not seem to object.

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not yet know who the hon. Arab here is. Would he therefore tell us please, although the hon.—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Do not be tiresome, Mr. Omar. Let us get on.

Mr. Shikuku: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir. Arising from the previous reply from the Minister for Home Affairs to the effect that he does not think that there is any danger at all as far as security is concerned at the Coast, is he aware that the other day, I read in the East African Standard to the effect that some people tried to set fire to the hon. Mr. Balala's car, and that the Mayor of that place was threatening to retaliate. What does "retaliation" mean? Does it not mean violence and is that not a threat to peace?

Mr. arap Moi: I would like to assure the hon. Member that whatever is being said by the newspapers is not what the Government does, nor are we worried by what the newspapers say, because the newspapermen would like to have their newspapers sold and, in this matter, I am now considering some of the writings in the newspapers—not only here, but even overseas—because of the incitement which is being brought about by these trivial matters, which are not of great importance.

Mr. ole Lemein: Mr. Speaker, Sir, will the Vice-President tell us, because there are two parties in Mombasa one is Maalim Juma's party and then, the first one, which one is registered officially?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, this question relates to peace and security at Mombasa, and that is all we are justified in considering in this House. Only further questions on that subject can be allowed.

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from the last reply from the Vice-President, is it not true that an attempt was made to set on fire Mr. Balala's car and, if that is so, is it not a threat to peace? Will the Vice-President be prepared freely tell this House what that means. Is that not a threat to peace?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, Mr. Luke Obok has made a remark which I disagree with, namely; that an attempt was made. If I ask him to prove that there was such an attempt, could he do so? There was a suggestion that there might be some squabbles about those who say that some of their property might be damaged, but the police have the situation under control, and therefore, as I said before, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is nothing which suggests the peace within the area was being threatened and the Government is watching the situation all the time.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that last reply, would the Vice-President also, rather than ask that we prove, confirm that the car of the hon. Balala, which it was threatened would

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if I remember correctly Mwangi and Maina is an age group which was formed by the hon. Kenyatta, His Excellency the President, the hon. Harry Thuku, and the hon. Jesse Kariuki, about 40 years ago, so was the Attorney-General given consent by the three veteran politicians to ban this organization?

Mr. C. Njonjo: Mr. Speaker, I speak out of ignorance because I know nothing about these societies called Mwangi and Maina—I do not know what they mean—but I can assure the hon. Member, my friend, that the President is not a member of this society.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We will go on to the Question by Private Notice.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 296:
BANNING OF MWANGI/MAINA ASSOCIATION

Mr. Gikunju: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if I am allowed by my hon. friend, I would like to move this on an Adjournment Motion.

Mr. Kibuga: I have no objection, Mr. Speaker, especially when I know that every Kikuyu either belongs to Mwangi or Maina.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, now that it is evident that this is a question of Kikuyu business, would it be in order for us to get involved when we do not know anything about either Mwangi or Maina, or Gikunju for that matter?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is not a point of order.

We will go on now to the Question by Private Notice.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I understand that Question No. 299 has not been asked.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Thank you very much, you are quite right. We will go on to that now.

Question No. 299

TANA RIVER NORTH IRRIGATION SCHEME

Mr. Wakole asked the Minister for Agriculture if he would tell the House, since there had been quite good progress and an improvement in the Tana River North Irrigation Scheme and that the number of people wanting to join the scheme as tenants was increasing, would the Minister consider expanding this scheme so as to accommodate more people.

The Assistant Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Murgor): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In collaboration with the Netherlands technical assistance team stationed at Galole, we are now looking into the feasibility of expanding the Tana River Irrigation Scheme by an additional 600 acres so that we can accommodate 150 families as settlers.

Mr. Wakole: Mr. Speaker, Sir, while appreciating the answer from the Assistant Minister, could the Assistant Minister tell me how soon this will be?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, as soon as agreement is reached.

Mr. Komora: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that we have had this type of promise all along and in view of the fact that this House has passed a resolution affecting the expansion of that scheme, and that Government has not expanded that scheme, will the Assistant Minister assure the House that the scheme will be expanded during the next Cabinet session?

Mr. Murgor: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I said that the technical assistance team is in Galole, and as soon as we finalize the agreement, we will start.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

DIFFERENT KANU GROUPS IN MOMBASA

Mr. Omar: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I remember that on many occasions you have said in this House that party affairs have to be dealt with by the party itself but not by the National Assembly. Now, is the Member in order to ask such a question which is a party affair?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I have said, and I say again, that the internal problems of parties are not the concern of this House, but when they are such as to threaten peace, as alleged by this question, then it is the concern of the House.

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, could the Member justify the fact that peace is threatened to such an extent in Mombasa that it warrants a question of this nature by a Member from outside Mombasa Constituency when there are constituent Members at Mombasa?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! The extent to which peace is threatened is a matter of opinion, but I think all of us are aware of the extent to which police have been concerned with certain troubles at the Coast from time to time. I would have thought the fact the question was asked by an hon. Member who was not from the Coast was better evidence of his sincerity being concerned about peace rather than any other policy.

be set on fire, was taken to the police station for safety and investigation, and this is what was in the papers?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member was listening, I said that as far as security is concerned, it is under control and there is nothing to worry about.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: DIFFERENT KANU GROUPS IN MOMBASA

Mr. Komora: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I be allowed to raise this matter as a Motion on adjournment?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Just give me notice, that is all

CONSIDERED RULING

QUESTIONS WHICH MAY NOT BE ASKED

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would remind hon. Members of a Standing Order which I had temporarily overlooked. It is Standing Order 37 (13) which reads:

“A Question shall not ask whether any statement in the Press . . . other than a report of something written or said by a Minister or Assistant Minister or civil servant, is inaccurate”.

So supplementary questions, asking whether what they read in the newspapers is true, are out of order.

I think we must go on now.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER STANDING ORDER 20

DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF NAIROBI SHANTIES

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to request you and this House to allow me to raise a matter of national importance because of the problem affecting people in my constituency. I want to raise this matter under Standing Order 20.

Mr. Speaker, I have 6,000 families in my constituency who have lost their homes—one may call them shanty houses but they happen to be there—as a result of fire which has destroyed the houses and property of these people. The city council has continued to refuse to build any shade under which they can shelter themselves. The families are out, so are the children, and their difficulties are continuing to increase. There is a very great need for this House to request the Government to say what it wants in this matter.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I beg to request that I should be allowed by this House, through you, to raise this matter as a matter of national importance.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! That is a definite matter and evidently of considerably urgency, if so many people are without shelter at the present time. The degree of national importance, I think, is for hon. Members to judge, but there is certainly some degree. So I will enquire whether 15 or more hon. Members support Mr. Lubembe.

(A number of hon. Members stood in their places)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Yes, Mr. Lubembe, you may move the adjournment of the House to raise this matter of provision for these unfortunate people. The only question is the timing of it.

We have to spend a full three hours on the debate on the Financial Statement. So I think it will have to be at 6.15 p.m. that you move the adjournment. That will only give us a quarter of an hour before the ordinary interruption of business. However, I think the House would agree, for the convenience of the House, that you be given a little more time. Perhaps we could let discussion run until 6.45 p.m.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like, when the Member refers to 6,000, whether he would like the Government to find out the actual figures or is this the figure he read from the newspapers as was suggested? This is important. Instead of us just discussing on any figure, it should be a definite figure.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is, of course, important for hon. Members to have their facts right whenever they put a proposition to this House based on those facts.

I would not have thought the exact number mattered as long as it is a large number. The issue is the same, I think.

I would add, which I did not say before, I did say yesterday or the day before, that these Motions under Standing Order 20 can only relate to matters of administration for which the Government is responsible. This is primarily a matter for Local Government, I think. It did, however, strike me as something of sufficient emergency for the Central Government to be interested. That is why I think it is a proper matter for Mr. Lubembe to raise.

POINTS OF ORDER

CRITICISM OF KENYA BY OTHER EAST AFRICAN COUNTRIES

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, very often you have ruled from the Chair that when we are discussing anything that affects the three East African countries we should not level criticism against friendly countries, be they East African countries or otherwise.

Now, Sir, when you read the parliamentary reports published in the newspapers as reports of discussion in other National Assemblies you will find that they talk in bad faith about this country, have you any relationship with other Speakers to ask them to control their Members? In the National Assembly of Uganda, for example, a Member, when speaking, was really hitting at us very hard. Yet, in this House, when we try to do the same thing you say we should play it cool. Do the other Speakers also apply the same rule?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is a very interesting proposition that Mr. Shikuku has raised. Of course, we have no control at all on what is said in other countries, and there is no permanent association between the Speaker of this House and the Speakers of the neighbouring Parliaments.

However, I would be prepared to inquire, as a matter of interest, from my colleagues in neighbouring territories whether they have the same rule as we have, and if not, might it not be a good idea.

MISREPORTING ON THE VOICE OF KENYA

Mr. Jahazi: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether this is a good time for me to rise on a point of order with regard to a certain paper and also the Voice of Kenya misquoting me in relation to what I said here last night?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have asked hon. Members, when they are troubled by a misquotation or a misrepresentation in a newspaper, simply to ask the editor to put it right.

However, when it is the Voice of Kenya, I think the editor is a little more difficult to get hold of. So I allow it as a point of order in the House.

So you say what it is.

Mr. Jahazi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, yesterday when I was speaking here, I did not see any reporter from the Voice of Kenya or the Nation up there and yet when they reported me I do not know where they obtained the material from. I was reported as saying that the Government is laying so much emphasis on tourism throughout the country and forgetting other industries. I was reported as if I was condemning tourism development in Kenya.

Actually, what I said was that Mombasa, in particular, was being turned into a tourist centre instead of an industrial centre, and therefore, more emphasis should be laid on industrial development in Mombasa. I did not talk of this throughout the country. The picture the Daily Nation and the Voice of Kenya painted was that I was against tourism development in the Republic of Kenya as a whole as against industrial development. That was a wrong picture altogether. So, Sir, I would demand that they correct this.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I would like the Voice of Kenya to note this.

However, it does not sound to me as if the report was so very different from your description of what you said. Anyhow, we will ask the Voice of Kenya to note that.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, on the same matter I also have a complaint to make. I said in Butere Constituency some sub-chiefs—I specifically stated two sub-chiefs. I did not speak of the whole of Butere but just Marama, Shiatsala and Shibembe but they have reported that in Butere Constituency the relatives of chiefs or sub-chiefs do not pay graduated personal tax. I did not say that. I said the sub-chiefs of the two sub-locations—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, we cannot always expect reports of what is said in this House to be 100 per cent accurate. But these serious inaccuracies are extremely irritating and sometimes quite damaging.

This is now three complaints of the Voice of Kenya reported in two days, I think. I would ask for a little more care to be taken by the reporter of that organization.

BOWING TO THE CHAIR

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the other day I was asked by a student to explain why when Members enter the Chamber, and the Speaker is not there, they do not bow, they just enter and they converse freely but when the Speaker enters he has to bow. I was asked to explain the meaning of this. I merely said this was to honour the House.

Mr. Speaker, would it be in order for you to tell us why, when we enter and nobody is in the Chair, you bow, like I see the judges doing in courts of law. What does that signify? Are you respecting the Chair or Members of Parliament, or what? What is the position?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! When the Speaker bows to the empty Chair, he is bowing to the House, he is showing his respect to the House.

Mr. Kebaso: Point of order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kebaso, we must get on soon. Let us have your point of order, though.

Mr. Kebaso: Mr. Speaker, I also am talking about this misreporting. The other day, I raised a question here about how many employees the city council has taken from the Labour Exchange. One paper said—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): How long ago was this, Mr. Kebaso?

Mr. Kebaso: Last week.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Hon. Members, it is too late to start complaining a week after the misreporting. If you want to do anything about it, it has to be very quick.

Point of order, Mr. Kariuki?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: No, Order No. 5.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Chillo still had four minutes to go.

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

MOTION

THAT, MR. SPEAKER DO NOW LEAVE THE CHAIR

(Minister for Finance on 19th June 1969)

(Resumption of debate interrupted on 25th June 1969)

(Third Day of Budget Debate)

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, soon after independence, there was this idea of self-help. I would say it is actually promoting tribalism in the country, more than anything else, particularly with the Ministers. Always we hear that the hon. Moi has gone to Baringo, the hon. Nyamweya has gone to Kisii, the hon. Kiano has gone to Murang'a. These Ministers have never gone beyond their constituencies.

Hon. Members: Question, question.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: They are national Ministers and should not concentrate on their areas only. I cannot remember any day on which the hon. Moi has been to Nyakach and contributed anything, even a single cent. I cannot remember any day—

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, will the hon. Member speaking substantiate the serious allegation he has made that I do not go beyond by constituency?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, the way to deal with that, Mr. Nyamweya, as he is alleging a negative, is for you, on a point of order, to tell him he is wrong. You can do that. You can refute a negative.

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member from Nyakach is misleading the House, because, as a Minister of the Republic, I have visited practically every district in the Republic.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Before you go on, Mr. Chillo, I would point out that what Ministers give out of their own pockets is not relevant to a debate on the Financial Statement, which concerns public funds.

Hon. Members: Hear, hear.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Anyway, Mr. Speaker, what I was trying to say is that when the Ministers are making any contribution, they should do so to—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is not relevant.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: The other thing I would like to say concerns secondary school leavers, Mr. Speaker. It is said, time and again, that there is a shortage of teachers in the countryside, and yet a number of school-leavers, particularly those with school certificate who should be given places for P.1 training, are not taken care of. If we are short of teachers—and, in fact, most of our primary schools are filled with untrained teachers—why can the Government not increase the number of teacher training centres, so that these School Certificate leavers who have no employment could be taken there for training? Then, instead of saying that we do not have enough teachers within our schools, we would know that we have enough teachers. These facilities are not planned to enable us to have more teachers in our schools. I think this is a great failure, and if these were good planning, I believe more school leavers could be taken into teacher training schools and then become teachers.

At the same time, in regard to the Teachers' Service Commission, this is very vague at the moment. When this House asked whether teachers were civil servants, we were told that they were not. Yet the Teachers' Service Commission is supposed to be a Government body which looks after the teachers' terms of service and conditions. You find, at the moment, the teachers are nowhere. Some are said to be employed by the local authorities, and some are said to be employed by the Teachers' Service Commission. Teachers asked for one employer who could cater for all their terms and conditions. At present, the conditions of the teachers are getting worse, as a result of forming this Teachers' Service Commission. Teachers in the rural areas are left in the hands of their communities, which should, in fact, be building houses for them. These people are very poor; they do not have any income, and this should be cared for.

Also, the question of water development is not looked into. Many schools do without water. The Minister for Economic Planning should look into this.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to say a few words on this Financial Statement. Sir, there is a lot of noise here from a few Masai sitting together.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order!

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. ole Tipis): Mr. Speaker, on a point of order, is there anything wrong with three Masai Members sitting together?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot hear you. What did you say, Mr. ole Tipis?

The Assistant Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. ole Tipis): Is there anything wrong with three Masai Members sitting together?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. It was only the noise I think Mr. Kariuki was referring to. You are asked to sit together quietly.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start by saying something about our East African Community and, in particular, to try to reply to one of our friends in the Uganda Parliament who has chosen deliberately to attack Kenya through the East African Community.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are not going to reply rudely, are you, Mr. Kariuki?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: No. I am not a Government Minister. It was never the intention, Mr. Speaker, Sir, when the East African Community was formed, to halt development in Kenya in order that development in Uganda and Tanzania might be hastened.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! There is too much noise.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, it was not the intention, as I understand it, for the Community to try to prove that its existence will improve the development of Uganda or Tanzania. At the same time, it is therefore not very important for some Members of our partner states to try to attack us, either directly or indirectly. It was not the objective of the Treaty that, because the rate of economic growth in Kenya is 6 per cent, that in Tanzania and Uganda it should be the same. This was not the intention of the Community. The current anti-Kenya attitude in some quarters, is outside the purpose of the objectives of the Community, and I think Mr. Nekyon should not have tried to undermine the Community through making such a statement which appeared in yesterday's newspapers.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I think it should also be known by everybody in East Africa that we are not responsible, and we should not be blamed, for the fact that during the Colonial rule, the Colonialists concentrated economic industrial development in this country and not in Tanzania or Uganda. This is not our fault and, in any case, we have sacrificed, and we are sacrificing even now, and these achievements of ours during the Colonial rule have, in fact, been paid for through our sweat and blood. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, as Mr. Shikuku wanted, there must be some co-operation between the Speakers, or if that is not possible, then the three Heads of State should be able to control the speeches of some politicians from their own countries. These will only endanger our Community, which I think is useful for our community in East Africa, in Kenya and in Uganda.

Another thing which I want to mention, Mr. Speaker, before I conclude on this subject, concerns our achievements in the East African Community. In the present conditions in Uganda, we have what is called the transfer tax. This transfer tax has undermined our exports to Uganda, and also there is the system by which they issue licences to exporters or transporters in Uganda. This also has undermined our business activities in that state. In that case, Mr. Nekyon should have checked in his own papers, and seen that Kenya is suffering more than any other state in East Africa. I think that hon. Member ought to be told the truth by the Ministers from this side who represent us in the East African Community.

Leaving that aside, I do not want to go into details, because there are Ministers here who will probably reply to the statement. However, I would like also to mention something else. The hon. Specially Elected Member, Mr. Ochwada, would like to know how we are affected by this Community. I would advise him to read his Economic Survey where he will see some facts stipulated there quite clearly. For example, Kenya's total exports to Tanzania and Uganda declined by 13 per cent from £30 million in 1966 to £26 million in 1967, and it remained at this level in 1968, because of the way they issue licences to our exporters in Tanzania and our [Mr. G. G. Kariuki] business people in Uganda. I think it is important that this point should be dealt with quite carefully by our Government because, in 1968, Kenya's total volume of inter-state trade fell by 3 per cent; in Tanzania it rose by 8 per cent; and in Uganda it fell by 12 per cent. That is not because Kenya was working against Uganda; that was not why the volume of trade went down. It was because of the restrictive measures created by themselves. They were created by themselves by way of transfer tax and also by issuing of these licences.

Mr. Speaker, this decline in Uganda's volume of trade with the other partner states occurred, mainly, because of the restrictive import licences which were imposed until May of this year, and Mr. Nekyon—who has been a Minister for Information, I understand—was involved in creating this Community. If we think he made a mistake, and that was why he was thrown out of the Government by Dr. Obote, he should not now make malicious statements against the Kenya Government. Our Kenya Government is stable, it is not like that of theirs which is fighting tribalism and federalism in their own ways.

Mr. Speaker, another point I want to make here concerns the one which the Leader of the Opposition made the other day. I am glad that Mr. Speaker corrected the Leader of the Opposition and he himself assured the House that he would never again make such statements outside the House. He was talking about the Sh. 2 rate of graduated personal tax which has been waived by the Government. He said this would not create employment for the people. It is true, it will not create employment for the people, but what was the alternative? He should have told the House his alternative and his proposals, but just to attack the removal of the Sh. 2 and to say that it will not create jobs for the people is not enough.

With regard to self-help projects, in the last few months I have referred to the way some politicians have been behaving in dishing out money to the public. This is all right, but there is something I would like to tell the newspapers in this country, and the Government, Mr. Speaker. The newspapers and the Government in this country will not benefit the country if they just allow statements which are not true to be published all over the place. At any self-help meeting you will hear that Sh. 40,000 has been contributed, but if you go into the details, except for promises, the money has not actually been given; it has only been promised. Recently, in Nakuru, there was a dance, if Members would like me to refer to it. It was said that Sh. 26,000 was collected when, in actual fact, it was only Sh. 126 which was collected. The newspapers, for your information, Mr. Speaker, reported Sh. 26,000.

Mr. Tsalwa: Where?

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: This has happened. Another problem I would like to tell the leaders of this country about, which is now cropping up in the self-help projects, is that the chairmen of self-help projects are innocent people, but when the leaders go and promise that they are going to pay a certain amount of money and they do not do so, they commit the chairmen of the self-help groups to buying various items on credit. In future, this will bring these wazee to trouble. I think the leaders of this country who promise money—because most Members of Parliament are influential people—must pay the money they have promised.

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious allegation, that some Ministers of this House, as well as Members of Parliament, have promised to give money to certain self-help groups. Could the hon. Member substantiate that such Members and Ministers who have promised this are in this House?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, Mr. Tsalwa, because, as I said to Mr. Ondiek-Chillo just earlier, if it is a question of contributions by Ministers or other Members out of their private purses, that is not in the least relevant to debate on the Financial Statement which concerns public funds. We should therefore leave this alone.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, I think you are quite wise in taking such a decision to inform the hon. Mr. Tsalwa who is always panicking when he hears something being mentioned.

Mr. Speaker, I think, all I am trying to say is that people who promise things should honour their promises, no matter whether they have the money or not. If they do not have the money, then they should not promise it.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Kariuki, do remember what I said. We are not talking about promises of personal contributions; that is quite irrelevant, and we want no more of it. If it is promises on behalf of the Government, that is a different matter.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Now, Mr. Speaker, thank you for your ruling and, at the same time, I do not want to pursue that further because I do not want to get into a conflict with your ruling.

Another point that our Government should look into is the question of unemployment. This unemployment problem has been discussed from various quarters; and just recently the hon. Member for Butere attempted to call a certain seminar on the unemployment problem, but this, Mr. Speaker, did not materialize. I think the question of unemployment should not just be brushed aside. The Government must take the initiative and see to it that something is going to be done on this question of unemployment.

Another thing, Mr. Speaker, which is also a problem to our Government and ourselves is the question of squatters. This question of squatters should be looked into seriously and carefully by the Government, especially in emergency villages.

Mr. Speaker, since my time is over I would like to end up there and I beg to support.

Mr. Kamau: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise to join the other colleagues of mine by congratulating the Minister for Finance for his able and very well-balanced Financial Statement which he has made to this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, outside in the country the community as a whole is very, happy about the deleting of the Sh. 24 tax for the ordinary man because this has been giving a headache to the people and especially to the unemployed. They are very happy about it and it has shown the maturity of our Government because this has never happened before. Even if the Opposition was trying to say that it was an election gimmick, it is the duty of all responsible Governments to respond to the wish of their subjects, to lead them when they are in difficulties, and this was one of the tasks in the country. It was a very heavy burden to the ordinary man in the country and that showed that our Government has seen sense and I would say that I hope the Kanu Government lives forever.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have only a few points to give to the Government which I would ask the Government to take a serious view of them. We know that, very recently, teachers have tried to stage a strike because of their salaries. I would ask the Government, at this stage, to consider, very seriously a review of the teachers' salaries. Teachers, I must say, are the greatest potential asset of the whole country. Even all the good leaders and the best leaders of the world and even the wisest leader, His Excellency the President Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, have gone through teachers. They are the people who should be considered very carefully when they are paid. At the moment, I know that our Government has tackled the problem of reviewing the salaries of teachers and I hope, because the matter is in the hands of the hon. Wariithi a Member of this House who is the Chairman of the Committee reviewing the teachers salaries, he is going to consider very favourably and recommend to the Government that the teachers be well paid. As I have said in this House several times, Mr. Speaker, the reason why teachers are always unsatisfied is because of the work in teaching a person who afterwards goes into business like in commercial firms and gets more than the teacher who taught him and gave him that knowledge. I think it is high time our Government made history by honouring the services of teachers and gave them better salaries than any other departments.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, that I think is clear and well understood. If teachers were well paid, no strikes of any kind could ever take place. Another thing that I should mention in conjunction with this is that these low salaries to the teachers have encouraged teachers, nowadays, to ignore the teaching profession to the extent of even leaving the students attending the classes after giving a lesson and then they go into other occupations to try and see if they can make some money by doing other business outside. This is a very serious thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir. If we want the best leaders of tomorrow in this country, we must have teachers well paid and then be able to control them in teaching in their classrooms at the normal hours.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another section within our community that I should mention, if I remember rightly, is that in the past some time last year in this House, we raised a point on the salaries of the police. The police, I should say, are very poorly paid at the moment and, in this respect, we have experienced most of the difficulties with the constables. Sometimes we hear that a constable is accused of corruption. I do not think that this is due to their fault. If I am right, I think a commission to investigate into the salaries of the police was appointed to go into this matter. We would like to hear from the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs—at least we should be informed—how far this commission has gone with reviewing salaries of the policemen. A policeman is the one who is the backbone of the security in this country and, therefore, he should be well cared for and well paid. At the same time, we have seen that most of the police quarters, in places where they live, are very poor houses. They should be very well housed and their children at this moment should be given adequate education. At the moment, they are being transferred from here to there, day after day, month after month, year after year, and we have found that the children are not progressing steadily in their education. When I come to take it as a whole, I would ask the Government to put a central school for all Civil Service children so that, when their parents are being transferred from one place to another they can stay on in the same place. At the moment what happens, for instance, is that a district commissioner is moved from Kiambu to somewhere else and his child has to go to school there, and then the next day he is transferred to Kisumu and he has to take his children there. This is interrupting their education and it is high time that the Government should consider putting up a central school so that the children, irrespective of their parents, can be put there when their parents are transferred. This I think would be a very bright idea and, if the Government has never thought of this, I would advise the Government that it is high time they took the idea very seriously. I hope that the hon. Minister for Finance is listening to this debate, because I hope he is going to reply at the end.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point I would make on this Budget is that it is only a blind man who cannot see what the Kanu Government has done for the country. Through my own personal experience, I would say that if there is any paradise on earth, it is here in Kenya today. Why I am saying this is because during the colonial days, we never dreamed there would be an African enjoying sitting on these soft seats in this Parliament and we thought that it would only be a white man who would enjoy these privileges. Today, every position in Kenya, irrespective of what the position is, is now being filled by the sons of the soil. This is only because His Excellency, Jomo Kenyatta, has led the Kanu Government to such an extent that he has brought about the stability of the country. Therefore, I must congratulate the Government for the achievements it has brought to this country within the short space of six years. If we think of what the Government has done within this short time, it is absolutely without comparison with what we were living under the colonial yoke, 70 years ago. Because we are in a free and democratic state, one can state any nonsense one likes but, to try to suggest that the Government has done nothing, is something that only a blind man can do.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, because I know that the time is short, I would very strongly ask the Government to cast their eyes on the rural areas. There has been development, and there is no doubt about it, but still I would appeal mainly to the Ministry of Works, to go into the countryside and see about the conditions of the roads generally, without just dealing with one particular area. I know the whole country is now economically doing very well and responding to His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta's call to go back to the land. We have gone back to the land and we are now producing more, but what we are lacking now is only road roads to transport the produce to the cities and to the towns. I appeal to the Government, very sincerely, to make the roads throughout the country all weather-proof because, at the moment, in some of the places it is very difficult to transport produce from one area to another.

Another point, Mr. Speaker, Sir, to which I would like to draw the attention of the Government is about the Harambee secondary schools which are being built in the country. The people are very keen to establish as many of these schools as possible, and it is the task of the Government to take on these schools. I can assure the Government that the people are willing to establish as many health centres as possible in the country, but what is lacking—and I hope the Government is going to look into this—is adequate manpower to put up these self-help clinics or health centres. It is high time that the Government provided the manpower for these centres and these Harambee schools. The Government will ask me where to get these people to man these institutions. However, I have experience: when I was in the British Army in the 1940's, we used to have educational schools where we used to send people for short courses and then those later on became instructors to instruct others. It is high time that the Government should mobilize all the young people who are school-leavers and put them in those institutions so that they can train as nurses or teachers. It would take only a short time and those people with School Certificate could easily assimilate the training and would be able to become good teachers. There is no point in the Government telling us that they cannot establish any more health centres because there are no nurses or doctors, because the people are here, only the Government has not been able to think, although I hope it is now going to think. They should put these people in training and then, within a very short time, there would be teachers of every variety in our country.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we know that the Government is going to say that this will cost a lot of money but I know this House—and I hope my hon. friends will bear me witness—will pass a Supplementary Estimate to see that such institutions are established in the country. There is no point saying we have no teachers, no nurses, or anything, when we know that we have so many people to train these people. We have come to the question of trade and I think it is high time that the Government should encourage more people to come into the field of trade and business to replace the Asians who are leaving their businesses at the moment.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I can see that time is running short and I want to give my colleagues the opportunity to air their views, I support the Budget.

Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I feel that credit should be given where it is deserved and criticism where necessary. Sir, I believe that our greatest asset in this country is the stability we have and this, of course, is a credit to our Government. Another fact we should remember is that our resources are limited. Whenever a Budget comes around, I think we should always congratulate the Minister because he manages to do so much with so little of our resources.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are a country with no minerals or other resources from which we could get a lot of money, but always our Government has managed to spread out the little we have and we have managed to get through.

Mr. Speaker, having said that, there is always a "however" or a "but"; that is to say we say our Government has done so much "but". Now and then we have a "but". Here the "but" we have is that whenever we have, say, development, we must know that the total development is so much in the whole country, but now and then you find that it is only in one or two areas. In other words, Sir, we have a problem of distribution, distribution both geographically and socially. That is, you might find one side—whether Eastern, Western or Northern—with more development and another side with less development. Because of this unfair geographical distribution of our development projects, you find that our people are not satisfied. Not only that, Sir, but, socially also, you find that a certain class of people are benefiting more from whatever development our Government is giving us than another class. Therefore, the criticism which we can level at the Government—although they have done so much—is that they should look at this question of distribution very seriously, both geographically and socially, so that the smallest of our people can reap the fruits of our independence and of our development.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Government is talking about rural development—or the Minister talked about this in the Budget Speech—but we shall never have any rural development until our local governments are efficient. It is a fact that now many services—which the people do not seem to realize—are in the hands of our local authorities. We know that the whole of primary education is in the hands of the local authorities, also health centres; secondary roads; community development at locational level; and various services affecting the people in the rural areas directly. Although the Government at the top might do so much, I am sure our local authorities are efficient enough to put to the people these developments. Those people in the rural areas will never appreciate what our Government is trying to do.

Mr. Speaker, I think I should say that probably it was too early to start off Local Government in the way we have done—perhaps copying the United Kingdom. It might be that some of the personnel within these local authorities have not really reached the stage where they can give these small services which affect the people in the rural areas.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, one is worried about it, because I think the Government forgot one thing when we planned the Constitution, because the Constitution was amended at the top without amending that part which affects Local Government. This is so, because, at the moment, we have a lot of economic planning and, while the Ministry plans at the top about secondary schools—for which the Central Government is responsible—the various local authorities are planning primary schools on their own. Therefore, the pace of primary school development and that of secondary school development is not in step. Mr. Speaker, until this is centralized—in fact, I would say that whoever makes the primary schools plans must know about secondary schools, so that the school-leavers who leave the primary schools are readily absorbed into the secondary schools—we will continue to have this problem.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have those services which are listed under Local Government being planned differently by the various local authorities and then the Central Government also plans separately and the two do not meet. Therefore, you always have this problem whether it is in health, in education, roads or anything else, you find this awkwardness where, in the case of, say, dispensaries, health centres and hospitals, they are not being run in a streamlined way. Mr. Speaker, I feel there should be proper co-ordination between the planning at local government level or at district level, and at Central Government level. I am saying this, not because I do not know we have district planning committees. I know we have, but even if we have district development committees, the local authorities, themselves, do not control these development committees, so they plan with the district commissioner as the chairman and with other departments, and then the county council plans on its own some projects.

[Mr. Thimangu-Kaunyangi]

Mr. Speaker, I have taken a lot of time on this point because I think the Government should start thinking about it, because if they do not, then we will, all the time, be talking about rural development, but the majority of the services in the rural areas are under Local Government, they will not appreciate whatever rural development we are talking about.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, there is another point which I have found, and this is in connexion with what our Government has done. Mr. Speaker, what can give our people more push is the amount of information, the encouragement which the Government can give them. We might continue to say we are planning Harambee projects, but what we find is that, although people in the rural areas are very, very keen to build schools, health centres, roads, bridges, dams, and everything which they can build—as they have shown by the fact that now there are more Harambee secondary schools than those of Government—after they have been built, very few are taken over by the Government. If you see in a small location or district that the people have taken the trouble to build a small or large thing, unless they are given encouragement from the Government, then, very soon, they will become tired. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, if we take the time to encourage people to build, there must be real planning on how to take these projects over, not only schools, but the health centres, dams, dispensaries and all these things, because I know they are lying about all over our district, and sometimes people have completed them, but they cannot pay for the staff. In the case of health centres, they cannot pay for the medical assistant, or for the nurse or for somebody else, and I think if the Government could not take over the whole project, they should, at least, take over the staff. For example, in the case of schools, I am sure the Government could afford to take over the paying of all the teachers, even if they do not take over the equipment. In the case of the health centres, the Government could afford to take over the paying of salaries to the nurses, medical assistants and probably drugs. In the case of dams which might have been built and the people cannot afford to buy the insecticide to put there, then, I am sure, the Government could afford to take over these. Instead of waiting to take over things completely, it would be better to try and take over the payment of staff salaries.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have spoken about the encouragement of these projects, or of telling the people about what our Government is doing. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have said this before that sometimes we do not realize how important the Ministry of Information is in the rural areas. We have assumed, all of a sudden, that we can all read and write, but we must remember that the majority of our people—probably 80 per cent—cannot read or write. If the Government wants to reach these people, they must reach them through the spoken word, and not the written word, and the spoken word should either come through the radio, or through a Member of Parliament, or through a Minister of through another person. This is a fact, Mr. Speaker, which our Ministry of Information should consider. We talk about the Africanization of trade, of the Civil Service, of the army, of the police force, but, Mr. Speaker, we must wonder how many people there are living, say, 300 miles from Nairobi, who know what we are talking about. When we had our Budget Speech, or we had the President talking on Madaraka Day, and the other ceremonies and festivals going on, these are national things, Mr. Speaker, which are very important to the people in the rural areas. It is through a film from the Minister for Information that they can appreciate what the Government is doing. It is not through reading the East African Standard or the Daily Nation or any other publication.

Mr. Speaker, I feel our Ministry of Information—which has been shrinking ever since independence instead of growing—should start waking up. Mr. Speaker, I am sure our people who we tell to work daily whether in farming, or in anything else, instead of knowing “Cafenol Ndio Number One”, it would be better if they knew what fertilizer to use with their maize. It would be better, Mr. Speaker, to know how to look after your home. We have made our radio and television very commercial, Mr. Speaker, so that people in the rural areas instead of knowing what fertilizer to use on their shamba, how to carry out their hygiene, what to do with their cattle and so on, are only told “Cafenol Ndio Number One” or “Burudika na Tusker”.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Minister should consider this very seriously because, although it appears to be a joke, it is only because the people have been told over and over again about Cafenol and other things that they know this, and the vans are sent round the countryside, and if we want the people to know what the Government is doing and to encourage them, we must also send vans there, send the Voice of Kenya there, and take everything there.

My time being over, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Tsalwa: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

[Mr. Tsalwa]

I would like to make use of this opportunity, on behalf of my electors of Lurambi South, in Kakamega District, to thank the Minister for his attractive Budget Speech which he gave in this House last week.

Mr. Speaker, the word stability has been used in almost all paragraphs—

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, as far as I know the hon. Members in this House are being paid a Sitting Allowance when they come here. Is there any possibility, Mr. Speaker, under the Standing Orders, that if a Member comes to this House just to show his nose and then goes out, that they should not be paid their Sitting Allowance but should be paid only a subsistence allowance? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am seeking your guidance and I see there is no quorum in the House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): As regards your proposition that there should be no payment for the hon. Members who you say only show their noses, that would require an amendment to the National Assembly Remuneration Act which lays down, as it now stands, that hon. Members are entitled to payment for appearance at any Sitting of the House.

As regards a quorum, you are quite correct as to numbers, but under the Constitution and our Standing Orders as recently amended, I take no action unless you actually object to our continuing without a quorum. I take it you do object?

QUORUM

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I find there is no quorum in the House and I object to continuing without one.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I must say I do not like dealing with points of order when we do not have a quorum very much.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member on the opposite side to say that Members are not available in the Chamber while his bench is empty? There is only himself on the KPU side.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no prescribed number of Opposition necessary to constitute a quorum.

Mr. Ngala-Abok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, although your ruling has been very wise in this particular case where the hon. Member suggested that Members should not be given their allowance, is it not true also, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that some Members have appointments in various places in the afternoon when Parliament is going on, and, therefore, the Standing Order which allows these Members to be given the allowance took into account this particular aspect.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! We will not discuss the merits of that Standing Order, or whatever it is, now.

We now have a quorum, please continue, Mr. Tsalwa.

(Continuation of debate)

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, I was going to say that the word "stability" appears in the Financial Statement which was made by the Minister for Finance last week, and I would like to support the last Member who has just sat down in mentioning that the stability we have in this country, is due to the wise leadership of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta. The public, as a whole, would like this stability to continue even after the next election.

Mr. Speaker, we know the funds now being provided under the 1969/70 Budget. We would like these funds to be utilized properly so that the people of Kenya can see how the money, and on what projects, has been spent. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the Government to spend part of this money on revising the old colonial boundaries between Nyanza and the Western Province. The boundary which was set by the Boundary Commission, which consisted mainly of the colonial element, left quite a good number of the Abaluhya in Nyanza Province. We would like these people to come back to their brothers in the Western Province.

Mr. Speaker, there are between 60,000 and 100,000, Baluhya in the Nyanza Province, particularly in the Siaya and Kisumu Districts. These people are being mistreated. Since we attained independence, none of our people have been made sub-chiefs, or chiefs, or anything of the sort. These Baluhya, who number between 60,000 and 100,000 are completely frustrated.

Mr. Speaker, in accordance with the Constitution of the Republic of Kenya, it is clearly stated that a person should be allowed to live where he can enjoy the fruits of the Republic. Mr. Speaker, you will, if you went down to Gem and Kisumu, find that those Baluhya who live round Maseno particularly, are being frustrated because the land on which Maseno Centre is situated belonged to Baluhya originally. I cannot see the possibility and the reason why they cannot be allowed to have their own chief.

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can the hon. Member speaking substantiate that the Maseno Centre is situated in a Baluhya area or on Baluhya land?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I think if we ask for substantiation from one or the other as to the situation of Maseno, we shall not quickly come to the end of it. It really is in substance a matter of opinion on the conflicting views up there, with which we are all very well acquainted.

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know, if the hon. Member speaking were one of the Luo who is in Luhya, what would happen if we wanted him to come back to Gem? What would happen if we called him back to Gem because Mr. Speaker, to authorize this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Order! Now there is no point of order. Will you continue Mr. Tsalwa.

Mr. Sijeyo: He is married to a Luo.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, I thank you very much for your wise ruling against that point of order. Mr. Speaker, I was going to say there is no reason why the Baluhya residing around Maseno, and particularly in Siaya District, should not be given a chief or even two sub-chiefs. These people are completely frustrated and, as a matter of fact, they have approached some of the Members of Parliament here, particularly Mr. Shikuku, who is representing that area adjacent to Siaya District, that they would like to come back to Western Province to live together with their brothers. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the Luo who are farming in these areas are tenants, they are squatting on Abaluhya land. It is high time that they went out. Mr. Speaker—

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, it seems as if the hon. Member speaking is trying to incite in regard to what has been happening in Maseno where two people have been killed by Luhya in Maseno, but no proper action was taken by the Government yet we have been appealing for unity and peace in the country? Is he not inciting the people to fight again?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, he is not. If he was, then I would call him to order, because any suggestion by hon. Members that people should break the law in any way, including the taking of the law into their own hands, is out of order. But the hon. Member has not gone that far. I hope he will not.

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Sijeyo, the Member for Gem, said that two people were killed and the Government did not take any action. Is anyone who makes such remarks on a serious matter like this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in order? Is he really in order to that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He is out of order to refer to it at all, I think. I think we had better forget about it and let Mr. Tsalwa go on.

Mr. Tsalwa: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to touch on another point which is connected with this boundary. Late last year at a Kanu Parliamentary Group meeting, it was decided that the Government should appoint an independent judicial commission to look into the disputes which arise along the provincial or district boundaries. I would like the Government to take up that matter as soon as possible, and even before the census is undertaken.

Mr. Speaker, the other thing on which I would like to touch now is about the forthcoming census. In the past, the Abaluhya residing in Siaya and Kisumu District were illegally registered as Luo, against their wishes, and this is why these people have now come to realize that they should have a registrar or supervisor for that matter, during this time, who could point out that "This is Abaluhya and that is a Luo".

Mr. Speaker, as regards economic expansion, as the Minister stated in his Budget speech, one finds quite extensive economic expansion around Nairobi, Thika, Kiambu, and at Nakuru, but what does one find when one goes to places like North-Eastern Province, where there is hardly any water, Ugenya-Alego, where there are tall, thin-legged women because they do not have enough water to drink and would like to have water at their homes? What does one find when one goes to Kakamega District, Bungoma, Busia and Ukambani? Mr. Speaker, the Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services is here, he says that the economic expansion has covered the whole country. This is untrue, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also rise to join my colleagues who have spoken on the Budget—

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, since the hon. Member who has just sat down has misquoted me, would I be in order to quote what I actually said yesterday?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, you correct him and then Mr. arap Biy will continue afterwards.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member, who has just sat down, has misrepresented my statement which I made yesterday.

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services]

Yesterday I said "In order to provide more opportunities for the unemployed in Kenya, the economy must be expanded". I did not imply that expansion of the economy has already gone throughout Kenya already, as he has indicated.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I hope you will give me a few more minutes since the Minister has taken some of my time. Thank you, Sir.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to start off by mentioning or enlightening the House on the allegation which the hon. Masinde Muliro made as regards the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. I would like, Sir,—

An hon. Member: Declare your interest.

Mr. arap Biy: My interest is that I am one of the directors of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation and Mr. Speaker, in this capacity, therefore, I think I am more enlightened as to what is going on in that corporation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, hon. Muliro applied for a loan from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation to purchase a property at Kitale, and this was in August last year. The loan was approved in early December and a Letter of Allotment or a Letter of Offer was sent to him on 20th December, and this is in writing in the files of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member said here, when I challenged him to substantiate, that the Letter of Offer reached him in April this year. I think he should have corrected that because we do not want things to be misrepresented to this House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to request hon. Members of this House to appeal to the Government to give more money to the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation because it is a Corporation which is loaning money on behalf of the Government. I would like to mention that the Corporation has assisted quite a good number of citizens in this country in various provinces; not only in one particular province, but in all the provinces in this country. It is true, Sir, that the amount of loans which has gone, say, to Central Province, could not be the same as the amount which has gone to Rift Valley Province or Western Province for that matter, because this depends largely on the number of applications which come to the board and, therefore, I would like to appeal to my hon. colleagues here to tell and educate their constituents on how to apply for these loans because we do not want to blame any particular tribe.

*[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]
[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]*

Mr. Deputy Speaker, blaming alone cannot build this country; it will not build this country. This country must be built on—Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we would like say, if hon. Kanani applies for a loan from the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, to see that his case will be considered on merit and that will not be all the Baluhya. He is only an individual and, if his application is rejected, it is only an individual application which has been rejected and, therefore, I would suggest to him to apply if he wants to do something. Mr. Speaker, Sir, at this stage, I would like him to inform the House that we have already given the Western Province over Sh. 1 million towards the end of last May. That is exactly Sh. 1,320,000. Now, this has been given to Western Province. North-Eastern Province, the remotest Province in this country, has already received Sh. 620,000. Nyanza Province has received Sh. 1,385,000. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, Eastern Province has received Sh. 1,580,000. Rift Valley Province, Sh. 1,655,000. Nairobi is the one which has received the highest because, here, we are trying to help our African people to go into business in the various important streets of Nairobi and, therefore, we have given them Sh. 2,044,000, and that is not a shame to anybody. That is not for one tribe, it is for all tribes. The Central Province has Sh. 1,600,000. Coast Province has Sh. 370,000. They never applied and, therefore, there is nobody who can be blamed. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, arising from that, I would like to request my colleagues to ask the Government to give more money to that body, so that the body concerned could loan the money on behalf of the Government, to various business men, various industrialists, and so on. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, the hon. Kamuren is complaining very bitterly probably saying that there is a bit of tribalism here. I would like to challenge him to produce one of the applications which has come from his area, particularly Baringo East where he comes from, where he represents. It might be that there is none, Mr. Deputy Speaker, and, therefore, talking here alone cannot build this country, and I repeat that Mr. Deputy Speaker, it can never build this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to go to the Development Estimates, which have been given in this Blue Book. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is something wrong in planning in this country. The Minister for Finance in the East African Community is talking nonsense. It is because everything has been centred in South

[Mr. arap Biy]

Nyanza, and this is why he is saying "nonsense", Mr. Deputy Speaker. Every year, we are told about Lambwe Valley, development in that area. We are told about electricity in Homa Bay. We are told about extension of the hospital in Homa Bay. This is because the Minister himself, who is planning this, has an interest there. Probably he sees that Nairobi is now a risk to him—he might not get anywhere and therefore, he tries to concentrate everything there.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I was wondering whether that could be let to go in view of the fact that he has categorically stated that the Minister for Economic Planning is sending a lot of things in South Nyanza because he has an interest, and is going to stand there. Will this not be a matter for substantiation and further explanation?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! I am afraid this is not a question that can be substantiated. I think, what he means is that he comes from that area. As to where he wants to stand—I do not think anybody can substantiate where any person is going to stand. This is asking a man too much.

Mr. arap Biy: Thank you very much, Mr. Deputy Speaker—

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in his statement, the hon. Member who is speaking has just mentioned Lambwe Valley and that all the development goes to Lambwe Valley. I would like him to substantiate that all the development goes to Lambwe Valley, because I am complaining that there is no development in Lambwe Valley.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! Order! This is a matter of opinion. I am sure that when you get a chance to speak, you will correct him. I do not think that one can substantiate this very generalized statement that "My area is getting less than your area" and so on and so forth. This is said by so many hon. Members and you could not really substantiate every word of these allegations. I think that you must be careful, Mr. Biy, not to impute improper motives to an hon. Member. It is one thing to say that some area is getting more than its due share of development, but be careful not to impute an improper motive to any hon. Member.

Mr. arap Biy: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, it is not always my intention to go to that extent, but when I am being shouted at, I have to show that I did not come here on my own, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, there is nothing at all for the whole of Kericho in that blue book. There is only £10,000 for a road—a part of the road—Sotik/Kericho Road which is only about two miles—£10,000, nothing else, full stop. This is a big shame, between now and 1970, June.

Now, when we go tomorrow to the public, what are we going to tell them? What development has gone on in that area? What are we going to tell them? Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, this hon. Member should be put out! This hon. Member is not doing anything! Mr. Deputy Speaker, the hon. Members are rather harsh this afternoon. I do not know why.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! I think there is a little too much interference. Mr. Biy must be given a chance to finish his speech.

Mr. arap Biy: Yes, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I am just mentioning facts and these are hard facts. Therefore, I would like to appeal to my colleagues to give me a hearing because I am not trying to say things which are not in existence.

Now I would like to appeal to the Government to look into this, especially when the implementation of what we hear, of as another plan coming, we would like to see more projects being included for Kericho District and particularly Buret which I represent.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, when you go into the Local Authorities' estimates in this country, they are approved very, very late—some of them even taken about six months or almost a year. I would like to appeal to the Minister of Local Government, to see to it that something should be done. If there is anything wrong with the advisers, Mr. Deputy Speaker, he should get rid of some of them. Up to now, the estimates of Kipsigis County Council have not been approved. Many pupils from various secondary schools have been got rid of because there is no money coming from the local authority for their bursaries which have been approved by the local authority in question. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would now like to have my proposal in order to have free primary education in this country in the near future.

We would like, Sir, because I can see I have been advised by an economist who is my good friend, who is not in this House, that if we could tax some few more articles and call that a special tax for education, we would get free education between now and 1970. If we could tax these fellows who are drinking heavily, every bottle of beer, Tusker, we could add ten cents on top and that would be an education tax. We should put more on a loaf of bread, and ten cents from that would be the education tax. We should tax every pound of sugar and five cents on top of it would be the education tax. We should tax every yard of cloth and one penny on top of the usual price would be the education tax. If we could that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, we would get over £50 million, without any difficulty at all within, say, a year and that would be a great source of revenue which would enable us to give to our country free primary education. The reason why I said, from the beginning, Sir, that there was something wrong with the planning in this country is that when you look at the education, the so called free education given to our students in the Higher School Certificate level—this is something which is really ridiculous Sir. How can you build the roof of your house before you think of the foundation of the walls and then go to the roof? On which answer can you build the roof? Now, you are getting the wrong end of the stick and I think the planning should be revised and something should be done.

Now, if we should touch—I have suggested this because we should look after these small men, the poor people of this country, they should enjoy the fruits of Uhuru which we are talking about. The man who has managed to push his son up to Higher School Certificate level is not poor. Let us not deceive ourselves that he is poor. If he has managed to push him from Standard I up to Standard VII and then to secondary school level—after Form IV, it is free. Now, why can he not manage to push up higher than that? We would like to have this fellow, the poor man at home, the man who puts on only a blanket, who does not have any spare blanket for night or day, he has no suit, he has no pair of shorts, we would like to relieve him of this burden of school fees. It does not matter, Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, whether you are in a blanket or in a suit, when you go back to your home, you know what you do in order to get children. Every man in this country knows that. You cannot teach anybody. I have got five children and, therefore, I know what I can do. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we would like, therefore, to help that poor man at home. We would like to help this fellow. The people with motor cars here—I would like to propose that a special tax for everybody driving between Nairobi and Nakuru, Eldoret and Kisumu and so forth. When you go out, you will have to pay Sh. 2/50 when you travel anywhere. When you come back on your way to Nairobi, when you enter, you pay Sh. 2/50 and that would be the education tax. When you go to Mombasa, you pay that amount and, in this way, we are going to get a lot of money. Also tourists will have to pay a lot of money.

With these few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would like to thank you for giving me a chance to intervene in this debate at this stage. I am not going to be as provincial or parochial in my views as the hon. Member who has just sat down. I think, Sir, this House is not a forum for that type of district-mindedness. We should be broader-minded than that.

To begin with, I would like first to speak as a Member of Ndihiwa constituency. Sir, in this capacity I would like to point out a few facts which I would like to bring to the attention of my hon. friend, the Minister for Power and Communications. Sir, it has come to our notice that in South Nyanza we have the cheapest source of power, and when I say the cheapest source of power, I am comparing the costs of generating the power from Gogo Waterfalls—

Mr. Sijeyo: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is the Minister speaking as a Minister or a representative of his constituency? Could you please tell me from the Chair, because what he is saying, about South Nyanza getting cheap power and so on indicates that he is speaking as a constituency Member?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Yes, Mr. Odero-Jowi you should state whether you are speaking as a Minister or a constituency Member.

Mr. Odero-Jowi: Sir, I made it quite clear that I was going to speak first as a Member for Ndihiwa constituency. If the hon. Member for Gem was dozing while I was saying this, the mistake is his.

Sir, I was saying that it has just come to the notice of the public of this country that in Gogo Waterfalls on the Kuja River we have the cheapest source of power in the whole of East Africa. Sir, it has also been revealed that this source of hydro-electric power can practically supply the whole of Western Kenya with cheap power for development. I am saying this, and I know my hon. friend the Minister for Communications knows this, that this discovery should auger well, not only for South Nyanza District but for the whole of Western Kenya. It should be possible to dismantle the diesel electric generators in Homa Bay, Kisumu—if there are any—and replace them with power from this cheap source.

Now, Sir, this should enable the Government to re-plan industrial development in Western Kenya. This should happen now because power is the main determinant of the location of industries. We have been told time and again that a lot of industries are attracted to places like Thika, Nairobi and Mombasa because of the power problem, but now that it has come to light that the cheapest source of power is located in Western Kenya, I would like to urge that the planners in the Ministry of Economic Planning should review their plans so that this cheap source of power in Western Kenya is fully utilized. It should enable the Government to electrify a lot of our schools in the whole of Western Kenya and, as the Minister knows, this source of power is so cheap that there is no comparison between the cost of generating that power and what is charged by the East African Power and Lighting Company.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I would now like—The Minister says the point is noted and I am very grateful for that. I would also like to point out that in South Nyanza there is a great potential for white sugar which has not yet been tapped. In Kanyamwa Location, Kabuoch Location, Sakwa and Kanyangako we have a whole area of more than 10,000 acres suited for sugarcane. As a matter of fact, Sir, the peasants in this area are already growing a lot of sugar. However, because of lack of facilities, a lot of this sugarcane is lying idle and is rotting. I think this is a great deal of waste and I would like the Government, especially my colleagues the Minister for Commerce and Industry and the Minister for Economic Planning and Development, to give some attention to this.

Sir, I would also like to point out that one of the greatest handicaps to economic development in South Nyanza is the lack of good roads. There are vast areas in the central part of South Nyanza which have no roads at all. I wish my colleague, the Minister for Works, was around. I think this area needs his attention.

Now, Sir, having spoken in that vein I would like to speak as a representative of the Kenya Government in the East African Community. This afternoon, I am told an hon. Member of this House touched on the speech made recently in the Parliament of Uganda where a Member of that sister Parliament made a lot of wrong allegations about the trade relations between Kenya and the other two partner States of the East African Community. So, I would like to point out straightaway that the spirit in which that Member spoke in the Parliament of Uganda is in conflict with the spirit inherent in the Treaty for East African Co-operation. When the Treaty for East African Co-operation was signed, it was not laid down that any partner State would have to stand still and wait for development in the other partner States. I think there has been a lot of wrong ill-feeling against Kenya because of the mere accident of colonial development, the accident that during the colonial era a lot of industries were encouraged here, a lot of development was encouraged in Kenya. However, Sir, we of today, we of this generation are not responsible for this. I think everybody must understand that we Kenyans, who run the Republic today, were not responsible for the fact that in the Kenya Highlands a lot of agricultural development took place through the European-farmer system, we are not responsible for the fact that the colonial powers sited headquarters of the Railways in Nairobi, and so on. I am sure all our friends in the two partner States understand this, and anybody in his senses, anybody who wishes to strengthen the spirit of co-operation in East Africa cannot blame the people of Kenya for these accidents of history. Sir, I think it is only people who are ignorant of what is going on who are usually misled to complain about some of these things but I, myself, and we who know the inner working of the Councils of the East African Community, and we who know about the spirit with which the East African Authority approach the problems of East Africa, are quite confident that the spirit of co-operation in the Treaty is being strengthened considerably.

May I only mention a few instances where the spirit of co-operation has prevailed against some local and parochial feelings. For example, Sir, since 1966 it has been the policy of the East African Authority to dieselize the railways system of East Africa. It has taken some time, Sir, to get the diesel locomotives ordered because of a few technical difficulties. Now, when I say technical difficulties, I mean difficulties like agreeing on what type of engines should be ordered, difficulties over agreeing on where some of these orders should be placed. However, Sir, when the Authority met a couple of weeks back, some of these difficulties were brought to nothing. This was due to the fact that the East African Authority is united in its approach to the co-operation within East Africa, it is united in its approach to the problems of East Africa. So, Sir, it is not true to say, as a lot of people are saying these days, that the Treaty for East African Co-operation has injected a lot of difficulties in the co-operation among the three East African States. Quite the contrary, the East African countries are co-operating at all levels. It is due to this co-operation that we are now decentralizing various East African Corporations. For example, the headquarters of the East African Posts and Telecommunications is now being moved to Kampala, and at the same time, decentralization measures are being taken to strengthen the regional offices of the same Corporation. The East African Harbours Corporation is now in existence as a result of implementation of one of the provisions of the Treaty. May I say that through decentralization, and through more investment in various fields, the East African Governments, the three East African partner States, are now deepening the roots of co-operation. I think there has been co-operation before, but it was superficial. Now, the co-operation is based on the willing consent of the three partner States. Before any major decision can be taken, a council to deal with that matter must meet. For example, on communications matter, the communications council is charged with the duty of taking major decisions on matters affecting Railways, civil aviation, East African Airways, East African Harbours, and the East African Posts and Telecommunications. We have not had any example or an instance of serious disagreement, and I must say that a lot of countries in Africa and elsewhere in the world are very interested in this experiment, because it is not easy for three sovereign States to co-operate and agree on common measures in the same way that we are doing in East Africa. I think we people of East Africa must really be grateful, because a lot of this co-operation is possible due to the constructive leadership of the three Heads of State who form the East African Authority. Without implicit understanding among themselves, without their ability to calm down, and sometimes ignore the interests of their own country, it would be impossible for the three East African States to co-operate in the way they are doing now. As a matter of fact, Sir, we have had inquiries from quite a number of other African countries. They would like us to send them technical assistance to help them patch up their own common services and co-operate along the lines we are doing, but, Sir, we have not been able to do this because we are just starting. As a matter of fact, while we are just beginning to implement the provisions of the Treaty signed in 1967, we have another problem of trying to process the admission of quite a number of other States which are interested in joining the East African Community.

[Mr. Odero-Jowi]

So, Sir, I would like us to help the spirit of co-operation as Members of this Parliament, and as citizens of Kenya, by being most constructive in our outlook, and being as helpful to those of us who are charged with responsibility as possible.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a few points to mention on the Financial Statement. In Kenya, some sections of this country have been benefiting from the public funds which we are now discussing here. It seems as if, according to my knowledge, and according to the speeches by some Government Members on the other side, Ministers, the people in the rural areas are not considered with regard to the Budget Statement. It seems as if only people in the city, people in the big towns are being offered loans, but no people in the rural areas receive them to develop their trades. For example, Mr. Speaker, you will find that loans are only given to people in this town, in Nakuru, sometimes in Kisumu—there are only a few in Kisumu—and sometimes in Mombasa, but particularly in Nairobi, Thika, and especially—

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is making a very serious allegation to the extent that loans are only given to urban areas, and he simply says Nairobi, Nakuru and very few in Kisumu. This is a very serious allegation. Could the hon. Member substantiate this allegation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We are faced with this trouble, Mr. Mwendwa, that we meet so often. It is practically impossible for an hon. Member to substantiate a negative statement. So I always allow another Member to rise on a point of order to prove him wrong by a positive assertion. So, if you would like to tell the Member how wrong he is, because of loans given elsewhere, you are at liberty to do so.

Mr. Sijeyo: The Minister has not been in the House for quite a long time, so he does not know what other Members have been speaking about on the Budget. Mr. Speaker, what I would like to say is that public funds should not be missed, because, for example, you find some of the Government vehicles are being misused, after office hours. For example, if you go to apply for a motor vehicle licence you will stay at the office for a long time before being attended. I used to say that I was against foreigners staying in this country but today in those offices which have been Africanized, you find that some of the black Africans are not capable of doing their work. This is shaming our country, and the Ministers should see that when an appointment is made people who are appointed are well trained and capable of doing the work. Appointments should be based on merit, not on brotherization or friends from one tribe. In speaking of this, I know of positions in Kisumu which have been Africanized. These were formerly held by Asians and Europeans, but now we find that our country is being shamed by the present holders' activities. This is because the Ministers in the Cabinet, the top officials in the Government, are not checking things as they were checked during the colonial days. Colonialists used to check in each Ministry and each office to see that the work was being done properly. Today, when you hear that a Minister goes to a place, you will never hear that he is checking these small offices. He waits for a report from someone subordinate, and this report is written by a person who is not working properly in the office.

On another point, Mr. Speaker, we have heard of the development plans under the hon. Mboya's Ministry.

An hon. Member: What is the name?

Mr. Sijeyo: You know it. I am not a teacher. If you want to go in a classroom, I will teach you.

Mr. Speaker, in this Ministry, there are many foreigners who are sons of millionaires and multi-millionaires in America, New York, Chicago, and so on, as well as London. They are the planners for the poor people in this country. How can a man with big money, with great wealth, plan for a poor person, for people in the countryside? When these people plan for the future of this country, they should go out in the country and see what they are going to plan for. They should go around and see how to plan for the country. I do not think I am wrong. Sometime last year, I went to the Samburu area.

An hon. Member: What were you doing there?

Mr. Sijeyo: I was organizing my party, if you do not know.

If you go to this area, you will find that in the whole district there is not a single secondary school, and even if there is a secondary school you will find that the local people there have no chance to enter such a school, because the Government has never encouraged the lower people to get education at primary schools in order to enable them to enter secondary schools. If we want to encourage the people, and we say we are working for the unity of this country, the Government should forget about Nairobi, Kiambu and even Kisumu, if that is the case, and try to go to the Turkana area, the rural areas, where people are suffering a great deal. They should try and plan for their development educationally, economically and socially.

Mr. Speaker, if an African Government today has forgotten the northern part of this country, what are they trying to tell us about the development plan for the future of this country.

I have heard a few Members here, the hon. Mark Mwithaga, and the hon. Specially Elected Member from Mombasa, Mr. Jahazi, complaining of the Opposition. In this country, we all worked for independence, and the Opposition is making a contribution to this country for the betterment of the country. If such Members are afraid of the elections, then they should resign from politics. We do not want the people to bring petty politics in this House. If they are afraid of the forthcoming General Election, they had better go away from politics. Politics are not something to be played with. We are out to face anybody, we are going to put our candidates all over, even in Gatundu, for that matter.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Sijeyo, I did tell Mr. Mwithaga that what he said about the Opposition was not relevant to the Financial Statement, and having let you have a small return at him, I must say the same to you.

Mr. Sijeyo: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was very ashamed to hear those who call themselves representatives of the people talking of petty things, saying that the Opposition should be abolished and—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, finish with that now.

Mr. Sijeyo: So, Mr. Speaker, let me turn to another point. I refer to the Ministry of Health. The Minister, the hon. Mr. Otiende, has done nothing for this country. For example, it was announced by His Excellency the President that the people were going to get free treatment and facilities in Harambee health centres. Now, if you go to these Harambee health centres, you will not even find a single drug. Again, you find that there is no staff at these centres. Furthermore, the point which is frustrating the whole country, not only the Nyanza people, is that our Government went to the Soviet Union. They agreed on a loan, and the hospital has been built in Kisumu. However, the Minister has never taken the initiative to ask the President to go and open that hospital officially. Mr. Speaker, the Minister himself employed the ladies, the nurses, in the hospital. Most of them are from Maragoli. If such a hospital employed a good number of people from his own clan, and he chose not to encourage or ask the President to go and open that hospital officially—

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, in a case like this when an allegation is made by reference to a person who is not here, who would answer? If I were to answer I could not give anything to the

[The Minister for Labour]

House besides what I have heard. Could we ask the hon. Member to tell the House how, at least he knows?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, the hon. Member can be asked to substantiate and in cases where a statement is made against another Member to his detriment in his absence, he always has the opportunity of making a personal statement in his defence on some other occasion, but for the moment you have been asked to substantiate.

Mr. Sijeyo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, what I was trying to tell the House is that the hospital is ready and everything is there. The facilities for workers in that hospital are all right. There is no staff in this hospital, there is no one seen in this hospital and also—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The substantiation that you have been asked for was that whether it is exclusively Maragoli who are employed?

Mr. Sijeyo: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is to say, the hon. Member's own tribe.

Mr. Sijeyo: What I want to tell the hon. Members, Mr. Speaker, is that I used to go to this hospital and many of the ladies who are working there are from Maragoli, from the hon. Otiende's home. I am not wrong, and if the hon. Mr. Otiende were here, he can agree with me. It is only a Member who has never been to Kisumu who is arguing for nothing.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, he is not arguing for nothing; he is asking you to say what you know and how you know it. Can you give the percentage of Maragoli at this hospital?

Mr. Sijeyo: The Maragoli in that hospital—the whole number in the hospital is 20 per cent of the hospital staff. Among the girls from various parts of Kenya, there are 30 per cent Maragoli.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you will agree that 20 per cent or 30 per cent is not exclusive?

Mr. Sijeyo: No, no, Sir; 30 per cent is the number.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You agree that is not quite exclusive?

Mr. Sijeyo: 30 per cent and if—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do you agree that 30 per cent is not quite exclusive?

Mr. Sijeyo: Yes, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have agreed. Mr. Speaker I am only objecting to—

The Minister for Natural Resources (Mr. Nyagah): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wonder whether I would be in order to ask the hon. Member speaking now, to substantiate further that the statement which he has just made that the Minister has not taken the initiative to invite the President to go and officially open the hospital; that the Minister for Health has not taken the initiative—can he substantiate that?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think he can. Again, it is a case where the contrary could be alleged if it is true.

Mr. Sijeyo: Why I say that, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is that it was announced some time back that the President was going there, but later on his going to open the hospital officially was cancelled and we never knew what happened. The people were not informed of what had happened and I have the right to say that the Minister has not taken any initiative to tell the President to open the hospital officially.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, Sir, for giving me this opportunity to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have to congratulate the Minister for Finance for his, if I may say, well-balanced Budget. If I may say so, this has done the country a great deal of good. Mr. Speaker, one section of the people who I think will benefit more than any other section, are those people who have been given a free living, if I may say, this year for not paying tax and that is the class which has been paying Sh. 2 per month. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a very large section of the people because this includes the people who have been worrying me here in Nairobi looking for employment and also those people who perhaps have left school either in standard eight, Form IV, or Form VI and they are trying to look for employment. This is the class of people whom I think will be allowed to go free without being asked to pay any tax, and for this, I think, the Minister for Finance should be congratulated for his wise decision.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think it is rather unfortunate for any Member of Parliament to stand here if he has any knowledge of what is happening in other countries, for example East Africa countries, or any other countries, and say that Kenya has not moved very fast in development. Mr. Speaker, the credit goes to the President of this country and his Government and this Parliament too. Kenya has moved, and moved very fast. You will see, if anybody looked around at other countries, which acquired their independence some time before us, and also some at the same time, you will find that the development in Kenya is far ahead, and this, Mr. Speaker, Sir, I must repeat is due to the maturity of our President.

[The Minister for Labour]

There is one thing, Mr. Speaker, Sir, which I want to check very much indeed. If we ever think that the time will come when there will be nobody unemployed, we are making a very great mistake. In fact, if we follow the pattern of education we are following today to continue, I must warn this House that the number of unemployed people will become greater and greater every year. This is because the Kenya Government has laid a lot of emphasis on education and a lot of Harambee schools are being taken by the Government and there are others that spring up by the efforts of Members of this Parliament. If I may say, for example, before we—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I regret the interruption, Mr. Mwendwa, but I think I can see an hon. Member reading a newspaper. That is out of order, and the newspaper should be removed, taken out of the Chamber, please.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Thank you, Mr. Speaker, if I may say, before we had independence, Mr. Speaker, Sir, there were only two secondary schools in Kitui, but now we have 15 secondary schools within a period of five years. Mr. Speaker, that means that the emphasis which we have laid on education, is not parallel to the development, that is we are creating enough jobs for the pupils who are leaving school at all levels. Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said before, there is nobody who is regretting this because it is a method of the people since we started the Harambee spirit.

The other thing, Mr. Speaker, which must be talked here is this; our fellows who leave school at a level of Standard VIII, Form IV and Form VI, have created an attitude which does not do this country any good. An attitude of thinking that they can only live if they get a white-collar job. This is completely out of fashion with the present pattern of development all over the world. Mr. Speaker, Sir, these people must know that you cannot only make millions if you are employed, you can make millions, and a very good living, if you went down to your place and started to help your parents, you shoulder the job they are doing. Mr. Speaker, you will find at the moment our people who are initially running short, coming short, keeping short when they do not know how to keep accounts. Some of them do not know how to order for things, and it is up to these children who leave school to go back and help their parents. I can assure this House, because I have seen it in my own place, that in fact some of them become very rich in a very short time. However, so long as we keep this attitude, that you can only get a living if you are employed by somebody, we will never get anywhere. This is the attitude which has already changed in other countries. Our people must be prepared to get their hands dirty with the soil. For example, I am not a man who is frightened to tell people this and I have already told my people in my constituency in Kitui that they have to make their hands dirty in this world. You will find in other countries that they have some people with high education, like a B.A., M.A., and so on, working in the factories, and some of them are driving tractors. However, in this country, when somebody gets a School certificate, he thinks that the only work he can do is sit in an office as a clerk, a Permanent Secretary, or an Assistant Minister, for that matter, which is a completely negative and unprogressive attitude and must be changed.

Mr. Speaker, let me clear up a few points which the hon. Member who was speaking said. He accused this Government for developing only the urban areas and he really said Nairobi, Nakuru and a little bit of Kisumu, in as far as the giving of loans is concerned. The hon. Member may not know, but let me tell him this: there are two boards which give you loans, and one is a district board, a joint board, which works in the districts, and I believe that in Kisumu, or any place where he comes from, North Nyanza, or Kakamega, for that matter, has got a joint board which issues loans from Sh. 1 to Sh. 10,000. Above that we have the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation which is based here in Nairobi, issuing loans—

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, would it not be in order for the Minister to correct his statement that the Member comes from North Nyanza whereas he comes from Siaya? Would it not be in order for him to correct that before that mistake is recorded? He said that the Member comes from North Nyanza, when he actually comes from Siaya District?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think all hon. Members know where he comes from.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): I think the hon. Member is confused because I said wherever he comes from; whether he comes from South Africa or any other place.

Mr. Speaker, if loans are over and above—

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Minister really in order to say that the Member comes from South Africa whereas he knows that he comes from Gem? Is that not misinterpretation?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! There seem to be one or two slips of the tongue here, Mr. Mwendwa.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I did not say he comes from South Africa; I said whether from there or somewhere else. It is true that he does not come from South Africa.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He would not be a Member of the House if he did.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Now, Mr. Speaker, I was saying that any loan above Sh. 10,000 is issued by the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation which is based with its headquarters in Nairobi. Normally, when somebody fills in a form to get a loan from this body, naturally this form comes to Nairobi. Also, Sir, we have to be realistic. Since we want to Africanize the economy, the centre of commerce is naturally in Nairobi and that is where the centre of the economy is and that is where the wholesalers are. Naturally, there are Africans living in Nairobi here because this is everybody's town and it does not belong to one tribe, it belongs to all the tribes in Kenya. Therefore, any person living in Nairobi, whether he is a Kamba or a Kikuyu, or a Luo, for that matter, if he applies for a loan he gets it. Naturally you find that there are more people in Nairobi getting loans than those in outside areas. This is true, and must be corrected.

The other point I want to correct, Mr. Speaker, as the Minister for Labour is this: the hon. Member did say that when we put Africans in jobs—when we Africanize—they are not doing their jobs correctly. Let me record that we are very pleased with the African people who have been put into jobs. We are very pleased indeed. It is true, and we must appreciate this, that there have been one or two who make mistakes and there are one or two people who have been put into jail because they have stolen money. This is natural, and even in the United Kingdom, or any other country, there are people who fail to do their duties well and they are put inside consequently. However, I am very grateful because the Africans have done their work very well indeed. We never dared to hope that when they got these jobs they would do them in the way in which they are doing them now. I can tell the House that we do not regret because the Africans have done their work very well and for that I congratulate them.

An hon. Member: How many have you employed as Minister for Labour?

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, some of the hon. Members in this House should keep quiet because if we are here to say in this House how much each individual has done, they will be surprised. We can prove this but we are not here to argue for ourselves.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it Parliamentary for the Member sitting down there to shout at the Minister "Wacha maneno".

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Please control yourself over there.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, I have listened to so many people who accuse me but I just keep quiet. It is better to keep quiet when you are accused by somebody who does not know what he is doing.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member did say also, if I quote well, that our planners, the people called to this country to help us to plan, come from rich countries. Let me ask him a question: if somebody is planning for this country to be rich and well, why should he get somebody from a country which has already fallen? This is not practical. Naturally, if I want advice from somebody I want advice from somebody who has succeeded and not from a failure; I do not go to a thief and ask him, "Can you plan for my family, or can you tell me what to do to improve?" This is a man who has failed in life. Therefore, we get people from countries which have developed and have helped their people to become wealthy. It is not wicked to become rich. Kenya wants to become rich; individuals in Kenya want to become rich; I want to be advised by somebody who will give me advice whereby I become rich. It is not wicked to be rich. Therefore, we are not committing any sin in asking people, for example, from America, from West Germany, from Israel, from rich countries, to come and advise us, because everybody in Kenya wants Kenya to be rich. If you want us to get people from countries which have fallen economically, it would not be good. The Member who was speaking knows the country I am talking about.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member accused me of not being here in the House. I have reasons not to be here all the time. The hon. Member does not know that I control the strikes in this country. Yesterday, when they were making a noise here, I was sitting down in my office trying to settle a strike, which I did successfully.

Mr. Makone: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the Minister not imputing an improper motive when he says that the House was here making a noise? Is that Parliamentary, making a noise?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think hon. Members should take offence at that, because the House does sometimes make a noise, and I think there was some noise yesterday.

Finish what you were saying, Mr. Mwendwa.

The Minister for Labour (Mr. Mwendwa): Mr. Speaker, thank you.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for allowing me this opportunity to make a few remarks. I was not intending to speak but I was forced by the hon. Member who was elected recently to represent Gem Constituency because he was so confused and spoke as if he has all the cares of the world on his shoulders.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, before proceeding, I wish to congratulate the Minister for Finance for introducing a fair Budget. While the countryside and the public at large was welcoming the Budget, the Leader of the Opposition did not hesitate to hold a Press conference to criticize the Budget and say that it was made to attract votes. There is nothing wrong if Kanu wishes to attract votes. I would hate the day if the KPU was to win an election. I do not mind losing my seat as long as Kanu wins the election next year.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming to the point which I would like to make, where the Minister for Finance says: "I propose that in 1970 the lowest rate of graduated personal tax, namely Sh. 2 per month, for those with incomes of less than Kf48 per annum, should be abolished. This will apply from 1st January 1970. This change should not lose local authorities a very large amount of revenue if, as intended, greater efforts are made to assess correctly those who will still be liable to pay . . .".

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to suggest to the Minister for Finance something about this assessment. I have come across instances whereby a district commissioner is given powers to instruct the chiefs to select the members of the assessment committee, and this is where the mistake lies. It has happened that chiefs in some areas—I live in one of them—have victimized some people. I can quote an instance whereby a chief called a public meeting and said that anybody who criticized him, he had the power to increase or reduce their graduated personal tax. I think this is an abuse of their power, Mr. Speaker, and I hope the Minister for Finance will devise a proper method whereby the assessors should be elected properly. I would suggest that in a given location, or sub-location, if the members of the assessment board or committee are to be elected, the Member of Parliament of that area, the county councillors, the chief and the sub-chiefs, should come together and select the members of the committee. I mean the people who know the conditions of local people. In this way they will be able to assess properly those who have to pay this graduated personal tax. I think this is very important, and I hope the Members will note very carefully that the assessors should be people who know the local people, not those who are just picked by the chiefs to silence the critics. This is an abuse of the power.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I do not want to go further on this, and I would like to come to my second suggestion, which the Minister for Finance should take into account. This is the question of going back to the land. Sir, when the President said that people should not roam in the streets of the big cities, they should go back to the land, in my own area I encouraged my people to plant sugar-cane in some parts which are suitable for planting sugar-cane, namely location 9 of my constituency. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the problem here is the question of transport on the roads, and I wish to thank the Minister for Agriculture for gazetting this area as a sugar-cane area, and the problem here is the question of the roads. Our people have paid heed to the question of going back to the land, and they have planted a lot of sugar-cane, and recently, Mr. Speaker, the people in my constituency were threatening to burn down their sugar-cane.

Mr. Speaker, being the Assistant Minister in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, I know the sugar produced locally is not enough for internal consumption, and we are still importing sugar from Uganda. The people who have been encouraged to plant sugar-cane are now threatening to burn their cane in the settlement schemes at places like Muhoroni, where you find the people who were supposed to be paid Sh. 5,000, being given a cheque for five cents. This is ridiculous and I hope the Minister for Agriculture will pay heed to this.

If we are importing sugar from Uganda, and yet our local people are intending to burn down their sugar-cane, this is a fallacy. I hope that now the Minister for Agriculture has gazetted this area as a sugar-cane growing area, he will look into the question of transportation and the question of prices paid to farmers and so on, so that in future we will be in a position to be able to produce enough sugar for internal consumption. Mr. Speaker, this is a very threatening matter and I wish the Minister for Agriculture was here to hear and take my suggestion. I am not trying to criticize that Ministry; my suggestion is intended to draw the attention of the Ministry to this threatening situation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, coming now to another point which is affecting my constituency and I hope if the Minister for Power and Communications were here—

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): I am here.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): The Minister for Power and Communications is here, and I would like to draw his attention to the road connecting Kapsoit, Sondu, South Nyanza Road, which is a road connecting two important districts.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: He does not deal with roads.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): Power and Communications. Do you not understand? If you do not understand, then you should go back to school.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, according to what the hon. Assistant Minister is alleging, is it not true that roads and works are under the Minister for Works and not the Minister for Power and Communications? Could you clarify that point to him?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): To the best of my knowledge, you are quite correct, Mr. Chillo.

The Assistant Minister for Commerce and Industry (Mr. Kerich): If the hon. Member is correct, I would like to thank him for correcting me. Mr. Speaker, I do not like collisions between the hon. Member and myself. He is admitting I am his friend.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, this road which is connecting South Nyanza and Kericho should be made passable in the wet season.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another point which I would like to mention is Amanatha Market in my constituency, known as Sondu. Most of the buildings in this market are in Kericho District, and yet the revenue accrued from the shops and the yard where cattle are sold goes to Kisumu. I see the Leader of the Opposition is showing a contorted face, but I think it is wrong to take the revenue from the shops and other various activities in this market to Kisumu.

The County Council of Kipsigis has written a lot of letters to the Minister for Local Government, saying that all the revenue accrued from this market should be paid to Kipsigis County Council, but this has never been effected. Mr.

Speaker, Sir, this is very unfair and the Minister for Local Government should do something about it.

Coming to my last point, Mr. Speaker, this is to criticize one Member who mentioned that those who travel from Nairobi on the Kericho/Kisumu Road should pay a toll of Sh. 2 towards the furtherment of education. I think this is wrong. For those who read history, Mr. Speaker, the question of tolls was abolished even in England 100 years ago, and I do not believe we can go back to the same primitive system of stopping people on the road to pay a toll. Mr. Speaker, I am sure the Member who suggested this was not acquainted with the history of the world. Mr. Speaker, I am opposing such a suggestion.

I think the Minister for Finance was correct in not including, in his Budget, that people should pay a toll on the main roads like the Nairobi/Mombasa Road. Mr. Speaker, we have a country where we do not have typhoons. In places like Formosa where they have hurricanes and typhoons which damage the roads; they have these tolls so that when the roads are spoilt by typhoons they have funds for their repair. In a country like Kenya, where we are fortunate to have good climatic conditions, I do not think the question of tolls on the main roads is very useful.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support the Minister for Finance for his well-calculated and well-timed Budget.

Thank you very much.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, I stand to speak joining my colleagues who have already spoken on this Financial Statement, and I have a few points which I feel I must put across to the Government, and especially the Minister for Finance.

Mr. Speaker, since this country attained its independence, people who live in the less developed areas, which were neglected by the Colonial Government, have not had anything done for them up to now. Mr. Speaker, I can quote a few of these places, for example, Turkana, Samburu, Pokot which is part of Kapenguria, Baringo, and most parts of Masai. You find time and again Members complaining of impassable roads and the Government listens very carefully here but still nothing is done at all.

You hear Members complaining, Mr. Speaker, that there are no water projects in some of these places. People still live like animals when they are already in an independent state. Mr. Speaker, there are 22 Ministers in the Government—they listen very carefully when we talk but when they go back to their own Ministries they do absolutely nothing towards accelerating water projects in under-developed areas; they only attend to areas which were developed by the Colonial Government.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Ministers should devise ways and means in which these people, who think they have been neglected by this Government, could be helped in due course by way of water, roads, and also other communications and other aspects of human life.

Coming to another point, Mr. Speaker, in my own area in particular, if one goes there with a new Land-Rover, because this is in the same connexion, you will find that the new Land-Rover cannot last for a week because the Government, and especially the Ministry of Works, has not tried to find out the reasons why there are no better roads from Marigat, which is in the Baringo District, up to Karpeddo. We know very well, Mr. Speaker, that the Europeans developed what is known as the Kenya Highlands because most of the late Members of this House came from this area. Most of the present Members of this House come from the rural areas which are less developed. The Government should have seen to it that all people enjoyed the fruits of Uhuru.

Mr. Speaker, coming to one of the projects which is in the Western Province, and that is the paper factory at Broderick Falls. I would have thought the Minister for Finance would have made a stand and said that because the material is found in Timboroa, and in Kaptagat in Uasin-Gishu District, which is in Rift Valley, this particular factory should be built at either Timboroa or Kaptagat. We are not going to accept that the material should be taken from the Rift Valley Province to the Western Province. This must be understood by the Government. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we cannot see the reason why this factory should go to Broderick Falls. If it is a question of water, then there is enough water in the areas I have already mentioned. If it is a question of labour, we have enough people in the Rift Valley to do the job. If it is the question of experts being brought in by the Government then the Government can accommodate them in this part of the Rift Valley to do the job. Therefore, I must urge the Government to have the factory brought into Rift Valley and be built either at Timboroa or Kaptagat which is near to the raw material required for this particular factory.

I now come to another point which is education. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Teachers' Service Commission in posting teachers, especially the Peace Corps, has made a mess of it by sending these highly educated people to serve the developed areas, either in the harambee schools or in the Government schools, without thinking of distributing them fairly to some of the schools where they can use their knowledge to help the people who are in need of it. This, Mr. Speaker, has happened several times. When the European Peace Corps come to Nairobi, and are sent to some remote parts of the country, such as Samburu, Baringo or Turkana, you find some of them saying that because of bad communications they will not go there. This is just because of lack of encouragement by the Commission—these people are not told that they have to serve the nation and should not insist that they should be posted to areas with good communications.

Mr. Speaker, this must be rectified by the Government if this country is to go for elections. Mr. Speaker, in the Development Estimates, you will find absolutely nothing being given to some Members of this House. If I may say, the present Harambee schools which have been taken over by the Government are subject to being given better teachers. When you go to some of the schools, Mr. Speaker, you find the teachers there are the ones which even the public feel are unable to teach, and some of them do not even know what are the methods of teaching. They know very well that the proper teachers who ought to be teaching, and who ought to be given the opportunity to help in bringing up some of our youngsters—the people who will help in the running of this country in the future—are not considered, Mr. Speaker. This is with the exception of the teachers who are given a chance of their remaining in Nairobi, or going to some places like Nyeri, Kiambu or some other places like Nakuru, where communication is easy. This is wrong, Mr. Speaker, if I may say so.

I would like to touch another point concerning loans. The hon. Member, Mr. Biy from Buret, who is my friend and whom I do not want to challenge, has spoken about the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation distribution of loans having failed. I wish he were here. He is telling us to vote more money to Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. If we vote more money to Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, and this money is spent here in Nairobi, this money is going to be given to people from one tribe. How can we then vote for it? The Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation has a lot of money. The Member has analysed how much money it has given in each every province. If you consider the case of Rift Valley, what has gone there has not been given to the indigenous people of that province, but it has gone to the people who have been invited to live in that province. These people are friends—this is because, these people in the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation are friends of that tribe.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member has told us that everybody is given money. I can give particulars of two or three people who applied for money in the form of a loan from this particular Corporation. Their applications have been turned down without being given specific reasons. I have also the particulars of another person who had the necessary security. He indicated the security in the form which he filled. When he sent the form to the top officers here, he was given a reply to the effect that the security was not enough to warrant him the loan he wanted. If this particular person was of the same tribe as the person who received his application, I am sure he would had been given the loan.

Members are saying that there is no tribalism. Mr. Speaker, Sir, tribalism is in the blood of human beings. I suggest that we assume that there is no tribalism. However, our people in this country know there is. They are just as clever as Members in this House. What we say is what they know.

Mr. Tsalwa: To which tribe are you referring to?

Mr. Kamuren: I am referring to the tribe that dominates everything, loans, farms, everything.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, looking at this Development Estimates of 1969/70, I find that everything has gone to many other places.

Mr. Tsalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think this is very serious. I would like the hon. Member to substantiate by telling the House the name of the tribe that interferes with the loans that the people of Kenya from other tribes have applied for.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, I do not think it will help, Mr. Tsalwa. It is all too familiar.

Mr. Kamuren: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Member who is interjecting has no spare wheel for his car. He should be very careful. I do not want to go further than that.

With regard to the Development Estimates for 1969/70, you will find that the irrigation schemes have been given more money for development. However, taking the case of Kerio Valley, which I remember, once the Minister for Agriculture visited to survey the situation, as he was moving to Eldoret, after the soil experts had gone into the soil research. Up to now it is not in this book. Everything is centred in Kisumu. Everything is taken to South Nyanza. The projects are being directed there. This is simply because the Minister who happens to be responsible for Economic Planning is a Luo from South Nyanza. But why is he running away from Nairobi?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to touch on two points here. You will find that the loan for Mwea scheme extension has been given, grants for Tana pilot scheme have been given, a loan for Kanoi Irrigation Scheme has been given, a grant for Ahero Irrigation Scheme Research Station has been given, a grant for Kano development has been given, a loan for Mwea rice extension has been given. Mr. Speaker, Sir, none of these is in Rift Valley, as a province, Rift Valley is composed of many of these tribes who should be considered. Mr. Speaker, we have to develop this country. It is a province which is composed of certain districts, the biggest of all provinces in Kenya. But, Mr. Speaker, you will find that there is nothing given to us. Even Kerio Valley, which we thought was included in the Development Estimates, does not appear in the said Estimates. Where are we going to get the money to develop this part of the world? We are told that the Government distributes money for development fairly to all parts of the country. Where is the fairness? Where are we told this money is going to? This is because we do not see it here. Unless, in fact, we are told in future that the people who plan the distribution of this money will see that each and every tribe in this country is represented, it is no good. We should not be told that there is no tribalism in Kenya when we can, in fact, see it in the distribution of this money; it is practised in each and every district in this country.

I would then like to talk on unemployment. The Minister for Labour has spoken nothing. He has told us nothing by citing that B.A. and M.A. can be employed to drive tractors. This is completely vague. This is because I have never seen him employing B.A. or M.A.-holders to drive a tractor. Mr. Speaker, Sir, in this country, the manpower is not to be wasted to that extent. It can be wasted if only each and every job is filled. It is only when such state of affairs arise that we can make them to do such work. We should not be told that in some countries, people with M.A. or B.A. are employed as tractor drivers. In fact, we can speak of other countries, but that does not happen in Kenya. We must speak of development in this country. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister told us also that some people must go to their parents and depend on them because of unemployment. Who, in this country, has educated his children and then is expected to employ them and, for that matter, pay them? Instead he expects the Government to employ them.

[Mr. Kamuren]

I know that there are people who loiter here and there, in Nairobi, looking for employment. When they come to us, we go to one of the Ministries and look for employment for them. When we miss employment, for our people, we should not be told that in some countries B.A. and M.A.'s are also affected by lack of employment. We should not speak of plans we have no experience of, we should speak of our experience in Kenya.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, with few remarks, I beg to support the Financial Speech with a reservation. I feel that the Government should take my suggestions very seriously.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like also to make some few comments on the Financial Statement which was given by the Finance Minister. Mr. Speaker, Sir, my speech will not be long, as I will only make some few observations about the statement.

First of all, I would like to say something about planning. I am very grateful that the Minister for Economic Planning is here to take note. Mr. Speaker, last week, on Tuesday, I saw a group of agricultural instructors from Kenya, about eleven of them, going to the United States to train some young Americans who would in turn come here and teach our people. Sir, time and again, in this House, we have said that we have manpower which should be exploited. These young people, known as the Voluntary Service Organization, who come to this country, have no more knowledge of this country than our people. These people from America come here and—I read from the newspapers—spend five weeks being trained. Mr. Speaker, what is the logic behind the Ministry of Economic Planning of sending eleven African instructors to America, somewhere in the western part of this country to train some young Americans so that they can come here and teach us what to do? Is that planning?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to know which eleven instructors I sent to America? The hon. Member has said that the Minister for Economic Planning sent eleven instructors to the western part of America. I would like to know which eleven instructors?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): The hon. Member may not be able to say which eleven instructors, but he is being required to substantiate that you did send eleven instructors.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, I did not say the Minister, I said the Ministry of Economic Planning—which amounts to the same thing—did—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You are being asked to substantiate that, Mr. Makone.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, in the newspaper, last, Tuesday—I cannot remember rightly whether it was Monday or Tuesday—there was an article in the Standard that eleven African agricultural instructors were sent by the Kenya Government to the United States to give training to the American Voluntary Service Organization so that they can come to this country to work as volunteers. This, to my understanding, is the general trend of planning for this country, and that is why these people are brought here.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Well, that is substantiation of the hon. Member's statement that eleven instructors were sent. It does not quite show which Ministry. Perhaps you do not know which Ministry it was, Mr. Makone?

Mr. Makone: You are right, Sir, that I do not know which Ministry. I cannot recollect which Ministry they were sent from. I thought this came under the umbrella of the general planning of this country.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I think it is important that when Members make allegations, in this case directing it specifically to the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, and then he says he read it in the newspaper—he should be able to tell us what he read. If he did not read the name of the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development, then on what grounds does he mention the Ministry?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Quite so. He told us what he has read and he acknowledges that it did not point to your Ministry. He jumped to that conclusion, obviously wrongly.

You will now acknowledge, Mr. Makone, that you were wrong in assuming it was the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, can I then withdraw the part which refers to the Ministry of Economic Planning. I, therefore, say that the Government is wrong.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, you ruled earlier this afternoon regarding what people read in newspapers and how they make use of it in the House. Could you tell us, in this particular case, where the hon. Member relies on the newspapers, just how this relates to the ruling you made this afternoon?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, I am very glad to do that.

The ruling I gave this afternoon was only on a specific Standing Order which deals with Questions, and it prohibits questions which inquire whether statements in the Press are true. When it comes to an hon. Member making an allegation in the course of debate and relying for that allegation on what he has read in the newspapers, that is in order. It may or may not be very strong substantiation, but it is justification for his saying it. There is no rule against that.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, there was a photograph of eleven people waving goodbye to their friends. They were people, they were not cattle.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Minister who has just sat down is acting on collective responsibility, and if he denies that there is no collective responsibility, then I do not understand the position. Sometimes we are told that they—

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is the hon. Member right? He has already withdrawn reference to the Ministry of Planning and Development. There is no point at which I contested the existence of collective responsibility, I rose on a point of order to direct him to this particular question. I do not see how the collective responsibility comes in.

Mr. Makone: What is the matter with you?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think it is a very fine point.

Shall we get on with something else?

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, there is another point I wish to put forward in connexion with these eleven people who were sent to America by the Government to train—

The Minister for Power and Communications (Mr. Nyamweya): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, can the hon. Member overcome his difficulty by laying on the Table the newspaper he is relying on?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): There is no need for that. I have said many times that hon. Members do not have to lay on the Table publications which are available generally to the public.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, you see, this Front Bench is a quarrelling family. They must organize themselves.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Do not let them disturb you.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think I shall have to protect the hon. Member from further points of order.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, Sir, thank you. I am very grateful to you, Sir, that you can see that I have a point and that is why you are protecting me in this manner.

Sir, we have school-leavers with good certificates who are at home. We do not need, in terms of volunteers, American or any other people unless they are really experts on certain aspects of the Ministry's work. We have already people working on major roads, and these are volunteers under the cover of the National Youth Service. In such cases our school-leavers must be taken into account so that this money, which I understand is being spent on petrol and on housing these young Americans, can be given to our people.

One more important point about the Ministry of Economic Planning is this. If you travel to Kisumu through Kericho, on the left-hand side you see large estates of tea, while on the side you see only little shambas of half an acre, one acre and so forth. What is the underlying principle of this difference? You hear on one side people being told that they cannot expand on tea, while on the other side some people are, day and night, clearing the bush, large tracts of bush, in order to plant tea. On the African side you cannot expand tea. This is wrong planning, Mr. Speaker, it is completely wrong planning.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! I will have to interrupt you now, Mr. Makone. It leaves you three minutes, I think, which you can have when the debate is resumed.

It is time now for Mr. Lubembe to move the adjournment of the House. Mr. Lubembe.

MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT UNDER S.O. 20

DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF SHANTIES IN NAIROBI

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. Speaker, this afternoon I informed the House about the problem of our people in Kaburini, which is in my constituency.

An hon. Member: Are they alive?

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is asking if they are alive. They are very much alive. The place is called Kaburini.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday morning at about three o'clock, about 156 houses were destroyed by a fire as a result of an accident caused by a lady, perhaps smoking or making a fire to boil water to make tea. These houses, Mr. Speaker, had an average of about seven rooms in each house. You can call them shanties, but people live there. If the hon. Member lived there, or if his very close cousin was living there, he would not call them shanties. 156 houses, Mr. Speaker, with an average of seven rooms each, this totals to 1,092 rooms. We have calculated an average of five people per room, because we found some people had five children, some had three in a house, or some four, and some just one, some six and so on. We have used an average of five people for each room, and this amounts to 5,460 people living in this particular place.

Mr. Speaker, these people are now out with their children. Some ladies, who are blind, have a few children, and they have nowhere to shelter these children. We may not think about the money which they spent in building these shanty houses, but the point is that these people are now house-less and have nowhere to go for shelter.

Before I go further, Mr. Speaker, it is necessary for me to thank the Red Cross, the City Council of Nairobi, and the District Commissioner, Nairobi. This morning they were trying their best to bring in some food and clothes to assist these starving families. I can say, Mr. Speaker, that by moving this Motion, I am not in any way blaming the Government or putting anybody on the defensive. It has not been long since we had this problem and I did not have the chance to bring it to the notice of Parliament, but hon. Kamwathi Munyi did so, and I was very thankful to him. Even if I had not brought up this Motion I am sure another hon. Member would have taken the opportunity to bring up this matter to the attention of the Government and of this hon. House.

I can say, Mr. Speaker, if we talk about the money which these people have lost, it would amount to a lot of money. We can estimate that these houses might have cost an average of Sh. 200 each, and if you multiply 156 by 200, this would amount to Sh. 31,200. If we estimate, Mr. Speaker, that each house has lost property worth Sh. 100, this would amount to Sh. 3,120,000. This is a lot of money. We have no way of refunding this money to them, but let us, as the people who are responsible for every individual in this nation, do something about it. I am appealing, Mr. Speaker, to the Government, the Ministry of Defence, Ministry of Labour, and other Ministries, to see what they can do. It might be possible to have some tents to shelter these people, as we do not have any place to which we can move them.

I must say I recognize that the Government is trying its best to help the landless people, and that is why they have appointed the Commissioner for Squatters. I am not very happy with the word "squatters", because it is very colonial; I feel it should be the Commissioner for Illegal Residents. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the Minister of Lands and Settlement should assist and try to see what it can do to assist these people in any way it can. This being a big problem, which is at the moment affecting the City Council of Nairobi, it is for the Ministry of Local Government to try its best to see if anything can be done.

I am not saying they have not done anything, but I know the city council is reluctant to allow these people to continue building more shanty houses in that area. Since the people have not been repatriated from the place, what are we going to do to settle the children who are there? What are we going to do to shelter the old people there? What are we going to do, Mr. Speaker, to shelter the expectant women there? This is why I am appealing to all friends, and the Government to see that we do something to help these people to have somewhere to stay.

The other point which I would like to bring forward, Mr. Speaker, Sir, is the question of what happens next when these people have been settled? I feel the time has come for we, the Members of Parliament, to try and request the Government to try its best to see it assists the people in the urban areas to be settled somewhere. It is not only in Nairobi because I have seen these shanty houses in Mombasa, in Nakuru; I have even seen them growing in some areas like Thika. It is something which is now often seen in urban areas in this country. I am not saying it is a problem in Kenya only. I have seen shanty places in Lagos, I have seen them in the United States, in New York, and other places. I have seen them in Paris. I have seen them in the United Kingdom and many other places. The solution can only be found if all of us do not think that whoever is talking about it has a different interest. My speaking here does not mean it is only myself who is very much concerned about this problem.

I recognize, and know very well, that all Nairobi Members, and the other Members in this House, are very much concerned about this problem which affects our own people. In that particular place today—I am glad the hon. Omweri is here—I met some Kisii people. I met some Abaluhya people there. I met some Wakamba people there, and they have all lost houses. Although 90 per cent are not from that particular area, the truth is that we have a few people from all parts of Kenya.

[Mr. Lubembe]

I would also say, Mr. Speaker, that if we are interested in helping, then the time has come when we may, as Members of Parliament, sit down or form a committee here which should deal with the problems of people who are living in shanty places, or the squatters who are a worse problem to this House. I know we have a committee which advises the Minister for Lands and Settlement, there is a Ministerial Committee here on which every Member is entitled to serve. I understand hon. Kariuki is an expert on all the committees' work. He gave me some advice and I thank him for his advice. I think it would help, if the hon. Members— We had the Committee on Africanization, which dealt with a lot of these questions, and we had another one, and why I called the hon. Kariuki an expert is that he was the chairman of another committee on squatters and settlement.

Mr. Speaker, if we could have a committee here, composed of Members of Parliament, one Member from each province, to deal with the problem of shanty towns and so on, and then the Minister for Local Government could advise the county councils and also the City Council of Nairobi on what to do, this would do a lot of good.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say one thing which is very important. Some of these people are registered, about 3,800 were registered in 1965, and since we have had a commissioner appointed, the Government should try its best to see these people are registered every year. We would then know who has come in and who was not there. At the moment it is difficult to say that So-and-so came from the rural areas, and So-and-so was there before because registration has not taken place since 1965, and everybody who is there has already registered in that particular constituency as a voter. I would say that because if registration is required for these people, all people who have taken their registration vote in that area should be registered. They have registered here and you cannot move them anywhere. If you move them to Murang'a, to Nyeri, to Kirinyaga, to Kiambu or wherever they want to go, then this will cost whoever wants them to come here a lot of money—when they will be required to come to do their most important duty of voting. It is a right which entrenched in our Constitution and we cannot just move our people. If we move them, then we will have to undertake the duty of bringing them back when it is time for them to vote.

This being the case, Mr. Speaker, then those who have already registered in Nairobi, and are living in a shanty house, should be given the chance to be registered as people who need assistance from the Ministry of Lands and Settlement.

I would also say, Mr. Speaker, that the problem of these people can never be taken lightly because it is affecting human beings. It is affecting the people of this country. It is affecting all of us.

With these few words, Mr. Speaker, I beg to move.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Karungaru, I have to ask you to be rather short, because we will be interrupting business not later than 6.45 p.m. and I need to allow the Minister a little time to reply. I would point out that I allowed Mr. Lubembe to range fairly widely over what is to be done about shanty towns in general, but the only urgent and definite matter of national importance which I really allowed him to raise today was the problem of these particular homeless people, and I think we should keep pretty closely to that for the rest of this evening.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I must say I am not interested in discussing this matter in general, but I would like to particularly discuss this specific case.

Mr. Speaker, I have been to the scene of the fire and I have seen the position of these people, and I have seen the children. I have also seen how their houses and property were destroyed. It is a pity that a situation like that one has happened, but let us not forget that this did not happen because of these people. I must say that it was unfortunate that it happened.

Mr. Speaker, we have to sympathize with the people when, of course, these people have been confronted with a situation like this one. We must be very particular, especially on behalf of the children. There are some children who have been attending schools and because now they do not know where to live when they come back, they are more affected. We would like the Government to do something to see that these children have shelters. Mr. Speaker, we have time and again been pressing this question of helping these people living in the City Council of Nairobi, but very little response has even been provided by the Government. It is now high time that the Government should do something for these people because this fire is not the first fire which has broken out in this city.

Mr. Speaker, there have been several other places in which fire has destroyed some of these shanties and has left these people hopeless and without knowing where to go. Is it not true that if the Minister for Local Government can negotiate with the Minister for Lands and Settlement something concrete and something constructive can be done for these people to save the position and the health of these people? It is not only a matter of saying that the place was destroyed; if you happen to go there, Mr. Speaker, Sir, you can feel shame on seeing people living like animals. They have no water; they have to go and fetch water from very far distances and sometimes they do not get water. These are the people. We know a place in America where these shanties are also found. I remember one day when I was reading about America, I found that there were so many rats that they were more than even the population of the people of America.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Karungaru, I would remind you of what I said. I can see that there is a large problem of shanty dwellings, but we are not on that this evening, we are on this particular large group of homeless people.

Mr. Karungaru: Mr. Speaker, I am mentioning this because when I visited the area I found that one child had chickenpox disease. That is an infectious disease and it can attack so many people. We have to say in this House that we do not want such a situation to come about.

Mr. Speaker, our interest here is to see that the Government should not only come in and help by providing only shelters, food and clothes; they should go there and help them in getting an alternative shelter elsewhere. In Nairobi there is no committee like the ones operating in the rural areas which can provide the landless people with land. In Nairobi here, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the whole thing has been ignored. This is a hard fact which I have stated time and again, Mr. Speaker. I have put so many questions in this House relating to this particular matter, but nothing has ever been shown or done. Now, it is high time, after having come across a situation like this, for the Government to help us so that we may avoid havocs of this kind.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I appeal for the Government to do something for these people who have now been affected.

I, therefore, beg to support.

(Question proposed)

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, Sir, it is quite true that a fire did occur at Kaburini on Wednesday, which swept through all the shanty buildings in that area. The Government has every sympathy for those people who have suffered this great loss and we do appreciate the ordeal which many of them must be experiencing at this time.

Mr. Speaker, as to the amount of property which has been lost in the fire, it is difficult at this stage to estimate it because very few people have so far come forward to give figures of what they think was lost in this fire. Therefore, at the present time it is difficult to say what loss has been incurred, and so we have to hope to get more information on this matter.

Mr. Speaker, as to the number of people who have been affected, it is also difficult to know how many were actually affected in this fire. The same does also apply as to the number of shanty houses which were affected. Since the hon. Member has given the number of 156 houses, and the number of rooms—obviously he was there—this must be taken as a guide as to the number of houses that have been destroyed. Therefore, the exact number of people and houses involved is still a matter which has to be ascertained.

Mr. Speaker, prompt action has, in fact, been taken on this. The city council is considering these homeless people and assisting them with food and clothing. As the hon. Members who have been in that area have seen, the Red Cross has also moved in and every effort is being made to help these people so that they do not suffer unnecessarily.

Mr. Speaker—

An hon. Member: What are you doing?

The Assistant Minister for Local Government (Mr. Munoko): Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member asks me what I am doing. We are doing, as a Government, all we can. It is not necessary that I, as Munoko, should personally be there so that something is done.

Mr. Speaker, the Commissioner for Squatters has also been in the area and an urgent meeting was held yesterday to discuss ways and means of helping these people out.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Members can see that the Government is anxious to find a solution to this problem.

Mr. Speaker, as one hon. Member has already said, a fire did also occur last year in this very area and one person was killed. It is very nice to note that damage was not done this time to the extent that a person lost his life. The point here, Mr. Speaker, is this, people have gone ahead and built these shanties in places where they are not supposed to build. The city council has its by-laws which guide it and which should guide everybody who wants to put up any building in the city. If this were not done, we would have situations such as this one where fires would frequently break out and cause damage and loss to properties of our people. Also, this leads to diseases breaking out and no doubt hon. Members are aware that diseases have broken out elsewhere as a result of this sort of building growing up with very heavy populations because it is very difficult to keep the health of the people in such places to a high standard. So it is important, Mr. Speaker, that the hon. Members should educate the people to the fact that it is not just a matter of the city council saying "No", when it ought to be saying, "Yes", and it is not just for fun but to keep the city free from diseases in order that the people are healthy. Sir, overcrowding is far from being a thing which is required in this country.

Mr. Speaker, the city council has gone ahead to put up areas where health could be given and people could build some houses of fairly high standard, at least higher than what is pertaining in these areas. If you realize, Sir, that in a place like Kariobangi—where we have had two phases, the first phase and now we have the second phase—houses are being provided for these people to go ahead; many are being re-settled.

Very recently, Mr. Speaker, in Mathari Valley, where there have been considerable hardship experienced, they city council is taking action. It is only by people co-operating in these schemes that we will be able to keep the city clean. Also, Sir, in this way such fires will be minimized. So long as we continue to have shanties built of hardboard, we will continue to have these hazards. I would have thought that people who are putting up these shanties should have learnt by now because fires are breaking out every now and then in these places, causing very heavy damage and loss to the people. I would have thought that people would have learnt from this, so that we all get away from this problem.

Mr. Speaker, I can assure the hon. Member that the Government is doing all it can to see that these people do not suffer hardships.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Gachago. Can you keep it to three or four minutes?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Yes, Sir. There is so little time that I cannot say much. I will have to deal with only one or two things.

The first thing, Mr. Speaker, as you have rightly guided the House, there is no question of issue of the settlement of these people. The question of the settlement of these people does not actually arise out of the issue that confronts the House this evening.

There is the political side of this matter and there is also the human side of this matter. As the Assistant Minister for Local Government has explained, the Government is doing everything possible to tackle the political side of the whole issue.

What I would like to find out, Sir, from the hon. Mover of this matter is, what is everybody else doing about the human side of it? The Red Cross organization, I understand, is very busy doing something for these people. We all know that the Red Cross is a benevolent organization. Now, how many Members of this House are members of the Red Cross Society?

Hon. Members: Are you a member?

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): I am a member, Mr. Speaker, if anybody wants to know.

It is the subscriptions collected by such organization, from people of different walks of life, that go to help in emergencies like the one we have recently had. It is very good to give verbal donations, it is very good to show verbal sympathy, but in a situation like this, Mr. Speaker, it is where sympathy should be indicated also by action. I would have imagined, at this time, in addition to moving this issue in this House, that the hon. Member for the area would have gone around to all hon. Members asking what sympathy they have, how they do signify their sympathy by donating something that will go to buy food for the starving children, the starving people—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of information—

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member has done something—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think, Mr. Gachago, having challenged the hon. Member, you owe it to him to give way for his information as to what he has done.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Well, Mr. Speaker, if what he wants to ask is whether— If what he wants to know— If what he wants to inform me is that he is doing something towards this—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you ought to allow him to tell you.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, I was there in that place the whole day. We did what we could to distribute food.

We have called a meeting on Wednesday. I am inviting the Member to come and donate something. I am going to collect this money. I hope he will come to the meeting on Wednesday.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You can have another minute or two if you want, Mr. Gachago.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Sir, if the hon. Member had waited he would have understood what I really meant. I do appreciate that he is doing all he can on the spot. But what have we, individually, as Members of this House, so far done about this problem in terms of its urgency? I would have expected that the hon. Member would have come to me, approached me personally, and asked me, "What can you do about this matter"? I appreciate that he has been busy doing something—

Mr. Lubembe: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, is it not imputing bad motive, saying that I have no responsibility to say anything in this House and that it is only my responsibility to approach people? Is that not—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, no. That is a bad point of order.

The Assistant Minister for Lands and Settlement (Mr. Gachago): Mr. Speaker, I wish I could really make the hon. Member see eye to eye with me because I do not blame him at all. I am just giving him some advice.

What I am trying to say is that we all have a responsibility. Each of us should have a certain amount of responsibility, and we should all do something instead of merely talking. In addition to what we might say in this House, Mr. Speaker, I am saying that each one of us must do something, each of us must give something that is going to help these children. If the hon. Member—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I will have to interrupt you now, Mr. Gachago.

ADJOURNMENT

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is time now for the interruption of business, hon. Members. The House is adjourned until tomorrow, Friday, the 27th June, at 9 a.m.

The House rose at forty-eight minutes past Six o'clock.

Friday, 27th June 1969

The House met at Nine o'clock.

ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Question No. 309

TRAINING OF SUB-CHIEFS

Mr. Omweri, on behalf of Mr. Tialal, asked the Minister of State to the President's Office if he would tell the House since, training was essential to public servants, why then had the Government ignored the training of sub-chiefs.

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

On the contrary, the Government has not ignored the training of sub-chiefs at all. However, it must be appreciated that at independence the Government was faced with a massive programme of improving the people and personnel at all administrative levels. This culminated in having too many entrants who have joined the service without adequate training and, up to date, it has not been possible to send our sub-chiefs and new chiefs for training courses, but that, Speaker, does not necessarily imply that they have been ignored.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, since the Minister agrees that there is a kind of programme of training, but there are too many chiefs to be taken at one time, and since independence we have not had all of our sub-chiefs taken for this training, would he consider decentralizing the training centres, so at least one will be in each area or district, a centre where these sub-chiefs would go for refresher courses so that the training is quickened.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I appreciate that point and arrangements exist at Maseno and the Kenya Institute of Administration. Some of the points the hon. Member raised are exactly those which we are planning to do.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, in which the Minister, more or less, accepts the need for training these people, would he not make it his business, in view of the importance of this and of the fact that Maseno and Kenya Institute of Administration are only two places, to see that people are trained in their own divisions, because many of the sub-chiefs do not know what they are doing apart from harassing the people? They need a training.

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the need for training is most essential and well accepted by the Government. The two places I mentioned, were just examples; and, in each province, the Provincial Commissioners are supposed, not only to collect some of the chiefs and headmen; but even at district level, the district commissioners call meetings and barazas aimed at preparing, in some way or the other, these chiefs and sub-chiefs. The question of educating them does exist.

Question No. 304

BUILDING PROGRESS OF KANU HEADQUARTERS

Mr. Godia, on behalf of Mr. Cheboiwo, asked the Minister for Works if he would tell the House—

- (a) what was delaying the building of the Kanu Headquarters;
- (b) what was the next step he had taken to see that the other parts of the building were completed; and
- (c) how long the building would take to complete.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No one from the Ministry of Works to answer?

The Assistant Minister for Works (Mr. Godana): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. I am sorry I am late in giving the answer.

(a) Nothing is delaying the building of Kanu Headquarters. As the hon. Member will recall, a decision was taken to do the building works in two phases, namely Phase I comprising the—

Mr. Shikuku: Is it in order for the Minister for Works to go wandering around on the Floor, crossing the Floor like he is doing?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): It is out of order, Mr. Mwanjumba, to walk freely in that part of the Floor. You know, if you want to cross, you cross at the Bar.

Mr. Mwalwa: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, If an Assistant Minister fails completely to discharge his duties in the House, what does the House do? I am asking your guidance on this, Mr. Speaker. If an Assistant Minister, for example this one, fails completely to read properly and satisfy the House, what does the House do in such a case?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): You have ways of making your dissatisfaction known.

You can continue. Mr. Mwanjumba, will you please step in? It is question No. 304.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

Nothing is delaying the building of Kanu headquarters. As the hon. Member would recall, a decision was taken to do the building works in two phases, namely Phase I comprising the erection of the structural frame only and all the basements up to the podium level. This contract has now been completed satisfactorily. Phase II would comprise the erection of the rest of the structure, together with the completion of the finishes to both Phase I and II. The hon. Members will recall that this procedure was adopted in order to enable the architects and other consultants to have a breathing space to complete the design of the whole project.

The reply to (b) is: now that the architects, the structural engineers, mechanical and electrical engineers have completed the major portion of their work, the quantity surveyors are now busy preparing tender documents, including bills of quantities, to enable the Ministry to invite tenders from firms of interested contractors. In this connexion, I would like to inform the House that tenders for mechanical services have already been received and are being analysed by my officers.

It is estimated that the building will take a further 2½ years to complete from the date the contract is awarded.

Mr. Godia: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that satisfactory reply from the Minister, can he tell the House how soon the next phase will be started?

Mr. Mwanyumba: Mr. Speaker, Sir, if the hon. Member was listening, I said we are already processing documents and as soon as the officers are ready with the documents, tenders will be called. I hope it will not take long before the work is started again.

Question No. 255

COMPENSATION FOR DAMAGE DONE BY GAME ANIMALS

Mr. Mbai asked the Minister for Tourism and Wildlife if he would tell the House whether, since some county councils which received controlled area fees had failed to establish compensation funds to pay those who suffered loss of property or crop from wild game, he would now consider retaining either whole or part of that money for compensation in respect of those county councils.

The Minister for Tourism and Wildlife (Mr. Ayodo): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply.

My Ministry is fully conscious of the problems relating to our wildlife resources, especially—

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that the Minister was not present when this question was to be answered and that this is the second time it is being brought forward, is it not in order for him to apologize for not having been in on time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I cannot insist on it as a matter of order, but it is the usual courtesy for a Minister to apologize when he has been late. Perhaps, Mr. Ayodo, you did not realize we had come to the question and had to pass it because you were not here. You probably did not know.

Mr. Ayodo: I did not know, Sir, but if it is considered proper, I do apologize.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. My Ministry is fully conscious of the problems relating to our wildlife resources, especially as regards cases where, occasionally, an individual is called upon to carry a heavy burden of personal loss caused by wildlife. Such losses which are suffered for the common good should evoke sympathetic consideration and, whenever possible, should be offset with some form of compensation. It is for this reason that my Ministry has not only always encouraged, but advised, county councils which receive controlled area fees to establish a fund from which compensation may be paid for genuine claims of loss directly attributable to wild animals.

It is not clear which county councils the hon. Member is referring to, but during the past five years, a total sum of £135,547 has been collected by the Game Department in controlled-area fees on behalf of county councils. Mr. Speaker, the Government spends considerable sums of money every year in providing Game Department staff whose responsibility it is to prevent damage to property or injury to life, but it would not be possible for my Ministry to deal with claims for each and every local game damage case. County councils are better equipped to deal with such problems which, normally, require a committee of local men to assess the extent of damage. For this reason, I do not consider it wise now for the Government to retain either whole or part of the moneys accrued from controlled-area fees for compensation in respect of county councils.

Mr. Mbai: Mr. Speaker, Sir, arising from that very long reply from the Minister, will he tell this House how many of the county councils receive the controlled-area fees and how many have formed compensation funds so that they may be able to pay compensation to people who suffer losses from wildlife?

Mr. Ayodo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have a long list here of county councils that are entitled to receive, or do receive controlled-area fees. I will

[The Minister for Tourism and Wildlife] read the names of the county councils for the benefit of hon. Members: Tana River District is one, Lamu, Kilifi, Kwale, Mombasa, Taita, Marsabit, Isiolo, Meru, Embu, Kitui, Machakos, Kirinyaga, Turkana, Samburu, West Pokot, Elgeyo Marakwet, Baringo, Narok, Kajiado, Wandera, Wajir and Garissa.

Question No. 307

TEACHER-TRAINING RECRUITMENT, RIFT VALLEY

Mr. Shikuku asked the Minister for Education if he would tell the House whether it was still the practice to recruit students for training at P.1 and P.2 levels on a regional basis, namely East and West of Rift Valley.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Mutiso): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I notice that this question had been asked before a representative of the Ministry arrived, and I would like to take this opportunity to apologize for coming late.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to give the following reply. No, Sir, students for training at P.1 and P.2 levels are selected on a national basis rather than on a regional basis. In any case, Sir, I wish to inform the hon. Member and the House that the concept of regionalism in education is no longer practicable in Kenya, and therefore, old bodies known as Western and Eastern Kenya Training Syndicates have long since been abolished.

Mr. Shikuku: Arising from that reply, that the syndicates have long been abolished, is the Minister aware that in the western part of Kenya there are very many students who would like to train as teachers, but they cannot get chances because all the training colleges have been filled up by students from other parts? Is that the way we get umoja?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, Sir, as I said, if the hon. Member has a case where he thinks certain schools or teacher training colleges are filled by a particular group of people, this will be investigated. However, as far as I know, students for such training are selected, as I said, on a national basis, purely on qualifications and merit.

Mr. Kibuga: Arising from one of the replies from the Assistant Minister, that students are selected on a national basis, would the Assistant Minister tell us what precautions are taken to see that every district is cared for because when selection is on a national basis but the posting of teachers is on a district basis, some districts are neglected? What precautions are taken?

Mr. Mutiso: Mr. Speaker, the Government and the Ministry are well aware of this, and the House can rest assured that this precaution is taken, because the officers who handle this question are properly briefed by the Ministry, that this should be as wide as possible, so that the image of our nationhood is projected.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE
ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION NO. 307:
TEACHER-TRAINING RECRUITMENT, RIFT VALLEY

Mr. Kibuga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Member is not raising this question, and he has no objection, I would like to raise it on the adjournment.

Mr. Shikuku: Mr. Speaker, I give him full support.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Very well.

QUESTIONS BY PRIVATE NOTICE

BANNING OF GAMBLING MACHINES

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Lubembe, you have a Question by Private Notice.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs the following Question by Private Notice:—

Since many Africans had throughout the country purchased many gambling machines, before the Minister announced that the said machines will be banned on the 30th June 1969, will the Minister consider extending the period before the said ban from the 30th June 1969, to enable those Africans to organize enough money to go into other lines of business?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. It is not the intention of the Government to allow a few individuals to take all the hard-earned cash from ordinary citizens who have become victims of gaming machines. I, therefore, do not propose to extend these licences under any circumstances, and hope hon. Members will support the Government towards this end.

Mr. Lubembe: Mr. Speaker, since these people had purchased their machines with a lot of money, and with the Minister banning them without giving any compensation, would the Minister agree with me that this is almost a type of nationalization without compensation?

An hon. Member: Declare your interests.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am on a stick of dynamite. There are those who are campaigning to have these machines continued with, there are the vast majority who would like these machines banned. The problem is this, and I would like to enlighten the Members. The few Africans who are running these machines, in actual fact, do not get any benefit from them. The reason is that all of them, or most of them, have borrowed the machines from Asians, and they have to give back one-third of the revenue to the owner. Another one-third goes for the renting of the premises, and the last one-third goes to him. Therefore, there is no profit in this business.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): In spite of apparent interest, I am afraid we have to move on fast in order to start our debate on the Financial Statement. Next Question by Private Notice. Mr. Obok.

HEALTH OF MR. OOKO, DETAINEE

Mr. Obok: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs the following Question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that because of the bad treatment he has been receiving in detention camp, Mr. P. P. Ooko's health is rapidly deteriorating and is threatened?
- (b) Would the Minister consider allowing an experienced private practitioner to visit Mr. Ooko in the detention camp to examine him?

The Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. arap Moi): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. (a) I am not aware, no official complaint has so far been raised.

(b) No. A qualified Government doctor is always available, and will look into the condition of Mr. Ooko when requested.

Mr. Obok: Arising from the Vice-President's answer of "no", may I through the House, put it to him that Mr. Ooko is suffering from chest trouble, similar to that which was suffered by Mr. J. M. Makanyengo, ex-detainee, who was released recently? Could he answer that? I will give another one after that. I have two supplementaries.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): He asks whether you are aware that this gentleman is suffering from chest trouble similar to another detainee.

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, Sir. That is not relevant. Mr. Makanyengo was released a year and a half ago.

Mr. Obok: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I said the similar chest trouble suffered by an ex-detainee who was released some time ago. It is still in order.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think there was any reason to interrupt Mr. arap Moi. Would you continue with your reply?

Mr. arap Moi: I know there was a slight complaint on the 12th March 1969, that he was not feeling well. The doctor saw him, and since then there has been nothing to worry about. As I said before, Mr. Speaker, there is a Government doctor who looks after all the detainees, and everybody else.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the fact that these people are in detention, and they are detained by the Government, and since only one Government doctor can see them, would the Minister consider—in order to allay all fears—that there should be a committee of laymen doctors to see these detainees time after time?

Mr. arap Moi: Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is moving backward. If we are to have laymen doctors, I do not know what his interpretation of this is. As far as I am concerned, a layman doctor is not an expert, not a specialist. If he means a private doctor, or a witchdoctor, which I am not able to supply, I would like to tell him that I consider all these cases, and I am always flexible in allowing specialist doctors if I see that somebody requires special medical treatment. This is done, as it was done in Makanyengo's case. However, as far as Mr. Ooko is concerned, there is nothing serious.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question. Mr. Tuva.

BAN OF MALINDI KANU ELECTIONS

Mr. Tuva: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to ask the Minister of State the following Question by Private Notice:—

Why has the Provincial Commissioner, Coast, banned the Malindi Kanu elections due on Sunday, 29th June 1969, and yet Government has said several times that it cannot interfere with Kanu affairs?

The Minister of State, President's Office (Mr. Koinange): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I beg to reply. In the first place, the Provincial Commissioner of the Coast did not ban the Malindi Kanu elections. He did not do that. What has happened is that when the meeting for that took place, it was learnt from the district commissioner's office that there was going to be some sort of crisis. When he contacted our office, I took the hon. Member, Mr. Ngala, my colleague, to my office and we discussed the matter with the provincial commissioner. It was arranged that the hon. Ngala should go and discuss the matter with the District Commissioner, Malindi, and the meeting would be held. About five minutes before I came here, I was also in contact with the provincial commissioner, and the same thing was repeated. Therefore, there was no banning.

Mr. Tuva: I did not hear the last sentence from the Minister. Did he say that the elections will be held?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you said that there is no ban, and the elections can take place.

Mr. M. Koinange: I said there was no banning, but they have to discuss the matter with the District Commissioner, Malindi.

Mr. Tuva: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the Public Order Act authorizes the district commissioner to ban meetings, under Chapter 56, section 5. Why did the provincial commissioner take the initiative and usurp the district commissioner's powers?

Answer!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think the Minister has said that the provincial commissioner has not taken any action.

Mr. Tuva: Mr. Speaker, I was in the district commissioner's office when the provincial commissioner phoned the district commissioner to ban the elections, on Monday at lunchtime.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): So what is your question now, Mr. Tuva?

Mr. Tuva: My question is this. Although the Minister says that the provincial commissioner did not ban the elections, I insist that he did. Why did the provincial commissioner do that, and yet the power to ban public meetings or elections rests with the district commissioner under the Public Order Act, Chapter 56, section 5?

Mr. M. Koinange: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I wonder whether the hon. Member is following me. I said that ten minutes before nine o'clock this morning, I actually had a telephone conversation with the provincial commissioner, in which he repeated the same thing which he, the provincial commissioner, said to me and to the hon. Minister, Mr. Ngala, that he has not banned the meeting or banned the election. However, the District Commissioner, Malindi, has reported to him that some people have gone there to his office, threatening that if a meeting should be held, there will be a crisis.

Hon. Members: Question.

Mr. M. Koinange: Those people were definitely chased out, and they were about to be arrested by the Government because of that threat, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the provincial commissioner said he has not banned the Kanu election. However, the district commissioner of the area is consulted over any meeting held in any place, with regard to the permit for holding that meeting, by the person who wants to hold the meeting. From that point of view, I conveyed the same to the hon. Member, the Minister for Co-operatives. If the Member goes to the District Commissioner for Malindi now, he will find that, that is the situation.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Next question.

NOTICE OF MOTION FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTER OF REPLY TO QUESTION BY PRIVATE
NOTICE: BAN ON MALINDI KANU ELECTION

Mr. Tuva: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of the unsatisfactory reply to this question, I would like to follow it up with a Motion on the Adjournment.

QUESTION BY PRIVATE NOTICE

REPAIRS TO KATITO/NYAKWERE ROAD

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Mr. Speaker, I beg to ask the Minister for Works the following Question by Private Notice:—

- (a) Is the Minister aware that the buses running between Katito/Nyakwere have been taken off the road because of the terrible fear of damage which the buses may incur owing to the condition of the road?
- (b) Could the Minister undertake to instruct the road engineers to take immediate steps to repair the said road?

The Minister for Works (Mr. Mwanyumba): Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not aware that some bus operators are refusing to operate their buses along this road. Part of this road is a secondary road, up to Paponditi, and from Paponditi to Nyakwere it is a minor road. The responsibility for maintaining the entire road is with the Kisumu Municipality, the Kisumu County. I am prepared to advise the Kisumu County Council to go ahead and look after this road.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: Arising from that answer, that the Minister is unaware, at the time they are collecting graduated personal tax, they are quite aware and they want people to do that. Could the Minister tell the House why the people in Nyakach should be asked to pay graduated personal tax if the services which are supposed to be carried out with such graduated personal tax payments are not carried out?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is another question.

We must go on now, hon. Members. We are running a bit late.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS FOR THE ADJOURNMENT

MATTERS OF WHICH NOTICE PREVIOUSLY GIVEN TO BE DISCUSSED IN COMING WEEK

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I have to inform the House that as regards matters to be raised on the adjournment next week, they will be the same as those which we fixed for this week but which could not take place. That was, Mr. Odinga's question of frequent entry of Nolle Prosequi on criminal cases, will be on Tuesday, 1st July, and Mr. Cheboiwo's question about certificates of exemption of graduated personal tax will come on Wednesday, 2nd July, both of these again being subject, I am afraid, to our finding time for them after having had three hours in the debate on the Financial Statement.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CHAIR

APPOINTMENT OF TEMPORARY DEPUTY SPEAKER

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Then again, hon. Members, there is another matter I wish to mention to you. Throughout next week, the Deputy Speaker will be absent, because he is leading a delegation to the Independence Celebrations in Somalia; and so in accordance with Standing Orders, with the leave of the House I will be appointing Mr. Wariithi to act as Deputy Speaker during that week. Mr. Mati who very often undertakes this duty is also absent at present and Mr. Warrithi has been kind enough to say that he will do it.

Strictly, under Standing Orders, this appointment can only be made for period of three days, after which we have to go to the trouble of an election of an Acting Deputy Speaker; but I am sure that if this goes on for four days next week, you will be content with this informality.

POINT OF ORDER

HOUSE HAS NO POWER OVER THE PRESS, SAVE TO SEE THAT MISREPORTING CORRECTED

Mr. Omar: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am seeking your guidance here. The other day you made a very important statement regarding the of payment of gratuities to Ministers and Assistant Ministers. I was, therefore, expecting that this matter would be given publicity in Taifa Leo which is a widely-read paper, but it was not published yesterday nor today. I wonder whether there is a Standing Order under which, Mr. Speaker, you can use so that the Taifa Leo Press is asked to give this matter publicity in order that the country knows about this?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! No, we have no power over the Press, other than control of misreporting. It rests with the Press what they report or do not report in relation to the proceedings of this House. Our only right is to say that, if they report, they shall report correctly.

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: On a point of order—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We must get on. It is getting very late and we must get on with the debate on the Financial Statement. Is it really essential?

Mr. Okelo-Odongo: Yes, Sir.

In that connexion, I wanted to raise a point of order yesterday but thought I would give this matter a little more time. I thought that after we had discussed the question of gratuities that there was to have been a statement to the House, or you were expecting a report from the Controller and Auditor-General with regard to these payments. Can we expect this report soon, or what is happening about it?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): All I can tell you is that I have asked him for it. I have asked him to let us have it very soon.

Next Order.

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

(Order for Committee read)

MOTION

THAT MR. SPEAKER DO NOW LEAVE THE CHAIR

(Minister for Finance on 19th June 1969)

(Resumption of Debate interrupted on 26th June 1969)

(Fourth Day of Budget Debate)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Mr. Makone was speaking but he does not appear to be here to finish his speech. Mr. Kioko.

Mr. Makone: I am here, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Oh, so he is. You have altered residence, Mr. Makone.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, may I know how many minutes I have left?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am afraid you have only three.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, there were a lot of interruptions from the Minister for Economic Planning and also the— Can I have more time?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, only your three minutes.

Mr. Makone: Mr. Speaker, during the course of my speech yesterday, I had left one point which I wish to put across today.

Stock theft has come up as a worrying point in some areas and, in this respect, I am making special reference to areas like Kisii and Kericho.

[Mr. Makone]

We have asked the Minister for Home Affairs, who is in charge of the security of this Republic, to take drastic action, other than the normal one. We have suggested to the Minister to give more petrol to the police posts where such stock theft is most common so that the police can cope with the situation in such areas as the borders between Kisii and Kericho. We have also gone further and suggested to him that he should place some police posts, as a matter of urgency and national importance, in certain areas in order to stop tribal clashes between these two tribes at the new settlement schemes.

I was expecting such expenditure to be shown in the current Estimates presently under review. Mr. Speaker, a delegation from Kisii has been the Minister for Home Affairs to suggest to him that he should go out of his way to introduce a new method which was suggested to him in connexion with the Public Security Act. Some of the thieves, if they are known, should be taken up and detained without trial. They should be picked up with the assistance of the chiefs and sub-chiefs, so that they are detained for an indefinite time. I hear the Minister for Commerce and Industry—my good friend—saying “Shame.”, but, Sir, there is a danger that if an individual person supports a chief and he goes to court as a witness, you will find that if this person happens to be acquainted, then he will be the sufferer. You find that a gang is organized to come and beat this man and rob him of his property. Therefore, the people are now scared to be witnesses to whatever they may have seen.

That is why I suggest that the Public Security Act should be imposed on the notorious thieves, so that the police come and take them away, nobody knows where they are taken to; nobody knows when they will come back, and how long the sentence will last. This will have a psychological effect on the other people, because they will not know who reported their cases to the police; they will not know how long they will be in detention camp; they will not know when they will come back. So, Sir, this point should be noted by the Ministers who are here, so that when they go to the Cabinet meetings, they can tell their colleagues about this, that this is required in some of the badly affected areas in regard to stock theft.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Kioko: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also would like to say a few words on this Budget Speech. First, I would like to join my colleagues who have spoken in support of the Budget, but I will first deal with a very important item, that of abolishing the graduated personal tax of Sh. 24 for those people who do not earn Sh. 80 per month. This was a very good start and, in this regard, I would like to congratulate the Minister for Finance for his wisdom. We have so many people in the country who are unemployed, and these people have been arrested by the Administration. Many of them have been detained and harassed very much. I would like, once again, to say that this was a very good Budget in this particular respect.

I was not impressed with the Budget in connexion with the Development Estimates for most of the provinces. I come from the Eastern Province, and when I went through the Development Estimates for 1969/70, I saw that there was very little ear-marked for that area which the Government intended to spend. I strongly oppose this part because the Minister saw fit not to give us any very important projects in this particular province. I also would like to voice my dissatisfaction of the Budget because he knows that, particularly we Members of Parliament from Ukambani, have pressed every now and then and put our case to the Government on water difficulties and droughts and particularly on irrigation.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you look in this book, which of course, I have gone through, you will not find any place where money is allocated for water and irrigation schemes in Ukambani and I do not see how we should support the Government, whereby, if we tell the Government our problems and our people's problems they do not respond. Mr. Speaker, Sir, if you look at the Development Estimates, you will find that most of the other provinces are covered and that most of the districts are covered—but we in Ukambani, and particularly in Machakos, I would say—I am not happy about it and I am not prepared to support that part. I reserve my right to think whether I support or whether I am not going to do so, because the Government should have been far kinder and had at least one irrigation scheme in Ukambani. I remember that the Assistant Minister for Natural Resources paid a visit to my area, where most of the parts are dry and he gave us a promise, as a Government Assistant Minister, that a survey would be done so that irrigation schemes could be started. I wish water was brought under the same Ministry, because there was a little bit of improvement. Mr. Speaker, to my surprise, nothing has been done up to now, which is about two years ago.

Mr. Speaker, I think the Government has been unfair to us in Ukambani on this item. Mr. Speaker, without water in our district, we cannot develop anything but, as we have repeated, if the Government gives us water, let no one come and plan for us; we know what to do and we will plan for ourselves and there is no doubt we will be able to produce enough for sale and for domestic uses. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have been very much embarrassed, and I would like to say that the Ministry of Agriculture, which is responsible for water, has totally failed, particularly in our place. Mr. Speaker, I still maintain that something should have been done in the six years. Now, Kanu is going to the polls in the General Elections without anything having been done in many parts of our areas, and I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, that Kanu will face very strong opposition, simply because the Government has done very little, particularly in essential services. I am requesting those concerned, particularly the Ministry of Agriculture, to consider very seriously this very important item: water.

If the Ministry fails, then they should not blame anybody but themselves because we (as Members for those people, have given advice. We took all the troubles and brought them to this House; we took our troubles to them, even by going to see them in their offices but, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the response has been very poor. Therefore, I should suggest that the Minister for Agriculture has taken a great interest in the former developed areas and forgotten the former neglected areas in the country, particularly, in Ukambani, Masai, Turkana etcetera, etcetera.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like this to be conveyed to the Minister for Agriculture, of whom I would say that he is not taking interest in some parts of this country. He has showed great interest in tours outside this country—I think probably he is now out of the country—and instead of making a different plan for those areas which were left undeveloped by the colonialists, he has gone the other way round. I would like this, Mr. Speaker, to be conveyed to the Minister—I can see that there are two other Ministers here—since it is their collective responsibility. I wish they would consider this very seriously and convey it to their colleague, and tell him that we are absolutely dissatisfied with his work. I am particularly, simply because he has done very little in my area, if any at all.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I will leave that point and I will go to the other point which brings me to the land problem. Mr. Speaker, Sir, the land situation in Kenya is very serious and I would like to say this: the Government should try to hasten the machinery for settlement, particularly, in Ukambani. We obviously, have a few settlement schemes, particularly in Makueni and also in one part of southern Machakos. The Government has failed to allocate money for the settlement of those people who are moving into those particular areas. I wonder whether our two Ministers in the Cabinet—the hon. Mwendwa and the hon. Minister for Housing—do see these things. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I can see him leaving.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like this to be presented very strongly to the Government, because these people have no land and they are wandering all over the place and they are being harassed by the Administration and also by the Ministry of Tourism and Wildlife because they have not been settled properly. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think I have made this point very clear and I would like the Government, at this time when we are soon going for general elections, to act, so that our work can be made easier when we go to face our voters.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to say a few words on the appointment of an Electoral Commission. Mr. Speaker, Sir, up to now we do not have any Electoral Commission existing. What I know, Mr. Speaker, is that we replaced the law, we amended it so that the commission will be appointed by the President, but how on earth is the country going to survive without any Electoral Commission which should deal with elections and other connected affairs? Today, the country, as far as I know, does not have any Electoral Commission at all and I would urge His Excellency the President—because I understand this became his responsibility—to appoint a commission as soon as possible, because, Mr. Speaker, some of us represent very large areas and highly populated ones. When we raise this question in the House, we are told that we are waiting for the census which is coming in August and when it comes, probably then, this may be decided. Mr. Speaker, I feel that it is very important to have an Electoral Commission which will start now. There were some proposals by the former Electoral Commission of which, you, Mr. Speaker were the chairman, and you proposed, with your commission, some of the adjustments on our constituencies, but later it was replaced by this House. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I still maintain that it is very important that we have an Electoral Commission which will start now studying and, as soon as we complete the census, they will get into business. Mr. Speaker, this is another very important point which I wanted to put forward to the Government.

Another point which I am coming to, is about Machakos County Council. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I see that the Minister for Local Government is here, and I am happy because he is back. There was a commission, which was formed. The Commission of Inquiry went on very well but, for the last three or four months, we have heard nothing though this inquiry was completed. I wonder whether the Minister for Local Government is trying to sit on it. We, the people of Machakos County Council, would like to know exactly what went on. In fact, I can see that the Minister is not very much interested but, in the long runs, he should realize how the local authorities ought to be looked after and he should be very serious with them. I demand, Mr. Speaker, Sir, that the outcome of the commission be published so that we can know what is exactly happening, otherwise, our county council might run into financial difficulties like some others. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is another point which I want to say to the Minister.

Another point, which I would like to mention is about our foreign affairs policy. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I have been very much disturbed by the Rhodesian issue, whereby Ian Smith has declared a Republic. I have not seen, nor have I heard, any official statement from our Foreign Affairs' Minister on this very embarrassing issue.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we, as a friendly country with the British, I do not see why we cannot advise in a friendly manner and ask the British Government to act because it looks as if we have forgotten our brothers who are in Rhodesia and we seem to have taken the issue very lightly. Mr. Speaker, I highly appreciate the stand His Excellency the President of our Republic, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta took, when he was Prime Minister, in the first conference of Commonwealth leaders, but from that time up to now, nothing serious has been taken, particularly to help our brothers in Rhodesia. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I say this: I feel that the British have a responsibility and since Britain is a friendly country to us, I should say that our Foreign Affairs' Minister and our Government should seriously try to advise the British Government to take action, particularly to try to prevent this crisis, where our brothers next door are so much frustrated and where another South African system of government is soon going to be applied. Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is another point which I say our Foreign Affairs' Ministry has failed, because I expected to hear a very strong statement condemning the attitude of Ian Smith, but I did not hear anything at all. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that the Government should be advised on this one and I would like to see the Government acting strongly in such a very important affair, particularly this one which affects our brothers in Africa.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would also like to put forward another point to the Government. Mr.

Speaker, Sir, it is about the Administration and the Kanu party. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am not trying to make a capital out of this, but I do not, Mr. Speaker, understand how the Administration, how the civil servants come in in our party affairs. I think that the party should be left alone to work by itself without interference.

With these few remarks, Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I also wish to join my friends in welcoming this Financial Statement from the Minister, the hon. Gichuru, because it carried a lot of important matters which the House should be interested to note and gave some suggestions which the Minister will consider when making another statement.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, our problem in Kenya here is development planning. Our problem in the rural areas is that we feel that in the urban areas there is more concentration of development and that is why people keep on flocking into the towns to look for better facilities of livelihood. It is this which the Minister for Finance should have catered for to see that there is not an influx into the urban areas and, therefore, give more opportunity in the countryside so that the people can live in a balanced manner.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that although the Minister gave a welcome statement about graduated personal tax for the lowest paid person, this graduated personal tax system many people do not agree with, and we feel that we have enough experience of this and the Minister should have come up with some other ideas to make sure that the system of graduated personal tax—which is direct taxation—could possibly be changed to a system of indirect taxation. In this way, we would not have so much embarrassment about which this House has been subjected to many complaints as to how people are handled for not carrying their receipts and so forth. The reason is not the excess of taxation, the reason is the system. The system of graduated personal tax compels the taxpayers to carry their receipts and we hope the Minister will see that in the future he moves away from direct taxation to indirect taxation which is less embarrassing for our people. In fact, the Minister would have had more applause if he had suggested another system of taxation to replace the graduated personal tax and this would have been a better thing than just abolishing the lowest grade only. I hope that he will work along these lines and see that this system is replaced by more indirect taxation, for the reasons the House has been giving.

This is the same, Sir, with educational problems. The other day the Minister for Education mentioned the recurrent expenses and development expenses which the country would face if free primary education were introduced. I thought, myself, that this was an inflated and exaggerated figure because we were going to calculate on seven years when this can be introduced step by step. This is a system which could be introduced in seven years rather than in one year. It would not be possible to have it in one year. In this case, if it took seven years, the country if it had a system of proper taxation, would be able to raise the amount mentioned here and this would not be our worry. Our worry should be are we really interested in this, are we really committed to it? Are we really interested? In fact, at the moment, the temper of our people is that they have a marvellous interest in self-help projects and so capital development would not be a problem. Our people are prepared to come up and help. In fact, most of our buildings in the schools have been built as self-help projects, and these people are still interested to see that their children have educational facilities. If the people were told that they would get free education if they provided the houses and the classrooms, I am sure the energy within our people would provide the buildings, the construction. Anybody can go around and see the Harambee projects for the secondary schools; they have put up magnificent blocks and this indicates that the people have got an interest, the imagination and the ability to provide what is needed. In this case, it is only the Minister's plan to come and suggest that this should be introduced.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when it comes to industries, the Minister should have also indicated— We welcome the idea that the Mumias sugar factory will be completed soon. The Minister indicated in his speech that the Broderick Falls paper factory is again under consideration to be developed and he hoped within the current year it might be completed. Therefore, he tried to suggest that he would protect this industry by introducing a paper tariff. In this case, Mr. Speaker, we would welcome more suggestions and more industries. In our case, we do not have any plans for the development of any industry in that part of the country. We would like the Minister to give more emphasis to consider that the population in that area—if you take Kericho, Kisii, Homa Bay, these three districts on this side, and we have Narok as well—think that there is very little planning going on. We would like to see that the Government is doing something to introduce industries in that area so that we can combat unemployment. We cannot combat unemployment in the towns only; we would like these plans to go right up into the countryside and see that our areas also benefit.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we, in the past, have been told that there is no electricity and that communications are not good and, therefore, industries cannot go to Kisii. Sir, at the moment there is electricity, although it is poor, it could be a good beginning. With the resources we have now, if we developed electricity from the hydro-electricity system, I am sure we could have industries because we have the personnel to work in them; we have the personnel to work in these industries. It is a plan which is lacking and it is this plan which the speech did not contain. We would like the Minister to see that something is going to be done to make sure that our areas are also included in the plan, and when a speech like this on the taxation policy is there, we would like to know that our area is also going to benefit from the taxation measures. Otherwise, there is no point in our being taxed if there is no return.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, while I am on unemployment, I would also like to suggest that the Minister should have indicated that he is now going to deal very drastically in regulating all the expatriates, particularly those who come up with no technical education, except academic. We have got quite a lot of merely academic chaps from overseas, and these people could easily be replaced from our own resources. This year, the country has experienced a lot of School Certificate people who have passed very well and so many, up to this moment, have not been offered any facilities of employment by the Government. We would like the Government to come up with a crash programme to make sure that all School Certificate leavers—all those who leave at the secondary level after sitting for their East African Examination—be given an outlet straightaway rather than leaving them hanging around and leaving them unutilized. If we do not do this, then we make our education merely a laughing stock. It does not do anything useful.

We would like these people to be taken, even for three months, on crash training programmes. They would be utilized, and they would be told that they were going to be trained in those three months and they would know they would be given something to do. I am sure these people would be better surveyors in the settlement schemes than the Peace Corps who have been imported. I am sure these people would be better as clerks to the co-operatives than the Peace Corps who have been imported. I feel that our people would be better utilized in secondary schools as untrained teachers than the people who just come with a Bachelor of Arts degree from New York. They are placed here and have to start learning. They also have to study what these people learn. They do not do the history we do here; they do not do the geography we do here, and when these people come, they take another year to learn along with the class they are teaching. We can also do this; we can put our own chaps to learn along with the classes they are teaching. It would be better to utilize them in this way than to leave them without help.

Mr. Speaker, another point I want to mention concerns what hon. Members have already said. It has already been given good coverage in today's papers, and that is the question of the East African Community. I am sure that our country is taking a very accommodating step to make sure that we move together with our partner states. However, it is most unwelcome to find that our own brothers do not realize this system. Certain legislation, supported by Members who also criticize our country, has been enacted which will impede or stop our own progress. Rather than blame us, they should blame themselves. For example, Mr. Speaker, somebody has referred to vehicles, we have no limitation on trucks and vehicles moving into Kenya. There are so many vehicles registered outside Kenya, and we have no problem, we do not worry about them. However, our partner states have introduced entry fees. This means they do not want vehicles registered in Kenya to move freely in their countries. In this case, it should have been the Kenya people or the Kenya people or the Kenya Parliament complaining about these other people who have introduced this legislation complaining again. We do not gain anything when we allow these people to come in, and we have not stopped anybody trading in the country. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the Community has been designed to help these other countries catch up. If they are not able to catch up, they should not complain. It is up to them. We are not going to sit and keep quiet.

For example, Mr. Speaker, take the transfer tax. Kenya has not introduced this, and we are being accommodating, we are trying to help. In this spirit, if we are only going to be played around with, I think our Government should take other steps and see that this nonsense stops immediately. It is not our policy to keep on criticizing any partner state. We hope they will learn to co-operate, and we hope they will earn to utilize the facilities offered in the Community Treaty, and therefore, rather than criticize us, they should expand and help.

I do not want to spend much time on that subject, because I feel it is merely the wish of what is called in Swahili, Duwa la kuku halimpati mwewe, and I think we need not bother to waste our time complaining about this. We should just let them go and they will learn thereafter.

I beg to support.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker Sir, I rise to join my colleagues on the Financial Statement, and I would like to congratulate the Minister for Finance for his well-balanced Budget Speech.

Sir, I would like to repeat what I said a few weeks ago, and that concerns co-operation between Kenya leaders amongst themselves. We, as leaders of this country, must stand together and create a Kenya which will remain stable for ever. Today we know very well that under the wise leadership of His Excellency Mzee Jomo Kenyatta, the President of this country, Kenya is enjoying good stability because of the respect most people have for him. Now, what would happen to Kenya if he were not there? Looking at things which are happening, quarrelling amongst Ministers, not respecting one another, you find them attacking one another in the Press, for example, at the Coast where every day we have Ministers attacking one another, this does not create a healthy situation in the country. It shows that there is a confusion somewhere which must be faced by a brave man who is a leader, someone who must tell these Ministers to shut up, to tell them that they are making mistakes by attacking one another. Nowhere else have I seen in my life a Government Minister attacking another Government Minister publicly. If they do this, it means there is something wrong somewhere. We must find out where the machinery has gone wrong.

An hon. Member: You mean you do not know?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): Mr. Speaker, I am very serious on this matter, because I feel this very strongly. I am a father, I have children who will live in Kenya even if I die tomorrow. They should, in future, enjoy the same privileges, the same stability in the same country in which they were born as I myself am enjoying now, and this can only be created if we trust one another, if we are prepared to work together, and if we can agree that leadership is not to be bought with money. Leadership is something which is given to someone, and a leader is always chosen by the people. If the people are given their own chance to choose a leader, why should leaders keep on quarrelling, suspecting one another, attacking one another, and not pulling together so that they create a happy Kenya? It is no good paying lip service, when we know there are things wrong here and there. I feel the time has come, before we go into the General Elections, when differences amongst the Ministers the differences amongst some leaders of this country, should be solved immediately. Otherwise, we shall be faced with a situation not of the Opposition, but of Kanu opposing Kanu. Sir, I feel the time has come when His Excellency the President with his Cabinet should intervene immediately in these squabbles which are going on here and there.

Mr. Speaker, much has been said about development. I would like also to say a few words on this, although it may be repetition because quite a number of Members have spoken on this subject. It is no good for us to tell the people to go back to the land when development has been centred in the former colonial towns only. If we want the people to go back to their homes, if we want people to go back to the land, if we want people to be employed, it is high time the Government stopped development in the former towns such as Nairobi, Thika, Eldoret, Mombasa, Kisumu, and so on, and created new areas where industries can be built in order to employ the the people who, at present, are rushing to the towns. It is impossible to keep people away and to stop them coming to look for employment when they know they cannot get it at their own homes. We have heard of the Mumias sugar factory; we have been told about the paper factory at Broderick Falls. These were mentioned five years ago. Where has the machinery gone wrong, and why is it that it is only in Western Province that we have not built a factory up to this time? I am speaking, Mr. Speaker, on development. We know much has been said, and unless I tell you that you have a bad eye, if you are not able to see it yourself, then I am wrong, and I must tell you that the eye is wrong or you are wrong in some way. Then you can understand that you have gone wrong.

I beg your pardon, Mr. Speaker. By this I mean that we need development throughout the country. In the whole of Western Kenya—apart from Miwani, Chemelil and Muhoroni and perhaps the textile factory at Kisumu—there is nothing going on. The whole of that area has been left undeveloped and has been overlooked. I do not want someone to come tomorrow and say, "You people in Parliament did not tell the Government that we are suffering". We want them to know we are telling the Government there is something wrong with the development machinery which should be corrected, because this is not going to help us if we see our own people suffering and yet we keep quiet.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a few comments on the education side. Much has been done in education. A lot of Harambee and Government-aided secondary schools have been built and, in a short time, we have built more secondary schools than were built during the colonial days. That is a credit to this Government, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank His Excellency for his motto which he gave us immediately after independence of "Harambee", which has really helped to bring about many more secondary schools throughout the country. However, Mr. Speaker, we should also be prepared and follow the same steps in regard to higher education. The pace of the development of higher education is not going along with the pace of the development of secondary schools. Very soon, we will have so many boys and girls roaming about the streets looking for jobs, who have School Certificate. If we want to help these boys and girls, the new leaders of this country, to obtain something better, it is high time the Government built a few more Higher School Certificate institutions so that we are able to absorb more and more school leavers at the higher school level; then they will be able to go on to university and obtain higher standards to come and replace whatever advisers we have today. If we do not replace them immediately, we will continue to rely on advice from far away instead of relying on advice from experienced people who know the problems of this country.

One mistake I would like to point out, Mr. Speaker, concerns the employment of teachers. Although I am in the Ministry of Education, I am not satisfied with the way teachers are being treated today. I feel that employment of trained teachers should be made a national responsibility. Instead of making it a county or district employment, a teacher who is qualified as a P3, P2, P1 or S1 should be employed by the Teachers' Service Commission. At present, you find there are even teachers who completed their training last year, but they are not yet employed because the county councils which are supposed to employ them have no money and, as a result, they are roaming about. We are not helping by training them, and then asking them to go and look for employment. We should train those we can employ, and as the Teachers' Service Commission has already been formed, and is responsible for all teachers' affairs, I feel they should take up the employment of all trained teachers immediately throughout the country. Then, whenever a teacher completes his training, he is assured of where he is going to teach at once.

[Mr. Khasakhala]

With regard to agriculture, again and again we have said that agriculture is the backbone of our economy, and this is very true. We know very well that we have no mines, we have no minerals, and we depend mainly on agriculture. However, how am I as a farmer going to plan for my farm if the prices are determined every year?

An hon. Member: That is the question.

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): We want the prices to be based on a long-term economy, long-term planning, so that we know the price of maize for the next three years is going to be so much, say, instead of announcing it every year. The same should apply to the price of wheat. It is impossible for our farmers to plan today. They cannot do it, Mr. Speaker, because they do not know what the price is going to be next year and, as a result, they are losing money. Quite a number of new farmers, especially Africans who have taken up farming, are not able to make it pay, simply because they cannot plan, they do not know what to do. Every year the prices change, and I think it is high time planning in agriculture was built on a long-term basis, because anybody who wants to do something has to plan for it, and whoever is advising on these prices should be told he is not a good adviser since he has not advised correctly.

Mr. Speaker, moving to the Administration, I fail to understand the reasons why since independence, it has not been seen fit to survey and look into these unjustly and unsatisfactorily demarcated boundaries which were arrived at before independence. Let us face it: we need the Government to demarcate new boundaries. Let it be known that in Kenya we have tribes. Whatever you do, you can never rub it off. We know very well there are tribes, and it is no good leaving tribes being mistreated by other tribes because someone has made a mistake. What fear is there if we have the army, what fear is there if we have the police, to demarcate these boundaries according to the wishes of the people? From time to time, I have said that Maseno Township belongs to the people of Western Province, and whatever one does, I will never be convinced, as the Member for Emukhaya, that I have no right to ask and demand that township. I want that township transferred immediately to Western Province.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: Why campaign for it here?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): I would like to tell the Member for Laikipia that I am capable of campaigning and I have won elections, and I will continue doing so. I am not doing it here. When I have to campaign, I will do it before my people, I will not do it here. Here I am pointing out to the Government the mistakes they have made, and what they should do. That is not campaigning.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to see the Government moving before the next elections into the boundary question, because we are still not satisfied. We still demand Trans Nzoia; whatever one dreams of, we still need it to be transferred to Western Province. We need a few other places to be transferred. If Laikipia could be transferred to Central Province, why not Maseno, why not Trans Nzoia? We need the Administration to—

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) left the Chair]

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) took the Chair]

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, is it in order for the hon. Member who is speaking to allege that Laikipia has been transferred to Central Province? Is it in order for him to say that when it is all wrong?

The Assistant Minister for Education (Mr. Khasakhala): I beg your pardon, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I meant to say Thomson's Falls, which used to be part of Laikipia, so I was right.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, if this has happened in other areas, I still feel that we should have the same happening in our areas. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Minister for Works for his good work and good road he is now making throughout the country.

With these few remarks I beg to support.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Thank you, Mr. Deputy Speaker. I also want to join my colleagues in thanking the Minister for Finance for his Financial Statement.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, as I start my speech, I want to reply to an allegation made yesterday by the hon. arap Biy, Member for Buret, complaining that South Nyanza has developed and that Kericho is stagnant. I would like to tell Mr. arap Biy that South Nyanza has developed because of its Members, who are industrious and are acting according to the wishes of the public. If the hon. arap Biy is not working for his constituents, he should not complain that his constituency is not developing.

An hon. Member: He should resign.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: He will just learn it during the next General Election. Mr. Deputy Speaker, South Nyanza is a new district and it deserves the development that it has had during this time the Government that is now ruling the country. Since we started this Government, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have worked very hard, as Members from South Nyanza, to see that the Government dishes out enough food to our people and if that has been done, there should be no complaint about it. Therefore, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I will just leave it at that stage that the hon. Mr. arap Biy, should also work hard to see that his district is developed.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is another allegation, which was answered by the hon. Odero-Jowi yesterday, an allegation from the Uganda Parliament. There is another one today by an hon. Member, known as F.X. Mugeni in the Uganda Parliament, alleging that those traders from Uganda who ask for commercial licences in Kenya are not being given them. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to reply to this gentleman in my capacity as a member of the Transport Licensing Board in this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, on 28th and 29th April, this year, in Kisumu, the Transport Licensing Board licensed three Uganda traders.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Five in fact.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: They applied for five, but we licensed three tankers with three trailers. Mr. Deputy Speaker, these people are just beginners; this was their first time to apply. In Nairobi, in March, on 24th and 25th March, this year we licensed three Ugandans. We gave them three vehicles running from Mombasa to Kampala, making six people in all who have applied in this year. In this week, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are five applications pending, one of whom is a wife of a Minister in Uganda.

Mr. Lubembe: Do not give her.

Mr. Khaoya: That is the one you should fail.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have really done our best because those who have applied, we have licensed them and these applications which were brought to us on 24th of this month are still under consideration.

Mr. Khaoya: Which Minister?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, therefore, the allegation by this Member in Uganda, is unfounded and it must be refuted very strongly by us because they are trying to smear Kenya with very bad words. This is the second time that we have heard of them.

Mr. Khaoya: But we are very clean, you know.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, but we are very capable of replying to them.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I would also like to thank the Government for having reduced the graduated personal tax and for having removed the graduated personal tax from the poor people.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Have they done so?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is only one danger which I want to point out. Who will select these people who are not going to pay Sh. 2 per month? Who is going to select them? Who will select these people who are not going to pay this Sh. 24 because this is going to be left to the chiefs and the sub-chiefs. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we should have a committee where a Member of Parliament is included.

An hon. Member: Which Member?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: A Member of Parliament in the area, because I suggest that it would follow the system which was followed in this year: only those who should pay Sh. 24 should be exempted. This is the only fair way of dealing with this matter.

An hon. Member: I think you are right there only that you do not state it properly.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: If we try to introduce new people in 1970, Mr. Deputy Speaker, there will be a lot of nepotism, brotherization and this will be a danger to this system. It will again boomerang on the Government. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I think our honourable ex-chief will really deal with it because he has been a chief and he knows how they have been dealing with such affairs.

Mr. Khaoya: I will deal with it when I come up.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, now I go on to unemployment in this country. We are now voting money for different projects in Kenya. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we have had an experience that industries have been concentrated in big cities and mostly in Thika, Mombasa and Nairobi.

An hon. Member: And Kisumu.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I want to register my protest very strongly that many industries which are supposed to be erected in Kisumu or Nyanza, for that matter, are not actually forwarded or directed there by the Minister for Commerce and Industry. Mr. Deputy Speaker, there is one which I have in mind.

The Assistant Minister for Finance (Mr. Balala): Minister for Planning.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: It is not under planning, it is under the direction by the Minister for Commerce and Industry. There is one which I have complained about in this House and I want [Mr. Mbeo-Onyango] to mention it again today: that is the industry for making fishing nets. Mr. Deputy Speaker, this industry is now pending with the Government, in the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. This is the right industry, the right factory, that must be taken to Nyanza and especially in Homa Bay because we want to spread all the industries into the rural areas so that we alleviate the unemployment in those areas. We have got enough industries in Mombasa, Kisumu, Thika, Nairobi and Nakuru, but it is time now that small towns, in the rural areas, like Homa Bay, should have such industries. I suggest and request the Government that this industry for making fishing nets should be taken to Homa Bay. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Homa Bay is the home of fishermen and especially my constituency of Mbita. I represent people whose work is fishing and, Mr. Deputy Speaker, they have also answered to the call of Mzee Jomo Kenyatta but, instead of going back to the land, they are going to the lake; they are pledged to go back to the lake and fish.

Mr. Khaoya: Where they belong. Are you a fisherman?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Yes. Therefore, they should be given this opportunity of getting fishing nets at a reasonable price near Homa Bay. Mr. Deputy Speaker, I also suggest that these people who are pledged to go back to the lake must get enough loans.

An hon. Member: But nobody told them to go back to the lake.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, these loans are to be used for the fishing industry because this industry is next to the farming industry in this country.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we are voting money in this country to serve every place. However, we people in Nyanza are complaining bitterly, especially we, the Luos, because our people are not being recruited to the army and police. Instead, they are being dismissed from the police and the army.

An hon. Member: Why? Because they are not Kikuyu?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Now, Mr. Deputy Speaker, since 1966, the recruiting teams of the police and the army have not been visiting Nyanza, especially Kisumu and Homa Bay. Mr. Deputy Speaker, if at least two or three people have been taken, they have just been taken on other arrangements. However, I would like to ask the Government—the army and the police are very sensitive departments—if only a few tribes, one or two, are recruited in the army and the police and General Service Unit, Mr. Deputy Speaker, we may think that there is an ulterior motive about it.

An hon. Member: And we are right in thinking that.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, and we are right in thinking that because the Armed Forces must be spread all over the country, but if only a few tribes are entrenched in the army and the police, there is an ulterior motive about this and we must warn the Government about this. Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we are watching very carefully to see because even in this year, we find that Nyanza people may not be recruited, especially the Luos.

An hon. Member: And the Luhya too.

Mr. arap Biy: And the Masai.

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: The rumours are that only six Abaluhyas may be recruited in the army.

An hon. Member: Only six?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Only two Luos may be recruited.

An hon. Member: And Masai?

Mr. Mbeo-Onyango: Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, in other tribes, or provinces, you find, 90, 50 and 60 people are being recruited. This is very unfair. Mr. Deputy Speaker, we may have it because if you think that this tribe is now dominating everything, these things will boomerang later on and you will have it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, I want to mention one point on a very sensitive place in my own constituency, I have been knocking on, very sensitive to us; that is Lambwe Valley. The development of Lambwe Valley comes under the Ministries of Lands and Settlement, of Tourism and Natural Resources, of Agriculture and of Health. However, as I have said in this House, these Ministers have refused to act properly in this place and I am going to table many questions about it. I am also going to speak about this place when we speak on individual Votes. I would like the Government to initiate more development in this valley.

Lastly, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am speaking about the Administration. Again, this branch of the President's Office, has ignored the Luos because with about seven or eight provincial commissioners in Kenya, there is not even a single provincial commissioner from Luo and the Luo are the second largest tribe in Kenya. We are second in Kenya. Therefore, I am appealing to the Government to see that the distribution of administrative officers is spread all over Kenya.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. G. G. Kariuki: On a point of order, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is it in order for the hon. Member to suggest in this House that there is not a single provincial commissioner from his tribe, while we know of one who resigned voluntarily?

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! That is not a point of order.

Mr. Chelugui: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I thank you for giving me this chance to speak on this Financial Statement.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, we know many hon. Members have already spoken about the development of the nation. I do not have to say very much about it because it has all been said already, but I want to go back and just say a few things which I think my people in Eldoret would like me to say. My district is very well known as a good farming area, and the people who were employed in the past, being Africans, were the squatters, but the people who remained there as being landless and jobless are even today still landless. This squatter problem is becoming too much in my area. You find that people run this way and that way trying to get some plots where there is settlement, but still no consideration is given to them and no attention is given to them, and yet the majority of these voters are the landless and they are the squatters. I think the only way to treat all these people is to allow them to go to every settlement scheme within the province.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, it is known that the people who are in the Rift Valley, namely the Masai, the Kalenjin and the Turkana, are the indigenous tribes of the province, and so if any settlement scheme is given within the 13 districts of Rift Valley, these people should be recognized by the Government as being the indigenous squatters on the place. Therefore, there should be no question of asking which district a man comes from; providing he comes from one of the 13 districts within the Rift Valley, he should be considered.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, I know that there is even now a lot of complication in my area whereby people are becoming too noisy just because they say they are being denied their rights. Their right is to be given plots.

An hon. Member: What about the Vice-President?

Mr. Omweri: Mr. Deputy Speaker, for the information of the hon. Member the Vice-President is the Vice-President of the Republic of Kenya, and he also represents you in the Republic.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, there are so many abandoned farms—and I wish the Minister for Lands and Settlement was in the House to listen—around Hoey's Bridge and the Moiben area, where the Agricultural Development Corporation is taking up those farms. I would suggest to the Government that it would be wiser and better if the Ministry of Lands and Settlement could buy those farms and give them to these people so that they can enjoy the fruits of our independence.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, educationally, in Rift Valley, things are not improving because, up to now, we do not have any high school there, except one in Nakuru. Magadi is not enough for the—

An hon. Member: What about Eldoret?

Mr. Chelugui: Eldoret was already established by Europeans but things are very complicated. Mr. Speaker, Sir, our people are suffering because they cannot afford to pay these very high fees. I would like the Minister for Education to come round and be taken to these schools to listen to the grievances of parents on those schools.

An hon. Member: You are supposed to invite him.

Mr. Chelugui: Mr. Speaker, I am soon going to invite the Minister to come and see for himself.

I would like, Mr. Speaker, the Government to think of taking over the Hill School and of promoting it to a secondary school, rather than a medium school which is just there for some rich people. If this school is to be made useful it should be turned into a secondary school in order to allow all parents around that area to send their children to that school. A lot of delegations have been made to the Ministry but it seems that nothing has been done to rectify this situation.

Mr. Speaker, there is one point which I want to make and that is about the trade development in my area, especially in the County Council of Sirikwa. Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are told that in every walk of life we want to build the nation. If people are interested in commercial businesses, they should be supported regardless of being of this tribe or the other. Mr. Speaker, up to now, we can spot the monopolies in our areas where things are not considered on a national basis but are considered on a tribal basis. If a person applies for a commercial loan he has to prove that he is not Kiprotich, in order to get the money. That is not an improvement, Mr. Speaker, if we want to build our nation. He should not be considered as being Kiprotich, but he should be considered as being a mwananchi and this should be the qualification for applying for a loan, regardless of whether he is Kiprotich or Kariuki.

[Mr. Chelugui]

Mr. Speaker, we do want to build the nation regardless of tribes. We would not like to encourage tribalism in this country. We can only kill that by satisfying and justifying all the tribes in Kenya. Mr. Speaker, presently we were told that there is a place known as the "less developed area", such as, I would not like to mention it but they always call it the "less developed area". I do not know where it is, in any corner of the country. Mr. Speaker, I think Government should concentrate on such areas so they can catch up with the rest of the districts in our nation. An example is Turkana and that is enough. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that Government should improve the country regardless of tribes, Turkana, Kalenjin, Masai, Wakamba and so on; all the people should be treated equally.

I would like to mention one point on farmers because I really represent a farming area where the farming industry is largely considered by Government. We hold shows very often in my area. However farmers meet some kind of difficulties and that is the question of financial problems. I would suggest to the Government to see these farmers are given more development loans in order to develop their farms nicely and progressively so they become more productive. If Government is not going to do that, farmers are always going to meet such financial problems and be unable to repay their loans to the Government. As a result, their farms are later on seized and repossessed by the Government, which is a great shame to the Government, after considering helping the farmers.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, thinks like dairy facilities, fencing facilities and wheat storage, the Government should see to it that farmers are really helped with their problems.

When I come to the side of the Administration, Mr. Speaker, my district is really full of farmers who look after their cattle and we find a great deal of stock theft is still going on there. I have often asked questions in this House saying that we would like to have more chiefs because more chiefs would encourage the wananchi to assist in eradicating this question of stock theft. It is only a question of bringing all the people to a Baraza and telling them that the goodness of not stealing is this and this, and it is through chiefs that these people can be encouraged. Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to point out to Government that we still long for and demand more chiefs in my district.

Coming back to Sirikwa County Council, it is considered to be one of the largest county councils in the country and one of the most progressive. We would like the Government to give more grants to this county council. In fact, in Sirikwa County Council, Mr. Speaker, we have five districts which make up this county. Therefore, it should not be compared with other county councils that have only one district. This council should be given more funds in order to run their affairs administratively and properly. There are many officials in the county and we would like to give them jobs. There are a lot of jobless people in that county, but because they do not have enough finance, they cannot run their businesses correctly. We would like to see that Government looks into the running of Sirikwa County Council. I am not saying that there is anything wrong in that organization, but I only want to point out to the Government that its eye should concentrate on Sirikwa County Council so that it is brought up.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, Sir, we require a lot of health centres and bridges, roads and such things and Sirikwa County Council has to attend to them. The roads have to be maintained and upgraded but because there are not enough funds in the council that is why these things have been delayed all the time. We have been asked all the time by the wananchi what is being done, we are being asked if we are not taking these problems to the Government. Indeed, Sir, it is here that we can negotiate with the Government and we can tell them that we long to have all these things in order to develop the county councils and the areas.

Mr. Deputy Speaker, when we talk about unity, I can say that there is no one in the country who denies that we do not have unity in this country. We would like to have unity because this is vital, and would like to have the type of unity which every tribe in Kenya enjoys. We would like to see that in the whole of the Government machinery every tribe is represented, Sir.

We find that a lot of our school leavers, those who would like to go overseas do not always have the chance. They make out their applications to the Central Scholarship Committee but many of them are turned down because of the areas they come from; if they had to come from this area or that, the door would be open. Does that help to bring unity? Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think the framework and construction of—

I see my time is up; and so, with these few words, Mr. Deputy Speaker, I beg to support.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am glad to have this opportunity to give my comments.

An hon. Member: Like a chief.

Mr. Khaoya: Like a chief, I will deal with them thoroughly.

[Mr. Khaoya]

Sir, I would like the hon. Member for Laikipia to remember that in 1958, I dined with Queen Elizabeth at Government House, and in 1968, I dined with the President at State House and I was an ex-Senior Chief when he was not. So he had better shut up.

The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza): Order! The words "Shut up." are unparliamentary and you should withdraw them.

Mr. Khaoya: Mr. Deputy Speaker, I withdraw.

On the question of graduated personal tax, we were told that anybody who was earning less than £48 per annum would be exempted from paying Sh. 24.

[The Deputy Speaker (Dr. De Souza) left the Chair]

[The Speaker (Mr. Slade) resumed the Chair]

QUORUM

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, the hon. Member is addressing an empty Chamber. There is no Minister or Assistant Minister on the Front Bench.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I take it you wish to object that we continue without a quorum?

Mr. Mwithaga: Yes, Sir.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): That is all right. Ring the Division Bell.

(The Division Bell was rung)

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): We have a quorum now. You may continue, Mr. Khaoya.

Mr. Khaoya: Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and thank you my friend because, as a chief, surely, I should not speak to empty benches.

The question of graduated personal tax has been mentioned quite a lot in this House. We have been told that people will be exempted, especially those who had to pay Sh. 24, if they prove they are poor. I have sufficient experience to show that this is bound to be misconstrued by the so-called Assessment Committees. Only a year ago we were told about the question of reduction of payment from Sh. 48 to Sh. 24, but up to now we still have problems in the field. I am quite convinced that when this is taken right down to the level of the Assessment Committees, what they are bound to do is that they will just decide that either So-and-so should be exempted or he should be asked to pay Sh. 48. In every case you will find that the Assessment Committees will put people at Sh. 48 instead of exempting them.

So, Sir, to remove this ambiguity I would like the Minister for Finance to state very clearly that anybody who paid graduated personal tax in 1969 at the rate of Sh. 24, for the year of 1970 he will be automatically exempted. If we could say that, and if only in rare cases a few people could be proved to have substantially improved in their incomes, they could be considered for being uplifted to Sh. 48. Otherwise, Sir, we have learnt the bitter way. We have learnt that after such a statement there is a confidential directive from the Office of the President to the provincial commissioners, the district commissioners, and right down to the chiefs, and as a result the Assessment Committees will not allow us to reach the desired goal. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would like the Minister to look into that very carefully, otherwise it has no meaning at all.

Mr. Speaker, the second point I would like to raise is dealing with the unity and the stability of the country. We have been told that Kenya is stable because we have good leadership. I quite agree. However, I think people can only continue to support a Government if they feel that their future is being well catered for. At the moment—we are talking about unity and nationalism—we are trying to tell everybody that tribalism shall not pay, but the people in the country, especially the voters, have got eyes to see. At the moment we have got six Ministers from one tribe—

Mr. Lubembe: One from Rift Valley.

Mr. Khaoya:—and in the remaining tribes the distribution is very sparse indeed. In the Rift Valley, from where our Vice-President comes, there is only one Minister. Can the Government seriously say that they are paying their part when they are telling people to desist from tribalism, when they are employing six Ministers from one tribe?

Mr. Lubembe: Plus the Attorney-General, seven.

Mr. Khaoya: I do not add in the Attorney-General because I know he came on on his own merit. However, who are the other gentlemen who are appointed here? Can we seriously think that the Government is genuine when they say we should do away with tribalism, and then when it is within their power to appoint Ministers they appoint six from one tribe? In the Western Province, which is one of the largest in population, we have only two. In the Administration, is it not really tribalism when we have three or four provincial commissioners, out of the seven provinces, coming from the same tribe as the six Ministers? We are then told that they do not want tribalism.

[Mr. Khaoya]

Mr. Speaker, the question of commerce was dealt with only recently by my hon. colleague from Kitale, the hon. Muliro. He said that commerce is being entrenched in one tribe; he did not mention that tribe, but I think I am intelligent enough to know which it one is. The Minister for Commerce comes from the same tribe, as the Chairman of the Kenya National Trading Corporation, the head of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation is also of that tribe.

An hon. Member: Which tribe?

Mr. Khaoya: I do not know.

An hon. Member: Kikuyu!

Mr. Khaoya: My hon. friend is saying that it is the Kikuyu tribe.

Mr. Speaker, when 10 million people in Kenya decide on a Government, they do so solely because they think that their future will be well looked after and they are all going to benefit. However, only recently we had an example when one of our hon. Member of Parliament, the late Argwings-Kodhek, passed away, and he was a Minister in the Foreign Office. Only two days after his burial a replacement was made, but that was a Minister from the same tribe. The hon. Koinange, we know, was holding a portfolio in the Office of the President dealing with Administration, but that one has not been replaced. Why, if it is not tribalism? We had Mr. J. M. Kariuki who was the Leader of the National Youth Service, but when he was appointed Assistant Minister to the Minister for Agriculture, that one was left vacant very conveniently. Why? If that is not tribalism, what language can you put to that? We are now coming to a General Election and our voters will ask us about these things. They will say that they are going to vote for Mzee, but are they going to vote for a Kikuyu or the President of the party?

Mr. Mwithaga: What is the alternative?

Mr. Khaoya: The alternative I will come to immediately, but not until I have talked a bit about it.

Mr. Speaker, I think what we require here is an immediate reshuffle of the Cabinet so that our President can prove to the country that he is not tribal himself, and then the Government can then be a Government of the people and not of one tribe. Where there are anomalies like this over the provincial commissioners, they should appoint, say, some Luos, some Kalenjins or some of the Mombasa tribes, so that they can fill these jobs. If they do this, we can go to the General Election feeling that we can fight, but otherwise what do we stand to lose if the Government fails?

Mr. Mwithaga: Are you serious?

Mr. Khaoya: I am very serious indeed.

Mr. Speaker, then there is the question of farmers. We were told that our economy is not very bad, but I feel that our agriculture has not been given the due prominence which it ought to get from this Financial Statement. As if matters were not bad enough, the Minister has gone into it very deeply to interfere. According to the statement here, he has now made the cost of production rise for the producers by denying the East African Railways fair play. To demonstrate that, if you look at pages 43 and 111 of the Economic Survey, you will see the amount of goods which Kenya is exporting. Previously the Railways and Harbours had a very good system in that they charged below the real cost when, for example, we sent out coffee or tea; they did not charge the real cost that it should cost someone to export this produce. They charged less because they had worked out a system whereby the imports, say like petroleum, were charged at a higher rate. I think, in that case, they were lowering the cost of production to farmers. However, after the Government had introduced the competition of the big vehicles on the roads, some of which can carry as much goods as a railway wagon—who knows what we are going to have in the future, since now we have some road vehicles carrying as much as 10 tons or 20 tons? In the future we will have some carrying as much as 100 tons. You find that these vehicles are taking away all the good trade of exportation from the Railways and, as a result, the Railways are now bound and forced to charge higher for our produce when we send them to the world markets. This definitely increases the cost of production, which means that we shall get less for our products. I think we have good reason for demanding that these big vehicles be removed from the roads forthwith because they do not help anybody at all in Kenya. You meet them during the night and you find that there is one light showing, and when you overtake the vehicle you think you have overtaken it only to find that you are passing a very long body. These are a danger to our drivers and I think they should be removed. They are also a danger, as I have said, to our economy. In any case, we have seen how dangerous they are in destroying our roads, especially the Nairobi/Mombasa road, even before it was opened officially.

Mr. Speaker, if I may continue, I would like to touch on the question of roads in Kenya. Only yesterday, in my capacity as Vice-Chairman of the Kenya National Farmers' Union, I was holding a meeting with the County Councils of Bungoma, Kakamega and Busia, and in fact we intend to hold more meetings with other local authorities. The roads in Kenya are so bad that they require urgent attention from the Government.

Mr. Lubembe: You are also (Inaudible.) vice-chairman.

Mr. Khaoya: Yes. If that is the order of the day, what can you do?

The roads are so bad, Mr. Speaker, they require urgent attention. I know there is a Government criterion for selecting minor roads and putting them up to secondary status. I understand it is based on the number of vehicles passing on a given road, but in farming areas, surely it is not the number of cars which should be the criterion; it should be the number of farms, and the number of tons of produce which that area gives out to be the basis on which the Ministry of Power and Communications should base their findings when they allocate new secondary roads in a given area. Without doing that, we are only retarding transportation of our produce, and we all know how difficult and dangerous it would be if we were to delay, say, in taking produce to the Maize and Produce Store.

Mr. Speaker, with those few remarks, I beg to support.

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, I would like to join with my colleagues in this debate. I call Kenya a blessed country. The country is blessed to have all this money to spend on its people for development. This has been continuous, and we have this money. We are better off than most African countries, and I know there are some countries where the budget is similar to that of our city council. However, the people in those countries are happier than the people of this country, Kenya. They only have a little money to spend, but the money is spent so fairly, and that makes all the people happy. In Kenya we have all this money, we are blessed with good land, and so on, but the people are not as satisfied, or as happy as those poor people are. Unless we share everything we have, however much, however little, within ourselves, within the entire Republic, then we are not going to make the people in all the corners happy wherever they are. Here in Kenya we have embarked on a policy whereby we concentrate development in some areas only. It is these cases which are bringing problems to the country. Such problems should be cleared before we go out for election, and those who come to this House, and even those people outside, should know that Kenya is Kenya, and a good Kenya too, because we have everything to ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I am especially concerned with the Ministry of Agriculture and their way of giving out loans. There are people in this country who are in different categories. There are some who keep animals and they are called nomadic tribes, like ourselves in the far north. This section of people is completely forgotten, and we do not always want to be called—sometimes Government thinks we are proud of this—less developed people. They think we are proud to be known as those people who have been left behind. We are not proud of this, and we even take it as an abuse when we are always referred to as the less developed tribes, or our areas as the backward areas. Why should this continue. Since 1963 and independence up to date, we have been called less developed. If we are less developed, and if it is known that these areas are less developed, why has the Government not gone out to develop these areas? To continue, daily, saying this, that we are less developed and backward—we are taking it as an abuse. It must be known that we cannot continue like this. All right, if these areas are less developed, then something should be done to improve the standards. Unless all the parts of this country are brought up to the same standard, nobody will be happy. If you give one area a large amount of money, that area will be happy. However, what about the other areas of the country which have less development and which less is done for?

Mr. Speaker, we are nomads, we keep animals. We have not done much on the land, we do not have good land, but it should not be said that these areas will be like that for ever. It should be known that we do not now have as many cattle as we used to have. We have to follow the rest of Kenya on our own. We have gone back to the land. We are now trying to till the land, and for the information of the Minister for Agriculture and the Minister for Lands and Settlement, we have a lot of maize, and so on, and we are like many other people in Kenya. However, the Government has contributed nothing to our efforts. Unless the people are encouraged in what they do, then they will give up. In the north, even, where it is arid, there are parts which could be irrigated. Areas such as Kano now have irrigation and they are doing very well. If our area is to be developed, then where irrigation is possible it should be carried out. The Government has not done this, the National Irrigation Board have done nothing in this area. If the area is irrigated, the people there will come up to the standard of other people, and we will be happy. When people in other districts raise land issues, we shall also be there to say something about it. We have always sat back when people talked about land, or agriculture, coffee, and so on. We just listened, because this was not for our area.

[Mr. Wario]

Now that we have tried on our own to do something, in a smaller way, it is for the Government to come out and help us, to push us forward in this particular aspect of irrigation. If there is a place which can be irrigated, then it should be irrigated. We had all this trouble during the shifta time, but now we know that if this area were irrigated, we could come up to the same standard as others.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we have this other issue, local government and county councils. They have been given almost all the burden, because they have taken over health services for the people, they have to take care of the primary schools, and they are given very inadequate grants. They will collapse if they have too much—yet this kodi has been taken away from them, the Sh. 24 kodi. This will not keep the local government stable in any way. If we want the local governments and local authorities to do a good job, a few of these responsibilities should be taken away from them, and if this is not done, then they should be given sufficient money. There should be more money in the Ministry of Local Government than in any other Ministry, with the exception of Education, because it is very important as far as the people in all areas are concerned. When I say this, Sir, it is because most of the county councils in this country are going bankrupt. They are not able to pay the teachers, they are not able to serve well. This is because they do not have enough money. What they collect is no use, and the Government only gives them very little in the way of grants. If nothing is done, then the county councils are not going to serve the public well. Here again, in referring to backward areas, the Government has mentioned the North-Eastern Province, and in this they have included us. If I try to say something about Isiolo, or the hon. Member for Moyale or Marsabit raises something about their areas, they talk about the North-Eastern Province. How can we call ourselves North-Eastern when we ourselves know that we are in Eastern Province? The Government should know the difference between North-Eastern Province and those of us, though we are the same people, the same tribe, who come from the Eastern Province. This is because the Ministers do not know where the boundaries are. They always speak of the North-Eastern when I tell them something about Isiolo. When I tell them that we need this and that in Isiolo, they say, "Oh! we have sent ten officers to North-Eastern Province". This cannot be. We have been more forgotten than ever, because when we talk about our constituencies our own areas, we are referred to what is happening in the North-Eastern Province. We do not need this. This should be made clear because it causes confusion. If we are going to have this confusion all the time, then a day will come when we will have left these areas far behind, this one of ours in the Eastern Province, because every time we talk about our own constituencies and our own areas, we are referred to the North-Eastern Province. We are not from North-Eastern, and these people do not know.

An hon. Member: Do you come from Eastern Province?

Mr. Wario: I come from Eastern Province. We are, in fact, within the same province with these other people like Kamba, Meru and others. These people should know that we are not from North-Eastern Province.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another thing which will soon put this country into chaos, as I can see, are false promises that are being made here and there. At the time of independence, there were some false promises which were made and which have not been fulfilled even today. Wherever these Ministers go, they go on giving false promises. They will promise this and that, we are going to allocate this money to this and that. However, they do not do this and it is very bad, especially where a Minister comes to a self-help project, where the people have contributed so much, and says, "All right, this year I am going to give this amount of money; I am going to do this and that." However, he does not do this. These are the false promises which we do not want because they are going to lower the morale of the people in these self-help schemes. If they say they will give so much money, and go on doing that all over the country, it is not good at all. I remember one or two Ministers who had come to my area and they did the same—for example, the Minister for Social Services, who I can see over there. He gave us a promise that he was going to complete one of our projects with his money. He said he would offer Sh. 30,000, but he never did that. My people are always asking me about this money. When I ask him he refers me to Isiolo, but when I go there I find nothing. So, these are the sort of things which we must take care of. Unless we take care of this at this stage, then we are going to find ourselves being given false promises, and this will be called a false Government instead of the Government for the people. If you create a mess for yourself now, at this stage, then you have nowhere else to go.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, the hon. Member has alleged that my Ministry and I have promised to give his area—I suppose it is his district—materials or money for self-help projects. He further says that the Government, that is my Ministry, has not fulfilled this. Mr. Speaker, Sir, when a Member makes such a serious allegation in the face of the truth, which is that the money has been distributed in the current year, and the materials have been already deposited with his district commissioner and the community development officer in the area, and it is, therefore, his duty and that of his committee to dish this out, is this fair to the Government?

[The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services]

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think you are asking the hon. Member to substantiate what promise has been made and not fulfilled.

Mr. Wario, you are being asked to say what promise has been made and not fulfilled, and what evidence you have of these things.

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, the promise that I was speaking about—in fact I have been talking generally. But if the Minister want the particular one, the same Minister came to my area last year and said that we were going to have a social hall in my area completed, and that his Ministry would expand a sum of Sh. 30,000 in that particular social hall. However, up to this time nothing has been done. I asked him last week about it, and he told me to go back to Isiolo only to find that there was nothing. In fact, even the community development officer presses me to go and see the Minister.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Can you tell us exactly what occasion it was, where and what date? You might forget the date, you might not remember exactly.

Mr. Wario: This is Garba Tula Social Hall, but I cannot remember the date when he was there, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Last year?

Mr. Wario: Yes, last year. We were there, and he was with us.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): And you were there.

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Mr. Speaker, Sir, this is a subject on which I think I should—I would like to seek your guidance as to whether I can make a Statement afterwards on this, because I think it is a very unfair allegation on the side of the Government.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Yes, if a charge is made against an hon. Member, he has the right to make a Personal Statement to refute it. You might like to make it on some other occasion then?

The Minister for Co-operatives and Social Services (Mr. Ngala): Yes.

Mr. Wario: Mr. Speaker, Sir, in fact, although the Minister is trying to put me down, it is known and many Members could support me on this matter. It has happened that wherever they go, there is a promise made. They make promises, and as our Government we want a Government that fulfils its promises. We do not want a Government that goes by the head. If they do not want to fulfil their promises, who is to fulfil what the people of this country want?

Mr. Speaker, I will go to another subject. We have, as I said before, people of this country in different categories. We have those who are nomadic and those who are agriculturists. Now, we have always been looking at only one section. We have been given loans for developing land, and also for building houses. I have two hundred, three hundred, or four hundred head of cattle, and several people in my area have the same number. However, when they ask for loans, they are never given. Even if one has a plot, he is never given the loan. We, therefore, want to see to it that even those who herd the animals, or those who keep animals, should be thought of because they dominate one particular section of the country, the Masai, the Boran, the Turkana, the Kamba, the Somali, the Kalenjin; all these people keep animals. Unless you think of how to help these people, put them along with agriculture because this industry is a big one in Kenya, the beef industry, how you are going to help these people must be thought of. You cannot say that they do not have land, they do not have this and that, and, therefore, they cannot produce surety and cannot be given loans. If you are going to say that, then these particular section of people in this country will remain in the same position forever, and ever, amen. Unless the Government goes out and thinks about these particular people, and how to help them in case they want loans for developing their land, or improving animals and beef industry, or whatever it is, then they should know that these people will not develop.

If you base the argument that these things cannot be security because—

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): When were you there last?

Mr. Wario: Myself?

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Yes.

Mr. Wario: Where? In the north.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Njonjo): Yes.

Mr. Wario: I came yesterday. I am not like you who live in Nairobi, please.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, he is trying to put me off, but anyway, what I was saying is that even those people who keep animals should be thought of. Since my time has expired, thank you very much.

Mr. Kago: Mr. Speaker, Sir, I would like to join with my colleagues in congratulating the Minister for Finance for giving us what we have termed a wonderful Budget, which I think has taken care of a lot of problems which were pressing on our people in many cases.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, having said that, and remembering that we have only 15 minutes, which I consider very short a time, I would like to leave that and go to the Statement itself.

Mr. Speaker, it has been mentioned in this House by a number of hon. Members that there is unfairness in the distribution, say of jobs, of finances, and quite a lot of other things. This, Mr. Speaker, looks to be a criticism that is meant to be levelled against a certain tribe. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to be accused of being tribalistic but I think it is very wrong when a group of intellectuals, as I would call the hon. Members of this House, choose for convenience of their own, to condemn a tribe generally for activities of maybe individuals.

Mr. Speaker, I think there is calculated character assassination against the Kikuyu tribe. Mr. Speaker, as most of the Members have spoken here, and even the HANSARD can show, have talked a lot of things just saying that it is Kikuyu who are doing this. Mr. Speaker, I think that the hon. Members here are intelligent enough to know that all those bodies, boards and likewise which are concerned with distribution of those things that they have spoken about, do not consist of Kikuyu members. Mr. Speaker, many have spoken about Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation. I think it would be advisable for the hon. Members to remember that Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation Board of management, or whatever it is, comprises members who are drawn from all over the Provinces. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the members are drawn from each Province, every Province returning one member.

Coming to Agricultural Finance Corporation, Mr. Speaker, the body that gives finances to farmers, it is the same thing; every Province is represented by one person at least. And not only that, coming to education, it is the same; every Province is represented by a member from that Province.

Mr. Speaker, if all the members of these boards decide to give, say, a loan for higher education, say, a loan for trade development, or maybe a loan for agricultural development, to a certain applicants, all of them agreeing either unanimously or by vote, then why should it be said that it is one tribe that is doing that? I do not want to question the intelligence of those hon. Members, but I think it is rather unfortunate that they have not done their homework enough. I would ask them, also advise them, to do more homework to find out that it is not a tribal matter but it is a board's matter.

Mr. Speaker, this can be proved from documents which are, from time to time, issued here, or in other Governmental records. These can show that those that have been given something, have not been given because they belong to a certain tribe but just because the members were satisfied with the facts that were wanted before one could be considered for this kind of thing.

Further, Mr. Speaker, I think it becomes very unrealistic when a tribe is accused generally or loosely. If there is an individual, in a tribe, who is wrong, say for that matter if Kago is wrong, why should the whole tribe be subjected to this kind of wrong representation? Why should not the hon. Member say that it is Kago that is wrong? It is So-and-so that is wrong instead of saying that it is the whole tribe? Mr. Speaker, if the hon. Members want to complain about the allocation of Ministries, they should come out directly, because I know they know that it is not the responsibility of the Kikuyu to distribute Ministries; it is the responsibility of His Excellency the President of this country. If they think that he is wrong, they should categorically say that the hon. Mr. Kenyatta is wrong because of distributing the Ministries in the way that he did. To come here and say that it is Kikuyu, Kikuyu, this I think minimizes the hon. Members' standing in a very bad manner. Mr. Speaker, let us call a spade a spade. If the hon. Members are afraid of saying that the hon. Mr. Kenyatta is wrong, maybe according to the Constitution because of how he distributed the Ministries, well it is high time they kept quiet because I can call that cowardice. Nothing else. Instead of doing that, they choose to come and speak of the whole tribe. This is very wrong indeed. Mr. Speaker, having clarified the position, and having heard from the hon. Senator that this is enough because I have educated the House, I would like to leave that point and go to another point.

Mr. Speaker, I was very pleased to hear the hon. Minister speak of abolishing the tax, the lowest tax. I am sure the motive behind this is to alleviate the problem that our people are facing, especially those who pay that low tax because they have no money. I would have liked, Mr. Speaker, the Minister to go further and alleviate another problem that brings difficulty to our people. This other problem, Mr. Speaker, is about employment. I am sure a bit of unemployment will be taken care of from the funds that have been shown here in development, but I think that still there are some points that have not been emphasized very strongly which I would like to emphasize.

In the first place, Mr. Speaker, it should be remembered that you will find that, even today, the greatly-hit area in unemployment and in other problems, is in fact, Central Province. Mr. Speaker, you will find even today people still live in those old villages which were known as emergency villages. One only needs to walk a few miles to go to Mr. Gatuguta's constituency and see such a big village like Ruthigiti. I am sure the hon., His Excellency the Vice-President, will see this tomorrow when he visits the area. This is one of the places where you have one of the biggest emergency village still in existence. What is happening to those people is, in fact, a situation which should be looked into for they are suffering a lot.

If you come, Mr. Speaker, to our area in Nyandarua, you will find that we still have those emergency villages, so many landless people with no employment are still existing. They have to live on nothing. It is only God that supplies them with food, and nobody knows how they live. Mr. Speaker, I think one of the problems that should have been taken care of, and here I think that the Development Ministry should have looked into it mainly, is to see how some factories can be established, especially in Nyandarua. We have potatoes—I am glad I can see a mention of potato grants, but it is only £10 that have been allocated for research on how potatoes can be more useful than they are. Our area produces the greatest amount of potatoes which can be canned and can even be sent to other areas of the world which need this. I have heard it mentioned, sometimes, that there was a survey which was being carried out to see whether a potato factory can be put, maybe, in Kinangop. We would welcome this and I can assure the Ministry that we will be able to supply sufficient raw material to keep this factory going. The only thing we want is for this to be established.

Another thing I would like the Minister to look into is the problems of those people who are in settlement areas, to see how they can repay their loans. At the moment, Sir, we have talked a lot about prices of produce. Even though we have talked so much, there is not much that has been shown to be done, or that will be done. I would like to see a correct planning of these areas. When the land was allocated to the people, it was allocated with a view to producing food to be supplied to the market that was then existing. At the moment, however, the market has changed, and because of this we would like to see classification of crops so that those areas that are the only areas where a certain crop can do well should be given this crop to produce. In this case I have in mind pyrethrum. You will find that in Nyandarua you have the best soil for growing pyrethrum. If the pyrethrum that was required in Kenya was given to the Nyandarua people to grow, I am sure they would do a wonderful job of its production, and from this they would be able to satisfy the market and the prices fetched on such markets would be stable and would help the farmers concerned.

Another thing I would like to mention is about the growing of wheat. Here we have a very big complaint because, previously, when the European farmers used to grow wheat, they were given Financial Minimum Return or Guaranteed Minimum Return. They were never refused permission to use the following year's Guaranteed Minimum Return just because they had not paid the previous year's amount. At the moment it has been made very difficult for our farmers, especially the Africans, because even if they have an allocation of Financial Minimum Return from time to time, unless you have repaid the previous one you cannot be allowed to use the new allocation. This is becoming a problem and, in the end, since the farmers are not being allowed to use the new allocation to enable them to work on their shambas, they will not even be able to redeem the previous one. Thus Government will be faced with the question of writing these other allocations off. When this point is reached, nobody will benefit from this.

Lastly, Sir, I would like the farmers, especially in settlement schemes to be given more development loans so that they will be able to better their plots for the benefit of the country.

Mr. Speaker, I beg to support.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

PAYMENT OF GRATUITIES TO MINISTERS

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, I think it will be in the interest of the House if we interrupted business for a moment now to allow Mr. Mboya to make a Ministerial Statement. You may recall that, when I disclosed to the House two days ago the fact that payments had been made in respect of gratuities for Ministers and

[The Speaker]

Assistant Ministers, I said that I was asking the Auditor-General to provide a report, and that I did not think we should discuss the matter any more until we receive that report, unless the Government had something to say on the subject meanwhile.

Well, I am not at all surprised to hear today that Mr. Mboya, on behalf of the Government, would like to comment on the situation, and he has every right to do so. I am sure the House would like to hear him.

Will you make your statement now, Mr. Mboya.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, Sir, in view of the impromptu Communication from the Chair that you, Sir, made in the House on the 25th June, I now desire to make this statement.

In your communication, Sir, you stated that it was a fact that a large sum of money has been spent out of public funds for gratuities for Ministers and that payment had never been authorized by this House. You further described this expenditure as a deliberate excess and as a contempt of the authority of this House. Mr. Speaker, the Government does not accept these two views.

The House will recall that the issue of gratuities to Ministers was the subject of a lengthy debate by this House on the 4th and 5th of December 1968. In introducing the Motion to exempt gratuities from income tax, the Assistant Minister for Finance said, and I quote:—

“As Members may be aware, the terms of service and the appointment of Ministers and Assistant Ministers have been revised to provide for a gratuity to be paid based on their salaries. The Members may be aware that the terms of service of Ministers and Assistant Ministers are the responsibility of His Excellency the President. I recall, and I want to remind the hon. Members, that in our Parliamentary Group Meeting, His Excellency, the President, when presiding over the meeting of the Group, indicated to the hon. Members that Ministers and Assistant Ministers were given gratuity, in fact.

At that meeting, Sir, there was not any query nor was there any controversial debate which took place on this subject. I take it, therefore, Sir, that the hon. Members, according to the Parliamentary Group, that is, the Kanu Parliamentary Group Meeting, which met, have consented to this payment of gratuity to Ministers and Assistant Ministers.”

Mr. Speaker, that is the end of the quote of the statement made in this House by the Assistant Minister for Finance in December of last year.

Mr. Speaker, the hon. Members who are in the House today, most of them, I believe, were in the House on that occasion and cannot have failed to have heard these words stated.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, may I know whether this is a Government statement or the Minister is quoting what we read in the Editorial of the Daily Nation today?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No. The hon. Member is making a Ministerial Statement in defence of Government in answer to what was a serious charge from the Chair. He is entitled to quote anything relevant to that defence, and he is quoting from HANSARD at this time.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): Mr. Speaker, what I have quoted is not from the Daily Nation, but from the HANSARD of December 5th, 1968.

From these passages, it is quite clear that this House—I want to repeat this, Mr. Speaker—from these passages that I have quoted from the HANSARD, it is quite clear that this House was made fully aware, if indeed it was not already aware, that these gratuities were being paid.

The Motion, Mr. Speaker, to which I have referred was accepted and approved by the House on the 5th December. Only one conclusion can be drawn from this approval, namely that this House agreed to the payment of these gratuities, as well as to their exemption from income tax. You, Sir, Mr. Speaker, on the 5th December gave a ruling on the matter in which you said in respect of gratuities, and I quote again from the HANSARD. You said, Sir:—

“... we are assured by the Mover that they were covered by Estimates and by an Appropriation Act. If they were, they have not been illegally paid. It may be that they were wrapped up in Estimates in a way which the House does not like, but that does not make them illegal.

“The only person, I think, who can tell us whether or not these payments are illegal is the Controller and Auditor-General.”

That is the end of the quote, and those, Sir, were your words, appearing in the HANSARD in December, last year. With respect, Sir, you are correct in saying that under the Constitution, the only person who can tell us—all of us in this House—whether these payments were duly authorized, is the Controller and Auditor-General, and nobody else. No other person can make that judgment except the Controller and Auditor-General. But, Sir, with great respect, neither you as Speaker of this House, nor the Government, can direct or even ask the Controller and Auditor-General to make a report. The Constitution itself requires the Controller and Auditor-General, under section 105, to consider the validity of every expenditure, and to report when he sees fit, but at least once a year, to the Minister for Finance. He reports to the Minister for Finance, and not to any other person. The Minister for Finance is then bound by the Constitution to lay this report before the House within a period of seven days after the House has started meeting during that time. Mr. Speaker, no variation of this procedure is permitted by the Constitution, which specifically states that the Controller and Auditor-General shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other person or authority in the performance of his duties.

[The Minister for Economic Planning and Development]

The Government has no wish to prejudge the view which the Controller and Auditor-General may make in any report. However, I can assure the House that payments have been made from money voted and appropriated by this House. The Government considers that these payments were properly chargeable to the personal emoluments subheads of the appropriate Votes, and that any possible argument that the subheads of those Votes did not adequately refer to these payments has been met by the statements made during the debate of the Motion in December, 1968, and by the acceptances of those statements by this House. Mr. Speaker, if the Controller and Auditor-General advises that these payments need further authorization, the Government will, of course, take the appropriate action.

I wish to say one further word, Mr. Speaker. Readers of the foreign Press have been given the unfortunate impression that the £1 million by which the Vote on Account was reduced, all related to these gratuities of Ministers and Assistant Ministers. Mr. Speaker, that is not correct.

An hon. Member: What figure was it?

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya): As the hon. Members have been well aware, the individual gratuity is based on 20 per cent of the basic salary. The total annual sum, therefore, earned as gratuity—instead of the wild figures which have been mentioned all over the place—by all the Ministers and Assistant Ministers put together, is of the order of £26,000, as has been repeatedly affirmed in this House. I hope the figure which has now been quoted will help clarify this matter once and for all—

Hon. Members: No, no.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development (Mr. Mboya):—because there have been rumourmongers going about, talking about Ministers having allocated to themselves and distributed among themselves £1 million, which is entirely false, and has no relevance to fact. As has been repeatedly affirmed in this House—and I wish to give the hon. Members this assurance—the Government is dedicated to upholding the Constitution and the law of Kenya. Any suggestion to the contrary is gravely damaging to Kenya's image and reputation and, what is more, does not reflect Government's thinking or actions.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Hon. Members, it is usual, when a Ministerial Statement is made, to allow questions genuinely seeking further information; but on this occasion I stand by what I said before, that assuming we may expect a report from the Controller and Auditor-General, it is much better to defer all discussion of this until we receive that report, with the exception that obviously Government had to have an opportunity of commenting on what I said. I ask all hon. Members to accept this as the best course, to wait for the Auditor-General's report. I likewise, though I might like to have commented on what Mr. Mboya said, will hold myself bound by that and make no comment until we have the Auditor-General's report. We are all very clear as to how we rely on him in such circumstances. Certainly, I never intended to suggest before, at any time, that I had the power to direct the Controller and Auditor-General to make a report. The position is precisely as stated by Mr. Mboya. What I said I was doing, and what I have done, is to ask for a report, and that is only following a precedent of another occasion in which the Controller and Auditor-General reported to the House on certain expenditure without authority. In the hope that the Auditor-General will comply with my request—not being bound to do so at all—I say we will not discuss this further until we have his report. Of course, if no report is forthcoming, then the matter might have to be discussed further in some other way, but let us wait and see what attitude he takes. Of course, the procedure is, as Mr. Mboya has said, that any such report goes to the Minister for Finance, who in turn has to lay it on the Table within seven days.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am just seeking your guidance on this. It is obvious from the statement there that in spite of your ruling from the Chair that you ask the Auditor-General to submit a report to this House before we debate the issue, it is now known quite clearly that we have no powers, or you have no powers at all to ask the Auditor-General. What will happen in the event of the Auditor-General blatantly refusing to submit the report to the House? In view of this statement, are we not allowed to debate the issue regardless of the Auditor-General's report, because he can as well be told not to submit a report to you?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I do not think I can add anything to what I have just said. I am hoping that we shall receive, from the Controller and Auditor-General, a report at an early date; though it is at his discretion whether or not he complies with my request. If he does not, then it will be open to hon. Members to move a debate on the whole issue in some other way.

Mr. Mwithaga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, in view of that further statement by you, and in view of the contents of the statement by the hon. Mr. Mboya, what would the House stand to do if it is understood from from the statement that the reference to the resolutions of this House are a matter of fact—what is true—what can this House do?

An hon. Member: What do you mean?

Mr. Mwithaga: I know what I mean.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): These are, to the best of my knowledge, true quotations from HANSARD. I did not detect any falsehood in the quotation from HANSARD.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, Sir, May I get this clear: the Minister who was speaking, was he speaking on behalf of the Minister for Finance or the Attorney-General?

Hon. Members: Government.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I think he was speaking for the Government as a whole because of their collective responsibility; there is no doubt of that.

Mr. Seroney: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, you have ruled that in practice what is normally allowed is simply to ask questions arising from the Ministerial Statement—and I do not wish to do so—and you have also just said that in the eventuality of a report not being coming from the Auditor-General, Members debate this in another way. However, as far as I am aware, there is only a Motion on the subject, which is hardly ever a satisfactory way of concluding anything, and the hon. Minister has raised very important points, some of which I do not understand, about his interpretation of the Constitution and of the powers of this House.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! This is not intended as an opportunity for comment on the Ministerial Statement. If you are worrying what procedure would be available in the event of having no report, well then I think we shall consider that, and I shall advise hon. Members, if and when the occasion arises.

Mr. Odinga: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I would like to get your ruling on this: when the Minister was speaking, he said that the Auditor-General would only report to the Minister for Finance, but as far as my knowledge goes, the Minister has got limited time in which he has to submit this, and if he does not I think the Auditor-General has got the full right to report to this House; if the Minister does not do it within seven days. Is that not correct?

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): I am quite sure that, if the Minister receives a report he will comply with his constitutional obligation of laying it within seven days.

I think we had better resume the debate now. I think we have had enough points of order on this now.

Mr. Shikuku: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, are we not allowed to ask questions about this?

Hon. Member: No.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): No, for the reasons I gave; I think it would be best for the House to wait for the report.

Who wishes to continue in the debate on the Financial Statement?

Mr. Odinga: Mr. Speaker, Sir, on a point of order, I take this to be rather serious. Do you think it was correct for the Minister—I thought the Minister misrepresented the House in his statement by saying that the House was aware that the Ministers were going to receive gratuities.

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! We cannot discuss this business now, Mr. Odinga, except on straight points of order; this is not a point of order. We are going to have debate on this subject, one way or another, whether on the report from the Auditor-General or otherwise, and that will be the time to argue the facts of the case.

Mr. Ondiek-Chillo: The Minister should be arrested!

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Does any hon. Member wish to speak on the Financial Statement?

COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS

MOTION

THAT MR. SPEAKER DO NOW LEAVE THE CHAIR
(Resumption of debate in Fourth Day of Budget Debate interrupted by Ministerial Statement)

Mr. Tuwei: Mr. Speaker, I am very glad that the Government has issued a very correct statement, even if it is found to be incorrect later on. As from today, Mr. Speaker, I will speak as to how the Government has acted to show us the mood in which this country can be run smoothly without Parliamentary authority. Sir, this unauthorized authority should be known and it should be legalized because this has not been done already. We would always—

The Speaker (Mr. Slade): Order! Mr. Tuwei, you are entitled to discuss, in general, the authority of Parliament, but you are not entitled to discuss in this debate what I have said we shall not discuss until we have had a report. Therefore, keep off this particular subject of gratuities, which I think you are on; come off it please.

Mr. Tuwei: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I think that because I am now speaking on the Committee of Ways and Means, on how the Budget was put, I will have to reserve some comments and air them when the House is in Committee stage.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, today the world, the country, cannot suppress the Press in which there are many opinions which the world has already formed. We, in this country, have to make a clarification of what we have said. Today the Auditor-General says this thing, when we agree with Mr. Speaker, but the Government has not stated clearly whether the Speaker has the right to tell us the truth, and telling the truth to the world. Why, today, are we being told that there were other people who were somehow responsible to be the Speaker of this House to whom we need to report such matters, in the way in which we really want?

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I rise today because I would like to say something. Our people are very, very glad because they heard that anybody earning £48 per annum does not have to pay that kind of taxation. However, why are there people, like Mr. M. J. Seroney, who contribute something to the revenue, £118 per year, due to the course of the bursary he had during the colonial times, who have to pay this; why is that not abolished? If the Government continues to pin down somebody in person for many, many years, even within independence, it is really very bad for a Government of this nature not to forgive, yet we are saying in the field that the past is the past and we should forget and forgive each other. Now, why I raise the matter is that he himself has already been banned by the law society. In Kenya they should see how a man could live, either by his own way of life, or not to be crippled in another way of making him a source of revenue, so that they abolish the other part of taxation in the country. Why, he himself, who also pays income tax to be brought in as a person and be pinned down so long alive in a Parliament as we are, and they might continue to do so in later days.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I now come to say something about irrigation. If we talk so much about irrigation alone, why not about settling the squatters? I am always speaking about it wherever I speak, and whenever I get the chance to speak, Mr. Speaker. We have some people who are abandoned in Rift Valley Province, who are in Uasin-Gishu District, the squatters, some of whom are the owners of the land. Some of these squatters left to their homeland during independence, or prior to independence. Now, Mr. Speaker, those people are there, their names have been recorded in the office of the Commissioner for Squatters, and these people have not yet been settled, and whenever there is a settlement scheme, other people are brought from another district, or any part of the country within Kenya, and settled there. This is because they are called "national debt of settlement". I object to this nationalism, Sir, if it will not cater for those people who are near the settlement schemes. If those people will not be settled first, then I reject this "national debt of settling squatters".

There are in my area so many squatters, and and if I represent them as a Member of Parliament, and when I raise the matter, they come and tell me that they are settling squatters on a national basis. Why are the Kalenjin people thrown away from Nyandarua District, and asked to go to the district commissioner of their own area? In Uasin-Gishu District, they say that the squatters are on a national basis. Why not ask those to go and see the district commissioner of their own area?

Mr. Speaker, how are we going to work in this country, while now they are touching expansion of another empire which is being expanded through another back door, just like this graduated personal tax we are having at the moment? We, who are now leaders in Kenya, it is our duty to report all this during the time we are in this House. If everybody is to go to his own district commissioner, we shall be coming to majimbo system, which, if it is still existing, we could sympathize with; but now we cannot do so because we are united. This unity allows some people to go out and lock people in doors, thereby preventing them from going out, and this is another terrible business, which I must say I object to. I appreciate that democracy has been followed in this country, and I also appreciate the stability we have. Our budgets, especially the one we have today, which we have already grasped and digested, are usually very fairly drawn. We believe at the moment that the country has already accepted the budget as it was presented in this House on the 19th June, by the Minister for Finance, and I believe that the people who have been exempted from taxation, have also noted the trend of the Government towards free education, free taxation—whatever it is, I do not know; but as it has begun with exemption from taxation, it will also come to other services.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, another very important item, is what happens to the farms, that have been taken over by the State. These State farms should go to able people. The people to whom they are given, when the lease-period is over, should hand them over to local Africans. You find other people coming from the outside to come and take over, yet the other people have been banking their money, so that they can lease the farms already in their own jurisdiction, and later on, they find a letter from Nairobi authorizing So-and-so to go and lease the farm. These people always come from Kiambu and Murang'a Districts, and the rest I do not know from where; other are members of co-operative societies. Our co-operative societies have been regarded as useless, and if the others are better, well, they will tell us. Why should we give responsibility to a district commissioner, and make him in charge of the Control Board, and yet not allow him to authorize that So-and-so will take this land according to the conditions made here, the first priority goes to the people who are in a particular locality Sir, Nairobi here, is not within our locality; so, we would like the Minister concerned, always first of all to investigate the matter at home before he decides from the Headquarters here, or wherever he is.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, I had a lot to say here, for even the members of the Industrial and Commercial Development Corporation, or the Kenya Tourist Development Corporation, do not actually visit the districts concerned in the business in question. They merely make hasty decisions, just because they want to satisfy the person who comes first, and therefore, they just give him a loan to his business. You find a man comes from Murang'a District, who is the first man in the Trading and Licensing Board in the record, using the road up to the place where I was born, and the man who authorizes him, is the man who has never been to that area, but if I go to him, he tells me to wait, for this thing will go on according to the national basis. We would like to know, as from today, whether nationalism exclude or not, in any social service, or in any business basis, I will not keep quiet myself, for I will be scrutinizing, whether the Ministers will be having gratuities, and they will class us as those who have been supporting the Government in the way of criticizing us and cover such mistakes. If they will come to blame us, we will know it will be for the election purpose they will be doing this.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, we are not this KPU, and we are members of Kanu; we are supporting the Government, as well as making some criticisms which could be done. We are not going to allow the Ministers to get funds from the development funds and say that they are in order. All Members of Parliament should be given cheques to issue for any dispensary, any health centre, whereby we can go to our people and present them. Let them hear and give us those cheques and we will take them, and if they are returned, we will know that the cheques were dishonoured because the Ministers mind about their own wants, and have no funds of their own. If it is a Government development fund, let's present such a cheque, or Mzee Jomo Kenyatta mwenyewe go to present such a cheque, but not the Ministers going here and there, and some of them wanting to stand for presidential election. We have already gathered that some of them would like to do that

Mr. Speaker, Sir, when it is a matter of issuing licences for political rallies in the districts, you sometimes find your application being rejected by the district commissioner due to the instructions directed from Nairobi. We would like to know about this problem, so that we could be reporting to this office in Nairobi before going to hold a political rally. This is another terrible set-back, for whenever you want to go and hold a meeting, you hear from such-and-such a Minister that the meeting was postponed, and for that reason no meeting will be held at that particular time. You hear from the radio that such-and-such a meeting is cancelled, and you are already at the place where the meeting is supposed to take place as a Member of that area; you hear that somebody from Nairobi cancelled the meeting. This is another thing which we do not concede to, and that is why we object to the question of gratuities. If they give these gratuities to every
